

DR ZAKIR HUSAIN LIBRARY JAMIA MILLIA ISLAMIA JAMIA NAGAR NEW DELHI

Please examine the books before taking it out. You will be responsible for damages to the book discovared while returning it.

Rare 297.03

HUG

DATE

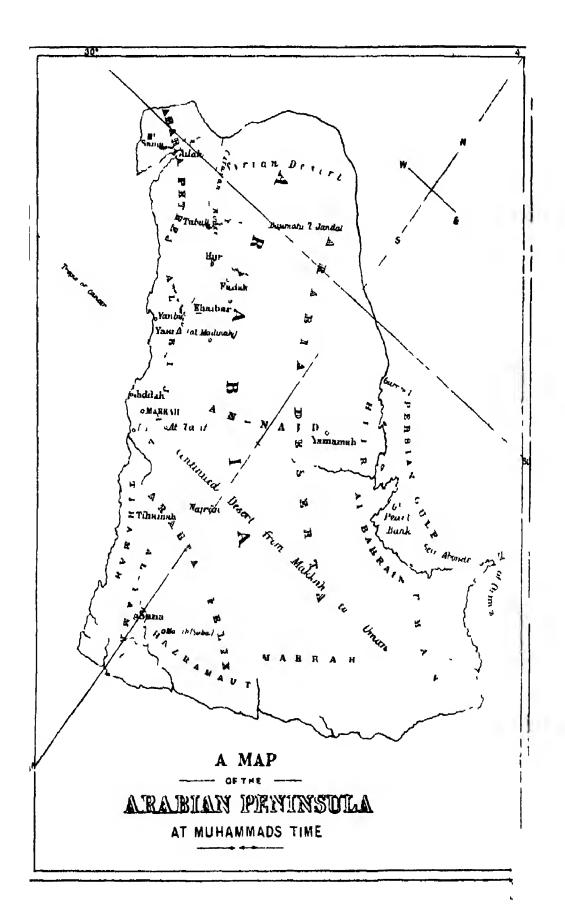

~~~

Icc. No.

Late Fine Rs. 1.00 per day for first 15 days. Rs. 2.00 per day after 15 days of the due date.

Dr.ZAKIR HUSAN LIBRARY MBB 1811 1881 8 11881 984

24874

DICTIONARY OF ISLAM

BEING

A CYCLOPÆDIA OF THE DOCTRINES, RITES, CEREMONIES, AND CUSTOMS, TOGETHER WITH THE TECHNICAL AND THEOLOGICAL TERMS, OF THE MUHAMMADAN RELIGION.

BY

THOMAS PATRICK HUGIIES, B.D., M.R.A.S.

SECOND EDITION

WITH NUMEROUS ILLUSTRATIONS.

W. H. ALLEN & CO., LIMITED, 18, WATERLOO PLACE, S.W.

DEDICATED

(WITH PFRMISSION)

TO

THE RIGHT REVEREND THOMAS VALPY FRENCH, D.D.,

FIRST BISHOP OF LAHORE,

WITH MUCH AFFECTION AND ESTEEM,

BY HIS LORDSHIP'S OBEDIENT SERVANT,

THOMAS PATRICK HUGHES

PREFACE.

The increased interest manifested in relation to all matters affecting the East, and the great attention now given to the study of comparative religion, seem to indicate that the time has come when an attempt should be made to place before the English-speaking people of the world a systematic exposition of the doctrines of the Muslim Faith. The present work is intended to supply this want, by giving, in a tabulated form, a concise account of the doctrines, rites, ceremonies, and customs, together with the technical and theological terms, of the Muhaminadan religion

Although compiled by a ciergyman who has had the privilege of being engaged in missionary work at Peshawar for a period of twenty years, this "Dictionary of Islam" is not intended to be a controversial attack on the religious system of Muhammad, but rather an exposition of its principles and teachings

Divided, as the Muslim world is, into numerous sects, it has been found impossible to take into consideration all the minor differences which exist amongst them The Dictionary is, for the most part, an exposition of the opinions of the Sunni sect, with explanations of the chief points on which the Shiah and Wahhabi schools of thought differ Very special attention has been given to the views of the from it. Wahhabis, as it is the Author's conviction that they represent the earliest teachings of the Muslim Faith as they came from Muhammad and his immediate successors. When it is remembered that, according to Mr Wilfrid Blunt's estimate, the Shiah sect only numbers some ten millions out of the one hundred and seventy-five millions of Muhammadans in the world, it will be seen that, in compiling a Dictionary of Muhammadanism, the Shiah tenets must of necessity occupy a secondary place in the study of the religion. Still, upon all important questions of theology and jurisprudence, these differences have been noticed.

The present book does not profess to be a Biographical Dictionary The great work of Ibn Khallikan, translated into English by

VI PREFACE.

Slane, supplies this. But short biographical notices of persons connected with the early history of Islam have been given, masmuch as many of these persons are connected with religious dogmas and ceremonies; the martyrdom of Husain, for instance, as being the foundation of the Muharram ceremonies, Abu Hamfah, as connected with a school of jurisprudence, and the Khalifah Umar as the real founder of the religious and political power of Islam. In the biographical notice of Muhammad, the Author has expressed his deep obligations to Sir William Muir's great work, the Life of Mahomet.

It is impossible for anyone to write upon the subject of Muhammadanism without being largely indebted, not only to Sir William Muir's books, but also to the works of the late Mr. Lane, the author of Modern Egyptians, new editions of which have been edited by Mr. Stanley Lane Poole. Numerous quotations from these volumes will be found in the present work.

But whilst the Author has not hesitated in this compilation to avail himself of the above and similar works, he has, during a long residence amongst Muhammadan peoples, been able to consult very numerous Arabic and Persian works in their originals, and to obtain the assistance of very able Muhammadan native scholars of all schools of thought in Islam

He is specially indebted to Dr. F Stringass, of the University of Munich, the author of the English-Arabic and Arabic-English Dictionaries, for a careful revision of the whole work. The interesting article on writing is from the pen of this distinguished scholar, as well as some valuable criticisms on the composition of the Qur'an, and a biographical sketch of the Khalifah 'Umar Orientalists may, perhaps, be surprised to find that Sikhism has been treated as a sect of Islam, but the Compiler has been favoured with a very able and scholarly article is the subject by Mr. F Pincott, M R.A.S., in which he shows that the "religion of Nanak was really intended as a compromise between Hinduism and Muhammadanism, if it may not even be spoken of as the religion of a Muhammadan sect,"—the publication of which in the present work seemed to be most desirable.

At the commencement of the publication of the work, the Author received very valuable assistance from the Rev. F. A. P. Shirreff, M.A., Principal of the Lahore Divinity College, as well as from other friends, which he must gratefully acknowledge.

Amongst the numerous suggestions which the Author received for the compilation of this Dictionary, was one from a well-known Arabic scholar, to the effect that the value of the work would be enhanced if the quotations from the Qur'an, and from the Traditions, were given in their original Arabic This, however, seemed incompatible with the general design of the book. The whole structure of the work is intended to be such as will make it available to English scholars unacquainted with the Arabic language, and, consequently, most of the information given will be found under English words rather than under their Arabic equivalents For example, for information regarding the attributes of the Divine Being, the reader must refer to the English Gon, and not to the Arabic ALLAH, for all the ritual and laws regarding the liturgical service, to the English PRAYER, and not to the Arabic salar, for the marriage laws and ceremonies, to the English MARRIAGE, and not to the Arabic NIKAH. It is hoped that, in this way, the information given will be available to those who are entirely unacquainted with Oriental languages, or, indeed, with Eastern life.

The quotations from the Qur'an have been given chiefly from Palmer's and Rodwell's translations, and those in the Qur'anic narrative of Biblical characters (moses for example) have been taken from Mr. Stanley Lane Poole's edition of Lane's Selections But, when needful, entirely new translations of quotations from the Qur'an have been given.

The "Dictionary of Islam" has been compiled with very considerable study and labour, in the hope that it will be useful to many,—to the Government official called to administer justice to Muslim peoples, to the Christian missionary engaged in controversy with Muslim scholars, to the Oriental traveller seeking hospitality amongst Muslim peoples, to the student of comparative religion anxious to learn the true teachings of Islam,—to all, indeed, who care to know what are those leading principles of thought which move and guide one hundred and seventy-five millions of the great human family, forty millions of whom are under the rule of Her Most Gracious Majesty the Empress of India

July 23rd, 1885

THE ARABIC LETTERS IN THIS VOLUME HAVE BEEN TRANSLITERATED AS FOLLOWS —

| Arabio  | Names          | Roman            | Pronunciation                                                                                 |  |  |
|---------|----------------|------------------|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|--|--|
| 1       | Alıf           | A                | a, i, u, at the beginning of a word                                                           |  |  |
| -       | Bā             | В                | As in English                                                                                 |  |  |
| ت       | Tā             | T                | A soft dental, like the Italian t                                                             |  |  |
|  | Şā             | S                | Very nearly the sound of th in thing                                                          |  |  |
| •       | Jim            | J                | As in English                                                                                 |  |  |
| 5       | Hã             | H                | A strong aspirate                                                                             |  |  |
| t       | Khā            | Kh               | Guttural, like the Scotch ch in loch                                                          |  |  |
| ٥       | Dāl            | D                | Soft dental                                                                                   |  |  |
| 3       | Zál            | $\boldsymbol{Z}$ | A sound between dh and z                                                                      |  |  |
| ,       | Rã             | R                |                                                                                               |  |  |
| ,       | Zā             | $\mathbf{z}$     | As in English                                                                                 |  |  |
| ú       | Sīn            | S                | YR in Fugura                                                                                  |  |  |
| ا ش     | Shīn           | Sh               | )                                                                                             |  |  |
| م       | Sād            | S                | A strongly articulated s, in Central Asia as sw                                               |  |  |
| ص       | Zād            | Z                | Something like the foreign pronunciation of the th in that, in Central Asia and India z or zw |  |  |
| L       | Tã             | T                | A strongly articulated palatal /                                                              |  |  |
| L       | Zā             | 2                | A strongly articulated z                                                                      |  |  |
| 3       | 'A in          | 4                | A guttural, the pronunciation of which must be learnt by ear                                  |  |  |
| 8       | Ghain          | G1               | A strong guttural gh                                                                          |  |  |
| ا ب     | Fā             | $\mathbf{F}$     | As in English                                                                                 |  |  |
| ی       | Qāf            | $\mathbf{Q}$     | Lake ck in stuck                                                                              |  |  |
| لعد     | Kāf            | ĸ                | 1                                                                                             |  |  |
| J       | Lām            | ${f L}$          |                                                                                               |  |  |
| ř       | Mim            | M                |                                                                                               |  |  |
| ا ر     | Nūn            | N                | As in English                                                                                 |  |  |
| 8       | Hā             | H                |                                                                                               |  |  |
| ,       | Wau            | W                | $\Pi$                                                                                         |  |  |
| ی       | Yã             | Y                | 1 /                                                                                    |  |  |
| _       | Fathah         | a                | 5                                                                                             |  |  |
| -       | Kasrah         | 1                | As in Italian                                                                                 |  |  |
|         | Zamma h | u                | j)                                                                                     |  |  |
| •       | Hamzah         | 7                | Pronounced as a, 1, u, preceded by a verv slight aspiration                                   |  |  |

DICTIONARY OF ISLAM.

Α.

AARON Arabic Harun (ale) The account given of Aaron in the Qur'an will be found in the article on Mosos In Sürah tix 29, the Virgin Mary is addressed as "the Sister of Aaron" [MARY, MOSES]

Eternity, without ABAD (۱۹۱) end, as distinguished from Azal (Ji), without beginning

"ABASA (عسس) "He frowned"
The title of the LXXXth chapter of the Qui'an "He frowned" It is said that a blind man, named 'Abdu Ilah ilin Umm Maktum, once interrupted Muham mad in conversation with certain chiefs of The Prophet, however, took no Quraigh notice of him, but frowned and turned away, and in the first verse of this Surah, he is represented as reproved by God for having dono so -"He frowned and turned his back, for that the blind man came unto him

'ABBAS (عاس) The son of 'Abdu l-Muttalib, and consequently the paternal uncle of Muhammad The most celebrated of the "Companions," and the founder of the Abbaside dynasty, which held the Khalifato for a poriod of 509 years, namely, from AD 749 to AD 1258 He died in AH 32 His son Ibn 'Abbas was also a celebrated authority on Islamic traditions and law 'ABBAS, ABBASIDES ]

ABBASIDES Arabic al-'Abbāsīyah (العباسية) The name of a dynasty of Khalifahs descended from al-'Abbas, the son of 'Abdu I Muttalib, and a paternal uncle of Muhammad. On account of their descent from so near a relation of the Prophet, the Abbasides had, ever since the introduction of Islam, been very high in esteem amongst the Arabs, and had at an early period begun to excite the jealousy of the Umaivade Khalifahs, who after the defeat of All occupied the throne of the Arabian Empire The Abbas-idos had for some time asserted their claims to the Khalifate, and in AD 746 they commonced open hostilities In 749 the Abbaside Khaliifah Abū 'l-'Abbās, surnamed as-Saffāh, "the blood-shedder," was recognied as Khalifah at al-Kūfah, and Marwan II, the last of the Umanyade Khalifahs, was defeated and slaın

Thirty seven Khalifahs of the Abbaside dynasty reigned over the Muhammadan empire,

extending over the period from AH 132 (AD 749 50) to AH 656 (AD 1258)

Thenames of the Abbaside Khalifahs are — Abū 'l-'Abba" as "aliah (AD 749), al-Mansür (AD 754), al-Mahdi (AD 770) il Hādi (AD 785), Hūtin ar hashid (AD 786), al-Main (AD 809), al-Ma'mūn (AD 813), al-Mu'taşım (AD 833), al Wasiq (AD 842), al-Mutawakkil (AD 847), al-Muntasir (AD 861), al-Musta'in (AD 862) al-Mu'tazz (AD 866), al-Michtadi (AD 869), al-Mu'tamid (AD 870), al-Mu'tazid (AD 892)) al-Muktafi (AD 902), al-Muqtadir (AD 908), al-Qābir (AD 932), ar-Rūzi (AD 934), al Muttaqi (AD 940), al-Mustaqfi (AD 944), al Muți (AD 945), at-Tăi (AD 974), al-Qădir (AD 994), al-Qâm (AD 1031), al Muqtadi (AD 1075) al-Mustazhir (AD 1094), ul-Mustarshid (AD 1118), ar-Rāshid (AD 1135), al Muqtafī (AD 1136), al-Mustanjid (AD 1160) al Mustazi (AD 1170), an-Nāṣir (A D 1180), az Zāhir (A D 1225), al-Mustansır AD 1226), al-Musta'sım (AD 1242 to AD ì258)

In the reign of al-Musta'sım Hüläkü, grandson of Jingiz Khan, entered Persia and becamo Sultan AD 1256 In 1258 he took Bagndad and put the Khalifah al-Musta'sım to death [KHALIFAH.]

ABDĀL (البدال) "Substitutes," pl of Badal Certain persons by whom, it is said, God continues the world in existence Their number is seventy, of whom forty reside in Syria, and thirty elsewhere When one dies another takes his place, being so appointed by God It is one of the signs of the last day that the Abdal will come from Syria (Mishkat, xxii c 3) No one proteinds to be able to identify those eminent persons in the world God alone knows who they are, and where they are

'ABDII'LLĀH (عبدالله) The father of Muhammad. He was the youngest son of During the pregnance of 'Abdu 'l Muttalib his wife Aminah, he set out on a mercantile expedition to Gaza in the south of Palestine, and on his way back he sickoned and died at al Madinah, before the birth of his son Mu haminac (Kātibu'l-Wāqidi p 18 Millis Life of Mahomet, vol 1 p 11)

عبدالله) ABDU 'LLÄH IBN SA'D' ابى سعد) One of Muhammad's secretaries It is related that, when Muhammad instructed 'Abdu 'llāh to write down the words (Sūrah xxiii 12-14), "We (God) have created man from an extract of clav then we produced it another creation, 'Abdu llah exclaimed, "And blessed be God the best of creators", and Muhammad told him to write that down also Whereupon Abdu 'llah hoasted that he had been inspired with a sentence which the Prophet had acknowledged to be part of 'he Qui'an It is of him that it is written in the Quran, Sui ib is 93, "Who is more unjust than he who devises against God a lie or says, 'I am mapned,' when he is not inspired at all "

'ABDU'L-MUTTATIB (بعد المطلب) Muhammads grandfather and his guardian for two years. He died aged 82, AD 578 His sons were 'Abdu 'lläh (Muhammad a father) al Huria, az-Zuhair, Aba Taiib Abū Lahab al-'Abbas, and Hamza

'L-QADIR AL-JILINI ABDU (عبدالقادر الجيلاني) The celebrated tounder of the Qadiriyah order of darweshes surnamed Pir-Dastagir He died and was The celebrated He died and was buried at Baghdad, A # 561

ABDU 'R-RAHMĀN IBN 'AUF One of the Compimora who embraced Islam at a very emily period, and was one of those who iled to Fthiopia. He also accompanied Muhammad n all his battles, and received twenty wounds at Uhud He died a H 32, aged 72 or 75, and was buried at Baqu u T-Gharond, the graveyard of al-Madinah Arabic Habil (هابيل), Heb ABEL Hebel הבל In the Qur'an "the two sons of Adam" are called Habil we Qabil, and the following is the account given of them in that book (Surah v 30-35) together with the iemarks of the commentators in italics (as rendered in Mr Lane's Selections, 2nd ed , p 53) Recite unto them the history of the two cons of Adim, namely, Abel and Cain, with with When they offered [then] offering to God ( 41-1 s being a ram, and Cuen's being produce of the earth), and it was accepted from one of them (that is, from Abel, for fire descended from heaven, and devoured his offering), and it was not accepted from the other, Cain was enraged, but he concealed has envy until Adan performed a prigrimage, when he said unto his prother I will assuredly slay thec Abel said, Wherefore's Cain answered, Because of the acceptance of thine offering to the exclusion of mine Abel replied, God only acceptath from the pious If thou stretch accepteth from the prous. If thou stretch forth to me thy hand to slay me, I will not stretch 'orth to thee my hand to slay thee, for I fear God, the Lord of the worlds desire that thou shouldst bear the sin [which thou intendest to commit) against me, by slaying me, and thy sin which thou hast com mitted before and thou wilt be of the compamons of the fit —And that is the recompense of the offenders —But his soul suffered him to slay his brother so he slew him, and he became of [the number of] those who suffer loss And he knew not what to do with him, for he was the first dead person upon the face of the earth of the sons of Adam So he carried him upon his buck. And God sent u raven, which scratched up the earth with it bill and its talons and raised it over a dead ruver that was with it until it hid it, to show him how he should hide the corpse of his brother He said, O my disgrace! Am I unable to he like this raven, and to hide the corpse of my brother?—And he became of the number oil the repentant And he digged [a glave] for him and hid him -On account of this which Coin did We commanded the children of Israel that he who should slay a soul (not for the latter's having slain a soul or committed wickedness in the earth such as infidelity or adultery or intercepting the way, and the like) [should be regarded] as though he bad slain all mankind and he who saveth it alive, by abstaining from slaying it, as though he had saved alive all mankind '

"The occasion of their making this offer ing is thus related, according to the common tridition in the East Fich of them being born with a twin-sister, when they were grown up, Adam, by God's direction ordered Cain to many Abel's twin-sister and Abel to mairy Canes, (for it being the common opinion that mairiages ought not to be had in the nearest degrees of consanguinity, since they must necessarily many their sisters, it seemed tensonable to suppose they ought to take those of the remoter degree. ) but this Cam refusing to agree to, because his own sister wis the handsomest, Adam ordered thom to make their offerings to God, thereby referring the dispute to His determination The commentators say Cains offering was a sheaf of the very woist of his corn, but Abel's a fat lamb of the best of his flock"—

Sale's Aoran, I, p 122

(عابد) ÄBID' "A worshipper [of God]' A term generally used for a devont person The word frequently occurs in the Quran eg Surah ii 132. The baptism (sibghah) of God! And who is better than God at baptizing! We are the worshippers ('ābidam) of God! The word sibghah is translated by Professor Palmer"dye' and "dyeing," but Sale, following the Muslim commentators, al-Baizāwī, Jalālu 'd-dīn, and Husaini, who say it refers to the Christian rite, translates it "baptism" Others say that it means fitrah or din, the religion of God, with an adaptatation to which mankind are created Lane's Lexicon [BAPTISM.]

آبق) ĀBIQ A runaway slave [ABSCONDING OF SI AVES ]

ABJAD (스누١) The name of an arithmetical arrangement of the alphabet the letters of which have different powers from one to one thousand. It is in the order of the alphabet as used by the leas as far as 400, the six remaining letters being added by the Arabians The letters spell the words—

abrad hauwaz hutte kalaman garashat sakhuz zazigh sa'fa r

The author of the Arabic Lexicon al Qumus says that the first six words are the raines of celebrated kings of Madyan (Midian) and that the last two words were added by the Arabians Some say they are the names of the eight sons of the inventor of the Arabic character, Muramır ıbn Murra

The following is a list of the letters with their English equivalents, and the power of each in numbers -

| la(i,u)          | 60       | F  | س      |  |
|------------------|----------|----|--------|--|
| $2 h \psi$       | 70       |    | 3      |  |
| 3 , 8            | 8090 | j  | عد |  |
| 4 J 3 5 h        |          | S  | ص      |  |
| 5 h 🔺            | 100      | q  | ق      |  |
| 6 w ,            | 200      | r  | ر      |  |
| 7 z j            | 300      | sh | سَ     |  |
| 8 h c            | 400      | ŧ  | ى      |  |
| 9 t L            | 500      | 5  | ث      |  |
| ى y 10           | 600      | kh | 5      |  |
| ى 10 yك 20 k | 700      | Z  | J      |  |
| 30 l J           | 800      | Z  | ڞ      |  |
| 40 ni            | 900      | z  | 4      |  |
| 50 n U           | 1000     | gh | غ      |  |
| BXORCISM 2       |          | -  | -      |  |

ABLUTION Alabic, wazū', wuzū' (وضوء), Persian, ubdast (وضوء) Ablution is described by Muhammad as 'the half of faith and the key of prayer" (Mishkat, iii 3c), and is founded on the authority of the Qur'an, suigh v 8 "Q Believers when ye prepare yourselves for prayer wish your faces and hands up to the elbows, and wipe your heads and your feet to the anklos

These ablutions are absolutely necessary as a preparation for the recital of the liturgical form of prayer, and are performed as follows The wershipper having tucked up his sleeves a little higher than his elbows, washes his hands three times then he rinses his mouth three times, throwing the water into it with his right hand After this, he, with his right hand, throws water up his nostrils, snulling it up at the same time, and then blows it out, compressing his nostrils with the thumb and finger of the left hand—this being slao per He thon washes his formed three times face three times, throwing up the water with both hands He next washes his right hand and arm, as high as the olbow, as many times, causing the water to run along his arm from the palm of the hand to the elbow, and in the same manner he washes the left. Then he draws his wetted right hand over the upper part of his head, laising his turban of cap with his left. If he has a beard, he then combs it with the wetter fingers of his right hand, holding his hand with the palm forwards, and passing the fingers through his beard from the throat upwards. He then puts the tips of his fore fingers into his ears and twists them round, passing his thumbs at the same time round the back of the ears from the bottom upwards. Next, he wipe his neck with the back of the fingers of both hands making the ends of his impers meet behind his neck and then drawing them for ward Lastly, he washes mis feet as high as the ankles, and passes his fingers between the tors During this coremony, which is generally performed in less than three minutes the intending worshipper usually recites some pions ejaculations or propers. For example — Before commencing the wazu — 1 am going to purify myself from all bodily uncleinness preparators to commencing prayer, that holv not of duty, which will draw my soul near to the throne of the Most High In the name of God, the Great and Mighty Praise be to God who has given us grace to be Muslims Islam is a truth and infidelity a falsehood '

When washing the nostrils - O my God, it I am pleasing in Thy sight, perfume me with the odours of Paradise"

When washing the right hand -God, on the day of judgment, place the book of my actions in my right hand and examine my account with favour "

When washing the left hand -"O my God, place not at the resurrection the book of my actions in my left hand"

The Shiya'is, acting more in accordance with the text of the Qur'sn quoted above, only wipe, or rub (masab) the feet, instead of washing them, as do the Sunnis

The ablution need not be performed before each of the five stated periods of prayer, when the person is conscious of having avoided every kind of impurity since the last performance of the ablution The private parts of the body must also be purified when necessary When water cannot be procured or would be injurious to health, the ablution may be performed with dust or sand. This coremony is called Tayammum (q ) washing of the whole body is necessary after cartain periods of impurity [GHUSL] The certain periods of impurity [GHUSL] The brushing of the teeth is also a religious duty The benefits of ablution are MISWAK highly extolled in the sayings of Muhammad, eg, "He who performs the wast" thoroughly will extract all sin from his body, even though it may be lurking under his finger nails " "In the day of resurrection people shall come with bright faces, hands and feet, and there will be jewels in every place where the waters of the waxw have reached (Mishkat, in 1)

VFUEL OR ABLUTIONS USED IN AUGRAN-ISTAN AND INDIA

VESSELS FOR ABLUTIONS USED IN EGYPT (LANF'S "EGYPTIANS")

In all the principal mosques there are tanks, or wells, which supply water for the purposes of legal purification [PURIFICATION]

ABORTION Arabic Isque There is no mention of the subject in the Qur'an but according to the Fataux Alangus (vol iv p 238), it is forbidden after the child is formed in the womb Muhammad is related to have ordered prayers to be said over an abortion, when suppliestion should be made for the father and mother, for forgiveness and mercy (Mishkat, v c 2)

ABRAHAM Arabic Ibrāhīm (مواقعة) One of the six great prophets to whom God delivered special laws. The "Friend of God," Khahilu 'llāh, to whom were revealed twenty portices (sahifah) of Scripture

Abraham is very frequently mentioned in the Qur'an, together with Islimael and Isaac The following are Mr Laue's selections (giving in states the remarks of Muslim commenta-

"Remember when Abraham said to his father Azar (this was the surname of Terah), Dost thou take images as deities? Verily 1 see thee and thy people to be in a manifest error -(And thus, as We should him the error of his father and his people, did We show Abraham the kingdom of the heavens and the earth, and [We did so] that he might be of [the number of those who firmly believe ) And when the night overshadowod him he saw a star (at is said that it was Venus), [and] ho said unto his people, who were astrologers, This is my Lord according to your assertion -But when it set, he said, I like not those that set, to take them as Lords, since it is not meet for a Lord to experience alteration and change of place, as they are of the nature of accidents Yet this had no effect upon them And when Yet this had no effect upon them he saw the moon using, he said unto them This is my Lord -But when it set he said Verily if my Lord direct me not (if He con firm me not in the right way), I shall assuredly be of the erring people—This was a hint to his people that they were in error, but it had no effect upon them. And when he six the sun effect upon them And when he saw rising, he said, This is my Lord This is greator than the star and the moon -But when it bot, and the proof had been rendered more strong to them, yet they desisted not he said, O my people, verily I im clear of the [things] which ve associate with God, namely, the images and the hearthly bodies. So they said unto him, What dost thou norship? He ansuered Verily I direct my face unto Him. who bath created the heavens and the earth, following the right religion and I am not of the polythersts -And his people argued with him, [but] he said, Do ve argue with me respecting God whon He hath directed me, and I fear not what ye associate with Him unless my Lord will that aught displeasing should be fall me? My Lord comprehendeth everything by His knowledge Will ye not therefore consider? And wherefore should I fear what ye have associated with God, when we fear not for your having associated with God that of which He hith not sent down unto you a proof? Then which of the two parties is the more worthy of safety? Are we, or you? If yo know who is the more worthy of it, follow him - God suith, They who have believed and not mixed their belief with injustice (that is, polytherem) for these shall be safety from punishment, and they are nightly directed" (Surah vi 74-82)

Relate unto them, in the book (that is, the Qur'an), the histery of Abruham Venily, he was a person of great verseity, a prophet When he said unto his father Azur, who worshipped idols, O my father, wherefore dost thou worship that which heareth not, nor seeth, nor averteth from thee aught, whether of advantage or of injury? O my father, verily [a degree] of knowledge hath come unto me, that hath not come unto thee therefore follow me I will direct thee into a right way O my father, serve not the devil.

by obeying him in serving idols, for the devil as very rebellious unto the Compassionate O my father, vorsly I fear that a punishment will betide thee from the Compassionate, if thou repent not, and that thon wilt be unto the devil an aider, and a companion in hell fire -He replied, Art thou a rejector of my Gods, O Abraham, and dost thou revile them? If thou abstain not, I will assuredly assail thee with stones or with ill words, therefore beware of me, and leave me for a long time -Abraham said. Peace from me be on thee! I will ask parden for thee of my Lord, for He is gracious unto me and I will separate myself from you and from what ye invoke instead of God, and I will call upon my Lord porhaps I shall not be unsuccessful in calling upon my Lord, as ye are in calling upon idols—And when he had separated him self from them, and from what they wor-shipped instead of God, by going to the Holy Land. We gave him two sons, that he might cheer himself thereby, numely, Isaac and Jacob, and each [of them] We made a prophet and We bestowed upon them (namely, the three) of our mercy, wealth and children, and We caused them to receive high commerdation' (Surah xix 42-51)

"We gave unto Abraham his direction formerly, before he had attained to manhood, and We knew him to be worthy of it. When he said unto his father and his people, What are these images, to the worship of which we are devoted?—they answered, We found our fathers worshipping them, and we have fol-He said unto them, lowed their example Verily ye and your fathers have been in a manifest error They said, Hast thou come unto us with truth in saying this, or art thou of those who jest? He answered, Nay your Lord (the being who deserneth to be norshipped) is the Lord of the heavens and the earth, who created them, not after the similatude of anything pre-existing, and I am of those who bear witness thereof And, by God, I will assuradly devise a plot against your idols after ye shall have retired, turning your backs—So, after they had gone to their place of assembly, on a day when they held a festival, he break them in pieces with an axe, except the chief of them, upon whose neck he hung the axe, that they might return unto it (namely, the chief) and see what he had done with the others. They said, after they had returned and seen what he had done, Who bath done this unto our gods? Verily he is of the unjust -And some of them said, We heard a young man mention them reproachfully he is called Abraham They said, Then bring him before the eyes of the people, that they may bear witness against him of his having done it. They said into him, when he had been brought, Hast thou done this unto our gods, O Abraham? He answered, Nay, this their casef did it and ask ye them, if they [can] speak And they returned unto themselves, upon reflection, and said unto themselves, Verily yo are the unjust, in worshipping that which speaketh not Then they reverted to their obstinacy, and said, Verily

thou knowest that these speak not wherefore don't thou order us to ask them? He said, Do ye then worship, instead of God, that which doth not profit you at all, nor injure you , ye u orship it not? Fie on you, and on that whi h ye worship instead of God! Do ye not then understand?—They ead, Burn ye bum, and avenge von gods, if ye will do so So they collected abundance of firewood for him, and set fire to it, and they bound Abraham and put him into an engine, and cast him into the fire But, south Grd, We said, O fire, he thou cold, and a security unto Abraham! So nought of him was burned sive his bonds the heat of the fire ceased, but its light remained, and by God's saying, Security,— Abruham was saved from dying by reason of its cold And they intended against him a plot, but he caused them to be the sufferers And we delivered him and Lot, the son of his brother Haran from El-Eraq, [bringing them | nuto the land which We blessed for the pooples, by the abundance of its rivers and trees, numily, Syria Abraham took up his abode in Palestine, and Lot in El-Mutefikeh, between which is a day's journey And when Abraham had asked a son, We gave unto him Isaac, and Jacob as an additional gift, beyond what he had asked, being a son's son, and all of them We made righteous persons and prophets And We made them models of role gion who directed men by Our command unto Our religion, and We commanded thom by inspiration to do good works and to perform prayer and to give the appointed alms, and they sorved Us And unto Lot Wo gave judgment and knowledge and Wo delivered hun from the city which committed fifthy actions, for they were a people of evil, shameful deers, and We admitted him into our mercy, for he was [one] of the righteons (Sūrah xxi 52 75 )

"Hast thou not considered him who disputed with Abraham concerning his Lord, because God had given him the kingdom? And he was Nimrod When Abraham said, (upon his saying unto him Who is thy Lord, unto whom thou initiest us?), My Lord is He who giveth life and causeth to die,—he replied, I give hie and cause to die—ind he summoned two men, and slew one of them, and left the other So when he saw that he inderstood not. Abraham said, And verily God bringeth the sun from the east now do thou bring it from the west—And he who disbelieved was confounded, and God directeth not the offending people" (Sürsh ii. 260)

"And Our messengers came formerly unto Abraham with good tidings of Isaac and Jacob, who should he after him. They said, Poace He replied Peace he on you. And he tarried not, but brought a reasted calf. And when he saw that their hands touched it not, he dishilad them and conceived a fear of them. They said, Fear not for we are sent unto the people of Lot, that we may destroy them. And his wife Sarah was standing serving them, and she laughed, rejoicing at the tidings of their destruction. And we gave her good tidings of Isaac, and after Isaac, Jacob.

She said, Alas: shall I bear a child when I am an old woman of nine and ninety years, and when this my husband is an old man of n hundred or a hundred and twenty years?

Verily this [would be] a wonderful thing—

They said, Dost thou wonder at the command of God? The mercy of God and His blesaings be on you, O people of the house (of Abraham)! for He is praiseworthy, glorious—And when the terior had departed from Abraham, and the good tidings had come unto him, he disputed with Un (that is, with Our messengers) respecting the people of Lot , for Abraham was gentle, compassionate, repentant And he said unto them, Will ye destroy a city wherein are three hundred be-lievers? They answered No He said, And well ye destroy a city wherein are two hundred believers? They answered, No He said, And will ye destroy o city wherein are forty believers? They onsuered, No He suid, And will ye destroy a city wherein are fourtien believers? They answered, No He said, And tell me, if there he in it one betweer? They answered, No He said, Verily in it is Lot They replied We know best who is in it And when their dispute had become tedious they said, O Abraham, abstain from this disputa tion, for the command of the Lord hath come for then destruction, and a punishment not [to be] averted is coming upon them " (Surah vi 72-78)

"And when Our decree for the destruction of the people of Lot came [to be executed], We turned them (that is, their cities) upsidedown for (fabriel raised them to heaten, and let them fall upside-down to the earth and We rained upon them stones of baked clay, seut one after another, marked with thy Lora, each with the name of him upon whom it should be cast and they [are] not far distant from the offenders, that is, the stones are not, or the cities of the people of Lot were not, far distant from the people of Mekkeh" (Sürah xi 84)

"And [Abraham] said [after his escape

"And [Abraham] said [after his escape from Nimrod], Verily I am going unto my Lord, who will direct me unto the place whither He hath commanded me to go, namely, Syria And when he had arrived at the Holy Land, he said, O my Lord, give me a son [who shall be one] of the righteous. Whereupon We gave him the glad tidings of a mild youth And when he had attained to the age when he could work with him (as some say, seven years, and some, thirteen), he said, O my child, verily I have seen in a dream that I should sacrifice thee (and the dreams of prophets are true, and their actions, by the command of God), therefore consider what thou seest advisable for me to do He replied, O my father, do what thou art commanded thou shalt find me, if God please, [of the number] of the patient And when they had resigned themselves, and he had laid him down on his temple in [the valley of] Minā, and had drawn the knife across his throat (but it produced no effect by reason of an obstacle interposed by the drivine power), We called unto him, O Abraham, thou hast verified the vision Verily thus do We reward the welldoers Verily this was the manifest trial And We ransomed him whom he had been commanded to sacrifice (und he was Ishmael er Isaac. for there are two opinions) with an excellent victim, a ram from Paradies, the same that Abel had offered Gabriel (on whom be peace!) brought it, and the lerd Abraham sacrificed it, saying, God is most great! And We left this salutation [to be hestowed] on him by the latter generations, Peace [be] on Abraham! Thus do We reward the welldoers for he was of Our believing servants" (Sürah xxxvii 97-111)

Remember when Abraham said, O my Lord, show me how Thou will raise to life the dead—He said Hast thou not believed? He answored, Yea but I have asked Thee that my heart may be at ease. He roplied, Then take four hirds and draw them towards thee, and cut them in pieces and mingle together their flesh and their feathers, then place upon each mountain of thy land a portion of them, then call them unto thee they shall come unto thee quickly, and know thou that God is mighty [and] wise—And he took a peacock and a vulture and a raven and a cock and did with them as hath been described, and kept the heads with him, and called them, where the portions flew about, one to another, un they became complete then they came to their heads' (Surah ii 262) Remember, whon his Lord had tried Abra ham by [certain] words, commands and prohi bitions, and he fulfilled them, God and unto him, I constitute thee a model of religion unto men. He replied, And of my offspring con-stitute models of religion [God] said, My covenant doth not apply to the offenders, the unbelievers among them -And when We ap pointed the house (that is, the Kabuh) to be a place for the resort of men and a place of security (a man would meet the slayer of his security (a man would meet the stayer of his father there and he would not provoke him [to revenge],) and [said]. Take, O men, the station of Abraham (the stone upon which he stood at the time of building the House) as a place of prayer, that ye may perform behind it the prayers of the two rakiahs [which are ordained to be performed after the ceremony] of the circuiting [of the Ka'bah] -And We commanded Abraham and Ishmael, [saying], Purity my House (rid it of the idols) for those who shall compass [it], and those who shall abide there, and those who shall bow down and prostrate themselves -And when Abraham said, O my Lord, make this place a socure territory (and God hath answered his prayer, and made it a sacred place wherein the blood of man is not shed, nor is any one oppressed in it, nor is its game hunted [or shot], nor are its plants cut or pulled up), and supply its inhabitants with fruits (which hath heen done by the transporting of at-Taif from Syria thither, when it [that is the territory of Makkah] was desert, usthout sown land or water, such of them as shall believe in God and the last duy—He mentioned them pecu learly in the prayer agreeably with the suying of God My covenant doth not apply to the offenders,—God replied, And I will supply him who disbelieveth I will make him to enjoy a supply of food in this world, a little while then I will force him, in the world to come, to the punishment of the fire, and evil shall be the transit (Sürah ii 118-120)

"And remember when Abraham was laising the foundations of the House (that is, build ing it), together with Ishmuel, and they said O our Lord, accept of us our building, for Thou art the Hearer of what is said, the Knower of what is done O our Lord, also make us resigned unto Thee, and make from among our offspring a people resigned unto Thee, and show us our rites (the ordinances of our worship, or our pilgrimage), and be propitious towards us, for Thou art the Very Propit ous, the Merciful (They begged Him to be propertious to them, notwethstanding their honesty, from a motive of huncility, and by way of instruction to their offspring). O our Lord, also send unto them (that is the people of the House) an apostle from among them (and God hath answered their prayer by sending Muham mad), who shall recite unto them Thy signs (the Quran) and shall teach them the book (the Qur'an), and the knowlege that it con iaineth and shall purify them from polytheism, for Thou art the Mighty the Wise —And who will be averse from the religion of Abraham but he who maketh his soul looksh, who is ignorant that it is God's creation, and that the worship of Him is incumbent on it, or who lightly esteemeth it and applieth it to vile purposes, when We have chosen him in this world as an apostle and a friend, and be shall be in the world to come one of the righteous for whom are high ranks?—And remember when his Lord said unto him, Resign thyself -he replied, I resign myself unto the Lord of the worlds - And Abiaham commanded his children to follow it (namely the religion), and leach his children, soying O my children, verily God hath chosen for you the religion of al-Islam, therefore die not without your being Muslims -It was a prohibition from abandoning Islam and a communit to persevere therein unto death" (Surah ii 121-126)

"When the Jews said Ahraham was a Jew, and we are of his religion—and the Christians said the like, [the following] was recealed O people of the Scripture, wherefore do ve argue respecting Abraham, asserting that he was of your religion, when the Pentateuch and the Gospel were not sent down but after him a long time? Do ye not then undestand the faistly of your raying? So ye O people have argued respecting that of which ye have knowledge, concerning Moses and Jesus, and have asserted that ye are of their rehoion then wherefore do ve argue respecting that of which we have no knowledge concerning Ahraham? But God knoweth his case, and ye know it not. Abraham was not a Jew not a Christian but he was orthoox a Muslim [or one resigned], a Unitarian, and be was not of the polytheists." (Sürah in 58-60.)

ABSCONDING OF SLAVES
Arabic Ibaq (الماله) An absconded male or female slave is called Abig, but an mint slave who leaves his home is termed zall a word which is also used for an adult slave who has strayed. The apprehension of a fugitive slave is a laudable act, and the person who seizes him should bring him before the magistrate and receive a reward of forty dirhams. (Hamilton's Hidayah, vol. ii p. 278.)

ABSTINENCE Archic Tagwa (1,2) Is very frequently enjoined in the Quran The word generally applies to abstinence from idolatry in the first instance but it is used to express a life of piety. An excessive abstinence and a life of asceticism are condemned in the Quran, and the Christians are charged with the invention of the monastic life, they invented it themselves [MONASTICISM FASTING]

ABU 'ABDI 'LLAH allian Allian Muhammad ibn Ismā ilai-Bukhāri the author of the well known collection or traditions received by the Sunnis [BUKHARI]

ABŪ 'ABDI 'LLĀH AHMAD IBN HANBAL (اله عبدالله أحمد بن حسل) [HANBAL]

ABŪ 'ABDI 'LLĀH IBN ANAS (أبو عبدالله مالله بين انس)

ABU 'ABDI 'LLAH MUHAM MAD IBN AL-HASAN (Alline of the state of the sta

ABŪ BAKR (﴿ ﴿ ﴿ ﴿ ﴾ ) Of the origin of his name, there are various explanations. Some think that it means "the father of the maiden," and that he received this title because he was the father of 'Āyishah, whom Muhammad married when she was only nine years old. His original name was 'Abdu 'l-Ka'bah (which the Prophot changed into 'Abdu 'lish) Ibn Abī Quhāfah. He was the first Khalifah, or successor of Muhammad [SHIAH] Muhammadan writers praise him for the purity of his life, and call him as biddīq, the Veracious. He only reigned two years, and died August 22nd, A D 634

ABŪ DĀ'ŪD (مو داود) Sulaimān Ibn al-Ash'as al Sijistanī, born at al-Basrah AH 202, and died AH 275 The compiler of one of the six correct books of Sunnī traditions, called the Sunnan Abī Dāūd, which contains 4 008 traditions, said to have been carefully collated from 500,000 [TRADITIONS]

ABÜ HANÎFAH (أبو عنبقة النعمان) Abü Hanîfah an Nirman is the great Sunni Imam and jurisconsult, and the founder of the Hanifi sect His father, Sabit, was a silk dealer in the city of al-Kūfah, and it is said his grandfather, Zūṭa, was a native of Kābul He was born at al-Kūfah AH 80 (AD 700), and died at Baghdād, AH. 150 He is regarded as the great oracle of Sunnī jurisprudence, and his doctrines, with those of his disciples, the Imām Abū Yusuf and the Imām Muhammad, are generally received throughout Turkey, Tartary, and Hindustan It is related that Imam Mūlik said that the Imām Abū Hanifah was such a legician that, if he were to assert a wooden pillar was made of gold, he would prove it by argument

ABŪ HURAIRAH (

No constant attendants of Muhammad, who from his peculiar intimacy has related more traditions of the sayings and doings of the Prophet than any other individual. His real name is doubtful, but he was michinamed Abū Hurairah on account of his fondness for a kitten. He embraced Islam in the year of the expodition to Khaibar, AH 7, and died in al Madinah, AH 57 or 59 aged 78

ABŪ JAHL (Jee gel) An implacable adversary of Muhammad His real name was 'Amr ibn Hishām, but he was surnamed, by the Muslims, Abū Jahl, or the "Father of Folly" He is supposed to be alluded to in the Qur'an, Sūrah xxii 8—"There is a man who disputch concerning God without either knowledge or direction" He was a boastful and debauched man, and was killed in the battle of Badr

ABŪ LAHAB ( ) One of the sons of Abū Mnttalib, and an uncle to Muhammad He was a most bitter enemy to the Prophet, and opposed the establishment of Islām to the utmost of his pewer His name was Abdu 1- Uzza, but he was surnamed by Muhammad, Abū Lahab, "The Father of the Flame" When Muhammad received the command to admonish his relations, he called them all together, and told them he was a warner sent unto them before a grievous chastisement Abū Lahab rejected his mission, and cried out, "Mayest thou perish that thou called us together for this?" and took up a stone to cast at him, whereupon the oxith Sūrah of the Qur'ān was produced—

"Let the hands of Abu Lahab perish, and let himself perish!

His wealth and his gains shall avail him naught

Burned shall he be at a flery flame, And his wife laden with fire wood On her neck a rope of palm fibre"

Abū Lahab is said to have died of grief and vexation at the defeat which his friends had received at the hattle of Badi, surviving that misfortune only seven days. His body was left unburied for several days.

Zaid and Abu Lahab are the only relatives or friends of Muhammad mentioned by name in the Qur'an ABŪ 'L-HUZAIL ZUFAR IBN AL-HUZAIL (أبو الهذيل زفر بن الهذيل (أبو الهذيل وفر بن الهذيل (أبو الهذيل (فر بن الهذيل ( ABU 'L-QASIM ( "The father of Qasim' One of the names of Mu hammad, assumed on the birth of his son Qusim, who died in infancy [MUHAMMAD]

ABUSIVE LANGUAGE 18 forbidden by the Muslim law, and the offender must be punished according to the discretion of the Qazı Abu Hanifah says "If a person abuse a Musalman by calling him an ass or a hog, punishment is not incurred, hecause these expressions are in no respect defamatory of the person to whom they are used, it being ovident that he is neither an ass nor a hog But some allego that in our times chastisement is inflicted, since, in the modern acceptation, calling a man an ass or a hog is held to be abuse Others, again, allege that it is esteemed only to be abuse when the person of whom it is said occupies a dignified position ' According to Abu Hanifah, the greatest number of stripes that can be inflicted for abusive language is thirty nine (Hamilton's Hidayah, vol in 78)

Muhammad is related to have said, Abusing a Muslim is disobedience to God, and it is infidelity for anyone to join such an one in religious warfare" (Mishkat, xxii 2)

ABU TALIB (-JU - Muham-mads unclo and guardian, the father of Ali He is believed to have died as he had lived an unbeliever in the Prophets mission, but for forty years he had been his faithful filled and guardian. He died in the third year before the Hijiah

ABŪ 'UBAII'AH (الم عمودة) IBN AL JARRAH One of the Companions, who was with the Prophet in all his wars, and distinguished himself at the battle of Uhud. He was highly esteemed by Muhammad, who made him one of the 'Asharah al-Mubashsharah, or ten patriarche of the Muslim faith He died a H 18, aged 58

ABŪ YŪSUF (

**Quadration of the great Inam Born at Baghdad, A H 113 Studied under the Imam Abū Hanīfah, and is colebrated, together with the Imam Muhammad and the Imam Zufar, as disciples of the great Imam, from whose opinions, however, the three disciples not unfrequently differ, as will be seen upon reference to the Hidāyah Ho died A H 182

'ĀD (ste) A tribe located to the south of Arabia, to which the prophet Hūd is said to have been sent See Qur'an, vii 63—

"And to 'Ad we sent our brother Had,
'O my people,' said he, 'worship God ye have no other god than Him Will ye not then fear Him?'

' Said the unbelieving chiefs among his people, "We certainly perceive that thou art unsound of mind, and we surely deem thre an impostor

"He said, 'O my people! it is not unsound ness of mind in me, but I am an Apostle from the Lord of the Worlds

"The messages of my Lord do I announce to you, and I am your faithful counsellor

" Marvel ye that a warning hath come to you from your Lord through one of yourselves that He may warn you? Remember how he hath made you the successors of the people of Noah, and increased you in tallness of stature Remember then the favours of God that it may haply be well with you'

" I'hey said, 'Art thou come to us in order that we may worship one God alone, and leave what our fathers worshipped. Then leave what our fathers worshipped bring that upon as with which thou threatenest us, if thou be a man of truth

"He said, 'Vengeance and wrath shall suddealy light on you from your Lord Do ve dispute with me about names that you and your fithers have given your idots, and far which God bath sont you down no warrants? Wait ye then, and I too will wait with you

"And we delivered him, and those who were on his side, by our mercy and we cat off to the last man those who had treated our signs as hes, and who nere not believers

Also, Surah laxxix 5 Hast thou not seen how the Lord dealt with 'Ad at Iram, adorned with pillars, whose like hive not been reased in these lands '[HUD, IKAM]

Payment, satisfac-ADĀ (1010) tion completing (pravers &c )

A DA M Arabic, Adam (ادم) Reckoned by Muslim writers as the urst prophet to whom ten portions of scrip ture (sahifah) are siiu to have been revealed He is distinguished by the title of Safiyu'llah He is mentioned or, the ' chosen one of God in the Qui an in the following Surahs, which are taken iron Mr Lane's Selections (new edition, by Mr Stanley Lane Pouls, Fruhner, 1879), with the commentary in italics -

'Remember, O Muhammad when the Lord said unto the angels, I am about to place in the earth a vicegiont to act for me in the execution of my orchnonces therein, namely, Adam,-they sain, Wilt Thou place in it one who will corrupt in it by disobediences, and will shed blood (as and the sons of El-Jann who were in it, where ore when they acted corruptly (fod sent to them the angels, who drove them away to the islands and the moun tains), when we [on the contrart] colebrate the divine perfection, occupying nurselves with Thy praise and extol Thy holmers? There for we are more worthy of the recipiency-God replied Verily I know that which ve know not, as to the affair of appointing Adam vicegerent, and that among his posterity will be the obodient and the rebellious and the just wall And he createu be manifest among them Adam from the surface of the earth, taking a handful of every colour that it comprised, which was kneaded with various waters, and he com pletely formed it, and breathed into it the soul, so it became un animated sentient being. And he taught Adam the names of all things, snfusing the knowledge of them into his heart. Then He showed them (namely, the things) to the angels, and said, Declare unto me the names of these things, if ye say truth in your assertion that I will not create any more know ing than ye, and that ye are more worthy of the perfection' We have no knowledge excupting what Thou hast taught us for fliou art the Knowing, the Wise - God said, O Adam, tell them then names. And when he had told them the s names God said Did I not say unto you that I know the sterets of the heavens and the earth, and know what ye reveal of your words, suying, Wilt thou place in it, etc., and what ye did conceal of your words, suying, He will not create any more generous towards Him than we, nor any more knowing?" (Surah ii 28-31)

"We created you that is, your fatner Adam then We formed you, we formed him and you in him then We said unto the angels, Pro strite yourselves unto Adam, by way of salu tation, whereupon they prostrated them-scives, except Iblees, the father of the nan, who was amid the angels he was not of those who prostrated themselves God said, What hath hindered thee from prostrating thyself, when I commanded theo? He answered, I am better than he Thou hast created me of hre, and Thou hast created him of earth [God] said, Then descend thou from it, that is, from Puradise, or as some say, from the heavens for it is not hi for thee that thou behave thyself proudly therein so go thou forth verily thou shalt be of the contemptible He replied, Grant mo respite until the day when they (that is, munkind) shall be raised from the dead. He said, Thou shalt be of those [who are] respited and in another verse [in K 38, it is said], until the day of the known period that is until the period of the first blast [of the trumpet] [And the devil] said, Now, as Thou hast led me into error, I will surely lay wait for them (that is for the sons of Adem) in Thy right way, the way that leadeth to Thee then I will surely come upon them from before them, and from behind them, and from their right hands, and from their left, and hinder them from pursuing the way (but, suith Ibn Abbas, he cannot come upon them above, lest he should interiene be tween the seriant and God's mercy), and Thou shalt not and the great number of them griteful, or believing [God] said, Go forth despised and driven away from Whosoever of them (that is of manfrom it mercy Whosoever of them (that is of man-kind) shall follow thee, I will surely fill hell with you all, with thee, and thy off-spring, and with men' (Sur il vii 10-17)

"And we said, O Adam, dwell thou and thy wife (Howiva for e've] whom God created from a rib of his left side) in the garden and ent ye therefrom plentifully whenever ye will, but approach ye not this tree, to eat thereof, (and it was wheat, or the grape vine or some other tree, for if we do so, we will be of the number of the offenders. But the devil, Iblees, caused them to slip from it, that is from the garden, by his saying unto them Shall I show you the way to the tree of eternity? And he sware to them by God that he was one of the faithful advisers to them so they ate of it, and He ejected them from from that state of delight in which they were And We said, Descend ye to the earth, ye two with the offspring that ye comprise [yet unborn], one of you (that is, of your offspring) an enemy to another, and there shall be for you, in the earth, a place of abode and a provision, of its regulable produce, for a time until the period of the expiration of your terms of life.

And Adam learned, from his Lord, words, which were these —O Lord, ue have acted unjustly to our own souls, and if Thou do not forgine us, and be merciful unto us, ve shall surely be of those who suffer loss And he prayed in these words, and He became propitious towards him, accepting his repentence, for He is the Very Propitious, the Merciful We said, Descend ye from it (from the garden) altogether, and if there come unto you from Me a direction (a book and an apostle), those who follow my direction, there shall come no fear on them, nor shall they grieve in the world to come, for they shall enter parachse but they who disbeliove and accuse our signs of fulsehood, these shall be the companions of the are they shall remain therein for ever" (Sûrah n 33-37) ever "

The Muhammadans say, that when they were east down from Paradise [which is in the seventh heaven]. Adam fell on the isle of Ceylon, or Sarandib, and Evo near Jiddah (the port of Makkah) in Arabia and that, after a separation of two hundred years, Adam was, on his repentance, conducted by the angel Gabriol to a mountain near Makkah where he found and know his wife the mountain being then named 'Arafat, and that he afterwards retired with her to Ceylon — Salo

ADAB () Discipline of the mind and manners, good education and good breeding, politeness, deportment, a mode of conduct or behaviour. A very long section of the Traditions is devoted to the sayings of Muhammad regarding rules of conduct, and is found in the Mishkätu 'l-Masābih under the title Bābu 'l-Adab (book xxii Matthow's Mishkāt). It includes—(1) Salutations (2) Asking permission to enter houses (3) haking hands and embracing, (4) Rising up, (5) Sitting sleeping and walking, (6) Siezing and Jawning, (7) Laughing, (8) Nanics, (9) Poetry and eloquence, (10) Backhiting and abuse, (11) Promises, (12) Joking, (13) Boasting and party spirit. The traditional sayings on these subjects will be found under their respective title. 'Ilmu 'l-Adab is the science of Philology

'ADIYAT (عادبات) "Swift horses"
The title of the 100th Surah of the Qur'an, the second verse of which is, "By the swift chargers and those who strike fire with their hoofs Professor Palmer translates it snorting chargers "

ADTYATU 'L-MASÜRAH (المائرة 5,500) "The prayers handed down by tradition" Those prayers which were said by Muhammad, in addition to the regular liturgical prayers They are found in different sections of the traditions or Ahādis

(عدل) ADL Justice Appointing what is just, equalising, making of the same weight Ransom The word occurs twelve times in the Qur'an, eg, Surah iv 128, 'Ye are not able, it may be, to act equitably to your wives, even though ye covet it" Surah 11 44, "Fear the day wherein no soul shall pay any ransom for another soul" Surah n 128, "And fear the day when no soul shall pay any ransom for a soul, nor shall an equiralent be received therefrom, nor any inter-cossion avail, and they shall not be helped" Surah ii 282, "Write it down faithfully then let his agont dictato futhfully" Surah v 105, Let there be a testimony between you when any one of you is at the point of deathat the time he makes his will—two equitable persons from amongst you' Surah vi 69, "And though it (soul) compensate with the fullest compensation it would not be accepted" Suith v 115, "The words of thy Lord are fulfilled in 'ruth and justice" Surah xvi , 78, Is he to be held oqual with him who bids what is just, and who is on the right way?" Sunah xvi. 92 'Verily God bids you do justice" Surah xlix 8, 'Make peace with them with equity and be just 'Surah laxxii 5, " Thy generous Lord, who created thee and monlded thee and disposed thee aright"

AL-'ADL (Just) One of the muety-nine special names of God. It signifies "the Just" It does not occur in the Quran as an attribute of the Divine Being, but it is in the list of attributes given in the Traditions (Mishkat book x)

'ADN (OAE) The garden of Eden Januam 'Adn The garden of perpetual abode The term is used both for the garden of Eden in which our first parents dwelt, and also for a place in colestial bliss [JAN NATU 'ADN]

ADOPTION Arabic Tabanna (III) An adopted son, or daughter, of known descent has no right to inherit from his, or her, adoptive parents and their relatives,—the filiation of this description being neither recommended nor recognised by Muhammadan law. Such son of daughter is, however, entitled to what may be given under a valid deed in gift or will. In this particular the Muhammadan agrees with the English, and the Hindu with the Roman law. (Tagore Law Lectures, 1873, p. 124)

ADORATION The acts and postures by which the Muslims express adoration at the time of pravei are similar to those used by the ancient Jews (11de Smith's Dictionary of the Bible, in loco), and consist of

Ruka, or the inclination of the body, the hands being placed on the knees and Suyad, or proetration upon the earth, the forehead touching the ground [FRAYER.] The adviation of the black stone at Makkah forms an important feature in the ceremonies of the pilgrimage [HAJJ]

ADULTERY Arabic zinā' (***))
The term zinā' includes both adultery and rornication, but there is a difference in the punishment for these offences [FORNICATION]

Adultery is established before a Qāzi, either by proof or confession. To establish it upon proof, four witnesses are required. (Qur'an, burah iv 1) When witnesses come forward, it is necessary that they should be examined particularly concerning the nature of the offence. When the witnesses shall have borne testimenty completely, declaing that "they have seen the parties in the very act of carnal conjunction," the Qāzi passes sentence

A confession of adultory must be made by the person who has committed the ein, at four different times, although, according to the Imam ash-Shan I, one confession is sufficient some of the doctors hold that if a person retract his confession, his retraction must be credited, and he must be forthwith released

At the commencement of Muhimmad's mission, women found guilty of adultery and for meation were punished by hear literally immured—Süratu'n meā (17) 19, Shut them up within their houses till doubt release thom, or God make come vay for them? This however, was cincelled and lapidation was substituted as the punishment for adultory, and 100 stripes and one year's banishment for formulation

When an adulterer s to be stoned to death, he should be carried to ome hairen place, and the lapidation abould be executed, first by the witnesses, then by the Qazi, and afterwards by the by-standers. When a woman is stoned a hole or excusation should be dug to receive hor, as deep as her wrist, because Muhammid ordered such a hole to be dug for Chandia.

It is lawful for a husband to slay his wife and her paramour, if he shall find them in the very act. If a supreme ruler, such as a Khalifah, commit adultery, he is not subject to such pumshment.

The state of mirriage which subjects a wholomonger to lapidation, requires that he be free (i.e. not a slive) a Mushin and one who has consummated a liwful mainage

It will be seen that Muhammad in law is almost identical with the divine law of the Jews with regard to adultery (Dout xxiii 22, Lov xix 20), but the Mesaic penalty applied as well to the hetrothed as to the married woman

AFFINITY Arabic Qarābah (41,5)
The prohibited degrees (humah) with regard to marriages are as follows—Mother, daughter, paternal aunt, maternal aunt, brother's or sisters daughter, grandmother, granddaughter, mother-in law, step-mother, daughter in-law, granddaughter in-law. Nor can any man marry any who stand in any of these relationships from fosterage. The marriage of two sisters at the same time is for bidden, but the marriage of a deceased wife's sister is allowed. Marriage with a deceased brother's wife is very common in Muslim countries such marriages being held to be a very honourable means of providing for a brother's widow. The marriage of cousins is also considered most desurable, as being the means of keeping families and tribes togother. The passage of the Qur'an on the subject of affinity, is as follows (bursh v. 27)—

'Mirry not women whom your fathers have married for this is a shame, and hateful, and an evil way —though what is past (i.e. in times of ignorance) may be allowed

"Forbidden te you are your mothers, and your daughters, and your sisters, and your sisters, and your sisters, and your sisters, and your recess on the biother and sisters side, and your foster-mother, and your forter-sisters, and the mothers of your wives, and your step daughters who are your wards, boin of your wives to whom ye have gone in (but if yo have not gone in unto them, it shall be no sin in you to marry them,) and the wives of your sons who proceed out of your loins, and ve may not have two sisters except where it is already dons Verily, God is Indulgent, Mcruful!

"Forbitules to you also are married women, oxcept those who are in your hands as slaves. This is the law of God for you. And it is allowed you, beside this to seek out wives by means of your ealth, with windest conduct and without fornication. And give those with whom ye have cohebited their dowry. This is the law. But it shall be no clame in you to make agreements over and above the law. Verily, God is Knowing, Wile!"

AFFLICTION Anabic huzu (Oye), ghamm (A) The benefits of affliction are frequently expressed in both the Quran and Iraditions. For example, Surah in 150, Wo will try you with something of fear, and hunger, and loss of wealth, and souls and fruit, but give rood tidings to the patient who, when there falls on them a calamity, say, Verily we are foods and verily to Him we return. This formula is always used by Muhammadana in any danger or sudden calamity especially in the presence of death

In the traditions (see Mishkutu 'l-Marabih', Muhammad is related to have said, "A Muslim is like unto standing green corn, which senictimes stands erect, but is some times cast down by the wind '"No affliction befals a servant of God but on account of the sine which he commits"

AFSUN (ויייפט) The Persian term for Dawah or exorcism [EXOROISM]

AFT (عفر) Lit, "erasing, cancelling." The word is generally used in Muhammadon books for parden and forgiveness. It occurs eight times in the Quran, eg Sürah in 286 "Lord, make us not to carry what we have not strength for, but forgive us and pardon us and have mercy on us." Sürah iv 46, "Verily God pardens and forgives."

Al-'Aft is one of the macty ame special names of God. It means "one who erases of cancels," "The Elaser (of sus) ' See Qur'an, Surah IV 51 Arabic with (وکیس) One AGENT logally appointed to act for another For the Muliammadan law regarding the appointment of agents to transact business, or to migotiate of agents to fransact business, of the neglect marriages, see Hamiltons Hidagah vol mi p 1, Builte Duast Hamilton Code, 1 75, linamyak Code p 29 The author of the Hidagah vol tit is lawful for a person to spoont mother his agent to: the settlement in his bihalf of every contract which he might tenful's have concluded himself, such is sale, marriage, and so forth," and he then proceeds to lay down rules for guidance in such matters it great length. A veman who remains in privacy and is not recustomed to go into ('ourt ought, according to the saying of Abu bakr to appoint an agent and not appear berselt A slave or a minor mix be appointed agent for a free man

AL-AHAD (الاحد) 'The One' A title given to God [NAMES OF GOD]

AHADIYAH (& sat) Unity, concord Al Ahadiyah is a term used by sufi mystic to express a condition of the mird, completely absorbed in a incultation on the Divine Unity (See Abdu '1 Razzaq's Dectionary of the Technical Terms of the Sulis Spienger's edition)

AHQAF (الحقاف) The name of a tract of land in Subs in Yanian The title of the Xivith Surah of the Que'an

AHIU'L-BAIT (משל الحيت) "The people of the house" A term used in the Quran (Sürah xxxii. 33) and in the Haits (Mishkät xxiv 21), for Muhammads house hold

AHLU 'L-HAWA' (اهل الهواء) A

AIILU'L-KITAB (معل العبر) Let "The people of the book" A term used in the Qur'an for Jews and Christians, as believers in a revealed religion Some sects of the Shi'ahs include the Majūsi (Magi) under this term

AHMAD (and) The name under which Muhammad professes that Josus Christ foretold his coming. Vide Quran, Sürah Ixi 6, "And remember when Jesus the son of Mary said 'O children of Israel' of a truth I am God's Apostle to you to confirm the law which was given tefore me, and to announce an apostle that shall come after me, whose name shall be Ahmad'" Muhammad had no doubt, heard that Our Lord had promised a Paracletos (παρακλητος), John xvi 7 This title, understood by him, probably from the similarity of sound, as equivalent to Periciptos (περικλυτος), he applied to himself with reference to his own name Muhammad the praised or glorified one. Muir thinks that in some imperfect Arabic translation of the Gospel of St. John, the word παρακλητος may have been translated Ahmad or praised (Life of Muhomet vol. 1.17)

AHZAB (רבליב) "Confederates"
The title of the axamird Surah of the Quran which is said to have been written when al-Madinah was besieged by a confederation of the Jewish tribes with the Arabs of Makkah an 5

[ JOB ] (ابوب) AIYŪB

ATAL (4-1) The appointed time of death baile to be ordained by God from the first Qui an, Suinh xxxv 44, 'He respites them until the appointed time When their appointed time comes, verily God looks upon His servants" [DBATE]

AJIK (المبر) A term used in Mu hamaindan law for a person fured for vervice [JIARAN]

AJNABI (الجلبى) A foreigner,

ÁKHIR I-CHAHÁR-I-SHAMBAH (اعر بهار هسله) The last Wednesday of the mouth of Silin It is observed as a feast in commemorities of Muhammad 4 having experienced some mitigation of his last illness and having nathed. It was the last time he performed the legal hathing, for he died r the twelfth day of the next In some parts of Island it is can mo ith toming in the inly morning of this day to write versos of the Que'an known as the Seven Salan (q . ), and then wash off the mk and think it as a him against evel. It is not observed by the Wibnabis nor a its observance umversel in Islam

AKHLAQ (Jah) The plural of Khuh, Natures de pesitions, habits, manners The general term for books or morality of Akhlay: Jalou Akhlay: Muham the name of a dissertation on thices by Husahn Ware Kashifi, A is 910, which has been translated into highish by the Rev. H.O. keene (W.H. Alien & Co.)

AKHUND (محر) A maulawi, a teacher A title of respect given to eminent religious teachers. One of the most celebrated Muhammadan teachers of modern times was the "Ākhund of Swat," who died a. 1875 This great religious leader i esided in the village of Saidh, in the district of Swat, on the north west frontier of India

AKHUNDZADAH (ליבער ליפּג) The son of an Akhund A title of respect given to the sons or descendants of celebrated religious teachers [AKHUND]

ĀL (Jt) Lil "oftspring, or posterity" Used in Muslim works for the offspring of Mahammiad (الاعلى) AL-A'LA (Make) "The Most High" The title of the axxxvirth Surah of "The Most the Quran, in the second verse of which the word occurs "The name of thy Lord the Most High is celebrated "

(علم) ALAM A standard or ensign A term used for the ilags and standards paraded during the Muhairam [Mil-HARRAM, STANDARDS ]

'ĀLAM (عالم) The universe, world, condition, state of being

'Alamu'l arwah · Alamu i khalq

· Alumu 'l-bagı 1 lumu / wzamah

· Alamu 'I-ghurb 'Alamu'l nu qul 'Alamu'n nāsūt

· Ilamu I-malakut · Alama I-yabarut 'Alomu 'l-lähut

the world of spirits The world this life The future state The highest heaven Alamu sh shahadah The visible world The invisible world The rational world

The four mystic stages of the Sufis are -The present world The state of angels The state of power The state of absorption mio the Divinity

[ MPD DYM ]

(علامات) ALĀMĀT The greater signs of the resurrection 'ATAMATU '6-SA'AH RESURBECTION |

'N-NUDUWAH 'ALAMA'TU "The signs of Pro-(علامات الببوة) phocy A term used for the supposed mi racles and other proofs of the mission of Muhammad. The title of a chapter in the Traditions (Mishkat, xxi c vi)

'ALĀMĀTU 'S-SĀ'AH علامات) "The signs of the hour" (الساعة se the signs of the time of the Resurrection and of the Day of Judgment The title of a section of the Traditions (Mishkat, xxiii c 3) [RESURRECTION]

'ALAQ (على) Congcaled blood"
The title of the cevith Surah the fist twe verses of which are generally allowed to be the earliest portion of the Qur'an

AL-BALDAH (الملدة) "The City" A name sometimes u ed in the Hadis for Makkab

ALCHEMY Arabic Kimiyā (کیمیاء) According to the Kashfu 2-zunun, in loco, learned Muslims are not agreed as to the existence of this occult science nor are they of one opinion as to its lawfulness even if it should exist

ALEXANDER THE GRFAT Mentioned in the Qui'an as Zu l-Quinain ce "He of the two horns" with which he is represented on his come (Surah xvili 82) He seems to have been regarded by Muham mad as one invested with a divine commis sion - Verily we established his power upon earth", but commentators are not agreed whether to assign to him the position of a Prophet [zu L GARNAIN]

AL-HAMD (Jul) "Praise" A title given to the first Surah, so called because its first word is Al-hand This chapter is also called hatihah, which term is used by modern Muslims for the burah when it is said for the benefit of the dead, Al-humd being ils more usual title FATIHAH |

AL-HAMDU-LI'LLĀH (المحمد المحمد). "Praise belongs to God" An ejaculation which is called Tahmid, and which occurs at the commercement of the first chapter of the Qur'an It is used as an ejaculation of thankagiving—
'I hank God!' It is very often recited with the addition of Rabbi '! 'alamin, " Lord of the Universe ' [TAIIMID]

A1-'ALI (العلى) One of the minety nine special names of God It means " The Exalted One

The son of Abu-(على) All (على) Tilib, and a cousin german to Muhammad, He married who adopted him as his son Fatimali the daughter of Muhammad, and had by her three sons Hasan Husain, and Muhassin He was the fourth Khalifah, and rugied from AH 35 to AH 40 Ho was struck with a poisoned sword by Ibn Muljam at al-Kulah and died ofter three days aged fifty nine years. The Shrahs hold that, on the death of Muhammad, 'Ali was entitled to the khalifate, and the respective claims of Abii Bakr, 'Umai and 'Usman on the one hand. and of 'All on the other gave rise to the Shi ah schisur 'Ah is surnamed by the Arabs Asodu llah and by the Persians Shere Khuda te The Lion of God ' [SHI'LE ]

ALIF The letter Als (1) is a monogram frequently placed at the head of letters, prescriptions, &c It is the initial letter of the word Allas (AUI), "God"

ALIF LAM MIM The Arabic letters , corresponding to A L M, which occur at the commencement of six Surahs namely Suratu I Baqarah (11) Suratu Alı Imran (m), Suratu I-Ankabut (xxix.), Suratu'r Rum (xxx ) Suratu Luqman (xxxI ), and Suratu 's Sijdah (xxxii) Muhammad never explained the meaning of these mysterious letters, and consequently they are a fruitful source of perplexity to learned commentatora. Jalalu d din gives an exhaustive summary of the different views in his Itaan (p 470) Some suppose they stand for the words Allah tiod", Latif, "gracious' Majid, "glorious' Others say they stand for And llahua lamu, "I am the God who knoweth " Others maintain that they were not mount to be understood, and that they were inserted by the Divine command without explanation, in order to remind the reader that there were mysteries which his intellect would never fathem ALU 'IMRAN (آل عمرآن) "The nily of 'huran" The title of the thurd family of 'luran" chapter of the Quran.

'ĀLIM (عالم), pl 'ulamā' A learned man The term usually includes all religious teachers, such as Imāms, Muftis, Qāzīs, and Maulawies, and in Turkey it denotes the poliical party led by the religious teachers

ALIM (العليم) One of the ninety-nine special names of God It fre quently occurs in the Qur'an, and means 'The Wise One"

ALLĀH (الله) [GOD]

ALLAHU AKBAR ("") And "God is great," or 'God is most great." An ejaculation which is called the Tubbur It occurs frequently in the liturgical forms and is used when slaying an animal for food [TARBIR.]

ALMSGIVING The word generally used for alms is Sadajah, or that which manifests righteousness, the word zakat or purification being specially restrict a to the legal ulms [ZAKAY] Sadajātu 'I Isti utche offerings given on the Lessor Lestical The duty of almsgiving is very frequently on joined in the Qui an. eq Surah ii 274-5 'What we expend of good (se of wolfgotten wealth), it shall be prid to you again, and se shall not be wronged (Give your time) unto the poor who are structured in God's way and cannot traverse the earth

Those who expend their wealth by night and by day secretly and openly, they shall have their hire with their Lord

The following are some of the sayings of Muhammad on the subject of almsgiving as they occur in the Traditions — The upper hand is better than the lower one. The upper hand is the giver of alms, and the lover hand is the pior beggar. The best of alms are those given by a man of small means, who gives of that which he has o ined by labour, and gives as much as he is able? Begin b giving alms to your own relatives? Doing justice between two people is alms, assisting a man on his beast is alms, good words are alms. A camel leut out for milk is alms, I cup of milk every morning and evening is alms. Your smiling in your brothers face is alms, assisting the blind is alms. "God says, Be thou liberal, thou child of Adam, that I may be liberal to thee." (See Mishkar, Matthew's edition, vol 1 p 429)

ALWAH (حراجاً), pl of Lauh 'The tables" (of the Law) Mentioned in the Quran, Surah vn 142, 'We wrote for him (Moses) upon the Tables (as Alwah) a monition concerning every matter"

Muslim divines are not agreed as to the number other of the tables, or of the Commandments The commentators Jalalam say they were either seven or ten [TEN COM-

MANDMENTS ]

'AMAL-NAMAH (عمل العمل) The Persian word for Sahifatu 'I-Amāl, or record of actions kept by the recording angels [Sahifatu 'L-a'nai, Kiranu 'L-katibin]

AMAN (اسان) Protection given by a Mushm conqueror to those who pay Jizyah, or poli tax [JIHAD]

AMBIYA (البهام), pl of Nabi Prophets " The title of the XXIST Surah [PROPHETS]

AMIN (()), Hebrew An expression of assent used at the conclusion of prayors, very much as in our Obristian worship. It is always used at the conclusion of the Suratu 'I Fatiliah or first chapter of the Qui'an

Amm "Faithful' Al Amm is the title which it is said will given to Muhammad when a youth, on account of his fair and honourable bearing, which won the confidence of the people

Aminu 'l Bail, one who wishes to perform

the pilgrimage to Makkab

AMINAH (Aut) Muhammad's mother the was the wife of 'Abdu 'lläh, and the daughter of Wahb ibn 'Abdi Manäf the daughter of Wahb ibn 'Abdi Manäf the died and was buried at al-Abwä, a place malway between Makkah and al Madinah, before her son claimed the position of a Prophet

AMIR (1907) Anglice, Emir 'A rule: a commander a chief a nobleman' It includes the various high offices in a Muslim state the Imam, or Khalifah, being styled Amiu I Umara', the Tules of Tules and Amiu I Mu'minin the commander of the behavers

AMIRU 'L-HAJJ (الميراثات) The chief of the pilgrimage " The officer in charge of the pilgrims to Makkah [HAJJ]

AMIRU L-MU'MININ (الموسس) "The Commander of the Believers" A title which was first given to Atdu llah ibn Jahah after his expedition to Nakhlih, and which was afte wards assumed by the khilifibs (first by 1 mar) and the Sultans of Turkey [RHAITFAH]

'AMRIBN AL-'ASI (عمروبن العامى)
One of the Oumpanions, celebrated for his conquest of Stria Palestine and Egypt, in the reigns of Abu Baki and Umar He died (according to an Nawawi) A B 43

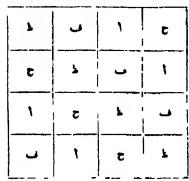

AMULETS Arabic Hamo il (معاتل), 'anything suspended'', Ta'ı ız, 'a relage" Hyāb, a cover

Amulets, although of heathen origin are very common in Muhammadan countries. The following are used as amulets (1) a small Qui'ën, encased in silk or leather and suspended from the choulder, (2) a chapter or verse of the Quran, written on paper and folded in leather or velvet (3) some of the names of God, or the numerical power (see ABJAD) of these names, (4) the names of prophets, celebrated sunts, or the numerical power of the same, (5) the Muhammadan creed, engraven on stone or silver. The chapters of the Quran generally selected for Amulets are. Surahs 1, vi. xviii, xxxvi. xliv, lv, lxvn, lxxvnl. Five verses known as the Ayatu 'l-Hifz, or "verses of protection," are also frequently inscribed on Amulets They are Surahs in 256, xii 64, xiii 12, xv 17

XXXVII 7 [AYATU 'I-HIFZ]

These charms are fastened on the arm or leg, or suspended round the neck, as a protection against evil. They are also put on houses and animals, and, in fact, upon anything from which evil is to be averted strictly, according to the principles of Islam, only the names of God, or verses from the Quran, should be used for amulets. Information regarding the formation of magic squares and amulets will be found in the article on Exorcism [Exorcism DA'WAH]

AN AMELET OF THE ATTRIBUTE OF GOD—Hāfiz, "THE EROTECTOR

A SMALL QURAN SCSPINDED AS AN AMULET

The title of the vith Suith in verse 137 of which some superstitions customs of the Meccans, as to certain cittle are neidentally mentioned

ANĀNIYAH (الانبة) From ana, "I" "Egotism' Al anonyah is a term used by the Sufas to express the existence of man

ANAS IBN MÄLIK (مالك ) The last of the Companions of Muhammid and the founder of the sect of the Mālikis He died at al-Basiah, A H 93, aged 103

AL-ANFAL (JAM) "The Spoils"
The title of the viith Suith which was occasioned by a dispute regarding the spoils taken at the battle of Badr, between the young men who had fought and the old men who had staved with the energies

ANGEL Arabic mal'ak or malak (مالك ملاك) Persian Firishtah (ملك ملاك)
"It is believed," says Ibn Mājah, "that the angels are of a simple substance (created of light), endowed with life, and speech, and reason, and that the difference between them, the Jinn, and Shartans is a difference of Know," he adds, "that the angels are sanctified from carnal desire and the disturbance of anger they disobey not God in what He hath commanded them, but do what thoy are commanded Their food is the celebrating of His glory, their drink, the pro-claiming of His holmess, their conversation the commemoration of God, Whose name be exalted, then pleasure, His worship, and they are created in different forms and with different powers" (Arabian Nights, Lane's odition, Notes to the Introduction, p 27)

Four of them are archangels, or, as they aro called in Arabic, Kurūbiyun (Chornbim), namely, Jabra'ıl, or Jibril, (Gibilel), the angel of revelations, Mila'ıl, or Mikāl, (Michael), the patron of the Israelites, Israelite, the angel who will sound the trumpet at the last day, and  $'Iz_i\vec{a}'il$ , or  $'Azr\hat{a}'il$ , tho angel of death Ange's are said to be inferior in dignity to human prophets, because all the angels were commanded to prostrate themselves before Adam (Sürah ii 32) Every believer is attended by two recording angels, called the Knamu l-katibin, one of whom records his good actions, and the other his evil actions There are also two angels, called Munkar and Nakir, who examine all the dead in their graves The chief angel who has charge of hell is called Malik, and his subordinates are named Zabaniyah, or guards A more extended account of these angels will be found under their particular titles

The angels intercede for man "The angels celebrate the plaise of then Lord, and ask forgiveness for the dwellers on earth.' (Surah xin 3) They also act as guardian angels "Each hath a succession of angels before him and behind him who watch over him by God's behest.' (Surah xin 12) 'Is it not enough for you that your Lord aideth you with three thousand angels sent down (from on high).' (Turth in 120) "He is the supreme over His servants and sendeth forth guardians who watch over you, until, when death overtaketh any one of you our mossengers receive him and full not." (Surah yi 61)

There are eight angels who support the throne or God, And the angels shall be on its sides, and over them on that day eight shall bear up the throne of the Lord (Sürah laix 17) Ameteen have there of hell Over it are nineteen. None but angels have to 31)

The names of the guardian angels given in the book on Exercism (da'u ah) entitled the Jawāhiru'l-Khamsah, are Israfīl Jibiā'il, Kalka'īl, Dardā'īl, Durbā'īl, Raftmā il, Sharkā'il, Tankafil Ismā'īi, Sarakīka'īl Kharūru il Taţā'īl, Ruyā'il Hūlā il Hamwākīl, 'Itrā il, Amwakli, 'Amra'ıl, 'Azra'ıl, Mıka'ıl, Mahka'ıl, Harta'il, 'Ata'il, Nuta'il, Nukha'il. [Exor CISM ?

ANIMALS Arabic Hayawan (U) According to the Qur'an, Surah xxiv 44. "God hath created every animal of water" "Au idea," says Rodwell, "perhaps derived from Gen 1 20, 21"

It is believed that at the Rossirrection the irrational animals will be restored to life, that they may be brought to judgment, and then he annihilated See Quran, Sürah vi 38 "No kind of beast is there on the earth, nor fowl that flieth with its wings but is a community hke you, nothing have We passed over in the book (of the Fternaldecrees) then unto their Lord shall they be gathered AL-ANKABUT (العكبوت) "The ider ' The title of the xxxxth Surah Spider ' in which there is a passing reference to this insect in the 40th verse - "The likeness for those who take to themselves guar dians besides God is the likeness of the spider who buildeth her a house, but truly the finalest of all houses surely is the house of the spider."

AL-ANŞAR (الاصار) "The Helpers" a term used for the early convorts of al-Madinah, but when all the citizens of al Madinah were ostensibly converted to Islam, they were all named Ansar while those Muslims who accomparied the Prophet from Makkah to al Madinah were called Muhajeran, or excies (Mair's Life of Mahomet, vol 111 p 26) [MCHAMMAD]

ANTICHRIST MASIRU 'D-DAI-IAL.]

APOSTASY FROM ISLĀM Arabic artidad (stut) According to Muslim law, a male apostate, or Murtaid, 14 liable to be put to death if he continue obstr nate in his error, a female apostate is not subject to capital punishment, but she may be kept in confluement until she recant (Hamilton's Hidayah, vol 1. p 227) If either the husband or wife apostatize from the faith of Islam, a divorce takes place ipso facto the wife is entitled to her whole dower but no sentence of divorce is necessary Is the husband and wife both apostatize together their marriage is generally allowed to con tinue, although the Imam Zufar says it is annulled But if after their joint apostasy, either husband or wife were singly to return to Islam, then the marriage would be dissolved (namilton's Hidayah, vol 11 p 183)

According to Abu Hanifah, a male apostate is disabled from selling or otherwise dispos ing of his property But Abu Yusuf and Imam Muhammad differ from their master upon this point, and consider a male apostate to be as competent to exercise every right as if he were still in the faith (Hidayah, vol пр 296)

If a boy under age apostatize, he is not to be put to death, but to be imprisoned until he come to full age, when, if he continue in the state of unbelief, he must be put to death Neither lunatics nor drunkards are held to be responsible for their apostasy from Islam (Hidayah, vol ii 246) If a person upon com pulsion become an apostato, his wife is not divorced, nor are his lands forfeited. If a person become a Musalman upon compulsion, and afterwards apostatize, he is not to be put to death (Hudayah, vol m. 467)

The will of a male apostate is not valid, but that of a female apostate is valid (Hidayah, vol iv 537)

'Ikrimah ielates that some apostates were brought to the Khalifah Ali, and he burnt them alive, but Ibn 'Abbas heard of it, and said that the Khalifah had not acted rightly, for the Prophet had said, 'Punish not with God's punishment (re fire), but whosoever changes his religion, kill him with the sword (Sakihu I Bukhare)

APOSTLE Arabic rasul (ارسول). hunar (حواري) The term (apostle of messenger) is applied to Muhamund, that of hau are being used in the Qur'an (Swah m 4, 5, Swrah w 111, 112, Surah lxi 14) for the Apostles of Jesus The word hinari seems to be dorned from the Æthiopic hora "to go , hawarya, 'apostlo' although a conding to al Baizan the commentator, it is derived from hauira "to be white' in Syriac, hewar, and was given to the disciplos of Jesus he save, on account of their purity of life and ameerit, or because they were respectable men and wore white garments. In the Ira ditions (Michket, book i c 11 part 2) hawari is used for the followers of all the prophets [PROPHETS ]

AL-'AQABAH (العمبة) A sheltered glen near Minn celebrated as the scene of the two pledges the first and second pledge of al-'Aqabah The first pledge was made by ten men of the tribe of Khazraj and ten of lus when they plighted their faith to Muhammad thus - 'We will not worship any but one God we will not steel nor commit adulting nor kill our children, nor will we slunder our neighbour, and we will oney the Prophet of God." The date assigned to this pledge by Sir W. Mun is April 21 AD 621 The second pledge was a few months after wards when seventy three men and two women came forward one by one and took an oath of fealty to the Prophet Muhammad named twelve of the chief of these men, and sud - "Moses chose from amongst his people twelve leaders Yo shall be sureties for the rest, even as were the Apostles of Jesus, and I am surety for my people And the people answered, Amm, So be it (Mun s Life of Mahonet, vol 11 pp 216 232)

(عاقب) AQIB (عاقب 'A successor or deputy " " One who comes last " Al 'agib is a little given to Muhammad as being styled the last of the prophets "

(alčia) HAJIQA The relatives who pay the expiatory mulet for man slaughter, or any other legal line | lhev must be relatives descended from one common father (Hamilton's Hidayah, vol iv pages 449, 452, Bailne's Law of Sale, p 214)

'AQIQAH (عقيقة) custom observed by the Arabs on the birth of a child namely, leaving the hair on the infant's head until the seventh day, when it is shaved, and animals are sacrificed, namely, two sheep for a boy and one for a girl (Mish kāt, xviii c 3) It is onjoined by Mnhammadan law, and observed in all parts of Islam

ARABIA Bılııdu 'l-'Arab (الله Bılııdu 'l-العرب), Jaziratu 'l-'Arab (العرب), 'Arabistan (عربستان) The pennisula bearing amongst the Arabis, these ranges is the country situated on the east of the Red Sea, and extending as far as the Persian Gulf The word probably signifies a 'barren

place,' desert (Heb לערָבֶּר)

Ptolemy divides Arabia into thice parts, Aribia Petran Arabia Felix and Arabia Deserts but Arabian geographers di ide it into Lihamoh, al Hija. on Najd al Araz and al Yaman

The races which have peopled Arabic are divided into three sections at trabe I Bar dah al'Arabu I Tedah and al Ara'n L Mustahrbak

I Al' Irabu / Burdib in the old last Arabs of whem tradition has preserved the names of several tribes as well as some memorable particulars regarding their extinction This may well be called the fabulous period of Anabian bistory but as it has the sanction of the Quran it would be enertlege in a Muslim to doubt its authenticity According to this account the most famous of the extinct tribes were those of 'Ad Samud, Jadis, and Tasm all descended in the third or fourth generation from Shem Ad, the father of his tribe settled according to tradition in the Great Desert of al-Ahqui soon after the con fusion of tongues Shaddad his son succeeded him in the government and greatly extended his dominion. He performed many inbuleus exploits, among others he erected a magnifi-cent city in the desert of Adan, which had been begun by his father and adoined it with a sumptuous palace and delightful gardens in imitation of the celestial paradise, in order to inspire his subjects with a superstitions veneration for him as a god. This superb structure was built with bricks of gold and silver alternately disposed. The roof was of gold, inlaid with precious stones and peirls The trees and shrubs were of the same me cious materials. The fruits and flowers were rubies and on the branches were perched birds of similar metals, the hollow parts of which were loaded with every species of the uchest perfumes so that every breeze that blew same charged with fraginities from the bills of these golden images. It this pura disc he gave the name of Iram (see Qur'an Surah laxure 6) On the completion of all this grandeur, Shaddad set out with a splendid retinue to admire its beauties. But heavon would not suffer his pride and implety to go unpunished, for when within a day's journey of the place, they were all destroyed by a terri le noise from the clouds As a monument of Divine justice, the city, we are assured, still stands in the desert, though invisible Souther, in his Thalaba, has viewed this and many of the other fables and superstitions of the Alabs with the eye of a poet a philosopher, and an antiquarv According to at-Tabari this legondaly palace was discovered in the time of Mu awiyah, the first Khalifah of Damascus by a person in search of a stray camel A fanciful tradition adds, that the Angel of death on being asked whether, in the discharge of his duties, an instance had ever occurred in which he had felt some compission towards his wietched victims ad mutted that only twice had his sympathics been awakened—once towards a shapwrecked infant which had been exposed on a solitary plank to struggle for existence with the winds and wires, and which he spared, and the second time in cutting off the unhappy Shaddad at the moment when almost within view of the glouous fabric which he had erected at so much expense No sooner had the angel spoken than a voice from heaven was heard to declare that the helpless innocent on the plank was no other than Shaddad himself, and that his punishment was a just retribution for his ingratitude to a merciful and kind Providence, which had not only saved his life but raised him to unrivalled wealth and splendour while Lable seems to be a confused tradition of Belus and the incient Banylon or, rathor, as the name would import, of Benhadad mentioned in Scripture as one of the most famous of the Sylian Lings, who, we are told, was worshipped by his subjects

Of the 'Adites and their succeeding princes, nothing certain is known, oxcept that they were dispersed or destroyed in the course of a few centuries by the sovereigns of al Yaman

The tribe of Samud first settled in Arabia Felix and on their expulsion they repaired Like tho to il Hiji on the confines of Syria Adites they are reported to have been of a most gigantic statute the tallest being a hun died cubits high and the least sixty, and such was then muscular power, that with a tamp of the foot in the driest soil they could plant themselves kneedeep in the earth dwelt the Quran informs us, ' in the caves of the rocks, and cut the mountains into houses, which remain to this day ' In this tribe it is casy to discover the Thamudem of Diodorus Plint, and Ptelemy

The tribes of Tasm and ladis settled between Makkah and al-Madinah and occupied the whole level country of nl-Yaman hving propriscuously under the same government. Then history is buried in darkness and when the Araba wish to denote anything of dubious authority they call it a fittle of Tasm

The extinction of these tribes accord ms to the Quran, was unfaculous, and a signal example of Divine vengeance. The posterity of 'Ad and Samud had abandoned the worship of the true fied and lapsed into memorable idelatry. They had been chastised with a three years' drought, but their hearts remained bardened. To the former was sent the Prophet Hud, to reclaim them and preach the nuits of the Galhead 'O my people! exclaimed the prophet, ask pardon of your Lord, then turn unto line with penitence (and) He will send down the heavens upon you with copious rains and with strength in addition to your strength will He increase you. New believed and the overthrow of the idolaters was effected by a hot and suffocating wind, that blew seven nights and eight days without intermission accompanied with a terrible carthquake, by which their idols were broken to pieces and their houses thrown to the ground (See Quran Surah at 63 vi 53) Luquian, who according to some was a famous king of the Adites, and who lived to the age of seven eagles oscaped with about sixty others the common calamity These few survivors gave rise to a tribe called the Latter 'Ad, but on account of then ornnes they were transformed, as the Quran states into asses or monkeys. Had returned to llazramant and was buried in the neighbourhood where a small town, Qabi Hud still bears his name. Among the Arabs. Ad expresses the same remote age that beturn or Ogyges did among the Greeks, anything of extreme antiquity is said to be as old as King \d"

The idelatrons tribe of Samuel had the prophet Salih sent to them whom I Herbelot makes the son of Arphaxad, while Bochart and Sale suppose him to be Peleg the brother of Joktan His preaching had little effect. The fate of the "Adites, instead of being a warning only set them to dig caverns in the rocks, where they hoped to escape the vengeance of winds and tempests demanded a sign from the prophet in token of his mission. As a condition of their behaf they challenged him to a trial of power similar to what took place between Linah and the priests of Bail, and promised to follow the derty that should gain the triumph From a certain rock a camel big with young was to come forth in their presence idolaters were foiled for on Salih's pointing to the spot a she-camel was produced, with ; young one ready weaned. This miracle wrought conviction in a few, but the rest, far from believing, hamstrung the mother killed her miraculous progeny, and divided the flesh among them This sot of implety sealed their doom "And a violent tempest overtook the wicked and they were found prestrate on their breasts in their abodes" (Qur'an Surah vii 71, xi 64)

The tribes of Jadis and Tasm owe then extinction to a different cause. A certain despot a Tasmite, but sovereign of both tribes, had rendered himself detested by a voluptuous law claiming for himself a priority of right over all the brides of the Jadinites. This insult was not to be tolerated. A conspiracy was formed. The king and his chiefa were invited to an entertainment. The avengers had privately hidden their swords in the and, and in the moment of mirth and feslivity they fell upon the tyrint and line retinue and finally extirpated the greater part of his subjects

II -The pure Arabs are those who clam to be descended from Joktan or Qahtan, whom the present Arabs logard as then principal founder. The members of this genuine stock are styled al-Ainbu l-Armah, the gennine Aishs According to their geneslogy of this patriar it his descend ints formed two distinct branche. Ya'rub one of his sons, founded the kingdom of al Yaman, and Jurhum that of al Hijaz. These two are the only sons spaken of by the Arabs Then names do not been in Scripting but it has been conjectured that they were the Jerah and Hadoram mentioned by Moses as smong the thirteen planters of Arabia (Gen & 26)

in the division of their nation into tribes the Arabs resemble the Jews From an early ern they have retained the distinction of separate and independent families. This partition was ndverse to the consulidation of power or political influence, but it furnishes our chief guide into the dark abyse of their antiquities. The posterity of Larub sproid and multiplied into nuumorable olans. New accessions rendered new subdivisions necessary. In the gonealogical tables of Sale, (tagnier and Salyid Ahmad Khan are commersted nearly three score tribes of genuine Arabs many of whom become celebrated long before the time of Muhammad and some of them retain their names even at the present dis

IIL -The Araba I Musta with the mixed Arabs, clum to be descended from Islamaci and the daughter of al Muzar King of ai-Hijas whom he took to wife and was of the muth generation from Jurhum the founder of that kingdom Of the Inclumites till the time of Islamee little is recorded except the names of their princes or chiefs and that they had possession of the territory of al Highz. But as Muhammad traces his descent to this alliance the Arabs have been more than usually careful to preserve and ulorn his genonlogy The want of a pure ancestry is in their estimation more than compensated by the dignity of so sacred a connexion, for they boast as much as the Jews of being reckoned the children of Abraham circumstance will account for the preference with which they uniformly regard this branch of their pedigies, and for the many comantic legends they have grafted upon it It is not improbable that the old giants and idelaters ruffered an imaginary extinction to make way for a more favoured race and that Divine chastisements always overtook those who dared to invade their consecrated territories

The Scripture account of the expulsion and destiny of this venerated progenitor of the Arabs is brief, but simple and affecting Ishmsel was the son of Abraham by Hagar an Egyptian slave When fourteen years of age, he was supplanted in the hopes and affections of his lather by the birth of least.

through whom the promises were to descend This event made it necessary to remove the unhappy female and her child, who were accordingly sent forth to seek then fortune in some of the surrounding unoccupied dis tricts. A small supply of provisions, and a bottle of water on her shoulder, was all she carried from the tent of her master Directing her steps towards her native country, she wandered with the lad in the wilderness of Boer-shebs, which was destitute of springs Here her stock failed and it seemed impos sible to avoid perishing by hunger or thirst She resigned herself to her melancholy prospects, but the feelings of the mother were more scute than the agomes of want and despair Unable to witness her sons death she laid him under one of the shruhs took an iffecting leave of him and retired And she went and ant to a distance her down over against him, a good way off as it were a how shot for she said Let me not see the death of the child And she sat over against him and lifted up her voice and wept" (Gen xxi 16) At this moment and wept " (Gen xxi 16) At this moment an angel directed her to a well of with close at hand -a discovery to which they owed the preservation of their lives. A promise formerly given was renewed that she mad was to become a great nation—that he was to be a wild men - his hand against every man and every man a hand against him The travellers continued their jouin y to the wilderness of Paran and there took up then residence. In due time the hid gick to min bood and greatly distinguished himself as an archer and his mother took him I wife out of her own land. Here the sacred narrative breaks off thruptly the main object of Moses being to follow the history of Abtaham's descendants through the line of Isaac Arabs, in their version of Ishmael's history, have mixed a great deal of romanoc with the narrative of Scripture. They assert that They assert that al-Hips was the distint where he settled and that Mukk in then an and wilderness, was the identical spot where his life was providentially suved and where Hagar died and was buried The well pointed out by the angel they be hove to be the fumous Lumzam of which all pious Muslims drink to this day make no allusion to his alliance with the Egyptian woman by whom he had twelve some (Gen xxv 12 18) the chiefs of us many nations and the possessors of separate towns but as polygamy was commen in his age and country, it is not improbable he may have had more wives then one

It was say they to commemorate the miraculous preservation of Ishmael that God commanded Abraham to build the Kathah, and his son to formsh the necessary materials

Muhammadan writers give the following account of Ishmael and his descendents ---Ishmael was constituted the prince and first high-priest of Makkah and during half a contury he preached to the incredulous Arab-At his death, which happened forty cight years after that of Abraham, and in the 197th of his age, he was buried in the tomb of his mother Hagai Between the erection of the Kubuh and the birth of then Prophet, the Anibs section about 2,740 years Ishmaal was succeeded in the regal and secretotal office by his eldest son Nebat, although the pedigree of Muhammad is traced from keder a younger brother But his tamily did not long enjoy this double anthority, for, in progress of time, the Jurliumites soized the go vernment and the gnardunship of the temple, which they maintained about 300 years Those last, again, having corrupted the true worship, were assailed as a punishment of then crimes, flist by the scimitars of the Ishmaelites, who drove them from Makkalı and then by divers maladies by which the whole race finally perished quitting Makkah, however, they committed every kind of sacriloge and indignity. They filled up the Zamram well, after having thrown into it the treasures and sacred utensile of the temple the black stone, the swords and curresses of Qalash, the two golden gazelles presented by one of the kings of Arabin, the sacred image of the ram substituted for Isaac, and all the precious movables forming at once the object and the workmanship of a superstitious devotion. For several centuries the posterity of Ishinael kept possession of the supreme đigu ty

The following is the list of chiefs who are said to have ruled the Hijuz, and to have been the luneal ancestors of Muhammad, as far as Aduan

AD 538 Abdu Hüh, the father of Muhammad 50) Abdu T Muttahb

472 Hashim

439 'Abd Mannf

406 Quanty

373 Kilal

340 Murrab

J07 Ka'ab

274 Luwasy 241 Ghalib

208 Fibr of Quraish

175 Mabk

142 an Nazi

109 Kınanslı

76 Khuzamah 43 Mudrikah

10 al Ya's

28 Muzar RC

56 Nizar

89 Maudd

122 'Adnan

The period between Ishniael and Adnan is variously estimated some reckoning forty ochers only seven generations The authority of Abu I Fida who makes it ten is that genetally followed by the Arths being founded on a tridition of one of Muhammad's wives Making ever allowance however for pririarchal longevity, even forty generations are insufficient to extend over a space of nearly 2500 years From Aduan to Muhammad the genealogy is coundered cert in, comprehending twenty one generations and nearly 160 different tribes, all branching off from the same parent stem

the same parent stem
(See Abā 'l-Fidā, Gagmei s Vie de Mahomet, Pocock, Specim. Arab Hist, Saivid
Ahmad Khan's Essays, Salo's Koran, Prelim
Dis, Crichton's Hist Araba)

ARABIC Lisānu-'l-'Arab, Lughatu 'l-'Arab The classical language of Arabia is held to be the language of the Qur'an, and of the Traditions of Muhammad, and by reason of its moniparable excellence is called call al laghah, or the language (See Qur'an, Sūrah xvi 105, "They say Surely a persen toacheth him [1] Muhammad] But the tongue of him at whom they hint is foreign, while this [2] the Qur'an] is plain Arabic.")

This classical language is often termed, by the Arabians themselves, the language of Ma'add, and the language of Muzai and is a compound of many sisto dialects, very often differing among themselves, which were spoken throughout the whole of the Peninsula before the religion of Muhammad incited the nation to spread its conquering armies over foreign countries. Before that period, feuds among the tribes throughout the whole extent of their territory had prevented the blending of their dislects into one uniform language, but this effect of disunion was counteracted in a great measure by the institution of the sacrod months in which all acts of hostility were most strictly interdicted, and by the annual pilgrimage, and the yearly fair held at 'Ukaz, at which the poets of the various tribes contended for the meed of general admiration

Qatādah says that the Quiaish tribe used to cull what was most excellent in the dialects of Arabia, so that their dialect became the best of all This assertion, however, is not altogether correct, for many of the children of the tribe of Quraish, in the time of Muram mad, were sent into the desert to be there nursed, in order to acquire the utmost chasteness of speech Muhammad himself chasteness of speech was sent to be brought up among the tribe of Sa'd ibn Bakr ibn Hawazin, descendants of Muzar, but not in the line of Quraish and he is said to have urged the facts of his being a Quraisa, and having also grown up among the tribe of Said, as the grounds of his claim to be the most chaste in speech of the Arabs Certain it is that the language of Ma'add was characterised by the highest degree of perfection, copiousness, and uniformity, in the time of Muhammad, although it afterwards declined

The language of the Qur'an is universally acknowledged to be the most perfect form of Arabic speech. At the same time we must not forget that the acknowledged claims of the Qur'an to be the direct atterance of the Divinity have made it impossible for any Muslim to criticise the work, and it has become the standard by which club literary compositions have to be judged. (See Lane's Introduction to his Arabic Dictionary, and Palmer's Qur'an)

ARABIC LEXICONS The first Arabic lexicon is that which is generally ascribed to at Khalil, and entitled Kitābu!

Ann The following are the most celebrated Arabic dictionaries composed after the Air The Jamburah, by Ibn Duraid, died a H 321

The Fah; ib, by at Azhai, died a H 370

The Muhit, by the Sahib Ibu Abbad died at 385

Fhe Mupmal, by Ibn Faris, died a H 395 Tho Sihāh, by al-Jauhari, died a H 398 The Jām: by al-Qazzāz died a H 412 The Mūdh by Abū Ghālib, died a H 436 The Muhkum, by Ibn Sīdah, died a H 458 The Asās by az Zamakhsharî, died a H. 538

The Mughrib, by al-Mutarinzi, died AH

The 'I'bāb, by as Sāghāu, died a # 660 The Lisanu'l 41ab, by Ibn Mukariam, died AR 711

The Tuhzibu t Inhzib, by Mahmiid at-Tamikhi died A H 723

The Wishah by Ahmad ibn Muhammad al Faryumi compiled a H 734

The Mayhne 'I-Labib, by Ibn Hisham diel

An 761 The Qāmūs by al Farruzābadi, died AH 816

The Schah (says M: Lane in his Preface to his Dictionary) is among the books of lexicology like the Schih of Al Bukhur amongst the books of traditions, for the point on which turns the title to reliance is not the copionsness of the collection, but the condition of genuineness and correctness

Two well known detionaries, compiled in modern times in Hindustan are the Ghyagn langlet, by Maulawi Ghivasu 'd din of Rampūr and the Muntaha'l Irab, by Abdu r. Rahim ibn Abdu l-karim of patipūr. These are both Arabic and Persian lexicons.

The Arabic Latin dictionary of Jacob Golius, was printed at Leyden AD 1653, that of Freytag at Halle, AD 1830 35

The Arabic English and English Arabic dictionaries extant are—

Richardson's Persian Arabic English AD

Richardson's English Persian Ainbit AD

Francis Johnson's Poisian Arabic English ap 1852

Catafago's Arabic-English and English Arabic, new edition, 1873

Lane's Arable-English AD 1863 to 1882 imperfect

Dr Badgers English Arabic, and 1881 Dr Steingass's English Arabic, and 1882

AL-A'RAF (Lifeth) (1) The partition between heaven and hell, described in the Qur'an, Sürah vii 44, 'Betwist the two (beaven and hell) there is a partition and on al A'ruf aro men who know all by their marks, and they shall cis out to the inhabitants of Paradise 'P ice be upon you!' (but) they have not (yet) intered it, although they so desire. And when their sight is turned towards the dwellors in the Fire they say 'O our Lord, place us not with the unjust people '" According to Sale, al-A'raf is derived from the verb 'arafa, which signifies "to distinguish between things, or to part them", though some commentators give another leason for the imposition of this name, because, say they, those who stand on this partition will know and distinguish the blossed from the damned by their respective marks or characteristics and others say the word properly intends anything that is elevated, as such a wall of soparation must be supposed to be Some imagine it to be a sort of limbo for the patriarchs and prophots, or for the martyrs and those who have heen most emment for sanctity Others place here those whose good and evil works are so equal that they exactly counterposes each other, and therefore deserve neither reward nor punishment, and these may thev. will on the last day be admitted into Paredise, after they shall have performed un act of adoration, which will be imputed to them as a ment, and will make the scale of their good works to preponderate Others suppose this intormediate space will be a receptucle for those who have gone to war, without their parents' leave, and therein suffered mertyrdom, being oxcluded from Paradise for their disobodience, and escaping hell because they are martyrs (2) The title of Surah vii (3) A term used by Sufr mystics to express a condition of the mind and soul when meditating on the existence of God in all things

'ARAFAH (&),c) The vigil of the 'Idu l-Azhā or Feast of Sacrifice when the pigrims proceed to Mount 'Arafat [ idu 'L-AZHA ]

'ARAFAT (عرفات), or Arafah
The 'Mount of Recognition situated twelve miles from Makkah the place where the pilgrims stay on the minth day of the pil grimage, and recite the mid day and after noon prayers, and hear the Khuthah or sermon Hence it is a name given to the ninth day of the month Zu I Hijjah Upon the origin of the name given to this mountain. Burton says, 'The Holy Hill owes its name to the following legond —When our first parents forfeited heaven for cating whoat. which doprised them of their primoval purity they were cast down upon earth. The ser pent descended upon Ispahan, the peaceck at Cabul Satan at Bilbays (others say Semman or Soistan) Eve upon 'Arafat, and Adam at Ceylon (Sarandih) The latter, determining to seek his wife began a journey to which the earth owes its present mottled appearance Wherever out first father placed his foot, which was large a town afterwards arose, and between the strides will always Wandering for many years, hs be country came to the Mountain of Mercy, where our common mother was continually calling upon his name, and their recognition of each other gave the place the name of '4' afah'

ARĀZĪ (داني)) Let "lands", the sale of lands Tombs are not included in the sale of lands A place or station for easting

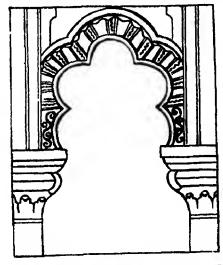

the harvest is not considered to be amongst the rights and advantages of land, and therefore does not enter into the sale of it (Baillie's Law of Sule, pages 54, 55)

ARCHITECTURE The term Saracenic is usually apphed by English writers to Muhammadan architecture But though the style may be traced to the Arabians, they cannot themselves be considered the inventors of it. They had, in fact, no distinctive style of their own when they made their rapid conquests, but adapted existing styles of architecture to meet the religious and national feelings of the Muslims.

Muhammad built a mosque at al-Madinah, but it was an exceedingly simple structure, and he left no directions in the Qur'an or in the Traditions on the subject

The typical varieties of the earlier Muhammadan architecture are those which appeared in Spain and in Egypt, its later form appeared in Constantinople. The oldest specimen of Saracenic architecture in Spain is the mosque of Cordova, which now serves as the cathedral of the city. It was commenced by the Khalifah 'Abdu'r Rahmān, 786 AD,

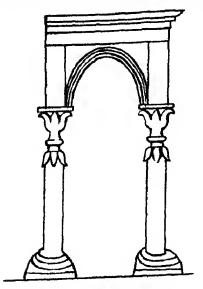

IN THE SANCTUARY OF THE CATHEDRAL OF

with the avowed intention that it should be the finest mosque in the world, and Byzantine architects are said to have been specially invited to superintend its construction

The earliest of the Muhammedan buildings in Egypt of which any portions still remain, is the Mosque of 'Amr at old Cairo, begun about a D 642, but greatly altered or rebuilt about sixty years later

On the capture of Constantinople, St Sophia was converted by the Mushim conquerors into their chief Mosque and made their architectural model. The older Saracenic style, as seen at Cordova and old Cano, continued to be the basis of the new, but it was modified throughout by Byzantine influence. In Persia we may clearly trace in Muhammadan buildings the older Persian type and in India

IN 8 SOPULA, CONSTANTINOLLE

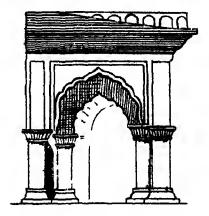

the Saraceme architects showed the same phaney in adopting the atyles of the various peoples amongst whom they settled. It thus happens (says Fergusson, in his History of Indian Architecture), that we have at least twelve or fifteen different styler of Muhammadan architecture in Central Asia and in Irdia.

IN THE TAY MARALL AGRA

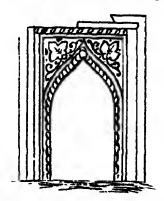

A striking and distinctive feature in early Muhammadan architecture is the horse-shee arch which in time gives way to a cusped or scalioped arch strictly so termed, the outline being produced by intersecting seem arches Another variety of Saracenic arch is the circular-headed and stilted form. The pillars are commonly of exceedingly slender proportions, aimost to apparent meeturity but owing to the style of the embellishment, this lightness

IN THE MOTE MASJED, AGRA

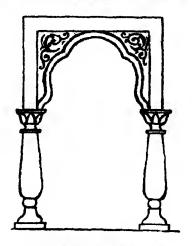

of particular forms tends to heighten the general luxurince. Some have imagined that this element of slenderness in regard to pillars indicates a tent origin of the style. This tent-like character has been further kept up by concave cerbings and cupolas emblasoned with punning and gilding. Decorations composed of animal and human haures being interdicted by Muhammadan law [FICTI RES] are not found in Saracenic architecture but their geometrical patterns exhibit singular beaut, and complexity inexhaustible variety of combinations, and a wonderful degree of harmonious intricity arising out of very simple elements.

BARLY PATHAN STYLE IN THE QUTB BUILDINGS AT DELHI

work is another fertile source of embellishment, and is similar to the tracery met with in Gothic buildings. Another characteristic of Saracenic style is that of the doine. For the most part domes occur in mosques and tombs and are of Byranime origin. Minareta are siso a special feature in Muhammadan mosques, and contribute much to the picturesqueness of these buildings. They are found in mosques of the later Saracenic style (See Fergusson's Indian and Eastern Architecture, Mr Owen Jones's Alhambra Palace, Hersomer's Arabisihe Bauterzierungen)

IN A HOUSE IN PESSAWAR

'ARIYAH (اهراه) A kind of sale permitted in Islam, namely, when a person computes what quantity of fruit there is on a tree and sells it before it is plucked (Minhkāt, xii c ▼ )

'ARIYAH (4,4a) (1) A loan for the use of anything of which Qurz cannot be made eg the loan of a horse is 'Arryah the loan of money is Qurz (2) A gift of which the following is an example -A person makes a gift to another of the dates of a palm tree in his garden but having afterwards some doubt of the propriety of that person coming daily to his garden where his family usually are, and being at the same time unwilling to depart from his promise, or to retract his gift he gives some of the dates that have already been pulled in lieu of these upon the tree (Bailie's Law of Sale, p. 300)

ARK, NOAH'S (to all) It is mentioned in the history of the Deluge, as recorded in the Quran, in two places—Sürah x1 89, "Build the ark under our eye and after our revelation," and Sürah Exim 27 is also supposed to be an allusion to the ark in Surah xxxvi 41, "And a sign to them is that we bare their offspring in the laden ship "

Al-Baisawi says that Noah was two years building the ark, which was 300 cubits long, 50 wide, and 30 broad, and which was made of ladian plane tree, that it consisted of three storeys, the lowest for beasts, the middle for men and womon (who were separated from each other), and the highest for birds. The ark is said to have rested on the moun-

tam al Jūdi [woaw]

ARK OF THE COVENANT The

Hebrew word for "Ark" is חברה (26 a chest, a coffer), Chald אָתִיבותא, Arabic تابرة , قابرت See Qur'an, Sürah 11 249, "The sign of his (Saul's) kingdom is that there shall come unto you the ark (Tābūt), in it shall be security for the Shechinsh, sakuah, Heb השבינה) from your Lord, and the relics of what the family of Mosos and the family of Aaron left, the angels shall bear it." Jalain 'd-din says this ark contained the images of the prophets, and was sent down from heaven to Adam, and at length came to the Israelites, who put great confidence therein, and continually carried it in front of their army, till it was taken by the Amalekites But on this occasion the angels brought it back in the sight of all the people, and placed it at the feet of Saul (Talut), who was thereupon unanimously received as king

ARMS, The Sale of The sale of urmour or warlike stores to rebels, or in their camp, is forbilden because selling arms into the hands of rebels is an assistunce to defection But it is not forbidden to sen the manerials for making arms to such persons. (Hamilton's Hidayah, vol 11 225)

ARSH (ارها) (1) A legal term compensation (2) A mulet, a fine, parfor compensation ticularly that which is paid for shedding of blood. (3) A gait for concalisting the favour of a judge a bribe (4) Whatever a pur-chaser receives from a seller after discover ing a fault in the article bought

'ARSH (عرض) The term used in the Qur'in for the throne of God Surah ix 181, "He is the Lord of the mighty throne" Husaini the commentator says the throne has 8,000 pillars, and the distance between each pillar is 3 000 000 miles

'ASABAH (des) A legal term for male relatives by the fathers side, agnates

ASAF ( The wazīr or prime minister of Solomon Alluded to in the Qur'an, Sūrah xxvu 40 as "He with whom was knowledge of the scripture" Minham madan commentators say he was the son of Barkhiya.

ASAR (3) Relating, handing down by tradition Generally used for a Hadis related by one of the Companions, as distinguished from one of the Prophet's own

AL-ASARU 'SH-SHARIF A hair (الثريف The sacred relic of either the beard or must achies of Muhammad, or a foot-print of the Prophet One of these sacred relice (a bair of his board) is exhibited in the great mosque at Delhi, another in a mosque in Cashmera

ASHAB (احاب), pl of Sahib Associates of Muhammad The Companions

The term used for a single companion is sahābī Concerning the title of 'Companion," there is considerable controversy as to the persons to whom it can be applied Sa'id ibn al Musaiyab reckoned none a 'Compamon," but those who had been a year or more with Muhammad, and had gone on a warlike expedition with him Some say that everyone who had attained puberty, had embraced Islam, and had seen the Prophet, was a "Companion," evon though he had attended Muhammad but an hou Others, however, affirm that none could be a "(ompanion" unless Muhammad chose him and he chose Muhammad and he adhered to the Prophet at all times The general opinion is that every one who embraced Islam saw the Prophet, and accompanied him, even for a short time, was a "Companion"

It is related that the Prophet insirched to Makkah with 10,000 Mushims to Hunain with 12,000, and that 40,000 accompanied him on the farewell pligning. The number of the "Companions" at his death is said to have been 144,000

In point of ment, the refugees (Muhāpi ūn) are more worthy than the auxiliaries (1nsur) but by way of precedence the auxiliaries more worthy than the later refugees

The "Companions" have been arranged in thirteen classes, which are given by Abu l-Fidh as follows -1 Those who first embraced Islam such as Khadijah 'Ah Zand, and Aba Bakr and those who did not delay till he had established his mission. II The Companions who believed in him after his miss on hid been fully established amongst whom was Umai III Those who fled to Abyssina IV The first Companions of 'Aqabali, who proceeded the Auxiliaries V The second Companions of 'Aqabah VI The third Com panions of Aqabab who were seventy VII The refugees who went to the Prophet after his flight, when he was at Quba, before the orection of the temple VIII The soldiers of the great battle of Badr 11 Those who joineil Islam between Badr and Hudaibiyah X Those who took the oath of fealty under the acacia tree at Hudaibiyah XI Those who joined after the troaty of Hudaibiyah, but before the conquest XII Those that embiaced Islam on the day of conquest XIIL Those who were children in the time of the Pro phet, and had seen him

Muhammad frequently commended the "Companions," and spoke of their excellences and virtues, a chapter in the Traditions being devoted to this subject (Mishkät, xxiv exii) He is related to have said "My companions are like stars by which roads are found, for which ever companion you follow you will find the right road"

**The Companions of the Elephant ** A term nsed in the Chapter of the Elephant, or the cyth Sûrah — 'Hast thou not seen how thy Lord dealt with the companions of the elephant' Did He not cause their stratagem to imaginary?

And He sent against them birds in flocks, small stones did they hurl down upon them, and he made them like stubble eaten down!"

This refers to the simy of Abrahah, the Christian king of Abrasinia and Arabia Felix, said to have been lost, in the year of Muhammad's birth, in an expedition against Makkah for the purpose of dostroying the Ka'bah This army was cut off by small-pox and there is no doubt, as the Arabic word for small-pox also means 'small stones," in reference to the hard gravelly feeling of the pustules, what is the true interprotation of the fourth verse of this builah, which, like many other poetical passages in the Qui an has formed the starting point for the most pucule and extravagant legends

ASHABU 'L-KAHF (اصحاب الكهف)

The Companions of the Cave ie the Seven Sleepers mentioned in the Smith I-kahf, or Chapter xxiii of the Qui an The story, as told by carb Christian writers, is given by Gibbon (Rise and Full Chapter xxxi) When the Emperor Decins persecuted the Christians, seven noble vouths of Ephesus are said to have concealed themselves in a cave in the side of a mountain where they were doomed to perish by the triant, who gave orders that the entrance should be firmly secured with a pile of huge stones. They immediately fell into a deep slumber which was miraculously prolanged without injuring the powers of life during a period of 187 years. This popular tale which Muhammad must nave heard when he dreve his cantils to the fairs of Stria is introduced into the Quian as a divine it velution ASHABU 'S-SUFFAH (Line) of the temple at Makkah They are thus described by Abu I Fida. They are thus described by Abu I Fida. They were poor strangers without friends or place of abode while claimed the promises of the Apostle of God and implored his protection. Thus the proch of the temple became their manners and thence they obtained their name. When Muhammad went to ments housed to call some of them to partake with him and he selected others to cat with his companions?

'ASHARAH MUBASHSHARAH

(5,20) "The ten who received glad tidings 'Ten of the most distinguished of Muhammad s followers, whose certain entrance into Paradise he is said to have foretold. They are Abu Baki 'I mai Usmân 'Ahi, Tathah az Zubair 'Abdu'i Rahman Sa'd ibn-Abu-Vaqqas 'aid ibn Zuid Abū 'Ubaidali ibn al Jariāh (Mishkāt, book xxlv c xx, pai(n)) Muhammad declared it piesumption for anyone to count upon an entrance into henven with absolute certainty but he made an exception in favour of these ten distinguished persons

AL-ASH'ARIYAH (4, 24) A sect formed by Abu l-Hasan 'Ali ibn Ismā'il al Ash ari, born an 260 (a v 878-4)

They bold that the attributes of God are distinct from His essence, yet in such a way as to forbid any comparison being made between God and His creatures say they are not " arn nor gharr " not of His essence, nor distinct from it is they cannot be compared with any other things also hold that God has one eternal will, from which proceed all things, the good and the evil the useful and the hurtful. The destiny of man was written on the eternal table before the world was created. So far they go with the Sifatis, but in order to preserve the moral responsibility of man, they any that he has power to convert will into action. But this power cannot create anything new, for then God's sovereignty would be impaired, so they say that God in His providence so orders mutters that whenever "a man desires to do a certain thing, good or bad, the action corresponding to the desire is, there and then, created by God and, as it were fitted on to the desire. Thus it seems as if it came naturally from the will of the man, whereas it does not This action is called Kash (acquisition), because it is acq lired by a special creative act of God. It is an act directed to the obtaining of profit or the removing of injury the torm is therefore in applicable to the Deity Abu Bakr il Bakil-lini, a disciple of al Ashani, says 'The essence or substance of the action is the effect of the power of God, but its being an action of obedience, such as prayer, or an action of disobedience, such as fornicution are qualities of the action, which proceed from the power of man. The Imain Al Haramain (a.g. 419-478) held that the actions of man were effected by the power which God has created in man. Abu Ishaq al Istaravini says That which maketh im pression or hath influence on action, is a compound of the power of God and the power of man." They also believe that the word of God is eternal, though they acknowledge that the vocal sounds used in the Quran which are the manifestation of that word are created. They say in short, that the Quran contains (1) the eternal word which existed in the essence of God before time was and (2) the word which consists of sounds and combinations of letters This last they call the cicated word

Thus Al Ash'ari traversed the main positions of the Mutazilitea, denying that man can, by the aid of his reason alone, rise to the knowledge of good and evil. He musi exerciae no judgment but accept all that is revealed. He has no right to apply the moral laws which affect men to the actions of God It cannot be asserted by the human reason that the good will be rewarded or the bad punished in a future world. Man must always approach God as a slave in whom there is no light or knowledge to judge of the actions of the Supreme. Whether tood will accept the pen tent sinner or not cannot be asserted for He is an absolute Sovereign above all law (Sale, from 16n Khaldun. Die Mutaziliten oder die Freidenker in Islām, von H. Steiner 1865, Zur Geschichte Abu'l-Hasan al-ash'arush, von W Spitta, 1876, De Strijd over het Dogma in den Islâm tot op El-ush'ari, door Dr. M. Th. Houtema, Leiden, 1875, and Expose de la Reforme de l'Islamisme, by M. A. F. Mehren Leiden, 1878)

'ASHURA (alage) Lit "the tenth" A voluntary fast day, observed on the tenth of the month of Muharram It is related that Muhammad observed it, and said it was a day respected by Jewa and Christians (Machi at, vii c vii 1.)

It is the only day of Muharram observed by the Sunni Muslims, being the day on which it is suid God created Adam and Eve, heaven and hell the tablet of decree the pen, life and death. It is kept by the Sunnisas a fast [Muharram]

ASIYAH ( The wife of Pharach One of the four perfect women (the Viigin Mary Khadijah, and kātimāh, being the other three) See Mishkūtu I-Ma aābih, xxiv c 22 She is mentioned in the Qurān (Surah lavi 11) "And God striketh cut a parable for those who believe the wife of Pharach when she said, "My Lord, huild for me a house with Thee in Paradise, and save me from Pharach and his works, and save me from the unjust people"

ASL (Jol) Cause, first principle, foundation Asl wafer, "cause and effect," fundamental and derivative principle"

ASMA'U 'LLAH (all all) [GOD, NAMER OF ]

'ASR (ac) The afternoon prayer [PRAYERA] The title of the CHIRD SURAh of the Qur'ar

ASS According to the Imam Abu Hanish the assissmunclean animal, and its area and milk are unlawful nor is zakāt to be liven on an ass (Hamilton's Hidāyah, vol 1 16 iv 74 86)

ASSISTANTS [ANSAR]

ASTROLOGY Arabic 'Ilmu 'nnujūm Qatādah says referring to the Qur'ān that God has created stars for three uses
(1) as an ornament to the heavens (Surah lxvii 5), and (3) to stone the Devil with (Sūrah lxvii 5), and (3) to direct travelless through the forests and on the sea (Surah xv 16) Muhammad condemns those who study the stais for any other pulpose (Mishkāi, xxi c in pt in ) and consequently the science of Astrology is not considered lawful in Islām

ASWAD (July) An impostor who, in the time of Muhammad, claimed the prophetic office. His name was 'Aihalah ibn Kah und he belonged to the tribe of 'Aus, of which he was in influential chief He was aurnamed Zu'l-Himar or The Master of the Ass, * because ha used frequently to say, "The master of the ass is coming unto me," and pretended to receive his revelations from two angels, named Suhaik and Shuraik Being a good hand at legerde main, and having a smooth tougue, he gained mightily on the multitude by the strange feats which he showed them, and the eluquence of his discourse. By these means he greatly increased his power and having made himself master of Najran and the territory of Talif, on the death of Badhan the governor of Yaman for Muhammad he served that pro vince also, killing Shahr, the son of Badhan, and taking to wife his widow Azad whose father he had also slain. The news being brought to Muhammad, he sent to his friends and to the tribe of Hamdan, a party of whom conspiring with Qais ibn Abd Yaghuth, who bore Aswad a gradge, and with Firuz and Aswad's wife, broke by night into his house, where Firuz surprised him and cut off his head. While dving, it is said that he roared like a bull, at which his guards came to the chamber door, but were sent away by his wife, who told them that the prophet was only agitated by the divine inspiration. This was done the very night before Muhammad The next morning the conspirators caused the following proclamation to be made, viz 'I hear witness that Muhammad is the Apostlo of God, and that 'Aihala is a har", and letters were immediately sent away to Muhammad, with an account of what had been done, but a messenger from heaven outstripped them, and acquainted the prophet with the news, which he imparted to his Companions a little before his death, the letters themselves not arriving till Abn Bakr was chosen Khalif It is said that Muhammad on his occasion told those who attended him that before the Day of Judgment thirty more impostors, besides Mussilimah and Aswad, should appear The whole time from the beginning of Aswads relicition to his death was four months

* But another reading is $u i-Khimar, or "He with the veil"

ATHEIST [DAHRI]

'ATIRAH (5,22c) The sacrifice offered by the idolatrous Arabs in the month of Rajab It was allowed by the Prophet at the commencement of his mission, but was afterwards abolished. Mishkāt, book iv c 50 "Let there be no Fara nor 'Atirah"

AT-TAHIYAT (which is a stated prayers recited after the Takhru 'I Qu ūd after every two rak'ahs It is recited whilst the worshipper kneels upon the ground I fis left foot bent under him, he sits upon it, and places his hands upon his knees, and says — "The adorations (ie at-tahiyātu) of the tongue are for God, and also of the body and of aims-giving Peace be on thee O Ptophet, with the mercy of God and His blessing Peace be upon us, and upon God's rightfour servants" (Mishkāt, iv, o xvi) [IRAYER]

AUGURY [FA'; ]

AULIVA (اولياء)), pl of walf "havourities of God" The expression occurs in the Quran in the following verse, "Are not the favourities of God those on whom no fear shall come, nor shall they be put to grief?" (Sürah x 63)

AUTAD (36,1) Let "props or pillars A term used by the Suffs for the four saints, by whom the four corners of the world are said to be supported

A'UZU BILLAH (444) Another name for the Ta'anwuz, or the prayor in the dails littings 'I seek refuge with God from the cursed Satan' [PRAIFR]

AVENGER OF BLOOD In the Muhammadan law as in the Jewish, tho punishment for wilful murder is left to the next of kin, but in the Jewish code the avenger of blood was compelled to take the life of the murderer, whilst in the Muslim code he may accept compensation ride Qur'an, Surah ii 173, "O believers' rotalisation (Quais) for blood shedding is prescribed to you the free man for the free, and the slave for the slave, and the woman for the woman. but he to whom his brother shall make any remession is to be dealt with equitable, and a payment should be made to him with liberality. This is a relexation (ce at the structer les taliants) from your I oid, and a [WAGEN] meici

AYAH (&) Let "a sign of miracle" The true used for our of the smaller portions of the chapters of the Quran, which we call verses. The number of verses is often set down after the title of the chapter, but the verses are not marked in the t xt as they are in our English Bibles. The number of verses in the Quran is variously estimated, but they are generally said to be ilent six thousand two hundred. [QURAN]

AL-A'YĀNU 'S-SABITAH (LLEM ARLEM), pl of 'ayn, in the some of "the essence" of a thing. The established casences. A term used by the Sufi mystics to express figures emblematic of the names of God. (Abdu 'r Razzāg's Inclumary of Trebuted Jerms of the Safis. Sprenger's edition.)

AYATU 'L-FATH (AND A) Let The verse of the Surata I main (1) of the Quran The powers of this verse are said to be so great, that if a person constantly recite it he will obtain his desires. It is generally recited with this object torty times after each season of prayer It is as follows — And with Him are the keys of the secret things, none knoweth them but He, and He knoweth what ever is on the land and in the sea, and no lost falleth but He knoweth it, neither is there a green thing our a dry thing but it is noted in a clear book.

AYATU'L-HIF? (Land and ) The verses of protection." Certain verses of the Quran which are usually inscribed on amulets. They are —Sürah in 256, "And the preservation of both (heaven and earth) is no burden unto Him." Sürah xii. 64, "God is the best protector." Sürah xii. 12, "They guard him by the command of God." Sürah xv. 17, "We guard him from every devil driven away by stones." Sürah xxvii. 7, "A protection against every rebellious devil."

AYATU'I.-KURSI (من الكربي الله الكربي The verse of the throne" Verse 256 of the Süratu 'I-Baqurah, or chap 11 of the Qur'an 1t 1s related (Mashkat, book 1v, c xix, part 111) that 'All heard Muhammad say in the pulpit, "that person who repeats the Ayatu 'l-Kursi after every prayer, nothing prevents him entering into Paradise but life, and whoever save it when he goes to his bed-chamber, God will keep him in safety, together with his house and the house of his neighbour The verse is as follows - "God! There is no God but He, the Laving, the Abiding Neither slumber select is in sleep To Him belongeth whatsoever is in which who is he that can intercede with Him but by His own permission? He knoweth what hath been before them, and what shall be after them, yet nought of His knowledge do they comprehend, save what He willeth His THRONE reacheth over the heavens and the earth, and the upholding of both hurdeneth Him not, and He is the High, the Great

AYATU'L-MAWĀRĪS (شواريط) مَوْالمواريط)
"The verse of inheritances" The twelfth verse of the Suratu n-med, or fourth chapter of the Qui'an It relates to inheritance, and is the foundation of the Muslim law on the subject It is given in the article on Inhe ritance [Insterior ]

AYIMMATU'L-ASMĀ (المَعْالَةُ السَّامُ)
"The leading names' The seven principal names or titles of God, namely —

Al-Hayy

Al-Mund

Al-Wurid

Al-Qudir

As Sum

Al-Basir

Al-Mutakullim

The Living

The Knowing

The Powerful

The Hearer

The Seer

Al-Mutakullim

The Speaker

'ĀYISHAH (Lale) The daughter of Abū Bakr, and the favourite wife of Mu hammad to whom she was married when only nine years of age. She survived her husband many years, and died at al Madinah, AH 58 (AD 676), aged sixty seven and obtained the title of Ummu'l Mumnim." The Mother of the Believers

AYMAN (المان), pl of Yamin

AYYAMU'L.BIZ (المالبيض) 'The days of the bright nights' mentioned in the Michkel (book vii o 7, part 3), as days on which Muhammad did not eat, whether halfing or marching. They are the 13th, 14th, and 15th nights of the month. (See Lane's Dict, p 284)

AYYĀMU 'L-QARR (الأم الله ) The day of rest after the day of sacrifice at the Pilgrimage. [HAJJ]

AYYAMU'N-NAHR (إيام اللحر). The season of sacrifice at the Pilgrimage. [HAJJ]

AYYĀMU'T - TASHRĪQ (التشريق) The three days after the feast of sacrifice at Minā during the Pilgrimage So called because the flesh of the victims is then dried, or because they are not slain until after sun-rise [HAJJ, PILGRIMAGE.]

AYYIM (pt) A legal term for a woman naving no husband, whether she be a virgin or a widow

'AZĀBU'L-QABR (مداب The punishment of the grave" That all persons, whether believers or not, undergo some punishment in their graves, is a fundamental article of the Muslim belief These punishments are described in the following Hadie on the authority of Abū Hurarah —

"The Prophet of God said, When a corpse is placed in its grave, two black angels come to it, with blue eyes The name of the one is Munkar and of the other Nakir, and they interrogate the dead person concerning the Prophet of God If he be a Muslim, he will bear witness to the Unity of God and the mission of Muhammad The angels will then say, We knew thou wouldst say so , and the grave will then expand seventy times seventy yards in length and seventy times soventy in breadth A light will then be given for the grave, and it will be said, 'Sleep' Then the dead person will say, Shall I return to my biethren and inform them of this? Then the angels will say, Sleep like the bride-groom, till God shall raise thee up from the grave on the Day of Resurrection' But if the corpse he that of an unbeliever, it will be asked, 'What savest thou about the Prophet!' and he will reply, I know him not' And then the angels will say, 'We knew thou wouldst say so' Then the ground will be ordered to close in upon him, and it will break his eides, and turn his right side to his left and he will suffer perpetual punishment till God raise him therefrom" In another tradition, recorded by 'Anas, it is said, "The wicked will be struck with a rod (mitragah), and they will roar out, and their cries will be heard by all animals that may be near the grave excepting man and the onil (Mishkat, hook 1, c v)
All Muhammadan doctors of the orthodox

All Muhammadan doctors of the orthodox schools (whether we apply the term orthodox to Summ or Shrish) believe in the literal interpretation of these punishments in the grave, which are said to take place as soon as the funeral party has left the grave yard. A perusal of the various traditions on the subject must convince any unprejudiced mind that Muhammad intended to teach a literal interpretation of his sayings on this subject. It is related that on one occasion, when the Prophet was riding through a grave yard his mule, hearing the grouns of the dead tried to throw his master. On that occasion, Muhammad and, "If I were not afraid that you would leave off burying I would ask God to give you the power of hearing what I hear." Shaikh Abdu "l-Haqq, in his commentary on the Mishkat, says, "The accounts which are here given of the punishment of the grave, are undoubtedly true, and they are not either imaginary or figurative." (Mishkat, book 1, chap v, see Persian edition with 'Abdu l-Haqq's commentary)

AZAL (Jil) Eternity with respect to the past as distinguished from abad (wil), eternity without end

AZĀN (OLA) Let "announcement"
The call or summons to public prayers proclaimed by the Mu'azzin (or crier)—in small mosques from the side of the building or at the door, and in large mosques from the minaret

It is in Arabic as follows -

Allāhu akbar' Allāhu akbar' Allahu okbar! Allāhu akbar' Ashhadu an lā ilāha illa'lāh' Ashhadu an lā ilāha illa'lāh' Ashhadu anna Muhammadan rasūlu llāh' Ashhadu anna Muhammadan rasūlu llāh' Hayya'ala 's-salāt i Hayya 'ala 's-nalāt i Hayya 'ala 'l-fulāh! Hayyu ala 'l falah! Allāhu akbar' Allāhu akbar' Lā ilāha illa 'llāh'

Which is translated -

"God is most great! God is most great! I destify that there is no god but God! I testify that there is no god but God! I testify that Muhammad is the Apostle of God! I testify that Muhammad is the Apostle of God! I testify that Muhammadis the Apostle of God! There is no god but God!"

In the Azan in the early morning after the words, "(ome to salvation!" is added أيانا النوم الن

The Shi' ilis make a slight alteration in the Azān, by adding the words, يعلى على على العمل Hayya ulā khairi 'I-' amali ' Hayya 'alā khairi 'I-' umali ' "Come to the hest of works' Come to the hest of works'" and by repeating the last sentence of the Agan, "There is no god but God, twice instead of once, as in the Sunni Agan

When the Agan is recited, it is usual for men of piety and religious feeling to respond to each call, as, for example, when the Mu'azzin cries —

"Allahu akbar! Allahu akbar! Allahn akbar! Allahu akbar!."

Those who hear it repeat —
' Aliāhu akbar! Aliāhu akbar! Aliāhu akbar! Aliāhu akbar!"

The Munizin says-

'I testify that there is no god but God , I testify that there is no God but God "

They reply—

I testify that there is no God but God,
I testify that there is no god but God"

Mu azzin -- "I testify that Muhammad is the Apostle of God"

Reply 'I testify that Muhammad is the Apostle of God"

Mu azzın —" Come to praver "

Reply — 'I have no power nor strength but from God the most High and Great"

Muszzin - Come to salvation"

Reply -- What God willeth will be, what He willeth not willeth not be

The secital of the Azan must be listened to with great reverence. If a person be walk ing at the time he should stand still if re chung, sit up Mi Lane in his Modern Equipment says "Most of the Mu azzum of Cano have harmonious and sonorous voices, which they stimin to the utmost pitch yet there is a simple and solemn include in their chants which is very striking particularly in the stillness of the night But Vambery remarks that the Turkistances most carefully avoid ill tune and inclody. The manner in which the Azan is eried in the west is hero (in Bokhara) declared suiful and the beautiful melancholy notes which in the silent hour of a mountit evening, are heard from the slender minisets on the Bosphorus, fasemat ing every hearer would be listened to by the Bokharios with feelings only of detestation

The summons to prayer was at first the simple cry . Come to public prayer " After the Qiblah was changed, Muhammad bethought himself of a more formal call Some suggested the Jewish trumpet, others the Christian hell, but neither was grateful to the Prophets ear The Azan, or call to prayer was then established Tradition clauss for it a supernatural origin thus -" While the matter was under discussion, 'Abdu 'llah, a Khazrajite, dreamed that he met a man clad in green raimeut, carrying a bell "Abdu 'llah songht to buy it, saying that it would do well for bringing together the assembly of the faithful "I will show thee a better way," replied the stranger, "let a crier ory aloud, God is most great, &c" Waking from sleep, 'Abdu llah proceeded to Muhammad, and told him his dream (Muir, from Katiba'l Wükıdi ) Hishami recites the story as if Abdu llah had actually met the man

Bingham, n his Antiquities (vol 11 book

viii. chap vii ), relates that, in the monastery of virgius which Paula, the famous Roman lady, set up and governed at Jorusalem, the signal for prayer was given by one going about and singing "Hallelujahi" for that was then call to church, as St Jerome informs us

The Azān is preclaimed before the stated times of prayer, either by one of the congregation, or by the Mu'azzin or erier, who is paid for the purpose. He must stand with his face towards Makkah, with the points of his fore-fingers in his ears, and recite the formula which has been given above

It must not be recited by an unclean person, a drunkard, a madman, or a woman

AZAR (رز) Terah, the father of Abraham Sürah, vi 74, "And when Abrahim said to his father Avar, Takest thou ımages as gods ? "

"The Eastern authors unanumously agree that he was a statuary, or carver of idels, and he is represented as the first who made images of clay, pictures only having been in use before, and taught that they were f be adored as gods. However we are to'd his employment was a very honourable one, and that he was a great lord, and in high favour with Nimrod whose son in law he was, be cause he made his idels for liim, and was excellent in his art Some of the Rabbins say Terah was a priest and chief of the order "— (Sale)

AL-AZÂRIQAH (قَارُارُقَةُ) A sect of heretics founded by Nañi ibn al-Arraq, whe say that 'Alī was an infidel, and that his assassin was right in killing him (See ash-Shahrastānī, ed Cureton, p. M. Haarbruecker's translation, I, p. 183

AL-'AZBA' ( The slit-eared, one of Muhammad's favourite camels

AL-AZHĀ (العليم) ['IDU L-AZHA]

AL-'AZIM (العليم) (Ine of the minety-mine special names of God "The great One"

'AZIMAH (هريمة) An meanta-

AL-'AZIZ (ywhl) One of the ninety-nine special names of God. It frequently occurs in the Qui an. It means "the powerful or the mighty One

'AZRÂ'ÎL (عرزائيل) The angel of Death Mentioned in the Qur'an under the title of Mulaku 'I-Muut, purah xxxii 11, "The angel of death who is charged with you shall cause you to die '[MALAKU 'L-MAUT]

B

BABEL Arabic by Babil Men-tioned once in the Quran, Surah u 96 "Sorcery did they teach to men, and what had been revealed to the two angels Harut and Marut at Babil" Bahel is regarded by the Muslims as the fountam-head of the science of magic They suppose Harut and Marut to be two angels who, in consequence of their want of compassion for the frailties of mankind, were sent down to earth to be tempted. They both sinned, and, being permitted to choose whether they would be punished now or hereafter, chose the former, and are still suspended by the feet at Babel in a rocky pit, and are the great teachers of magic (Lane s Thousand and One Nights, ch in note 14) Vide Tafsir 1- Azizi in loco

BABU 'L-ABWAB (יוֹיף װּנְּפֶּוֹף).

Lit "The door of doors." A term used by the Sufis for repentance ('Abdu 'r-Razzāq's Dictionary of Suf i Terms)

BABU 'S-SALAM (
"The Gate of Peace The gateway in the sacred mosque at Makkah through which Muhammad entered when he was elected by the Quraish to decide the question as to which section of the tribe should lift the Black Stone into its place. It was originally called the Bab Banī Shaibah, "the Gate of the Banu Shaibah,' the family of Shaibah ihn 'Uşman to whom Muhammad gave the key of the Ka'bah. Burkhardt says that there are now two gateways called by this name Burton says, "The Babu's-Salām resembles in its isolation a triumphal arch, and is built of cut stone" (Burtons Pilgrimags, vol. ii p 174 See Muir's Life of Mahomet, pp 28, 29)

BABU'N-NISA, (اباب الباد) "The Women's Gate' In later years as Muhammad added to the number of his wives, he provided for each a room or house on the same side of the mosque at al-Madinah. From these had a private entrance into the mosque, used only by himself, and the eastern gate still bears in its name, Babu 'n-Nisa', the memory of the arrangement (Mur's Life of Makomet, in p 20)

BACKBITING Anything secretly whispered of an absent person which is called to injure him, and which is true, is called Ghibah, a false accusation being expressed by Buhtan Abu Hurairah says, "The question was put to the Prophet, Do you know what hackbiting is and he replied, It is saying anything bad of a Muslim' It was then said, But what is it if it is true."

And he said, 'I' it is true it is Ghibah, and if it is a false accusation, it is Buhtan (reslander)'" (Mishkat, xxii c x)

The following are sayings of Muhammad on the subject.—"The best of God's servants are those who when you meet them speak of God. The worst of God's servants are those who carry tales about, to do mischief and separate friends, and seek out the defects of good people" "He who wears two faces in this world shall have two tongues of fire in the day of the Resurrection" "It is unworthy of a believer to injure people's reputations, or to curse anyone, or to abuse anyone, or to talk vainly" "The best atonement you can make for backbiting is to say, 'O God pardon me and him (whom I have injured)" Mishkat, xxii o x

BADAWI (الحوى) A name given to the Bedouin Arabs, or the Arabs of the desert Bedouin is corruption of the plural of this word, which is derived from Badw=Bādiyah, "a desert"

AL-BADI' (البديع) is one of the minety-nine special names of God. It means "He who originates". It occurs in the Qur'an, Süsah in 111, "He is the wonderful originator of the heavens and the earth, when He decreeth a matter, He doth but say 'o it, 'Be,' and it is "

BADR, The battle of Aralne, Ghazwatu 'l-Badr The first battle of Budr was fought in the month of Ramazan AR (March, AD 624), between Muhammad and the Quraish. Many of the principal men of the Quraish were slain, including Abū Jahl, whose head was brought to the Pro-phet, and when it was cast at his feet, he exclaimed, "It is more acceptable to me than the choicest camel of Aribia" After the battle was over, some of the prisoners were cruelly murdered. Husain says the losses of the Quraish at Badr were seventy killed and seventy prisoners. This victory at Badr consolids of the power of Muhammad, and it is regarded by Muslim historians as one of the most important events of history. An account of this celebrated battle will be found in the article on Muhammad

The second battle of Badr was a bloodless victory, and took place in the mouth Zu l-Qu'dah, a m 4 (April a D 626)

BAHTRA (1,5) A Nestorian monk whom Muhammad met wher he was journeying back from Syria to Makksh, and who is said to have perceived by various signs that he was a prophet His Christian name is supposed to have been Sergius (or Georgius)

Sprenger thinks that Behira remained with Muhammad, and it has been suggested that there is an allusion to this monk in the Qur'an, Sürah xvi 105 "We know that they say, 'It is only a man who teacheth him." Husain the commentator says on this passage that the Prophet was in the habit of going every evening to a Christian to hear the Taurat and Injil Taysir-i-Husanni, Sale, p 228, Muir's Laye of Mahomet, p 72)

BAHIRAH ((3,247)) (1) A she-camel, she-goat or ewe, which had given birth to a tenth young one. (2) A she-camel, the mother of which had brought forth ten females consecutively before her

In these and similar cases, the pagan Arabs observed certain religious ceremonies, such as shiting the animal's ear, &c, all of which are forbidden in the Qur'an "God bath not ordained any Bahirah" (Surah v 102;

BAI' (54), pl Eyer buyû') A sale, commercial dealing, barter Bar', or saie," in the language of the law, signifies an exchange of preperty for property with the mutual consent of parties For the rules concerning sales and barter, see Hamilton's Hidayak, vol in 360 Baillie's Mutammadan Law of Sale The Fatawa' Hungari

Sale, in its ordinary acceptation, is a transfer of property in consideration of a price in money. The word his a more comprehensive meaning in the Muhammadan law, and is applied to every exchange of property for property with mutual consent. It, therefore, includes barrer as well as sale and also loan, when the articles hint are intended to be consumed, and replaced to the lender by a similar quantity of the same kind. This transaction, which is truly sill exchange of property for property, is termed qurz in the Muhammadan law.

Between burter and sale there is no essen tial distinction in most systems of law, and the joint subject may in general be considerably simplified by being treated of solely as a sale. A course has been adopted in the Muhammadan law, which obliges the reader to fix his attention on both sides of the con tract This may at first appear to him to be an unnecessary complication of the subject. but when he becomes acquainted with the definition of price, and the rules for the prohibition of excess in the exchange of a large class of commodities, which apply to every form of the contract, he will probably be of opinion that to treat of the subject in any other way would be attended with at least equal difficulties

The first point which seems to require his attention is the meaning of the word "property" as it occurs in the definition of sale. The original term "mat" which has been thus translated, is defined by Muhammadan lawyers to be that which can be taken possession of and secured. This definition seems to imply that it is tangible or corporeal, and things or substances are accordingly the proper subjects of sale. Mere rights are not mal, and cannot therefore he lawfully sold apart from the corporeal things with which they may happen to be connected. Of such rights one of the most important is the right of a craditor to exact payment of a debt, which is not a proper subject of sale. In other words, debts cannot, by the Muhammadan law, any more than by the common laws of England and Scotland, be lawfully sold.

Things are commonly divided into moveable and immoveable, the latter compreheading land and things permanently attached to it. But the distinction is not of much impertance in the Muhammadan law, as the transfer of land is in nowise distinguished from that of other kinds of property

A more important division of things is that into might and kammi. The former are things which, when they happen to purish, are to be raplaced by an equal quantity of something similar to thom, and the latter are things which, in the same circumstances, are to be replaced by tueir value. These two classes have been aptly styled ' similars" and "dis similars' by Mr Hamilton, in his translation of the Hidnyuh inviters are things which are usually sold or exchanged by weight or by measurement of capacity, that is, by dry or liquid measure and dissumilars are tlings which are not sold or exchanged in ether of those wave. Articles which are nearly alike and are commonly sold or exchanged by number or tale, are classed with the first division of toings and may be termed ' simi lars of tale", while articles which differ materially from each other, yet are still usually sold or exchanged by number, belong to the second division and may be called 'dissimilars of tale" Dirhams and dinars, the only coined morey known to the old Arabs, are included among similars of weight milars of weight and capacity are distinguished in the Muhammadan law from all other descriptions of property in a very remarkable way When one article of weight is sold or exchanged for another article of weight, or one of measure 19 sold or ex changed for another of measure the delivery of both must be immed ate from hand to hand, and any delay of delivery in one of them is unlawful and prohibited Where, again, the articles exchanged are also of the same kind, as when wheat is sold for wheat, or silver for silver there must not only be reciprocal and immediate delivery of both before the separation of the partics, but also absolute equality if weight or measure, according as the articles are weighable or measurable, and aux oxposs neither side is also unlawful and prohibited These two prohibitions constitute in brief the foctime of reba. or ' usury which is a marked characteristic of the Minhaumadan law of sale The word reba properly signifies ' excess," and there are no terms in the Muhammadan law which corresponds to the words "interest and "usury," in the sense attached to thom in the English language but it was expressly prohibited by Muhammad to his followers to derive any advantage from leans and that particular kind of advantago which is called by us interest, and consists in the receiving back from the borrower a larger quantity than was actually lent to him, was effectually prevented by the two rules above-mentioned. These, like some other principles of Muhammadan law, are applied with a rigour and minuteness that may to us seem incommen surate with their importance, but are easily accounted for when we know that they are believed to be of divine origin.

Similars of weight and capacity have a common feature of resemblance, which distinguishes them in their own nature from other commodities, and marks with further peculiarity their treatment in the Muham They are aggregates of minute madan law parts, which are either exactly alike, or so nearly resemble each other, that the difference between them may be safely disregarded For this reason they are usually dealt with in bulk, regard being had only to the whole of a stipulated quantity, and not to the individual parts of which it is composed When sold in this manner they are easd to be indeterminate They may, bowever, be rendered specific in several ways Actual delivery, or production with distinct reference at the time of contract, seems to be sufficient for that purpose in all cases But comething short of this would suffice for all similars but money Thus, flour, or my kind of gram, may be rendered specific by being enclosed in a sack, or oil or any liquid, by being put mto casks on pars, and though the vessels are not actually produced at the time of contract, their coments may be sufficiently par ticularised by description of the vessels and their locality Money is not susceptible of being thus particularised, and dirhams and dinars are frequently referred to in the following pages as things which camnot be ren dered specific by description, or specification as it is more literally termed. Hence, money is said to be always indeterminate Other similars including similars of tale, are sometimes spoorfic and sometimes indeterminate Dissimilars including those of tale, are always specific When similars are edld indeterminately, the purchaser has no right to any specific portion of them until it to separated from a general mass, and marked or identified as the subject of the contract krom the moment of offer till actual delivery, he has nothing to rely upon but the seller's obligation, which may, therefore, be considered the direct subject of the contract Similars taken indeterminately are accordingly termed days, or "obligations," in the Muliammadan law When taken specifically, they are classed with dissimilars, under the general name of 'ayn The literal meaning of this term is "aubstance or thing", but when opposed to dayn it means something determinate or spe-The subject of traffic may thus be crfic divided into two classes, specific and indeterminate, or if we substitute for the latter the word "obligation," and omit the word "spe-cilic" as unnecessary when not opposed to " indeterminate," these classes may, according to the view of Muhammadan lawyers, be described as things and obligations

There is some degree of presumption in using a word in any other than its ordinary accepta tion, and it is not without hesitation that (Mr Baillie says) I have ventured to employ the word "obligation" to signify indeterminate things My reasons for doing so are these first at expresses the exact meaning of the Arabic word dayn, and yet distinguishes this use of it from another sense, in which it is also employed in the Muhammadan law, second, it preserves consistency in the law. Thus it it preserves consistency in the law will be found hereafter that the effect of sale as said to be to induce a right in the buyer to the thing sold, and in the seller to the price, and that this effect follows the contract immediately before reciprocal possession by the contracting parties Now, it is obvious that this is impossible with regard to things that are indeterminate, if the things themselves are considered the subject of the contract, and cases are mentioned where it is expressly stated that there is no transfer of property to the purchaser, when similars of weight of capacity are sold without being distinctly specified until actual possession take place. The difficulty dispossession take place appears if we consider not the thing itself but the obligation to render it to be the sub ject of contract, for a night to the obligation passes immediately to the purchaser and the seller may be compelled to perform it. If we now revert to the division of things into similars and dissimilars, money--which, it has been remarked, is always indeterminate-is therefore an obligation, dissimilars, which are always specific, are never obligations and other similars, except money, being sometimes specific and sometimes indeterminate are at one time obligations, and at another time things or substances

Before proceeding further it is necessary to advert more particularly to the other sense in which the word days is frequently employed in the Muhammadan law. It means etrictly in the Muhammadan law "ohligation" is already observed but the obligation may be either that of the contracting party lumiself, or of mother former sense deun 14 not enly a proper sub ject of traffic but forms the sole subject of one important kind of sale, hereafter to be noticed. But when dayn is used to signify the obligation of another than the contracting party it is not a proper subject of traffic, and as already observed, cannot be lawfully sold. In the following page days has been always translated by the word "debt' when it signifies the obligation of a third party and generally by the word "obligation" when it sig miles the envagement of the contracting party himself though when the things represented by the obligation are more prominently brought forward it has sometimes been found necessary to substitute the expression, "indeterinfinate things,'

Though barter and sale for a price are confounded under one general name in the Muhammadan law, it is sometimes necessary to consider one of the things exchanged as more strictly the subject of sale or thing sold and the other as the price in this view the former is termed math and the latter Samun Samun or price is defined to be down for simmah, or, literally, an "obligation in responsibility" From which, unless the expression is a mere pleonam, it would appear that the word days is sometimes used abstractly, and in a sense distinct from tha idea of liability. That idea however, is necessary to constitute price, for though cloth, when properly described, may, by reason of its divisibility and the similarity of its parts, be aometimes assumed to perform the function of price in a contract of sale, it is only when it is not immediatery delivered, but is to remain for some time on the responsibility of the contracting party, that it can be adopted for that purpose It is a general principle of the Muham-madan law of sale, founded on a declaration of the Prophet, that credit cannot be opposed to credit, that is that both the things ex changed cannot be allowed to remain on the responsibility of the parties. Hence, it is only with regard to one of them that any Hence, it is stipulation for delay in its delivery is lawful Price, from its definition above given admits of being left on responsibility, and secondingly a stipulation for delay in the payment of the price is quite lawful and valid. It follows that a stipulation for delay in the delivery of the things sold cannot be lawful And this is the case with the exception of one pitticular kind of sale hereafter to be noticed in which the thing sold is always indeterminate, and the price is paid in adjance. It may, therefore he said of all specific things when the subject of sale, that stipulation for delay in their delivery is illegil and would invalidate a sale object of this rule may have teen to prevent any change of the thing wild before deliver, and the disputes which in ght in consequence arise nelween the parties. But if they were allowed to select whichever they pleased of the articles exchanged to stand for the price and the other for the thing sold without any regard to their qualities the object of the last ment oned rule whatever it may have been, night be defeated. This seems to have led to another airan, ement of things into different classes according to their capacitias for supporting the functions of price er of the thing sold in a contract of sale The first cla-s comprehends derkams and dinars which are always price. The second clara comprises the whole division of dissimilars (with the single exception of cloth), which are always the thing sold or subject of sale, in a contract. The third class comprises, first, all similars of capacity second all similars of weight, except dirhams and dinars, and, third, all similars of tale The whole of this class is capable of supporting both functions. and is sometimes the thing sold, and sometimes the price The fourth class comprises cloth and the copper con called fulus. Sale implies a recipiecal vesting of the price in the seller and of the thing sold in the purchaser. This as already remarked is called its legal effect, and sale may be divided into different stayes or degrees of complete ness according as this affect is immediate, suspended, invalid, or obligatory Thus, sale must first of all be duly constituted or contracted After that, there may still be some bar to its operation, which occasions a suspension of its effect. This generally arises from a defect of power in the sellor who may not be fully competent to act for himself, or may have insufficient authority, or no authority whatever, over the subject of sale. In this class of sales the effect is dependent on the assent or ratification of some other person than the party actually contracting Rut whether the effect of a sale be immediate or suspended, there may be some taint of ille gality in the mode of constituting it, or in its subject, or there may be other circumstances connected with it, which render it invalid The causes of illegality are many and VALTIOUS But even though a sale should be unimpeachable on the previous grounds, that is, though it should be duly constituted operative or immediate in its effect, and free from any ground of illegality, still it may not be absolutely binding on the parties This brings us to another remarkable peruharity of the Muhammadan law, viz the doctrine of option, or right of cancellation The Prophot himself recommended one of his followers to reserve a locus penitentia, or option, for three days in all his pure asca This has led to the option by stipulation which may be reserved by either of the parties But besides this, the purchaser has an option without air stipulation regard to things which he has purchised without seeing, and also on account of defects in the thing sold The greatest of all detects is a want of title or light in the seller two last options to the purchase constitute a complete warranty of title and against all defects on the pirt of the seller, in which respect the Muhammadan more nearly resembles the Scotch than the English law of sale

There are many different kinds of vale Twenty or more have been enumerated in the Nihāyah, of which eight are mentioned and explained Four of these, which have reforence to the thing sold may require some notice in this place The first called Muqayazah, is described as a sale of things for things, and corresponds nearly with barter, but the word ' thing ' (ayn) is here opposed to obligations, and muquyazah is therefore properly an exchange of special for special things So that if the goods exchanged were on both sides or on either side indeterminate, the transaction would not, I think, be The second muyayazah, though still barter sale is called sarf, and is defined to be an exchange of obligations for obligations The usual objects of this contract are dirhams and disars, which being obligations, the defini-tion is generally correct. But an exchange of money for bullion, or bullion for bullion, is also a sarf, and every sale of an obligation for an obligation is not a sarf, so that the definition is redundant as well as defective. It is essential to the legality of this kind of sale, that both the things exchanged should be delivered and taken possession of before the separation of the parties, and that when they are of the same kind, as silver for silver, or gold for gold, they should also be exactly equal by weight. These rules are necessary for the avoidance of reba, or "usury," as already ex-plained, and the whole of sarf, which is treated of at a length quite disproportionate to its importance may be considered as a continued illustration of the doctrine of reba The third kind of sale is salam it has been already observed that there can be no lawful stipulation for a postponement of the delivery of the thing sold, except under one particular form of sale The form alluded to ie salam This word means, literally, "an advance" and in a salam sale the price is immediately advanced for the goods to be delivered at a future fixed time. It is only things of the class of similars that can be sold in this way, and as they must necessarily be indeterminate, the proper subject of sale is an obligation, while, on the other hand, as the price must be actually paid or delivered at the time of the contract, before the separation of the parties, and must, therefore, even in the case of its being money, be produced, and in consequence be particularised or epecific. a salam sale is strictly and properly the eale of an obligation for a thing, as defined above Until actual payment or delivery of the price, however, it retains its character of an obligation, and for this reason the price and the goods are both termed "debts," and are adduced in the same chapter as examples of the pr neiple that the sale of a debt, that is, or the money or goods which a person is under engagement to pay or deliver, before possession, is invalid. The last of the cales referred to as the ordinary exchange of goods for money, which being an obligation, the transaction is defined to be the sale of thinge for obligations

There is another transaction which comes within the definition of sale, and has been already noticed, but may be further adverted to in this place It is that which is called Qarz in the Arabic, and "loan" in the English language The borrower acquires an abso lute right of property in the things lent, and comes under an engagement to return an equal quantity of things of the same kind. The transaction is therefore necessarily limited to similars, whether of weight, capacity, or tale, and the things lent and repaid being of the same kind, the two rules already mentioned for the prevention of reba, or "usury," must be strictly observed Hence it follows that any stipulation on the part of the borrower for delay or forbearance by the lender, or any etipulation by the lender for interest to be paid by the borrower are alike nnlawful

Notwithstanding the etringency of the rules for preventing usury, or the taking any interest or the loan of money, methods were found for evading them and still keeping within the letter of the law. It had always been considered lawful to take a pledge to secure the repsyment of a debt. Pledges were ordinarily of movable property, when given as security for a debt, and the pledge happened to perieh in the hands of the pawnee, the debt was held to be released to the extent of the value of the pledge. Land, though soarcely liable to this meident, was sometimes made the subject of pledge, and devices were adopted for enabling the lender to derive some advantage from its possession while in in the state of pledge But the moderate advantage to be derived in this way does not seem to have contented the money-lenders, who in all ages and countries have been of a grasping disposition, and the expedient of a sale with a condition for redemption was adopted, which very closely resembles an Enghan mortgage In the latter, the condition is usually expressed in one of two ways, vis either that the sale shall become void, or that the lender shall resell to the seller, on payment of principal and interest at an assigned term The first of these forms would be inconsistent with the nature of sale under the Muhammadan law but a sale with a covenant by the lender to reconvey to the soller on repayment of the loan seems to have been in use probably long before the form was adopted in Europe. It is probable that a term was fixed within which the repayment should be made If repayment were made at the assigned term, the lender was obliged to reconvey, but if not, the property would remain his own, and the differance between its value and the price of sum lent might have been made an ample compen sation for the loss of interest. This form of sale, which was called But it I wafa sooms to have been strictly legal according to the most approved authorities, though held to be what the law calls abominable, as a device for obtaining what it prohibits

In constituting sale there is no material difference between the Muhummadan and other systems of law The offer and accept ance, which are expressed or implied in all cases, must be so connected as to obvisto any doubt of the one being intended to apply to the other For this purpose the Muhammadan law requires that both shall be interchanged at the same meeting of the parties, and that no other business shall be suffered to intorvene between an offer and its accept ance A very slight interruption is sufficient to break the continuity of a negotiation, and to terminate the meeting in a technical souss, though the parties should still remain in per sonal communication. An acceptance after the interruption of an offer made before it would be menfficient to constitute a sale This has led to distinctions of the meeting which may appear unnecessarily minute to a reader unacquainted with the manners of Eastern countries, where the people are often very dilatory in their bargains, interspersing them with conversation on indifferent topics It is only when a meeting has reference to the ict of contracting that " meaning is thus hable to be restricted, for when the word occurs in other parts of the law, as, for metance, when it is said of a sary contract that the things exchanged must be taken possession of at the meeting, the whole period that the parties may remain together is to be understood. As personal communication may he inconvenient in some cases, and impossible in others, the integrity of the meeting is held to be sufficiently preserved when a party who receives an offer by message or letter declares his acceptance of it on receiving the communication and apprehending its contents.

When a sale is lawfully contracted, the property in the things exchanged passes immediately from and to the parties respec-tively In a logal sale, delivery and possession are not necessary for this purposs Until possession is taken, however the purchaser is not hable for acordental loss, and the seller has a lien for the price on the thing sold Delivery by one party is in general tantamount to possession taken by the other It is therefore, semetimes of great importance to ascertain when there is a sufficient delivery, and many cases, real or imaginary, on the subject, are inserted in the Fatawa 'Alamgira It sometimes happens that a person purchases a thing of which he is already in possession, and it then becomes important to dotermine in what cases his previous possession is convertible into a possession under the purchase Unless so converted it would be held that there is no delivery under the sale, and the seller would of course sciain his lien and remain hable for accidental loss

Though possession is not necessary to complete the transfer of property under a legal sale the case is different where the contract is illegal, for here property does not pass till possession is taken. The sale, however, though so fit effectual is still invalid and hable to be set aside by a judge, at the matance of either of the parties without any reference to the fact of the person complain ing being able to come before him with what in legal phraseology is termed clean hands A Muhammadan judge is obliged by his law to interfere for the sake of the law itself, or, as it is more solemnly termed for the right of God which it is the duty of the judge to vindicate, though by so doing he may afford assistance to a party who personally may have no just claim to his interference (The Muhammadan Law of Sale, according to the Haneefee Code, from the Fatawa Alumgers, by Veil B E Baillie Smith, Elder & Co, London )

BAIL Arabic BW kafalah Bail is of two descriptions Kafalah bi 'n nafs, or "security for the person", Kafalah bi-'l mal or "security for property" In the English courts in India, bail for the person is termed Hazir zamani and bail for property Lamanah, or "security' Bail for the person is lawful except in 'asea of punishment 'Hudūd') and retaliation (Uras) 'Hidāyah, vol is p 576)

AL-BĀ'IS (الباعث) One of the nirety-nine special names of God lt means

"He who awakes", "The Awakener" (in the Day of Resurrection)

"The House of Praise" An expression which occurs in the Traditions (Mishkat v 7) When the soul of a child is taken, God says, "Build a house for my servant in Paradise and call it a house of praise"

BAITU 'L-HARĀM' (ايت الحرام) "The Sacred House" A name given to the Meccan mosque [MASJIDU 'L-HARAM.]

BAITU 'L-HIKMAH (
Let. "The House of Wisdom" A term used by Sufis for the heart of the sincere seekers after God ('Abdu'r Razzaq's Dictionary of Sufi Terms)

BAITU 'L-LĀH (יובים לועה) "The House of God" A name given to the Meccan mosque [MASJIDU L HAKAM]

BAITU 'L-MÂL () Lt "The House of Proporty" The public trea sury of a Muslim state, which the ruler is not allowed to use for his pursonal expenses but only for the public good

The sources of income are (1) Zakāt, or the legal tax raised upon land personal property and merchandise, which after deducting the expense of collecting, should be expended in the support of the poor and destitute (2) The fifth of all spoils and booty takin in wai (3) The produce of mines and of treasure-trove (4) Property for which there is no owner (5) The Jizyah, or tax levied on unbelievers (Hidayah, Arabio ed, vol 1 p 452)

AL-BAITU 'L-MA'MUR (المجور)

Lit "The Inhabited House 'A house in the seventh heaven, visited by Muhammad during the Miraj of night journey. It is said to be immediately over the sacred temple at Makkah [MPRAJ]

BAITU 'L-MIDRAS (איבי ולאכנות)
"The House of Instruction" A term (used in a tradition given by Abū Hurairah) for a Jewish school (Mishkāt, xvii c xi) In Heb

AL-BAITU 'L-MUQADDAS (المقدس) "The Holy House" A name given to the tomple at Jerusalem [AL MASJIDU L-AGBA.]

BAITU 'L-QUDS (

"The House of Holness" A term used by the buffs for the heart of the true seeker after God when it is absorbed in meditation
('Abdu 'r-Rāzzay's Dictionary of Suf's Ierms')

BAI'U 'L. WAFA ( word wafā means the performance of a promise, and the Bar'u l- Wafā is a sale with a promise to be performed it is, in fact, a pledge in the hands of the panner, who is not its propritor nor is he free to make use of it without the permission of the owner

There are different opiniors about the legality of this form of sale, but it is now the common form of mortgage in use in India, where it is usually styled Bar' bi-'l-wafā (See Baillie's Muhammadan Law of Sale, p. 303)

al-BAIYINAH (الميلة) Let "The Fundence" A title given to the xcvinth Surah of the Qur'an, in which the word occurs

BA'L (Ja), Heb Jan, e "Lord"
The chief deity worshipped by the SyroPhomoian nations It is known to the Muhampiadans as an idel worshipped in the days of the Prophet Elisha (See Ghiyāgu'l Lughah)

BALAAM There is said to be an allusion to Balaam in the Qur'an, Sürah vii 174, "Resite to them the story of him to whom we gave our signs, and he departed therefrom and Satan followed him, and he was of those who were beguiled"

The commentary of the Jalain says that he was a learned man amongst the Israelites, who was requested by the Cananites to curse Moses at the time when he was about to attack the Jabharun or "giants," a tribe of the Cananites Balann at first lefused to do so but at last yielded when valuable presents were made to him (See Tafsiru "-Jalālain,

p 142)

BALAD (44) Let Any country, district, or town, regarded as an habitation Al Batad the sacred territory of Makkah A title given to the actu Surah, in which the word occurs

BALIGH (اللخ) "Of years of legal maturity, adult" [PIMERIY]

BANISHMENT Arabic Taghrib I patriation for form ation is enjoined by Muhammadan law, according to the Imam ash-Shafi'i, although it is not allowed by the other doctors of the law, and it is also a punishment inflicted upon highway robbers

BANKRUPT There is no provision in the Muhammadan law for declaring a person bankrupt, and so placing him beyond the reach of his creditors, but the Qāṣī can declare a debtor insolvent, and free him from the obligation of zakāt and almagiving

BANÜ ISRĀ'IL (عبر امرزائيل) "The Children of Israel" A title of the xviith Sürah or chapter of the Qur'an, called also Süratu 'l-Mi'rā, HANUN (C)-1) The plural of the (Heb C) "Sons, posterity, title" The word is more familiar to English ronders in its inflected form Bani The tribes where names occur frequently in the early history of Islam, and are mentioned in the Fischtonia, are the Banu-Quraish, Banu n Nujja Banu - Quraisah, Banu Kinānah Banu n-Nazr, Banu-Khuzārah Banu Bakr'

Banu-'Amır, Banu- Asad, Banu- Fazārah, Banu-Lihyān, Banu-Tamīm, Banu Umaiyah, Banu-Zahrah, and Banu-Isrā'il

BAPTISM The only allusion to baptism in the Qur'an is found in Sürah ii 182 "(We have) the baptism of God, and who is better to baptise than God'" The word here translated baptism is subghah, lit "dye," which, the commentators al Jalulain and al-Baizāwi say, may, by comparison refer to Christian baptism, 'for," say al-Baizāwi, "the Naṣāra (Christians) were in the habit of dipping their offspring in a yellow water which they called al-Ma'mudiyah and said it purified them and confirmed them as Christians" (See Tafaru 'l-Jalālain and Tafsiru' Baizāwi, in loco)

AL-BĀQI (اللحي) One of the minety-nine special names of God It means "He who remains," "The Everlasting One."

AL-BAQARAH (a.a.) "The Cow"
The title of the second Sunah of the Quran, occasioned by the story of the red heifer mentioned in verse 63, "When Moses said to his people, God commandeth you to sacrifice a cow"

BAQI'U 'L-GHARQAD (القيع المرتد) or for shortness al-Baqi (التقيع). The burying-ground at al-Madinah, which Muham mad used to frequent at night to pray for for giveness for the dead (Mishkat, 1, 1, 2, 25)

BARA'AH (Saly) "Immunity, or security" A title given to the 1xth Chapter of the Quran, called also Surata 'I Iaubah, "The Chapter of Repentance' It is remarkable as being the only Surah without the introductory form, "In the name of Gcd, the Mercful, the Compassionate Various reasons are assigned for this omission Some commentators say that the prayer of mercy is not placed at the head of a chapter which speaks chiefly of God's wrath

BĀRAH-I-WAFĀT (كارة وفات)

Bārah (Urdu) "twelve," and Wafat Tho twelfth day of the month Rabiu 'l-Awwal, observed in commemoration of Muhammad's death

It seems to be a day instituted by the Muhammadans of India, and is not observed universally amongst the Muslims of all countries. On this day Fātihahs are recited for Muhammad s soul, and both in private houses and mosques portions of the Traditions and other works in praise of the Prophet's excel lences are read

The Wahhrbis do not observe this day, as it is believed to be an innovation, not having been kept by the early Muslims

AL-BARA IBN 'AZIB (مارباد الله) One of the Companions who accompanied Muhammad at the battle of the Ditch, and in most of mis subsequent engagements. He assisted in conquering the district of Rai, AH 22, and was with the Khalifah Ali at the battle of the Camel, AH 36

AL-BĀRI' (The Maker' One of the finety-nine special names of God It occurs in the Qurān, Sūrah lix 24 "He is God the Creator, the Maker, the Fashioner His are the excellent names"

BĀRIQAH (قال) Let "Refulgence, lightning" A term used by the Sufis for that enlightenment of the soul, which at first comes to the true Muslim as an earnest of greater enlightenment ('Abdu 'r Razzāq's Dictionary of Sūf'i Terms)

BARNABAS, the Gospel of The Muhammadans assert that a gospel of Barnabas existed in Arabic and it is believed by some that Muhammad obtained his account of Christianity from this spurious gospel

"Of this gospel the Moriscoes in Africa have a translation in Spanish, and there is in the library of Prince Lugene of Savoy a manuscript of some antiquity, containing an Italian translation of the same gospel, made, it is supposed, for the use of renegades. This back appears to be no original forgery of the Unhammadans, though they have no doubt interpolated and altered it since, the better to erve their purpose and in particular, instead of the Paraclete or Comforter (St John xiv 16, 26 xv 26 xvi 7) they have in this apocryphal gospel inserted the word Periclyte, that is, " the famons or illustrious," by which they pretend their prophet was foretold by name, that oring the signification of Muhammad in Arabic and this they say to justify that passage in the Quran (burah 61) where Jesus is formally asserted to have foretold his coming under his other name of Ahmad which is derived from the same root as Muhammad, and of the same import brom these or some other forgeries of the same stamp, it is that Muliammadans quote several passages of which incre are not the least footsteps in the New l'estament" (Salc)

After Mr Sale had written the extract which we have quoted, he inspected a Spanish translation of the Italian copy of this apocry phal gospel, of which he gives the following account —

"The book is a moderate quarte, in Spanish, written in a very legible hand, but a little damaged towards the latter end lt contains two hundred and twents two chapters of un equal length, and four hundred and twenty pages, and is said in the front, to be translated from the Italian by an Aragonian Moslem named Mostafa de Aranda a proface prefixed to it, wherein the discoverer of the original M5 who was a Christian monk called Fra Marino, tells us that, having accidentally met with a writing of Irenaus (among others), wherein he speaks against St Paul, alleging for his anthority the gospel of St Barnabas, he became exceedingly desirous to find this gospel and that God, of his mercy having made him very intimate with Pope Sixtus V, one day, as they were together in that Pope's library, his Holmess fell asleep, and he, to employ himself, reaching down a book to read, the first he laid his hand on proved to be the very gospel he wanted, overjoyed at the discovery, he acrupled not to hide his prize in his sleeve, and on the Pope's awaking, took leave of him, carrying with him that celestial treasure, by reading of which he became a convert to Muhammadanism.

"This Gospel of Barnabas contains a complete history of Jesus Christ, from His birth o His ascension, and most of the circumstances of the four real gospels are to be found therein, but many of them turned, and some artfully enough, to favour the Muham-From the design of the madan system whole, and the frequent interpolations of stories and passages, whorein Muhammad is spoken or and foretold by name, as the messenger of God, and the great prophet who was to perfect the dispensation of Jesus, it appears to be a most bare faced forgery One particular I observe therein induces me to believe it to have been dressed up by a rene gade Christian, slightly instructed in his new religion, and not educated as a Muhammad...n (unless the fault be imputed to the Spinish, or, perhaps, the Italian translator, and to the original compiler) I mean the giving to Muhammad the title of Messiah, and that not once or twice only, but in several places whereas, the title of Messiah, or, as the Arabs write it, al Massh, ie Christ, is appropriated to Jesus in the Quran and is constantly applied by the Muhammadans to him and never to their own Prophet The passages produced from the Italian MS by M de la Monnoye are to be s en in this panish ver sion simost word for word

The Rev Joseph White DD, in his Bamp ton I ectures of 1784, gives a translation of those chapters in this specious Gospel of Barnabas which relate to the supposed crucifixion of Judas in the place of our Lord.

and which we insert -

' Judas camo near to the people with whom Jesus was, and when He heard the noise He entered into the house where the disciples slept And God, seeing the fear and danger of His servant, ordered Gabriel and Michael and Rafail and Azrail to carry Him out of the world "And they came in all haste, and bare Him out of the window which looks towards the south. And they placed Him in the third heavon, where He will remain blessing God, in the company of angels, till near the end of the world (Chapter 216)

"Ard Judas the traiter entered before the rest into the place from which Jesus had just n up And the disciples were And the Wonderful God acted heen taken up sleeping wonderfully, changing Judas into the same figure and speech with Jesus

"We believing that it was He, said to him, Master, whom seekost thou? And he said to them, smiling, Ye have forgotten yourselves, since ye do not know Judas Iscariot

"At this time the soldiery entered and seeing Judas so like in every respect to Jesus, laid hands upon him," &c (Chapter 217) "In which (Chap 218) is related the passion of Judas the traitor

"The soldiers afterwards took Judas and bound him, notwithstanding he said with truth to them that he was not Jesus soldiers mocked him saving, Sir, do not be afraid, for we are come to make thee king of Israel, and we have bound thee, because we know thou hast refused the kingdom And Judge said, Ye have lost your senses

"I came to show you Jesus, that ye might take Him, and ye have bound me, who am your guide The soldiers lost their patience, hearing this, and they began to go with him, striking and buffeting him, till they reached

Jerusalem," &c &c (Chapter 218)

'They carried him to Mount Calvary, where they executed criminals, and crucified him, stripping him asked for the greater ignominy Then he did nothing but cry out, O my God, why hast thou forsaken me, that I should die unjustly, when the real male-factor hath escaped? I say in truth that he was so like in person, figure and gesture to Jeans, that as many as knew Him, believed tirmly that it was He except Peter for which reason man left his doctrine, believing that it had been false as He had said that He should not die till the end of the world

But those who stood firm were oppressed with gitef, seeing h m d e whom they understood to be Jesus not recollecting what He had told them. And in company with His mother, they were present at his death, weep ing continually And by means of Joseph Abanmatheas (etc), they obtained from the president the body of Judas And they took him down from the cross, burying him with much lamentation in the new sepulchre of Joseph, having wrapped him up in linen and precious outments (Chapter 219)

They all retuined, each man to his house and he who writeth, with James and John went with the mother of Jesus to And the disciples, who did not Nazareth fear God with truth, went by night and stole the body of Judas, and hid it, spreading a report that He (: e Jesus) had risen again, from whence sprung great confusion among the people

· And the High Priest commanded, under pain of anathama, that no one should talk of him and on this account raised a great persecution bunshing some, tormenting others, and even stoning some to death because it was not in the power of anyone to be silent on this subject. And then came news to Nazareth, that Jesus had risen again. And he that writeth desired the mother of Tesus And Mary to leave off her lamentation said, Let us go to Jerusalem, to see if it is truth. If I see Him I shall die content (Chapter 220)

"The Virgin returned to Jerusalem with him that writeth, and James and John, the same day that the decree of the High Priest came out

And as she feared God though she knew the command was unjust, she entroated those who talked with her not to speak of her Son Who can say, how we were then affected? God, who knows the heart of man, knows that between the grief for the death of Judas, whom we understood to be Jesus, and the pleasure of seeing him risen again, we almost And the angels who were the expired. guardians of Mary went up to heaven the third day, and told Jeens what was passing And He, nieved with compassion for His mother, entrealed of God that He might be seen by His disciples And the Compassionate God ordered His four favourite angels to piece Him within His own house, and to guard Him three days, that they and they only might see Him, v ho believed in His doc-Jesus descended, surrounded with light, into the house of His mother, where were the two sisters Murtha and Mary, and Lazarus, and he that writeth, and John and James and Peter And whon they saw Him, they fell with their faces on the earth as if And Jesus bited them up saying, dead Fear not for lam your Master Lament not honceforth, for I am alive They wore astomished at seeing Jesus, because they thought Him dead And Mary weeping said, Tell me my Son, why, it God give Thee power to raise up the dead, did He consent that Thou shouldest die, with so much reproach and shame to Thy relations and friends, and so much hurt to Thy doctrine, leaving us all in desolation? Josus replied, embracing His mother, Believe me for I tell thee the truth I have not been dead, for God has res ived Me for the end of the world. In saving this Ho desired the angels to in infest themselves, and to tell how He had passed through everything At the instant they appeared like four suns, and all present presented themselves on the ground, overcome by the presence of the angels And Jesus gave to all of them something to cover themselves with, that they might be able to hear the angels speak

And lesus said to His mother, These are the Manaters of God Gabriel knows His sceners, Mi bael fights with His enemies Asrifici will cite all to judgment and Aziael receives the souls. And the holv angels told how they had, by the command of God, taken up Jesus, and transformed Judas that he might suffer the punishment which he wished to bring on Jesus. And he that writeth said, Is it lawful for me to ask of Thee, in the same manner as when thou wast in the world? And Jesus answer i peak,

Barnabas, what thout wishest

"And he said, I wish that Thou wouldest tell me how God, being so compassionate, could affliet us so much, in giving us to understand that Thou wast he that suffered, for we have been very near dying? And Thou being a prophet, why did He suffer Thee to fall under disgrace, by (apparently) placing Thee on a cross, and between two robbers? Jesus answered, Believe Me, Bar nabas, let the fault be ever as amill fred chastiseth it with much punishment. And as my mother and faithful dis spics loved me with a little earthly love, God chastised that love by this grief, that lie might not chastise And though I was it in the other world innocent, yet as they called Me God and Has Son, that the devils might not mock Me on the Day of Judgment, He has chosen that I should be mocked in this world

And this mocking shall last till the hely Messenger of God (se Muhammad) shall come, who shall underere all behavers And then He said Just art Thou, O God! and to Thee only belongeth the honour and glory, with worship, for ever (( hapter 221)

· And then He said, Barnabas, that thou by all means write inv grapel, relating every thing which has happened in the world concerning Me and let it be done exactly, in order that the faithful may be undeceived. knowing the truth. He that writeth said Master I will do it as Thou commandest me tood willing but I did not see all that hap pened with Judas Josus answered, Here stand Peter and John who saw it and wall relate it to thee

"And He told James and John to call the seven apostles who were absent and vico demas and lo oph Ai runathers (see), and some of the seventy to dis tiples. When they were come they did eat with Him and on the third day He commined dithem Il to go to the mount of Olives with His mother because He was to return to beaven. All the apostles and dis iples went except twenty it and the sevents two, who had fiel to Damis us with fear And exactly at mid las while they rese all in praces Icas some with many angels (blessing field), and some much brightness that they all be a their saces to the ground And Jest . r. sed them up, saying, bear not your Master, who comes to take leave of you must to recommend you to God our I old, be the mercies received from His bornt and be He with you!

' And upon this He disappeared with the angels all of us remaining amazed at the great brightness in which he left us'

(Chapter 222)

AL-BARR (الر) Une of the ninetynine special names of God In its ordinary sense it mos is "pious," or "good" applied to God, it means "The Beneficent Ono '

BARTER [BAI']

BARZAKH (tyr) (1) A thing that intervenes between any two things, a bar, an obstruction or a thing that makes a separation between two things. In which sense it is used in the Quran in two places Sursh xxv 55 He hath put an interspace between them " o the two seas), and a barrier which it is foreidach them to pass" Surah Iv 20. Yet between them (the two seas) is a barrie, "

(2) The interval between the present life and that which is to come See Qur'an, Surah xxiii '' And say, My Lord, I seek refuge with lines from the incitings of the devils, and I seek refuge with Thee from their presence Until when death comes to any one of them, he says, My Lord! send me back (to hie), if haply I may do right in that which I have left Not so! A mere word that he speaks I But behind them there is barzakh (a bar), until the day when they shall be raised. And when the trumpet shall be blown, there shall be no relation between them on that day, nor shall they beg of each other then " Upon this verse the commentator Baisāwī says " Barzakh is an intervening state (be'il, 'a barrier') between death and the Day of Judgment, and whoever dies enters it ' The commentator Husain remarks "Barzakh is a partition (mani') between the living and the Day of Judgment namely, the grave in which they will remain until the resurrection " The commentators al-Jalulain speak of it as a tonary of Technical Terms of the Sufis (Sprenger's Edition), gives a similar dolini-

The word is employed by Muhamma in writers in at least two senses, some using it for the place of the dead, the grave, and others for the state of departed souls between death and judgment

The condition of believers in the grave is held to be one of undisturbed rest, but that of unbelievers one of torment for Muhammad is related to have said. There are appointed for the grave of the unbeliever ametis-nine serpents to bite him until the Day of Resursection" (Mishlat, 1 c 5, p 12). The word seems generally to be used in the sense of Hades for every person who are it said to enter al Barzakh

BA'S (see) Let "Raising" (1) The Day of Resurrection. (2) The office of a messenger or prophet

BASE MONEY The sale of one pute dirham and two base ones in exchange for two pure dirhams and one base one is lawful By two base ones (ghalataan' are to be understood such as pass amongst merchants but are rejected at the public treasury (Hidōynh, vol 11 560) al-BASIR (الحبر)) One of the ninety nine special names of God It frequently occurs in the Quran and means 'The All-secing One"

BASIRAH (5,24) Let "Penetration" The sight of the heart as distinguished from the sight of the eve (Basarah or Basar) A term used by theologians to express that enlightenment of the heart "whereby the spiritual man can understand spiritual things with as much certainty as the instural man can see objects with the sight of the eve' The word occurs twice in the Qur'an, Sürah an 108, "This is my way, I cry unto God, resting on clear evidence," Sürah laxv 14, "A man shall be evidence against himself"

AL-BASIT (الباسط) One of the ninety-nine special names of God It means

"He who spreads, or stretches out," and occurs in the Quran, Surah vin 15 As applied to God, it means, "He who dispenses riches," &c

BASTARD (by a) waladu'z-zmā)
An illegitimate child has, according to Muhazimadan law, no legal father, and consequently the law does not allow the father to interfere with his illegitimate child, even for the purposes of education. He cannot inherit the property of his father, but he is acknow ledged as the rightful heir of his mother (Baillie's Digest, p. 492). The evidence of a bastard is valid, because he is innecent with respect to the immorality of his parents, but the lmām Mūlik maintains that his testimony is not to be accepted with respect to a charge of wholedom. (Hulūgah, vol. 11 692)

BATHING The Arabic term for ordinary bathing is (duck) ghasl, and that for the religious purification of the whole hody ghuel in all large mosques, and in most respectable dwellings in Muhammadan countries there are buthing-rooms erected, both for the ordinary purposes of bathing and for the religious purification. An account of the legal purification will be found in the article Ghusi Although purifications and bathing form so essential a part of the Muslim religion cleanliness does not distinguish Muhammadans, who are generally in this respect a striking contrast to their Hindu rellow subjects in India According to the saving of Muhammad, decency should be observed in bothing and the clothes from the ward downwards should not be taken off at Mishkat, 11 c 17) such times

BATII. (المطلل) That which is false in doctrine

AL-BĀŢIN (اللحلي) (1) One of the ninety-nine special names of God It means "that which is hidden or conceated," "The Hidden One' or "Ho that knows hidden things" (2) A term used in theology for that which is hidden in its meaning, in contradistinction to that which is evident

BATUL (احرا) Let "A shoot or offset of a paint-tree cut off from its mother tree ' "a virgin' (as cut off or withheld from men) The term al-Batül is applied to Fätimah the daughter of Muhammad, because she was separated from the other women of her age by her excellences Heb

BĀ'ŪS (שֹׁפְלֵּשׁ) A Syriac word, אַרְעָּדְיּהְ (te "petition, prayer"), which, in the dictionary al-Qāmūs, is said to mean the Christian Easter, and also prayers for rain or the Istisqā of the Christians (Мијиш 'I-Bihar, p 101)

BAZAQ or BAZIQ (464) A pro-

until a quantity less than two-thirds evaporates

BEARD Arabic Lihyah or | was gaqan The beard is regarded by Muslims as the badge of the dignity of manhood The Prophet is related to have said, "Do the opposits of the polythauts and let your beard grow long" (Mishkät, xx iv) And the growing of a beard is said to be Fitrah, or one of those customs which have been observed by every Prophet [FITRAH]

"The maiden, BEAUTY, Female whose loveliness inspires the most impassioned expression in Arabic poetry and prose, is colebrated for her slander figure, she is like the cane among plants, and is elegant as the twig of the oriental willow Her face is like the full moon, presenting the strongest contrast to the colour of her hair, which (to preserve the nature of the simile just employed) is of the deepest hus of night, and dsscends to the middle of her back A rosy blush overspreads the centre of each cheek, and a mole is considered an additional chaim The Arabs, indeed, are particularly extravagant in their admiration of this natural beautyspot, which according to its place is compared to a globule of ambergris upon a dish of alabaster, or upon the surface of a ruby The eyes of the Arab beauty are intensely black, large, and long, of the form of an almond, they are full of brilliancy but this ie softened by a lid slightly depressed, and by long eilken lashes, giving a tender and languid expression, which is full of enclishtment, and scarcely to be improved by the adventitious aid of the black border of the Luhl for this the lovely maiden adds rather for the sake of fashion than necessity, having what the Arabs term natural kuhl. The eye brows are thin and arched, the forohead is wide, and fair as ivory, the nose straight, the mouth small, the lips are of a brilliant rad, and the teeth "like pearls set in coral" The forms of the bosom are compared to two pomegranates the waist is slendor the hips are wide and large, the feet and hands small the fingers tapering, and their extremities dyed with the desp orange-red tint imparted by the leaves of hinna

The following is the most complete analysis of Arabian beauty, given by an unknown anthor, quoted by Al Ishaqi —

"Four things in a woman should be black the hair of the head, the eve-brows, tha, eye lashes, and the dark part of the eves, four whate the complexion of the skin, the white of the eyes, the teeth, and the legs, four red the tongue, the lips, the middle of the cheeks, and the gumz, four round the head, the neck, the fore-arms, and the aikles, four long the back, the fingers, the arms, and the legs, four wide the forshead, the eyes, the hosom, and the hips, four fine the eye-brows, the nose, the lips, and the fingers, four thick the lower part of the back, the thighs, the calves of the legs, and the knees, four small the ears, the breasts, the hands, and the feet" (Lane's Arabian Nights, vol. 1 p. 25)

BEGGING It is not lawful for any person possessing sufficient food for a day and night to beg (Durru'l-Mukhtār, p. 108), and it is related that the Prophet said "Acts of begging are scratches and wounds with which a man wounds in own face ""It is better for a man to take a rope and bring in a bundle of sticks to sell than to beg" 'A man who continues to beg will appear in the Day of Judgment without any flesh on his face" (Mishkāt, Book vi chap v)

BEINGS According to Muhammadan belief, there are three different species of created intelligent heings (1) Angels (Malānkah), who are said to be created of light (2) Genn (Jinn), who are created of firs, (3) Mankind (Insān), created of earth These intelligent beings are called Zawu'l-Uqūl, oi 'Rational beings," whilst minitelligent beings" are called Ghair Zawi'l-Uqūl Hayauāni Nātiq is also a term used for rational beings (who can speak), and Huyauāni-Ajam for all irrational creatures [Jinn]

The terms used BELIEVERS for believers are—Mu'min, pl Mu'minun and Muslim pl Muslimun The difference expressed in these two words is explained in the Traditions in a Hudis given in the Sahih of Mush , (p 27) where it is recorded by 'Umar, as having been taught by Muhammad, that a Mu'min is one who has unan, or "faith," Faith being a sincere belief in God, His angers His inspired booke, His prophets the Day of Resurrection and the predestination of good and evil and that a Muslim is one who is resigned and of edient to the will of God, and bears witness that there is no god but God, and that Muhammad is His Apostie, and is steadfast in player, and gives zakat, or legal i'ms, and fasts in the month of Ramaran and makes a pilgrimage to the Temple (But) at Makkah, if he have the means

The rewards in store for the believer are as follows (see Suratu I Baqurah Surah ii 76) ~

They who have believed and done the things that be right, they shall be the immates of Paradise -- therein to abids for ever?

Surat n Nisa, Surah iv 60 -

Those who have believed and done the things that are right, we will bring them into gardens neath which he rivers flow—'herein to abide eternally therein shall they have wives of stainless purity and we will bring them into shadowing shades."

Suratu / A'raf Surab vn 40 -

"Those who have believed and done the things which are right, (we will lay on no one a burden beyond his power)—these shall be inmates of Paradise for ever shall they abide therein,

"And will we remove whatever rancour was in their bosoms rivers shall roll at their feet, and they shall say, 'Praise be to God who hath guided us bither! We had not been guided had not God guided us! Of a surety

the Apostles of our Lord came to us with truth' And a voice shall cry to them, 'Thie is Paradise, of which, as the meed of your works, ye are made heirs'

"And the inmates of Paradise shell cry to the inmates of the Fire, "Now have we found what our Lord promised us to be true Have ye too found what your Lord promised you to be true?' And they shall answer, 'Yes' And a Herald shall proclaim between them 'The curse of God be upon the evil doors,

"Who turn men saide from the way of God and seek to make it crooked, and who believe not in the life to come '

"And between them shall be a partition, and on the wall it A'raf, shall be men who will know all, by their tokens, and they shall ery to the immates of Paradise, Peace be on you' but they shall not get enter it, although they long to do so

"And when their eyes are turned towards the inniates of the Fire, they shall say, "O our Lord" place us not with the offending people

"And they who are upon al A'raf shall cre to those whom they shall know by then tokens, 'You amassings and your pride have availed you nothing

"Are these they on whom ye sware God would not bestow mercy? Enter 50 into Paradise! where no fear shall be upon you, neither shall ve put to giref'

"And the inmates of the fire shall cry to the inmates of Paradise 'Pour upon us some water, or of the refreshments God hish given you' They shall they, 'Truly God hath forbidden both to unbelievers

For a further descriptions of the Muham maden future state he reader is referred to the attack PARADISS which deals more directly with the sensual character of the heaven supposed to be it store for the helicyer in the mission of Muhammad

The following is a description of the believer which is given in the Qui'an Suratu 'l-Muminin the XXIII d Surah, v 1 —

'Happy now the Believers,

Who bumble thomselves in thoir prayer, And who keep aloof from vain weeds, And who are deers of alms-deeds (zakāt) And who restrain their appetites.

(Save with their wives, of the slaves whom their right hands possess for in that case they shall be free from blame

But they whose desires reach further than this are transgressors )

And who tend well their trusts and their covenants,

And who keep them strictly to their

These shall be the heritors, who shall inberit Puradisc, to abide theroin for ever "

BELLS [NAQUS]

BENEFICE [WAQF]

BENEFICENCE (Arabic described is commended by Muhammad as one of the evidences of faith. (Meshkāt Book 1 c i part 3)

Amr ibn 'Abaratah relates "I came to the Prophet and eaid, 'O Prophot, what is Islam?' And he said 'It is purity of speech and hospitality' I then said, 'And what is faith' And he said, 'Patience and beneficence"

BENJAMIN Heb בורכון, Arabic

of the children of Jacob He is not mentioned by name in the Quran, but he is referred to in Surah and 69, "And when they entired in unto Joseph, he took his brother (1" Bonjamin) to stay with him He said Venly I am thy biother, then take not that ill which they have been doing And when he said equipped them with their equipment, he placed the drinking cup in his brothera pack, "&c [Joseph]

BEQUESTS Arabic , wasiyah, pl wasāyā A bequest or will can be made verbally, although it is held to be better to execute it in writing. Two lawful witnesses see necessary to establish cithor a verbal be suest or a written will A bequest in favour of a stranger to the amount of one-third of the whole property valid, but a bequest to any amount beyond that is invalid, unless the heirs give their consent. If a person ninko a bequest in favour of another from whom he has received a mortal wound, it is not valid, and if a legates slay his testator the bequest in his favour is void. A bequest made to part of the heirs is not valid unless the otlor heirs give their consent. The bequest of a Muslim in favour of an unbe hever, or of an unbeliever in favour of a Muslim is valid. If a person be involved in debt, legacies bequeathed by him are not lawful A bequest in favour of a child yet unboin is willd, provided the feetus happen to be less than six months old at the time of the making of the will

If a testator deay his bequest, and the legatee produce witnesses to prove it, it is gonerally held not to be a retractation of it. If a person on his death bed emancipate a slave, it takes effect after his death

If a person will that 'the pilgrimage incumbent on him be performed on his behalf after his death," his heirs must depute a person for the purpose and supply him with the necessary expenses (Hamilton's Hedayah, vol. 1v 466)

BESTIALITY is said by Muslim jurists to be the result of the most viriated appetite and the utmost depravity of sentiment. But if a man commit it, he does not incur the Hadd, or stated punishment, as the act is not considered to have the properties of wheredom, the offender is to be punished by a discretionary correction (Tazir). According to Muslim law, the beast should be killed, and if it be of an eatable species, it should be burnt. (Hidigah, vol. ii 27). Obs. According to the Mosaic code, a man guilty of this crime was surely to be put to death. (Ex xviii 19)

11841

6

BETROTHAL [KHITBAH]

BI'AH (Lan) A Christian church The word occurs in a tradition in the Mishkät (iv c vii 2), and is translated by 'Abdu'l-Haqq "Kalisah" [CHURCH]

BID'AH (& A) A novelty or innovation in religion, heresy, schism

BIER Arabic pināsah and panāzah The same word is used for the corpse, the bier, and the funeral In most Muhammadan countries the ordinary charpoy, or "bedstead," is used for the bier, which, in the case of a female, is covered with a canopy [BURIAL.]

BIHISHT ( The Persian word for the celestial regions [PARADISE, PANNAH, FIRDAUS]

BILADU 'L-ISLAM (אלי אניילה)
The countries of Islam" A term used in Muhammadan law for Muslim countries lt is synonymous with the term Daru 'l-Islam [DARU 'L ISLAM]

BILAL (Jk) The first Mu'azzın on caller to prayer appointed by Muhammad He was an Abyssinian slave who had been ransomed by Abū Bakr He was tall, dark, and gaunt, with negro features and bushy hair Muhammad honoured and distinguished him as the "first fruits of Abyssinia." He survived the Prophet

BILQIS (Mark) The Queen of Saba', who visited Solomon and became one of his queens An account of her, as it is given in the Qur'an, will be found in the story of King Solomon. [SOLOMON]

BINT LABUN ((بنت کبون) "The daughter of a milk giver" A female camel two years old so called because the mother is then sucking another foal. The proper age for a camel given in zakāt, or legal aims," for camels from thirty six in number up to forty-five

BINT MAKHAZ (
"The daughter of a pregnant' A female camel passed one year so called because the mother is again pregnant. This is the proper age for a camel given in zakāt, or "alins," for camels from twenty-five in number up to thirty-five

BIOGRAPHERS OF MUHAM-MAD Although the Qur'an may be said to be the kev-stone to the biography of Muhammad, yet it contains but comparatively few references to the personal history of the Prophet The Traditions, or Ahādis, form the chief material for all biographical histories [TRADITION] The first who attempted to compile an account of Muhammad in the form of a history, was az Zuhri, who died an 124, and whose won' no longer extant, is mentioned by Ibn Khalitkan The earliest biographical writers whose works are extant art—Ibn lahâq, a.h 151 Al Wāqidi, a h

207, Ibn Hisham, A.E. 218, Al-Bukhari (history), A.H 256, At-Tabari, A.H 310 Amongst more recent biographies, the most noted are those by Ibnn 'l-Asir, A H 680, and Ismā'il Abu 'l-fidā', A H. 782 Abu 'l-tida's work was translated into Latin by John Gagnier, Professor of Arabic at Oxford, A D 1723, and into English by the Rev W Murray, Episcopal clergymen at Duffus in Scotland, and published (without date) at Elgin The first life of Muhammad published in English is that by Dean Prideaux, which flist appeared in 1728, and afterwards passed through several editions Dr Sprenger commenced a life of Muhammad in English, and printed the ilrst part at Allahabad, India, AD 1851 but it was novel completed. The learned author afterwards published the whole of his work in German it Beilin, 1869 The only complete life of Muhammad in English which has any pretension to original research, is the well known I see of Muhomet, by hir William Muir LL D (First Edition, four vols , London, 1858 61 Second Edition one vol. London 1877)

BIOGRAPHY A Dictionary of Biography is called had lama's right in the Names of Men"). The most celebrated of these is, amongst Muslims, that by Ibn Khallikan, which has always been considered a work of the highest importance for the civil and literary history of the Muhammadun people. Ibn Khallikan died A.B. 1282), but his dictionary received numerous additions from subsequent writers. It has been translated into English by Mac Girckin De Slane (Paris, 1843).

BIRDS It is commonly believed by the Muhammadans that all kinds of birds, and many, if not all, beasts have a language by which they communicate their thoughts to each other, and in the Quran (Surah Exvi-16) it is stated that King Solomon was raught the language of birds

BI'R ZAMZAM (جر زموم) The well of Zamzım [ZAM ZAM]

BI'R MA'UNAH (Lyan a) The vell of Ma unah A celebrated spot four marches from Makkah where a party of Muhammad's followers were slain by the Banu'Amir and Banu Sulaim. He professed to have received a special message from heaven regarding these martyrs, which runs thus—" 'Acquaint our people that we have met our Lord. He is well pleased with Him." It is a remarkable verse, as having for some reason or other been cancelled, and removed from the Qur'an. (Muir's Life of Makomet, vol. 111. p. 207.)

BIRTH, Evidence of According to the Imam Abu Hauifah, if a married woman should claim to be the mether of a child, her claim is not to be valid unless the birth of of the child is attested by the testimony of one woman. But in the case of a father, inasmuch as the claim of parentage is a matter which relates purely to himself, his testimony alone is to be accepted

The testimony of the midwife alone is sufficient with respect to birth, but with regard to parentage, it is established by the fact of the mother of the child being the wife of the husband

If the woman be in her 'iddah ['IDDAH] from a complete divorce, the testimony of the midwife is not sufficient with respect to birth, but the evidence of two men, or of one man and two women is requisite (Hamilton's Hiddyah, vol. iii p 134)

It is also ruled that it is not lawful for a person to give evidence to anything which he has not seen, except in the cases of birth, death, and marriage (Vol n 676)

BISHĀRAH (ابشارة) [BUSHRA]

BI-SHAR' ( ( ) Let "Without the law" A term applied to those my stics who totally disregard the teaching of the Qur'an. Antinomians [9091]

BISMILLAH (

"Let 'In the name of God" An ejaculation frequently used at the commencement of any undertaking There are two forms of the Bismillah -

1 Br vm: Hahr r rahman rahm re in the name of God, the Compassionate, the Merciful? Three used it the commencement of meals putting on new clothes leginning any new work, and at the commencement of books. It occurs at the head of every chapter or sureh in the Qui an with the exception of the ixth (1 e the bu a'n l-Banāah)

the 1xth (1e the "u u'n l-Banā'ah)

2 Bi 'smi 'liāhi llahi l-akhai ic In the name of God, God the Most Great 'U sed at the time of slaughtering of animals at the commencement of a battle &c the stribute of morey being omitted on such occasion.

The formula Bi-san llahe i ahman i rahin is of Jewish origin. It was in the first instance taught to the Quraish by Umayah of Talf, the poet, who was a contemporary but somewhat alder than, Muhammad, and who, during his mercantile journeys into Arabia Petian and Syria had unde himself acquainted with the sacred books and doc trines of Jews and Christians (Kitabu I Aghāni, 16, Delhi quoted by Rodwell)

BIZA'AH (Icla) A share in a morcantile adventure. Property entrusted to another to be employed in trade

BLACK STONE [AL-HAJARU 'L-

BLASPHEMY Arabic & kuft Let to hide" (the truth) It includes a denial of any of the essential principles of Islam

A Muslim convicted of blasphemy is sentenced to death in Muliammadan countries [APOSTASY]

mah The two great cures recommended by Muhammad were blood letting and drinking honey, and he taught that it was unlucky to be bled on a Friday, Saturday, or Sunday, the most lucky day being Tuesday, and the most lucky dato the seventeenth of the month (Mishkāt, xxi c 1)

BLIND, The Arabic A'mā, pl'Unyān It is not incumbent upon a blind man to engage in Jihād, or a religious war And, according to the Imām Abū Hanīfah, the evidence of a blind person is not admissible, but the Imām Zufar maintains that such evidence is lawful when it affects a matter in which hearsay prevails Sales and purchases made by a blind person are lawful (Harultons Hadāyah, vol. 11. pp 141, 402, 682)

BLOOD The sale of blood 18 unlawful (Hamilton's Hedayah, vol 11 p 428)

BLOOD, The Avenger of [QISAS]
BLOOD, Issue of [ISTIHAEAH]

BOASTING Arabic mufakhuruh Muhammad is related to have said, "I swear by God, a tribe must desist from boasting of their forefathers, for they are nothing more than coals from hell-fire (i.e. they were idolaters), and if you do not leave off boasting verily you will be more hateful in the sight of God than a black-beetle Mankind are all the sons of Adam, and Adam was of the earth (Mishkāt, xxi c 13)

BOOKS OF MOSES [TAURAT]

BOOKS, Stealing The hand of a thirt is not to be cut off for stealing a book, whitever be the subject of which it treats because the object of the theft can only be the contents of the book, and not the hoof itself. But you it is to be obscived, the hand is to be cut off for stealing an account book," because in this case it is ovident that the chieft of the theft is not the contents of the book, but the paper and material of which the book is made (Hamilton's Hidāyah, vol ii 92)

BOOTS [SHOES]

BREACH OF TRUST Arabic & khiyānah The punishment of amputation of the hand is not inflicted for a breach of trust. And if a guest steal the property of his host whilst he is staving in his house, the hand is not cut off. Breach of trust in Muslim law being a less offence than ordinary theft the punishment for breach of trust is left to the discretion of the judge (Hamilton's Hidāyah, vol ii pp 93-102)

BRIBERY (Arabic home) rishwah) is not mentioned in the Qur'ar in the Fatāwa Inthe Fatāwa Ilangiri it is stated that presents to magis tratos are of various kinds for example, if a present be made in order to establish a friendship it is lawful but if it he given to influence the decision of the judge in the donor stayour it is unlawful it is siso suid, if a present be made to a judge from where of fear, it is lawful to give it, but unlawful to accept it. (Hamilton's Hidayah, vol in p 332.)

BU'ĀŞ, Battle of Alabic Andrews Bu'āg A battle fought between the Banu Khazra, and Banu Aus, about six years before the flight of Muhammad from Makkah

BUHTĀN (שבוט) A false accu

The word occurs twice in the Qur'an — Sūrah iv 112 · Whose commits a fault or sin, and throws it upon one who is innocent, he hath to bear calumny (buhtān) and manifests in "

Sûrah xxiv 15 "And why did ye not say when ye heard it, 'It is not for us to speak of this'? Celebrated bo Thy praises, this is a mighty calumny (buhtān)' [BACKBITING]

BUKĀ (مكام) Heb حدر he wept

Weeping and lamentation for the dead Immodorate weeping and lamentation ovor the graves of the dead is clearly forbidden by Muhammad, who is related to have said, 'Whatever is from the eyes (se tears), and whatever is from the heart (ie soriew), are from God but what is from the hands and tongue is from the devil keep yourselves, O women, from wailing, which is the noise of the devil' (Mishkät, v e vii) The custom of wailing at the tombs of the dead is, however, common fall Muhammadan countries (See Arabian Nights, Lane's Modern Egyptians, Shaws Tracels in Barbary) [Burlal]

AL-BUNHĀRĪ (المارة) A short title given to the well-known collection of Sunni traditions by Abū 'Abdu 'llāh Muham mad ibn Isma'il ibn Ibnāhim ibn al Mughniah al-Ju'fi al Bukhan v ho was born at Bukhana AH 194 (AD 810), and ched at the village of Khartang near Samaiqand, AH 250 (AD 870) His compilation comprises upwards of 7,000 traditions of the acts and sayings of the Prophet, selected from a mass of 600,000 His book is called the Sahik of al-Bukhan, and is said to have been the result of sixteen years labour. It is said that he was so anxious to record only trustworthy traditions that he performed a prostration in worship before the Almighty before he recorded each tradition

"Nebuchadnezzar" It is thought by Jalaiu 'd-din that there is a reference to his army taking Jerusalem in the Qur'an, Surah xvii 8, "And when the threat for the last (crims) came (to be inflicted, we sent an enemy) to harm your faces, and to enter the temple as they entered it the first time." The author of the Qamus says that Bukht is "son," and Nassar, "an idol," ie "the son of Nassar."

BULAS ((بانون) Despair" The name of one of the chambers of hell, where the proud will drink of the yellow water of the infernal region (Michkat, xxii c 20)

BURĀQ (3), Let "The bright one" The animal upon which Muhammad is said to have performed the noctuinal journey called Mi'rāc. He was a white animal, between the size of a mule and an ass, having two wings (Majma'u'l-Bihār, p 89) Mu hammad's conception of this my sterious snimal is not unlike the Assyrian gryphon, of which Mr Layard gives a sketch [M'BAJ]

THE ASSYRIAN GRYPHON (Layard ii 459)

BURGLARY is punished as an ordinary theft, namely by the amputation of the hand, but it is one of the niccites of Muhanimadan law, according to the Hanafi code, that if a thicf treak through the wall of the house, and enter therein and take the property, and deliver it to an accomplice standing at the intrance of the breach, amputation of the hand is not incurred by either of the parties because the thief who entered the house dd not carry out the property (Hidāyith, vol in 103)

BURIAL OF THE DEAD (4) Jinazuh or Janazuh 18 used loth for the bier and for the Muhammadan funeral service | the burial service is founded upon the practice of Muhammad, and varies but little in different countries, elthough the ccremomes connected with the funeral procession are diversified. In Egypt and Bukhara, for instance, the male relations and friends of the deceased precede the corpse, whilst the female mourners follow behind. In India and Aighanistan, women do not usually attend funerals, and the friends and relatives of the deceased walk behind the bier There is a tradition amongst some Muhammadans that no one should precede the corpse as the angels go before Funeral processions in Afghanistan are usually very simple in their arrangements, and are said to be more in accordance with the practice of the Prophet, than those of Egypt and Turkey It is considered a very mentorious act to carry the bier, and four from among the near relations, every now and then relieved by an equal number, carry it on their shoulders. Unlike our Christian custom of walking slowly to the grave, the Muhammadans carry their dead quickly to the place of interment, for Muliammad is related to have said, that it is good to corry the dead quickly to the grave, to cause the righteous person to arrive soon at happiness, and if he be a bad man, it is well to put wickedness away from one's shoulders funerals should always be attended on foot, for it is said that Muhammad on one occasion rebuked his people for following on horse-"Have you no shame?" said he, back "since God's angels go on foot, and you go upon the backs of quadrupeds?" It is a highly meritorious act to attend a funoral, whether it be that of a Muslim, a Jew, or a Christian There are, however, two traditions which appear to mark a change of feeling on the part of the Prophet of Arabia towards the Jews and Christians "A bier passed by the Prophet, and he stood up, and it was easd to the Prophet this is the bier of a Jow 'It is the holder of a soul,' he replied, ' from which we should take warning and fear'" rule is said to have been abrogsted, for, "on one one occasion the Prophet sitting on the road when a bier passed, and the Prophet disliked that the bler of a Jew should be higher than his head, and he therefore stood up " (Mishkat, v c v) Notwithstanding those contradictory traditions, we believe that in all countries Muhammadans are wont to pay great respect to the funerals of both Jews and Christians

The Muhammadan funcial service is not recited in the gravejard, it being too polluted a place for so exerced an office, but either in a mosque, or in some open space near the dwelling of the deceased person or the gravejard. The owner of the corpse, te the nearest relative, is the proper person to recite the service but it is usually said by the family Imam, or the Quari

The following is the order of the service — Some one present calls out,—

"Here begin the prayers for the dead"

Then those present airange themselves in three five, or seven rows opposite the coipse, with their faces Qiblah wards (ie towards Makkah) The Imam stands in front of the ranks opposite the head (the Shi alis stand opposite the loins of a man) of the corpse if it be that of male, or the waiet, if it be that of a female

The whole company having taken up the Qiyam, or standing position, the Imam recites the Niyah

"I purpose to perform prayers to God for this dead person, consisting of four Takbus"

Then placing his hands to the lobes of his ears, he says the first Takbir

"God 15 great!"

Then folding his hands, the right hand placed upon the left, below the navel, he recites the Subhān —

"Holmess to Thee, O God,
And to Thee be praise
Great is Thy Name
Great is Thy Greatness.
Great is Thy Praise
There is no deity but Thee"

There is no delty but These Then follows the second Takbir —
"God is great!"

Then the Durud —

"O God, have mercy on Muhammad and upon his descendants, as Thou didst bestow mercy, and peace, and blessing, and compassion, and great kindness upon Abraham and upon his deacendants

"Thou art praised, and Thou art great!
"O God, bless Muhammad and hie descendants, as Thou didst bless and didst have compassion and great kindness upon Abraham and upon his descendants"

Then follows the third Takbir - "God is great!"

After which the following prayer (Du'a) is recited —

"O God, forgive our living and our dead and those of us who are present, and those who are absent, and our children, and our full grown persons, our men and our women. O God, those whom Thou dost keep alive amongst us, keep alive in Islam, and those whom Thou causest to die, let them die in the Faith"

Then follows the fourth Takbur -

'God is great!"
Turning the head round to the right, he says —

"Peace and mercy be to Thee"
Turning the head round to the left, he

Peace and mercy be to Thee The Tukbir is recited by the Imam aloud, but the Subhan, the Salam, the Durud, and the Dura, are recited by the Imam and the people in a low voice

The people then seat themselves on the ground, and raise their hands in silent praver in behalf of the deceased's soul, and afterwards addressing the relatives they say 'It is too derice of God". To which the chief mourner replies, "I am pleased with the will of God". He then gives permission to the people to retire by saying, 'There is permission to depart."

Those who wish to return to their houses do so at this time, and the rest proceed to the grave. The corpse is then placed on its back in the grave, with the head to the north and feet to the south, tho face being turned towards Makkah. The persons who place the corpse in the grave repeat the following sentence. "We commit thee to earth in the name of God and in the religion of the Prophet."

The bands of the shroud having been loosed, the recess, which is called the labd, it closed in with unburnt bricks and the grave filled in with earth [GRAVE] In some countries it is usual to recite verse 57 of the xxth Sürah of the Qur'an as the clods of earth are thrown into the grave but this practice is objected to by the Wanhabis, and by many learned divines. The verse is as follows—

"From it (the earth) have We (God) created you, and unto it will We return you, and out of it will We bring you forth the second time"

After the burial, the people offer a faithah (i.e. the first chapter of the Qur'an) in the name of the deceased, and again when they have proceeded about forty paces from the grave they offer another faithah, los at this juncture, it is said, the two angels Munkir and Nakir examine the deceased as to his faith. [PUNISHMENTS OF THE GRAVE ] After this, food is distributed to beggars and iel gious mendicants as a propitiatory offering to God, in the name of the deceased person

If the grave be for the body of a woman, it should be to the height of a man's chest if for a man, to the height of the waist At the bottom of the grave the recess is made on the side to receive the corpso, which is called the land or land. The dead are seldom interred in coffins, although they are not prohibited

To build tombs with stones or burnt bricks, or to write a verse of the Quran upon them is forbidden in the Hadis but large afone and brick tombs are common to all Muhammadan countries, and very frequently thoy bear mecraptions

On the third day after the burnal of the doad. it is usual for the relatives to visit the grave, and to recite selections from the Quran Those who can afford to pay Maulavis employ these learned men to recite the whole of the Qur'an at the graves of then deceased relatives and the Quran is divided into sections to admit of its being recited by the several Maulavis at once During the days of mourning the relatives abstain from wearing any article of dress of a bright colour, and their soiled garments remain unchanged

A funeral procession in Egypt is graphically described by Mr Lane in his Modern Lyptions We give the account as it contrasts strikingly with the simple processions of Sunni Muhammadane in India

"The first persons are about six or more poor men, called 'Yamanivah,' mostly blind who proceed two and two, or three and three, together Walking at a moderate pace, or rather slowly, they chant incessantly, in a melancholy tone, the profession of faith (There is no deity but God, Muhammad is God s Apostle, God favour and preserve him ") They are followed by some male relations and friends of the deceased, and, in many cases, by two or more persons of some sect of darweshes, bearing the flags of their order This is a general custom at the funer il of a darwesh Next follow three or four comore schoolboys, one of them carries a mushat (or copy of the Quran), or a volume consisting of one of the thirty sections of the Qur an placed upon a kind of desk formed of palm sticks and covered over, generally with an emin ordered kerchief. These boys chant, in a higher and livelier voice than the Yamaniyah, usually some words of a poem called the Hashriyah, descriptive of the even's of the last day, the judgment &c Inc school boys immediately precede the bier, which is borne head foremost Three or four friends of the deceased usually carry it for a short distance, then three or four other friends bear it a little further and then these are in like manner relieved (asnal passengers, also, often take part in this service, which is esteemed highly nightfollous Behind the bier walk the fema o mourners sometimes a group of more than a dosen, or twenty with their hair dishevelled, though gonerally concealed by the head-veil, crying and shricking, as before described and often, the hued mourners accompany them, celebrating the praises of the deceased Among the women, the relations and domestics of the diceased are distinguished by a strip of linen or cotton stuff or muslin, generally blue, bound round the head, and tied in a single knot behind the ends hanging down a few inches Each of these also carries a hand kerchief, usually dyed blue, which she sometimes holds over her shoulders, and at other times twirls with both hands over her head, or before her face. The cries of the women, the lively chanting of the vouths and the deep tones uttered by the lamaniyah, com-

pose a strange discord

"The funeral procession of a man of wealth or of a person of the middle classes, is sometimes preceded by thise of four or more cainels, hearing bread and water to give to the poor at the tomb, and is composed of a more numerous and varied assemblage of persons. The foremost of these are the Yamanuch who chant the profession of the faith, as described above. They are generally followed by some male friends of the deceased, and some learned and devout persons who have been invited to attend the funeral Next follows a group of four or more faqilis, chanting the 'Suratu'l An'um' (the vith chapter of the Qur'un), and sometimes another group, chanting the 'Sirat lu-sin (the xxxvith chapter) another, chanting the Suintu 'l habi (the vinith chapter) and another clanting the "aintu d Dukhan" (the xuivth chapter) These are followed by some munshi la singing the Burdah and these by certam persons called Ashabu l-Ahzab, who are members of religious orders founded by celebrated shanklin. There are generally four or more of the order of the Hirlm s Sadat, a umil a group of the Highn ah Shazili, and another of the Highu sh Shatrawi tach group chants a particular form of praver After them are generally torne two or more half furled flags, the binners of one or other of the principal orders of darwiches follow the school have the bier, and the female mouners as in the procession before described and perhaps, the led horses of the bearers if these be men of rank. A huffalo, to be sacrificed at the tomb, where its flesh is to be distributed to the poor sometimes closes the procession

The numeral of a devout shaikh or of one of the great. Ulama, is still more numerously attended and the but of such a person is not covered with a shawl A walt is further honoured in his funeral by a remarkable custom. Women follow Lis bier but instead of weiling, as they would after the corpse of an ordinary mortal, they rend the air with the shrill ind quavering tries of joy called 'zaghant' and if these tries are disc attimed but for a minute the bearers of the bier protest that the cannot proceed, that a super natural power rivers them to the apol on which they stand Very often, it is said, a 'wall' impels the bearers of his corpse to a Very often, it is said, a particular spot The following anecdote. describing an ingenious mode of puzzling a dead saint in a case of this kind, was related to me by one of my friends Some mon were lately bearing the corpse of a 'wali' to a tomb prepared for it in the great cemetery on the north of the metropolis, but on arriving at the gate called Babu n Nasr, which leads to the cometery, they found themselves unable to proceed further, from the cause above mentioned It seems, said one of the bearers, that the shakh is determined not to be buried in the cemetery of Babu 'n-Nasr, and what shall we do? They were all much perplexed, but being as obstinate as the saint himself, they did not immediately yield to his caprice Retreating a few paces, and then advancing with a quick step, they thought by such an impetus to force the corpse through the gateway, but their efforts were unsuccessful, and the same experiment they repeat d in vain soveral times They then placed the bier on the ground to rest and consult, a d one of them, beckoning away his comrades to a distance beyond the hearing of the diad saint said to them, 'Let us take up the bier again, and turn it round several times till the shaikh becomes giddy, he then will not know in what direction we are going, and we may take him easily through the gate ' This triey did, the saint was puzzled as they expected, and quietly buried in the place which he had so striven to avoid

"In the funerals of females and boys, the bier is usually only preceded by the Ism ini yeh, chanting the profession of the faith and by some male relations of the deceased and followed by the female mourners, unless the deceased were of a family of wealth, or of considerable station in the world in which case, the funeral procession is distinguished by some additional display I shill give a short description of one of the most genteel and decorous funerals of this kind that I have witnessed it was that of a joung unmarried Two men, each bearing a large, furled, green flag, headed the procession, preceding the Yamaniyah, who chanted in an unusually low and solemn manner These faques, who were in number about eight, were followed by a group of fakihe, chanting a chapter of the Qur'an Next after the latter was a man bearing a large branch of 'Asbq' (or lote tree), an emblem of the deceased On each side of him walked a person bearing a tall sinff or cane, to the top of which were at tached several hoops crnamented with strips of various coloured paper. These were followed lowed by two Turkish soldiers, side by side, one bearing, on a small round tray a gilt silver 'qumqum' of rose water, and the other bearing, on a similar tray, a "milkharah" of gilt silver, in which some odoriferous substance (as benzoin, or frankincense) was burning These vessels diffused the edour of their contents on the way, and were after wards used to perfume the sepulchral vanit Passengers were occasionally sprinkled with the rose-water Next followed four men, each of whom bore, upon a small tray, several small lighted tapers of wax, stuck in lumps of paste of 'hinna' The bier was covered with rich shawls, and its shahid was decorated with handsome ornaments of the head, having, besides the safa, a 'quesah almus' (a long ornament of gold and duaalmus' (a long ornament of gold and dia-monds worn over the forehead), and upon its flat top, a rich diamond qurs These were the jewels of the deceased, or were perhaps, as 14 often the case, borrowed for the occasion The female mourners, in number about seven or eight, clad in the usual manner of the ladies of Egypt (with the black silk covering, &c ), followed the bier, not on foot, as is the common custom in funerals in this country, but mounted on high-saddled asses, and only the last two or three of them were wailing, these being, probably, hired mourners In another funeral procession of a female, the daughter of a Turk of high rank, the Yamaniyah were followed by six slaves, walking two by two The first two slaves bore each a silver qumqum of rose-water, which they sprinkled on the passengers, and one of them lion sured me so profusely as to wet my dress very uncomfortably, after which, he poured a small quantity into my hands, and I wetted my face with it, according to custom. Each of the next two bore a silver mibkharah, with perfume, and the other two carried a silver 'u/q (or hanging censer), with burning charcoal of frankincense The jewels on the shahid of the bier were of a costly description. Eleven ladics, mounted on high-saddled asses, together with several naddabahs, followed

BURNING 'THE DEAD There is no express injunction, in either the Qur'an or the fraditions, regarding the burning of dead bodies, although the burning of the living is strictly forbidden. For Muhammud said 'Punish not with God's punishment (which is fire) for it is not fit for anyone to punish with fire but God' (Mishkat, xiv expart 1)

The teaching of the Traditions is that a dead body is as fully conscious of pain as a living body, for Ayishah said that the Prophet said, "The breaking of the bones of a corpse is the same as doing it in life" (Mishkāt, v c vi part 2)

It is therefore, pretty clearly established that cremation of the dead is strictly forbidden by the Muhammadan religion. There is, however, nothing to confirm the impression that the burning of a corpse in any way provents its soul entering paradise.

BURNING TO DEATH is strictly forbidden by Muslim law 'Ikrimah relates that some apostates from Islam were brought to the Khalifah 'Alī, and he burnt them, and when Ibn 'Abbas heard of it, he said, "Had they been brought to me, I would not have burnt them, for the Prophet said, 'Punish not with God's punishment Verily it is not fit for anyone to punish with fire but God'" (Mishkāt, xiv e v part 1)

BURQA' (خام) The veil or cover-ing used for the seclusion of women when walking abroad [VEILING OF WOMEN] The veil or cover-

Lit "Towers," BURUJ (897) which some interpret as real towers wherein the angels keep watch A term used for the twelve eigns of the zodiac [SIGNS OF THE ZODIAC ] Al-Burul is the title of the LXXXVth Surah of the Qur'an

BURYING OF THE DEAD is said by commentators that God taught mankind to bury their dead when "God sent a crow to scratch the earth, to show him (Cam) how he might hide his brother s body"
(Quran, Surah v 84 Tafsir-1-Husam in loco) The custom of burying their dead is universal in Islam The ceremonies connected with funerals will be found in the article on Burial. [BURIAL]

مقبرة BURYING-GROUND Arabic magharat or magharah, "The place of graves" Persian Qabr-gah, or Qabristan They are sometimes spoken of by religious Muslims as Marqud, a "cemetery" or "sleeping place," but the name has not obtained a general application to burial-grounds in the East as it has in the West They are generally situated outside the city, the graves being covered with pebbles, and distinguished by headstones, those on the graves of men being with a turban-like head The graves are dug from north to south much neglected The Wahhābīs held it to be a meritorious act in accordance with the injunctions of the Prophet, to neglect the graves of the dead, the erection of brick tombs being forbidden (Hidayah, Arabic ed , vol i p 90) A grave-vaid does not become public property until the proprietor formally makes a gift or bequest of it (Hidayah, vol ii., p 357)

BUSHRĀ (بشرى) "Good news;" "the gospel' A word used in the Traditions for the publication of Islam (Mishket, xxiv c 1) 'Accept good news, O ye sons of Tamim" which 'Abdu 'I Haqq says means "enibrace Islam"

BUYING [BAI']

BUZURG (سرگ Lit " great " Porsian word used in the East for a saintly person, an old man, or a person of rank.

C.

CÆSAR The Arabic and Persian form of the Latin Cæsar in Quisar word occurs in the traditions of the Sahihu 'l Muslim (vol in p 99), where it is applied to the Emperor Heraclius, who received a letter from Muhammad inviting him to Islam when he was at Edessa on his way to Jerusalem August, AD 628 The origin of the title is uncertain Spartianus, in his life of Achus. verns (c 11), mentions four different opinions respecting its origin (1) That the word sigmilled an elephant in the language of the Moors and was given as a surname to one of the Julia because he had killed an elephant, or (2) I hat ! it was given to one of the Julu because he had been cut (caesus) out of his mother a womb after her death, or (8) Because he had been born with a great quantity of hair (coesaries) on his head, or (4) Because he had azurc-coloured (cuesis) eves. Of these opinions the second is the one adopted by the Arabic-Persian Dictionary the Ghiyasu 'l-Lughat

The first of the Julian family who occurs in history as naving obtained the surname of Casar is Sex Julius Casar, prator in a.c. 208 It was first assumed as an imperial title by Augustus as the adopted son of the dictator, and was by Augustus handed down to his adopted sor liberius It continued to be used by Caligula, Claudius, and Nero, as members, either by adoption of female descent, of Casar's fimily, but though the family became extinct with Nero, succeeding emperors still retained it as part o ther titles, and it was the practice to prefix it to then own name, as for instance, Imperator Carsar Domitianus Inquetus The title was sujerseded in the trice's Empire under the tis Commenus 1: that of Schastociator In the west it was conferred on Charles the Great and was borne by tuose who succeeded him on the imperial thron: Although this dignity came to an end with the resignation of Ir cress II in 1806, tre title Kaiser is still assumed by the Emperors of Austria and Germans in I more recently by the Queen of Fingl ad as Qui, ar a Hind or Impress of India

CAIN Arabic Ji⊌ Qabil (Qūbil) The secount of Cam and Alchas given in the Qui an Suigh v 30 will be found in the The Commentators say that artule ABH the occusion of making the offering was as follows. Each of them boing born with a twin sister. Adam by Gods direction ordered ( am to marra Melatum sister and Abelto marra Cam's but 'hat Cam refused They were then ordered to submit the question by making a sacribus and tum offered a sheaf of the very worst of his corn, whilst Abel offered the best fatsed lamb of his flock (Tafriru l-Bazzawi, u loro }

CALEB CALEB Arabic Kulab. The son of Jephunneh (lufannah) He is not mentioned in the Qur'an, but his name occurs in the Inferry : Barzawi, in Sarah iv 18.

CALF, GOLDEN, The, which the Israelites worshipped, is mentioned five times in the Qur'an. Suraha ii 48, 88, iv 152, vu 146, xx. 90 In Surah xx 90, the person who made it is said to be as Samiri [MOSEE]

CALIPH. [KHALIFAH]

" CALUMNY is expressed by the were Ghibah which means anything whispered to the detriment of an absent person, although it be true Buhtan, expressing a false accusation. It is strictly forbidden in both the Qur'an and Hadis [GHIBAH.]

CAMEL Arabic Ibil In the Qur'an (Surah laxavna 17), the institution of camels to ride upon is mentioned as an example of God's wisdom and kindness "Do they not look then at the camel how she is created" As a proof of the great usefulness of the camel to the Arabian, and of the manner in which its very existence has in finenced his language it is remarkable that in almost every page of the Alabic Inctionary (Janus (as also in Richardsons edition) there is some isference to a same!

Camels are a lawful sacrifice on the great festivals and on other occasions And al though it is lawful to slay a camel by sahh or by merely cutting its throat, the most eligible method, according to Muslim law is to slay a camel by nakr or by spearing it in the hollow of the throat near the bres-i bonc because, says Abn Hanifah it is according to the sumah, or practice of Muhammad, and also because in that part of the throat tiree blood vessels of a camel are combined Hamil ton's Hidayah, vol iv p 72) There is zakat, or legal alme, on camels [ZARAT] Mulammaden law rules that the person who leads a string of camels is responsible for anything any one of the camels may moure or tread (Thid , 17 879) down

Arabic Kan'iin CANAAN Accerding to al-Jalalam and al-Barrawi ... ba commentators Canaan was the unbelieving not of Nosh has, according to the Qumus dictionary, the grandson who was drowned in the flood, and whose case is recorded in the Qur'an (Surah xt 44) He is said to be a son of Noah's wife Wa'llah, who was an in-And the Ark moved on them smid fidel waves like mountains and Noah called to his son-for he was apart- Embark with us, O my child | and be not with the unbelievers He said, 'I will betake me to a mountain that shall secure me from the water ' He said None shall be secure this day from the decree of God, save hun on whom He shall have mercy' And a wave passed between them, and he was among the drowned

Asir, pl Usurā and CAPTIVES. Usara With respect to captives, the Imam, of leader of the army, has it in his choice to slay them "because the Prophot put captives to death, and also because slaying them terminates wickedness", or, he may if he choose make them slaves. It is not lawful for the Imam to send captives back to their home and country, because that would be to strengthen the cause of infidelity against Islam If they become Muslims after their capture, they must not be put to death, but they may be sold after their conversion converted captive must not be suffered to return to his country and it is not lawful to release a captive gratuitously. The only method of dividing plunder which consists of alaves, is by solling them at the end of the expedition and then dividing the money (Hidayah, 11 160) [SLAVERY]

CARAVAN Persian Kārwan, Arabic Qofilah. As the roads in the East ere often unsafe and lead through dreary wostos, merchants and travellers associate together for mutual defence and comfort These companies are called both Larman and qāfilith. The party is always under the direction of a paid director who is called Karwan- or Qāfilah-Bāshi. If si caravan is attacked on the road, the Muhammadan law allows the punishment of cruoffxion for the offence (Midayah, vol n 131) But it is a curious provision of the Muslim law that if some of the thevolvers in a caravan commit a r bberv upon others of the same caravan, pumalment (ce of amputation) is not incurred by them (Vol 1 137)

CARRION (Arabic Moutah) is for-bilden to the Qur'en, Surah ii 80 "That which dieth of steelf and blood and swines flesh and that own which any other name that that of God hath been invoked is for-bidden. But he who shall partake of them by constraint without lust or wilfulness, no sm shall be upon him "

CASTING LOTS Zalam, or casting lots by shooting arrows, was an ancient Arabic custen, which is forbidden by Muhammad in his Qur'an, Sürah v 4, but qurah or casting lots, in its ordinary sense is not forbidden, for 'Ayishah relates that when the Prophet went on a journey, he used to cast lots as to which wife he should take with him (Mishkat Babu 'l-Qasam.)

CATS Arabic Hirrah ing to a Hadis of Abu Qutadah, who was one of the Companions, Muhammad said, "Cats are not impure, they keep watch around us He used water from which a cat had drunk for his purifications, and his wife 'Ayishah ate from a vessel from which a cat had eaten (Mishkat, book mi., c. 10, pt. 2.)

CATTLE Arabic An'am They are said in the Qur'an to be the gift of God Sarah xl 79, "God it is who hath made for you cattle, that ye may ride on some and est others

Cattle kept for the purpose of labour, such as carrying burthens, drawing ploughs, do, are not subject to zakāt, neither is there zakāt on onttle who are left to forage for one half year or more (Hıdayah, 1. 18) Al-An'am is the title of the sixth Sürah of the Qur'an.

CAVE, The Companions of the (Arabic Ashabu 'l-kahf), or the Seven Sleepers of Ephesus, form the subject of one of the chapters of the Qur'an, Surah xviii 6 [ASHABU 'L-RAHF]

CELIBACY 'Uzübah), (Arabic although not absolutely endemned by Mu hammad, is held to be a lower form of life to that of marriage It is related that 'Usmin bn Maz'ûn wished to lead a celebate life, and the Prophet forbade him, for, said he ' When a Muslim marries he perfects his religion. (Michkat book xii c xx)

CEYLON The Arabic Sarandib Commontators vay that when Adam and Eve were cast out of Paradise, Adam fell on the island of Ceylon, and Eve near Jiddah in Arabia, and that after a separation of 200 years Adam was, on his repentance con ducted by the angel Gabriel to a mountain near Makkah where he found and knew his wife, the mountain being named 'Arafah , and that afterwards be retired with her to Ceylon when they continued to propagato their species (D Herbelot, Bibl. Orient, p. 55)

CHASTITY "Neither their (the Mushims') tenets nor their practice will in any respect bear to como into competition with Christian, or even with Jewish morality

For instance, we call the Muslims chaste because they abstained from indis criminate profligacy, and kept carefully within the bounds proscribed as her by their Prophet But those bounds, heades the utmost freedom of divorce and change of wives, admitted an illimitable licence of cobabitation with 'all that the right hand of the believer might possess, or, in other words, with any possible number of damsels he might choose to purchase, or receive in gift or take captive in war " (Mur's Life of Mahomet, vol 1 272. [CONCUBINAGE, BLAVES, MUT'AH, DIVOR( F, MARRIAGE ]

CHARITY, as it implies tenderness and affection, is expressed by hubb, or muhab bah, as it denotes almsgiving, it is sadaqah He who is liberal and charitable to the poor is called muhibbu'l fugara

CHERUBIM Arabic Karūbī, pl Karubin, Lat "Those who are near" Heb The word kar ubin is used by the כרובים commentator al-Baizawi, for the angels men tioned in the Quran, Surah xl 70 "Those around it (the throne of God) celebrate the praise of their Lord, and believe in Him and ask pardon for those who believe " Al Baizawi says the Karûbin are the highest rank, and the first created angels Husain says there are 70,000 ranks of them round the throne of God (Tafsiru 'l-Bazzāwi, Tafsiru Husain CHESS Arabic Shatranj cording to the Hidayah, "It is an aboun Acnation to play at chess, dice, or any other game, for if anything be staked it is gambling (maisir), which is expressly for-indden in the Quran, or if, on the other hand, nothing be hazarded, it is uncless and vain Bosides, the Prophet has declared all the entertainments of a Muslim to be vain except three the breaking in of his horse, the drawing of his bow, and playing and amusing himself with his wives beveral of the learned however, deem the game at clean lawful as having a tendency to quicken the understanding This is the opinion of ash Shan : If a man piav at chess for a stake, it destroys the integrity of his character, but if he do not play for a stake, the integrity of his character is not affected (Hamilton's Hida yah vol iv p 122)

CHILDREN Arabic Aulad There are no special injunctions in the Qur'an regarding the customs to be, observed at the buth of an infant (circumc) sion not being even oneo mentioned in that book), nor with reference to the training and instruction of the young but the subject is frequently referred to in the Traditions and in Muhammadan books on Fthics Muhammadana have 40 largely incorporated the customs of the Hindus in India with their own, especially those observed at the births of children, that it is sometimes difficult to dis tinguish those which are special characteris tice of Islam many of the customs recorded in Horklut's Musalmans for example, being merely those common to Hindus as well as Muhammadans We shill however, onder your to describe those which ire generally admitted to have some authority in the precepts of the Muslim religion

(1) At the birth of a child, after he has been properly washed with vater and bound in awaddling clothes he is carried by the mid wift to the assembly of male relatives and frie ids, who have met on the occasion, when the chief Maulawi, or some person present, recites the Agan or summons to prayer [A7AN], in the infants right ear and the Agamah, which is the Azan with the addition of the words, "We are at anding up for priyers ' [ [QAMAH], in the left car a enstone which is founded on the example of the Prophet, who is related to have done so at the bir'h of his grandson Hasan (Mushkat, book xviii c iv 4). The Maulawi then chews a little date fruit and meerts it into the infant a mouth, a custom also founded upon the ex ample of Yuhammad (Mishkat, book xviii c is 1) This ceremony being over, alms are distributed, and fathalis are recited for the health and prosperity of the child According to the traditions the amount of silver given in alms should be of the same weight as the hair on the infants head-the child a head being shaved for this purpose (Mish kat, ibid. part 2) The friends and neigh bours then visit the home, and bring presents and pay congratulators compliments on the joyful occasion

(2) The numing of the child should accord ing to the Traditions (Mishkut, soid), be given on the seventh day, the child being either named after some member of the family, or after some saint venerated by the family, or some name suggested by the auspicious hour, the planet, or the sign of the zodiac [EXORGISM.]

(8) On this, the seventh day, is observed also the ceremony of 'Aqiqah, established by Muhammad himself (Bābu 'l-'Aqiqah in Arabic Ed. Sakih of Abū Dāūd, vol 11 p d6) It consists of a sacrifice to God, in the name of the child, of two he goats for a bov and one he-goat for a girl The goats must be not above a year old, and without spot or blemish The animal is dressod and cooked, and whilst the friends eat of it they offer the following prayer —"O God! I offer to thee instead of my own offspring life for life, blood for blood, head for head, hone for bons, hair for hair, skin for skin. In the name of the great God I do sacrince this goat!"

(4) The mother is purified on the fortieth day when she is at liberty to go about as usual, and it is on this day that the infant is generally placed in the swinging cradle peculiar to eastern household. It is a div of some rejoicing amongst the members of the Haram.

(6) As soon as the child is able to talk, or whon he has attained the age of four years, four months and four days, he is taught the Bismillah, that is, to recite the inscription which occurs at the commencement of the Qui an 'Bi smi 'llähi 'r-rahmāni -rahim in the name of God the Merciful, the tractous After this ciremony the child is sent to school and taught the alphabet, and to recite certain chapters of the Qui an by rote

(6) According to the opinion of Sunni doctors, the circumcision of the child should take place in his seventh year—the operation being generally performed by the barber [CIRCUMCISION]—The child is not required to observe all the enstems of the Muslim law until he has arrived at puberty [PUBERTY], but it is held incumbent on parents and guardians to teach him the prayers as soon as he has been circumcised

(7) The time when the child has finished reciting the whole of the Qui'an, once through, is also regarded as an important epoch in the life of a child. On this occasion the scholar makes his obcisance to his tutor and presents him with trave of sweetmeats, a suit of

clother and money

As we have already remarked, the instruction of youth is a frequent subject of discussion in books of Muslim Ethics. The following which is taken from the Akhlāq-i Jalāli, is an interesting specimen of Muhammadan ideas on the subject.—The first requisite is to employ a proper nurse of a well-balanced temperament, for the qualities, both temperamental and spiritual, of the nurse are communicated to the infant. Next, since we are recommended by the Traditions to give the name on the seventh day (after birth), the precept had better be conformed to in delaying it, however, there is this advantage, that time is given for a deliberate selection of an appropriate name For, if we give the child an ill-assorted one his whole life is embittered in consequence Hence caution in determining the name is one of the parent's obligations towards his offspring

If we would provent the child's acquiring culpable habits, we must apply ourselves to educate him as soon as weaned For though men have a capacity for perfection the tendency to vice is naturally implanted in the soul The first requisite is to restrain him abso lutely from all acquaintance with those excsssss which are characterised as vice For the mind of children is like a clear tablet, equally open to any inscription. Next to that ho should be taught the institutes of religion and rules of propriety, and, according as his power and ospacity may admit, confined to thoir practice, and reprehended and restrained from their neglect Thus, at the age of seven, we are told by the Traditions to enjoin him merely to say his prayers, at the age of ten if he omits them, to admonish him by blows By praising the good and censuring the bad, we should render him emulous of right and apprehensive of wrong We should commend him when he performs a creditable action, and intimidate him when he commits a reprehensible one, and yet we should avoid, if presible, subjecting him to positive censure, imputing it rather to oversight, lest he grow audacious If he keep his fault a secret, we are not to rend away the disguise, but if he do so repeatedly we must rebuke him severely in private aggravating the hemousness of such a practice, and intimidat-ing him from its repetition We must beware, however, of too much frequency of detection and reproof, for fear of his growing used to censure, and contracting a habit of recklessness, and thus, according to the preverb, "Men grow eager for that which is withheld, feeling a tendency to repeat the offence For these reasons we should prefer to work by enhancing the attraction of virtue

On most, drink and fine clothing, he must be trught to look with contempt, and deeply impressed with the conviction that it is the practice of women only to prize the colouring and figuring of dress, that men ought to hold themselves above it The proprieties of meal-taking are those in which he should be oarliest instructed, as far as he can acquire them He should be made to understand that the proper end of eating is health and not gratification that food and drink are a sort of medicine for the cure of hunger and thirst, and just as medicines are only to be taken in the measure of need, according as sickness may require their influence, food and drink are only to be used in quantity sufficient to satisfy hunger and remove thirst. He should be forbidden to vary his diet, and taught to prefer limiting himself to a single dish His appetito should also be checked that he may be satisfied with meals at the stated hours. Let him not be a lover of deheacies He should now and then be kept on dry bread only, in order that in time of need he may be able to subsist on that Habits like these are better than riches Let his principal meal be made in the evening rather than the morning, or he will be overpowered by drowsmess and lassitude during the day Fissh let him have sparingly, or he will grow heavy and dull Sweetmests and other such aperient food should be forbidden him, as likewise all liquid at the time of meals. Incumbent as it is on all men to eschew strong drinks, thore are obvious reasons why it is superlatively so on boys, impairing them both in mind and body, and leading to angor, reshnoss, andacity, and levity, qualities which such a prac-tice is sure to confirm Parties of this nature he should not be allowed unnecessarily to frequent, nor to listen to reprehensible conversation. His food should not be given to him till he han despatched his tasks, unless suffering from positive exhaustion. He must be forbidden to conceal any of his actions, lest he grow bold in impropriety, for manifestly, the motive to concealment can be no other Sleepthan an idea that they are culpable ing in the day and sleeping overmuch at night should be probulated Soft clothing and all the uses of luxury, such as cool refreats in the hot season, and fires and fur in the cold he should be trught to abst un from, he should be muted to exercise, foot walking horse-riding, and all other appropriate accomplishments

Next, lot him learn the proprieties of conversation and behaviour Let him not be tricked out with trimmings of the han and womanly attention to druss, nor he presented with rings till the proper t me for wearing them Let him be forbidden to boast to his companions of his ancestry or worldly idvan tages Let him be restrained from speaking untruths or from swearing in any case, whether true or false, for an oath is wrongful in any one and repugnant to the letter of the Iraditions, saving when required by the interest of the public. And oven though oaths may be requisite to men, to boys they never can be so Let him be trained to silence, to speaking only when addressed, to listening in the presence of his elders and expressing himself cornectly

For an instructor he should have a man of principle and intelligence well acquisited with the discipline of morals fond of cleanliness, noted for stateliness, dignity, and huma nity well acquainted with the dispositions of kings, with the etiquette of dining in their company, and with the terms of intercourse with all classes of mankind. It is desirable that others of his kind, and especially sons of moblemen, whose manners have always a distinguished elegance, should be at school with him, so that in their society he may escape lassitude, learn demoanour, and exert himself with emulation in als studies If the instructor correct him with blows, he must be forbidden to cry, for that is the practice of slaves and imbeciles. On the other hand, the instructor must be careful not to resort to blows, except he as witness of an offence openly committed When compelled to inflict them it is desirable in the outset to make them small in number and great in pain, otherwise the warning is not so efficacious, and he may grow audacious enough to repeat the offsuce

Let him be encouraged to liberality, and taught to look with contempt on the perishable things of this world, for more ill comes from the love of money than from the simoam of the desert or the scripont of the field. The Imam al-Chazzāli, in commenting on the text, "Preservo me and them from idolatry," says that by idols is here meant gold and silver, and Abraham's prayor is that he and his descendants may be kept far removed from the worship of gold and silver and from fixing their affections on them, because the love of these was the root of all evil. In his leisure hours he may be allowed to play, provided it does not lead to excess of fatigue or the commission of anything wrong

When the discerning power bagins to proponderate, it should be explained to him that the original object of worldly possessions is the maintenance of health, so that the body may be made to last the period requisito to the spirits qualifying itself for the life eternal. Then, if he is to belong to the sciences. I et him be employed (as soon as discongaged from studying the execution) in acquiring the sciences. The bost course is to ascertain by examination of the youth's character for what science or art he is best qualified and to employ him accordingly, for, agreeably to the provert, "All facilities are not riented to the same person", everyone is not qualified for every profess sion, but each for a particular one

This, indeed, is the expression of a pim ciple by which the fortunes of man and of the world are regulated. With the old philosophore it was a practice to inspect the holoscope of nativity and to devote the child to that profession which appeared from the planetary positions to be suitable to his nature. When a person is adapted to a profession, he can acquire it with little pains, and when unadapted, the utmost he can do is but to waste his time and defer his esta-blishment in life When a profession bears an incongruity with his nature, and means and appliances are unpropitious, we should not urge him to pursue it, but exchange it for some other, provided that there is no lupe at all of succeeding with the first, otherwise it may load to his perplexity. In the prosecu-tion of every profession, let him adopt a system which will call into play the ardour of his nature, assist him in preserving health, and prevent obtusity and lassitude

As soon as he is perfect in a profession, let him be required to gain his livelihood thereby, in order that, from an experience of its advantages, he may strive to master it completely, and make full progress in the minutes of its principles. And for this livelihood he must be trained to look to that honourable emolument which characterises the well-connocted. He must not depend on the provision afforded by his father For it generally happens, when the sons of the wealthy, by the pride of their parents' opulence, are debarred from sequir-ing a profession, that they sink by the viorssitudes of fortune into utter insignificance Therefore, when he has so far mastered his profession as to earn a livelihood, it is expe dient to provide him with a consort, and let him depend on his separate earning. The Kings of Fars, forbearing to bring their sons up surrounded by domestics and retinue, sent them off to a distance, in order to habituate The Dilemite them to a life of hardship chiefs had the same practice A person bred upon the opposite principle can hardly be brought to good especially if at all advanced in years like hard wood which is And this was with difficulty straightened the answer Socrates gave, when asked why his intimacies lay chiofly among the young

In training daughters to that which befits them, domestic ministration, rigid seclusion, hastity, modesty, and the other qualities already appropriated to women—no care can be too great. They should be made emulous of acquiring the virtues of their sex, but must be altogether forbidden to read and write when they reach the marriageable age, no time should be lost in marrying them to proper mates (See Akhlāq-i-Jalāh, Thomp son's od)

CHILD STEALING The hand of a third is not to be cut off for stealing a free-born child, although there be ornaments upon it, because a free person is not property and the ornaments are only appendages, and slee because the third may plead that he took the child up when it was crying, with a view to appeace it, and to deliver it to the nurse But Abū Yūsuf does not agree with Hamfah, for he says where the value of the crnaments amounts to ten dirms, amputation is incurred Amputation is also inflicted for stealing an infant slave, because a slave is property although Abū Yūsuf says it is not (Hidā yah, ii. 91)

CHOSROES Arabic Khusrau
The King of Persia to whom Muhammad sent a letter inviting him to Islam He is vaid to be Naisherwan (See Ghiyagu 'lLughat se loco, refer also to Mur's Life of Mahomet, vol it 54 n.)

CHRIST [JESUS CHRIST]

CHRISTIANITY and CHRIS-TIANS Arabir Navraniyah, "Christianity" the terms used for Christians being Nagran

pl Nasara, or Isauci

Christianty seems to have been widely diffused in Arabia at the time of Muhammad. According to Caussin de Perceval, who quotes from Arabie writers, Christianity existed amongst the Banu Taghlib of Mecopotamia, the Banu 'Abdu 'I-Qais, the Banu Hāris of Najrān, the Banu Ghassan of byris, and other tribes between al-Madinah and al-Kufal.

The historian Philostorges (Hist Eccles lib 1, c 3) tells us that a monk named Theophilus, who was an Indian bishop, was sent by the Emperor Constance, AD 342; to the Humyarite King of Yaman, and obtained per-mission to build three Christian churches for those who professed Christianity, one at Zafar, another at 'Adan, and a third at Hurmuz on the Persian Gulf According to the same author, the Christian religion was introduced into Najran in the fifth century A bishop sant by the Patriarch of Alexandria was established in the city of Zafar, and we are told by Muslim authors, quoted by Caussin de Perceval, that a Christian church was built at San'a' which was the wonder of the age, the Roman Emperor and the Vicercy of Abysainia furnishing the materials and workmen for the building The Arabs of Yaman were ordered by the ruler of Abyssima to perform a pilgrimage to this new church instead of to the Kathah, an edict which is said to have been resisted and to have given rise to the "War of the Elephant,' when Abrahah, the Viceroy of Egypt, took an outh that he would destroy the Meccan temple, and marched at the head of an army of Abyssimans, mounted on an This "War of the Elephant" elephant marks the period of Muhammad's birth.

The Christianity of this period is described by Mosheim as "expiring under a motley and enormous asap of superstitious inventions with neither the courage nor the force to raise her hord or display her national charms to a darkened and deluded world." Doubtless much of the success of Islam in its earlier stage was due to the state of degradation into which the Christian Chuich had failen Tho bitter dissensions of the Greeks, Nestorians, Eutychians, and Monophysites are matters of history and must have beld up the religion of Josus to the ridicule of the heathen world. The controversies regarding the nature and person of our Divine Lord had begutten a sent of Tritheists, led by a Syrian philoso-pher named John Philoponus of Alexandria, and are sufficient to account for Muhammad's conception of the Biessed Trinity The worship of the Virgin Mary had also given rise to a religious continuously between the Antiduo Mariamtes and the Collyridians, the former holding that the Virgin was not immisculate, and the latter raising her to a position of a goddess. Under the cucumstances it is not surprising to find that the mad of the Arabian reformer turned away from Christianity and endenvoured to construct a religion on the es of Judaism [Judaism]
11-Baizāwi and other Muslim commentalines of Judaism

Al-Bassawi and other Muslim commentators, admit that Muhammad received Christians instruction from learned Christians named Jubra and Yasara (al-Bassawi on Surah xvi 105), and that on this account the Quraish said, "It is only some mortal that teaches him!" For the Traditions relate that Muhammad used to stop and listen to these two Christians as they read aloud the Books of Moses (Iumat) and the New Testament (Isya) But it is remarkable that Mu-

"And they say, None but Jews or Chris-

Surah u 105 ---

nammad should, after all, have obtained such a cursory knowledge of Christianity from the text of the Qur'an (extracts of which are subjoined), it is evident that he was under the impression that the Sacrament of Baptism was Sibghah, or the dyeing of the Christians' clothes, and if the Chapter of the Table refers to the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper (which is uncertain), it was "a table sent out of heaven that it may be a recurring festival." The doctrine of the Trinity is supposed to be a Tritheism of God, Jesus Christ, and the Virgin Mary and a proof against the Divinity of Christ is urged from the fact that He and His mother "both ate food" The crucifixion is denied and Mary the mother of Jesus is confounded with Mary the sister of Aaron. Such mistakes and omiss ons could only arise from a most imperfect acquaintance with the ordinary institutions and beliefs of the Christian communities, with whom Muhammad must have been brought in contact. The goutlor tone and spirit of the Christians scems to have won the sympathy of Muhammad and his expressions regaiding them are less severe than with reference to the Jews, but the abstruse chanactor of their creed, as shown in their endless schisins regarding the nature of the Trinity and the person of Christ and the idolatrous character of their worship, as still seen in the ancient Syrian and Ceptie churches led him to turn from Christianity to Judansm as a model whereby to effect the reformation of a degraded and idolatrous people like the ancient Arabians Jewish and Mosaic character of Muhammad's system will be treated of in another place [MELAUUL]

The following selections from the Qur'an will show the actual teaching of that book regarding Christianity In the whole of the Qur'an there is not a single quotation from the New Testamont, and it is noticeable that nearly all the allusione to Christianity are contained in Meccan Surahs, Surah ii being according to Jalalu 'd-din Suyuti one of the earliest chaptors given at Makkah, and Surah v the last

Sürah v 85 "Of all men thou wilt certainly find the Jews, and those who join other gods with God, to be the most intense in hatred of those who believe, and thou shalt certainly find those to be nearest in affection to them who say, 'We are Christians.' say, 'We are Christians.' This, because there are amongst them priests (question) and monks, and because they are not proud"

Sūrah ii 59 -Verily, they who believe (Muslims), and they who follow the Jewish religion, and the Christians, and the Sabeites—whoever of these believeth in God and the last day, and doeth that which is right, shall have their teward with their Lord fear shall not come upon them, neither shall tuey be grieved

(The same verse occurs again in Surah v

tians shall enter Paradise ' This is their wish Sal Give your proofs if ye speak the truth But they who sot their face with resignation Godward, and do what is right,-thou neward is with their Lord, no fear shall come on them, neither shall they be grieved Moreovei, the Jews say, 'The Christians lean on naught' 'On naught lean the Jews,' say the Christians Yet both are readers of the Book So with like words say they who have no knowledge But on the resurrection day, God shall judge between them as to that in which they differ And who committeth a greater wrong than he who hindereth God's name from boing remembered in His temples, and who hasteth to ruin them? Such mon cannot enter them but with foar Theirs is shame in this world, and a severe tor-ment in the next. The First and the West is God's therefore, whichever way ye turn there is the face of God Truly God is immense and knoweth all And they say, 'God hath a son' No' Praise be to 'Gou hath a son 'No' Praise be to Ilin' But—His, whatever is in the Heavons and the Earth! All obeyeth Him, sole maker of the Heavens and of the Earth! And when He decreeth a thing, He only suith to it, 'Be, and it is And they who have no knowledge say, 'Unless God speak to us, or thou shew us a sign with like words, said those who were before them their hearts are alike Clear signs have we Already shown for those who have firm faith Verily, with the Truth have we sent thee, a bearer of good tidings and a warner and of the people of Hell thou shalt not be questioned But until thou follow their ichgion, neither lews nor Christians will be satisfied with thee SAY Verily, guidance of G.d.—that is the guidance! And if after the Knowledge,' which hath reached thee thou follow their desires, thou shalt

Sürah IV 156 -

(red '

"Nay, but God hath sealed them up for their unbelief, so that but few believe And for their unbelief,—and for their And for their unbeller,—and for their having spoken against Mary a grievous calumny,—and for their saying, 'Verily we have slain the Mossiah (Masth), Jesus ('Isa) the son of Mary, an Apostlo of God Yet they slew him not, and they crucified him not, but they had only his likeness. And they who differed about him were in doubt concorning him No sure knowledge had they about him, but followed only an opinion, and they did not really slay him, but God took him up to Himself And God is Mighty, hnd neither helpoi nor protectoi against

Sürah n 130 ---

"They say, moreover, Become Jews or Christians that ye may have the true guidance' SAY Nay! the religion of Abraham, the sound in faith, and not one of those who join gods with God!

Say ye 'We believe in God, and that which hath been sent down to us, and that which hath been sent down to Abraham and Ishmael and Isaac and Jacob and the tribes and that which hath been given to Moses and to Jesus, and that which was given to the prophets from their Lord No difference do we make between any of them and to God are we resigned (Muslims)' If, therefore, they believe even as ye believe, then have they true guidance but if they turn back then do they cut themselves off from you and God will suffice to protect thee against them, for He is the Hearer the Knower The Baptism of God, and who is better to baptize than God? And Him do we serve "

Surah v 75 --

'They surely are linhdels who say, 'God is the third of three for there is no God but one God and if they refrain not from what they say, a guevous chestisement shall light on such of them is its Infidels Will they not therefore, he turned unto God, and ask pardon of Him' since God is Forgiving, Merciful The Messiah, Son of Mary, 18 but an Apostle, other Apostles have flourished before him, and his mother was a just person they both ate food Behold how we make clear to them the signs' then behold how they turn aside! which can neither hurt not help. But God! He only Heareth, Knoweth Sax () people of the Book! outstep not bounds of truth in your religion, neither follow the desires of those who have already gone astray and who have caused many to go astray, and have themselves gone astray from the evenness of the wav. Those among the children of Israel who believed not were cursed by the tongue of David, and of Jesus, Son of Mary This, because they were rebellious, and became transgressors they for bade not one another the impairy which they wrought detestable are their actions l"

Sürah v 18 -

"And of those who say, 'We are Christians,' have we accepted the covenant But they too have forgotten a part of what they were taught, wherefore we have stirred up emmity and hatred among them that shall last till the day of the Resurrection and in the end will God tell them of then doings O people of the Scriptures' new is our Apostle come to you to clear up to you much that ye concealed of those Scriptures, and to pass over many things Now hath a light and a clear Book come to you from God by which God will guide him who shall follow after His good pleasure to paths of peace, and will bring them out of the darkness to the light, by His will and to the straight path will He guide them Infidels now are they who say, 'Verily God is al-Vasih Ibn Maryam (the Messinh, son of Mary)! Sar And who could aught obtain from God, if He chose to derivoy al-Masih Ibn Maryam, and his mother, and all who are on the earth together? with God is the sovereignty of the Heavens and of the Earth, and of all that is vens and of the Earth, and of all that is between them. He createsth what He will, and over all things is God potent the Jews and Christians, 'Sons are we of God and His beloved' Sax Why then doth He chastise you for your sins! Nay! ye are but a part of the men whom He hath created."

Smah v 58 -

"O Believers I take not the Jews or Christians as friends They are but one another a friends If any one of you taketh them for his friends, he surely is one of them! God will not guide the evil-doers So shalt theu see the diseased at heart speed away to them and say, 'We fear lest a hange of fortune befall us' But haply God will of Himself bring about some victory or event of His own ordering then soon will they report them, of then secret imaginings '

Sürah van 18 -

As to those who believe, and the Jews, and the Salustes and the Christians, and the Magians and those who join other gods with God, of a finth, God shall decide between them on the day of resurrection for God is witness of all things

Sürah v 112 -

"Remember when the Apostles said-'O Jesus, on of Mars ' 18 Thy Lord able to send down a furnished TABLE to us out of Heaven' He said- Feat God if we be believers' They said- We desire to eat therefrom, and to lave our hearts assured and to know that thou bast indeed spoken truth to us, and to be witnesses thereof Jeaus Son of Mary, said—'O God, our Lord' send down a table to us out of Heaven, that it may become a recurring festival to us, to the first of us and to the last of us, and a sign from Thee, and do Thou neurish us, for Thou art the best of neurishers' And God said—Verily, I will cause it to descend unto you, but whoever among you after that shall disbelieve I will surely chastise him with a chastisement wherewith I will not chastise any other creature And when God shall say—'O Jesus, Son of Mary, hast Thou said unto manhind— "Take me and my mother as two Gods, boside God? 'He shall say—'Glory be unto Thee' it is not for me to say that which I know to be not the truth had I said that, verily Thou wouldest have known it Thou knowest what is in me, but I knew not what is in Thee, for Thou well knowest things unacen !

Sürili xix 85 -

· This is Jeans, the son of Mary this is a statement of the truth concerning which they doubt It beseemeth not God to beget a son Glory be to Him! when He decreeth a thing, He only south to it, Be, and it is And verily, God is my Lord and your Lord, adore Him then This is the right way But The Sects have fallen to variance among themselves about lesus but woe, but woe, because of the assembly of a great day, to those who believe not!

The only New Testament saints mentioned by name in the Qur'an, are John the Baptist, Zacharias, and the Virgin Mary

In the Mishkatu 'l-Marabih, there are re corded in the traditional sayings of Muhammad, about six apparent plagiarisms from the New Testament, but whether they are the plagrarisms of Muhammad himself or of those who profess to record his sayings, it is impossuble to tell -

Abū Hurairah says the Prophet said, "Of the seven persons whom God, in the last day will draw to Himself, will be a man who has given alms and concealed it, so that his left hand knoweth not what the right hand doeth" (Book i c vii. pt 1, comp Matt. vl &)

Again "God accepts not the prayers of those who pray in long robes' (Book is ix pt 2, comp Matt xii 38)

Again "The doors of the celestial region shall not open to them (the wicked) until a camel pass through the eye of a needle" (Book v c m pt 3, comp Mark x 25)

Abū Umamah relates that the Prophet said, "Blessed be Him who hath seen me And blessed be him who hath not seen me and yet hath believed" (Book TRIV C XXVI pt 3, comp John xx 29)

Mu az relates that the Prophet said, Do unto all men as you would they should do unto you, and reject for others what you would reject for yourself" (Book 1 3 1 pt. 8, Matt vu 12)

Abu Hurairah relates that the Prophet said, "Verily God will say in the day of resurrection, U ye sons of mon! I was sick and ye did not visit me And the sons of men will say, O Thou defender, how could wo visit Thee, for Thou art the Lord of the universe, and art free from sickness . And God will say, O ye sons of men, did you not know that such a one of my servants was sick and ye did not visit him," &c &c (Book v c i pt 1, comp Matt xxv

Although it would be difficult to prove it from the text of the Qur'an, the general belief of Muhammadans is that Chilstians are not in a state of salvation, and Laza, or the "blazing fire,' mentioned in Surah lax 16, is, according to the Imam al-Baghawi, reserved for thom

The condition of a Christian in a Muslim state is that of a Zimau, or one who pays tribute to a Muhammadan governor, for which he enjoys protection He is allowed to repair any old church which may have been in existence at the time the country was subdued by Islam, but he is not allowed to erect new ones, "for," says Abu Hamitah, "the construction of churches or synagogues in Muslim territory is unlawful, being forbadden in the Traditions" "It also behoves the Imam to make distinction between Muslims and Zimmis (se Christians, Jews, and others paying tribute) It is therefore not allowable for them to ride upon horses er use armour, or to wear the same dresses as Mushms" The reason for this, says Abu Hanifah, "is that Muhammadans are to be held in honour and Zimmis are not"

The wives also of Zimmis are to be kept apart from those of Muslims on the public roads and baths And it is also ordered that a mark should be placed on their doors, in order that when Muslim beggars come to them they should not pray for them l

The learned have ruled that a Zimmi should not be allowed to ride at all, except in cases of necessity, and if he be thus of necessity allowed to ride, he should dismount when he moots a Muslim (Hidayah vol n

A judge when he administers an oath to a Christian, must direct him to say "I sweat by God who sent the Gospel to Jeans .

It is a singular ruling of the Muhammadan law that a claim of parentage made by a Christian is preferable to a claim of hondage advanced by a Mushm Abu Hamfah say if a boy be in the possession of two men, the one a Muslim and the other a Christian and the Christian assert that the how is his son and the Muslim assert that he is his slave, he must be decreed to be the son of the Christian and free because although Islam is the superior religion there can be no balance between the claim of offspring and the claim of bondage (Idem, vol 1v 133)

Sir William Mour referring to Muhammad's reception of the Banu Hunifah and other Christian tribes, A H 9 says "On the departure of the embassy the Prophot gave them a vessel with some water in it running over from his own ablutions, and said to them, 'When ye reach your country break down your church, sprinkle its site with this water and build a Masjid in its place. These commands they carried into effect, and apan doned Christianity without compunction. To another Christian tribe he prolubited the practice of haptism, so that although the adults continued to be nominally Christian. their children grew up with no provision but that of the Qur'an. It is no wonder that Christianity, thus insulted and trampled under foot, languished and soon disappeared from the peninsula' (Life of Mahomet, vol. iv 219)

CHU 3 CHES Arabic Bia'h and Kanisah, which terms include equally churches and synagogues The construction of churches or synagogues in Muslim territory is unlawful, this being forbidden in the Traditions, but as for places of worship which belonged to the Jews or Christians before the country was conquered by the Muham madan power, they are at liberty to repair them, because the buildings cannot endure for ever, and, as the Imam of the Mushin army has left these people to the explose of their own religion, it is a necessary inference that he has engaged not to prevent them from building or repairing their churches or synagogues If, however, they attempt to remove these, and to build them in a place different from their former situation, the Imam must prevent them, since this is an actual construction Monasteries and hermitages are under the same law Places of prayer within their dwellings are allowed to be constructed, because they are merely an appurtenance to a private habitation What is here said is held to be the rule with regard to cities, but not with respect to villages because as the "tokens of Islam" (se prayer, festivals,&c) appear in cities, zimmis (i.e those paying tax for protection) should not be permitted to exhibit the tokens of their infidelity in the face of Islam But as the tokens of Islam do not appear in villages, the erection of churches and synagogues is not prohibited there But the Imam Abu Hanifah held that this exemption merely applied to the village of Kusa, where the greater part of the inhabitants were zimmis He adds that in the country of Arabia lews and Christians are prohibited from constructink saurboknos and churches either in cities or villages, according to the saying of the Prophet. "Two religious cannot exist in the country of Arabia ' (Hidayah, book ix c viii)

If a Jew or a Christian, being in sound health, build a church or a synagogue and then die, such building is an inheritance, sud descends to the horrs of the founder. According to Abū Hanifah, it is a pieus appropriation, but his two disciples hold such erections to be sinful and only to be considered as or dinary property. If a Jew of a Christian will that his house after his death shall be converted into either a synagogue or church, the hequest is valid. (Hidāyāh, book in c. vi.)

The following tradition rolated by Talaq ibn 'Ali (Mishkāt iv c viii 2) exhibits Mu hammad's determination to destroy Christian churches "We told the Prophet that there was a church on our ground and we requested the favour of bis giving us the water which remained after he had performed uaxu And the Prophet called for water, performed uaxu and washed out his mouth, after which he poured the water for us into a vessel and ordered us to roturn, saying, 'When you arrive destroy your church (Arabic biah), and pour this water on the spot, and build a mosque there"

CIRCUMCISION Arabic Khitan, khitanah, or khataah Circumcision is not once slluded to in the Qur'an The omission is remarkable, and Muslim writors do not attempt any explanation of it It is held to be susuah, or founded upon the customs of the Prophet (Fatāwa 'Alamgiri, vol iv p 287), and dating its institution from the time of Abraham There is no authentic account of the encumcision of Muhammad, but it is asserted by some writers that he was born circumcised This, however, is denied by the most sminent scholars (Ruddu'l-Mukhtar, vol. v p 835)

In the Sakiku 'l Bukhārı, p 981, a short chapter is devoted to the subject of khitān, or "corremcision," in which there are three traditions —

Abū Hurairah relates that the Prophet said one of the observances of Figrab 18 ourcumersion

Abu Hurairah relates that the Prophet said that Abraham was circumcised when he was eighty years old was eighty years old Said ibn Jubair relates that it was asked of Ibn 'Abbas, "How old were you when the Prophet died!" He said, "I was circumcised in the days when it occurred." And Jubair says they did not circumcise in those days until men were full grown.

It is recommended to be performed upon a boy between the ages of seven and twelve, but it is lawful to circumcise a child seven days after his birth. In the case of a convert to laken from some other creed, to whom the operation may be an occasion of great suffering, it can be dispensed with, although it is considered expedient and proper for all new converts to be circumcised. In all cases an adult is expected to circumcise himself, as it is a shame for an adult person to uncover himself to another

The circumcision of females is also allowed, and is commonly practised in Arabia. (Fataua 'Alumgiri, vol iv p 237)

The harber is generally the person employed for the circumoision of boys, and the operation as practised by Muhammadans in India is performed in the following manner A bit of stick is used as a probe, and carried round and round between the glans and prepuce, to ascertain the exact extent of the franum, and that no unnatural adhesions exist The foreskin is then drawn forwards and a pair of forceps, consisting of a couplo of pieces of split bamboo, five or six inches long and a quarter of an meh thick, tied firmly together at one end with a string to the extent of an mch, applied from above in an oblique direction, so as to exolude about an inch and a half of the prepuce above and three-quarters of an inch below The forceps severely grasping it, causes a good deal of pain, but this state of suffering does not continue long, since the next thing to be done is the removal, which is done by one stroke of the razor drawn directly downwards The hamorrhage which follows is inconsiderable and easily stopped by the application of burnt rags and ashes

According to several Muhammadan doctors, there were seventeen of the prophets born in a circumcised state, namely, Zakariyā, Shīs, Idrīs, Yūsuf, Hanzalah, 'Isa, Mūsa, Ādam, Nūh, Shu'aib, Sām, Lūt, Ṣāliḥ, Sulaimān, Yahya, Hūd, and Muhammad. (Durru 'l-Mukhtar p 619)

CLEAN AND UNCLEAN ANI-MALS All quadrupeds that seize their prey with their teeth, and all birds which seize it with their talons, are unlawful (harām), the Prophet having prohibited mankind from eating them Hyenas and foxes, being both included under the class of animals of prey, are unlawful. (This is the doctrine of Abū Hanīfah, but ash-Shāfi helds that they are lawful) Elephants and weasels are also animals of prey Pelicans and kitos are abominable (makrūh), because they devour dead bodies

Crows which feed on grain are mubith, or indifferent, but carrion crows and ravens are unlawful. Abū Hanīfah says the magno is indifferent (mubah), but the Imāni Yusuf says it is abominable (makrūh)

Crocodiles and otters and wasps, and, in general, all insects are makruh, or abominable. The ass and the mule are both unlawful. According to Abū Hamfah and Mālik, horse-flesh is unlawful, but ash-Shāfi says it is indifferent. The flesh of hards is also indifferent.

No animal that lives in the water, except fish, is lawful. But Mālik allows them

Fisher dying of themselves are unlawful, and so are all animals who are not slain by zabāh (Hidānah, vol. 12, p. 74). [Zanau]

zabāb (Hidāyah, vol 11 p 74) [ZABAH]
It must be observed that in Muhammadan law animals are either halāl, "lawful" or muhāb, "indifferent," or makruh, "abomin able" (i e which is condemned but still is lawful), or barām, "unlawful"

CLERGY The Christian clergy are mentioned in the Qur'an with expressions of comparative praise. Sürah v 55 'Thou wilt surely find that the strongost in onmity against those who believe are the Jews, and the idolaters, and thou wilt find those to be nearest in affection to them who say 'We are Christians', that is because there are amongst them priests (quasisin) and monks, and because they are not proud"

The Muhammadans have no class of people

The Muhammadans have no class of people occupying the precise position of priests of clergy, although the Imams, or leaders of prayers in the public assembly, are persons of learning appointed by the congregation I Central Asia, it is usual to set apart a learned man (well skilled in theology) by binding the turban round his head, the act being performed by a leading maulawi or scholar

In Turkey and the western portion of Islam, those who are qualified to give an opinion in religious matters, and to take the lead in guiding the people in spiritual affairs, are called 'ulama' (pl of 'alim'), a term which has, in Hindustan and Central Asia, assumed the form of maulous, a word derived from matula, "lord"

The recognised offices in Ielam corresponding to that of a priest or religious teacher, are, Imain, Mufit, and Qazi Imain (in addition to its being used for the Khalifah, or Caliph, in the Traditions), is the person who leads the public prayers, an office answering to the Latin Antistes. This official is appointed of other by the congregation, or by the parish or section of the town or village, who frequent the mosque in which had leads the prayers. Mufit is the legal adviser, who decides difficult religious questions, and assists the Qazi, or judge. Qazis the judge and the administrator of the law. The appointments of Mufn and Qase are in the hands of the Muslim government of the place. It is usual for the Qasi to take the lead in prayers at funerals, whilst the finam of the parish generally performs the nikāh, or religious service at marriages.

[MARKIAGF]

These offices are not necessarily hereditary, but it is usual in Muhammadan countries for them to pass from father to son in India at the present time there are families who retain the titles of Muffi and Qāzi, although the duties connected with these offices are no longer performed by them.

CAUTION (Arabic Hazar) is enjoined by Muhammad who is related to have said, "A Muslim is not bitten twice at the same hole" 'He is no perfect man who has not fallen into trouble, for there is no skilful physician but experience" When a man has spoken and has then looked first to his right and then to his loft, what he has said is sacred to those present, and they must not disclose it to others" (Mishkat, xxile e xxiii)

COINAGE [MONEY]

COLLECTOR OF TAXES Arabic 'Ashir a collector of the tenths, and 'Amil mutasaddig; a collector of alms

The Khalifah is to allow the officer employed in the collection of the suhāt as much out of it as is in proportion to his labour and will remunerate himself and his assistants (Hadāyuh, vol 1 p 54)

COMMANDMENTS, The Ten.
In the Qur'an it is stated that God gave bloses certain monitions on tables (of stone), and also that he gave him nine clear signs
(See Surah vii 142, and Surah xvii 102)
These two statements have perplexed the commentators very nuch, and every effort is made by them to reconcile the nine signs with the Ton Commandments, although it is evident from the Qur an itself, that the nine clear signs refer to the mirarles of Mesos
[PLAGLES OF EGYPT]

According to the Traditions, the Prophet himself was a little confused it the matter, and may to some extent be responsible for the mistakes of the commentators on his book, for it is related (Minkat book i c u pt 2) that a low came to the Prophet and asked him about the nine (sio) wenders which appeared by the hands of Moses The Prophet said. "Do not associate anything with God do not steal, do not commit adultery, do not kill, do not take an innocent before the king to be killed, do not practise magic, do not take interest, do not scouse an innocent woman of adultery, do not run away in battle, and ospecially for you, O Jows, not to work on the Sabbath" 'Abdu 'I Haog remarks on this tradition that the Jew saked about the nune (sec) muracies (or plagues) of Egypt, and the Prophet gave him the Ten Commandmente

A comparison of the Ten Commandments given by the great Jowish law-giver with those recorded in the above tradition and in the with Sūrah of the Qur'an verse 152, will show how imperfectly the Arabian Prophet was acquainted with the Old Testament scriptures

The commentator Husain, who wrote four hundred years age says the following verses in the Suratu 7-Anam (vi) are those Ten Commandments which in every dispensation are incumbent on mankind, and cannot be abrogated (meaning undoubtedly the Ten Commandments given to Moses)

" SAY Come I will rehearse what your Lord hath made binding on you—(1) that ye assign not aught to Him as partner (2) and that we be good to your parents (3) and that ye slay not your children, because of poverty for them and for you will we provide (4) and that ye come not near to pollutions outward or inward on sud that ye size not anyone whom (led bath oundden rou, unless for This hath he enjoined on a just cause you, to the intent that ye may underst ind (b) And come not night to the substance of the orphan, but to improve it until he come of use (7) and use a full measure, and a just balance. We will not task a soul bayond its ability (8) and when you ve jud ment observo justice even though it no the aftan of & kinsman, (9) and fulfil the coveniet of God. This nath (sod enjoined you for your monition --- And, this is my right way' Follow it then (10) and follow not other paths lest ve be scattered from His path hath He enjoined you, that we may fear Him (Surah vs 152)

COMMANDER OF THE FATIH-FUL Arabic Americ 'l-Mu'nimin' (امير الموسيين) A fitle given by the Muslims in the first instance to the first Khalifah, Abu Bakr, and afterwards retained by succeeding Khalifahs It is assumed by almost any Muhamusadan ruler in the present day

COMMENTARIES [QUE AN ]

COMMERCE Arabic Tyarah (5,147) Commerce and merchandise are said in the Qur'an to use of God" Sursh xvii 68 "It is your Lord who drives the ships for you in the sea that ye may seek after plenty from Him verily He is ever mer ciful to you. And when distress touches you in the sea, those whom ve call upon, except Him, atray away from yon, but when He has brought you safe to shore ye also turn away (from God), for man is ever ungrateful"

Zakāt is due on merchandise of every description, in proportion to 5 ver eeni

COMPANIONS, The [ASHAB]

(8) Muhammadan law makes provision for persons acting under computation, when the person who compels has it in his power to execute what he orders be ne

a king or a thief (Hedayah, vol in p 452.) Eg a person forced into a contract may dissolve it. A Mushim may 'awfully eat food which is prohibited if he be compelled to do so, being threatened with loss of life or limb. Nor is a Muslim guilty of sin who declares himself an unbeliever when the loss of a limb or of life is threatened. According to the Imam Abū Hanīfah, if a Muslim be compelled to divorce his wife, the divorce is valid, but with him the other three Imams are not agreed in this ruling.

CONCUBINE

CONCUBINE Arabic Surriyah (أعربة) pl sarārī The Muḥammadan religion appears to give almost unlimited biceise to concubrage, provided the woman be s elate, and not a free Muslim woman.

These female slaves must be either (1) taken aptive in wai, (2) or purchased by mone; (3) or the descendants of slaves, Even married womer, if taken in war, are, according to an injunction of the Qur'in, according to an injunction of the Qur'in, according to an injunction of the Qur'in, but 28 entirely at the disposal of the Mu lim conqueror "(Unlawful) to you are married women, except such as your right hard possons (se taken in war or purchased slave)." This mistitution of concubrage is founded upon the example of Muhammad impedit who took Rihānah the Jewess as afternient (A m 5) and also Maria the Copt in was sent him as a slave by the Governor of Egypt should a concubine bear nor master a bild, the Unbaumadan law rules that she and her offspring are upon facto free. For a further treatment of this subject, see article this subject, see article this subject, see

Amongst the Shi'ahs, the temporary marnage alled Mut'ah exhibits the worst form of concubinage [WUT'AH ]

It is interesting to compare the condition of the concubine under Muslim law and under the Missaic. Under the law of Moses, a concubinc would generally be either a Hebrew girl bought of her father, or a Gentile captive taken in war. So that whilst the Muham madan law forbids concubinage with a free woman the Mosaic law permitted thand legislated for it. See Exodus axi. "If a man sell has daughter to be a maid-servant, the shall not go but as men-servants do. If she please not her master who hath betrothed her to himself then shall he let her be redeemed, to sell her unto a strange nation he shall have her."

With regard to lemale slaves taken in war, the Mesale law ruled. Deut xxi 10 "When iten goest to war against thine enemies and the Lord thy God hath delivered them into thin hinds, and then nast taken them captive and seest a beautiful woman, and hast a desire unto her, that thou wouldst have not to thy wife, then thou shalt bring her to thine home, &c. And it shall be fit then have no delight in her, then thou shalt let her go whither she will but thou shalt not all her &c.

CONGREGATION The Assembly of people in a mosque is called Jam'ah (a), the term also being used in Afghanistan for the mosque itself

There are special rewards for those Muhammadans who assemble together for the stated prayers, for Muhammad has said, The prayers which are said in a congregation increase the rewards of the worshipper twenty-seven degrees. "Say your prayers in a congregation, far a wolf does not eat the sheep except one has strayed from the flock " (Mishkāt, book iv ch xxiv)

The Sunni style themselves Ahlu Sunnah wa Jam'ah, se 'the people of the traditions and of the congregation," in contradistinction to the Shi'ahs, who do not worship in a con gregation unless the Imam, or leader, be a man entirely free from sin [IMAM]

The word jam'ah 14 also used for an assombly of people collected to decide a question of law or theology the uma being their decision, more frequently called symau 'lummah.

CONSCIENCE There is no word in the Qur'an which exactly expresses the Ohristian conception of conscience word nafa (نفس), which according to Arabic lexicons, expresses very much the same idea as the Hebrew Whi nephesh "life, animal spirit, breath" (Job xl: 21), seems to be used in the Qur'an to convey the meaning of con-science, although English translators render it "soul" Muslim theologisms say there are four kinds of conscionces spoken of in the (1) Nafs lawwamah, the 'selfaccusing soul or conscience' (Stirah lxxv 3) (2) Nafs ammarah, the "soul or conscience prone to evil" (Sürah xii 53) (3) Nafs mutma'ınnah, the "peaceful soul or con prone to evil" (Surah vn 53) science" (Sursh lexxix 12) (4) Nate mulhammah, the "soul or conscience in which is breathed both bad and good" (Surah lxxxiv 27)

It occurs also in the sense of conscience in the Traditions (Mishkat, book 1 ch 1 pt 3)

When anything pricks your soul (nass) for-sake it "Abdu I-Haqu, in his Persian com-mentary on the Mishkat, renders it by zat but the English word conscience would seem to express the precise idea. In Persian Mu hammadan works, as well as in common con versation, the word nafe is now used in its evil sense, of dosne or passion but it must be evident that this is not its Qur'anic mean ing The word Low zimmah, which in later Arabic, together with pass samer, is used to express conscience has in the only pass sage where it occurs in the Qur'an a decidedly different meaning, eg Surah ix 8, 10, where it means clientship. Sale and Rodwell both translate it "faith," but Palmer more accura ely renders it "ties of clientship xxx: 17, "Be moderate in thy walk, and lower thy voice verily the most disagreeable of voices is the voice of asses. Surah in 77, "Speak to men kindly" In the Traditions, Ibn Mas'ud relates that Muharemad said, "May those people go to the fire of hell who speak much"

CONVERSATION The followof instructions are given in the Qur'an reany talking and conversation, Sūrah .

On the subject of conversation, Faqir Jani Muhammad As ad the author of the cele brated ethical work entitled the Akhlak i-

Jalalı p 288, says

"He should not talk much, for it is a sign of levity in feeling and weakness in judgment and tends to lower him in point of considera tion and position We are told that the Pro phet used to observe the strictest medium in his language, so much so, that, in the most protracted interviews you might have counted the words he uttered Buzurg Jamihr used to say, 'When you see a person talking much without occusion, be sure he is out of his Let him not give vent to expres sions till he has determined in his own mind what he is going to say When anyone is relating a story, however well known to the listoner, the latter is not to intimute his acquaintance with it till the narrative is con cluded A question put to others he must not himself reply to it put to a body of which he is a meniber let him not prevent the others and if another is engaged in suswering what himself could answer better, let him keep silence till the other's statement is completed and then give his own but in such sort as not to annoy the former speaker Let him not commence her reply till the Conversa querist's sentence is concluded tions and discussions which do not concern him although held in his presence he is not to interfere in and if people control what they are saving he must not attempt furtively to overhear To his elders he should speak with judgment, pitching his voice at a medium between high and low Should any abstruse topic present itself, he should give it per spicuity by comparison Profixity be should never sim at, when not absolutely required. on the contrary, let it be his endeavour to compress all he has to say Neither should he employ unusual terms or far-fetched figures He should beware of observity and bad lau guage, or if he must needs refer to an inde cent subject, let him be content with allusion oy metaphor Of all things, set him keep clear of a taste for indelicacy, which tends to lower his meeding degrade his respectability and bring him into general disagreement and dislike lict his language upon every occasion correspond with the exigency of his post tion, and if accompanied by gesticulation of the hand or eye or evebrow, let it be only of that graceful sort which his situation valls for Let him never, for right or wrong, engage in disputes with others of the company, least of all with the elders or the traffers of it, and when embarked in such dispute, let him be rigidly observant of the rules of candour

Let him not deal in profound observation beyond the intellect of those he is addressing, but adapt his discourse to the judgment of his hearers. Thus even the Prophet has declared—

"We of the prophetic order are enjoined to address men in the measure of their understandings," and Jesus (blessed be he) said, "Use not wisdom with the unwise to their anneyance," (St. Matthew vii 6?) In all his conversation let him adhere to the ways of courtesy Never let him mimic anyone's gestures, actions, or weids, nor give utterance to the language of menace

"When addressing a great person, let him begin with something ominous of good, as the pormanence of his fortune, felicity, and so

io. th

"From all back-biting, carping, slinder, and falsehood, whether heard or spoken, let him hold it essential to keep clear, nav, even from any partnership with those addicted to such practices. Let him listen more thin he speaks. It was the answer of a wise man to those who asked him why he did act. Because, said he, 'God has given me 'wo ears and only one tongue', which wa as much as to say, 'Hear twice as much to you speak'"

CONVERTS TO THE MUHAM-MADAN RELIGION According to the author of the Hidayah (vol. ii. 170), if a hostile infidel embiaco Islam in a hostile country, his person ia his own and he is not made a slave not can his children be enslaved. His properly is also his own. But it is not so in the case of one who has been hist conquered and then embraces Islam, for his own person and his children become slaves, and his wives are at the mores of the victorious Muslim, whilst his lands also become the property of the State.

COVENANT The word in the Qur'an and the Traditions for God's Covenant with His people is Misaq Muhammad taught, both 1) the Qur'an and in the Iraditions, that in the beginning God called all the souls of manhind together and took a promise (wor'dah) and a covenant (misaq) from them

The account of this transaction is given as follows in the Quran, Surah vii 171 —

"Thy Lord brought forth their descendants from the reins of the sens of Adam and took them to witness against themselves. Am I not said He, 'your Lord' They said, Yes, we witness it' This we did, lest ye should say on the Day of Resurrection, 'Truly of this were we heedless, because uninformed'

"Or lest ye should say, 'thur fathers, indeed, aforetime joined other gods with our God, and we sie their saed after them wilt thou destroy us for the doings of vain mon?'

But the story as told in the Traditions is more graphic -

"Ubai ibn Ka'b iclates, in explanation of the verse in the Suratu I A'raf (verse 171) When God created (the spirits of) the sons of Adam, he collected them together and made them of different tribes and of different appearances, and gave them powers of speech Then they began to speak, and God took from them a promise (wa'dah), and a covenant (misaq), and said, 'Am I not thy Lord?' They all answered and said, 'Thou art,' Then God said, 'Swear by the seven hea vons and the seven earths, and by Adam your father, that you will not say in the resurrection, We did not understand this Know ve therefore that there is no Deity but Me, and there is no God but Me Do not associate anything with Me I will verily send to you your own apostle, who shall remind you of this Promise and of this Covenant, and I will send to you your own books' The sons of Adam then replied, 'We are witnesses that Thou art our Lord (Rabb) and our God (Alluh) There is no Lord but Thee and no God but Thee Then they confessed this and made it known to Adam. Then Adam tooked at them and beheld that there were amongst them those that were rich and poor, handsome and ngly and he said, O Loid why didst Thou not make them all alike?' And the Lord said, Truly I willed it thus in ender that some of my servants may be thankful' I hen Adam saw amongst his posterity, prophets, like unto lamps, and upon these lamps there were lights, and they were appointed by apocial covenants of prophecy (nubawah) and of apostleship (rasalah) And thus it is written in the Quran (Surah NAME 7), Remember we have entered into covenant with the Prophets, with thee Muand with Musa and with Jesus the Son of Main, and we made with them a covenant And (continues Ubai) Josus was amongst the (Mishkūt, Arabic Ed Bābu 'l-Qadr ) spurits

COVERING THE HEAD There is no injunction in either the Quran of Traditions as to a man covering his head during prayers, although it is generally held to be more modest and correct for him to do so

With restance to women, the law is imperative, for Arish in relates that Minhammad said. God accepts for the prayer of an adult woman unless she cover her head? (Mishkat by c. 1x.)

CORRUPTION OF THE SCRIP-TURE: Muhammadans charge the Jews and Christians with having altered their suited books. The word used by Muhammadan writers for this supposed corruption of the sacred Scriptures of the Jews and Christians is Tuhrif

The Imam Fakhru d din Rāzī, in his commentary, Tufsu-i-Kabir explains Takuif to mean "to change alter, or turn aside anything from the tiuth." Muslim divines savithoro are two kinds of takuf, namoly, takuf-i-manaui, a corruption of the meaning, and takuf-i-lafzi, a corruption of the words huhammadan controversialists, when they become acquainted with the nature of the contents of the sacred books of the Jews and Christians, and of the impossibility of reconciling the contents of the Qur'an with those of the sacred Scriptures, charge the Christians with the tahrif-1-lafzi They say the Christians have expunged the word almad from the prophecies, and have insorted the expression "Son of Ged," and the story of the crucifixion, death, and resurrection of our blessed Lord This view, however, is not the one held by the most celebrated of the Muslim commentators

The Imain Muhammad Ismā'ıl al-Bukhatı (p 1127, line 7), records that Ibn 'Abbas said that "the word Tahrif (corruption) signifies to change a thing from its original naturo, and that there is no man who could comupt a single word of what proceeded from God, so that the Jews and Christians could corrupt only by misrepresenting the meaning of the words of God'

Ibn Mazar and Ibn Abi Hatim state, in the commentary known as the Tafsir Durr-i-Manage that they have it on the authority of The Muniyah, that the Tourat (1 e the hooks of Moses), and the Injit (1 e the Gaspels), are in the same state of purity in which they were sont down from heaven and that no alterations had been made in them, but that the Jews were wont to deceive the people by un sound arguments, and by wresting the sense of Scripture

Shah Waliya 'liah, in his commentary the Fauze / Kabir, and also Ibn Abbas, support the same view

This appears to be the correct interpretation of the various verses of the Qui'an charging the lews with having corrupted the meaning of the sacred Souptures

For (xample, Süratu Åli 'linian (iii ), 72 There are certainly some of them who read the Scriptures perversely, that ye may think what they road to be reall in the Scriptures, yet it is not in the Soriptures, and they say this is from God, but it is not from God and they speak that which is false concerning God against their own knowledge

The Imam Fakhru 'd din, in his commentary on this verse, and many others of the same character which occur in the Qur'an, says it refers to a tuhrif-i-ma'nawi, and that st does not mean that the Jews altered the text, but merely that they made alterations

in the course of reading

But whilst all the old commentators, who most probably had never seen a copy of the sacred books of the Jews and Christians, only charge them with a tahrif-1-mamawi, all modern controversialists amongst the Muhammadans contend for a tuhrif-t-lafzi, as being the only solution of the difficulty

In dealing with such opponents the Christian divine will avail himself of the following arguments .

- 1. The Qur'an does not charge the Jews and Christians with corrupting the text of their sacred books, and many learned Mushim commentators admit that such is not the CASO
- 2 The Qur'an asserts that the Holy Scriptures of the Jews and Christians existed in the days of Muhammad, who invariably speaks of them with reverence and respect

3 There now exist manuscripts of the Old and New Testaments of an earlier date than that of Muhammad (A.D 610-632)

4 There are versions of the Old and New Testament now extant, which existed before Muhammad, for example, the Septuaguat, the Latin Vulgate, the Syriac, the Coptic, and the Armenian versions

5 The Hexapla, or Octapla of Origon, which dates four contures before Muhammad, gives various versions of the Old Testament Scrip tures in parallel columns

6 The Syrian Christians of St Thomas, of Malabai and Travancore in the south of India, who were separated from the western world for centuries, possess the same Scrip

7 In the works of Justin Martyr, who hved from AD 10d to 167, there are numerous quotations from our sicred books, which prove that they were exactly the same as those we have now The same may be said of other early Christian writers

Muhammadan controyersishes of the prosent day urgo that the numerous readings which exist in the Christian books are a proof that they have been corrupted. But these do not affect, in the least the main points at issue between the Christian and the Muslim The Divine Sonship of Christ the Father hood of God, the Crucifixion, Death, and Ro surrection of Christ, and the Atonement are all clearly stated in almost every book of the New Testament whilst they are rejected by the Quran

The most plausible of modern objections urged by Muslim divines 14, that the Chie tions have lost the Just which was sent down from heaven to Jesus, and that the New Tontament contains porely the Hades, or Sunach -the maditions handed down by Matthew. Mark Luke, John, Paul, and others It 16. of course a more assertion, unsupported by any proof but it appears to be a line of argument which commends itself to many modern Mushms

CREATION Arabic Khalgah. The following are the allusions to the Creation which ocour in the Qur'un, Surah 1 37 "Of old Wo (God) created the heavens and the earth and all that is between them in six days, and ne wearness touched Us" burah xh 8, 'Do youndoed disbelieve in Him who in two days created the earth? Do ye assign Him equals ? The Lord of the World is He And He nath placed on the earth the firm mountains which tower above it and He hath blessed it, and distributed its nourishments throughout it (for the cravings of all are alike), in four days. Then He applied Himself to the heaven, which was but smoke and to it and to the earth He said, "Come ye, in ebedience or against your will?" and they both said, "Wo come obedient" And He completed them as seven heavens in two days, and in each heaven made known its office, and We furnished the lower heaven with lights and guardian angels. This is the disposition of the Almighty, the all-knowing one." Saraf

xvi. 8 "He created the heavens and the earth to set forth his truth, high let Him be exalted above the gods they join with Him! Man hath He created out of a moist gorm, yet lo! man is an open caviller And the cattle! for you hath He created them, &c , Shall He who hath created be as he who hath not created? Will ye not consider?" Sarah xiii. 2 "It is God who hath reared the heavens without pillars, thou canst hohold, then seated Himself upon His throne and imposed laws on the sun and moon, each travelleth to its appointeth goal He ordereth all things Ho maketh His signs clear Haply yo will have firm faith in a meeting with your Lord And He it is who hath outstretched the earth, and placed on it the firm meuntains, and rivers and of every fruit He hath placed on it two kinds. He causeth the night to enshroud the day" Surah xxxv 12 'God created you of dust-then of the gorms of life—then made you two 'exes

According to the Traditions (Mishkat, xxiv o 1 pt. 8), God created the earth on Saturday, the hills on Sunday, the trees on Monday, all unpleasant things on Tuesday, the light on Wednesday, the beasts on Thursday, and Adam, who was the last of Creation, was created after the time of afternoon prayers on

Friday

CREED The Muhammadan Creed, or Kalımatı ish-shahādah (shortly Kalımah) 18 the well-known formula -

"I testify that there is no deity but (iod, and Muhammad is the Apostle of God"

It is the belief of Muhammadans that the first part of this creed, which is called the naf i wa isbat, namely, "The is is no derty but God," has been the expression of behof or every prophet amos the days of Adam, and that the second portion has been changed according to the dispensation, for example, that in the days of Moses it would be "There is no dorty but God and Moses is the Converser with God ' In the Christian dispensation it was "There is no deity but God, and Jesus is the Spirit of God."

Jabur relates that Muhammad said "the keys of Paradise are bearing witness that there is no deity but God

The recital of the Kalimah, or Creed 19 the first of five pillars of practical religion in Islam, and when anyone is converted to Islam he is required to repeat this formula and the following are the conditions required of every Muelim with reference to i'

I That it shall be repeated aloud, at least once in a life-timo 2 That the meaning of it shall be fully undorstood 8 That it shall be believed in 'by the beart.

That it shall be professed until death

5 That it shall be recited correctly 6 That it shall be always professed and declared without hesitation.

(Sharna 'l- Wuqiyah)

OREMATION BURNING THE DEAD ]

CRESCENT The figure of the crescent is the Turkish symbol, and hence it has been regarded by Europeans as the spe-cial omblem of the Muhammadan religion, although it is unknown to the Muhammadans of the East This figure, however, did not originate with the Turks, but it was the symbol of sovereignty in the city of Byzan tium previous to the Muslim conquest, as may be seen from the medals struck in honour of Augustus Trajan and others. The crescent has been the symbol of three dif ferent orders of knighthood, the first or which was instituted by Charles I, King of Naples, AD 1268, the second in 1448 by René of Anjon, the third by Sultan Selim in 1801. It must have been adopted by Muhammadans for the first time upon the overthrow of the Byzantine Empire by Muhammad If and it is now generally used by the Turks as the insignia of their creed

CROCODILE Arabic The flesh of a crocodile is unlawful for food to a Muhammadan (Hamilton's Ilidayah, IV 74)

CROSS, The Arabac As-Salib The Qur'an demes the erucifixion of our blessed Lord [CRUCIFIXION] and it is related by al Waqidi that Muhammand had such a repugnance to the form of the cress that he broke everything brought into his house with that figure upon it (Muir, m 61) According to Aby Huranah, the Prophst and "I swear by he iven it is near, when Jesus the Son of Mary will descend from heaven upon your people, a just king and He will break the cross, and kill the swine (Mishkat, xxiii c vi) Tho Imam Abu I usul says that if a cross or a crucifix is stolen from a church, amputation (the punshment for theft) is not incorred but if it is stolen from a private dwelling it is theft. (Hamilton's Hidayah vol ii p 90)

ORUCIFIXION The Crucifixion of the Lord Jesus Christ is denied by the teaching of the Qui'an [JERL SCHRIST] It is a primehracht sanotioned by the Muhammadan religion for highway robbers (Bamilton's Hidayah, vol 11 131)

A striking instance CRUELTY of the orusity of Muhammad's character occurs in a tradition given in the Sahihu ! Bulliars (p 1019) Anas relates, 'Some of the people of the tribe of 'Ukl came to the Prophet and embraced Islam, but the air of at Madiash did not agree with them, and they wented to leave the place And the Prophet ordered them to go where the camels given in alms were assembled, and to druk their milk which they did, and recovered from their But after this they became apoarchness states, and renounced Islam, and stold the cameis Then the Prophet sent some people after them, and they were sexed and brought back to al-Madinah Then the Prophet ordered their hands and their feet to be cut off as a punishment for theft, and their eyes to be pulled out But the Prophet did not stop the bleeding, and they died" And in another it reads, "The Prophet ordered hot irons to be drawn across their eves, and then to be cast on the plan of al-Madinah and when they asked for water it was not given them, and they died "

Su William Mur (vol 17 p 307) savs Magnahimity or moderation are nowhere discernible as features in the conduct of Muhammad towards such of his enemies as failed to tender a timely allegiance. Over the bodies of the Quraish who fell at Badr he prisoners, accused of no crime but of scepticism and political opposition, were deliberately executed at his command. The Prince of Khaibar, after being subjected to inhuman torture for the purpose of discovering the treasures of his tribe, was, with his cousin, put to death on the pretext of having trea-cherously concealed them, and his wife was led was captive to the tent of the conqueror Sentence of exile was enforced by Muhammad with rigorous severity on two whole lewish tribes at al-Madinah, and of a third likewise his neighbours the women and children were sold into distant captivity, while the men, amounting to several hundreds, exulted with savage satisfaction, an' several personal personal savage satisfaction, an' several personal savage satisfaction.

D.

ادابة الارض) Let "The Reptile of the Earth" A moneter who snall arise in the last day, and shall cry unto the people of the earth that mankind have not bolieved in the revelations of God (vide Qur'an, Sûrah xxvu 84) "And when sentence falls upon them we will bring forth a beast out of the earth that shall speak to them and sav, 'Men of our signs would not be suro'" According to the Traditions he will be the third sign of the coming resurrec tion, and will come forth from the mountain of Sufah (Meshkat, xxiii c iv ) Both Salo and Rodwell have confounded the Dabbatu 1-Arz with Al-Jassasah, the spy mentioned in a tradition by Fatimah (Mishkat xxiii c iv ), and which is held to be a demon now in existence [AL-JASSASAH] For i description of the Dabbah see the article on the RESURRECTION

DABÜR (ديور) "The West wind? A term used by the sufis to express the lust of the flesh, and its overwhelm ing power in the heart of man (Abdu r-Bazzāq's Dictionary of Suf : Terms )

DAHHA (lass) Plural of the Persian &s, ten The ten days of the Muharram, during which public mourning for 'All and his sons is observed by Shrah Muhammadans (Wilson's Glossary of Indian Terms)

AD-DAHR (الدهر) "A long space of time" A title given to the Lxxvith chapter of the Qur'au, called also Suratu 'I-Insan, "The Chapter of Man" The title is taken from the first verse of the chapter 4 Did not there pass over man a long space of tune?"

DAHRI (دهری) One who believes in the eternity of matter and asserts that the duration of this world is from eternity, and demes the Day of Resurrection and Judg ment an Atheist (Ghryāsu 'l Lughāt, in lorn)

DAIN (نين) A debt contracted with some definite term fixed for repayment as distinguished from qurz, which is used for a loan given without any fixed term for repayment [DEBT]

(دجال) DAJJĀI، (دجال)  $L_{t}$ The name given in the Hadis to lying cortain religious impostors who shall appear in the world a term equivalent to our use of the word Antichrist Muhammad is related to have and there would be about thirty

The Masshu d Dajjal, or the lying Christ," it is said, will be the last of the Dajjals for in account of whom refer to article on MASHIU 'D DAJJAL.

DALIL (دليل) "An argument, a proof" Dalil burhan, "a convincing argu "An argument, a ment" Dali qut i, 'u decisive proof

DAMASCUS Arabic Dimashq According to Jalalu 'd din Suyuti Damas Jerusalem being the first, and some have thought it must be the "Iram of the columns" mentioned in the Qur'an, Sürah laxxix 6, although this is not the view of most Muslim writers [IRAM] Damasons is not mentioned in the Qur'an With regard to the date of the erection of the city, Muhammadan historians differ Some say it was built by a slave named Dimashq, who belonged to Abraham, having been given to the patriarch by Nimrod, others say Dimashq was a slave belonging to Alexander the Great, and that the city was built in his day

Damascus was taken by Khalid in the reign of the Khalifah 'Umar, A.H 18, and it became the capital of the Umaiyade Khalifahe under Mu'awiyah, A.H. 41, and remained the chief city of lelam until the fall of that dynasty, A.H 182, when the Abbassides moved their capital first to al-Küfah and then to Bagdad

The great mosque at Damascus was creeted by 'Abdu 'I-Malik ibn Marwan, the fifth Khalifah of the Umaiyades It was commenced a H 86, and finished in ten years, being creeted on the runs of an ancient Greek temple and of a Christian church

The secount as given by Islaiu d din Suyūķi, in his History of the Temple of Jerusalem, is our our and interesting, showing that for a time the Muslims and Christians wor shipped in the same building together

"Here (in Damuscus) all the servants of God joined, and built a church to worship God in Some say however, that this church wes built by the Oreeks for 'Abdu 'liah Ibn 'Abbas, baving marched against Damascus and besieged it, demolished the walls after he had entered the city by storm. Then there fell down a stone having certain keters inscribed thereon in the Greek language. They therefore sent to bring a certain mank who could read Greek, but he said, Bring me in pitch the impression of the letters on the stone, which he found to be as follows We anto thee, mother of shamo' Pious is he who inflicts upon thee with usury the ill which God designs for thee in retribution Woo unto thee from five eyes who shall destroy thy wall after four thousand years ' Now, 'Abdu'ilah's entire name was Abdu Ilah Ibn 'Alı Ibn 'Abdı Than Ibn 'Abbas Ibn 'Abdu 'l-Muqalhb

'Again, the historian Ibn Isabir says When God had granted unto the Muslims the possession is conquerors of the whole of Syria He granted them among other cities that of Damascus with its dependencies Thus God sent down His mercy upon them, and the commander-in chief of the army (hesioging Damascus), who was either Ahū 'Ubaidah or, as some say, Khalid Ibn al-Walid, wrote a treaty of capitulation and articles of sur render By these he settled and appointed fourteen churches to remain in the hands of the Muslims The church of which we have spoken above was left open and free for future consideration. This was on the pleathat Khalid had entered the city at the swords point by the eastern gate, but that the Christians at the same time were allowed to surrender by Abū 'Ubaidab, who entered at the western gate, opened under articles This caused dissension, but at length it was agreed that half the place should be regarded as having capitulated and half as stormed

"The Muslims therefore took this church and Abū 'Uhaidah made it into a mosque lie was afterwards appointed Emir of Syria, and was the first who prayed hore, all the company of Companions praving after him in the open area now called the Companions. Tower, but the wall must then have been cut through, hard by the leaning tower if the Companions really prayed in the 'blossed presenct' At his the Christians and Muslims entered by the same gate which was 'the gate of Adarston and Prayer,' over against the Qiblish, where the great tower now stands Afterwards the Christians changed and went into their church by the gate facing the west, the Muslims taking the right-hand mosque But the Christians were not sufferred to chant aloud, or recite their books or strike their bells (or clappers), in order to honous the Companions with reverence and fear Also Mu'āwiyah built in his days a house for the Amīr, right opposite the mosque Hero he built a green chapol This pulace was noted for its perfection Here Muswiyah daelt forty years, nor did this state of things change from AH 14 to AH 86 But Al Walid Ibn 'Abdu 'l-Malik began to think of dostroying the churches, and of adding some to those already in the hands of the Muslims, so as to construct one great mosque, and this because some of the Mushims were sore troubled by hearing the recitations of the Christians from the Gospel, and then uplifted veices in prayer signed therefore, to remove them from the Muslims and to annex this spot to the other, so as to make one great mosque Therefore he called for the Christians, and asked them whether they would depart from those places which were in their hands, receiving in exchange greater portions in hea thereof, and also retaining four churches not mentioned in the treaty—the Church of Maria, the Church of the Grucified, just within the eastern gate, the church Tallu i Habn, and the Church of the Giorious Mother, occupied proviously by the burnishers This, however, they vahe-mently refused to do Therenpon the Rhalifah said, 'Bring me then the treaty which you possess since the time of the Com panions' They brought it, therefore, and it was read in al Walld's presence, when, lol the Church of Thomas, outside the gate of Thomas hard by the river did not enter into the treaty, and was one of those called 'the greater of churches left upon' (for future disposal) 'There' he said 'this will I destroy and convert it into a mosque' said, 'Nay let it slone, O commander of the Faithful, evon although not montioned among the churchos, for we are content that you take the chapel of the church To this agreement, then, he hold them and received from them the Quinhah (or chapel vault, dome) of the church Then he summoned workmen able to pull down, and assembled all the smirs, chiefs, and great men. But the Christian bishops and priests coming, said, 'O commander of the Faithful, we find in our books that whoseever shall demolish this church will go mad Then said the Khali fall, 'And I am very willing to be mad with God a mapiration, therefore no one shall demolish it before me' Then he ascended the western tower, which had two spires, and contained a monastic cell Here he found a monk, whom he ordered to descend, The monk making difficulties, and lingering al Walid took him by the back of his neck, and ceased not pushing him until he had thrown him down stairs ascended to the most lofty spot in the church, above the great sitar, called 'the Alter of the Martyrs.' Here he seized the ends of his sash, which was of a bright yellow colour, and fixed them into his belt. Taking, then, an axe into his hand, he struck against tho very topmost stone, and brought it down Then he called the amirs, and desired them to pull down the building as quickly as pos-sible. Hereupon all the Muslims shouted, Hereupon all the Muslims shouted, God is great i three times, also the Christians loudly cried out with their wailing and woe upon the steps of Jarrun where they had assembled. Al-Walid therefore desired the commander of his guard to inflict blows upon them until they should depart, which he did. The Muslims then demolished all that the Christians had built in the groat square here—alters and buildings and closstersuntil the whole square was one flat surface He then resolved to build a splendid pile unrivalled for beauty of architecture, which none could hereafter eurpass Al-Walid therefore commissioned the most emment architects and mathematicians to build the mosque, according to the model they most preferred. His brother chiefly moved and stirred him up to this undertaking, and next to hun presided Sulaiman 'Abdu 'l-Malik It is said that al-Walid sent to the king of Greece to demand stone-masons and other workmen, for the purpose of building this mosque in the way he desired, sending word, that if the king refused, he would overrun his territory with his army, and reduce to utter rum every church in his dominions, even the Church of the Holy City, and the Church of Edessa, and utterly destroy every vestige The king of of the Greeks still remaining Greece, sent, therefore, numerous weakmen with a lotter, expressing honseli thus thy father knoweth what then doost, and permite it, then truly I accuse him of disgraceful conduct, and blame him more than thee If he understandeth it not, but thou only art conscious then I blame thee above him When the letter camo to al-Walid, he wished to reply unto it, and assembled several per sons for consultation One of these was a well-known poet, who said 'I will answer him, O Commander of the Faithfull out of the Book of God' So said al-Walid, 'Where, then is that answer?' He replied this verse, David and Solomon, lol they assume a right to the corn-held, a right to the place where the people are shearing their sheep Also, we are witnesses of their decree, for Solomon hath given us to understand it, and both (David and Solomon) have come to us as judges and learned men' Al-Walid, by this reply, caused great surprise to the king of Grosos Al-Firsnk alludes to this in these verses .

"I have made a separation between the Christians and their churches, and between the people who shine and those who are in darkness."

"I neglected for a season thus to apportion their happiness, I being a precrastinating vindicator of their grievances" dieator of their grievances"

"Thy Lord hath made thee to resolve upon removing their churches from those mosques wherein good words are recited"

"Whilst they were together in one place, some were praying and prostrating themselves on their faces, slightly separated from others who behold I were adoring God and idols"

"How shall the people of the Cross units to ring their bells, when the reading of the Qur'an is perpetually intermingled?"

"I resolved then to remove them, just as did those wise men when they decreed themselves a right to the seed-field and the flocks"

"When al-Walid resolved to build the chapel which is in the midst of the closser, called the Vulture's Chapel' (a name given to it by the country-people, because the porticos on each side look like two winge), he dug deep at the four corners of the intended chapel until they came to sweet and impid water Here they first placed the foundation of the wall of the vineyard Upon this they built with stone, and when the four corners were of sufficient height, they then built thereon the chapel, but it fell down again Then said al-Walid to some one of the mathomaticians, who well knew the pian of the Valtures Chapel, I wish you to build this chapel, for the injunction of God hath been given me and I am confident that no one but thyself may build it' He therefore built the four corners, and covered them with wicker, and disapposed for a whole year, al-Walid not knowing where he was After a year, al-Walid dag down to the four corner foundations Then he (ie the architect) said, Do not be in a hurry, O commander of the Faithful! Then he found the mathematician, who had a man's head with bim came to the four corners and uncovered the wicker work, and lo! all that had been built above the earth had fallen down, until they were on a level with the earth So he said, 'From this (work have I come)' Then he preceeded to build and hrmly fixed and supported a beautiful fabric

"Some porson also sail al-Walid wished to construct a brilliant chapel of pure gold, whereby the rank of the mosque might be magnified Hereupon the superintendent said unto him, You cannot effect this.' Upon which al-Walid struck him lifty blows with a whip, saying, 'Am I then incapable of effecting this?' The man replied, 'Certainly' ing this?' Then he said, 'I will, then, find out a way to know the truth Bring forth all the gold know the trnth Bring forth all the gold thon hast', which he did and al-Walid maited it, and formed it into one large brick, which contained one thousand pieces of gold But the man said, 'O Commander of the Faithfull we shall require so many thousand bricks of this sort, if thou dost possess them nor will this suffice for our work Al-Walid seeing that he was true and just, presented him with fifty dinars, and when al-Walid roofed the great precinct, he adorned the roof, as well as the whole extent of 'he pave ment, with a surface of gold. Some of al-Walid's family also said unto him, 'They who come after thee will emulate thee in rendering the outer roof of this mosque more commodious every year' Upon this al Walid ordered all the lead of the country to be collected together, in order to construct therewith an exterior outward covering, answering to the interior which should be light upon the roof, and on the side-posts that supported the roof So they collected lead throughout all Syria and many other countries, and whilst they wore returning, they met with a certain woman who possessed a weight of lead—a weight of many talents. They began to chaffer with the woman for it, but she refused to sell it, except for its weight in silver So they wrote to the Commander of the Faithful in forming him of this, who replied. Buy it from her, even for its weight in silver' When, then, they offered this sum unto her, she said, 'Now that you have agreed to my proposal, and are satisfied to give the weight in silver, I give the weight as an offering unto God to serve for the reef of the mosque? Heroupon they marked one corner of the weight with the impression of a seal, 'This is God's? is Gods' Some say the woman was an Israelite, some say that they sought for lead in open ditches or holes, and came to a stone sepulchie, within which was a leaden sepuichre, whence they hought forth a dead body, and laid it on the ground Whilst diagging it out, the bead fell to the ground, and the neck being broken, much blood flowed forth from the mouth which terrified them so much, that they rapidly fled tway This 19 said to have been the hurial-place of King Saul Also, the guardian of the mesque como unto al Walid and said O Commander of the Faithful' men say that al Walid hath ex pended the money of the treasury unjustly. Hereupon al-Walid de-red that all the people should be summoned to prayer all were assembled al-Waltd mounted the pulpit and said 'Such ind such reports have reached me' Then be said, 'O 'Umar Ibn al-Muhājir' stand up and produce the money of the treasury Now it was carried upon mulos Therefore pieces of hide being placed in the midst, beneath the chapel he poured out all the gold and silver, to such a height that those who stood on either side could not see one another Scales being then brought out, the whole was weighed when it was found that the amount would suffice for the public use for three years to come, even if nothing were added to the amount Then all the people rejoiced praising and glorifying God for this Then said the Khalifah, O people of Damascus I you boast among mon of four things, of your air, of your water, of your cheerfulness, and of your gracefulness Would that you would add to these a fifth, and become of the number of those who plaise God, and are liberal in his service. Would God, and are liberal in his service that, thus changing, you would become thankful suppliants

In the Qiblah of this mosque were three golden scimitars, enamelled in lapis lazuli. Upon each soimitar was engraved the following sentence. In the name of God, the Merciful and Compassionate! There is no god but God. He is the everliving, the self-subsisting Being, who never slumbers nor eleeps There is no god but God He has no partner We will never adors any but our Lord, the one God Onr faith 14 Islam, and our Prophet is Muhammad This mosque was built, and the churches which stood on the site of the chapel were demonshed, by order of the servant of God the Commander of the Faithful, al-Walid Ibn 'Abdu 'l Malık Ibn Marwan in the month Zū'l-Qa'dab, a H. 86' Upon another tablet was unscribed the whole of the first chapter of the Quran Hers also were depicted the stars then the morning twilight, then the spiral course of the sun, then the way of living which obtained after the arrival of the Faithful at Damascus, Also, it is said, that all the floor of this mosque was divided into small slabs, and that the stone (carving) of the walls extended to the utmost pinabove this were splendid enamelled knobs of green, 1ed, blue and white, whereby were figured and expressed all countries and regions, especially the Kaibah, above the tower, also all the countries to the right and left (cf Makkah), and all the most boautiful shinks and frees of every region, famous ei her for their fruits or flowers. The roof nad cornices of gold Here was suspended a chem of gold and silver, which branched off into seven separate lights. In the tower of the Companions were two stones-beryls (nome say they were the jewels called pearls), they were called 'Tre Little Ones' When the candles were put out, they inflamed the eyes by their brilliant light. In the time of al-Amin Ibn ar-Rashid, Sulaiman, captain of the guard was sent by that Khalifah to Damascus, to steal those stones and bring them to him, which he did When al-Ma'niun dis-covered this he sent them to Damascue, as a proof of his brother's misconduct afterwards again vanished, and in their place is a glass vessel in this mosque all the gates from the dome (sallery) unto the en trance, are open, and have uo bars or locks Over each is a loose curtain. In like manner there is a curtain upon all the walls as far as the bases of the golden vine, above which are the enumelled knobs. The capitals of the pillars were thickly covered with dead gilding Here were also small galleries, to look down from, enclosed on the four sides of the akirting wall Al-Walid also built the northern minaret, now called 'the Bride-groums Tewer As to the western gallery, that existed many ages before, in each corner of this was a cell, raised upon very lofty walls, and used by the Greeks as an observatory The two northern of these fell, and the two opposite remained. In the year 740, part of the eastern had been burnt. It then fell down, but was built up anew out of the Christians' money, because they had meditated the destruction (of it) by fire It then was restored after a most beautiful plan. This is the tower (but God knows) upon which Jesus son of Maria will alight, for Muhammad is reported to have said, 'I saw Jesus son of Maria come forth from near the white minaret, east of the mosque, placing his hands upon the wings of two angels, firmly bound to him. Upon him was the Divine glory (the Shechinah) He was marked by the red tinge of baptism. This is the mark of original sin' lesus (it is also said) shall come forth from the White Tower by the eastern gate, and shall enter the mosque Then shall the word come forth for Jesus to ught with Antichrist at the corner of the city, as long as it shall please God Now, when this mosque (the slaves' inneque) was completed, there was not to be found upon the face of the earth a building more beau tiful, more splendid, more graceful, than this On whatever side, or area, or place, the spec tator looked, he still thought that side or spot the most preferable for boauty In this mosque were certain talismans, placea therein since the time of the Greeks, so that no veno mons or stinging creature could by any means obtain entrance into this euclosure, neither sorpent, scorpion, bostle, noi spider They say, also, that neither sparrows not pigeous built their nests there, nor was anything to be found there which could annoy people or all, of those talismans were hurnt by the fire that consumed the mosque, which fire took place in the night of Shaban An 461 Al-Walld frequently prayed in the mesque. One night (it is related) he said to his people. I wish to pray to-night in the mesque, let no one remain there whilst I pray therein.' So when he came unto the gate of the Two Moments, he desucd the gato to be opened, and entering in, he saw a man standing between the gate of the Two Momenta and the gate of St George, praying He was rather neares to the gate of St George than to the other So the Khalifah said unto his people, Did I not charge you that no one should remain whilst I was play-ing in the mosque?' Then one of them said, O Commander of the Faithful! this is St George, who prays every night in the mosque' Again, one prayer in this mosque equals thirty thousand prayers

' Again A certain man, going out of the gate of the mosque which is non the Jairun niet Ka'b the scribe who said, 'Whither bound! He replied 'To the Baitu I Mu qaddas, therein to pray' Then said Kab, 'I will show you a spot whosever prayeth shall receive the same blessings as if he prayed in the Baitu 'l Muqaddas man, therefore, went with him. Then Kab showed but the space between the little gate from whence you go to Abyssmus that is, the space covered by the sich of the gate containing about one hundred yards, to the west, and said, 'Whose prayeth within those two points shall be regarded as praying within the Baita i-Muquddas Now, this spot a said to be a spot fit to be sought by pilgrims Here, it is asserted, is the bend of John son of Zachanes (Peace be with lum') For al-Walid Ibn Muslim being desired to show where John's bead was to be found pointed with his hand to the plastered pillar—the fourth from the east corner Zaid Ibn Wakad says, 'At the time it was proposed to build the mosque of Damascus, I saw the head of John, son of Zacharias, brought forth from undermeath one of the corners of the chapel. The hair of the head was unchanged ' He says in mother place, 'Being nominated by al-Walid superintendent of the building, we found a cave of which discovery we informed al Walid He came, therefore, unto us at night, with a wax taper in his hand Upon descending we found an elaborately carved little shrine, three within three (ie within the first a second, within the second a third). Within this last was a sarcophagus, and within this a casket, within which was the head of John, son of Zacharias Over the casket was written, 'Hore is the head of John, son of Zacharias Peace be with him!" al-Walids command we restored the head to the spot whence it had been taken. The pillars which are above this spot are inclined obliquely to the others to distinguish the place. There is also over it a pillar with a head in plaster' He asserts again, that when the happy event occurred of the conquest of Damascus a certain person went up the stairs which led to the church, then standing where the mosque now stands Here the blood of John, son of Zaoharias was seen to flow in torrents and to boil up, nor did the blood sink down and bocome still until that seventy thousand had been slain over him. The spot where the head was found is now called al-Sakasak (perhaps, the Nail of the Narrow Cave)

"In the days of 'Umar, the Christians requested that be would confirm their claim to the right of meeting in those places which al Walid had taken from them and converted into mesques. They, therefore, claimed the whole inner area as their own from 'Umar The latter thought it right to restore them what al-Walid had taken from them, but upon examination he found that the churches without the suburbs were not comprehended in the articles of sutrepiler by the Compa nions, such, for example as the great Church of the Monastery of Observants of Carmelites. the Church of the Convent behind the Church of St Thomas, and all the churches of the neighbouring villages 'Umai therefore gave them the choice ofther to restore them the churches they demanded, demolishing in that case all the other churches or to leave those churches unmolested and to receive from them a full consent to the free use of the open space by the Muslims To this latter propossi they, after three days deliberation, agreed, and proper writings were drawn up on both sides. They gave the Muslims a deed of grant, and Uniar gave them full security and assurance of protection Nothing was to be compared to this mesque is said to be one of the strongholds of Paradiso, and that no inhalutant of Damascus would long for Paradise when he looks upon his besutiful mosque. Al Ma mun came to Damascus in company with his brother al-Mutasum, and the Quzi Yahya Ibn Aksam Whilst viewing the mosque he said, 'What is the most wondrous sight here?' His brother said, 'These offerings and pledges.' The Qāzī said, 'The marble and the columns 'Then said al Ma'mūn, 'The most wondrous thing to me is, whether any other could be built at all like this'" (Hist Temple of Jerusalem, by Jalālu'd din, translated by Reynolds, p. 407)

DANCING Arabic Rags
Dancing is generally held to be unlawful, although it does not appear to be forbidden in either the Qur'an or the Traditions, but according to al Bukhārī (Arabic ed p 135), the Prophet expressly permitted it on the day of the great festival Those who hold it to be unlawful quote the following verse from the Qui'an, Sūr ih xvii 39, "Walk not proudly on the earth," as a prohibition, although it does not seem to refer to the subject.

The Sufis make dancing a religious exercise, but the Sunni Muslims consider it unlawful (Hidayatu's-Sā'il, p 107)

DANIEL Arabic Danival prophet celebrated amongst Muhammadans as an interpreter of dreams He is not mentioned in either the Quran or the Traditions, but in the Qasasu 'l-Ambiya' p 281, it is etated that in the roign of Bukhin Nassar (Nebuchadnezzor) he was imprisoned and when he was in prison, the king had a dream which he had forgotten, and bearing that Daniel was an interpreter of dreams, he sent for him When Daniel was in the presence of the King he refused to prostrate, saving, it was lawful to prostrate alone to the Loid Almighty For this he nearly lost his life, but was spared to interpret the king's dream, which was as follows "He saw a great idol, the head of which was of gold, above tho navel of silver, below the navel of copper, the legs of iron, and the feet of clay And aud denly a stone fell from heaven upon the idel and ground it to powder, and muxed all the substances, so that the wind blew them in all directions, but the stone grew gradually, and to such an extent that if covered the whole earth " The interpretation of it, as given by Daniel is said to be this The idol represented different nations, the gold was the kingdom of Nebuchadnezzar, the silver the kingdom of his son, the copper the Romans, the iron the Persians, and the clay the tribe Zauzan, from which the kings of Persia and Rome should be descended, the great stone being a roligion which should spread itself over the whole earth in the last day

DAR ()(3) "A house, dwelling, habitation, land, country" A word which is used in various combinations, eg

ad Der The abode—the city of al-Madinah ad-Daram The two abodes—this world and the next

Darw'l-udab A seat of learning, a university

The shade which re-

Daru'l-baga' The abode which remainsth—heaven.

Daru'l-fana The abode which passeth away—earth

Daru'l-ghurur The abode of delusion—the world

Dāru'l-hum The vale of tears—the earth

Duru 'l-18tila' The abode of temptation—the world

Daru'l-khilafah The seat of the Imam or Khalifah—capital
Daru'l-kutub Alibrary

Dāru 'l-kutub' A library
Dāru 'l-khuld' The home of eternity—
Paradise

ad Dāru'n-na'ım The blossed abode—Paradise

Daru 'I-quza' The Qazi's court
Daru 'sh-shufa' A hospital

The abode of joy -- Paradise

Daru 'z-zarb A mint.

Daru z-ziyafah A banqueting room

DARU L BAWAR. DARU T HARR DARU

[DARU L BAWAR, DAPU T HARB DARU L-MLAM, DARU L QAHAR, DAHU S SALAM, DARU S SALTANAH, DARU S SAWAB.]

DARGAH (a) A royal court (Persian). In India it is a term used for a Muhammadan shi ine or tomb of some isputed hely person, and which is the object of pilgrimage and adoration (Wilson's Clossary of Indian Ferms)

DARU 'L-BAWAR (مار البوار) Lat "The abode of perdition." A term used for hell in the Quran, Suran xiv 33 "And have made their people to alight at the abode of perdition"

DARU 'L-HARB (-), "The land of wariare According to the Dictionary Chiyasu I-Laghat, Daru 'l harb is "a country brionging to infidels which has not been subdued by Islam' According to the Camüs it is 'a country in which peachast not been picclaimed between Muslims and unbelievers"

In the Futawa' Alumgiri, vol. 11 p 854, 1t 18 written that a Daru I harb becomes a Daru Y Islam on one condition, namely, the promulgution of the edicts of Islam. The Imam Muhammad, in his book called the Ziyadah, says a Daru 'l Islam again becomes a Daru 'l harb, according to Abu Hanifah, on three conditions, namely (1) That the edicte of the unbelievers he promulgated and the edicts of Islam be suppressed, (2) That the country in question be adjoining a Dars I harb and no other Muslim country lie between them (that is, when the duty of Jihad or religious was becomes incumbent on them, and they have not the power to carry it on) (3) That no protection (aman) remains for either a Muslim or a zimmi, viz that amanu 'l-awwal, or that first protection which was given them when the country was first conquered by Islam. Tho imams Yusuf and Muhammad both say that when the edicts of unbelievers are promulgated in a country, it is sufficient to consti-

In the Raddu 'l-Mukhtar, vol in p 891, it is stated, "If the edicts of Islam remain in force, together with the edicts of the unbelievers, then the country cannot be said to be a Dāru 'l-karb'" The important question as to whether a country in the position of Hindustan may be considered a Dāru 'l-Islām or a Dāru 'l-karb has been fully discussed by Dr W W Hunter, of the Bengal Civil Service, in his work entitled, Indian Musulmāns, which is the result of careful inquiry as to the necessary conditions of a Jihād, or a Crescentade, instituted at the time of the excitement which existed in India in 1870-71, in consequence of a Wahhābī conspiracy for the overthrow of Christian rule in that country. The whole matter, according to the Sunni Musulmāns, hinges upon the question whether India is Dāru 'l-harb, "a land of warfare," or Dāru 'l-Islām, "a land of Islām."

The Muftis belonging to the Hanifi and Shaff's sects at Makkah decided that, "as long as even some of the peculiar observances of Islam prevail in a country, it is Duru'l Islam"

The decision of the Mufti of the Mäliki sect was very similar, being to the following effect. "A country does not become Dāru 'l harb as soon as it passes into the hands of the infidels, but when all or most of the injunctions of Islam disappear therefrom."

The law doctors of North India decided that "the absence of protection and liberty to Musulmans is essential in a Jihād, or religious war, and also that there should be a probability of victory to the armies of Islam"

The Shi'ah decision on the subject was as follows "A Jihād is lawful only when the armies of Islām are led by the rightful Imām, when arms and ammunitions of war and experienced warriors are ready, when it is against the enemies of God, when he who makes war is in possession of his reason, and when he has secured the permission of his parents, and has sufficient money to meet the expenses of his informer."

expenses of his journey"

The Sunnis and Shi'ahs alike believe in the eventual triumph of Islam, when the whole world shall become followers of the Prophet of Arabia, but whilst the Sunnis are, of course, ready to undertake the accomplishment of this great end, 'whenever there is a probability of victory to the Musulmans" the Shi'ahs, true to the one great principle of their sect, must wait until the appearance of a rightful Imam [JIHAD] DARU 'L-ISLAM (حار الله Land of Islam." According to the Raddu'l-Mukhtar, vol. 111. p 391, it is a country in which the edicts of Islam are fully promulgated

In a state brought under Musiums, all those who do not embrace the faith are placed under certain disabilities. They can worship God according to their own customs, provided they are not idelaters; but it must be done without any ostentation, and, whilst churches and synagogues may be repaired, no new place of worship can be erected. "The construction of churches, or synagogue,, in Muslim territory is unlawful, this being forbidden in the Traditions, but if places of worship helonging to Jews, or Christians, be destroyed, or fall into decay, they are at liberty to repair them, because buildings cannot endure for ever"

Idol temples must be destroyed, and idolatry suppressed by force in all countries ruled according to strict Muslim law (Hediyah vol. 11 p 219)

For further particulars see article DARU

"The abode that abideth" An expression which occurs in the Qur'an, Surah z. 42 "O my people! this present life is only a passing joy, but the life to come is the mansion that abideth."

"The abode of peace" An expression which occurs in the Qur'an, Sürah vi 127 'For them is a duelling of peace with their Lord! and in recompense for their works, shall He be their protector" DARU'S-SALTANAH (Liberty of the seat of government" A term given to the capital of a province, or a Muslim state

DARU 'S-SAWAB (دار الثواب)
The house of recompense 'A name given to the Jannatu 'Adn, or transfer of Eden, by the commentator al-Balzāwi DARVESH, DARWISH (كوريث A Persian word for a religious mondicant A dervesh. It is derived from the word dar, "a door', fit one who goes from door to door Amongst roligious Muhammadans, the darvesh is called a fagir, which is the word generally used for religious mendicant orders in Arabic books. The subject is, therefore, considered in the article on FAGIR.

DAUGHTERS Arabic Bief, pl Banit, Heb Bath (D). In the law of inheritance, the position of a daughter is secured by a verse in the Qur'an, Surah iv 12 "With legard to your children, God has commanded you to give the sons the portion of two daughters and if there be daughters, more than two, then they shall have two-thirds of that which their father hath left, but if she be an only daughter she shall have the half"

The Strajiyah explains the above as follows -

"Daughters begotten by the deceased take in three cases half goes to one only, and two thirds to two or more and, if there be a son, the male has the share of two females, and he makes them residuaries. The son's daughters are like the daughters begotten by the deceased, and they may be in aix to two or more, on failure of daughters begotten by the deceased with a single daughter of the deceased, they have a sixth, completing (with the daughter's half) two-thirds, but, with two daughters of the deceased, they have no share of the inheritance, unless there be, in an equal degree with, or in a lower degree than them, a boy, who makes them residuaries. As to the remainder between them, the male has the portion of two females, and all of the son's daughters are excluded by the son himself

"If a man leave three son's daughters, some of them in lower degrees than others, and three daughters of the son of another son, some of them in lower degree than others, and three daughters of the son's son of snother son, some of them in lower degrees than others, as in the following table, this is called the case of tashbih

| First set     | Second set    | Third set     |
|---------------|---------------|---------------|
| Son           | Son.          | Son           |
| Son, daughter | Son.          | Son           |
| Son, daughter | Son, daughter | Son           |
| You daughter  |               | Son, daughter |
|               | Son, daughter | Son, daughter |
|               |               | Son, daughter |

"Here the eldest of the first line has none equal in degree with her, the middle one of the first line is equalled in degree by the eldest of the second, and the youngest of the first line is equalled by the middle one of the second, and by the eldest of the third line . the youngest of the second line is equalled by the middle one of the third line, and the roungest of the third set has no equal in degree. When then hast comprehended this, then we say the eldest of the first line has a morety the middle one of the first line has n sixth together with her equal in degree, to make up two-thirds, and those m lower degree a never take anything, unless there be a son with them, who makes them residua-110s, both her who is equal to him in degree, and her who is above him, but who is not entitled to a share, those below him are excluded " (Ramsay s ed As-Siranyah)

The age of puberty, or majority, of a daughter is established by the usual signs of womanhood but in the absence of these signs, according to Abu Hanifah, she is not of age until she is eighteen But the two Imams, Muhammad and Yusuf, fix the age at fifteen, and with this opinion the Imam ash-Shaff's

BKICON

With regard to a daughter's freedom in a marriage contract, Shaikh Abdu ! Haqq in his commentary on the Traditions (vel m p 106), saye, "All the learned doctors are agreed that a viigin daughter until she has arrived at the age of puberty, is entirely at the disposal of her father or lawful guardian but that in the event of a woman having been left a widow after she has attained the age of puberty, she is entirely at liberty to marry whom she likes." There is however, he says, some difference of opinion as to the freedom of a girl who has not been married and has arrived at the age or puberty Hanifah rules that she is entirely free from the control of her guardian with regard to her marriage, but ash Shaff's sules otherwise Again, as regards a widow who is not of age. Abu Hanifsh says she cannot marry without her guardiens permission, but ash Shad'i says she is free

According to the teaching of the Prophet, "a virgin daughter gives her consent to mar-riage by silence." He also taught "that a woman ripe in years shall have her consent asked, and if she remain silent her silence is consent, but if she do not consent, she shall not be forced " But this tradition is also to be compared with another, in which he said, "There is no marriage without the permission of the guardians" (Miskkät, xiii c iv pt 2) Hence the difference between the learned doctors on this subject.

The author of the Akklag-s-Jalali says it is not advisable to teach girls to read and write. and this is the general feeling amongst Muhammadans in all parts of the world, although it is considered right to enable them to recite the Qur'an and the liturgical

The father or guardian is to be blamed who does not marry his daughter at an early age, for Muhammad is related to have said, "It is written in the Book of Moses, that whoscevor does not marry his daughter when she hath reached the age of twelve years is responsible for any sin she may commit."

The ancient Arabs used to call the angels the "daughters of God," and objected strongly, as the Badāwis do in the present day, to female offspring, and they used to bury their infant daughters alive. These practices have hammad reprobates in the Qur'an, Surah zvi. 59 "And they ascribe daughters unto God! Glory be to Him! But they desire them not for themselves. For when the birth of a daughter is announced to any one of them dark shadows settle on his face and he is sad, he hideth him from the people because of the ill tidings Shall he keep it with disgrace, or bury it in the dust? Are not their judgments wrong?"

Mr Rodwell remarks on this verse "Thus Rabbinism teaches that to be a woman is a great degradation. The modern Jew says in his Daily Pravere fol 5, 6, "Blessed art thou, O Lord our God! King of the Universe! who hath not made me a woman."

الرومة) DŪMAH A fortified town held I v the Christian chief Ukaidar, who was defeated by the Mushm general Khalid, and by him converted to Muhammadailiam, A.H 9 But the mercenary character of Ukaidar's conversion led him to revolt after Muhammad's death (Muir's Life of Mahomer vol. iv p 191)

DAVID Arabic Dawid, Dawud A king of Israel and a Prophet, to whom God revealed the Zabur, or Book of Psalms [Zabuz.] He has no special title or kalimah, as all Muslims are agreed that he was not a law-giver or the founder of a dispensation The account of him in the Qur'an is exceedingly meagre. It is given as follows, with the commentator's a lemarks translated in italics by Mr Lane — And God gave him (David) the kingship over the children of Israel, and wisdom, after the death of Samuel and Saul, and they [namely these two gifts] had not been given together to any one before him, and He taught him what He pleased, as the art of making coats of mail, and the language of birds. And were it not for God's repelling men, one by another, surely the earth had become corrupt by the predominance of the polytheists and the slaughter of the Muslims and the rum of the places of worship but God is beneficent to the peoples, and hath repelled some by others."

(Sürah n. 227)

" Hath the story of the two opposing parties come unto thee, when they ascended over the walls of the oratory of David, having been prevented going in unto him by the door, because of his being engaged in devotion? When they went in unto David, and he was frightened at them, they said, Fear not we are two oppos ing parties It is said that they were two parties of more than one each, and it is said that they were two individuals, angels, who came as two litigants, to admonish David who had ninety-nine wires, and had desired the wife of a person who had none but her, and married her and taken her as his wife [One of them said.] One of us hath wronged the other, therefore judge between us with truth, and be not unjust, but direct us into the right way Verily this my brother in religion had nine-and-ninety ewes and I had one ewe, and he said, Make me her keeper And he over-came me in the dispute —And the other confessed him to have spoken truth -[David] said, Verily he hath wronged thee in demand ing thy ewe to add her to his ewes, and verily many associates wrong one another, except those who believe and do righteous deeds and few indeed are they -And the two unyels said, ascending in their [proper or assumed] forms to heaven. The man half passed sentence against himself So Daind was admonished And David perceived that We had tried him by his love of that woman, wherefore he asked pardon of his Lord, and fell down bowing himself (or prostrating himself), and repeated So We forgave him that, and verily for him [was ordained] a high rank with Us (that is, an increase of good fortune in this world,, and [there shall be for him] an excellent retreat in the world to come" (Surah xxxvii 20-24)

"We compelled the mountains to glorify Us, with David and the birds also, on his commanding them to do so, when he experienced languar, and We did this And We taught him the art of making coats of mail (for before his time plates of metal were used) for you among mankind in general, that they might defend you from your suffering in warring with your enemies—Will ye then, O people of Mecca, be thankful for My favours, believing the apostles?" (Surah xxi

79, 80)

Sale observes that Yahya the commentator, most rationally understands hereby the divine revelations which David received from God, and act the art of making coats of mail—The cause of his applying himself to this art is thus related in the Mirātu 'z-Zamān —He used to go forth in disguise and when he found any people who knew him not he ap proached them and asked them respecting the conduct of David, and they praised him and prayed for him but one day, as he was asking questions respecting himself as usual God sent to him an angel in the form of a human being, who said, "An excellent man were David if he did not take from the public treasury" Whereupon the heart of David was contracted, and he begged of God to render him independent so He made iron soft to him and it became in his hands as thread , and he used to still a coat of mail for four thousand [pieces of money-whether gold or silvor is not said], and with part of this he obtained food for himself, and part he gave in alms, and with part he fed his family Hence an excellent coat of mail is often called by the Araba" Duwudi" ie "Davidean' (See Lane's translation of The Thousand and One Nights chap viii note 5)

David, it is said, divided his time regularly, setting apart one day for the service of God, another day for rendering justice to his people, another day for preaching to them, and another day for his own affairs

DA'WA (حوى) A claim in a lawsuit. A claim or demand (See Hamilton's Hidayah vol iii p 63)

DA'WAH (5,e.) Let "A call, invocation (see of God's help)" A term used to express a system of incantation which is held to be lawful by orthodes Muhammadans, whilst seler, "magic," and kahnauh, " fortunetelling," are said to be unlawful the Prophot having forbidden both

From the Muslim books it appears that Muhammad 14 believed to have sanctioned the use of spells and meantations, so long as the words used were only those of the names of God, or of the good angels, and of the good gonn although the more strict amongst them (the Wahliabis, for example ) would say that only an invocation of God Himself was lawful—teaching which appears to be more in accordance with that of Muhammad, who is related to have said, "There is nothing wrong in using spells so long as you do not associate anything with God" (Mishkat, xxi c 1) It is therefore clearly lawful to use charms and amulets on which the name of God only is inscribed, and to invoke the help of God by any ceremony, provided no one is associated with Him

The science of dawah has, however, been very much elaborated, and in many respects its teachers seem to have departed from the original teaching of their Prophet on the sub ject

In India the most popular work on derwak is the Iawakiru I-Khamsah, by Shaikh Abii I-Mnwayyid of Gnjerat, A.E. 956, in which he says the aciones is used for the following purposes (1) To establish friendship or enmity between two persons (2) To cause the cure, or the sinkness and death, of a person. (3) To secure the accomplishment of one's wishes, both temporal and spiritual (4) To obtain defeat or victory in battle

This book is largely made up of Hindu customs which, in India, have become part of Muhammadanism but we shall endeavour to confine ourselves to a consideration of those sections which exhibit the so colled science as it exists in its icition to Islam

In order to explain this occult science, we shall consider it under the following divisions

1 The qualifications necessary for the 'amil.

or the person who practices it

2 The tables required by the teacher, and then nees

3 An explanation of the terms nisāb, zakai. ushr, quff davr, has khatm, and suriu'l 13thuh, and their tises

4 The metheds employed for commanding

the presence of the genu
I When anyone enters upon the study of the science, he must begin by paying the utmost attention to cleanliness. No dog, or cat, or any stranger, is allowed to enter his dwellingplace and he must purify his house by hurning wood-aloes, partiles, and other awestscented perfumes He must take the utmost care that his body is in no way defiled and he must bathe and porform the legal ablutions constantly A most important preparation for the exercise of the art is a forty-days fast (chilla), when he must sleep on a mat spread on the ground, sleep as little as possible, and not enter into general conversation Exor custs not unfrequently repair to some cave or retired spot in order to undergo complete abatinence

The diet of the exercist must depend upon the kind of asma, or names of God he intends to recite If they are the asma'u' palaligah or "terrible attributes" of the Almighty, then he must refrain from the use of meat, figh eggs, honey, and musk If they are the asma'u 'l-jamāliyak, or "amiable attributes he must abstain from butter, curds, vinegar. salt, and ambergrise If he intends to recite both attributes, he must then abstain from such things as garlie, omons, and assafetids

It is also of the utmost importance that the . roreist should eat things which are lawful, always speak the truth, and not cherish a proud or haughty spirit. He should be careful not to make a display of his powers before the world, but treasure up in his bosom the knowledge of his acquirements. It is considered very dangerous to his own life for a novice to practice the science of exercism

II Previous to reciting any of the names on attributes of God for the establishment of friendship or enmity in behalf of any person, it is necessary to ascertain the initials of his or her name in the Arabic alphabet, which letters are considered by exorcists to be connected with the twelve signs of the zodiac, the seven planets, and the four elements The following tables, which are taken from the Tuwāhi u 'l-Khamsah, occur, in a similar form, in all books on exorcism, give the above combinations, together with the nature of the perfume to be burnt, and the names of the presiding genius and guardian angel. These tables may be considered the key to the whole acience of exorcism

| Letters of the Alphabet arranged according to the Abjud [ABJAD], with their respective number | 1 1            | ب 2                 | 8                                 | د 4            | 5 &             |
|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|----------------|---------------------|-----------------------------------|----------------|-----------------|
| The Special Attributes of Names of God                                                        | اللهAllāh  | باقیBagı        | icine*                            | دياںDayyān | هاديHäda    |
| The Number of the Attribute                                                                   | 66             | 113                 | 114                               | 65             | 20              |
| The Meaning of the Attribute                                                                  | God            | Fternal             | Assembler                         | Reckoner       | Guide           |
| The Class of the Attribute                                                                    | Termble        | Amiable             | 1 erribte &Amablecombined | Termble        | Amiable         |
| The Quality. Vice, or Virtue of the Letter                                                    | Friendship     | Love.               | Love                              | Enmity         | Enmity          |
| The Elements. (Arba ah 'Anaşır)                                                               | Fire           | Air                 | Water                             | Earth.         | Fire            |
| The Perfume of the Letter                                                                     | Bluck Aloes    | Sugar               | Cinnainon                         | Red Sandal     | WhiteSandal |
| The Signs of the Zodisc (Buru))                                                               | HamalRum   | JauraTwins      | SoratunCrab                   | SaurBull   | HamulRom    |
| The Planets (Kawākib)                                                                         | InhalSolum | MushtariJupiter | Mirri/4                           | ShamsSup.  | ZuhrahVenus |
| The Genii (Juan )                                                                             | Qayupüsh.      | Danûsh              | Nulūsh                            | Twayüsh        | Hűsh            |
| The Guardian Angels (Musenkkel)                                                               | israfil        | Jıbrā'il.           | Kalka'il                          | Dardā'il       | Durbā'īl        |

| Letters of the Alphabet arranged according to the Abiad [ABJAD], with their respective number | 6 ,                                    | 7 3             | 8 2                 | 9 1                | ى 10                            |
|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|----------------------------------------|-----------------|---------------------|--------------------|---------------------------------|
| The Special Attributes or Names of God.                                                       | وليWali                            | زکیآگھا۔    | Haqq                | Tahir              | yanıYasın                   |
| The Number of the Attribute                                                                   | 46                                     | 37              | 108                 | 215                | 130                             |
| The Mesning of the Attribute                                                                  | Friend.                                | Parifier        | Truth               | llolv              | Chief                           |
| The Class of the Attribute                                                                    | Amiable                                | Combined        | Combined            | Termble            | Amiable                         |
| The Quality, Vice, or Virtue ofthe Letter                                                 | Lovo                                   | Love            | Hatrod.             | Dean e             | Attraction                      |
| The Elements (Arba'uh 'Anāşıı )                                                               | Air                                    | Water           | Earth               | Fire               | Aiı                             |
| The Perfume of the Letter                                                                     | Camphor                                | Honey           | Saffron             | Yusk.              | RoseLeaves                  |
| The Signs of the Zodiac (Buriy)                                                               | JauzaTwins                         | SaratānCrab | ludyGoat        | HamulRam       | MizanScalos                 |
| The Planets (Kawākıb)                                                                         | ' U<sup>t</sup>tārsdMercury | QamarMoon   | ZuhalSaturn     | MushtanJupiter | Marri khMare         |
| The Genu (Jinn)                                                                               | Puyüsh                                 | Карйыл          | 'Avūsh              | Badvűsh            | Shahbush                        |
| The Guardian Angel. (Muwakkil)                                                                | Raftma'îl                              | Sharkā il       | Tankafil            | labmā'ıl           | Sarakiku il                     |
| Letters of the Alphabet arranged according to the Abjud [ABJAD] with their respective number  | له 20                                  | 30 J            | 49 p                | 50 U               | س 60                            |
| The Special Attributes or Names of God                                                        | کافیKüfi                           | Intel           | Walt!               | 1 , 32             | Saint                           |
| The Number of the Attribute                                                                   | 111                                    | 129             | 90                  | 256                | 180                             |
| The Meaning of the Attribute                                                                  | Sufficient                             | Benignant       | hing                | Light              | Hearer                          |
| The Class of the Attribute                                                                    | Amiable                                | Amusble         | Terrible            | Amiable            | (ombined                        |
| The Quality, Vice or Virtue of the Letter                                                     | Love                                   | Separation      | Love                | liatred            | Desire                          |
| The Elements ( Arbu ah 'Anāşır )                                                              | Water                                  | Earth           | Fire                | Air                | Water                           |
| The Perfume of the Letter                                                                     | White roseleaves                   | Арріея          | Quince              | Hyacinth           | Differentkinds ofScents |
| The Signs of the Zodiac (Burig)                                                               | 'AqrabScorpion                     | SaurBull    | AndLier         | MizănScales    | . QnusArcher         |
| The Planets(Kau ākīb)                                                                     | ShamsSun                           | ZuhrahVenus | 'l taridMercuiy | QamarMoon      | ZuhalSatura                 |
| the Genu (Jinn)                                                                               | Kadyűsh                                | Advūsh          | Majhush             | Damals üsh         | Facensh                         |
| The Guardian Angels (Muwakkil)                                                                | Kharură'il                             | Tață'il.        | Ruyail              | Hulā's)            | Ham-wakii                   |

| Letters of the Alphabet arranged according to the Abjad [ABJAD], with their respective number     | ع 70                | 80                |               | ٤             | 90            | ص            | 100               | J        | 200                       | '  |
|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|---------------------|-------------------|---------------|---------------|---------------|--------------|-------------------|----------|---------------------------|----|
| The Special Attributes or Names of God                                                            | علی' Ali |                   | فتاحattāl |               | Şan           | nad          | Qā                |          | ب,Rabb                | 1  |
| The Number of the Attribute                                                                       | 110                 |                   | 489           |               | 13            | 4            | 808               | 5        | 202                       | ٦  |
| The Meaning of the Attribute                                                                      | Exalted             | 0                 | penc          | 1             | Esbhs     |              | Power             | rful     | Lord.                     |    |
| The Class of the Attribute                                                                        | Terrible            | Λı                | nıab          | e             | Terr          | ıble         | Comb              | med      | Terrible.                 |    |
| The Quality, Vice, or Virtue of the Letter                                                        | Riches              | F                 | utpit         | У             | Latu          | nacy         | Des               | 110      | Friend-ship           |    |
| The Elements (Arba ah Anāşır)                                                                     | Earth               |                   | huc           |               | A             | 11           | Wat               | er       | Earth                     | _  |
| The Perfume of the Letter                                                                         | WhitePepper     | N                 | lnu           | t             | Ni            | neg          | Oraz              | ge.      | Rosewate                  | )l |
| The Signs of the Zediac (Burn)                                                                    | Sun bulahVirgin | •                 | AsadLion  |               | M:            | -            | H:F16         |          | SumbulaVurgin         | ł. |
| The Planets (Kawākth)                                                                             | Mn hturiJupiter | 1                 | irriMar   | h             |               | ims10    | Zuk               |          | 'UtûridMercury        |    |
| The Genn (Jinn)                                                                                   | Kashpush            | L                 | aj yu         | slı           | Kale          | přsh         | Sham              | 3 usb    | Rahūsb                    | •  |
| The Guardian Augels(Muwakkil)                                                                 | Lumail              | Sa                | 1 010         | 9 '1 Ì | Abj           | mu īl        | *Itr              | ล'าใ     | Amwāki                    | l. |
| Letters of the Alphabet arrangedaccording to the Abod [ABIAD]with their respective number | 300                 | ا م ما | 490           |               |               | 5 0 u | ڪ                 | 6        | 00 (                      | ,  |
| The Special Attributes or Names of God                                                            | هفیعShafi'.     |                   |               | وابسي     |               |              | ābst              |          | خالقKhālıq            |    |
| The Number of the Attribute                                                                       | 460                 |                   |               | 409           |               | :            | 903               |          | 781                       |    |
| The Meaning of the Attribute                                                                      | Accepta             | r                 | Fo            | rg1v          | 10            | St           | able              |          | Creator                   |    |
| The Class of the Attribute                                                                        | Amiable             |                   | A             | ובוני         | nle           | Te           | rrible            |          | Combined                  |    |
| The Quality, Vice or Virtue ofthe Letter                                                      | Eamity              |                   |               | eplnes    |               | H            | tred              |          | Love                      |    |
| The Elements (Artrah Anastr)                                                                      | Fire                |                   |               | Air           |               | W            | ater              |          | Eas th                    |    |
| The Perfume of the Letter                                                                         | White Alo           | es                | A             | mb            | er            | Whit         | e Alon            | 3        | Violet                    |    |
| The Signs of the Lodisc (Buru)                                                                    | 'AqrabScorpior  |                   |               | Dalorın   | wg Pot    |              | Hūt.Fish      |          | JadyGost              |    |
| The Planets (Aawākib)                                                                             | QamarMoon.      |                   |               | Tuhatu    |               |              | ushtariapiter |          | Mirri kh .Mars |    |
| The Genu. (Jinn.)                                                                                 | Tashyūs             | h                 | L             | a ky          | ûsh 'Lwahyûsh |              |                   | Dālāyūsh |                           |    |
| The Guardian Angels. (Mewakkil)                                                                   | Amra'i              | L                 | 1             | ari           | 171.          | М            | ikā'il            |          | Mahkā'īl                  |    |

| Letters of the Aiphabet arranged according to the Abjad [ABJAD], with their respective number | د 700          | 800 🚓                    | 900                | 1000                |
|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|----------------|--------------------------|--------------------|---------------------|
| The Special Attributes or Names of God.                                                       | SIJZehr.   | Zārr                     | Zāher              | ghafur              |
| The Number of the Attribute                                                                   | 921            | 1001                     | 1106               | 1285                |
| The Meaning of the Attribute.                                                                 | Rememberer     | Punisher                 | Evident            | GreatForgiver   |
| The Class of the Attribute                                                                    | Combined.      | Terrible                 | Terrible           | Amuable             |
| The Quality, Vice, or Virtue of the Letter                                                    | Hatred         | Hatred.                  | Enmity             | Conva-lescence. |
| The Elements(Arba'ah 'Anāşır)                                                             | Fire           | Air                      | Water              | Earth               |
| The Perfume of the Letter                                                                     | SweetBasiL | Laburnam                 | Jasmine            | Cloves              |
| The Signs of the Zodiac (Burig)                                                               | QausArcher | DalwWateringPot. | HütFish.       | HütFish         |
| The Planets, (Kawākıb)                                                                        | ShamsSun   | ZuhrahVenns          | 'UţārıdMoroury | QamarMoon.      |
| The Genii(Jina.)                                                                          | Twakapüsh,     | Ghayush.                 | Ghafûpûsh.         | ·Arkupüsh.          |
| The Guardian Angel.(Muwakkil)                                                             | Hartë'il.      | 'Atā'īL                  | Nurā'īl.           | Nu khā'īl    |

The sex of the signs of the Zodiac (burig) has been determined as in the following table Between males and females exists friendship, between males and hermaphrodites sometimes friendship sometimes enmity, between females and hermaphrodites the most inveterate enmity—

| MALES                                     |                                                                            |                        | ETWALES                                        | HERMAPHRODITES.                 |                                                                |  |
|-------------------------------------------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------|------------------------|------------------------------------------------|---------------------------------|----------------------------------------------------------------|--|
| RamLaonScorpionFishArcher | Burg-t-HamalBurg-t-Asad.Burg-t-'AgrabBurg-t-HütBurg-t-Qavs | BullScalosCrab | Burj i-SaurBurj i MisánBurj-i-Saratán. | Twins Virgin Goats Watering Pot | Bury-s-Jauze'Bury-s-SumbulahBury-s-JadyBury-s-Dalw |  |

Astrologists have determined the relative dispositions of the planets (kawākib) to be as follows —

| Venus   | Venus   | Jupiter | Jupiter | Sun     | Jupiter | Sun     | Friendship           |
|---------|---------|---------|---------|---------|---------|---------|----------------------|
| and     |                      |
| Saturn  | Moon.   | Venus   | Sun.    | Moon    | Moon.   | Venus   |                      |
| Moon    | Saturn  | Jupiter | Mars    | Venus   | Mars    | Sun     | Mixed Friendship and |
| and     | Enmity or Indiffer-  |
| Mercury | Mercury | Mercury | Mercury | Mercury | Venus   | Mercury | ence                 |
| Saturn  | Saturn  | Mars    | Mars    | Saturn  | Jupiter | Jupiter | } Enmity.            |
| and     |                      |
| Sun.    | Moon.   | Moon.   | Sun     | Sun.    | Mars.   | Saturn. |                      |

The four elements (arba'ah anasır) stand in relation to each other se follows -

|        | and Waterand Fire.  | Earth and EarthAir and Air | Friendship                                  |
|--------|-------------------------|--------------------------------|---------------------------------------------|
| Pire : | and Air                 | Air and Water,                 | Mixed Friendship and Enmity or Indifference |
|        | and Waterand Earth. | Earth and Water                | Enmity                                      |

As an illustration of the use of these tables, two persons, Akram and Rahimah, contemplate a matrimonial alliance, and wish to know if it will be a happy union or otherwise.

The exercist must first accertain if the elements (arba'ah 'asiarr), the signs of the zodiac (buru), and the planets (kawakib), are amicably or immicably disposed to each other in the cases of these two individuals, and also if there is a combination expressed in the ism or name of God connected with their initial letters

In the present instance the initial letter of Akram is alif, and that of Rahimah, ra, and a reference to the foregoing tables will produce the following results—

|                                               | Akram. (اکرم)               | Rahimah(Å+4-)           |
|-----------------------------------------------|-----------------------------|-----------------------------|
| Initial letterThe quality of              | Aht t                       | Rāj                         |
| the letter The element The stimbute           | FriendshipFireAlläh | FriendshipEarthRabb |
| The quality ofthe attributeThe planet | TerribleSaturn          | TerribleMercury         |
| The sign of the zodiac The perfume.           | The ram. Black aloes        | The virgin.                 |
| The genrusThe angel                       | Qayupüsh.Israfil        | Rahush.Amwākil.         |

In considering this case, the exercist will observe that there is a combination in the attributes of God, both belonging to the asma'u l'-jalaliyah, or terrible attributes There is also a combination in the quality of the letters, both implying friendship Their respective planets, Saturn and Mercury, show a combination of either mixed friendship and enmity, The sign of the or, perhaps, indifference zodiac, the ram being a male, and that of the virgin a hermaphrodite, show a possible alternation of friendship and enmits between the parties. The elements, fire and earth, boing opposed, imply entity It therefore appears that there will be nothing against these two persons, Akram and Rahimah forming a matrimomal alliance, and that they may reasonably expect as much happiness from their union as usually fails to the lot of the human race Should the good offices of the express be requested, he will, by incantation, according to the table given, appeal to the Almighty as Alläh and Rabb, call in the aid of the geni Qayipush and Rahūsh, and of the guardian angels, Isrāfīl and Amwākīl The perfumes he will burn in his numerous recitals will be black aloes and rose-water, and so bring about a speedy increase in the happiness of the persons of Akram and Rahīmah!

III. As we have already explained, the incentations used by exorcists consist in the recital of either the names or attributes of God, or of certain formulæ which are given in books on the subject. In the Jawahiru 'l-Khansah, there were many forms of meantation, but we select the following one to illustrate the subject.—

Subhānaka! lā īlāha īllā anta! Rabbakulls-shai'm! wa wārīgahu! wa rāzīgahu! wa rāhīmahu!

Glory be to Thee! There is no deity but Thee! The Lord of All! and the Inheritor thereof! and the Provider therefor! and the Merciful thereon!

This incantation consists of forty-four letters, exclusive of vowel points, as is shown by the following table —

|          | •        |                     |               |
|----------|----------|---------------------|---------------|
| 1        | س        | Sin                 | 60            |
| 23   | Ţ        | Вā                  | 2             |
| 3        | 5        | Hā                  | 8             |
| 4        | 3 ) to 1 | AlıfNün         | 1             |
| 5        |          | Nun                 | 50            |
| 6        | ă        | Kāf                 | 20            |
| 7        | 7        | Lām                 | 30            |
| 8        | ĭ        | Alıf                | 1             |
| 9        | 1        | Alıf                | 1             |
| 10       |          | Lām                 | 30            |
| 11       | م        | Hā                  | 5             |
| 1112 | 7        | Alıf                | ĭ             |
| 12       | ì        | Lām                 | 80            |
| 1314 | 7        | LāmLām          | 80301 |
| 15       | ۲        | AlıfAlıfNün | ĩ             |
| 10       |          | Alıf                | í             |
| 16       | •        | Min                 |               |
| 17       | 9        | Nun                 | 50            |
| 18       | w        | Tā                  | 400           |
|          |          |                     |               |

| 19        | ,             | Rā        | 200                    |
|-----------|---------------|-----------|------------------------|
| 20        | Y             | Bā        | 2                      |
| 21        | Ų             | Bā        | 2                      |
| 22        | الع           | Kāf       | 20                     |
| 23        | .1            | Lam       | 30                     |
| 24        | 3             | Lām       | 30                     |
| 25        |               | Shin      | 300                    |
| 26        |               | Ya        | 10                     |
| 27        | ) } 9         | Hanizah   | 1                      |
| 2728  |               | Wau       | $\hat{\boldsymbol{6}}$ |
| 29        | ,             | Wau       | 6                      |
| 30        | ?             | Alıf      | ĭ                      |
| 31        |               | Rá        | 200                    |
| 32        | ردفهر | Sã        | 500                    |
| 38        | _             | Hã        | 5                      |
| 34        |               | Wau       | 6                      |
| 35        | ,             | Rã        | 200                    |
| 36        | ₹             | Alıf      | 200                    |
|           |               | Zá        | 7                      |
| 37 | زقهر  | Za        |                        |
| 38        | ي             | Qar       | 100                    |
| 39        | هر            | QārHā | 5                      |
| 40        | ,             | wau       | - 6                    |
| 41        | ļ             | Rā        | 200                    |
| 42        | 1             | Alıf      | 1                      |
| 43        | t             | Hã        | 8                      |
| 44        | •             | Mim       | 40                     |
| 45        | A      | Ha        | 5                      |
|           |               |           | 2613                   |
|           |               |           | ~~~~ .                 |

In reciting such an invocation, units are reckoned as hundreds tens as thousands, han drods as tens of thousands, and thousands as hundicus of thousands

In the above formula -Its meab, or fixed estate, is the number of letters (te 45) put 4 500 into thousands -Its zakut, or alms in the half of the misab added to itself, 4 :00 and 2 250 -6 750 Its 'ushr, or tithes, is half of the above half added to the zukāt, 7,875 6,750 and 1,125 = Its guft or lock, w half of 1,125 = 563 Its dur, or circle is obtained by adding to its juff the sum of the 'ushr and then doubling

| the total —                          |                |               |
|--------------------------------------|----------------|---------------|
| 5687 875                         |                |               |
| 1 010                                |                |               |
|                           | 8,4388,438 |               |
| Its bugl, or gift, is the            | fixed          | 16,876        |
| number its khaim, or scal, is the    |                | 7,00 0 |
| numberIts surviv 'l-vabah, or br |                | 1,200         |

answer, is the fixed number

Total 56 764

12,000

After the exorcist has recited the formula the above number of times, he should, in order to make a reply more certain, treble the meab, making it 135,000, and then add 2,613, the value of the combined number of lettors, making a total of 137,618 rocatals The number of these recitals should be divided as nearly as possible in equal part for each day's reading, provided it be completed within By a rehearsal of these says our forty days author, the mind of the exorcist becomes completely manaported, and, whether asseep or awake, he finds himself accompanied by spirits and boni' ( jinn) to the highest heavens and the lowest depths of carti. Those spirits then reveal to him hidden mysteries, and render souls and spirits obedient to the will of the express

IV If the exorcist wish to command the presence of genuin behalf of a certain person, it is generally supposed to be effected in the fellowing manner He must first of all, shut himself up in a room and fast for forty days He should beamen the chamber with red othro and having purit d himself, should sit on a small curpet and proceed to call the genna or denion He must however, first find out what spread genn are required to effect his purpose. If for example he is about to call in the aid of these spirits in hehalf of a pirson named Bantani (acla) he will find out, hist, the special gent presiding over the name the lefters of warel are omitting the vowel points RHRAM Upon rafer ence to the table it will be seen that they are Danush Hush, Ranneh, Quyupneh, and Mar bush. He must then find out what are the special names of God influend by these setters which we find in the table are al Buge

"the kreinar, al Hade the Guide as Rabb the Lord Allah ! God, al Mulik, " the hing " He must then incertain the power of he I there make amy the number of times for the accital, which will be thus -

| В,    | 2   | equal | to     | 200    |
|-------|-----|-------|--------|--------|
| Н,    | ō   |     |        | 500    |
| ĸ,    | 200 | 11    |        | 20,000 |
| ١,    | 1   | 15    |        | 100    |
| M     | 40  | •     |        | 4,000  |
| Total |     |       | 24,800 |        |

The express should then, in order to call in the help of the genn recite the following formula, not fewer than 24,800 times

Y : Danushu! for the sake of the Eternal

Yu Hushu' for the sake of the Guide! Ya Rahushu' for the sake of the Lord! Yā Qayupāshu! for the sake of Allah! Yn Majbushu' for the sake of the King l

The exercist will perform this recital with his face turned towards the house of the object he wishes to affect and burn the perfumes indicated according to the table for the letters of Bahram's name.

There are very many other methods of performing this exorcism, but the foregoing will suffice as a specimen of the kind of ser-TICE [MAGIC]

DAY. The Muhammadan day commences at sun-set, our Thursday evening, for example, being the beginning of the Mushm Friday The Alabic Yaum denotes the day of twenty-four hours, and Nahār, the day in contradistinction to the night (Unl) The days of the week are as follows—

Yaumu 'l-ahad, first-day, Sunday Yaumu 'l ışnain, second day, Monday Yaumu 's-şalāsā', third day, Tuesday Yaumu 'l-arbā', fourth day, Wodnesday Yaumu 'l-khamus, Thursday

Yaumu 'l-jum'ah, Day of Assembly, Frid sy Yaumu 's-sabt, Sabbath-day, Saturday

Of the days of the week, Monday Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday, are esteemed good and auspicious, the others evil (Qānūn-i-Islām, p 40d.) Friday is the pecual day appointed by Muhammad for meeting in the chief mosque for public worship [FRIDAY]

DAY OF JUDGMENT [RESUR

DEATH Arabic Mout, Wafat It is distinctly taught in the Qur'an that the hour of death is fixed for overy living creature

Surah xvi 63 "If God were to punish men for their wrong-doing, He would not leave on the earth a single hving creature but He respites them until a stated time and when their time comes they cannot delay it an hour nor can they hasten it" hour nor can they hasten it " Surah in 182 "Every soul must taste death, and ye shall only be paid your hire on the day of resurrection "

Surah L 17 "The agony of death shall come in truth, that is what thou didst shun."

In the Traditions Muhammad has trught that it is sinful to wish for death "Wish not for death, not even if thou art a doer of good works for peradventure thou mayest increase them with an increase of life. Nor even if thou art a sinner for with increase of life thou mayest beam God's pardon."

One day the Prophet and "Whosever loves to meet God, God will love to meet him, and whoever dislikes to meet God, God will dislike to meet him" Then 'Ayuhah said 'Trely we all dislike death and consider it great afficient "The Prophet tephed, 'Thou dost not understand me When death comes near a believer, then God gives him a spirit of resignation, and so it is that there is nothing which a believer likes so much as death"

Ai-Barn' ibn 'Azib one of the Companions

I came out with the Prophet at the inneral of one of the assistants, and we arrived just at the grave, before they had intered the body and the Prophet at down, and we sat around him with out heads down and were so silent, that you might say that birds were sitting upon our heads. And there was a stick in the Prophet's hand with which he kept striking the ground. Then he maked his head and said twice or three to his companions, 'Seek the protection of God from the punishments of the grave' After that he said 'Verily, when a Muslim separateth from the world and bringeth his soul to futurity, angi is descend to him from the celestial regions, whose faces are white You might say their faces are the cun, and they have a shroud of the shrouds of paradise, and perfumes therefrom So they sit apart from the doccased, as far as the eyes, can see which the Angel of Death (Malaiu 'l-Maut) comes to the deceased and sits at his head, and says, "() pare soul, come forth to God's pardon and pleasure" Then the soul comes out, usuing like water from a bag, and the Angel of Death takes it, and when he takes it, the angels do not allow it to remain in his hands for the twinkling of an eye But when the ingel of Death has taken the coul of a servant of God, he resigns it to his assistants, in whose hands is a shroud, and they put it into the shroud and with the perfumes, whon a fragrance issues from the soul like the smell of the best musk that is to be found on the face of the earth. Then the angels carry it upwards, and they do not pass by any ooncourse of angels who do not say, " What is this pure soul, and who is owner of it?" And they say, " Such a one, the son of such a one," calling him by the best names by which he was known in the world, till they reach the lowe t region of heaven with him And the angels ask the door to be opened for him, which is done. Then angels follow it through each heaven the angel of one region to those of the next, and so on till it reaches the seventh heavon, when God save, "Write the name of My servant in 'Illiyan, and return him towards the earth, that is, to his hody which is buried in the earth, because I have created man from earth and icturn him to it. and will bring him out from it again as I brought him out at first" Then the souls are returned into their bodies, when two angels [MUNKAR and NAKIR] come to the dead man and cause him to sit up, and say to him, . Who is the Lord?" He replies, My Lord 19 God." Then they say, "What is thy religion?' He says, 'Islam." Thon they say, 'What is this man who is sent to you?" (1 e the Prophet) He says, 'He is the Prophet of God' Then they say, "What is your proof of his mission ?" He says, "I read the book of God and believed in it, and I proved it to he true' Then a voice calls out from the celestial regions "My servant hath spoken true therefore throw for him a bed from Paradise, and diess him in clothes from Paradisc and open a door for him towards Paradise 'Then peace and perfumes come for him from Paradise and his grave is enlarged for him as far as the eye can see Then a min with a beautiful face comes to him, elegantly dressed, and perfumed, and he says, · Be joyful in that which hath made thee so, this is the day which was promised thee Then the dead person says to him, 'Who art thou for thy face is perfectly boautiful." And the man replies, 'I am thy good deods then the dead person cries out, ' () Lord, hasten the resurrection for my sake !

"" But,' continued the Prophet, 'when an infidel dies, and is about to pass from the world and bring his soul to futurity, blackfaced angels come down to him and with them sackcloths. Then they sit from the died as far as the eve can soe, after which the Angel of Death comes in order to sit at his head, and says, "O impure soul! come forth to the wrath of God". Then the soul is disturbed in the infidel's body. Then the Angel of Death draws it out as a hot spit is drawn out of wet wool.

". Then the Angel of Death takes the soul of the infidel, and having taken it, the angels do not allow it to remain with him the twinkling of an eye, but they take it in the sackcloth, and a disagreeable smell sames from the soul, like that of the most fetid careass that can be met with upon the face of the earth Then the angels carry it upwards and do not pass by any assembly of angels who do not ask whose filthy soul is this. They answer such an one, the son of such an one, and they mention him by the worst names that he bore in the world, till they arrive with it at the lowest heaven, and call the door to be opened, but it cannot be done the Prophet repeated this verse 'The doors of the celestral regions shall not be opened for them, nor shall they enter ento paradise till a camel passes through the eye of a needle. Then God says 'Write his history in Sillin,' which is the lowest earth, then his soul is thrown down with violence Afterwards the Prophet repeated this verse 'Unite no partner with God, for whoever unsteth gods with God in like that which falleth from high and the birds snatch: may or the wind wafteth it to a dis-tant place. Then his soul is replaced in his body and two angels [MUNKAR and NAKIR] come to he a and set him up, and say, Who is thy Lord ' He says, 'Alas' alas! I do Then they siv, 'What is thy He says, 'Alas' alas' I do And they say to him, 'What is not know religion? not know' the condition of the man who is sent down to you? He says 'Alas' alas' I do not know Then a voice coines from above, saying, 'He heth theresore spread a bed of hie for him and open a door for him towards holl the heat and hot winds of hell come to him, and his grave is made fight upon him so as to squeeze his ribs And a man with a hideous countenance comes to him shockingly dressed. of a vile smell, and he save, 'Be joyful in that which maketh thee miserable this is the day that was promised thee' Then the dead man says 'Who art thou' Thy face Then the is hideous, and brings wickedness He says, I am thy impure actions Then the dead person says, 'O Lord delay the resurrection on my account !

The ceremonies attending the death of a Muslim are described as follows by Jairr Sharif in Heiklots Qunua-1-Islam, as follows—

Four or five days previous to a sick man's approaching his dissolution, he make his will in favour of his son or any other person and the presence of two or more witnesses, and either delivers it to others or retains it by him it he likewise appoints his executor When about to expuse any learned reader of the Qur'an is sent for, and requested to repeat with a loud voice the Surah Ya Sin (or chap xxxvi) in order that the spirit of the man, by the hearing of its sound, may experience an easy concentration. It is said that when the spirit was commanded to enter the body of Adam, the soul having looked into it once, observed that it was a bad and dark place and unworthy of its presence! Then the Just and Most Holy God illuminated the body of Adam with "lamps of light," and commanded the spirit to re-enter. It went in a second time beheld the light and saw the whole dwelling, and said, "There is no pleasing sound here for me to listen to" It is generally understood from the best works of the mystics of the East, that it was owing to this circumstance that the Almighty created music. The holy spirit on hearing the sound of this music became so delighted that it entered Adam's body Commentators on the Qui an expositors of the Traditions and divince have written that that sound resembled that produced by the repeating of the Smatu Ya Sm, it is therefore advisable to read at the hour of death this chapter for tranquillising the soul

The Kalimati 'sh-shahadah [CRFRD] is also read with an audible voice by those present. They do not require the patient to read it himself, as at such a time he is in a distressing situation, and not in a fit state of mind to repeat the Kalimah.

Most people he insensible and cannot even speak, but the prous retain their mental facul ties and converse till the very last The following is a most crious religious rule amongst us vis that if a person desire the patient to repeat the Kalimali, and the sick man expire without being able to do so, his faith is considered dubious whilst the man who directed him so to do thereby means guilt It is therefore best that the sitters-by read it in anticipation of the hope that the sick man, by hearing the sound of it, may bring it to his recollection and repeat it either alond or in his own mind In general, when a per son is on the point of death they pour short in made of sugar and water, down his throat to facilitate the exit of the vital spark and some procure the holy water of the Zamzan vell at Makkah The moment the apprit has fled, the mouth is closed because, if left open, it would present a disagreeable spec The two great toes are brought in tacle contact and fastened together with a thin alip of cloth to prevent the legs remaining apart They burn perfumes near the corpse the individual have died in the evening, the shrouding and burial take place before mid night if he die at a later hour, or should the articles required not he procurable at that late hour, he is buried early on the fol lowing morning The sooner the sepulchral rites are performed the better, for it is not proper to keep a corpse long in the house and for this reason the Prophet said that if he was a good man, the sooner he is hursed the more quickly he will reach heaven, if a bad man, he should be speedily buried, in order that his unhappy lot may not fall upon others in the house, as also that the relatives of the deceased may not, hy holding the corpse, weep too much or go without food. There are male and female washers, whose province it is to wash and shroud the corpse for payment. Sometimes, however, the relatives do it themselves In undertaking the operation of washing, they dig a hole in the earth to receive the water used in the process, and prevent its spreading over a large surface, as some men and women consider it bad to tread on such water Then they place the corpse on a bed, country-cot, plank, or straw Some women, who are particular in these matters, are alraid even to venture near the place where the hody has been washed Having stripped the corpse and laid it on its back, with its head to the east and feet to the west, they cover it with a cloth-reaching, if it be a man, from the navel to the calves of the legs, if a woman, extending from the chest to the feet—and wash it with warm or with cold water. They raise the body gently and rub the abdomen four or five times, then pour plenty of water, and wash off all the dirt and filth with soap, &c by means of flocks of cotton or cloth, after which, laying the body on the sides, they wash them, then the back, and the rest of the body, but gently, because, life having but just departed, the body is still warm and not insensible to pain After this they wash and clean it well, so that no offensive smell may remain. They never throw water into the nostrils or mouth, but clean them with wicks of cloth or cotton. After that they perform uuzu' for him, te they wash his mouth, the two upper extremities up to the elbows, make musah [MASAH] on his head, and throw water on his feet, these latter constituting the four parts of the wuxu ceremony [ablutions] Thoy then put some camphor with water into a new large earthen pot, and with a new earthen pot they take out water and pour it three times, first from the head to the feet, then from the right shoulder to the feet, lastly from the left shoulder to the feet Every time that a pot of water is poured the Kalimatu 'sh-shahadah is repeated, either by the person washing or another Having hathed the body and wiped it dry with a new piece of cloth, they put on the shroud The shroud consists of three pieces of eloth, if for a man, and hve if for a Woman

Those for men comprise, 1st, a lingi, or szär, reaching from the navel down to the knees or ankle-joints, 2nd, a qamis, or kurta, or alfä, its length is from the neck to the knees or ankles, 3rd, a lifafah, or shoot, from above the head to below the feet Women have two additional pieces of cloth one a sinah-band, or breast-band, extending from the arm-pits to shove the ankle-joints the other a damsi, which encircles the head once and has its two ends dangling on each side. The manner of shrouding is as follows

having placed the shronds on a new mat and fumigated them with the smoke of perfumes. the lifefah is spread first on the mat, over it the lungi or sear, and above that the quants, and on the latter the sinah-band, if it be a woman, the damni is kept separate and tied on afterwards The corpse must be carefully brought by itself from the place where it was bathed, and laid in the shrouds Surmah is to be applied to the eyes with a tent made of paper rolled up, with a ring, or with a pice, and camphor to seven places, viz on the forehead, including the nose, on the palms of the hands, on the knees nd great toes, after which the different shrouds are to be properly put on one after another as they lay The colour of the shroud is to be white, no other is admissible. It is of no consequence, however, if a coloured cloth is spread over the bier, which, after the funeral, or after the fortieth day, is given away to the fagir who resides in the burying-ground, or to any other person, in charity Previous to shrouding the body, they tear shreds from the cloths for the purpose of tying them on, and after shrouding the body, they tie one band above the head, a second below the feet, and a third about the chest, leaving about aix or seven fingers' breadth of cloth above the head and below the feet, to admit of the ends Should the reliot of the being fastened deceased be present, they undo the cloth of the head and show her his face, and get her, in presence of two witnesses, to remit the dowry which he had settled upon her, but it is preferable that she remit it while he is still alive Should the wife, owing to journeying, be at a distance from him, she is to remit it on receiving the intelligence of his demise

Should his mother be present, she likewise says, "The milk with which I suckled thee I freely bestow on thee", but this is merely a custom in India, it is neither enjoined in books of theology nor by the law of Islam Then they place on the corpse a flower sheet or merely wreaths of flowers [GRAVE, BURJAL]

DEATH, EVIDENCE OF The Muhammadan law admits of the evidence of death given in a court of justice being merely by report or hearsay. The reason of this is that death is an event of such a nature as to admit the privacy only of a few. But some have advanced that, in cases of death, the information of one man or woman is sufficient, "because death is not seen by many, since, as it occasions horror, the sight of it is avoided."

If a person say he was present at the burnal of another, this amounts to the same as an actual sight of his death. (Hedayah, vol iv p 678)

DEBT. In Muhammadan law there are two words used for debt. Dam (دين), or money borrowed with some fixed term of payment, and qarz (قرض), or money lent without any definite understanding as to its repayment Imprisonment for debt is allowed. (Hadayah, vol 11 p 624)

Upon the decease of a debtar, the law demands that after the payment of the funeral expenses his just dobts must be paid before payment of legacies

To engage in a Jihad or religious war, is said by Muhammad to remit every sin except that of being in debt FIHAD DAIN, QARE

DECORUM, or modesty of demeanour between the sexes is strictly enjoined in Muslim law, and a special chapter is devoted to it in the Durru I-Mulhtar and other works on Muhammadar law

A man is not allowed to look at a woman except at her hands and face nor is he allowed to touch her But a physician in permitted to exercise the duties of his provission without restriction

A judge in the exercise of his office mar look in the face of a woman, and witnesses are under the same necessity

DECREES OF GOD, The Arabic [FREDESTINATION] Qadar or Taydir

Written deeds are, ac-DEEDS cording to Mahammidan law, of three kinds L Mustabin-e-marsem, or regular documents, such as are executed on paper, and have a regular title, superscription, &c, which us equivalent to oral declaration, whether the person be present or absent. If Mustabin-1ghair-i-marsum, or irregular documents such as are not written on paper, but upon i wall or the leaf of a tree, or upon paper without any title or supersoription of signiture III. Ghar s-mustabin, writings which are not documents in any sense, such as are de lineated in the air or in the water by the motious of a dumb porson

DEFENDANT Arabic mudda'a Int "A claim (مدعى علية) alarhı (مدعى

apon him'

The author of the Hidayah vol in p 63) says a defendant is a person who, if ue should wish to avoid the hightion, is compellable to sustain it some have belined a plaintiff, with respect to any article of property, to be a person who, from his being discused of the said article, has no right to it but by the establishment of proof, and a defendant to he a person who has a plea of right to that he a person who has a pion of region of it.

The Imam Muhammed has said that a reason who denies. This is correct but it requires a skill and knowledge of jurisprudence to distinguish the denier in a stut, as the reality and not the appearance is efficient, and it frequently happens that a person is in appearance the plaintiff, whilst in reality he is the defendant. Thus a trustee, when he says to the owner of the doposit, "I have restored to you your deposit," appears to be plaintiff, maxmuch as he pleads the return of the deposit, yet in reality he is the defendant, since he demes the obligation of responsibility, and hence his assertion, corroborated by an oath must be credited DELIBERATION (Arabic ta'anni (15) is enjoined by Mu-hammed in the Traditions. He is related to have said "Dehberation in your under takings is pleasing to God and hurry ("ajaluh) is pleasing to the devil" "Doliberation is best in everything except in the things con corning eternity" (Hodig-1-Termize)

Arabic Tufan DELUGE, The The story of the deluge us (الوفان) The story of the deluge is given by Muhaminad in his Qui'an, to the Atabians as a " seriet history, revealed to them (Surah x1 51) The fallusions to it in the Qur an -The following are the Sürah lxix 11 -"When the Flood rose high, we bare you in the Ark.

"That we might make that event a warn ing to you and that the retiming car might ratein it.

Sürah hv 9

"Before them the people of Noah treated the truth as a he Our servent did they change with talsehood and said Demoniac " and be was rejected

"Then cued he to his Lord, 'Verily, they mevail against me come then therefore to be we opened the gates of Heaven with water which fell in torrenta,

TAY SUCCOUP

And we caused the earth to break forth with springs and the r waters met by settled decros

"And we bare him on a revel made with planks and nails

Under our eyes it floated on a recompense to him who had been rejected with un-

"And we left it a sign but, is there any one who receives the warning

' And how great was my vengenuce and my menace t

Smab x: 89 -

And it was revenled unto Noab none of thy p opk shall believe save they who have believed theady heretore be not thou grieved as their doings

"But build the Aik under our eve and after one reveletion and plead not with me for the evil doors for they are to be drowned

"So he built the Aik, and whenever the chiefs of his people passed by they laughed him to scorn said he 'Though ye laugh at us, we trnly shall laugh at you, even as ye laugh at us, and in the end ye shall know "On whom a pusishment shall come that shall shame him, and on whom shall light a lasting punishment

" Thus was it until our sentence came to pass and the earth's surface houled up said, 'Carry into it one pair of every kind and thy family, except him on whom sentence hath before been passed, and those who have believed But there believed not with him except a few

' And he said, 'Embark ve therein the name of God be its course and its riding at anchor! Truly my Lord is right Gracious, Merciful

"And the Ark moved on with them amid waves like mountains and Noah called to his son-for he was apart- Embark with us, O my child! and he not with the unbehavers

"He said, 'I will be take me to a mountain that shall secure me from the water' said, None shall be secure this day from the decree of God, save him on whom He shall have mercy' And a wave passed between them, and he was among the drowned
"And it was said, O Earth! swellow up thy water', and 'cease, O Heaven' And the water abated, and the decree was fulfilled, and the Ark rested upon al-Judi, and t was said, 'Avaunt' ve tribe of the wicked'

"And Noah called on his Lord and said, O Lord' verily my sen is of my family and thy promise is true, and th u art the most just of judges

"He said, 'O Nosh! verily, he is not of thy family in this thou actest not arigh: not of me that whereof thou knowest nought I warn thee that then become not of the ignorant '

"He said 'To thee verity Omy I sta, do I repair lest I sak that of thee wherein I have no knowledge unless thou forgive me and be merciful to me I shall he one of the lost'

It was said to him, O Noah! debark with peace from Us, and with blessings on thee and on peoples from those who are with thee but as for part, we will suffer them to enjoy themselves, but afterwards they shall suffer s grievous punishme it from us to be inflicted

This is a secret history which we reveal Thou didst not know them, thou nor to thee.

thy people before this '

[DEVILS, PLNII] DEMONS

DEPORTMENT Arabic 'ılmu 'l-mu āsharah (dala) Persian nishast u burkhāst The Tindition.sts tako some pains to explain the precise manner in which then Prophet walked, sat, slopt, and rose, but then accounts are not always uni form and consistent For example, whilst 'Abbad rolates that he saw the Prophet sleeping on his back with our leg over the other, Jähir says the Prophet distinctly forbade it

Modesty of deportment is enjoined in the Qur'an, Surah zvu. 89 "Walk not proudly on the earth," which the commentators say means that the believer is not to toss his head or his arms as he walks Surali xxv. 64 "The servants of the Merciful One are those who walk upon the earth lowly, and when the ignorant address them say, 'Peace !"

Faqir Jani Muhammad As'ad, the author of the celebrated ethical work, the Alkling 1-Joieft, gives the following advice as regards general deportment .

"He should not hurry as he walks, for that me a sign of levity, norther should be be unressonably tardy, for that is a token of dul ness Let him noither stalk like the overbearing, not agitate himself in the way of women and outside but constantly offer ve the middle course Let him avoid going often backwards and forwards, for that betokens bewilderment, and holding his head downwards, for that indicates a mind over come by sorrow and anxiety in riding, no less, the same medium is to be observed. When he sits, let him not extend his feet, nor put one upon another. He must never kuesi except in deference to his king, his precertor, and his father, or other such person hun not rest his head on his knee or his hand, for that 14 a mark of dejection and indolence Veither let bim hold his neck awry, nor indulge in foolish tricks, such as playing with his fingers or other joints Let him avoid twisting round or stretching himself In spitting and blowing his nose, let him be careful that no one sees or hears him, that he blow it not towards the Qiblah, nor upon his hand. his shirt, or sleeve lappet

When he enters an assembly, let him sit neither lower nor higher than his proper station If he be himself the head of the party, becau sit is he likes, for his place must be the inghest wherever it may be If he has madacatently taken a wrong place, let him exchange it for his own as soon as he dis covers his mistake, should his own be orcupied, he must return without disturbing others

or anni ying himself

In the presence of his male or female domestics lot him never bare anything but his hand, and his face the parts from his knee to his ni vel let him never expose at all neither in public nor private, except on occasions of noce-sity for ablation and the like. (Vide Gen ix 20, Lov xvii. 6, xx 11, Dont xxu 30)

He must not sleep in the presence of other persons, or he on his back, particularly as the habit of snorms is thereby encouraged.

"Should sleep overpower him in the mids! of a party let him get up, if possible, or else disp.I the drowsmess by relating some story, entoring on some debate, and the like But if he is with a set of persons who sleep themselves, let him either bear thom company or leave them

"The upshot of the whole is this Let him so beliave as not to incommode or disgust others and should any of these observances appear troublesome, let him reflect, that to be formed to their contraries would be still more odnus and still more unpleasant than any pains which their acquirement may cost him ' Ahlay : Jalah, Thompson's Transistion, p 292)

DEPOSIT (Arabic voadi'ah ديعة, pl wadar'), in the language of the law, signifies a thing entrusted to the care of another The proprietor of the thing 18 called mudi, or depositor, the person on trusted with it is muda', or trustee, and the proporty deposited is wadituh, which lite isly means the leaving of a thing with mother

According to the Hidayah, the following are the rules of Islam regarding deposits

A trustee is not responsible for deposit unless he transgress with respect to it. If therefore it be lost whilst it is in his care, and the loss has not been occasioned by any fault of his, the trustee has not to make good the loss, because the Prophet said, "an honest trustee is not responsible"

A trustee may also keep the deposit himself or he may entrust it to another, provided the person is a member of his own family, but if he gives it to a stranger he renders himself responsible

If the deposit is demanded by the depositor, and the trustee neglects to give it up, it is a transgression, and the trustee becomes responsible

If the trustee mix the deposit (as of grain, oil, &c) with his own property, in such a manner that the property cannot be separated, the depositor can claim to share equally in the whole property. But if the mixture be the result of accident, the proprietor becomes a proportionate sharer in the whole

If the trustee deny the deposit upon demand, he is responsible in case of the loss of it. But not if the denial be made to a stranger, because (says Abū Yūsui) the denial may be made for the sake of preserving it

In the case of a deposit by two persons, the trustee cannot deliver to either his share, except it be in the presence of the other. And when two persons receive a divisible article in trust, each must keep one half, although these restrictions are not regarded when they are held to be inconvenient, or contrary to custom DEVIL, The The devil is believed to be descended from Jann, the progenitor of the evil gonii He is said to have been named 'Azāzīl, and to have possessed authority over the animal and spirit kingdom But when God created Adam, the devil refused to prostrato before him, and he was therefore expelled from Eden The sentence of doath was then pronounced upon Satan, but upon seeking a respite, he obtained it until the Day of Judgment, when he will be destroyed (Vide Qur'an, Surah vil. 13) According to the Qu'ran, the devil was created of fire, whilst Adam was created of clay There are two words used in the Qur'an to denote this groat spirit of evil (1) Sharian (מַשֵּלוּ, זְהַשָּוֹי), an Arabic word derived from shain, ' opposition," ιε "one who opposes, (2) Iblus (ωμλί, διάβολος), "devil," from bulas, "a wicked or profligate porson," ie "the wicked one." The former expression occurs in the Qur'an fifty-two times, and the latter only ning, whilst in some verses (e g Surah it 32-84) the two words Shartan and Ihlis occur for the same personality According to the Manna'u l'-Bihar, shartan denotes one who is far from the truth, and iblis one who is with out hope

The following is the teaching of Muhammad in the Traditions concerning the machinations of the devil (Mishkat, book 1 c ni)— "'Verily, the devil enters into man as the blood into his body

""There is not one amongst you but has an angel and a devil appointed over him? The Companious said, 'Do you include yourself in this?' He said, 'Yes, for me also, but God has given me victory over the devil, and he does not direct me except in what is good.'

"There is not one of the children of Adam, except Mary and her son (Jeeus), but is touched by the devil at the time of its birth, hence the child makes a loud noise from the touch

"Devil rests his threne upon the waters, and sends his armies to excite contention and strife amongst mankind, and those in his armies who are nearest to him in power and rank, are those who do the most mischief One of them returns to the devil and says, 'I have done so and so' and be says, 'You have done nothing', after that another tomes, and says, 'I did not quit him till I made a division between him and his wife', then the devil appoints him a place near himself, and eass. You are a good assistant'

"The devil sticks close to the sons of Adam, and an angel also, the business of the dovil is to do evil, and that of the angel to toach him the truth, and he who meets with truth and goodness in his mind, let him know it proceeds from God, and let him praise God, and he who finds the other, let him seek for an asylum from the devil in God

"Then the Prophet read this verse of the Quran 'The devil threatens you with poverty if to bestow in charity, and orders you to pursue averice, but God promises you grace and abundance from charity'

"'Usman and 'O Prophet of God' indeed the devil introlos himself between me and my prayers and my reading perplexes me fhen the Prophet said, This is a demon called Khunzab, who casts doubt into prayor wher you are aware of it, take protection with God, and spit over your left arm three times' 'Usman said, 'Be it so' and all doubt and perplexity was dispelled"

DEVIL, The Machinations of the [WASWASAR.]

DIBAGHAH (Lette) "Tanning" According to the Traditions, the skins of animals are unclean until they are tanned. Muhammad said, "Take nothing for any animals that shall have died until you tan their skins" And again, "Tanning purifies (Mishkat, book in c xi 2)

DIMASHQ (دمشق) [DAMASCUS ]

DIN (22) The Arabic word for "religion" It is used especially for the religion of the Propheta and their inspired books, but it is also used for idolatrous religion [RELIGION]

A gold com of one misque weight, or ninetysix barley grains, worth about ten shillings According to Mr Hussey (Accent Weights, p 142), the average weight of the Roman denarii, at the end of the Commonwealth was saxty grains, whilst the English shilling contains eighty grains. Mr Lane, in his Alabic diotionary, says, "its weight is seventy-one barley-corns and a half, nearly, reckoning the doing as eight grains of wheat and two-fifths, but if it be said that the daniq is eight grains of whoat, then the dinar is sixty-eight grains of wheat and four-sevenths. It is the same as the misgal." The dinar is only mentioned once in the Qur'an, Surah ii 66 "And some of them if thou entrust them with a dinar, he will not give it back." It frequently occurs in books of law

A GOLD DINAR OF HERACLIUS, AD 621

WEIGHT SIXTY GRAINS ACTUAL SIZE

A GOLD DINAR OF THE CITY OF GHAZNI, AH 616 ACTUAL BIZE

(درهم) DIBHAM Greek δραχμή A silver com, the shape of which resembled that of a date stone During the caliphate of 'Umar, it was changed into a circular form, and in the time of Zubair, it was impleased with the words Allah, 'God," barakah 'blessing" Hajiaj stamped upon it the chapter of the Qur'an called I hlas (exil), and others shy he imprinted it with his own name Various accounts are given of their weights, some saying that they were of ten, or mno, or six, or five miggals, whilst others give the weights of twenty, twelve, and ten qurats, asserting at the same time that 'Umar had taken a dirham of each kind, and formed a com of fourteon quaits, being the third part of the aggregate sum (Blochmann's Am :-Akbars, p 36)
The dirham, although it is frequently men

The dirham, although it is frequently mentioned in books of law, only occurs once in the Qur'an, Surah xii 20, "And they sold him (Joseph) for a mean price, dirhams counted out, and they parted with him cherply"

DIRRAH (5,3) Vulg durrah A scourge made either of a flat piece of leather or of twisted thongs, and used by the public censer of morals and religion, called the muhinsh. This securge is inflicted either for the comission of the daily prayer, or for the committal of sins, which are punishable by the law with the infliction of etripes, euch as fornication, scandal, and drunkenness. It is related that the Khalifah 'Umar punished his son with the durah for drunkenness, and that he died from its effects (Tarikh-i-Khamis, vol 11 p 252)

The word used in the Qur'an and Hadis for this scourge is joldah, and in theological works, saut, but dirrah is now the word generally used amongst modern Muslims

A DIRRAH USED BY A MUHTASIR IN THE PESHAWAR VALLEY.

DITCH, Battle of the Atabic Ghuzwatu 'l-Khandaq (عربة العند)
The defence of al Madinah against the Bunu Quraisah, A.H. 5, when a trench was dug by the advice of Salman, and the army of al-

Madinah was posted within it. After a month's siege, the enemy retired, and the almost bloodless victory is asonbed by Muhammad in the Quran to the interposition of Providence. Surah xxxiii 9 "Remember God's favours to you when hosts came to you and we sent sgainst them a wind and hosts (of angels), that ye could not see, but God knew what ye were doing." (Mun's Laje of Makomet, vol. nit p 258)

DIVINATION. Kahānah, or fortelling future events, 18 unlawful in Islām

Mu'awiyah ibn Hākim ielates "I said to the Prophet, O Messonger of God we used to do seme things in the time of ignorance of which we are not sure now. For example, we used to consult diviners about future events." The Prophet said, 'Now that you have embraced Ishim you must not consult them.' Then I said, 'And we used to take had omens?' The Prophet said, 'If from a bad omen you are thrown into perplexity, let it not hinder you from doing the work you had intended to do.' Then I said, 'And we used to draw lines on the ground?' And the Prophet said, There was one of the Prophet who used to draw lines on the ground, therefore if you can draw a line like him it is good, otherwise it is vain."

'Avishah says "the people asked the Prophet about diviners, whether they spoke true or not And he said 'You must not believe anything they say' The people then said 'But, O Prophet I they sometimes tell what is true?' The Prophet replied, 'Because one of the genu steals away the truth and carries it into the diviner's ear, and the diviners mix a hundred lies to one truth'

[MAGIC]

DIVORCE Arabic talaq (Mb) In its primitive sense the word talaq means dismission, but in law it signifies a religious from the marriage tie

The Muhammadan law of divorce is founded upon express injunctions contained in the Qur'an, as well as in the Traditions and its rules occupy a very large section in all Muhammadan works on jurisprudence

L The teaching of the Quran on the subject is as follows — Sûrah ii 226 –

"They who intend to abstain from their wives shall wait four months, but if they go back from their purpose, then vorily God is Gracious, Merciful

"And if they resolve on a divorce then verily God is He who Herroth, knoweth

"The divorced shall with the result until they have had their courses thrice, nor ought they to concoal what God high created in their wombs, if they believe in God and the last day, and it will be more just in their bushands to bring them back when in this state, if they desire what is right. And it is for the women to act as they (the husbands) act by them, in all farmess, but the men are a step above them. God is Mighty, Wies.

"Ye may give sontonce of divorce to your wives twice Kaep them honourably, or put them away with kindness But it is not allowed you to appropriate to yourselves aught of what ye have given to them, unless both fear that they cannot keep within the bounds set up by God. And if ye feat that they cannot observe the ordnances of God, no blame shall attach to either of you for what the wife shall herself give for her redemption. These are the bounds of God therefore overstep them not, for wheever overstoppoth the bounds of God, they are ovil doern

"But if the husband give sentence of divorce to her a third time, it is not lawful for him to take her again, until she shall have married another husband, and if he also divorce her then shall no blame attach to them if they isturn to each other, thirking that they can keep within the bounds fixed by God. And these are the bounds of God, He maketh them clear to those who have knowledge

"But when ye divorce women, and the time for sending them away is come, either retain thom with generosity, or put them away with generosity but retain them not by constraint so as to be unjust towards them. He who doth so, doth in fact injure himself. And make not the signs of food a jest, but remember God's favour towards you and the Bock and the Wisdom which He hath sent down to you for your warning, and foar God, and know that God's knowledge embraceth everything.

"And when we divorce your wives and they have waited the prescribed time, hinder them not from marrying the husbands when they have agreed among themselves in an innourable way. This warning is for him among you who believe the God and in the last day. This is most pure for you, and most decont. God knoweth, but yo know not

Mothers when divorced shall give suck to their children two full yours if the father disire that the sucking be completed; and such maintenance and clothing as is fair for them, shall devolve on the father No person shall be charged beyond his means. A mother shall not be pressed unfairly for her child, not a futbor for his child And the same with the fathers heir But if they choose to wear the child by consent and by bargam, it shall be no fault in them And if ye choose to have a nurse for your children, it shall be no fault in you, in case ye pay what ye promised her according to that which is fair. Fear God, and know that God seeth what ye do

"It shall be no trime in you if yo divorce your wives so long as ye have not consummated the marriage, nor settled any dowry on them. And provide what is noedful for them—he who is in ample circumstances according to his means, and he who is straitened, according to his means—with fairness. This is binding on those who do what is right.

But if yo divorce them before consummation, and have already sattled a dowry on them, ye shall give them helf of what yo have settled, unless they make a release, or he make a release in whose hand is the marriage tie. But if yo make a release, is will be nearer to piety "

Sürah ixv 1 -

"O Prophet! when ye divorce women, divorce them at their special times. And reaken those times exactly, and fear God your Put them not forth from their houses, nor allow them to depart, unless they have commutted a proven adultery. This is the precept of God, and whose transgresseth the precept of God, assuredly imperilletit his own self. Thou knowest not whether, after this, God may not cause something now to occur which may bring you together again.

"And when they have reached their set time, then either keep them with kindness, or in kindness part from them And take up right witnesses from among you and bear witness as unto God This is a caution for him who believeth in God and in the latter And whose feareth God, to hun will He grant a prosperous issue and will provide for him whence he reckoned not upon it

"And for him who puttern his trust in Him will God be all-sufficient God truly will attain his purpose For everything bath God

borred a borrusan

"As to such of your wives as have no hope of the recurrence of their times if ye have doubts in repard to them, then rickon three months and let the same be the term of those who have not yet had them And as to those who are with child, their period shall he until they are delivered of their hurden God will make His command easy to Him who fearath Hun

" Lodge the discreed wherever ve lodge, recording to your means and distress them not by putting them to straits. Aid if they are pregnant, then be at charges for them till they are deliver if of their burden and if they suckle your chikiren then pay them their hire and consult imong vouselves, and act generously. And if borein yo meet with obsticles then let and ar female suckle for lum

The teachery of Mahammud on the П general subject of Dir ice is expressed in the Traditions as fall was "The thing which is lawful but dist ked by God is divorce "

"The woman who asks her husband to divorce her without a cause the smell of

Paradise is torbidden bei

There are three things which whether done in joke or in earnest, shall be considered serious and affectual, ramoh marriage divorce, and taking a wife back

Livery divotee . In ful except a madman s"

"Cursed be the second took and who makes the wife (divorced) lawful for her first hus band, and cursed he the first husband for whom she is made lawful"—(Mishkel xiii XV)

III. Sunni Muhammadan Doctors are no' agreed as to the Moral Status of Invorce

The Imam ash-Shafi'i, referring to the three kinds of divorce (which will be afterwards explained), says "They are unexceptions." tiensblo and legal because divorce is in itself a lawful act, whence it is that certain laws have been instituted respecting it, and this legality prevents any idea of danger being annexed to it But, on the other hand, the lman Abn Finnsah and his disciples say that divorce is in itself a dangerous and disapproved procedure, as it dissolves marriage, an metitution which involves many circumstances both of a spuritual as well as of a temporal nature Nor is its propriety at all admitted, but on the ground of urgency of release from an unsuitable wife And in reply to ash-Shafi'i, they say that the legality of divorce does not prevent its being considered dangerous, because it involves matters of both a spiritual and temporal character

The author of the Sharhu l- Wigayah, p 108, says — Divorce is an abominable transaction in the sight of God, therefore such an act should only take place from necessity, and it is best to only make the one sentence of divorce (i.e. luluqu'l-ahum)

IV The Sunni Law of Divorce -Divorce may be given either in the present time or may be referred to some future period. It may be pronounced by the husband either before or after the consummation of the marrage It may be either given in writing or rerbaily

The words by which divorce can be given are of two kinds -Sarid, or "express," as when the reveland says "Thou art divorced, and knaysh, or 'metaphorical,' as when he vays "Thou art free, then art out off, voil yourself! Arise sock for a mate," &c &c

Divoice is divided into talagu 's-sumah, or that which is according to the Quran and the Traditions, and tulique 'l-bade or a novel or heterodox divorce which, although it is considered lawful, is not considered religious Talagu's-sumah is either the ahsan, or " the most laudable" or hasan the " laudable" method Talaga 'Lahran, or the most laudable" methou of divorce, is when the husband once expressly pronounces to his enjoyed but unpregnant wife the sentence "Thou art di vorced when she is in tubr or a state of purity during which he has had no carnal convection with her and then leaves her to complete the prescribed 'idduh, or 'period of three months" Until the expustion of the eddoh, the divorce . revocable, but after the period is complete at in irreversible, and if the muserud wishes to take his wife back. they must go through the ceremony of marringe But if must be observed that after the tulugu I auton, the woman is not, as in the other kinds of divorce, compelled to marry unother man, and be divor ed before she can return to her former husband. All that is required is a re-mairinge. The author of the Hidagah save this mode of divorce is called ahsan, or "most laudable" because it was usually adopted by the Comparious of the Prophet and also because it leaves it in the powe of the husbard to take his wife back. and she thus remains a lawful subject for remarriage to him Some Luropean writers on Muhammindanism have overlooked this fact in condenining the Muslim system of divorce is when the husband repudiates an enjoyed wife by three sentences of divorce, either express or metaphorical, giving one sentence in each tule, or "period of purity" Imam Mälik condemns this kind of divorce, and says it is irregular But Abū Hanīfah holds it to be sasan, or "good"

The talagu 'l-hasan, or "laudable divorce,'

The talāgu 'l-badı', or " urregular form of divorce," is when the husband repudiates his wife by three sentences, either express or metaphorical, given them one at a time "Thou art divorced! Thou art divorced! Thou art divorced! Thou art free! Thou art free! Even holding up three fingers, or dropping three stones, is held to be a sufficiently implied divorce to take legal effect. The Muslim divorce to take legal effect who thus divorces his wife is held, in the Hidayah, to be an offender against the law, but the divorce, however irregular, takes legal effect

In both these kinds of divorce, badi' and hasan, the divorce is revocable (raji') after the first and second sentences, but it is irrevocable (bain) after the third sentence After both hasan and badi divorces, the divorced wife cannot, under any circumstances, return to her husband until she has been married, and enjoyed, and divorced by another husband. Muhammadan doctors say the law has metituted this (somewhat disgraceful) arrangement in order to prevent divorces other than talagu 'l-ahsan

A husband may divorce his wife without any misbehaviour on her part, or without assigning any cause The divorce of every husband is effective if he be of a sound understanding and of mature ago, but that of a boy, or a lunatic, or one talking in his sleep, is not effective

If a man pronounce a divorco whilst in a state of mebriety from drinking fermented liquor, such as wine, the divorce takes place Repudiation by any husband who is same and adult, is effective, whether he be free or a slave, willing, or acting under compulsion, and even though it were uttered in sport or jest, or by a mere slip of the tongue, instead of some other word (Fatāwa-i-'Alumgeri, vol 1. p 497)

A sick man may divorce his wife, even though he be on his death-bed

An agent or agents may be appointed by a husband to divorce his wife

In addition to the will and caprice of the husband, there are also certain conditions which require a divorce

The following are causes for divorce but

- generally require to be ratified by a decree from the  $Q\bar{a}zi$  or 'judge"—

  (1) Jubb That is, when the husband has been by any cause deprived of his organ of generation. This condition is called majhub In this case the wife can obtain instant divorco if the defect occurred before marriage of evident madness and leprosy are treated in the same way Divorce can be obtained at
- (2) 'Unnah, or "impotence" (This m cludes ratq, "vulva impervia cœunti", and quen, "vulva anteriore parte enascens") In cases of impotency in either husband or wife, a year of probation can be granted by the judge

(B) Inequality of race or tribe. A woman cannot be compelled to marry a man who be-longs to an inferior tribe, and, in case of such a marriage, the elders of the superior tribe can demand a divorce, but if the divorce is not demanded, the marriage contract remains.
(4) Insufficient dower If the stipulated dowry is not given when demanded, divorce takes place

(5) Refusal of Islam. If one of the parties embrace Islam, the judge must offer it to the other three distinct times, and if he or she refuse to embraco the faith, divorce takes place

imprecation" That 18, (6) La'n, or when a husband charges his wife with adultery, the charge is investigated, but if there is no proof, and the man swears his wife is guilty, and the wife swears she is innocent a divorce must be decreed

(7) Ila, or "vow" When a husband makes a vow not to have carnal intercourse with his wife for no loss than four months, and keeps the vow inviolate, an irreversible

divorce takes place

(8) Reason of property If a husband become the proprietor of his wife (a slave), or the wife the proprietor of her husband (a slave), divorce takes place

(9) An invalid marriage of any kind, arising from incomplete nikāh, or "marriage core-mony," or from affinity, or from consangumity (10) Difference of country For example, if a husband flee from a dāru 'l-karb, or "land of enmity," : e " a non-Muslim country, daru 1-Islam, or "country of Islam," and his wife rofuso to perform higrah (flight) and to accompany him she is divorced

(11) Apostasy from Islam The author of the Ruddu I-Mukhtar (vol 11 p 648) says "Whon a man or woman apostatises from Islam, then an unmediate dissolution (faskh) of the marriage takes place, whether the apostasy bo of the man or of the woman, without a decree from the Qozi" And again. (p 645), "If both husband and wife apostatise at the same time, their marriage bond remains, and if at any future time the parties again return to Islam, no re-marriage is necessary to constitute them man and wife, but if one of the parties should apostatise before the other, a dissolution of the marriage takes placo spso facto

Mr J B S Boyle, of Lahore, says "As relevant to this subject, I give a quotation from Mr Currie's excellent work on the Indian Criminal Codes, p 445 The question is as to the effect of apostasy from Islam upon the marriage relation, and whether sexual intercourse with the apostate renders a persur hable to be convicted for adultery under Section 497 of the Indian Penal Code B, Mahommedans, married under the Mahommedan law, are converted to Christianity The wife, B, is first converted, but continues to live with her husband, subsequently the husband, A., is converted Subsequent to the conversion of B., A. and B., still living together as husband and wife, both professing Christianity, B. has sexual intercourse with C Will a donviction hold against C. under Section 497? Both Macnaghten and Baillie say the marriage becomes dissolved by apostany of either party, and Grady, in his version of Hamilton's Hiddynk, p 66, says "If either husband or wife apostatize from the faith, a separation takes place, without divoice, according to Abū Hancefa and Abū Yoosuf Imām Mahommed alleges if the apostasy is on the part of the husband

"Apostasy annuls marriage in Hancefa's epinion, and in apostasy separation takes place without any decree of the magistrate Cases which might decide this point have been lately tried both at Lucknow and Allahabad at the former place in re Afzul Hosem v Mades Bryum, and at the latter Zuburdurt Khan v Wife But from certain remarks to Khan v Wife be found in the judgment of the High Court, N W P, the Courts of Oudh and N W P, appear to differ on the most essential point. The point before the Oudh Court was (Hadee Begum's plea) that her marriage contract was dissolved by reason of her own apostast, a sufficient answer to a suit brought by her Mahommedan husband for restitution of conjugal rights, ar Does the apostasy of a Ma hommedan wife dissolve a marriage contract against the express wish of a Mahommedan husband in dar-oul-harb (land of was)? for India, it is contended, is not, under its present administration, dos-nol-Islam (land of safety) The Oudh Court held (admitting that apos-tasy by the husband dissolved the marriage and freed the wife) that apostasy by the wife did not free her if her husband sued for restitution of conjugal rights They argued that apostasy by the wife, without the wish of the husband, could not be entertained, in fact, that as regards her husband's volution, tho spostasy could not exist, and would not be recognisod That a suit for restitution of conjugal rights before the competent court of the time, seemed to them to be equivalent of the suit before the Cazee (Judge) Tho Oudh judges, in the absence of distinct precedent, say they fell back on the customs of the people amongst whom they lived The Oudh Court evidently considered there was an essential difference between apostasy of a man and apostasy of a woman, of the husband or the wife, also between apostasy to a faith in a book and apostasy to the idol worship Mahommed and his followers renounce Does such an essential difference exist? The point before the High Court N W P was Can a Mahommodan professing Christianity subsequent to his marriage with a Mussulmani, according to the Mahommedan law, obtain a decree for dissolution of that marriage under Act IV of 1869, his wife having subsequently to him professed Christianity, and they under their new faith having lived together as man and wife? or whother the wife's contention is sound, that her marriage was cancelled by her husband's apostasy?

They held the apostasy of the husband dissolved the marriage to This the Oudh Court admits, but the peint before the Oudh Court was not before the High Court, N W P, neverthelass from comments made by the High Court, N W P, on the Oudh decision, they evidently did not agree with the finding come to by the latter Court, on the point before it

"Now, Mr Currie asks in the above extract, does such an essential difference exist between apostasy to a book—that is, to a kituise faith—and apostasy to idol worship? Answering this question necessitates a few remarks upon the judgments above mentioned. According to Mahommedan law, a man may ing this question necessitates a few remarks upon the judgments above mentioned cording to Mahommedan law, a man may lawfully marry a katabeeah, but marriage with a Pagan or polytheist is unlawful But the principle in Mahommedan law is, that when one of the parties turns to a state of religion that would render the marriage con tract illegal If it were still to be entered into, what was legal before is made void hommedan woman, becoming a kitubeach, does not render the mairiage word, for there is nothing to render the marriage contract illegal if it were still to be entered into, but if the Mahammedan woman becomes an idol atress, the marriage is void, for the woman has turned to a state of religion that would render the marriage contract illegal if it were still to be entered into a Mahonimedan woman, becoming a Christian, consequently, would not be separated from her husband, because she belongs to the religion of the book, that is, a kitabec faith. If a kitabeeuh becomes an idolatress, the marriage is dissolved, but if she change from one religion to another, and still remain a kitabeeah, the marriage is not vitiated bo far the Oudh Court is correct in its decision, that the Mahommedan wife's conversion to Christianity did not render the mar riage null and word, but that a suit for restitution of conjugal rights would lie; and taking the case of C having sexual intercourse with B. the wife of A converted to Christianity, a conviction under Section 497, Indian Penal Code, would hold good But with all deference, I do not think that the Oudh Court is correct when it states that apostasy by the wife without the wish of the husband could not be entertained, in fact, that as regards her husband's volution, the apostasy could not exist and would not be recognised '

"So far as regards a woman's apostatising to a ketabee faith, this holds good, but if a woman turies to Paganism, spec facto the marriage is void and does not depend upon the voltion of the husband (having regard to the principle we have adverted to above), so that the husband under such circumstances could not maintain a suit for conjugal rights, nor would a conviction hold good against C, under Section 497, Indian Penal Code for sexual intercourse with B, the wife of A, who has apostatised to Paganism. The decision of the two Courts, however, seem correct, on the principles of Mahommedan law, as to the offect of a husband apostatising from Islam

By Mahommedan law, a marriege by a female Moslem with a man not of the Mahommedan faith is unlawful applying the principle quoted before, the man having turned to a state of religion that would render the contract illegal if it were still to be entered into, the marriage is void. The spostasy of the husband dissolves the marriage tie, conscquently there does exist an essential difference between apostasy of a man and of a woman, of the apostasy of the husband or the wife, also between apostasy to a faith in a book, that is, a revealed religion having a book of faith and apostasy to the idol wor-ship Mahommed and his followers renounce The law allows a person the right to cease to be a Mahommedan in the fullest sense of the word, and to become a Christian, and to claim for himself and his descendants all the rights and obligations of a British subject " (Hogg v Greenway, &c. 2, Hyde's Reports, 8 Manual of Laws relating to Muhammadans and their Relations of Life)

V In addition to the forms of divorce already explained, there are three others of a peculiar nature, called khula' mubara'ah, and

gıkar

The form of divorce known as khula', is when, a husband and wife disagreeing, or for any other cause, the wife, on payment of a compensation or ransom to her husband, is permitted by the law to obtain from him a release from the marriage tie The khulu' is generally effected by the husband giving back the dower or part thereof When the aversion is on the part of the husband, it is generally held that he should grant his wife's request without com pensation, but this is purely a matter of conscience and not of law

Mubara ah is a divorce which is offected by a mutual release

Zihār, from zahr, "back ' is a kind of divoice which is effected by a husband likening his wife to any part or member of the body of any of his kinswomen within the proinbited degree As for example if he were to say to his wife, "Thou art to me like the back of my mother" The motive of the husband in saying so must be examined, and if it appear that he meant divorce, his wife is not lawful to him until he have made expla tion by freeing a slave, or by fasting two months, or by feeding aixty poor men Qur an, Sürah lvm 4)

(For the Sunni Law of Divorce, see the Hidayah and its Commentary, the hifayah, Durru 'l Mukhtar and its Commentary, the Raddu P Mukhtar the katawa 1-'Alumguri Hamilton's English Edition, Hidayah, I agoir Law I ectures, 1873)

VI The Shi'ah law of Devorce differs only in a faw particulars from that of the Sunnis According to Shi'ah law, a man must be an adult of understanding, of free oboice and will, and of design and intention, when he divorces his wife A marked contract to the ilcence and liberty allowed by the Sunni Nor can the Shiah divorce be effected in any language of a metaphorical kind It must be express and be pronounced in Arabic (if the husband understand that language) and it must be spoken and not written. divorce amongst the Shi'ahs does not take effect if given implicatively or ambiguously, whether intended or not. It is also absolutely necessary that the sentence should be pronounced by the husband in the presence of two just persons as witnesses, who shall hear and testify to the wording of the divorce.

(For the Shi'sh law of divorce, see Shiratu Lislam, Tahriru Lislam, Mafatih, Mr. Neil Baillies Digest of Muhammadan Law, Imamah Code, Tagore Law Lectures, 1874)

VII Computed with the Mosaic Law When compared with the Mosaic law, it will be seen that by the latter, divorce was only sanctioned when there was "some unclearmess" in the wife, and that whilst in Islam a husband can take back his divorced wife, in the law of God it was not permitted. See Deut xxiv 1-4

When a man bath taken a wife and married her, and it come to pass that she find no favour in his eyes, because he hath found some uncleanness in her, then let him write her a bill of divorcement, and give at in her hand, and send her out of his house . And when she is departed out of his house, she may go and be another man's wife

"And if the latter husband hate her, and waite hor a bill of divorcement and giveth it in her hand and sendeth her out of his house, or if the latter husband die, which took her to be his wife,

"Her former husband, which sent her away, may not take her again to be his wife, after that she is defiled, for that is abomination before the Lord and thou shalt not cause the land to an which the Lord thy God giveth thee for an inheritance"

The ground of divorce in the Mosaic law was ' some uncleanness in her " There were two interpretations of this by the Jewish doctors of the period of the New Testament The School of Shammar seemed to limit it to a moral deimquoncy in the woman, whilst that of Hillel extended it to trifling causes Our Lord appears to have regarded all the lesser causes than formication as standing on too weak a ground

Mitt v 32 'But I say unto von, that whosoever shall put away his wife, saving for the cruse of fornication, causeth her to commit adultery and whosoever shall marry her that is divorced committeth adultery "

It will be seen that Muhammad adopted the teaching of the School of Hillel, omitting the bill of divorcement, which was enjoined in Deut xxiv 3, thereby placing the woman entirely at the will sud caprice of her husband Burkhardt tells us of an Arab, forty-five years old, who had had fifty wives, so that he must have divorced two wives and married two fresh ones on the average every year We have cases of Muhammad's own "Companions' not much better I his is the natural and legitimate effect of the law

Sir William Mun (Life of Mahomet, vol 111 305) says "The idea of conjugal unity is ntterly unknown to Mahometans, excepting when the Christian example is by chance fellowed, and even there, the continuance of the bond is purely dependent on the will of the husband. . I believe the morale of Hindu society, where polygamy is less enconraged, to be sounder, in a very marked degree, than that of Mahometan society "

DIWAN (Oles) (1) In Muhammadan law, the word signifies an account of record book, and also the bags in which the Qāzī's records are kept (2) It is also a court of justice, a royal court (3) Also a mimster of state, the chief officer in a Muhammadan state, a finance minister (4) In British courts a law-suit is called diwāns, when it refers to a civil suit, in contradistinction to faujdāri, or "criminal suit" (5) A collection of edes is called a diwān, e g Diwān-thāfiz, "the Peems of Hāfiz"

DIYAH (40) A pecuniary compensation for any offence upon the person [FINES]

DOGS (Arabic kalb, pl kilāb, Heb 175) are unclean animals, for according to a tradition by Abū Hurairah, Muhammad said that when a dog dinks in a vessel it must be washed seven times, and that the first clean sing should be with earth (Mishkāt, book in c ii pt 1)

"Most people believe that when a dog howls near a house it forebodes death, for, it is said, a dog can distinguish the awful form of Azia'il, the Angel of Death" (Burton's Arabia, vol 1 p 290)

Ibn 'Umr says that dogs used to come into the Masjid at Makkah in the time of the Prophet, but the Companions never purified

the mosque when the dog was dry

The Imam Abu Yusuf holds that the sule of a dog that bites is unlawful, whilst the linam ash Shafi i has said that the sale of a dog is absolutely illegal, because the Prophet said the wages of whoredom and the price of a dog are forbidden. Abu Hamifah helds that dogs which are trained to hunt or watch may be lawfully sold (Hamilton's Hidayah vol ii p. 543)

It is lawful to hunt with a trained dog, and the sign of a dog being trained is that he catches game three times without killing it. The dog must be let slip with the ejaculation. The dog must be let slip with the ejaculation the great God! "when all game served by him becomes lawful food. This custom is founded upon a verse in the Qur'an, Surah v 6: "Lawful for you are all good things and what ye have taught beasts of prey to catch, training them like dogs, yo teach them as God taught you. And mention the name of God over it."

Rules for hunting with dogs will be found in Hamilton's Hiddigal, vel iv p 170

DOG STAR Sirius, or the dog star, was an object of worthip amongst the ancient Arabs, and is mentioned in the Qur an, under the name of ask-Shira, Sarah lin 50 "He (God) is the Lord of the Dog Star"

DOWER. Arabic, mahr (-+-), Dower is considered by Heb (מהר) some lawyers to be an effect of the marriage contract, imposed on the husband by the law as a mark of respect for the subject of the contract—the wife, while others consider that it is in exchange for the usufruct of the wife, and its payment is necessary, as upon the provision of a support to the wife depends the permanency of the matrimonial connection. Thus, it is indispensable a fortiors, so much so, that if it were not mentioned in the marriage contract, it would be still incumbent on the husband, as the law will presume it by virtue of the contract itself, and award it upon demand being made by the wife such case, the amount of dower will be to the extent of the dowers of the women of her rank and of the ladies of her father's family Special beauty or accomphaliments may, however to pleaded for recovering a larger award thin the customary dower, where the amount of dower is not mentioned in the contract There is no limit to the amount of dower, it may be to a very large amount, considering the position and circumstance of the budegroom, but its minimum is never less than ten dishains, so where it is fixed at a lesser amount the law will angment it up to ten dulums The dower need not invar ably be in currency, or even in inetal, everything, except carrion, blood, wine, and hog Also the bridegroom s own labour, if he is a free min, being hold by the law to be a good dower

Dower is generally divided into two parts, termed mu'und, prompt," and mu'und, "deformed" The mu'and portion is exigible on entering into the contract, while the mu'ajjul part of the dower is pavable upon dissolution of the contract. Although the first part is payable, and is sometimes paid, at the time the contract is entered into, vet it has been the general practice (at least in India) to leave it unpaid, and so like an on-demand obligation it remains due at all times—the wife sright to the same not being extinguished by lapse of time. The wifes (or her guardians) object in leaving the exigible part of the dower unrealised, seems to be that there may always exist a valid guarantce for the good treatment of her by her husband women of the respectable classes reserve their right and power to demand their exigible dowers till such time as occasion should require the exercise thereof The custom of fixing heavy dowers generally beyond the husband's means, especially in India, seems to be based upon the intention of checking the husband from uli-treating his wife, and, above all, from his mairying another woman, as also from wrongfully or causelessly di-vorcing the former For in the case of divorce the woman can demand the full payment of the dower In the event of the death of the husband, the payment of the dower has the first claim on the estate after funeral expenses, the law regarding it as a just debt (Tugore Law Lectures, 1873, p 841, Hidayak, vol 1 p 122)

DREAMS Arabio hulm (مسلم), ا manām (مسلم), rūyā' (مام)) The term used for a bad dream is hulm, and for an ordinary dream manam, raya' being used to express

a heavenly vision. [RUYA.]
According to the traditions, the Prophet is related to have said, " A good dream is of God a favour and a had dream is of the devil, therefore, when any of you dreams a dream which is such as he is pleased with, then he must not tell at to any but a beloved friend, and when he dreams a bad dream, then let him seek protection from God both from its evil and from the wickedness of Satan, and let him spit three times ever his left shoulder, and not mention the dream to anyone, then, verily, no evil shall come nigh him " "The truest dream is the one which you have about day break.' "Good dreams are one of the parts of prophecy" (Mishkat, xxi o iv)

Arabic hbas (الساس) DRESS Decent apparel at the time of public worship is engined in the Qui an, Surah vii 29 "O children of Adam 1 weat your goodly appared when we repair to any mosque." Excess in apparel and extravagance in dress are reproved, Suish vii 25 'We (God) have sent down raiment to hide your nakedness, and splended garments, but the rannent of party this is the best "

According to the Hidayah (vol iv p 92), a dress of silk is not lawful for men, but women are permitted to wear it Men are prohibited from wearing gold ornuments, and also ernaments of silver, otherwise than a The custom of keeping silver signet ring. The custom of keeping handkerchiefs in the hand, except for necessary use is also forbidden

The following are some of the sayings of the Prophet with regard to dress, as recorded in the Traditions. Mishkat, xx c 1 God will not look at him on the Day of Resurrection who shall wear long garments from pride" "Whoever woars a silken garment in this world shall not wear it in the next" "God will not have compassion upon bim who wears long trousers (se below the unkle) from pride" "It is lawful for the women of my people to wear silks and gold ornaments, but it is unlawful for the men." "Wear white clothes, because they are the cleanest, and the most agreeable, and bury your dead in white clothes

According to the Truditions, the dress of Muhammad was exceedingly simple. It is said he used to wear only two garments the zzar, or "under garment" which hung down three or four mebes below his knees, and a mattle thrown over his shoulders two robes, with the turban, and white cotton drawers, completed the Prophet's wardrobe His dress was generally of white, but he also wore green, red, and yellow, and sometimes a black woollen dress. It is said by some tia ditionists that in the taking of Makkah he wore a black turban. The end of his turban used to hang between his shoulders And he used to wrap it many times round his head It is said, "the edge of it appeared below like the soiled clothes of an oil dealer

He was ospecially foud of white-striped yamani cloth He once prayed in a silken dress, but he cast it aside afterwards saying. "it doth not become the faithful to wear alk" He once prayed in a spotted mantle, but the spots diverted his attention, and the garment was never again worn.

His sleeves, unlike those of the Eastern chogs or khaftan, ended at the wrist, and he never wore long robus reaching to his ankles

At first, he were a gold ring with the stone inwards on his right hand, but it distracted his attention when preaching, and he changed it for a silver one His shoes, which were often old and cobbled, were of the Haaramant pattern, with two thongs And he was in the habit of praying with his shoes on [SHOES.]

The example of Mulianimad has doubtless influence the customs of his followers in the matter of dress the fash on of which has remained almost the same in castein Muhammadan countries centuries past, for although there are varieties of diess n Fastern as well as in European countries, still there are one or two characteristics of dress which are common to all oriental nations which have embraced Islam, namely the turban folded round the head the white cotton drawers, or full trousers, tied round the waist by a nunming string , the quinus, or 'shirt,' the & titi, or " coat," and the lungs or " scarf" The gamis is the same as the ketoneth of the Hebrows, and the xirws of the Greeks, a kind of long shirt with short sleeves the ends of which extend over the trousors or drawers, reaching below the knees The Ihaftan nawers to the Hebrow העניל mes! (1 Sam avail 4), a tunc worn as an outer garment The Jewish בכך heged, or שלכתלה simlah, mast have been sumlir, to the quadrangular piece of cloth still worn as a scarf in Central Asia, and called a runge and similar to the 'aba' of the Egyptians It is worn in various m sys, either wrapped sound the bony, or worn over the shoulders, and sometimes folded as a covering for the head

The dress of Muhammadana in Egypt is very minutely described by Mr Lane in his Modern Fappitans, vol 1 p 36

The dress of the men of the middle and higher classes of Fgypi consists of the iollowing articles. First a pair of full drawers of linea or cotton tied round the body by a running string or band, the ends of which are embroidered with coloured alka, though condescend a little below the knees or to the ankles, but many of the Arans will not wear long drawers because prohibited by the Prophet Next is worn a quints or "shirt," with very full sleeves, reaching to the wrist, it is made of buen of a loose open texture, or of cotton stuff, or of muslin, or silk, or of a mixture of silk and cotton in strips, but all white Over thus, in winter, or in cool weather, most persons wear a sudeyree, which is a short vest of cloth, or of striped coloured silk, or cotton without sleeves. Over the shirt and the sudeyree, or the former alone, is worn a long vest of striped silk or cotton (called kaftan) descending to the ankles, with long elseves extending a few mohes beyond the fingers' eads, but divided from a point a little above the wrist, or about the middle of the fore-arm, so that the hand is generally exposed, though it may be concealed by the sleeve when necessary, for it is outstomary to cover the hands in the presence of a person of high rank. Round this vest is wound the girdle, which is a coloured shawl, or a long piece of white-figured muslin.

The ordinary outer robe is a long cloth coat, of any colour, called by the Turks jubbah, but by the Egyptians gibbeh the sleeves of which reach not quite to the wrist. Some persons also wear a benezsh, which is a robe of cloth with long sleeves, like those of the kaftan, but more ample it is properly a robe of curemeny, and should be worn over the other cloth cost, but many persons wear

it mustead of the qibbeh

Another robe called farage yek nearly resembles the benesh, it has very long sleeves, but those are not allt, and it is clinify worn by men of the learned professions. In cola or cool weather, a kind of black woollen cloak, called abayeh, is commonly worn. Sometimes this is drawn over the head.

In winter, also, many persons wrap a muslin or other shawl (such as they use for a turban) about the head and shoulders. The head-dress consists, first, of a small clove-fitting cotton cap, which is often changed next a tarboosh, which is a red cloth cap also fitting close to the head with a tassel of darkblue sitk at the crown, lastly, a long piece of white muslin generally figured, or a kashmere shawl, which is wound round the tarboosh. Thus is formed the turban. The kashmere shawlie seldom worn except in cool weather. Some persons wear two or three tarbooshes one over another. A shereof (or descendant of the Prophet) wears a green turban, or is privileged to do so, but no other person, and it is not common far any but a shereof to wear a hight green dress. Stockings are not in use, but some fow persons in cold weather wear woollen or cetton seeks. The shoes are of thick red morocco, pointed, and turning up at the toes. Some persons also wear inner shoes of soft yellow morocco, and with soles of the same, the outer shoes are taken off on stepping upon a carpet or mat, but not the inner, for this reason the former are often worn turned down at the heel.

AN EGYPTIAN MAULAWI (LANE)

The cestume of the men of the lower orders is very simple. These, if not of the very poorest class, wear a pair of drawers, and a long and full shirt or gown of blue linen or cotton, or of brown woollen stuff, open from the neck noarly to the waist, and having wide sleeves. Over this some wear a white or red woollen girdle, for which servants often substitute a broad red belt of woollen stuff or of leather, generally containing a receptacle for money. Their turban is generally composed of a white, red, or yellow

AN PRIPTIAN PEASANT (LAME)

woollen shawl or of a piece of course cotton or muslin wound round a tarboosh, under which is a white or brown felt cap, but many are so poor as to have no other cap than the latter, no turban, nor eyen drawers, nor shoes, but only the blue or brown shirt, or marely a fe viage, while many, on the other hand, wear a sudepiec under the blue shirt and some particularly servants in the houses of great men well a white shirt, a sudepiec, and a haftan, or gibbel, or both, and tre blue shirt over all the full sheeves of this shirt are sometimes drawn up by means of a cord, which passes round each shoulder and crosses behind, where it is tied in a knot. This custom is adopted by servants (particularly grooms), who have cords of crimson or dark blue silk for this purpose

In celd weather, many persons of the lower classes wear an abayeh, like that before described, but occarser and sometimes (instead of being black) having broad stripes, brown and white, or blue and white, but the latter rarely Another kind of cloak, more full than the abayeh, of black or deep blue woollen stuff, is also very commonly worn, it is called diffeoyeh. The shoes are of red or yellow morocco, or of sheep-skin. Those of the groom are of dark red morocco. Those of the door-keeper and the water-carrier of a private house, generally yellow

The Muslims are distinguished by the colours of their turbane from the Copts and the Jews, who (as well as other subjects of the Turkish Sultan who are not Muslims) wear black, blue, gray, or light brown turbans, and generally dull-coloured dresses

The distinction of sects, families, dynasties, &c, among the Muslim Arabs by the colour of the turban and other articles of dress, is of very early origin. There are not many different forms of turbans now worn in Egypt, that worn by most of the servants is peruliarly formal, consisting of several spiral twists one above another like the threads of a screw. The kind common among the middle and higher classes of the tradesmen and other citizens of the metropolis and large towns is also very formal, but less so than that just before alluded to

The Turkish turban worn in Egypt is of a more elegant fashion. The byrian is distintinguished by its width. The Ulama and men of religion and letters in general used to weir, as some do still, one particularly wide and formal called a mukleh. The turban is much respected. In the houses of the more wealthy classes, there is usually a chair on which it is placed at night. This is often sent with the furniture of a bride, as it is common for a lady to have one upon which to place her head dress. It is never used for any other purpose

The dress of the women of the middle and higher orders is handsome and elegant Their shirt is very full, like that of the men, but shorter, not reaching to the knees, it is also, generally, of the same kind of material as the men's shirt, or of coloured crape, sometimes black A pair of very wide trou-sers (called shinityen) of a coloured striped stuff, of silk and cotton, or of printed or plam white muslin, is tied round the hips under the shirt, with a dikkeh, its lower extremities are drawn up and tied just below the knee with running strings, but it is sufficiently long to hang down to the feet, or almost to the ground, when attached in his manner Over the shirt and shintiyan is orn a long vest (called yelek), of the same material as the latter, it nearly resembles the kastan of the men, but is more tight to the body and arms, the sleeves also are longer, and it is made to button down the front from the bosom to a little below the girdle, instead of lapping over, it is open, likewise on each side, from the height of the hip downwards

In general, the yelek is cut in such a man ner as to leave half of the bosom uncovered, except by the shirt, but many ladies have it made more ample at that part, and according to the most approved fashion it should be of sufficient length to reach to the ground, or should exceed that length by two or three inches or more A short vest (called anteree) reaching only a little below the want, and exactly resembling a yelek of which the lower part has been cut off, is sometimes worn materd of the latter A square shawl, or an embroidered kerchief, doubled diagonally, is put loosely round the waist as a girdle, the two corners that are folded together hanging down behind, or sometimes he lady's girdle is folded after the ordinary Turkish fashion, like that of the men, but more loosely

Over the yelck is worn a gibbeh of cloth or velvet or silk, usually embroidered with gold or with coloured silk, it differs in form from the gibbeh of the men chiefly in being not so wide, particularly in the fore part, and is of the same length as the yelck. Instead of this, a jacket (called 'allah'), generally of cloth or velvot, and embroidered in the same manner as the gibbeh, is often worn.

The head-dress consists of a takeevel and tarboosh, with a square kerchief (called farocdeyel) of printed or painted mushin or one of crape, wound tightly round, composing what is called a rabtah. Two or more such korchiefs were commonly used a short time since, and still are sometimes to form the ladies.

AN EGYPTIAN LADY (MANE).

turban, but always wound in a high flat shape, very different from that of the turban of the men. A kind of crown, called kurs, and other ornaments, are attached to the ladies' head-dress. A long piece of white muslin, embroidered at each and with coloured silks.

and gold, or of coloured crape ornamented with gold thread, &c, and spangles, rests upon the head, and hangs down behind, searly or quite to the ground, this is called tarkak, it is the head-veil, the face-veil I shall presently describe. The hair, except over the forehead and temples, is divided into numerous braids or platts, generally from eleven te twenty-five in number, but always of an uneven number, these hang down the back. To each braid of hair are usually added three black silk cords with little ornaments of gold, &c, attached to them. Over the forehead the hair is cut rather short, but two full locks hang down on each side of the face, these are often curied in ringlets and sometimes plaited

Few of the ladies of Egypt wear stockings or socks, but many of them wear mezz (or inner shoes) of yellow or red morocco, sometimes embroidered with gold. Over these, whenever they step off the matted or carpeted part of the floor, they put on baboog (or slippers) of yellow morocco, with high-pointed toes, or use high wooden clogs or pattens, generally from four to nine inches in height, and usually ornamented with mother-of-pearl or silver, &c

The riding or walking attire is called texgered. Whenever a lady leaves the house, she wears, in addition to what has been above described, first, a large, loose gown (called tob or schleh), the sleeves of which are nearly equal in width to the whole length of the gown, it is of silk, generally of a pink or rose or violet colour Next is put on the burka or face-veil, which is a long strip of white muchn concealing the whole of the face except the eyes, and reaching nearly to the feet. It is suspended at the top by a narrow band, which passes up the forehead, and which is sewed, as are also the two upper corners of the veil, to a band that is tied round the head The lady then covers herself with a habarah, which, for a married lady, is composed of two breadths of glossy, black silk, each ell-wide, and three yards long, these are sewed together, at or near the selvages (according to the height of the person) the seam running horizontally, with respect to the manner in which it is worn, a piece of narrow black ribbon is sewed inside the upper part, about six inches from the edge, to tie round

THE INDIAN BURKA

THE EGYPTTAN HABARAN

the head But some of them unitate the Turkish ladies of Egypt in holding the front part so as to conceal all but that portion of the veil that is above the hands. The unimarried ladies wear a habarah of white silk of a shawl. Some females of the middle classes, who cannot afford to purchase a habarah, wear instead of it an tesâr or tzâr, which is a piece of white calico, of the same form and size as the former, and is worn in the same manner. On the feet are worn short boots or socks (called khuff), of yellow morecoo, and over these the baboog. The dress of a large proportion of those women of the lower orders who are not of the poorest class, consists of a pair of trousers or drawers

(similar in form to the shintiyan of the ladies, but generally of plain white cotton or linen), a blue linen or cotton shirt (not quite so full as that of the men), reaching to the feet, a burks' of a kind of coarse black crape, and a Some dark blue tarksh of mushn or linen wear, ever the long shirt, or instead of the latter, a linen tob, of the same form as that of the ladies, and within the long shirt, some wear a short white shirt, and soure, a sudey-ree also, or an anteres The sleeves of the ree also, or an anteres tob are often turned up over the head, either te prevent their being incommodious, or to supply the place of a turbah In addition to these articles of dress many women who are not of the very poor classes wear, as a cover-ing, a kind of plaid, similar in form to the habarah, composed of two pieces of cotton, woven in small chequers of blue and white, er cross stripes, with a mixture of red at each end It is called milaych, in general it is worn in the same manner as the habarab, but sometimes like the tarhah The upper part of the black burks' is often ornamented with false pearls, small gold coms, and other little flat ornaments of the same metal (called bark), sometimes with a coral bead, and a gold coin beneath, also with some coins of base silver and more commonly with a pair of chain tassels of brass or silver (called eyeon) attached to the corners A square black silk kerchief (called mobel), with a border of red and yellow, is bound round the head, doubled diagonally, and tied with a single knot behind, or, metead of thie, the tarboosh and faroodes-vel are worn, though by very few women of the lower classes.

AN INDIAN ZANANA LADT

The best kind of shoes worn by the females of the lower orders are of red morocco, turned up, but generally round, at the toes The burks' and shoes are most common in Cairo, and are also worn by many of the women throughout lower Egypt; but in Upper Egypt, the burka' is very seldem seen, and shoes are scarcely less uncommon To supply the place of the fermer, when necessarv, a portion of the tarhah is drawn before the face, so as to conceal nearly all the countenance except one eve

Many of the women of the lower orders, even in the metropolis, never conceal their faces

I broughaut the greater part of Egypt, the most common dress of the women merely consists of the blue shirt or tob and tarhab In the southern parts of Upper Egypt chiefly above Akhmeem, most of the women envelop themselves in a large piece of dark-brown woollen stuff (called a hulalerych), wrapping it round the body and atturbing the upper parts together over each shoulder, and a piece of the same they use as a tarhab This dull dress, though picturesque, is almost as disguising as the blue tings which women in these parts of Egypt impart to their lips Most of the women of the lower orders wear a variety of trumpery ornaments such as ear-rings, necklaces, bracelets, &c , and sometimes a nose-ring

The women of Egypt deem it more moumbent upon them to cover the upper and hack part of the head than the face, and more requisite to concess the face than most other parts of the person. I have often eeen women but half covered with miserable rags. and several tumes females in the prime of womanhood, and others in more advanted age, with nothing on the body but a narrow strip of rag bound round the hips

Mr Burckhart, in his Notes on the Bedouins and Wahabys (p 47), thus describes the dress of the Badawis of the desert ---

In summer the men wear a coarse cotton shirt, over which the wealthy put a kombor, or "long gown," as it is wern in Turkish towns, of silk or cotton stuff. Most of them, however, do not wear the kombar, but simply wear over their shirt a woollen mantle There are different sorte of mantles, one very thin, light, and white woollen, manufactured at Baghdad, and called mesoumy A coarser and heavier kind striped white and brown (worr over the mesoumy), is called ubba The Bughdad abbas are most esteemed, those made at Hamah, with short wide sleeves, are called boush (In the northern parts of Syria, every kind of woollen mantle, whether white, black, or striped noite and brown, or white and blue, are called meshiakh) I have not seen any blank abbas among the Asnexes. but frequently among the sheakhs of Ahl el Shemal, sometimes interwoven with gold, and worth as much as ten pounds sterling The Aeneses do not wear drawers, they walk and ride usually barefooted, even the richest of them, although they generally esteem yellow boots and red shoes All the Bedoums wear on the head, instead of the red Turkish cap, a turban, or square kerchief, of cotton or cotton and silk mixed, the turban is called keffie, this they fold about the head so that one corner talls backward, and two other corners bang over the fore part of the shoulders, with these two corners they cover their faces to protect them from the sun's rays, or hot wind, or rain, or to conceal their features if they wish to be unknown The keffie is yellow or yellow mixed with green Over the keffle the Aeneres tle, instead of a turban, a cord round the head this cord is of camel's hair, and called akal. Some tie a handker-chief about the head and it is then called shuffe A few rich sheikha wear shawls on their heads of Damaseus or Baghaad manu facture, striped red and white; they some times also use red caps or takte (called in Syris tarboush), and under those they wear a smaller cap of camel's han called magraka (in Syria urkye, where it is generally made of f no cotton stuff)

A BEDOUT (BIDAWI) OF THE DESERT

The Acnezos are distinguished at first sight from all the Syrian Bedouins by the long treases of their hair. They never shave their black hair, but cherish it from infancy, till they can twist it in treases, that hang over the cheeks down to the breast these tresses are called keroun Some few Acreses wear girdles of leather, others tie a cord or a piece of rag over the shirt Men and women west from infancy a leather girdle around the naked waist, it consists of four or five though twisted together into a cord as thick as one's I heard that the women tie their anger thongs separated from each other, round the wasst Both men and women adorn the girdles with pieces of ribands or amulets. The Aenezes called it hhakou, the Ahl el Shemal call it berein In summer the boys, until the age of seven or eight years go stark naked, but I never saw any young girl in that state. although it was mentioned that in the interior of the desert the girls, at that early age, were not more encumbered by clothing than their little buothers In winter, the Bedouins wear over the shirt a pelisse, made of several sheep skin- stitched together, many wear these skins even in summer, because experience has taught them that the more warmly a person is clothed, the less be suffers from the sun. The Arabs endure the inclemency of the rainy season in a wonderful manner While everything around them suffers from the cold, they sleep barefooted in an open ent, where the fire is not kept up beyond mid might Yet in the middle of summer an Arab sleeps wrapt in his mantle upon the burning sand, and exposed to the rays of an intensely hot wan The ladies' dress as a wide cotton ge on of a dark colour, blue, brown, or black , or their heads they wear a kerchief called shouter or metrouse, the young females having it of a red colour, the old of black. All the Ranalla ladios wear black silk kerchiefs, two vards square called shale kas, these are made at Damascus Silver rings are much worn by the Aeneze ladies, both in the eare and noses, the eni-rings they call terkse (pl. teraly) the small nose-rings shedre, the larger (some or which are three inches and a half in disinetor) thezain All the women puncture their lips and dye them blue, this kind of tattooing they call berioum, and apply it like wise in spotting their temples and foreheads The Serblan women puncture their cheeks breasts and arms, and the Ammour women their ankles Several men also adorn then arms in the same manner The Bedoum ladies half cover their faces with a darkcoloured veil called nekye, which is so tied as to conceal the ohm and mouth. The Egyptian women's veil (berkon) is used by the Kebly Arabs. Round their wrists the Aenezo ladies wear glass bracelets of various colouis, the rich also have silver bracelets and some wear silver chains about the neck Both in summer and winter the men and women go berefooted

Captain Burton, in his account of Zanzibar, (vol. 1 p 382), says —

The Arab's head-dress is a kummeh or kojiyyāh (red fez), a Surat calotic (ajiyyah), or a white skull-cap, worn under a turban (kilemba) of Oman silk and cotton religiously mixed Usually it is of fine blue and white cotton check, smbroidered and fringed with broad red border, with the ends lianging in unequal lengths over one shoulder coiffure is highly picturesque. The ruling family and grandees, however, have modified its vulgar folds, wearing it peaked in front, and somewhat resembling a tiara. The essential body-clothing, and the succedaneum for trousers is an szor (ague yaku Chini), or lein-cloth, tucked in at the wast, six to seven feet long by two to three broad The colours are brickdust and white, or blue and white, with a silk border striped red, black, and yellow The very poor wear a dirty bit of cotton girdled by a hakab or kundavi, a rope of plaited thongs, the rich prefer a fine embroidered stuff from Oman, supported at the waist by a silver chain None but the western Arabs admit the unovation of drawers (silvitoolt). The same or upper garment is a collar-less coat, of the best broad-cloth, leek-green or some tender colour being preferred. It is secured over the left breast by a silken loop, and the straight wide sleeves are gaily lined. The kizhão is a kind of waistcoat, covering only the bust; some wear it with sleeves, others without The dishdashes (in Kisawahib Khanzu), a narrow-sleeved shirt buttoned at the throat, and extending to midshin, is made of calco (baftah), American drill and other stuffs called dorsyah, tarebusus, and jamdan: Sailors are known by khuzerang: a coarse cotton, stained dingy red-yellow, with henna or pomegranate rind, and rank with wars (bastard saffron) and shark's oil.

Respectable men guard the stomach with a histin, generally a Cashmers or Bombay shawl; others wear sashes of the dust-coloured raw silk, manufactured in Oman. The outer garment for chilly weather is the long tight-eleeved Persian jubbah, jokhah, or caftan, of European broad-oloth Most men shave their heads, and the Shafels trim or entirely remove the moustaches

The palms are reddened with henna, which is either brought from El Hejäz, or gathered in the plantations. The only ring is a plain cornelian seal and the sole other ornament is a talisman (here, in Kisawahili Hirim). The eyes are blackened with hohl, or antimony of El Shām—here, not Syria, but the region about Meccah—and the mouth crimsoned by betel, looks as if a tooth had just been knocked out.

Dr Eugene Schuyler, in his work on Turkestan (vol i. p 122), says -

The dress of the Central Asiatic is very simple. He wears loose baggy trousers, usually made of coarse white cotton stuff fastened tightly round the waist, with a cord and tassel, this is a necessary article of dress, and is never or rarely taken off, at all events not in the presence of another. Frequently, when men are at work, this is the only garment, and in that case it is gradually turned up under the cord, or rolled up on the legs, so that the person is almost naked. Over this is worn a long shirt, either white or of the feet, and with a very narrow aparture for the neck, which renders it somewhat difficult to put the head through. The sleeves are long and loose Beyond this there is nothing more but what is called the chapan, varying in number according to the weather, or the whim of the person. The chapan is a loose gown, out very sloping in the neck, with strings to tie it together in front, and inerdinately large sleeves, made with an immense gore, and about twice as long as is necessary, exceedingly inconvenient, but useful to conceal the hands, as Assatio politeness dictates. In summer, these are usually made of Russian prints, or of the native alatcha, a striped cotton material, or of silk, either striped or with most gorgeous eastern patterns, in bright colours, especially red, yellow, and green I have sometimes seen men with as many as four or five of these gowns, even in summer. they say that it keeps out the heat winter, one gown will frequently be made of cloth, and haed with fine lamb-skin or fur The usual girdle is a large handkerchief, or a small shawl, at times, a long souri wound several times tightly round the waist. The Jews in places under native rule are allowed no girdle, but a ort of rope or sord, as a mark of ignominy. From the girdle hang the accessory knives and several small bags and pouches, often prettily embroidered, for combs, money &c. On the head there is a skull-cap these in Tashkent are always embroidered with silk, in Bükhärit they are usually worked with silk, or worsted in cross stitch in gay patterns. The turban, called tehtipetch, or "forty turns," is very long, and if the wearer has any pretence to elegance, it should be of fine thin material, which is chiefly imported from England. It requires considerable experience to wind one properly round the head, so that the folds will be well made and the appearance fashionable. One extremity is left to fall over the left shoulder, but is usually, except at prayer time, theked in over the top. Should this end be on the right shoulder, it is said to be in the Afghām style. The majority of turbans are white particularly so in Tashkent, though white is especially the colour of the mullahs and religious people, whose learning is judged by the size of their turbane. In general, merchants prefer blue, striped, or chequered material.

AN AFGHAN UNIEF (A F Hole.)

AN APGEAN MULIAR

At home the men usually go barefooted, but on going out wear either a sort of alippers with pointed toes and very small high fieels, or long soft boots, the sole and upper being made of the same material In the street one must in addition put on either a slipper or golosh, or wear riding-boots made of bright green horse hide, with turned up pointed toes and very small high heels

The dress of the women, in shape and fashion, differs but little from that of the men, as they wear similar trousers and shirts, thour,h, in addition, they have long gowns, usually of bright-coloured silk, which extend from the neck to the ground. They wear an immerable quantity of necklaces, and little amulets, pendenta in their hair, and ear-rings, and occasionally even a nose-ring This is by no means so ugly as is supposed a pretty girl with a torquoisoring in one nostril is not at all unsightly On the contrary, there is something piquant in it Usually, when outside of the houses, all respectable women wear a heavy black veil, reaching to their waists, made of woven horse-hair, and over that is thrown a dark blue, or green khalat, the eleves of which tied together at the ends, dangle behind. The theory of this dull dress is, that the woman desire to escape ob servation, and certainly for that purpose they have devised the most ugly and unseemly costume that could be imagined They are. however, very inquisitive, and occasionally in bye-streets one is able to get a good glance at them before they pull down their veils.

The dress of the citizens of Porsis has been

The dress of the crizens of reference often described, both by ancient and modern travellers. That of the men has changed the within the last century. The turban, as a hoad-dress, is now worn by none but the Arabian inhabitants of that country The Persians wear a long cap covered with iamb's wool, the appearance of which is sometimes improved by being encircled with a cashmere shawl. The inhabitants of the principal towns are fond of dressing richly Their upper garments are either made of chintz, aik, or oloth, and are often trammed with gold or miver lace they also wear bro cade, and in winter their clothes are lined with furs, of which they import a great variety It is not customary for any person, except the king, to wear jowels but nothing can exceed the profusion which he displays of these ornaments, and his subjects seem peculiarly proud of this part of royal magnificance. They assert that when the monarch is dressed in his most aplended robes, and is seated in the sun, that the eye cannot gaze on the dazzling brilhancy of his attire

DRINKABLES Arabic ashribah (A,A) There is a chapter in the Traditions devoted to this enegeot and on-titled Babu'l Ashribah The example of Muhammad in his habit of drinking, having influenced the Eastern world m its habits, the following traditions are noticeable. Anas says "the Prophet has forbidden drinking water standing" and that he used to take breath thice times in drinking, and would say draking in this way cools the stomach quenches the thirst, and gives health and vigour to the body

Ibn Abbas says the Prophet forbade drinking water from the mouth of a leather

Umm Salimah says "the Prophet said, He who drinks out of a silver oup drinks of hell fire (Mishkat, book zix c. ini)

DRINKING VESSELS are four drinking vessels which Mus ims were forbidden by their Prophet to drilk out of (Mishkat, bk 1,0 L) huntam, a 'green vessel", dubba', a large gourd hollowed out, maqu, a cup made from the hollowed root of a tree; muzaffar a vessel opvered with pitch, or with a glatmous substance. These four kinds of vessels seem to have been used for drinking wine, hence the prohibition.

When a dog armks from a vessel used by man, it should be washed aeven times

(Mishkal, book ili c. ix pt 1)

DROWNING Arabic gharag (3.4) It is a strange anomaly in Muhammadan law, according to the teaching of Abu Hanifah, that if a person cause the death of another by mamersing him under water until he die. the effecte does not amount to murder, and retaliation (quais) is not indurred The arguments of the learned divine are as follows First, water is analogous to a small stick or rod, as is seldom or ever used in murder Now, it is said in the Traditions that death produced by a rod 18 only manslaughter, and as in that a fine 18 merely incurred, so here likewise Secondly, retaliation requires the observance of a perfect equality, but between drowning and wound-ing there is no equality, the former being short of the latter with regard to damaging the body [MURDER.]

DRUNKENNESS Shurb (مرب) denotes the state of a person who has taken intoxicating liquor, whilst sukr (حكر) implies a state of drunkenness Wine of any kind being strictly forbidden by the Muslim law, no distmotion is made in the punishment of a wins-drinker and a drunkard. If a Muslim drink wine, and two witnesses testify to his having dene so, or if his breath smell of wine, or if he shall himself confess to having taken wine, or if he be found in a state of intoxication, he shall be beaten with eighty stripes, or, in the case of a slave, with forty stripes (Hidāyah, vol. ii. p 57, Mishkāt, bk xv o iv) [KHAME]

DRUZES A heretical mystic sect of Muhammadans, which arose about the beginning of the eleventh century in the mountains of Syria They are now chiefly found in the districts of Lebanon, and in the neighbourhood of Damascus They were founded by al-Hakim, the fanatical Khalifah of the Fățimite race, who reigned at Cairo, a sisted by two Persians named Hamzah and al-Darazi, from the latter of whom the sect derives its Dama

De Sacy, in his Exposé de la Reliquon des Druzes, gives the following summary of their belief -

"To acknowledge only one God, without seeking to penetrate the nature of His being and of His attributes, to confess that He can neither be comprehended by the senses nor defined by words, to believe that the Divinity has shown itself to men at different epochs, under a human form, without participating in any of the weaknesses and imperfections of humanity, that it has shown itself at last, at the commencement of the fifth age of the Hejira, under the figure of Hakim Amr Allah, that that was the last of His manifestations, after which there is none other to be experted, that Hakim disappeared in the year 411 of the Hejira, to try the faith of His cervants, to give room for the apostasy of hypocrites, and of those who had only embraced the true religion from the hope of worldly rewards, that in a short time he would appear again, full of glory and of majesty, to triumph over all his enemies, to extend His empire over all the earth, and to make His faithful worshippers happy for ever, to believe that Universa! Intelligence is the first of God's creatures, the only direct production of His omnipotence, that it has appeared upon the earth at the epoch of each of the manifestations of the Divmity, and has finally appeared since the time of Hakim under the figure of Hamza, son of Ahmad: that it is by His ministry that all the other creatures have been produced, that Hames only possesses the knowledge of all truth, that he is the prime minister of the true religion, and that he communicates, directly or indirectly, with the other ministers and with the faithful, but in different proportions, the knowledge and the grace which he receives directly from the Divinity, and of which he is the sole channel, that he only has immediate access to God, and acts as a mediator to the other worshippers of the Supreme Being, acknowledging that Hamza is he to whom Hakim will confide his sword, to make his religion triumph, to conquer all his rivals. and to distribute rewards and punishments according to the ments of each one, to know the other ministers of religion, and the rank which belongs to each of them, to give to each the obedience and submission which is their due, to confess that every soul has been created by the Universal Intelligence, that the number of men is always the same, and that sculs pass successively into different bodies, that they are raised by their attachment to truth to a superior degree of excellence, or are degraded by neglecting or giving np religious meditation, to practise the seven commandments which the religion of Hamza imposes upon its followers, and which principally exacts from them the observance of truth, charity towards their brothren, the renunciation of their former religion, the most entire resignation and submission to the will of God, to confess that all preceding relagions have only been types more or less perfect of true religion, that all their ceremonial observances are only allegories, and that the manifestation of true religion requires the abrogation of every other creed Such 18 the abridgment of the religious system taught in the books of the Druzes, of which Hamza is the author, and whose followers are called Unitarians !

There is a very full and correct account of the religious behef of the Druzes in the Researches into the Religions of Syria, by the Rev J Wortabet, M.D. In this work Dr Wortabet gives the following Catechism of the Druzes, which expresses their belief with regard to Christianity .

"Q. What do ye say concerning the gospel which the Christians hold?

"A That it is true, for it is the sayings of the Lord Christ, who was Salman el Pharisy during the life of Mohammed, and who is Hamzeh the son of Ali-not the false Christ who was born of Mary, for he was the son of Joseph.

"Q Where was the true Christ when the

A He was among the disciples He uttered the truths of the gospel and taught Christ, the son of Joseph, the institutes of the Christian religion, but when Jesus disobeyed the true Christ, he put hatred into the hearts of the Jews, so that they crucified him.

"What became of him after the cracifixion?

"A. They put him into a grave, and the true Christ came and stole him, and gave out the report among men that Christ had risen out of the dead.

"Q. Why did he act in this manner?
"A. That he might establish the Christian religion, and confirm its followers in what he had taught them.

"Q. Why did he act in such a manner as to establish error?

"A So that the Uniterians should be consealed in the religion of Jesus and none of them might be known

"Q. Who was it that came from the grave and entered among the disciples when the doors were shut?

- "A The living Christ, who is immortal, even Hamzeh, the son and slave of our Lord
- "Q. Who brought the gospel to light, and presched it?
  - "A. Matthew, Mark, Luke, and John."
- "Q. Why did not the Christians acknowedge the unity of God?
- "A Because God had not so decreed.

"Q. Why does God permit the introduction of evil and infidelity?

"A. Because He chooses to mislead some from, and to guide others, to the truth "Q. If infidelity and error proceed from Him, why does he punish those who follow them?

"A. Because when Hs deceived them, they did not obey Him.

"Q. How can a deluded man obey, when he is ignorant of the true state of the case?

'A We are not bound to answer this question, for God is not accountable to his creatures for his dealings with them '

DU'A' (معام) "Prayer" The word de'a' is generally used for supplication, as distinguished from salāt, or the liturgical form of prayer, ag Qur'an, Surah ziv 42 "O my Lord! make me and my posterity to be constant in prayer (salāt) O our Lord! and accept my supplication (du'ā') [FRAYERS]

DU'A'-I-MA'SUR (رعاه ماتور)
Let "Recorded prayer" A term used for A term used for prayers which were offered up by the Prophet, and have been handed down in the Traditions

DU'A'U 'L-QUNUT (called also the Quantu 'l-Witr, "The prayer said standing" A form of prayer recited after the gardah in the night prayer Recated by some sects in the early morning It is found in the Traditions It is as follows—

"O God, we seek help from Thee, and for-giveness of sins

"We believe in Thee and trust in Thee

"We praise Thee We thank Thee are not unthankful

"We expel, and we depart from him who does not obey Thee

"We serve Thee only, and to Theo do we pray

"We seek Thee, we prostrate ourselves and we serve Thee

"We hope for Thy mercy We fear Thy punishments.

"Surely Thy judgments are upon the infidels' DUALISM Professor Palmer. following the remarks of al-Baixawi the commentator, says there is a protest against the dualistic doctrine that Light and Darkuess were two co-eternal principles, in the Qur'an, Sürah vi 1 "Praised be God who created the heavens and the earth, and brought into being the Darkness and the Light" (Palmer's Qur'an, vol 1 p. 115, al-Baişāwi sa

AD-DUKHAN (والمدال). "The Smoke" The title of the xxxvih chapter of the Qur'an, in which the words occur (9th verse) "Expect thou the day when the heaven shall bring a palpable smoke "

The name of DULDUL (JA), the Prophet's mule which he gave to 'Ali.

DUMB, The Arabic abkam ( ), pl. bukm

The intelligible signs of a dumb person suffice to verify his bequests and render them valid, he may also execute a marriage contract, or give a divorce, or execute a sale or purchase, or sue or incur punishment by signs, but he cannot sue in a case of quas, or retahation for murder This rule does not apply to a person who has been deprived of speech, but merely to one who has been born dumb (Hidayah, vol. iv p 568) A dumb person can also acknowledge and deny the faith by a sign.

AD-DURRATU 'L-BAIZĀ' الميضاء Lit "The pearl of light." term used by Sufi mystics to express the 'aqlu 'l-awu al, the first intelligence which God is said to have created at the beginning of the sumate world ('Abdu 'r-Razzāq's Dictionai y of Şūf'i Terms)

DURUD (פונים, a Persian word Arabic as-Salāt (العلوة) A benediction, imploring mercy A part of the stated prayer, recited immediately after the Tashah-hud whilst in the same posture. It is as follows "O God, have meroy on Muhammad and on his descendants, as Thou didst have mercy on Abraham and on his descendants! Thou art to be praised, and Thou art great! O God, bless Muhammad and his descendants as Thou didst bless Abraham and his descen-Thou art to be praised and Thou art great" The merits of this form of prayer are said to be very great, for, according to Anas, the Prophet said, "He who recites it will have blessings on his head ten times, ten sins will be forgiven, and he will be exalted tan steps " (Mishkat, book iv c xvil.) PRAYER.

ادوزغ) DŪZAKH The Persuan word for hell [HELL]

According to the Imam DYER Abū Hanīfah, a dyer of cloth is at liberty to detain it until he receive his hire for dyeing it, and if the cloth perish in his hands whilst it is detained, he is not responsible (Hidāyak, vol. iii. 820.)

DYING, The. Very special instructions are given in Muslim books as to the treatment of the dying. In the Durru'l-Mulitar (p. 88), the friends of the dying are recommended, if possible, to turn the head of the dying person towards Makkah, but if this be not convenient, his feet should be placed in that direction and his head slightly raised. The Kalimate 'A-Shahadah should then be recited, and the Sürsh Y-Sin (xxxvi) and Sürstu 'r-Ra'd (xui) should be read from the Qur'an When the spirit has departed from the body, the mouth should be thed up and the eyes closed and the arms straightened, and the body should be perfumed, and no unclean person should be suffered to approach the corpse. Immediate steps should then be taken for the washing of the corpse. [DEATE]

E.

EAR-RINGS, NOSE-RINGS In the East it is the universal custom of Muhammadan women to wear ear-rings, and they are not unfrequently worn by young men and children. Gold ear-rings are, however, forbidden in the Traditions, for Abū Hurairsh relates that the Prophet said, "Whoever wishes to put into the ear or the nose of a friend a ring of hell fire, let him put in the ear or the nose of his friend a gold ring let your ornament be of silver" And Asmá' bint Yazid relates the same tradition. (Musikāt, book xx c 11, part 2)

EAR AND NOSE BINGS

EARTH, The Arabic are ((,d,)) Muhammad taught his followers that just as there are seven heavens [HEAVEK] one above another, so there are seven earths one beneath another, the distance between each of these regions being five hundred years' journey (Mackett, book xxiv c i. part 3)

In the Qur'an the earth is said to be stretched out like a carpet or bed (Sürah in 20, xiii 8, lxxviii 6), which expression the ancient commentators understood to imply that the earth was a vast plane, but circular, and (Sürah xxxix. 67) to be but a handful in the sight of God, which in the last day shall be changed into another earth (Sürah xiv 49)

The earth is believed by Muhammadan

writers to be surrounded by a great sea called al-Bahru l-Muhit, or the circumambient ocean, which is bounded by the mountains of The extent of the earth is said to be equal to a journey of five hundred years, two hundred years' journey being allotted to the sea, two hundred to the uninhabited desert, eighty to the country of Gog and Magog (Yājāj wa Mājāj) and the rest to the civilised world Certain terra incognition in the midst of the mountains of Qaf are said to be inhabited by the jinn, or genii According to some, Makkah (or Jerusalem according to others) is situated in the centre of the earth. On the Muhit is the 'Arshu'l-Iblis, or "Throne of Satan." The western portion of the Muhit is often called the Bahru'z-Zubnat, or "Sea of Darkness," and in the south-west corner of the earth is the Fountain of Life of which al-Khizr drank, and in virtue of which he still lives, and will live till the Day of Judgment. The mountains of Qaf which bound the great sea Muhit, form a circular barrier round the whole earth, and are said to be of green chrysolite, the colour of which the Pro phet said imparts a greenish tint to the sky The general opinion is that the mountains of Qai bound our earth, but some say there are countries beyond, each country being a thousand years' journey

The seven earths, which are five hundred years' journey from each other, are situated one beneath the other, and each of these seven regions has its special occupants. The occupants of the first are men, genn, and animals, the second is occupied by the suffocating wind which destroyed the infidel tribe of 'Ad (Sürah laix 6), the third is filled with the stones of hell, mentioned in the Qur'an (Sürah in 22, lavi. 6) as "the fuel of which is men and stones", the fourth by the sulphur of hell, the fifth by the serpents of hell, the sixth by the scorpious of hell, which are in size and colour like black mules, and have tails like spears, and the seventh by the devil and his angels. Our earth is said to be supported on the shoulders of an angel, who stands upon a rock of ruby, which reck is supported on a huge bull with four thousand eyes, and the same number of ears, noses, mouths, tongues, and feet, between every one of each is a distance of five hundred years' journey. The name of this bull is Kujūta, who is supported by an enormous fish, the name of which is Bakamūt

The above is but a brief outline of the Muhammadan belief as regards the earth's formation, but the statements of Muhammadan commentators are so wild on the subject, that it seems quite useless to quote them as authorities, for they contradict each other in endless variety

EARTHQUAKE, The. Arabic as-Zalzalah (1941) The title of the xorxth Sürah of the Quran, in which it is stated that an earthquake will take place at the commencement of the signs of the last day -"When the Earth with her quaking shall quake

" And the Earth shall cast forth her burdens, "And man shall say, What suleth her?

"On that day shall she tell out her

"Because thy Lord shall have inspired her

"On that day shall men come forward in throngs to behold their works,

"And whosoever shall have wrought an atom's weight of good shall behold it,

"And whosoever shall have wrought an atom's weight of evil shall behold it "

EATING According to the Traditions, Muhammadans have been enjoined by their Prophet to est in God's name, to neturn thanks, to eat with their right hand, and with their shoes off, and to lick the plate when the meal is finished. The following are some of Muhammad's precepts on the subject

EATING

"The Devil has power over that food which is eaten without remembering God."

"Repeat the name of God. Est with the right hand and eat from before you."

"When a man comes into a house at mealtime, and remembers the name of God, the devil says to his followers, 'There is no place here for you and me to-night, nor is there any supper for us."
"When anyone eats he must not wash his fingers until he has first licked them.

"Whoever eats a dish and links it afterwards, the dish intercedes with God for him "

"When victuals are placed before you, eat them with your shoes off, because taking off your shoes will ease your feet" ("Abdu "l-Haqq adds, " and do it out of respect to the food") food

"Whoever eats from a plate and licks it afterwards, the dish says to him, 'May God free you from hell as you have freed me from the devils licking me '"

Qatadah says that Anas said Prophet did not est off a table, as is the manner of proud men, who do it to avoid bending their backs" (Mishkat, Arabic ed., Babu 'l-Af'ımah )

The following directions are given for eating, by Faqir Muhammad As'ad, the author of the Akhlaq-s-Jalali. (Thompson's English Translation, p 294) -

"First of all, he should wash his hands, mouth, and nose. Before beginning he should say, 'In the name of God' (Bismillāh); and after ending he must say, 'Giory to God' (Al-hands hillāh). He is not to be in a hurry to begin, unless he is the master of the feast, he must not dirty his hands, or clothes, or the table-linen, he must not eat with more than three fingers, nor open his mouth wide, not take large monthfuls, nor swallow them hastily, nor yet keep them too long unswallowed. He must not suck his fingers in the course of eating, but after he has eaten, he may, or rather ought, as there is scripture warrant for it.

"Let him not look from dish to dish, nor smell the food, nor pick and choose it. If there should be one dish better than the rest, let him not be greedy on his own account, but let him offer it to others. He must not spill the grease upon his fingers, or so as to wet his bread and salt. He must not eye his comrades in the midst of his mouthfuls Let him eat from what is next him, unless of fruit, which it is allowable to eat from every quarter What he has once put into his mouth (such as bones, &o ), he must not replace upon his bread, nor upon the table-cloth, if a bone has found its way there, let him remove it unseen. Let him beware of revolting gestures, and of letting anything drop from his month into the cup Let him so behave, that, if anyone should wish to eat the relics of his repast, there may be nothing to revolt him

"Where he is a guest, he must stay his hand scener than the master of the feast; and whenever the rest discontinue eating, he must act in concert with them, except he be in his own house, or some other where he constitutes part of the family. Where he is himself the host, he must not continue esting when the rest have stayed their hands, so that something may be left for anyone who chances to famoy it.

"If he has coossion to drink in the course of his meal, let him do it softly, that no noise in his throat or mouth may be audible to others. He must not pick his teeth in the view of the company, nor swallow what his tengue may extract from between them, and so of what may be extracted by the toothpick, let him throw it aside so as to disgust

no one

"When the time comes for washing his hands, let him be exceedingly careful in cleansing his nails and fingers Similar must be his particularity in washing his lips, mouth, and nostrils. He must not void his rhenin into the basin, even the water in which his mouth has been rinsed, let him cover with his hand as he throws it away.

"Neither must be take the turn from others in washing his hands, saving when he is master of the entertainment, and then he should be the first to wash '

WASHING THE HANDS

EATING WITH JEWS OR CHRISTIANS. In Muhammadan countries, where the people have not been brought in contact with Hindus, with caste prejudices, Muslims never hesitate to eat with Jews and Christians, provided the drink and victuals are such as are lawful in Islam Since the British occupation of India, the question has often been raised, and few Muhammadans will eat with Englishmen. Syud Ahmad Khan,

CSL, has written a book, in which he proves that it is lawful for Muhammadans to eat with both Christians and Jews, and his arguments would seem to be in accordance with the teaching of the Qur'an. Sürah v 7 "Lawful for you to-day are the good things, and the food of the people of the Book (i.e. Jews and Christians) is lawful for you, and your food is lawful for them."

Al-Barzawi, commenting on this verse, says: "This verse includes all kinds of food, test which is slain lawfully (zabh) or not, and this verse is of common application to all the people of the Book, whether Jews or But on one occasion Khalifah Christians 'All did not observe its minnetions with regard to the Bann Taghlib, a Christian tribe, because he said these people were not Christians, for they had not embraced anything of Christianity except wins-drinking And he does not include amongst the people of the book, the Majūsis, although he included the Majusis with the people of the Book when he took the poll-tax from them, seconding to a tradition which Muhammad gave regarding the Majusis, viz. 'Treat the Majusis as you would treat the people of the Book, out do not marry with them, nor est what they slay" (Tafsire'l-Barzāwi, p 216)

The commentators, al Kamālān, say the only question raised was that of animals elain by Jews and Christians, and the learned are all agreed that animals slain by them are (Tafsıru 'l-Jalalaın wa'l-Kamalaın,

p 98)
The following Hadis is given in the Sahih Muslim on the subject Abu Sa'labah related, "I said, O Prophet of God ! Verily we live in a land belonging to the people of the Book (ie Jews or Christians), is it lawful for us to eat out of their dishes? The Prophet replied, The order for dishes is this if you can get other dishes, then eat of them but if ye cannot, then wash those of the people of the Book and eat from them "

The Imam Nawawi, the commentator on the Sahih Muslim, says Abu Da'ud bas given this Hadis in a somewhat different form to that in the text. He says 'Abū Satlahah relates, we were passing through the country of the people of the Book (i.e. Christians), and they were cooking pigs' flesh in their dishes, and drinking wine from their vessels" "For" (continues Nawawi), "the learned are all agreed that it is lawful to eat with Jews and Christians unless their vessels sie polluted with wine or pork, in which case they must be washed before they are used' (Sahik Muslim wa Sharku Na wawi, p 146)

ECLIPSE The Arabic khusuf عسوف) is used to denote either an sclipse of the sun or of the moon (vide Mishkat book iv e li.), but it is more specially applied to an eclipse of the moon and kusuf (کسوف) for an eclipse of the sun (vide Richardson's Dictionary). Special prayers, consisting of two rakahs, are enjoined in the Traditions (Mashkut, book iv o h.) at the tume of an colipse of either the sun or moon.

'Abdu 'lish ibn 'Abbis says " There was an eclipse of the sun in the time of the Prophet, and he recited prayers, and the people recited after him; and he stood up for a long tune, as long as anyone would be repeating the Chapter of the Cow (r. Sûrah ii). Then he performed a long rukū' after which he raised up his head and stood a long time, which was under the first standing, after which he did the second ruku, which was the same as the first in point of time; then he raised his head up from the second ruku, and per-formed two prostrations, as is customery Then he stood up a long time, in the second rak'ah, and this was shorter than the first standing, in the first rak'ah, after which he did a long raku in the second rakish, and this was under the first ruku, in the first rak'ah After this, he raised up his head, and stood a long time, and this was shorter than the first, in the second rakish Then be did a long ruku, and this was not so great as the first, in the second rak'ah. Then he rose up, and performed two prostrations, and after repeating the creed and giving the salam he concluded his prayers And the sun was bright And the Prophet sa d, 'Verily, the sun and moon are two signs amongst those which prove the existence of God, and are not eclipsed on account of the life or death of any person, and when ye see this, remember God. The Companions said, 'O Prophet! We saw you about to take something in the place where you stood in prayer, after which we saw you draw back a little ' And the Prophet said, "I saw Paradise, and gathered a bunch of grapes from it, and if I had taken it and given it to you, verily you would have eaten of it as long as the world lasts I also saw hell, and never saw such a horrid sight till this day, and I saw that they were mostly women there. And the Companions said, O Pro-phet, why are most of the people of hell-He said, 'On account of their women? infidelity not on account of their disobedience to God but that they are ungrateful to their husbands, and bide the good things done them, and if you do good to one of them perpetually, after that, if they see the least fault in you, they will say, I never saw you perform a good work." (Mishkāt, book IV. C IL)

EDEN Arabic 'Adn (@40), which al Bazāwi says means "a fixed abode" The Hebrew is generally understood by Hebrew scholars to mean "pleasure" or "delight."

The word 'Ada is not used in the Qur'an for the residence of our first parents, the term used being al-junnah, "the garden", although the Muslim Commentators are agreed in calling it the Januaru Adn, or "Garden of The expressions, January 'Adn, " the Eden ' Garden of Eden" and Jamatu Ada, "the Gardens of Eden," occur ten times in the Qur'an, but in each case they are used for the fourth heaven, or stage, of celestial bliss. [PARADISE.]

According to the Quran, it seems clear that Jametu 'Adn is considered to be a place in heaven, and not a terrestrial paradiss, and hence a difficulty arises as to the locality of that Eden from which Adam fell. Is it the same place as the fourth abode of celestial bliss? or, was it a garden situated in some part of earth? Al-Baizāwī says that some people have thought thie Eden was situated in the country of the Philistines, or between Fāris and Kirman But, he adds, the Garden of Eden is the Dāru 's-Ṣawāb, or "the House of Recompense," which is a stage in the paradise of the heavens, and that when Adam and Eve were cast out of Paradise, Adam fell on the isle of Ceylon, or Sarandīb, and Eve near Jiddah in Arabia, and after a separation of 200 years, Adam was, on his repentance, conducted by the Angel Gabriel to a mountain near Makkah, where he knew his wife Eve, the mountain being thence named 'Arafah (ie "the place of recognition), and that he afterwards retired with her to Ceylon where they continued to propagate their species

tinued to propagate their species

Mnhammad Tähir (Majma'u 'l-Bihār, p 225), in remarking upon the fact that in the Traditione the rivers Jaihūn and Jaihān are eaid to be rivers in "the garden" (al-Iannah), says the terms are figurative, and moan that the faith extended to those regions and made them rivers of paradise And in another place (idem, p 164) the same author says the four rivers Saihān (Jazartes), Jaihān (Jihon), Furāt (Euphrates), and Nil (Nile), are the rivers of Paradise, and that the rivere Saihān and Jaihān are not the same ae Jaihūn and Jaihān hut that these four rivers already montioned originally came from Paradise to this earth of ours

EDUCATION Education without religion is to the Muhammadan mind an anomaly In all books of Traditions there are sections specially devoted to the consideration of knowledge, but only so far as it relates to a knowledge of God, and of "God's Book" (See Sahiku'l-Bukhan, Babu ! 'Ilm.) The people who road the "Book of God" are, according to the sayings of the Prophet, described as "assembling together in mosques, with light and comfort descend ing upon them, the grace of God covering them, and the angels of God oncompassing them round about" The chief aim and object of education in Islam is, therefore, to obtain a knowledge of the religion of Muhammad, and anything beyond this is considered superfitions, and even dangerous Amongst Muhammadan religious leaders there heve always been two classes—those who affect the ascetic and etrictly religious life of mortification, such as the Sufi mystics and the Fagirs [FAGER], and those who, by a careful study of the Qur'an, the Traditions, and the numerons works on divinity, have attained to a high reputation for scholarship, and are known in Turkey as the 'Ulama', or " learned," and in India, as Maulawis

Amongst Muhammadans generally, a know ledge of science and various branches of a scular learning is considered dangerous to the faith, and it is discouraged by the religious, although some assert that Muhammad has encouraged learning of all kinds in the Qur'an, by the following verse Surah in 272—

"He giveth wisdom to whom He will, and He to whom wisdom is given hath had much good given him"

Mr Lane, in his Modern Egyptians, says:
"The parents seldom devote much of their time or attention to the intellectual education of their children, generally contenting themselves with inetilling into their young minds a few principles of religion, and then submitting them, if they can afford to do so, to the instruction of a school. As early as possible, the child is taught to say, "I testify that there is no deity but God, and I testify that Muhammad is God'e Apostle." He receives also lessons of religious pride, and learns to hate the Christians, and all other seets but his own, as thoroughly as does the Muslim in advanced age."

In connection with all mosques of importance, in all parts of Islam whether in Turke , Egypt, Persia, or India, there are small schools, either for the education of children, or for the training of etudents of divinity The child who attends these seminaries is first taught his alphabet, which he learns from a small board on which the letters are written by the toacher Ho then becomes acquainted with the numerical value of each letter [ABJAD] After this he learns to write down the ninety-nine names of God and other simple words taken from the Quran [GOD] When he has mastered the spelling of words, he proceeds to loarn the first chapter of the Qur'an, then the last chapter, and gradually reads through the whole Qur'an in Arabic, which he usually does with out understanding a word of it Having finished the Qur'an, which is considered an incumbent religious duty, the pupil is mstructed in the elements of grammar, and perhaps a few simple rules of arithmetic To this is added a knowledge of one Hindu stani, of Persian book. The ability to read n single Persian book like the Gulistan or Bostan is considered in Central Asia to be the sign of a liberal education The ordinary schoolmaster is generally a man of little learning, the learned Maulawi usually devoting himself to the study of divinity, and not to the education of the young

Amongst students of divinity, who are called talabatu (sing tabb) "l-"tlm, or " seekers as knowledge," the usual course of study follows as sart, grammatical inflection, annahw, syntax, al-mantiq, logic al-hisab, arithmetro al-jubr wa 'l-muqabalah algebra, almu na wu bbuyan, rhetoric and versification, al-figh, jurisprudence of agaid, scholastic theology, at-tafer commentaries on the Quran, 'lanu'l-usul, treatures on exceesis, and the principles and rules of interpretation of the laws of Islam , al-ahadig, the traditions and commentaries thereon. These are usually regarded as different branches of learning, and it is not often that a Manlawi, or 'Alim, attains to the knowledge of each section For example, a scholar will be celebrated as being well educated in al-ahadis, but he may be weak in al-figh The teacher, when instructing his pupils, seats himself on the ground with his hearers all seated round him in a ring Instruction in mosques is usually given in the early morning, after the morning prayer, and continues some three or four hours. It is again renewed for a short time after the mid-day prayer

Students in mosques are generally supported by the people of the parish, (each mosque having its section or parish), who can be called upon for food for all the inmates of a mosque every morning and evening. Not unfrequently mosques are endowed with land, or rents of shops and houses, for the qayment of professors. Mr Lane speaks of a mosque in Cairo, which had an endowment for the support of three hundred blind students. The great mosque al Azhar, in Cairo, is the largest and most influential seat of learning in Islam. In 1875, when the present writer visited it, it had as many as 5,000 students gathered from all parts of the Muhammadan world

In India almost every mosque of importance has its class of students of divinity, but they are not established for the purposee of general education, but for the training of students of divinity who will in time become the Imams of mosques. Some of the Maulawis are men held in great reputation as Arabio scholars, but they are, as a rule, very deficient in general knowledge and information. Whether we look to India, or Persia, or Egypt, or Turkey, the attitude of Muhammadanism is undoubtedly one in direct antagonism to the spread of secular education.

Much has been made by some writers of the liberal patronage extended to interature and science by 'Abdu 'r-Rahman and his successors as Khalifahs of Cardova in the Middle Ages But there was nothing original, or Islamic, in the literature thus patronised, for, as Professor Uerberweg remarks in his History of Philosophy, "the whole philosophy of the Arabians was a form of Aristotelianism, tempered more or less with Neo-Platonic conceptions." The philosophical works of the Greeks and their works of medical and physical science, were translated from Greek into Arabio by Syrian Christians, and not by Arabian Muslims Muhammadans cannot be altogether oredited with these literary undertakings

A MUSLIM SCHOOL

Al-Maggari, in his History of the Dynasties of Snam, has an interesting notice of education in that country, in which he writes—

"Respecting the state of science among the Andalusians (Spaniards), we must own in justice that the people of that country were the most ardent lovers of knowledge, as well as those who best knew how to appreciate and distinguish a learned man and an ignorant one, indeed, science was so much esteemed by them, that wheever had not been endowed by God with the necessary qualifloations to acquire it, did everything in his power to distinguish himself, and conceal from the people his want of instruction, for an ignorant man was at all times looked upon as an object of the greatest contempt, while the learned man on the contrary, was not only respected by all nobles and plebeians, but was trusted and consulted on every occasion, his name was in every mouth, his power and influence had no limits, and he was preferred and distinguished in all the occasions of life.

"Owing to this, rich men in Cordova, however illiterate they might be, encouraged letters, rewarded with the greatest munificence writers and poets, and spared neither brouble nor expense in forming large collections of books, so that, independently of the famous library founded by the Khalifah al-Hakim, and which is said by writers worthy of oredit to have contained no less than four hundred thousand volumes, there were in the capital many other libraries in the hands of wealthy individuals, where the studious sould dive into the fathomless sea of knowledge, and bring up its mestimable pearls. Cordova was indeed, in the opinion of every author, the city in Andalus where most books were to be found, and its mhabitants were renowned for their passion for forming libraries. To such an extent did this rage for collection increase, save Ibn Sa'id, that any man in power, or holding a situation under Government, considered himself obliged to have a library of his own, and would spare no trouble or expense in collecting books, merely in order that people might say -Such a one has a very fine library, or, he possesses a unique copy of such a book, or, he has a copy of such a work in the hand-writing of such a one.

EGGS According to the Imam Abū Hanifah, if a person purchase eggs and after opening them discover them to be of bad quality and unfit for use, he is entitled to a complete restitution of the price from the seller (Hidāyah, vol. ii p. 415)

EGYPT Arabic Misr () The land of Egypt is mentioned several times in the Qur'an in connection with the history of Joseph and Moses In the year A.H. 7 (A.D. 628), Muhammad sent an embassy to al-Muqauqis, the Roman Governor of Egypt, who received the embassy kindly and presented the Prophet with two female Coptio slaves

ELEMENTS Arabic al-'Anasiru
'l-arba'ah (العنام الأربعة) "The four elements" of fire (nār), sir (hawā), water (mā') and earth (arz), from which all creation mmeral, animal, and vegetable is produced

The respective properties of these elements are said to be as follows. Fire, hot and dry. air, hot and cold, water, cold and wet, earth, cold and dry. A knowledge of the properties of the four elements is required in the so-called science of Da'wah. [DA'WAH]

ELEPHANT, The year of Arabic 'Amu 'l-Fil (lal) ha) The year in which Minhammad was born. Being the year in which Abrahatu I Ashram, an Abysaman Christian and Viceroy of the King of San'ā' in Yaman marched with a large army and a number of elephants upon Makkah with the intention of destroying the Ka'bah. He was defeated and his army destroyed in so sudden a manner, as to give rise to the legand embodied in the cyth Sürah of the Qur'an, which is known as the Chapter of the Elephant

Professor Palmer says it is conjectured that small-pox broke ont amongst the army.

[ASHABU 'L-VIL.]

ELIJAH Arabic Ryās (الياسي), Heb אלידון, New Testament, 'Haias A prophet mentioned in the following verses in the Qur'an — Sürah xxxvii. 128 "Verily Ilyās (Elias) was of the Apostles, and when he said to his people, 'Will ye not fear, Do ye call upon Ba'l and leave the best of Creators, God your Lord, and the Lord of your fathers in the old time! But they called him a har, verily, they shall surely be arraigned, save God's sincere servants. And we left him amongst posterity Peace upon Ilyāsin (Elias) verily, thus do we reward those who do well, verily he was of our servants who believe"

Surah vi 85 "And Zachariah and John, and Jesus, and Ilyas, all righteous ones."

Al Bairawi says, "It has been said that this Ilyas, is the same as Idris, prefather of Noah whilst others say he was the son of Yasin and descended from Aaron, the brother of Moses' [IDRIS]

ELISHA Arabic al-Yasa' (البحح).

Heb المحافظ Elisha is mentioned twice in the Qur'an, under the name al-Yasa

Sürah xxxvii 48 "And remember Ishmael and Elisha, and Zu I-kifi, for each was righteous"

Sürah vi. 35, 36 "And Zachariah, and John, and Jesus, and Elias, all righteousness, and Ishmasl and Elisha and Jonah and Lot, each have We preferred above the worlds"

The Commentators give no account of him except that he was the son of Ukhtūb, although the Bible says he was the son of Shaphat Husain says he was Ibns 'l-igūz (the son of the old woman).

ELOQUENCE The Arabic word al-Bayan (البيال), which is defined in the Ghiyan 'l-Lughah as speaking finently and eloquently, occurs once in the Qur'an, Surah iv 3 'He created man he hath taught him distinct speech." The word also occurs in the Traditions, and it is remarkable that sithough the Qur'an is written in rhythm, and in a grandiloquent style, that in the Traditions the Prophet seems to affect to despise eloquence, as will be seen from the following Ahadis -lbn 'Umar says the Prophet said, "May they go to hell who amplify their words Abu Umamah relates that the Prophet said, "Eloquence (al-bayan) 18 a kind of magic." Ibn Mas ud relates that the Prophet said, "Vain talking and embellishing (boyen) are two branches of hypocrisy." 'Amr ibn al-'Asi relates that the Prophet said, "I have been ordered to speak little, and verily it is best to speak little." (Mishkāt, book xxii. o ix.)

EMANCIPATION OF SLAVES Arabic I'tāq (stat) The emancipation of slaves is recommended by the Prophet, but the recommendation applies exclusively to slaves who are of the Muslim faith He is related to have said "Whoever frees a Muslim slave God will redeem that person from hell-fire member for member" (Mishkāt, book min. c. xin.) It is therefore laudable in a man to release his slave or for a woman to free her bond woman, in order that they may secure freedom in the next world. (Hidsyah, vol. 1 p 420)

ENFRANCHISEMENT In an orthodox Muhammadan state, only those persons who have embraced the Muslim faith are enfranchised, all others are called upon to pay a poli tax (nzyah), for which they obtain security (aman, Those residents in a Muslim country who are not Muhammadans are expected to wear a distinctive dress and to reside in a special pait of the village or town in which they live Slaves who may embrace the Muslim faith do not become spee facto enfranchised, unless their master be an unbeliever, in which case their becoming Muslims secures their emancipation. Zemmis, or persons not Muslims in a Muslim state cannot give evidence against a Muslim (See Durru'l Mukhtar, in loco)

ENOCH [IDBIS]

ENTERING INTO HOUSES To enter suddenly or abruptly into any person's home or apartment, is reckoned a great inervility in all eastern countries. With Muhammadans it is a religious duty to give notice before you enter a house. The custom is founded upon an express injunction in the Qur'an, Sürah xxiv 57-61—

"O ye who believe! let your slaves and those of you who have not come of age, ask leave of you, three times a day, ere they come into your presence,—before the morning prayer, and when ye lay aside your garments at mid-day, and after the evening prayer. These are your three times of privacy. No blame shall attach to you or to them if after these times, when ye go your rounds of attendance on one another, they come in without permission. Thus doth God make clear to you His signs, and God is Knowing, Wise!

yon His signs and God is Knowing, Wise!

"And when your children come of age, let them ask leave to come into your presence, as they who were before them asked it.

Thus doth God make clear to you his signs.

and God is Knowing, Wise

"As to women who are past childbearing, and have no hope of marriage, no blame shall attach to them if they lay aside their outer garments, but so as not to shew their ornaments. Yet if they abstain from this, it will be better for them and God Heareth. Knoweth.

"No crime shall it be in the blind, or in the lame, or in the sick, to sot at your tailes or in yourselves, if ye eat in your own houses, er in the houses of your fathers, or of your mothers, or of your mothers, or of your uncles on the father's side, or of your aunts on the father's side, or of your aunts on the mother's side, or of your aunts on the mother's side, or in those of which ye possess the keys, or in the house of your friend. No blame shall attach to you whether ye eat together or apart

"And when ye enter houses, salute one another with a good and blessed greeting as from God. Thus doth God make clear to you His signs, that haply ye may comprehend tbanı"

The following are the traditions given in the Miskkāt on the subject (book xxii. e 11.) Muhammad is related to have said. "Do not permit anyone to enter your home unless he gives a salam first." 'Abdu 'llah ibn Mas'tid says the Prophet said, "The signal for your permission to enter is that you lift up the cui tain and enter until I prevent you." 'Abdu 'llah ibn Binst says, "Whenever the Prophet came to the door of a house, he would not stand in front of it, but on the edde of the door, and say, 'The peace of God be with you.'" 'Atü' ibn Yasar says the Prophet told him to ask leave to enter even the room of his mother

ENVY Arabic Haead (a...), The word occurs twice in the Qur'an Sursh ii 103 "Many of those who have Sursh ii 103 "Many of those who have the Book would fain turn you again into unbehevers, even after ye have once beheved, and that through envy '

Surah cxiii "I seek refuge from the evil of the carrous when he envies"

EPHESUS, The Seven Sleepers of [ASHABU 'L-KARF]

ESOP The Luquian of the Qur'an is generally supposed by European witters to be Esop. Salo is of opinion that Maximus Planudes borrowed the greater part of his life of Esop from the traditions he met with in the East concerning Luquian, [Luquian]

ETERNITY OF PUNISHMENT The Muhammadan religion teaches that all Mushims (i.e. those who have embraced the religion of their Prophet) will be ultimately saved, although they will suffer for their actual sins in a purgatorial hell. But those who have not embraced Islam will suffer a never-ending terment in "the fire (an-nar).

Surah it. 87 "Those who musbelieve and call our signs lies they are the fellows of hell, they shall dwell therein for ever" (khālidun)

Al-Barrawi says the expression "as long as the heavens and the earth endure," is an Arabio idiom expressing that which is sternal Ibn 'Arabi (died A.D. 688), in his book Fususu 'l-Hikam, says the word khākd in the verses quoted above does not imply eternal duration, but a period, or age, of leng duration Al-Baixāwī, the commentator, also admits that the literal meaning of the word only expresses a period of extended duration; but the Jalālān and Husain both contend that its meaning is that of abadī, or "never ending," in which no being will be aunihalated, and which no one can ever oscape

It is also to be observed that this word khāhd is that used for the eternity of bliss of those in Paradise -

Surah xi. 110 "As for those who are glad—why in Paradise! to dwell therein for ever" (khalidun).

EUCHARIST, or LORD'S SUPPER It is a singular omission in the Quran, that there is no direct allusion to this Christian institution.

Both Sale and Rodwell think that there is a reference to it in the following passages in the Qur'an, Surah v 112-114 -

"Romember when the Apostles said —O Jesus, Son of Mary, is thy Lord able to send down a tuble (ma'tdah,'a table,' especially one covered with victnals) to us out of heaven? The said —We desire to eat therefrom, and to have our hearts assured, and to know that thou hast indeed spoken truth to us, and we be witnesses thereof Jesus, Son of Mary, said —'O God our Lord! send down a table to us out of heaven, that it may become a recurring festival to us, to the first of us, and to the last of us, and a sign from Thee, and to Thou nourish us, for Thou art the best of nourishers'"

Muslim commentators are not agreed as to the meaning of these verses, but none of them suggest the institution of the Lord's Supper as an explanation. The interpretations are as confused as the revelation

According to the Imam al-Baghawi, 'Am mar ibn Yasir said that the Prophet said it was flesh and bread which was sent down from heaven, but because the Christians to whom it was sent were unfaithful, it was taken away, and they became pigs and monkeys!

Ibn Abbas says that after a thirty days' fast, a table was sent down with seven loaves and seven hishes, and the whole company of disciples ate and were filled (5t Matt xv 34). The commentators al-Jalalan also give these two explanations, and the Sacra ment of the Lord's Supper is never once suggested by any Muslim doctor in explanation of the above verses

Although in all parts of the East it is usual for wealthy Muhammadans to keep an establishment of cunuchs to guard the female members of the household, it has been strictly forbidden by Muhammad for any of his followers to make themselves such, or to make others 'Usman ibn Marun came to him and said, "O Prophet! permit me to become a sunuch." But Mnhammed said, "He is not of my people who makes another assuuch or becomes so himself. The manner in which my people becomes sunuchs is to exercise fasting." (Mishkat, book iv c vhi.)

EVE Arabio Hawwa' (-).

EVIDENCE. Arabic Shahadah The law of evidence is very (خهانة clearly laid down in all Muhammadan books of law, especially in the Hidayah, and the Durru 'l-Mukhtar, and it is interesting to observe the difference between the law of ovidence as provided for in the law of Moses and that laid down in Mnhammadan books In the Pentateuch two witnesses at least were required to establish any charge (Num xxxy 30), and the witness who withheld the truth was censured (Lev v 1), whilst sian-derous reports and officious witnesses were discouraged (Ex xou 1, Lev xix 16), and false witnesses were pumehed with the pumeh-ment due to the offence they sought to establish (Deut. xix 16) According to Josephus, women and slaves were not admitted to give evidence (Ant iv c 8 s 15)

The Sunnī law, as explained by the author of the Hidayah (vol 111 p 664), is in many respects the same as the Jowish and is as

follows

It is the duty of witnesses to bear testimony, and it is not lawful for them to conceal it, when the party concerned demands it from them. Because it is written in the Qur'an, Sūiah in 282, "Let not witnesses withhold their evidence when it is demanded of them." And again, 'Conceal not your testimony, for whoever conceals his testimony is an offender."

The requisition of the party is a condition, because the delivery of evidence is the right of the party requiring it, and therefore rests upon his requisition of it, as is the case with respect to all other rights

In cases inducing corporal pumshment witnesses are at liberty either to give or withhold their testimony as they please, because in such case they are distracted between two laudable actions, namely, the establishment of the punishment, and the preservation of the criminal's character. The concealment of vice is, moreover, preferance because the prophet said to a person that had borne testimony, Verily, it would have been better for you, if you had concealed it", and also because he elsewhere said. Whoever conceuls the vices of his brother Muslim, shall have a veil drawn over his own crimes in both worlds by God." Besides, it has been inculcated both by the Prophet and his Compamons as commendable to assist in the prevention of corporal punishment, and this is an evident argument for the concealment of such evidence as tends to establish it. It is moumbent however, in the case of theft, to bear evidence to the property, by testifying that "a certain person took such property," in order to preserve the right of the pro-prietor, but the word taken must be used instead of stolen, to the end that the crime may be kept concealed, bosides, if the word stoken were used, the thief would be rendered hable to amputation, and as, where amputa-tion is incurred, there is no responsibility for the property, the proprietor's right would be destroyed

The evidence required in a case of whoredom is that of four men, as has been ruled in the Qur'an (Surah xxiv 8) and the testimony of a woman in such a case is not admitted, because, as-Zuhri says, "in the time of the Prophet and his two immodiate successors, it was an invariable rule to exclude the evidence of women in all cases inducing punishment or retaliation," and also because the testimony of women in class a degree of doubt as it is merely a substitute for evidence, being accepted only where the testimony of men cannot be had and therefore it is not admitted in any matter liable to drop from the existence of a doubt

The evidence required in other criminal cases is that of two men, according to the text of the Qur'an, and the testimony of women is not admitted, on the strength of the tradition of az Zubrī shove quoted In all other cases the evidence required is that of two men, or of one man and two women, whether the case relate to property or to other rights, such as marriage chrorce, agency, executorship, or the like Ash-Shufi'i has said that the evidence of one man and two women cannot be admitted oxcepting in cases that relate to property or its depen denotes such as here, but, and so forth, because the evidence of women is originally madmissible on account of their defeot of understanding, their want of memory and sucapacity of governing, whence it is that their evidence is not admitted in criminal

The evidence of one woman is admitted in cases of birth (as where one woman, for mstauce, declares that a certain woman brought forth a certain child) In the same manuer also, the evidence, of one woman is sufficient with respect to virginity, or with respect to the defects of that part of a woman which is concealed from man. The principle of the law in these cases is derived from a traditional saying of the Prophet "The evidence of women is valid with respect to such things as it is not fitting for man to behold." Ash-Shāfi'i holds the evidence of four women to be a necessary condition in such cases

The evidence of a woman with respect to istihlal (the noise made by a child at its birth), is not admissible, in the opinion of Abu Hanifah, so far as relates to the esta-bhahment of the right of heritage in the child, because this noise is of a nature to be known or discovered by men, hut is admissible so far as relates to the necessity of reading funeral prayers over the child, because these prayers are merely a matter of religion: in consequence of her evidence, therefore, the funeral prayers are to be repeated over it. The two disciples, Mu-hammad and Abil Yüsuf, maintain that the evidence of a woman is sufficient to establish the right of heritage also, because the noise in question being made at the birth, none but women can be supposed to be present when it is made. The evidence of a woman, therefore, to this noise is the same as her evidence to a living birth, and as the evidence of women in the one case is admissible, so also is it in the other

In all rights, whether of property or otherwise, the probity of the witness, and the use of the word ashhadu, "I bear witness," is absolutely requisite, even in the age of the evidence of women with respect to birth and the like II, therefore, a witness should say, "I know," or "I know with certainty," without making use of the word ashhadu, in that case his evidence cannot be admitted With respect to the probity of the witness, it is in-dispensable, because it is written in the Qur'an, Sürah lxv 2, "Take the evidence of two just men", and also because the probity of the witnesses induces a probability of the truth

If the defendant throw a reproach on the witnesses, it is in that case incumbent on the Qā/1 to institute an enquiry into their charactor because, in the same manner as it is probable that a Muslim abstains from falsehood as being a thing prohibited in the religion he professes, so also is it probable that one Muslim will not unjustly reproach

It is not lawful for a person to give evidence to such things as he has not actually soon excepting in the cases of birth, death, marriage and cohabitation

But if a person, in any of the above cases. gives evidence from creditable heareny, it is requisite that he give it in an absolute manner, by saying, for instance, "I bear testimony that A is the son of B," and not. " I bear testimony so and so, because I have heard it," for in that case the Qazī cannot accept it

The testimony of any person who is pro perty—that is to say, a slave, male or famale—is not admissible, because testimony is of an authoritative nature, and as a slave has no authority over his own person, it follows that he can have no authority over others, a fortions

The testimony of a person that has been punished for slander is inadmissible, because it is said in the Qur'an, Surah xxiv 4, "But as to those who accuse married persons of wheredom, and produce not four witnesses of the fact, scourge them with fourscore stripes, and receive nut their testimony for ever, for such ere infamous prevarioators,—excepting those who shall afterwards repent

If an infidel who has suffered pumshment for slander should afterwards become a Muslim, his evidence is then admissible, for although, on account of the said punishment. he had lost the degree in which he was before qualified to give evidence (that is, in all matters that related to his own sect), yet by his conversion to the Muslim faith he acquires a new competency in regard to evidence (namely, competency to give evidence (namely, competency to give evidence relative to Muslims), which he did not pessess before, and which is not affected by any matter that happened prior to the circumstance which gave birth to it

Testimony in favour of a son or grandson, or in favour of a father or grandfather, is not admissible, because the Prophet has so ordained Besides, as there is a kind of communion of benefits between these degrees of kindred, it follows that their testimony in matters relative to each other is in some degree a testimony in favour of themselves, and is therefore liable to suspicion.

So also the Prophet has said, "We are not to credit the evidence of a wife concerning her husband, or of a hueband concerning his wife, or of a slave concerning his master, or of a master concerning his slave, or, lastly, of a hirer concerning his hireling"

The testimony of one partner in favour of another, in a matter relative to their joint property, is not admissible, because it is in some degree in favour of himself. The testimony, however, of partners, in favour of each other, in matters not relating to their joint property, is admissible, because in it there is no room for suspicion. The testimony of a person who has commuted a great crime, such as induced punishment, is not admissible, because in consequence of such crime he is unjust. The testimony of a person who goes naked into the public bath is inadmissible, because of his committing a prohibited action in the exposure of his nakedness.

The teetimony of a person who receives usury is inadmissible, and so, also, of one who plays for a strke at dice or ohess. The evidence of a person guilty of base and low actions, such as making water or eating his victuals on the high road, is not admissible, because where a man is not refrained, by a sense of shame, from such actions as these, he exposes himself to a suspicion that he will not refrain from falsehood

The evidence of a person who openly inveighs against the Companione of the Prophet and their disciples is not admissible, because of his apparent want of integrity it is otherwise, however, where a person conceals his sentiments in regard to them, because in such case the want of integrity is not apparent.

The testmony of gimms with respect to each other is admissible, notwithstanding they be of different religious

The Imam Abu Hanifah is of opinion that a false witness must be stigmatised, but not chastised with blows. The two disciples are of opinion that he must be scourged and confined, and thus also is the opinion of ash-Shaff.

The mode of stigmetising a false witness is this —If the witness be a sejourner in any public street or market-place, let him be sent to that street or market place; or, if otherwise, let him be sent to his own tribe or kindred, after the evening prayers (as they are generally assembled in greater numbers at that time than any other), and let the stigmatieer inform the people that the Qazi salutes them, and informs them that he has detected this person in giving false evidence, that they must, therefore, beware of him themselves, and likewise desire others to beware of him

If witnesses retract their testimony prior to the Qazī passing any decree it becomes void, if, on the contrary the Qazī pass a decree, and the witnesses afterwards retract their testimony, the decree is not thereby rendered void

The retraction of evidence is not valid, unless it be made in the presence of the

Qāzi

EVIL EYE Isābatu 'l-'Arn (&) Muhammad was a believer in the baneful influence of an evil eye Asmā' bint 'Umais relates that she eaid, "O Prophet, the family of Jafar are affected by the baneful influences of an evil eye, may I use spells for them or not?" The Prophet said, "Yes, for if there were snything in the world which would overcome fate, it would be an evil eye" (Mishkat, book xxi c i part 2)

EXECUTION The Muhammadan mode of execution is as follows—The executioner (jallād) seizes the condemned culprit by the right hand, while with a sharp sword or axe he aims a blow at the back of the neck, and the head is detached at the first stroke. This mode of execution is still, or was till lately, practised in Muhammadan state- in India

If a Qavi eay, I have sentenced such a person to be stoned, or to have his hand cut off or to be killed, do you therefore do it it is lawful for that person to whom the Qazi has given the order to carry it out

And according to Abu Hanifah, if the Qazi order the executioner to cut off the right hand, and the executioner wilfully cut off the left, he is not liable to punishment. But other doctors do not agree with him a term also used for the testator; wakil 'alā'l wasiyah (وكيل على الرميل). An executor having accepted his appointment in the presence of the testator, is not afterwards at liberty to withdraw, and any act indicative of his having accepted the position of executor binds him to fulfil his duties

A Muslim may not appoint a slave, or a reprobate (fing) or an infidel as his executor, and in the svent of his doing so, the Qisi must nominate a proper substitute. But if none of the testator's heirs have attained their majority, a slave may be appointed as executor until they are of age.

If joint executors have been appointed and one of them die, the Qisi must appoint a substitute in office

In the cases of unfants or absent herrs, the executor is entitled to possess himself pro-tent of their property, but he cannot trade with his ward's portion.

If a person die without appointing an executor, the next of kin administers the estate, and it is an arrangement of Muslim law that his father is his executor and not his eldest eon. ((Hidayah, vol iv p 554)

EXILES, The. [MUHAJIRUN.]

EXISTENCES. The Arabic word unifud (ירפני), expresses a substance, or sesence, or existence. According to Muhammadan writers (see Ghiyagu 'l-Lughah), existences are of three kinds Wayibu 'lwujud, "a necessary existence," e g Almighty God, muskinu 'l-unyad, "a possible exist-ence," s.y the human kind, mumiani'u 'l-muyad, "an impossible existence," eg a partner with the Divine Being

These terms are used by Muhammadan scholars when discussing the doctrine of the Eternal Trinity with Christian Evangelists

EXORCISM DA'WAH ]

EXPIATION. The doctrine of expiation or atonement for neglected duties, sins of omission and commission, is distinguished in the Muslim religion from the doctrine of sacrifice, sacrifices being strictly confined to the 'Idu 'l-Azḥā', or Feast of Sacrifice in the month of prigramage

There are two words employed in the Qur'an to express the doctrine of expiation kuffärak (8,48), from kaft, "to hide fidyah (dash), from fida, "to exchange, or ransom "

(1) Kaffarah occure in the following Segist

Sureh v 49 -

"And therem (Ex xx: 23) have we enacted for them, Life for life, an eye for eye, and nose for nose, and ear for ear, and tooth for tooth, and for wounds retalistion '-Whose shall compromise it as alms shall have therein the expection of his sin, and whose will not judge by what God hath sent down-such Are the transgressors."

Strab v 91 .

"God will not pumsb you for a mistaken word in you cathe but he will pumsh you in regard to an eath taken seriously. Its expration shall be to feed ten poor persons with such middling food as ye feed your own families with, or to clothe them, or to set free a captive. But he who cannot find means, shall fast three days. This is the expiation of your oaths when ye shall have SMOLUT,

Strah v. 96 .-

"O believers! kill no game while ye are on pilgramage. Whoseever among you shall purposely kill it, shall compensate for it in domestic animals of equal value (according to the judgment of two just persons among you), to be brought as an offering to the Ka'bah, or in appeation thereof shall feed the poor, or as the equivalent of this chall fast, that he may taste the ill consequence of his deed. God forgiveth what is past; but who-ever doeth it again, God will take vengeance on him; for God is mighty and vergesnes is His'

(2) Frdyak occurs in the following verses -

Strah u 180 .

"But he amongst you who is all, or on a journey, then let him fact another number of days, and those who are fit to fast and do not, the expection of this shall be the maintenance of a poor man. And he who of his own accord performeth a good work, shall derive good from it and good shall it be for you to fast—if ye knew it

Surah it. 192

"Accomplish the Pilgrimage and Visitation of the holy places in honour of God and if ye behammed in by foce, send whatever offering shall be the easiest and shave not your heads until the offering reach the place of sacrifice But whoever among you is sick, or hath an ailment of the head, must expects by festing, or alms, or an offering "

Sürah lvn 13 -

"On that day the hypocrites, both men and women, shall say to those who believe, 'Tarry for us, that we may kindle our light at yours.' It shall be said, 'Return ye back, and seek light for yourselves' But between them shall be set a wall with a gateway, within which shall be the Morey, and in front, without it, the Torment They shall cry to them, "Were we not with you? They shall say, Yes I but ye led yourselves mio 'emptation, and ye do aved, and we doubted, and the good things ye craved decayed you, till the doom of God arrayed - and the deceiver decarved you in regard to God

"On that day, therefore, no expension shall be taken from you or from those who be-lieve not —vour abode the fire!—This shall be your master! and wretched the journey

thither l

(3) In theological books the torm kaffarats 'z gunub, " the atonement for sms," is used for the duties of prayer fasting, almsgiving, and pilgrimage There is also a popular saying that a syarate ' qubir is kaffarate 's gunub, s.a. the visiting of shrines of the saints is an atonement for sins

Theologians define the terms kaffarah and fidyah as expressing that expiation which is due to God, whilst digah and gleas are that which is due to man. [FIRES, SACRIFICES.]

For that expiation which is made by free mg a slave, the word, taker is used, a word which implies setting a slave free for God's sake, although the word does not in any sense mean a ransom or atonement for an occurs in the Quran, Sürah iv 94, "Whosoever kills a behever by mietake let him FREE a believing neck" (te a Muslim elave)

EXTRAVAGANCE. Arabic Israf An extravagant person or prodigal is musrif, or mubagger, and is con-demand in the Qur'an — Surah xvii. 28, 29 "Waste not wastefully, for the wasteful were ever the brothers of the devil, and the devil is ever ungrateful to his Lord."

Surah vii. 29: "O cons of men, take your ornaments to every mosque, and eat and drink, but be not extravagant, for He loves not the extravagant."

EYES. Arabic 'Ayn (Oct), pl. Uyen, A'yun, A'yen. "Il a person strike another in the eye, so as to force the member with its vessels out of the socket, there is no retaliation in this case, it being impossible to preserve a perfect equality in extracting an eye But if the eye remain in its place, and the eight be destroyed, retaliation is to be inflicted, as in this case equality may be effected by extinguishing the sight of the offender's corresponding eye with a hot iron." (H:dayah, 17 294)

There is a tradition by Malik that the diyah or "fine" for blunding one eye is tifteen camels (Mushkat, book xiv 167) [EVIL EYE.]

EZEKIEL Arabic Hugil mentioned by name, but there is generally supposed to be an allusion to Ezekiel's vision of the dry bones (Ezek xxxvii 1) in the Qur'an, Sürab u 244 -

"Don't thou not look at those who left their homes by thousands, for fear of death, and God eard to them 'Die,' and He then quickened them again?"

Al-Baizāwī says that a number of Israelites fied from their villages either to join in a religious war, or for fear of the plague, and were struck dead, but Ezekiel raised them to life sgain.

The Kamalan say he is perhaps the same aa Zn 'l-Kifi [zu 'L-Kifi ]

Arabic 'Uzarr LZRA The son of Sharahya', the scribe Mentioned only once by name in the Quran, Sarah ix.

"The Jews say 'Uzarr (Exra) is a son of God "

Al-Beizāwī says that during the Babylonish captivity the tourat (the law) was lost, and that as there was no one who remembered the law when the Jews returned from captivity, God raised up Ezra from the dead, although he had been buried a hundred years And that when the Jews saw him thus raised from the dead, they said he must be the son of God

This story is suppreed to have been renvealed in the Qur'an, Surah ii 261

"[Hast thou not considered] him who passed by a city (which was Jerusalem), riding upon an ass, and having with him a bunket of figs and a vessel of the jusce of grapes and he was 'Uzair, and it was falling down upon its roofs, Nebuchudnezzar having ruined it? He said, wondering at the power of God, How will God quicken this after its death? -And God cansed him to die for a hundred years. Then He raised him to life and He said unto him, How long hast thou tarried here !- He answered I have tarried a day, or part of a day — For he slept in the first part of the any, and was deprived of his life, and was reaninated at sunsat. He said Nay, thou hast tarried a hundred years but look at thy food and thy drink they have not become changed by time and look at thine ans - And he beheld it dead, and its bones white and shining - We have done this that thou mayest know, and that We may make thee a sign of the resurrection unto men. And look at the bones of thine ass, how We will raise them, then We will clothe them with flesh, so he looked at them, and they had become put together, and were clothed with flesh, and life was breathed into it, and it brayed. Therefore when it had been made manifest to him he said, I know that God is able to accomplish everything "

F.

FAI' (في) Booty obtained from infidels According to Muhammad ibn Tähir, /n' is booty taken from a country which submits to Islam without resistance as distinnushed from ghanmah, or plunder The Khainah 'Umar said it was the special privilege of the Prophet to take booty as well as 'privilege not permitted to any other pluzde prophet

'Auf ibn Malik says the Prophet used to divide booty on the same day he took it, and would give two shares to a man with a wife, and only one share to a man without one

(Meshkat, book zvi o zu.)

FAITH. [IMAN]

FAIZ-I-AQDAS (نيفن الدس, Per-Communications of devine grace made to angels and prophets and other superior inte ligences

AL-FAJR (), "The Daybreak" The title of the LXXXIXth Surah of the Qur'an, in the first verse of which the word occura

FA'L (نان) A good omen, as distinguished from fiyarah, "a bad omen."

Muhammad is related to have said, "Do not put faith in a bad omen, but rather take a good one" The people asked, "What is a good omen?" And he replied, "Any good word which any of you may hear"

Ibn 'Abbas says, "The Prophet used to take good omens by men's names, but he would not take bad omens"

Qai'an ibn Qabasah says, "The Prophet forbade taking omens from the running of animals the flight of birds, and from throwing pebbles, which were done by the idolators of Arabia" (Miskkät, book zzi. c ii.)

It is, however, very commonly practised

ō

amongst the Muhammadans of India. example, if a person start out on an importent fourney, and he meet a woman first, he will take if se a bad omen, and if he meet a man he will regard it as a good one.

AL-FALAQ (العلق), "The Daybreak" The title of the counth Surah of the Qur'an. The word signifies cleaving, and denotes the breaking forth of the light from the darkness FALL, The (of Adam) Is known amongst Muslim writers as sallate Adam, "the fell," or shp of Adam. The term zallak, "a slip" or "error," being applied to prophets, but not zamb, "a slip," which they say Prophets do not commit

The following is the account of Adam's "slip," as given in the Qur'an, Sursh ii 33

"And we said, 'O Adam' dwell thou and thy wife in the Garden, and cat ye plentifully therefrom wherever ye list, but to this tree come not nigh, lest ye become of the trans

"But Satan made them slip (azallahuma) from it, and caused their banishment from the place in which they were. And we said, Get ye down the one of you an enemy to the other and there shall be for you in the earth a dwelling-place and a provision for a time '#

Súrab vii 18-24

"And, O Adam! dwell thou and thy wife in Paradise and eat ye whence ye will, but to this tree approach not, lest ye become of the unjust doors '

Then Satan whispered them to show them their nakodness, which had been hidden from them both And he said, This tree bath your Lord forbidden you, miy lest ye should become angels, or lest yo abould become immortals'

"And be sware to them both, 'Versiv I am unto you one who counselleth aright

"So he beguiled them by deceits when they had tasted of the tree, their nakedness appeared to them, and they began to sew together upon thumselves the leaves of the garden. And their Lord called to them, Did I not forbid you thus troe, and did I not way to you, " Verily Satan is your declared enemy "?"

"They said. 'O our Lord! With curselves have we dealt unjustly if thou forgive us not and have pity on us, we shall surely be of those who perish.'

He said 'Ust ye down, the one of you an enemy to the other, and on earth shall be your dwalling, and your provision for a

"He said 'On at shall ye live, and on at shall ye die, and from it shall ye be taken forth

SGrab xx i14-120;—
"And of old We made a covenant with Adam, but he forgat it, and we found no

Armness of purpose in hun.

And when We said to the angels, 'Fall down and worship Adam, they worshipped

'O Adam! this truly is a fee to thee and to thy wife. Let him not therefore drave you out of the garden, and ye become wretched,

" For to thee is it granted that thou shalt not hunger therein, neither shalt thou be naked,

" And that thou shalt not thirst therein, neither shalt thou parch with heat',

"But Satan whispered him said he, 'O Adam ! shall I show thee the tree of Eternity, and the Kingdom that faileth not?

"And they both ate thereof, and their nakedness appeared to them, and they began to sew of the leaves of the Garden to cover them, and Adam disobeyed his Lord and went astray

"Afterwards his Lord ohose him for himself, and was turned towards him, and guided

The Muslim Commentators are much perplexed as to the scene of the fall of Adam From the text of the Quran it would appear that the Paradise spoken of was in heaven and not on earth, and the tradition, that when Adam was cast forth he fell on the island of Ceylon, would support this view But al Banañwn says some say the Garden of Eden was situated either in the country of the Philistines or in Paris and that Adam was cast out of it and sent in the direction of Hendustän But this view he rejects, and maintains that the Garden of Eden was in the heavens, and that the fall occurred before Adam and Eve inhabited this earth of ours. [EDEN]

The Muhammadan commentators are silent as to the cifects of Adam's fall upon the human race

FALSE WITNESS. The Imam Ahu Hanifah is of opmion that a false witness must be publicly stigmatised, but not chastised with blows, but the Imams ash-Shafi 1, Yusuf, and Muhammad are of opinion that he should be scourged and imprisoned

In the Law of Moses, a false witness was punished with the punishment of the offence it sought to establish Deut. xx 19, "Thou about do unto bim as he had thought to do unto his brother " [EVIDENCE.]

FANA' (.w) Extinction. The last stage in the Sufustic lourney FIREM.

A Muhammadan FAQIH (نقية) lawyer or theologian. The term is still retained in Spanish as ulfaque [FIQH.]

Persian darwesh (نفير) FAQIR The Arabic word fagir signifies " poor", but it is used in the sense of being in need of mercy, and poor in the sight of God, rather than in need of worldly assistance Darwesk is a Persian word, derived from dar, "a door," is those who beg from door to door. The terms are generally used for those who lead a religious life Religious faqure are divided into two great classes, the ba share (with the law), or those who govern their conduct according to the principles of Islam . and the bc shar (without the law), or those who do not rule their lives according to the principles of any religious creed, although they call themselves Musulmans. The former are called allah, or travellers on the pathway (tariqua) to heaven, and the latter are either died (free), or maysib (abstracted). The saids embrace the various religious orders who perform the gakrs, described in the article size.

The Mapais facirs are totally absorbed in religious reverse. The Azad shave their beards, whiskers, moustachies, eye-brows, and sye-lashes, and lead lives of celibacy

The Asid and Maysis faqirs can scarcely be said to be Muhammadans, as they do not say the regular prayers or chaerve the ordinances of Islam, so that a description of their various scote does not fall within the himits of this work. The Salik faqirs are divided into very numerous orders, but their chief differonce consists in their situlat, or chain of succession, from their grast teachers, the Khalifahs Abu Bakr and 'Ali, who are said to have been the founders of the religious order of faqirs

It is impossible to become acquainted with all the rules and ceremonies of the numerous orders of faqirs, for, like those of the Freemasons and other secret societies, they are not divulged to the municiated

The doctrines of the darwesh orders are those of the Sufi mystics, and their religious ceremonies consist of exercises called zukrs, or "recitals" [ZIKE, SUFISM]

M D'Ohsson, in his celebrated work on the Ottoman Emmer, traces the origin of the order of fagins to the time of Muhammad himself —

"In the first year of the Hijrah, forty-five citizons of Makkah joined themselves to as many others of al-Madinah. They took an oath of fidelity to the doctrines of their Pro phot, and formed a sect or fresernity, the object of which was to establish among themselves a community of property, and to perform every day certain religious practices in a spirit of pentionoe and mortification To distinguish themselves from other Mubammadans, they took the name or Stiffs [surman.] This name, which later was attributed to the most scalous partizans of lalam, is the same still in use to indicate any Musulman who retires from the world to study, to lead a life of pious contemplation, and to follow the most painful exercises of an exeggerated devotion. To the name of Suff they added also that of fagir, because their maxim was to renounce the goods of the earth, and to live in an entire abnegation of all worldly enjoyments, following thereby the werds of the Prophet, al-fuqru fakiri, or Poverty is my pride.' Following their ex-ample, Aba Bakr and 'Ali established, even during the life-time of the Prophet and under his own eyes, religious orders, over which each presided, with Zikre or peculiar religrous exercises, established by them caparately, and a vow taken by each of the voluntary disciples forming them. On his decease, Aba Bakr made over his office of president to one Salmanu I-Farmi, and 'Ala to al-Hassau II-Bagri, and each of these charges were consecrated under the title Knalitah, or successor The two first successors followed the example of the Khalifans of Islam, and transmitted it to their successors, and these in turn to others the most aged and venerable of their fratermty. Some among them, led by the dehrum of the imaginatian, wandered away from the primitive rules of their society, and converted, from time to time society, and converted, from time to time orders.

"They were doubtlessly emboldened in this enterprise by that of a recluse who, in the thurty-seventh year of the Hijrah (A.D. 657) formed the first order of anchorets of the greatest austerity, named Uwais al-Karani. a native of Karu, in Yaman, who one day announced that the erobangel Gabriel had appeared to him in a dream, and in the name of the Eternal God commanded him to withdraw from the world, and to give himself up to a life of contemplation and penitence This visiouary pretended also to have received from that heavonly varior the plan of his future conduct, and the rules of his matitution These consisted in a continual abstinence in retirement from society, in an abandonment of the pleasures of mnocent nature, and a the recital of an infinity of pravers day and night (Zikrs). Uwass even added to these practices. He went so far as to draw out his testh, in honour, it is said, of the Prophet, who had lest two of his own in the celebrated battle of Uhnd He required his disciples to make the same sacrifice. He pretended that all these who would be especially favoured by heaven and really called to the exercises of his Order, should lose their tooth in a supernatural manner that an angel should draw out their teeth whilst in the midst of a deep sleep, and that on awaken-ing they should find them by their bedside The experiences of such a vocation were doubtless too severs to attract many proselytes to the order, it only enjoyed a certain degree of attraction for fanatice and credulously ignoraus people during the first days of Islam Since then it has remained in Yaman, where it originated, and where its partisans were always but few in number.

It was about A n. 49 (a.p. 766), that the Shaikh Alwan, a mystic renowned for his rehonous fervour, founded the first regular order of faqirs, now known as the Aissaniyan, with its special rules and religious enercises, although similar associations of men without strict rules had existed from the days of Aba Bakr, the first Khalifah And although there is the formal declaration of Muhammad, "Let there be no monasticism in Islam" still the incimations of Eastern races to a solitary and a contemplative life, carried it even against the positive opposition of orthodox Islam, and now there is scarcely a maulawi or learned man of reputation in Islam who is not a member of some religious

Risch century gave birth to new orders, named after their respective founders, but in the present day there is no means of accertaining the actual number of these associations of mystic Muslims M D'Ohsson, in the work already quoted, gives a list of thirty-two orders, but it is by no means comprehensive.

| No | Name of theOrder | Founder             | Place of theFounder's Shrine | Date. | DateA.D. |
|----|----------------------|---------------------|----------------------------------|-------|--------------|
| 1  | Alwaniyah            | Shaikh Afwan .      | Jeddah                           | 149   | 766          |
| 2  | Adhamiyah            | Ibrahim ibn Adham   | Damascus                         | 161   | 777          |
| 3  | Basiamiyah           | Bayasid Bastami     | Jabal Bastam                     | 261   | 874          |
| 4  | Saqatıyah            | Sarri Segati        | Baghdad                          | 295   | 907          |
| 5  | Qadıriyah            | Abdu i-Qadır Jilanı | Raghdad                          | 561   | 1165         |
| 6  | Rufaiyah             | Sayud Aumad Ruiai   | Baghdad                          | 576   | 1182         |
| 7  | Suhrwardiyah         | Shihabn 'd-Din      | Baghdad                          | 602   | 1205         |
| 8  | Kabrawiyah           | . Najmu 'd-Din      | Khawazim                         | 617   | 1220         |
| 9  | Shaziliyab           | Ahn 7-Hesan         | Makkah                           | 656   | 1258         |
| 10 | Maulawiyah           | Jalalu 'd-Dm Rumi   | Conyah                           | 672   | 1279         |
| 11 | Badawiyah            | Abu 'l-Fitan Ahmad  | Tanta, Egypi                     | 675   | 1276         |
| 12 | Nagshbandiyah        | Pir Muhammag        | Qasn Anian                       | 719   | 1819         |
| 18 | Sadiyah              | Sadu 'd-Dm          | Damasons                         | 736   | 1335         |
| 14 | Bakhtashiyah         | Han Bakhtash        | Kir Sher                         | 736   | 1857         |
| 15 | Rhalwatiyah          | Umar Khalwati       | Cmanrea                          | 1900  | 1397         |
| 16 | Zaimyah              | Zamu 'd-Din         | Kuleh                            | 838   | 1488         |
| 17 | Babaiyah             | Abdu I Gham         | Adrianople                       | 870   | 1465         |
| 18 | Bahramiyah           | Haji Bahrami        | Angora                           | 876   | 1471         |
| 19 | Asbrafivah           | Ashref Rumi         | Chin Isnie                       | 899   | 1493         |
| 20 | Bakriyah             | Abu Bakr Wafai      | Aleppo                           | 902   | 1496         |
| 21 | Sunbulyah            | Sunbul Yuanf Bulawi | Constantinople                   | 986   | 1529         |
| 22 | Guishaniyah          | Ibrahim Gulahani    | Carro                            | 940   | 1539         |
| 23 | Ighit Bashiyab       | Shamsu 'd-Din       | Magnesia                         | 951   | 1544         |
| 24 | Umm Sunaniyeh        | Shaikh Umm Sanan    | Constantinople                   | 959   | 1552         |
| 25 | Jalwattyah           | Pir Uftadi          | Proces                           | 988   | 1580         |
| 26 | Asbaqıyah .          | Hasanu d-Din        | Constantinople                   | 1001  | 1592         |
| 27 | Shamaiyah            | Shaman 'd-Din       | Madinali                         | 1010  | 1601         |
| 28 | Sunan Ummiyah        | Alim Sonan Ummi     | Alwali                           | 1079  | 1668         |
| 29 | Niyanyah             | . Muhammad Niyaz    | Lemnos                           | 1100  | 1694         |
| 30 | Muradirah            | Murad Shami         | Constantinople                   | 1182  | 1718         |
| 81 | Nuruddinivah         | Nuru 'd-Din         | Constantinople                   | 1146  | 1732         |
| 82 | Jemaliyah            | Jamaju 'd Din       | Constantinople                   | 1164  | 1750         |

Three of these orders, the Bastamiyah, the Nagshbandiyah, and the Bakhtashiyah, de

a BASTABI SHAIRH, (Brown)
cond from the original order established by the first Khalifah, Abū Bakr The fourth

Khalifah, 'Alı, gave birth to all the others Each order has its silvilah, or chain of succession, from one of these two great founders

The Nagahbandiyah, who are the followers of Khwajah Pir Muhammad Nagahband, are a very numerous order. They usually perform the Zikr-i-Khafi, or silent devotions described in the account of zikk.

The first duty of the members of this Order is to recite, daily, particular prayers, called the khātim khāwjagān, once, at least, the Istighfār (Prayer for Forgiveness), seven times the salāmāt, seven times the Fatihah (first chapter of the Qur'un), nine times the chapter of the Qur an called Inshirāh (Chapter aziv), lastly, the Ikhās (Chapter azi). To these are added the ceremonies called Zikr [ZIKE.]

For those recitals they meet together once a week Ordmarily, this is on Thursday, and after the fifth prayer of the day, so that it occurs after night-fall In each city, suburh, or quarter the members of this association, divided into different bodies, assemble at the house of their respective pir or shalkh, where, seated, they perform their pious exercises with the most perfect gravity. The shaikh, or any other brother in his stead, chants the pravers which constitute the association and the assembly respond in chorus, "Hi (He)," or 'Aliab!" In some cities, the Naqehbandiyah have especial halls, consecrated wholly to this purpose, and then the shaikh only is distinguished from the other brethren by a special turban

The Bakhtashiyah was founded by a native of Bukhara, and is celebrated as being the order which accutually gave birth to the fanatical order of Jamesaries. The symbol of their order is the mystic girdle, which they put off and on seven times, taying

taying —
I. "I tie up groediness, and unbind generosity"

2 "I tie up anger, and unbind meekness".
8. "I tie up avarice and unbind piety"

4 "I tie up ignorance and unbind the feat

5 "I tie up passion and unbind the love of God."

6 "I tie up hunger, and unbind (spiritual) contentment"

7 "I tie up Satanism and unbind Divine-

The Maulawiyah are the most popular religious order of faqira in the Turkish empire

THE MAULAWI OR DANCING DARWESH

They sie called by Europeans, who witness their gikrs and various religious performances at Constantinople and Cairo, the "dancing," or "whiring darweshes. They were founded by the Maulawi Jalalu d-din ar-Rümi, the renewned author of the Magnavi a book much read in Persia, and, indeed, in all parts of Islam.

They have service at their takyah, or "con vent," every Wednesday and Sunday at two celock. There are about twenty performers, with high round left caps and brown mantles. At a given signal they all fall flat on their faces, and rise and walk slowly round and round with their same folded bowing and turning slowly several times. They then cust

THE MAULAWI OR DANGING DARWERS

off their mantles and appear in long bell shaped petricoats and jackets, and then begin to spin revolving, dancing and turning with extraordinary velocity [ZIER.]

THE MAULAWI OR DARKING DARWESH

The Qādirīyah sprang from the celebrated Saivid 'Abdu I-Qādir, surnamed Pīr-i-Dasas gīr, whose shrine is at Bagdad. They procue both the Ziki-i-Jali and the Ziki i Khafi Most of the Sunni Maulawis on the north-west frontier of India are members of this order in Egyptit is most popular among fisherman.

The Chishtiyah are followers of Mu'inn 'ddin Banda Nawas, surnamed the Giar danas, or the "long-ringletted." His shrine is at Calburgah.

The Shi'ahs generally become faqire of this order. They are partial to vocal music, for the founder of the order remarked that singing was the food and support of the soul. They perform the Zikr-1-Jali, described in the article on REER.

The Jalaliyah were founded by Salyid Jalalu 'd din, of Bukhara. They are met with in Central Asia. Religious mendicants are often of this order

The Suhrwardiyah are a popular order in Afghänistän, and comprise a number of learned men. They are the followers of Shihābu 'ddin of Suhrward of al-'Irāq. These are the most noted orders of ba shar faqirs.

The be shar fagirs are very numerous

The most popular order in India is that of the Murdariyah, founded by Zinda Shah Murdar, of Syria, whose shrine is at Makanpur, in Oudh From these have spring the Mulang faqira, who crowd the bazzars of India They wear their hair matted and tied in a knot The Rufariyah order is also a numerous one in some parts of India They practise the most severe discipline and mortify themselves by beating their hodies. They are known in Turkey and Egypt as the "Howling Darweshes"

Another woll-known order of darweshes is the Qalandariyah, or "Wandering Darweshes" founded by Qalandar Yusuf al-Andalusi a native of Spain. He was for a time a member of the Bakhtāshīs, but having been dismissed from the order, be established one of his own, with the obligation of perpetual travelling The Qalandar faqir is a prominent character in Eastern romance

A QALANDAR. (Brown)

Each order is established on different principles, and has its rules and statutes and peculiar devotions. These characteristics extend even to the garments worn by their followers. Each order has in fact, a particular dress, and amongst the greater part of them this is chosen so as to mark a difference in that of the shaigh from that of the ordinary members. It is perceived principally in the turbans, the shape of the coat, the colours, and the nature of the stuff of which the dresses are made. The shaighs wear robes of green or white cloth, and any of those who in winter lime them with fur, use that kind called petit gris and sibaline martin. Few darweshes use cloth for their dress. Black or white felt dresses called 'ab $\bar{a}$ , such as are made in some of the cities of Anatolia, are the most usual. Those who wear black felt are the Jalwatts and the Qādiris The latter have adopted it for their boots, and muslin for their turbans. Some, such as the Maulawis and the Bakris, wear tail caps called kulāks, made also of falt, and others such as the Rufa'is, use short caps called Tāqıyah, to which is added a coarse cloth. The head-dress of aimost all the dayweshes is called tāj, which signifies a "crown." These turbans are of different forms, either from the manner in which the muclin is folded, or by the cut of the cloth which covers the top of the kesd. The cloth is in several gores. Some have four, as the Adhamis, some six as the Qādris and the Sa'dis, the Gulshanis have eight, the Bakhtāshis twelve, and the Jalwatis eighteen

A REPAI IN ELETATICS (Brown)

THE SHAIKH OF THE DANGING DARWESHES AT CAIRO. (From a Photograph)

AN EGYPTIAN FAKIR. (From a Photograph)

AN EGYPTIAN PAQIR (From a Photograph)

The darweshes carry about with them one or other of the following articles a small crooked stick or iron, which the devotes places under his arm-pit or forehead, to lean upon when he meditates, or an iron or brass har on which there is a little artificial hand wherewith to scratch his unwashed body a beg made of lamb skin, a kashkul or beggar's wallet

Cenerally, all the darweshes allow their teards and mustachies to grow Some of the orders—the Qadiris, Rufa'is, Khalwatis, Onlshanis, Jaiwatis, and the Nura 'd-dine-still wear long hair, in memory of the usage of the Prophet and several of his diedples. Some allow their hair to fall over their shoulders, others tie it up and put it under their turban.

Whilst private Musulmans are in the habit of holding reserves of beads as a pastime, the darweshes do the same, only in a spirit of religion and piety. These reserves have thirty-three, earty-six, or minoty nine beads, which is the number of the attributes of the Divinity [con.] Some have them always in their hands, others in their girdies, and all are required to recite, several times during the day, the particular prayers of their order.

[TARSIL]
The individual who desires to enter an order is received in an assembly of the fraternity, presided over by the sheakh, who touches his hand and breathes in his ear three times the words, " La ilaha illa 'llah" ("There is no god but God"), commanding him to repeat them 101 151 or 301 times each day This commony Talain The recipient, faithful to the orders of his chier obligates himself to apend his time in perfect retirement, and to report to the shaigh the visions or dreams which he may have auring the course of his novinate These dreams, besides characterising the sanctity of his vocation, and his spiritual advancement in the order, serve likewise as so many supernatural means to direct the sheikh regarding the periods when he may again breathe in the ear of the neophyte the second words of the initiation, "Is Allah!" ("O God I"), and successively all the others to the last, "Ië Quakër I" ("O avengetal God I"). The full complement of this exercuse is called Chillen, or "forty days," period sometimes even longer, according to the dispositions, more or less favourable, of the candidate. Arrived at the last grade of his novitate, he is then supposed to have fully ended his career, called Takinila 's-Suluk, and acquired the degree of perfection for his solemn admission into the corps to which he has devoted himself. During all his novitiate the recipient bears the name of Murid, or " Disciple," and the shaikh who directs hun in this pretended colestial career takes the title of Murshid, or "Spiritual Guide "

The founder of the Alwanis laid out the first rules of this novitiate, they were subsequently perfected by the institution of the Qidiris, and more so by the Khalwatis. The darweshes of these two last societies are distinguished in some countries by the deceration of their turban, on the top of which are embroidered the words "Lā sļāha sllā 'llāh" (There is no god but God).

The tests of the novice among the Maulawis seem to be still more severe, and the reception of these dervishes is attended with eeremonies peculiar to their order The aspirant is required to labour in the convent or takyah 1,001 successive days in the lowest grade, on which account he is called the karra kolak (jackal). If he fails in this service only one day, or is absent one night, he is obliged to recommence his novitiate The chief of the kitchen, or ashn-bashi, one of the most notable of the darweehes, presents him to the shaikh, who, seated in an angle of the sofa, receives him amid a general assembly of all the darweshes of the convent The candidate kusses the hand of the sharkh, and takes a seat before him on a mat, which covers the floor of the The chief of the kitchen places his right hand on the neck, and his left hand on the forehead of the novice, whilst the shaikh takes off his cap and holds it over his head, reciting the following Perman distich, the composition of the founder of the order -

"It is true greatness and felicity to close the heart to all human passions, the aban-donment of the vanities of this world is the happy effect of the victorious strength given

These verses are followed by the exordium of the Takbir, 'Allaku akbar—God is great," after which the shaikh covers the head of the new darwesh who now uses and places himself with the Ashjibashi in tho middle of the hall, where they assume the most humble posture, their hands crossed upon the breast, the left foot over the right foot, and the head inclined towards the left shoulder The sharkh addresses these words to the head of the kitchen

"May the services of this darwest, thy brother be agreeable to the throne of the Eternal, and in the eyes of our Pir (the founder of the order), may his satisfaction, his felicity, and his glory grow in this nest of the humble, in the cell of the poor, let us exclaim "Hu!" in honour of our

Manlawi."

They answer "Hi!" and the accepted nevice, arising from his place, kisses the hand of the shaikh, who at this moment addresses to him some paternal exhortations on the subject of the duties of his new condition, and closes by ordering all the darweshes of the meeting to recognise and embrace their new brother

The following is said to be the usual method of admitting a Muhammadan to the order of a be shor fagir in India. Having first performed the legal ablutions, the murid (disciple) seats himself before the murshid (spiritual guide). The murshid then takes the murid's right hand, and requires of him a confession of sin according to the following

"I ask forgiveness of the great God than Whom there is no other deity, the Eternal, the Everlasting, the Living One I turn to Him for repentance, and beg His grace and forgiveness.

This, or a similar form of repentance, is repeated several times The murid then repeats after the murshid .

"I beg for the favour of God and of the Prophet, and I take for my guide to God such a one (here naming the murshid) not to change or to separate from him. God is our witness. By the great God There is no deity but God. Amen"

The murshid and the murid then recite the first chapter of the Qur'an, and the murid concludes the ceremony by kissing the

murshid's hand

After the initiatory rite, the murid undergoes a series of instructions, including the gaters, which he is required to repeat daily The murid frequently visits his murshid, and sometimes the murshide proceed on a circuit of visitation to their disciples. The place where these "holy men" sit down to metruct the people is ever afterwards held sacred, a small flag is hoisted on a tree, and it is fenced in Such places are called "takyak," and are protected and kept free from pollution by some faqir engaged for the purpose.

Another account of the admission of a murid, or "disciple," into the order of Qadiriyah faqirs, 18 given by Tawakkul Beg in the Journal Amatrque -

"Having been introduced by Akhund Mulla Muhammad to Shaikh Mulla Shah, my heart, through frequent intercourse him, was filled with such a burning desire to arrive at a true knowledge of the mystical science, that I found no sleep by might, nor rest by day When the mitiation commenced, I passed the whole night without sleep, and repeated innumerable times the Suratu 1-

'Say He is God alone,

God the eternal

He begetteth not, and He is not begotten

And there is none like unto Him'

(Sûrah cxu.) "Whosever repeats this Surah one hundred times can accomplish all his vows. I desired that the sharkh should bestow on me hie love. No sooner had I finished my task, than the heart of the sheigh became full of aympathy for me. On the following might I was conducted to his presence. During the whole of that might he concentrated his thoughts on me, whilst I gave myself up to inward meditation. Three mights passed in this way On the fourth night the shaikh said — Let Mulla Sanghim and Salih Reg, who are very susceptible to ecstatic emotions, apply their spiritual energies to Tawakkul Beg'

"They did so, whilst I passed the whole night in meditation, with my face turned toward Makkah As the merning drew near, a little light came into my mind, but I could not distinguish form or colour After the merning prayers, I was taken to the shaigh who bade me inform him of my mental state. I replied that I had seen a light with my mward eye. On hearing this, the shaikh became animated and said 'Thy heart is dark, but the time is come when I will show myself clearly to thee' He then ordered me to sit down in front of him and to impress his features on my mind Then having blindfolded me, he ordered me to concentrate all my thoughts upon him I did so, and in an instant, by the spiritual help of the sharkh, my heart opened He asked me what I saw I said that I saw another Tawakkul Beg and another Mulia Shah The bandage was then removed, and I saw the sharkh in front of me Again they covered my face, and again I saw him with my inward eye Astonished, I cried 'O master! whether I look with my bodily eye, or with my spiritual sight, it is always you I see I then saw a dangling figure approach me The shaikh told me to say to the apparition, What is your name? In my spirit I put the question, and the figure answered to my heart 'Iam 'Abdu 'l-Qadır al-Jılanı, I have already aided thee, thy heart is opened' Much affected, I vowed that in honour of the saint, I would repeat the whole Qur'an every Friday night

"Mulla Shah then said The spiritual world has been shown to thee in all its beauty' I then rendered perfect obedience to the shakh. The following day I saw the Prophet, the chief Companions, and legions of saints and angels After three mouths I entered the cheerless region in which the figures appeared no more During the whole of this time the shakh continued to explain to me the mystery of the doctrine of the Unity and of the knowlege of God, but as yet he did not show me the absolute reality It was not until a year had passed that I arrived at the true conception of unity Then in words such as these I told the shaigh of my inspiration 'I look upon the body as only dust and water, I regard neither my heart nor my soul, slas! that in separation from Thee (God) so much of my life has assed. Thou wert I and I knew it not.' The shakh was delighted, and said that the truth of the union with God was now clearly revealed to me Then addressing those who were present, he said —

""Tawakkul Beg learnt from me the doctrine of the Unity, his inward eye has been opened, the spheres of colours and of images have been shown to him. At length, he entered the colourless region. He has now attained to the Unity, doubt and scepticism henceforth have no power over him. No one sees the Unity with the outward eye, till the inward eye gains strength and power."

Each institution imposes on its darweshes the obligation to recite certain passages at different times of the day in private, as well as in common with others. Several have also practices which are peculiar to themselves, and which consist in dances, or rather religious circular movements. In each convent there is a room consecrated to these exercises. Nothing is simpler than its construction, it contains no ornaments of any nature, the middle of the room, turned to wards Makkah, contains a niche or makrāb, in front of which is a small carpet, mostly made of the skin of a sheep, on which the shaikh of the community reclines, over the under the name of the founder of the order is written in some halls this inscription is surmounted by two others—one containing the Confession of Faith, and the other the words "Bismillih," &c ("In the name of God, the most Clement and Merciful") In others are seen on the wall to the right and the left of the niche tablets, on which are written in large letters the name of God (Alläh), that of Muhammad, and those of the four first Khalifahs At others are seen the names of al-Hasan and al-Husain, grandsons of the Prophet, and some verses of the Qur'an, or others of a moral character

The exercises which are followed in these halls are of various kinds, a description of which is given in the account of ZIKE.

The more zealous fagirs devote themselves to the most austere acts, and shut themselves up in their cells, so as to give themselves up for whole hours to prayer and meditation, the others pass very often a whole night in pronouncing the words Hu and Allah, or rather the phrave, La slaha slla 'llah So as to drive away sleep from their eyes, some of them stand for whole nights in very uncomfortable positions. They sit with their feet on the ground, the two hands resting upon their knees they fasten themselves in this attitude by a band of leather passed over then neck and legs Others to their hair with a cord to the ceiling, and call this usage Chilleh, There are some, also, who devote themselves to an absolute retirement from the world, and to the most rigid abatinence, living only on bread and water for twelve days successively, in honour of the twelve Imams of the race of 'Air This retirement is called Ahalwah They pretend that the shaikh 'Amr Khalwati was the first to follow it, and that he often practised it They add that one day, having left his retirement, he heard a celestial voice saving, "O'Amr Khalwati, why dost thou shandon us?" that, faithful to this oracle, he felt himself obliged to consecrate the rest of his days to works of penitence, and even to institute an order under the name of Khalwatis, a name signifying 'living in retirement" for this resson, darweshes of this order consider it their duty, more than any others, to live in solitude and abstinence. The more devoted among them observe sometimes a painful fast of forty days consecutively, called by them al-urb'aun (forty) Amongst them all their object is the expiation of their ains, the sanctification of their lives, and the gioriflostion of Islam, the prosperity of the state, and the general salvation of the Muhammadan people The most ancient and the greatest of the orders, such as the Alwanis the Adhamis, the Qadiris, the Rufa'is, the Nagahbandis, the Khalwatia, &c, are considered as the cardinal orders, for which reason they call themselves the Usule, or "Originals," sey give to the others the names of the see, or "Branches," signifying thereby condary ones, to designate their filiation emanation from the first. The order of e Naqshbandis and Khaiwatis hold, hower, the first rank in the temporal line, the ou account of the conformity of its states to the principles of the ten first constermines, and to the lustre which causes s grandees and principal citizens of the ipire to incorporate themselves in it, and e other, because of its being the source of e mother society which gave birth to many hers. In the spiritual line, the order of e Qādirīs, Maulawis, Bakhtāshīs, Rufatīs, d the Sa'dis, are the most distinguished, pecially the three first, on account of the unent sanctity of their founders, of the mulude of the miracles attributed to them, and the superabundance of the ment which is emed especially attached to them

Although all of them are considered as andmount orders, no darwesh is allowed to g, especially in public. The only exception among the Bakhtāshis, who deem it meririous to live by alms, and many of these sit not only private houses, but even the reets, public equares, bureaux, and public emselves to the charity of their brethren. They only express their requests by the ords "Shayed Ullah," a corruption from Shayen L-'llah," which means, "Something

r the love of God." Many of these make it rule to live only by the labour of their nda, in imitation of Hāji Bakhtāsh, their under, and, like him, they make spoons dles, graters, and other utensils, of wood or arble. It is these, also, who fashion the sees of marble, white or veined, which are ed as collars or buckles for the belts of I the darweshes of their order, and the shkule, or shell cups, in which they are

liged to ask alms

Although in no wise bound by any eaths, I being free to change their community, and en to return to the world, and there to opt any occupation which may please their ucy, it is rarely that anyone makes use of is liberty Each one regards it as a sacred ity to end his days in the dress of his order this spirit of poverty and perseverance, in sich they are so exemplary, must be added at of perfect submission to their superior 318 latter 18 elevated by the deep humility aich accompanies all their conduct, not ly in the interior of the plotsters, but even private life. One never meets them anyhere but with head bent and the most spectful countenance. They never calute yone, particularly the Maulawis, and the khtashis, except by the exclamation, "Ya". The words Ai & -!!!āh, "thanks to God," equently are used in their conversation, and e more devout or enthusiastic speak only dreams, visions, celestial spirits, supertural objects, &c.

They are seldem exposed to the trouble d vexations of ambition, because the most ident darweehes are these who may espire to the grade of shuigh, or superior of the convent The shaikhs are named by their respective generals, called the Raisu 1-Masha'ikh (chief of shaikhs). Those of the Maulawis have the distinctive title of Oheleby Efends All reside in the same critics which contain the ashes of the founders of their orders, called by the name of Astaneh aignifying "the court" They are subordinate to the Mufti of the capital, who exercises absolute jurisdiction over them. In the Turkish Empire the Shaikhu I-Islam has the right of removing all the generals of the various orders, even those of the Gadiris, the Maulawis and of the Bakhtashis although the dignity be hereditary in their ramily, on account of their all three being sprung from the blood of the same counders of their orders. The Mufii has likewise the right to confirm the shaikhs who may be nominated ty any of the generals of the orders (See The Dermishes or Oriental Spiritualism, by John P Brown, Malcoim's Persia, Lane's Modern Egyptians D'Ohsson's Ottoman Empire. Ubicim's Letters on Turkey, Herklott's Muselmans, Tazkiratu 'l-Auliya, by Shaikh

Faridu 'd-Din al-Attar )

FAQR (نقر) The life of a Fagir or an ascetic

(فرع) FARA The first-born of either camels, sheep, or goats, which the Arab pagans used to offer to idols This was allowed by the Prophet at the commencement of his mission, but afterwards abolished. (Mishkat, book iv o 50)

FARÄ'IZ (فراكم), pl of Farizah. "Inheritancee" A term used for the law of A term used for the law of inheritance, or 'Ilmu'l-Fara'ız Farişah means literally an ordinance of God, and this branch of Muslim law is so called because it is established fully in the Quran, Surah iv [IMME-RITANCE.

(نرق FARAQ (فرق) Let. "Separation" Farag-t-Asowal is a term used by Safi mystics to express that state of mind in which the soul is drawn sway from a contemplation of God by a contemplation of his creation, and furaq-i-sani (the second separa-tion) is when the soul is constantly contem-plating the stability of the creation with the eternity of the Creator ('Abdu 'r-Ratshq's Dietronary of Sufi Terms)

FARAQLIT (نارتليط). The Arabic rendering of the Greek παράκλητος, "Paraclete." Muhammadan writers assert that it is the original of the word translated Admed in the following verse in the Qur'an, Sarah "And call to mind when Jesus, son of Mary, said — O children of Israel! Verily I am an Apostle of God unto you, attesting the Tourst revealed before me, and giving good tidings of a Prophet that shall come after whose name is Ahmad"

Anmad is another derivative of the root to which Muhammad belongs, signifying, like it,

"the Praised" It is not improbable that in some imperfect copies of St. John xvi 7, παράκλητος may have been rendered περιadutos, which in some early Arabic translation of the Gospel may have been translated Almad In the Majma'u 'l-Bihar, a work written three hundred years ago, the word faraght is said to mean a distinguishor between truth and error The word also occurs several times in the well-known Shi'ah work, the Hayatu 'l-Qulüb (vide Morrick's translation, page 86) The author says, "It is well known that his (the Prophete) name in the Taurat is Müädmääd, in the gospels (Injil) Täbtäb, and in the Psalms (Zahūr) Farak-Jesus O Son of my handmaid verily I will send the chosen of prophets, Ahmad, whom I have selected of all my creatures oven Farkalest, my friend and servant. [JESUS]

FARSAKH (فرسخ) Persian Far hammadan books of law It 14 a league of 16,000 feet, or three and a half miles in length

FARWAH (800) An Arab of the Banu Juzum and Governor of Amman, who is represented by tradition (upon imperfect evidence) as one of the early martyls of Islam Having been converted to Islam the Roman authorities crucifled him (Muirs Life of Makomet, vol 11 p 103.)

FARZ (عرض) That which is obhtory A term used for those rules and ordinances of religion which are said to have been established and enjoined by God Himself as distinguished from those which are established upon the precept of practice of the Prophet, and which are called sunnan

FARZ KIFĀ'Ī (فرض كفاتى) A command which is imperative (عرم upon all Mushms, but which if one person in eight or ten performs it, it is sufficient (ki/ar), or equivalent to all having performed it.

They are generally held to be five in num ber (1) To return a salutation, (2) To visit the sick and inquire after their welfare, (3)
To follow a hier on fout to the grave, (4) To accept an invitation to dinner, (5) Replying to a sneeze [SNEEZING]

They are also said to be six or seven in number, when there the added one or two of the following (1) To give advice when asked for it, (2) fo help a Muslim to verify his oath, (3) To assist a person in discress 'Abdu l'Haqq save this last injunction souless to the set of the control of tion applies to all cases, whether that of a Muslim or an infidel (Mishkat, book v c 1 part 1)

FARZU 'L-'AIN (مرض العين) injunction or ordinanco the obligation of which extends to every Muslim as prayer, fasting, &c

FASID (اناحد) A seditious or rebellions person

FASIQ (الاسل). A term used in Muhammadan law for a reprodute person who neglects decorum in his dress and beha-The acceptance of such a person's evidence is not admissible. He is not regarded as a Muslim citizen, although he may profess Islam FASTING Arabic Saum ( egg), Persian Rozah (1)1). Fasting was highly commended by Muhammad as an atonement for am. The following are the fasts founded upon the example of the Proplet and observed by devout Mushme ..

(1) The thirty-days of the month of Ramazin This month's fast is regarded as a divine institution, being enjoined in the Qur'an (Surah ii 180) and is therefore compulsory [RAMAZAN]

(2) The day Ashera The tenth day of the month Muharram This is a voluntary fast but it is pretty generally observed by all Muslims, for Abū Qatādah relates that the Prophet said he hoped that the fast of 'Ashura' would cover the sins of the coming year (Mishkat book vu. ch. vu pt 1) ASJIURA ]

(3) The six days following the 'Idu 'l-Fitr. Abu Anyub relates that the Prophet said "The porson who fasts the month of Ramazan, and follows it up with eix days of the month of Shawwal, will obtain the rewards or a continued fast ' (Mishkat, book vu ch, vu pt 1)

(4) The Monday and Thursday of every week are recommended as fast days, as distinguished from the Christian fast of Wednesday Abu Hurairah relates that the Prophet said, "The actions of God's servants are represented at the throne of God on Mondaya and Thursdaye" (Mishkat, booy vn ch vn pt 2) These days are only observed by strictly religious Muslims

(5) The month of Sha ban 'Ayıshah re lates that the Prophet used sometimes to fast part of this month and sometimes the whole" (Mishlat book vii. ch vii pt 1)

It is seldom observed in the present day

(6) The 13th, 14th, and 15th of each month. These days are termed al-ayyamu 7montn biz is the bright days, and were observed by Muhammad umself as fasts (Mishkat, book vii ch vii pt 2) These are generally observed by devout Muslims

(7) Fasting alternate days which Muham mad said was the last observed by David King of Israel (Meshkat book vir. ch vir.

In the Traditions, fasting is commended by Muhammad in the following words

Every good sot that a man does shall receive from ten to sesen hundred rewards but the rewards of fasting are h and bounds, for fastii is for God alone and He will give its rewards

"He who fasts abandons the cravings of his appetites for God's sake

"There are two pleasures in fasting one when the person who fasts breaks it and the otherm the next world when he meets his Lord. The very smell of the mouth of a keeper of a fact is more agreeable to God than the smell of musk

" Fasting is a shield."

"When any of you fast utter no bad words, nor raise your voice in strife If anyone abuse one who is fasting, let him refrain from replying let him say that he is keeping a fast." (Machkät, book vii. ch. i. pt. 1)

[PREDESTINATION]

AL-FATH (atl), "The victory" The title of the xLyurth Surah of the Quran, n the first verse of which the word occurs " Verily We (God) have given thee an obvious victory, that Ged may pardon thee thy for-mer and later sm."

Professor Palmer says "Some of the commentators take this to mean sins committed by Muhammad before hie call and after it Others refer the word to the liquon with the Coptic handmaiden Mary, and to his mar riage with Zainab, the wife of his adopted con Zaid " None of the commentators we have consulted, including al-Baisawi, al-Jathlan, al-Kamalan, and Husam, give the last in-terpretation. They all say it refers to his sine before and after his call to the Apostleehip

In the Sunni law of FATHER. inheritance, a father is a sharer in the property of his son or son's con, taking one-sixth, but if his son die unmarried and without issue, the father is the residuary and takes the whole

According to the law of quees or retaliation, if a father take the life of his son, he is not to be slain, for the Prophet has said, "Retahation must not be executed upon the parent for his offspring", and Abu Hanifan adde, "because as the parent is the efficient cause of his child's existence, it is not proper that the child should require or be the occasion of his father's death", whence it is that a son is forbidden to shoot his father, when in the army of the enemy, or to throw a stone at him, if suffering lapidation for adultery

In the law of evidence, the testimony of a father for or against his child is not admitted

in a court of law

Lit "The AL-FATIHAH (**WI) opening one The first chapter of the Qur'an, called also the Suratu 'l-Hamd, or the "Chapter of Praise" It is held in great veneration by Muhammadans, and is used by them very much as the Paternoster is recited by Roman Catholics. It is repeated over sick persons as a means of healing and also recited as an intercession for the souls of the departed, and occurs in each raktah of the daily prayer Muhammad is related to have said it was the greatest Surah in the Qur'an, and ro have called it the Qur'anu 'l-'Agim, or the 'exalted reading" It is also entitled the Sabu 'l-Magan, or the "seven recitals" as it contains seven verses, also Ummu 'l-Qur'an, the "Mother of the Qur'an." According to a saying of the Prophet, the fantak was revealed twice, once at Makkah and once at al-Madinah. The Amin is always said at the conclusion of this prayer

The following transliteration of the Arabic of the Fätshah into English characters may give some idea of the rhythm in which the Qur'an is written

" Al-hamdu h-hakt Rabbs V-alamin, Ar-rahmani 'r-rahim Maliki yanını 'd-din. lyāka na budu, wa-syāka nasta in. İhdinä 's-sırüta 'l-mustaqım. Şırata 'lluzına an'umta 'alaıhım Gharre 'l moghzube 'alarhem, wala 'zzallm

Which is translated by Rodwell in his English Quran as follows

" Praise be to God Lord of all the worlds! The Compassionate, the Merciful ! King on the Day of Judgment!

Thee do we worship, and to Thee do we ory for help!

Gulde Thon us on the right path! The path of those to whom Thou art gracious'

Not of those with whom Thon art angered nor of those who go astray رفاطمة) FATIMAH A daughter of Muhammad, by his first wife Khadijah. She married 'Ali the consin of Muhammad, by whom she had three sons, al-Hasan, al-Husain, and al-Muhsin, the latter died in infancy From the two former are descended the posterity of the Prophet known as Saiyids Fatimah died six months after her father She is spoken of by the Prophet as one of the four perfect women, and is called al-Batel, or "the Virgin" by which is meant one who had renounced the World, also Patimatu 'szuhra', or ' the beautiful Fatimah.

There are three women of the name of Fāṭimah mentioned in the Traditions (1) Fāṭimah the daughter of Muhammad, (2) The mother of Ali (3) The daughter of

Hamzah, the uncle of huhammad

AL-FATIMIYAH (العالمية) Fatimides" A dvinasty of Khalifahs who reigned over Egypt and North Africa from a D 908 to a D 1171 They obtained the name from the pretensions of the founder of their dynasty Abu Muhammad 'Ubaidu 'lish, who asserted that he was a Saiyid and descended from Fätimah, the daughter of the Prophet and 'Ali. His opponents declared he was the grandson of a Jew of the Magian religion.

There were in all fourteen Khalifahs of this dynasty .

1 'Ubaidu'llah, the first Fatimide Khalifah, was born a D 882 Having incurred the displeasure of al-Muktafi, the reigning Abasside Khalifah, he was obliged to wander through various parts of Africa, till through fortunate circumstances he was raised in A.D 910 from a durgeon in Segelmessa to sovereign power He assumed the title of al-Mahdi, or the Director of the Faithful."

[MANDL] He subdued the Amirs in the north of Africa, who had become independent of the Abassides, and established his authority from the Atlantic to the borders of Egypt He founded Mahadi on the site of the amment Aphrodisum, a town on the coast of Africa, about a hundred miles couth of Tunis, and made it his capital. He became the anthor of a great schism among the Muhammudans by disowning the authority of the Abaseides, and assuming the titles of Chalifah and Amiru I-Mu'minin, "Prince of the Faithful" His fleets ravaged the coasts of Italy and Sicily, and his armies frequently invaded Egypt, but without any permanent

(2) Al-Qā'ım succeeded his father in A.D. 988. During his reign, an impostor, Abū Yazid, originally an Ethiopian slave, advanced certain peculiar doctrines in religion, which he was enabled to propagate over the whole of the north of Africa, and was so successful m hie military expeditions as to deprive al-Qā'im of all his dominions, and confine him to his capital, Mahadi which he was besieging when al-Qa'ım died

(8) Al-Manger succeeded his father in An 946, when the kingdom was in a state of the greatest confusion. By his valour and prudence he regained the greater part of the dominions of his grandfather 'Ubaidu Tlah, defeated the usurper Abū Yazīd, and laid the foundation of that power which enabled his son al-Mu'izz to conquer Egypt

(4) Al-Mu'izz (A.D 955) was the most powerful of the Fatimide Khalifahs He was successful in a naval war with Spain, and took the island of Sicily, but his most celebrated conquest was that of Egypt, which was subdued in AD 972 Two years afterwards he removed his court to Egypt, and founded Cairo The name of the Abasside Khalifah was omitted in the Friday prayers, and his own substituted in its place, from which time the great schism of the Fatimide and Abasside Khalifaha is more frequently dated than from the assumption of the title by 'Ubaidu 'llah. The armies of al-Mu'izz conquered the whole of Palestine and Syria as far as Damasons

(5) Al-Aziz (AD 978) The dominions recently acquired by al-Mu'izz were secured to the Fatimide Khalifahs by the wise govern-ment of his son, al-'Aziz, who took several towns in Syris He married a Christian woman, whose brothers he made patriarchs of Alexandria and Jerusalem

(6) Al-Hakun was only eleven years of age when he succeeded his father in A.D. 996 He is distinguished even among Oriental despots by his cruelty and folly His tyranny caused frequent insurrections in Cairo He persecuted the Jews and Christians, and burnt their places of worship By his order the Church of the Resurrection at Jerusalem was destroyed (A.D. 1009) His persecutions of the Christians induced there to appeal to their brethren in the West, and was one of the causes that led to the crusades He parried his folly so far as to seek to become the feunder of a new religion, and to assert that ne was the express image of God. He was assessinated in A D 1021, and was succeeded by his som

(7) Az-Zahir (A.D 1021) was not so ornel as his father, but was addicted to pleasure, and resigned all the cares of government to his Visirs in his reign the power of the Fatimide Khalifahs began to decline. They possessed nothing but the external show of royalty secluded in the harem, they were the slaves of their vizirs whom they could not remove, and dared not disobey In addition to the evils of misgevernment, Egypt was afflicted in the reign of an-Zahir with one of the most dreadful famines that ever visited the country

(8) Al-Mustanetr (A D 1087) was only nine years old when he succeeded his father The Turks invaded Syria and Palestine in his reign, took Damasons and Jerusalem (1076), where the princes of the house of Ortok, a Turkish family, established an independent kingdom. They advanced to the Nils with the intention of conquering Egypt but were repulsed

- (9) Al-Mustaili (A D 1094), the second son of al-Mustaneir, was seated on the throne by the all-powerful Vivir Afzal, in whose hands the entire power rested during the whole of al-Mustaili's reign. The invasion of Asia Minor by the Crusaders in 1097 appeared to Afzal a favourable opportunity for the recovery of Jerusalem Refusing to assist the Turks against the Crusaders, he marched against Jerusalem, took it (1098), and deprived the Ortok princes of the sovereignty which they had exercised for twenty years His possession of Jerusalem was, however, of very short duration, for it was taken in the following year (1099) by the Crusaders. Anxious to recover his loss, he led an immense army in the same year against Jerusalem, but was entirely defeated by the Orusaders near Ascalon.
  - (10) Al-Amer (A D 1101) (11) Al-Hāfiz (A.D 1129) (12) Az-Zāfir (A.D 1149). (13) Al-Fētz (A.D 1154)

During these reigns the power of the Fatimides rapidly decayed.

(14) Al-Azid (a.D 1160) was the last Khalifah of the Fatimide dynasty At the commencement of his reign Egypt was divided into two factions, the respective chiefs of which, Dargham and Shawir, disputed for the dignity of Vizir Shawir implored the assistance of Nüru'd-din, who sent an army into Egypt under the command of Shirkuh, by means of which his rival was crushed But becoming jealous of Nuru ddin's power m Egypt, he solicited the aid of Amauri, King of Jerusalem, who marched into Egypt and expelled Shirkuh from the Nuru d-din soon sent another country army into Egypt under the same commander, who was accompanied by his nephew, the celebrated belähu 'd-din (Seladin). Shirkth was again unsuccessful, and was obliged to retreat The ambition of Amauri afforded shortly afterwards a more favourable opportunity for the reduction of Egypt Amaur, after driving Shirküh out of the country, meditated the design of reducing it to his own authority. Shawir, alarmed at the success of Amauri, entreated the assistance of Nuru d-din, who sent Shirkab for the third time at the head of a numerous army He repulsed the Christians, and afterwards put the treacherous Vizir to death. Shirküh succeeded to his dignity, but dying shortly after, Saladin obtained the post of Vizir As Nürn 'd din was attached to the interests of the Abasades, he gave orders for the probling. tion of al-Mustahdi, the Abasside Khalifah, and for depriving the Fatimides of the Khalifate 'Asid, who was then on a sick-bed, died a few days afterwards [KHALIFAH]

FATQ (term used by Suff mystics to explain the etermity of matter, together with its development in creation ('Abdu 'r-Razzuq's Dict of Sufi Terms.)

FATRAH (iz. Lat "Lauguor," or "Intermission." (1) The interval between the supposed revelation of the xouth Surah of the Qur'an and the LXXIVth and XCIIIrd Surahs It is during this period that the powers of inspiration of the Prophet are said to have been suspended, and it was then that he contemplated suicide by intending to cast himself from Mount Hira' The accounts of himself from Mount Hira' this interval are confused and contradictory, and various are the periods assigned to it, viz. from eeven months to seven years

(2) The term is also used for the time which elapses between the disappearance of a prophet and the appearance of another (Chigagu 'l-Lughah in loco )

(8) A term used by Shifi mystics for a declension in spiritual life ('Abdu r-Razzaq's Dict of Sef v Terms )

"The Opener , (العناح), "The Opener" of that which is difficult

One of the ninety-nine names or attributes God It occurs in the Qur'an, Surah ur God XXXIV, ' For He is the opener who knows"

FATWA (نتوى) A religious or judicial sentence pronounced by the Khalifah or by a Musti, or Qazi It is generally written. The following is a sature delivered by the present Mufti of the Hansii sect at Makkah in reply to the question as to whether India is a Daru '/-Islam Fatwas are generally written in a similar form to this, but in Arabie -

"All praises are due to the Almighty, who is Lord of all the creation!

O Almighty, increase my knowledge ! As long as even some of the peculiar observances of Islam prevail in it it is the Darn 'l-Islam.

The Almighty is Omniscient, Pure and High !

This is the Fature passed by one who hopes for the secret favour of the Almighty, who praises God, and prays for blessings and peace on his Prophet (Signed) JAMAL ISM 'ARDU 'L-L'AN SHAKEN 'UMARU 'L-HANAMI, the present Mufti of Makkah (the Honoured)

May God favour him and his father" (برجدار) FAUJDAR An officer of the Moghul (sovernment who was invested with the charge of the police, and jurisdiction in all criminal matters. A criminal judge Faundari is a term now used in British courts for a crimmal suit as opposed to diwini, or civil

[فوت اليج] FAUTU 'L-HAJJ end of the Pilgrimage [PILGRIMAGE.]

FAZL (نسل) Lat "That which remains over and above redundant." A word used in the Qur'an for God's grace or kindness. Surah ii 244 "God is Lord of grace to men, but most men give no thanks."
The Christian idea of divine grace, as in the New Testament, seems to be better expressed by fayz-1-aqdas

FAZULI (فعولي) Let "That which is in excess" A term used in Muhammedan law for anything unauthorised, e.g bar'-1-fazuli, is an unauthorised sale Nikaht-fazzi- is an unauthorised marriage, when the contracts are made by an unauthorised agent

FEAST DAYS Arabic 'id (4e), dual 'idan, plural a'yad The two great festivals of the Mahammadans are, the 'Idu l-Fitr, and the 'Ids' !-Azhā The other festivals which are celebrated as days of rejoicing are, the Shab-i-Barat, or the fifteenth day of Sha'ban, the Nau-Rez, or the investigation of the Alher-1-Chahar Shamba, or the last Wednesday of the month of Safar, the Laylate 'r-Raghā'ıb, or the first Friday in the month of the month Rajab, the Maulud, or the birthday of Muhammad

An account of these feasts is given under their respective titles

FEMALE INFANTICIDE, which existed amongst the ancient Arabians, was condemned by Muhammad. Vide Qur'an -

Surah xvi 60 "For when the birth of a daughter is announced to any one of them. dark shadows cettle on his face, and he is sad He hideth himself from the people because of the bad news shall he keep it with disgrace or bury it in the dust? Are not their judgments wrong "

Sürah xvn. 33 "Kill not your children for fear or want for them and for you will We

(God) provide "

Surah ixxxi 8 " And when the damsel that had been buried alive shall be asked (at the Day of Judgment) for what crime she was put to death "

FIDYAH (444) A ransom. From fide, "to ransom," " to exchange " An expiation for sin, or for duties unperformed The word occurs three times in the Qur'an —

Sûrah ii. 180 "For those who are able to keep it (the fast) and yet break it there shall be as an expection the maintenance of a poor man."

Sürah 11 192 "Perform the pilgrimage and the visitation of the holy places. But wheever among you 18 sick, or hath an allment of the head, must exprate by fasting, or alms, or a sacrifice."

Sürah lvn 14 "On that day (the Day of Judgment) no expection shall be taken from you (se the hypocrites) or from those who do not believe your abode is the fire"

The other word used in the Quran for the same idea is kaffaruh [MAFFARAH, EXPIA-TION]

FIG Arabic at-Tin (النين) The title of the xcvth Sūrah of the Qur'an so called because Muḥammad makes the Almighty swear by that fruit in the first verse Al Baiṣāwī says God swears by figs because of their great use. They are most excellent, because they can be eaten at once, having no stones, they are easy of digestion and holp to carry off the phlegm, and gravel in the kidneys or bladder, and remove obstructions of the liver, and also cure piles and gout (Tafāru l-Baizāwī, in loco).

FIJAR (المجان That which is unlawful A term given to a series of saori legious wars carried on between the Quraish and the Banu Hawazin, when Muhammad was a youth, about an 580-590 (Mur, vol is 3.)

AL-FIL (Jall) The title of the ovth Sursh of the Quran, as it gives an account of the Ashābu'l Fil, or "People of the Elephant" [ELEPHANT]

FINES Arabic Diyah (&s), A term which, in its strictest sense means a sum exacted for any offence upon the person, in consideration for the claim of quas, or retaliation, not being insisted upon (This does not apply to wilful murder) A full and complete fine is that levied upon a person for manslaughter, which consists of either one hundred female camels or ten thousand dirhams (silver), or one thousand dirhams (silver), or one thousand diracted female.

The hne for slaying a woman is half that for slaying a man, "because the lank of a woman is lower than that of a man, so also her faculties and uses!" The fine for slaying a zimmi (be he a Jew, Christian, or idolater) is the same as for slaying a Muslim.

A complete fine is also levied for the destruction of a nose, or a tongue, or a virile member, and, also, if a person tear out the beard, or the hair of the soalp or the whiskers, or both eyebrows, so that they never grow again, "because the beauty of the countenance is thereby effaced."

A complete fine is due for any fellow parts, as for two eyes, two lips, &c , and one half the fine for one single member

For each finger, a tenth of the complete fine is due, and as every finger has three joints, a third of the fine for the whole is due for each joint

The fine for a tooth 18 a twentieth of the complete fine

A half fine is due for merely destroying the use of a limb, but if a person strike another in any way so as to completely destroy the beauty of hie person, a complete fine must be pead Wounds on the face, viz from the crown of the head to the chin, ar a specially treated, and are termed shifty. Of shifty, or "face wounds," there are ten (1) hārifah, or such as draw no blood—a mere scratch, (2) dāmiyah, a scratch which causes blood to flow, (4) bāzisah, a cut through the shim (5) mutatīkimah, a cut to the flesh (6) simhāq, a wound reaching into the pericranium, (7) mūsihah, a wound which lays here the bone, (8) hāshmah, a fracture of the skull, (9) manākilah, a fracture which causes the removal of part of the skull, (10) āmmah, a wound extending to the brain.

For an ammak wound, a third of the complete fine is due. Fifteen camels are due for a munatriah, ten for a hāshimah, five for a muzehah and so on

All other wounds on other parts of the hody may be adjusted for according to the above scale but are left to the decision of the judge

For further information on the subject see "Babu 1-Diyah" in the Durru'l-Mukhtar, or the Hidayah, or the Fatawa 'Alamgiri, or the Raddu I- Muhtar

FIQH (446) The dogmetic theology of the Mushims Works on Muhammadan law whether civil or religious The books most read by the Sunnis are the Hidayah, written by a loarned man named 'Ali ibn Abī Bakr, AH 598, part of which has been translated by the late Colonel Charles Hamilton, the Durru'l-Muchtar, by 'Alā'u 'd-din, AH 1088, the Shurhu'l-Wiqayah, by 'Ubaidu 'liāh ibn Mas'ūd, AH 745, the Raddu'l-Muktar, by Saiyid Muhammad Amīn ibn 'Abidi 'd-din, and the Fatawa 'Alamgira Amongst the Imamiyah School, or Shi'ahs the principal works are Katābu 'sh-Sharās', by Abū 'l-Hasan 'Ali (AH 826), the Muqnu'fi'l-fiqh, by Abū Ja far (AH 360), the Sharā''s 'l-Islām, by Shaikh Najmu 'd-din (AH 679), and the Jāmin' 'Abban, by Bahā'u 'd-din (AH 1081)

FIRASAH (الرابية), or farasah. A Sufi term for the enlightenment of the heart. A penetration into the secrets of the unknown. 'I'mu 'l firasah, "The science of physiognomy"

FIRĀSH (فراهي) Lat "A couch" In Muhammadan law "a wife." ,

FIR'AUN (نرمون) [PHIROAE.]

FIRDAUS (فردوس). The highest stage of celestial bliss [PARADISE]

FIRE الار) Arabic nār (1) The term on-adr, "the fire," is generally used in the Qur'an and the Traditions for "hell" (2) In the Qur'an (Surah xxxvı 29) the power of God is declared as being able to "give fire out of a green tree" On which al-Baizāwi says "the usual way of getting fire is by rubbing two pieces of wood together, one of which is markh and the other afar, and they produce fire, although both the sticks are green. (8) The burning to death of human beings is condemned by Muhammad, who said "Let no one punish with the punishment of fire but God."

FIRST-BORN Although Arabian legislator followed the Mosaic law in se many of his legal enactments, he has carefully avoided any legislation as to the rights of primogeniture, although it formed such a marked feature in the Pentateuch, in which the first-horn of man and beast were devoted to God, and were redeemed with a price In the Muslim law of inheritance, all the sons share equally, whilst in the Mosaic law the eldest son received a double portion of the father's inheritance (Deut xxi 17)

In cases of chiefship, or monarchy, the eldest son usually inherits, but it rests entirely upon his fitness for the position Very often the eldest son is passed by and a vounger brother selected as ruler. This was also the case amongst the Jews when Solo mon succeeded his father in the kingdom (1 Kings 1 30, 11 22)

The currous fact that Muhammad made no provision for these rights of primogeniture may have arisen from his having had no son to survive him

FISH Arabic samak (....) Fish which, dying of themselves, float upon the surface of the water are abominated, according to Abū Hanīfah Ash Shāfi'i, and Malik say they are indifferent Abu Hanifah teaches that fish which are killed by accident are lawful, but such as die of themselves without any accident are unlawful There are, however, different opinions regarding those which die of extreme heat or bios

(2) In the law of sale, it is not lawful to sell fish which is not yet caught, nor is it lawful to sell fish which the vendor may have caught and afterwards thrown into a large tank

(3) Whilst the destruction of all animals, except noxious ones, is forbidden during the pilgrimage, fishing in the sea is permitted by the Qu'ran, Surah v 97 Lawful for you is the game of the sea "

FITAN (فتس), pl of fitnah Sed:

tions, strifes, commotions

A term specially used for those wars and commotions which shall precede the Resur rection. A chapter is devoted to the subject m all the books of traditions. (See Sutility V-Bukhari, p. 1045, Sakiku Mushm, p. 888) Muhammad is related to have said, "There will be Khalifahs after me that will not go the straight road in which I have gone, nor will follow my example, but in those times there will be the hearts of devils in the bodies of men." Huzaifah then said to him, "O Prophet, what shall I do if I live to see those days?" And the Prophet said, "Obey him who has the rule over you, even though he flog your back and take your money"

Safiyah, in a tradition (recorded in at-Tirmizi and Abii Da'ud), said that Muhammad said that the succession would last for thirty years, and that the "four rightly directed Khalifalis" regned exactly that time Abū Bakr. two years, "Umar, ten, "Usman, twelve and 'Ali six

A mover or leader of sedition is called a bughi or rebel [REHELLION]

FITRAH ( L) Lat "Nature" Certain ancient practices of the prophets before the time of Muhammad, which have not been forbidden by him Avishan relates that the Prophet said There are ten qualities of the prophetschipping the mustachies, so that they do not enter the menth, not cutting or shaving the board cleansing the teeth (i.e minuak), cleansing the nostrils with water at the usual ablutions, cutting the nails, cleaning the finger joints, pulling out the hairs under the arm pits shaving the hair of the privates, washing with water after passing urine, and cleansing the mouth with water at the time of ablution' (See Sahihu Mushim)

The nose is to be washed out with water because it is supposed that the devil resides in the no a during the night. (See Mishkat)
There is a chapter in the Avesta of the Parsees containing injunctions as to the paring of the nulls of the hands and feet

FOUNDATIONS ISLAM (1) Shuhādah or bearing witness that there is no desty but God , (2) Salat, or the observance of the five stated periods of pinyer (8) Zaket giving the legal sims once a year (4) Soum, fasting during the whole of the month of Ramazan (5) Hay, the pil-grimage to Makkah once in a life-time. They are also called the five foundations of practice, as distinguished from the six foundations of faith [ISLAM, IMAN]

KEYS OF SECRET FIVE KNOWLEDGE, which are with God alone, are said to be found in the last verse of the Surah Luquan (xxxist, 84) of the Qur'in "God! with Him i (1) the Knowledge of the Hour, (2) and the sendeth down ram (8) and Reknoweth what is in the wombs; (4) but no soul knoweth what shall be on the morrow, (5) neither knoweth any soul in what land he shall die Verily God in knowing and is informed of all FIVE SENSES, The Arabic alhawassul 'l-khamsah (Land) According to Muhammadan writers, there are five external (gaheri) senses, a 10 five internal (batimi) senses The former being those five faculties known amongst European writers as seeing (basical), bearing (samiah), smelling (shamah), taste (zārquh), touch (lāmisah). The latter common sense (hiss-i-mushtarok), the imaginative faculty (qūwat-i-khauāl), the thinking faculty (qūwat-i-mutasarriyah) is entired faculty (qūwat-i-lānzah).

Arabic ta'am (ماهام), pl FOOD attemat. The injunctions contained in the Qur'an (Surah in 167) respecting food are as follows "O ye who believe! eat of the good things with which we have supplied you, and give God thanks if ye are His worshippers Only that which dieth of itself and blood, and ewing's flosh, and that over which any other name than that of Ged hath been invoked, hath God forbidden you But he who shall partake of them by constraint, without desiro or of necessity then no sin shall be upon him Verily God is forgiving and merciful" Surah v 92 "O Believers' wine (khaim) and games of chance, and statues, and diviningarrows are only an abomination of batan's work! Avoid them that ye may prosper '

The other injunctions concerning food are found in the Traditions and sayings of Mu-

hemmad

No animal except fish and locuste, is lawful food unless it be slaughtered according to the Muhammadan law, namely by drawing the knife across the threat and cutting the wind pipe, the carotid arteries, and the gullet repeating at the same time the words Bismi 'liāhi, Allāhu akbar,' ie "In the name of God, God is great" A clean animal, so slaugh tered, becomes lawful food for Muslims, whether slaughtered by Jews, ('hristianis or Muhammsdane, but animals slaughtered by either an idolater or an apostate from Islam is not lawful Zebb, or the slaying of animals, is of two kinds Ikhtiyari, or "of choice, and Istraci or of necessity. The former being the slaughtering of animals in the name of God, the latter being the slaughter effected by a wound, as in shooting birds or animals, in which case the words Bismi 'llahi, Allahu akbar must be said at the time of the discharge of the arrow from the bow or the

shet from the gun

According to the Hidayah all quadrupeds that sense their prey with their teeth and all birds which sense it with their talous are unlawful, because the Prophet has prohibited mankind from eating them. Hyenas foxes, elephants, weasels, pelicans, kites, carrion crows, ravens, orocodiles, otters, asses, mules, wasps, and in general all insects are torbidden. But there is some doubt as to the lawfulness of horses' flesh. Fishos dying of themselves are also forbidde.

The prohibition of wine in the Qur an under the word kham: is held to exclude all things which have an intoxicating tendency, such is opium, ohars, bhang, and tobacco

A Muslim can have no religious scruples to est with a Christian, as long as the food enten is of a lawful kmd. Saiyid Ahmad Khan Bahadar OS L, has written a treatme proving that Muhammadans can eat with the Ahli-Kitab, namely, Jows or Christians The Muhammadans of india, whilst they will eat food cooked by idolatrous Hindila, refuse to touch that cooked either by Native or Lunepean Christians, and they often refuse to allow Christians to draw water from the public wells, although Hindus are permitted to do so Such objections arise solely from jealousy of race, and an unfriendly feeling towards the ruling power. In Afghanistan and Persia, no such objections exist and no doubt much evil has been caused by Government allowing Hindustani Muslime to create a religious custom which has no foundation whatever, except that of national hatred to their Linguish conquerors [EATING] FORBIDDEN FRUIT, "The Mentioned in the Qui an Surah in 93" And we (God) said, "O Adam, dwell thou and thy wife in Paradise and cat therefrom amply as you wish but do not draw near this tree" (shaparah)"

Concerning this tree, the Commentators have various opinions. Husain says some say it was a fig tree, or a vine, but most people think it was a grain of wheat (hintuh) from a wheat stalk [ADAM, PALL.]

FORGIVENESS [PARDON, 'AFU ]

FORGIVENESS OF INJURIES Finjoined in the Qui an in the following words (Surah xin 18). Let the recompense of evil be only a like (vi)—but he who for giveth and maketh poace, shall find his reward for it from (rod), verily He leveth not those who act unjustly. And there shall be no way open (i.e. no blame) against those who after being wronged, avenge themselvos

Whose beareth wrongs and forgiveth-this is a bounden duty"

FORNICATION Arabic zina" (all)
The word zina" includes both fornication with an unmarried person and adultery with a institled person [ADULTERY]

The sin of fornication must be ostablished, as in the case of adultery, either by proofs or by confession

To establish it by proof, four witnesses are required and if any person bring an accusation against a woman of chaste reputation and fail to establish it he must be punished with eighty stripes [QAZF]

When a person for conscience sake confession the sin of formation, the confession must be repeated four times at four different appearances before a qual, and the person confessing must be very exact and particular is to the our unstances, so that there can be no mistake \(\) self-accused person may also retract the confession at any period before, or during, the infliction of the punishment, and the retractation must be accepted

The punishment for fornloation is one hundred stripes (or nft; to: s slave) The scourging to be inflicted upon a man standing and upon a woman sitting, and the woman is not to be stripped. It should be done with moderation, with a strap or whip, which has no knots upon it, and the stripes should be given not all upon the same part of the body. [DIRRALL]

In some countries bamshmem is added to the punishment of scourging for formication. especially if the sin is often repeated, so as to constitute common prostitution

The law is founded upon the following verse in the Qur'an, burah xxiv 2-5 —

The where and the whoremonger—scourge each of them with an hundred stripes, and let not compassion keep you from carrying out the sentence of God, if ye believe in God and the last day And let some of the faithful witness their chastiscment

'The whoremonger shall not marry other than a whore or an idolatress, and the whore shall not marry other than a whoremonger or an idolator Such allunces are furbidden to the faithful

"They who defame virtuous women and bring not four witnesses, scourge them with four score stripes, and receive ye not their tes timony for ever, for these are perverse persons—

"Save those who afterwards repent and live virtuously, for truly God is Lament Merciful!"

The Muhammadan law differs from Jovish law with regard to formication see Evodus xxil 16, 17 -" If a man entire a maid that is not betrothed, and he with her he shall i surely endow her to be his wife If her father uttorly refuse to give her unto him, he shall pay money according to the dowry of virgins Deut xxn 25-29 - If a damsel that is a virgin be betrothed unto a husband, and a min find her in the city and lie with her then ye shall bring them out unto the gate of the city and ye shall stone them with stones that they die the dameel because she cried not, being in the city, and the man because he hath humbled his neighbours wife so shall thou put away evil from uniong you. But if a man find a betrothed damael in the field, and the man force her and he with her, then the man only that lay with her shall die But unto the damsel shalt thou do nothing there is in the dameel no sin worthy of death If a man find a dameel that is a virgin which is not betrothed and lay hold on her, and he with her, and they be found, then the man that lay with her shall give unto the dans sel's father fifty shekels of silver, and she shall be his wife, because he hath humbled her, he may not put her away all his days"

FORTUNE - TELLING Arabic kaldnah (&) Mu'awiyali ibii Hakam relates that he asked the Prophet if it were right to comsult fortune-tellers about future events, and he replied "Sinor you have embraced Islam, you must not consult them [MAGIC]

FOSTERAGE. Arshic razā'ah, rizā'ah (lale)) According to Abu Hanifah, the period of fosterage is thirty months, but the two describes, Yusuf and Muhammad, hold it to be two years, whilst Zufar maintains that it is three years terage with respect to the prohibitions attached to it is of two kinds, first where a woman takes a strange child to nurse, by which all future matrimonial connection between that child and the woman, or her relations within the prohibited degrees, is rendered illegal, secondly, where a woman nurses two children, male and female, upon the same milk, which prohibits any future matrimonial connection between them For further particulars on this subject, see Ha miltons Hedayah, vol 1 page 187,

FOUNDLING Arabic lagit (bed)
Let. That which is picked up. The person who finds the child is called the nultaget. The taking up of a founding is said to be a laudable and generous act, and where the finder sees that the child's life is in peril, it is an incombent religious duty. (Hidayah, voi 11 p 252)

The maintenance of a foundling is defrayed from the public treasury, but the finder is not to demand anything for his trouble and expense, but after the finding of the child has been reported to the magnetrate, the child 14 legally placed under the care of the wel taget, and supported by the state A foundling is declared to be free, and not a slave and unless he be found on the land or pro perty of a Jew or Christian he is declared a Muslim But if the child be found on the property of a Jew or Christian, he will be declared a lew or Christian as the case may he The muliaget council contract the found ling in marriage without the senction of the magistrate, but he may send him to school and in every respect see to his education and training without consulting the magistrate

FRIDAY Arabic Jum'ah (Laca)
The Day of Assembly "The Muhammadan Sabbath, on which they assemble in the Jami' Manid or chief mionquo, and recite two rik abs of prayers and listen to the oration, or khuthali at the time of mid-day prayer Muhammad claims in the Traditions to have established Friday as a day of worship by divins command. He says, "Friday was ordered as a divine day of worship both for the Jew and Christian, but they have acted con trary to the command. The Jew thiad Saturday and the Christian fixed Sanday."

According to the same traditions, Friday is "the best day on which the sun rises, the day on which Adam was taken into Paradise and turned out of it, the day on which he repented and on which he died. It will also be the Day of Resurrection."

There is also a certain hour on Friday (known only to God) on which a Mushim obtains all the good he asks of the Almighty Muhammad prayed that God may put a seal on the heart of every Muslim who through negligence omits prayer for three successive

Muhammad said -

"Whoover bathes on Friday and comes to prayers in the beginning and comes on fost and sats near the Imam and listens to the khutbah, and says nothing playful, but aits silent, every step he took will get the rewards of a whole year a worshipping and rewards of one year's fast and one years prayings at night

"There are three descriptions of people present on Friday one of them who comes to the maejid talking triflingly, and this is what he gets instead of rewards, and there is man who is present for making supplies tions, and he asks God, and if He wills lio gives him, if not refuses the third a man who attends to hear the khutbah and is ellent, and does not incommode anyone, and this Friday covers his sine intl the next and three days longer , for God says, Whoever dath one good act will roceive ten in return (Mishket, book iv c zini) [KHIITBAH]

FRIENDSHIP with Jews and Christians is condemned in the Qur'an Surah v 56 "O ye who believe! take not the Jews and Ohristians for your friends (or patrons) they are the friends of each other but whose amongst you takes them for frends verily he is of them, and verily God guides not an unjust people

FRUITS OF THE EARTH are described in the Qurun as evidences of Godic love and care for his creatures.

Strah 11 14' --

"He it is who producetly gardens of the vine trellised and untiell sed, and the pilm trees, and the corn of various food and slives, and pomegranates like and unlike Fat of their fiuit when they bear fruit and per the due thereof on the day of its ingatnering and be not produgal, for God loveth not the produgal."

Súrah xin 3 -

"And He it is who hath outstretched the earth, and placed on it the firm mountains and rivers and of every fruit He bath placed on it two kinds. He causeth the night to Verily in this are signs enshioud the day for those who reflect

"And on the earth hard by each other are its various portions gardens of grapes and corn, and palm trees single or clustered Though watered by the same water, yet some make we more excellent as food than other Verily in all this are signs for those who understand

FUGITIVES (1) A fugitive slave, either male or fomule, is called aboy (347) The capture of a fugitive slave is a laudable act, and the captor is entitled to a reward of forty dirhams (2) A fugitive on account of religion is called muhajir () blessings are promised to those who fice their Surah 1v 101 "Whosoever flees in the way of God shall find in the earth a spacious refure.

Surab xxii 57 . Those who flee in God's way and then are slain or die, God will provide them with a godly provision." [SLAVES, MUHAJIR ]

FULS (ماس) An idol (or an idol temple), belonging to the Bam Tary, a trice divided between the profession of idolatry and Christianity Destroyed by 'All by order of Muhammad, AH. 630 (Muir, vol 14 p. 177)

FUNERAL Anabic janazah (عارة) [BURLAL]

FURĀT (فسسرات) The river Emphratos said to be one of the rivers of Eden [FUEN]

A1 FURQIN (1) The title of the xxvth Surah of the Quran (2) One of the littles of the Quran (Surah u 181, 111 2, xx 1) (3) Ine title given to the Taurit revealed to Moses (Surah u 50, xx) 19) (4) The victors on the day of the battle of Badr (Sunh vin 42) (5) A term used by Sun mystics for a distinguishing between truth and error

Muhammadan lexicographets are manimous in interpretating the word furgan to mean that which distinguishes between good and evil lawful and unlawful The Jews use the word perek, or pirka, from the same root, to denote a section or portion of scripture

(نملت) FUSSILAT Lat "Were made plain." A title of the XLIST Surah of the Qur an from the word occurring in the second verse The Surah is also known as the Hammas Sujdah, to distinguish it from the Sur ib xxxund, which is also called as-Sajdah, or ' Adoration"

FUTURE LIFE The immortality of the woul and the reality of a future life are very distinctive doctrines of the religion of Muhammad, and very numerous are the references to it in the Quran. The whole system of Islam is based upon the belief in the future existence of the soul of man description of the special character of this future life will be found in the article on PARADISE

The terms generally used to express a inture life are Daru'l Akhirat, Daru I Baga' Duru I Ugla

G.

اR (گبر) [MAJUS.]

BRIEL Arabic Jibrā'il ا المبريل In the Qur'an Jibril (جبريل) elic being who is supposed to have medium of the revelation of the to Muhammad. He is mentioned ce in the Qur'an by name Suratu'l in 91 . Whose is the enemy of -for he hath by God's leave caused ad on thy heart the confirmation of revelations," &c And again in t-Tahrim, lxvi 4 "God is his Pro nd Gabriel." He is, however, supbe spoken of in Surabs in 81, 254 avi 104 as " the Holy Spirit Ruhu , in Surah xxvi 193, as "the Faith-t," or Ruhu 'l-Amin, and in liu 5 as rible in power,' Shadidu'l Quu a secount of Gabriels first appearance mmad is related as follows by Aon "Muhammad was wont to retire to fire for a month every year When of his mission came, he went to lira in the month of Ramagan for the of sojourning there, having his with him and there he abode nutil tarrived in which God was pleased him Gabriel came to him, and said Recite! And he replied What recite? And he said Recite thou ime of thy Lord who created Grated a clota of blood Recite thou! For d is most Reneficent Who hath the use of the pen Hath taught at which he knoweth not After * Prophet went to the middle of ntain, and heard a voice from heaven and 'I hou art the Messenger of Gou a Gabriel' He continued standing in the to contemplate Gabriel until he

n' (QURAN)

nham Mun says It is clear that at beried at least, if not from the first, t confounded Gabriel with the Holy
The idea may have arisen from some sapprehension as the following Mary d Jesus by the power of the Holy hich overshadowed her But it was who visited Mary to announce the on of he Savion. The Holy Ghost refore another name for Gabriel We rifly wonder at this ignorance when it seems to have believed that as held Mary to be the third person reference to the verse quoted above, a Suratu 'l-Baqaran, Sale says the stators say that the Jews asked what was that brought the Qur'an to Mu l and on being told that it was

I and on being told that it was they replied that he was their and the messenger of wrath and judgrat that if it had been Michael they would have believed on him, because that angel was their friend, and the messenger of peace and plenty

It is also important to observe that the only distinct assertion of Gabriel being the medium of divine revelation, occurs in a Madaniyah Surah

Gabriel is called in Muslim books ar-Rühu'l-A'zam, "The Supreme Spirit", ar-Rühu'l-Mu-karram, "The Honoured Spirit', Rüku'l Ilqa, "The Spirit of casting into", Rüku'l-Qudus "The Holy Spirit" and ai-Rühu 'l-Amin, "The Faithful Spirit

GAMBLING (Arabic maistr, بريس, qimār اقمار) is forbidden in the Surah in 216 'They will ask thee concerning wine and games of chance Say both is a great sin, and advantage also, to men, but their sin is greater than their advantage" hatred and strife among you, hy wine and games of chance, and turn you aside from the remembrance of (sod, and from prayer will ye not therefore abstain from them?"

The evidence of a gambler is not admissible in a Muhammadan court of law, because gaming is a great crime (Hidayah ii p 676)

GARDEN Arabic jannah (ais), Heb [2], pl [2] In the Qur'an the residence of our first parents is called Al jannah, the garden, and not Jannah 'Adn, or the 'Garden of Eden' Jannats 'Adn being the fourth stage of celestial bliss. Al-jannal 'the gardens, is a term frequently used in the Quran for the state of heavenly joy, and the stages of paradise which are eight, are known as—(1) The garden of eternity, (2) The dwelling of peace, (3) The dwelling which abideth, (4) The garden of Eden, (5) The garden of refuge, (6) The garden of delight, (7) The earden of illiyûn, (8) The garden of Paradise [Paradise.]

GENII Arabic junn (O+), and jann (O+) Muhammad was a succere believer in the existence of good and evil genu, and has left a record of his belief in the LXXIII chapter of his Qur'an, entitled the Suratu'!-Jian It opens thus—

"SAY It hath been revealed to me that a company of JINN listened and said,—Vernly, we have heard a marvellous discourse

(Qur'au),
"It guideth to the truth, wherefore we believed in it, and we will not henceforth join any being with our Lord,

"And He, may the majesty of our Lord be exalted!—hath taken no spouse neither hath he any offspring "But the foolish among us hath spoken of God that which is unjust

"And we verily thought that ne one amongst men or jinn would have uttered a lie against God.

"There are indeed people among men, who have sought for refuge unto people among jum but they only increased their folly

"And they thought as ye think, that God would not raise any from the dead

"And the Heavens did we essay, but found them filled with a mighty garrison, and with flaming darts,

"And we sat on some of the seats to listen, but whoever listeneth findeth an ambush ready for him of flaining darts

The following exhaustive account of the Mnhammadan belief on the subject is taken from the writings of the late Mr Lane (the learned author of the Modern Egyptians and of Notes on the Arabian Nights), but slightly altered to meet the requirements of the piesent work

According to a tradition from the Prophet, this species consists of five orders, namely Jann (who are the least powerful of all), Jun Shaitans (or devils), Ifrits, and Marids last, it is added, are the most powerful the Jann are transformed Jinn, like ascertum apes and swine were transformed men lt must, however, be remarked that the terms Jinn and Jann are generally used indiscrimi nately as names of the whole species, whether good or bad, and that the former term is the more common Alse, that Shartan is com monly used to signify any evil genius Ifrit is a powerful evil genius, a Marid an vil genius of the most powerful class The Junn (but, generally speaking, evil ones) are called by the Persians Deces, the mest powerful evil Jinn, Naruhs (which signifies "males," though they are said to be males and females), the good Jinn Pires, though this term is commonly applied to females In a tradition from the Prophet, it is said, "The Jann were created of a smokeless fire The word which signifies 'a smokeless fire' has been misunderstood by some as mesning "the flame of fire" Al-Jauhari (in the Sihāh) renders it rightly, and says that of this fire was the Shartan or Iblis created Al Jann is sometimes used as a name for Iblis, as in the following verse of the Qu. in (Surah xv 27) 'And the Jann [the father of the Junn se Iblis] we had created before [se before the creation of Adam] of the fire of the Samum [1 e of the fire without smoke]" lan also signifies 'a serpent," as in other passages of the Qur'an, and is used in the same book as synonymous with Junn. In the last sense it is generally believed to be used in the tradition quoted in the commencement of this paragraph There are several apparently contradictory traditions from the Prophet, which are reconciled by what has been above stated, in one it is said that Iblis was the father of all the Jann and Shartan, Jann being here synonymous with Jinn, in another, that Jann was the father of all the Junn, here Jann being used as a name for Iblia

"It is held" says al-Qazwini, "that the Jinn are aerial animals with trensparent bodies, which can assume various forms. People differ in opinion respecting these beings, some consider the Jinn and Sharrans as unruly men but these persons are of the Mu'tazilahs [a sect of Muslim tieethinkers], and some hold that God, whose name he exalted, created the angels of the light of fire, and the Jinn of its flame [but this is at variance with the general opinion], and the Shartans of its smoke [which is also at variance with the common opinion], and that [sll] these kinds of beings are [maually] invisible to men but that they assume what forms they please, and when their form becomes condensed they are visible. remark illustrates several descriptions of genu in the Arabian Nights, where the forta of the monster is at first undefined or irke an enormous pillar, and then gradually assumes a human shape and less gigantio

It is said that God orested the Jann for Jun] two thousand years before Adam [or. according to some writers much earlier], and that there are believers and infidels and every sect among them as among men Some say that a prophet named Yusui was sent to the Jinn others, that they had only preachers or admonstrates, others, again, that seventy apostles were sent, before Muhammad to Junn and men conjointly It is commonly believed that the preadamnte Jinn were goverued by forty (or, seconding to some, seventy two) kings to each of whom the Arab writers give the name of Sulaiman (or Solomon), and that they derive then appellation from the last of those who was called fann ibn Jann, and who some say, built the Pyramids of Egypt

The following account of the preadamite

Jinn is given by al Qazwini -

"It is related in histories that a race of Jinn in ancient times, before the creation of Adam, inhabited the earth, and covered it, the land and the sea, and the plants and the mountains and the favours of God were mul tiplied upon them and they had government. and prophecy, and religion and law, but they transgressed and offended and opposed their prophets and made wickedness to abound in the earth whereupon God, whose name be exsited, sent against them an army of angels, who took possession of the earth, and drove away the Jinn to the regions of the islands. and made many of them prisoners, and of these who were made prisoners was 'Azezil (afterwards called Iblis, from his despair), and a slaughter was made among them. At that time, 'Azazil was young, he grew up among the angels [and probably for that reason was called one of them], and became learned in their knowledge, and assumed the government of them, and his days were prolonged until he became their chief, and thus it continued for a long time, until the affair between him and Adam happened, as God, whose name be exalted, bath said, When we said unto the Angels Worship ye Adam and

[all] worshipped except Iblis, [who] was lone of the Jinn. (Surah 1 49)

Ibhs. we are told by another authority was sent as a governor upon the earth, and judged among the Jinn a thousand years, after which he ascended into heaven, and reseeined employed in worship until the ereation of Adam The name of Ibhs was originally, according to some, 'Asazil (as before mentioned), and according to others, al-Haris, his patronymio is Abū Munnah or Abū 'l-Chimr It is disputed whether he was of the angels or of the Junn. There are three opinions on this point (1) That he was of the angels, from a tradition from Ibn 'Abbas, (2) That he was of the Shaitans (or evil Jinn), as it is said in the Qur'an, 'Except Iblis' [who] was [one] of the Jinu", this was the opinion of al Hasanu 1-Basis, and is that commonly held (3) That he was neither of the angels nor of the Jinn, but created alone of fire Ibn Abbas founds his opinion on the same text from which al Hasanu 'l Basri dirives his "When we said unto the angels, worship yo Adam, and [all] worshipped except Iblis, [who] was [one] of the Jinn" (before quoted), which he explains by saying that the most noble and honourable among the angels are called "the Jinn,' because they are veiled from the eyes of the other angels on account of their superiority and that Iblis was one of these Jinn He adds, that he had the government of the lowest heaven and of the earth, and was called the Ta'us (ht 'Peacock') of the angels, and that there was not a spot in the lewest heaven but he had prostrated himself upon it, but when the Jinn rebelled upon the earth, God sent a troop of angels, who drove them to the islands and mountains and Iblis being elated with pride, and refusing to prostrato himself before Adam, God transformed him into a Shaitan But this reasoning is opposed by other verses, in which Iblis is represented as saying, "Thou hast croated me of fire and has created him [\dam] of oarth" It is therefore argued, If he were created originally of fire, how was he created of light? for the angels were [all] created of light." The former verse may be explained by the transition that Iblis having been taken captive, was exalted among the angels, or, perhaps, there is an ellipsis after the word "Angels for it might be inferred that the command given to the Angels was also (and a formore) to be obeyed by the Juna.

According to a tradition, Iblis and all the Sharfana are distinguished from the other linn by a longer existence. "The Sharfana" it is added, ture the children of Iblis, and die not but with him, whereas the [other] Jinn dio before him though they may have many containes. But this is not altogother accordant with the popular belief Iblis and many other evil Jinn are to survive mankind, but they are to due before the general resurrection, as also even the angels, the last of whom will be the Angel of Death, 'Icra'il Yet not all the evil Jinn are to live thus long Many of them are killed by shooting stars, hurled at them from heaven, wherefore, the Arabs, when they see a shooting star (shineb), often exclaim, 'Many also are killed by other Jinn, and some even by men. The fire of which the Jinn is created circulates in his veins, in place of blood, therefore, when he receives a mortal wound, this fire, issuing from his veins, generally consumes him to ashee.

The Jinn, it has been already shown, are peaceable. They also eat and drink, and propagate their species, sometimes in conjunction with human beings, in which latter case, the offspring partakes of the nature of both parents. In all these respects they differ from the angels. Among the evil Jinn are distinguished the five sons of their chief, libits, namely, Tir, who brings about calamities, losses, and injuries, al-A'war, who incourages debauchery, Sūt, who suggests lies, Dāsim who causes hatred between man and wife and Zalambūr, who presides over places of traffic.

The most cummon forms and habitations or places of resort of the Jinn must now be described. The following traditions from the Prophet are to the purpose -

The Jinn are of various shapes, having the forms of serpents, scorpions, hons, wolves, jackals, &c The Jinn are of three kinds—ne on the land, one on the sea, and one in the air. The Jinn consist of forty troops, each troop consisting of six hundred thousand. The Jinn are of three kinds—one have wings and fly, another are snakes and dogs, and the third move about from place to place like men. Domestic snakes are asserted to be Jinn on the same authority.

The Prophet ordered his followers to kill serpents and scorpions if they intruded at prayers, but on other occasions, he seems to have required first to admonish them to depart, and then, if they remained, to kill them The Doctors, however differ in opinion whother all kinds of snakes or serpents should be admonished tirst or whether any should, for the Prophet, say they, took a covenant of the Jun [probably after the above mentioned command], that they should not enter the houses of the faithful therefore, it is argued, if they enter, they break their covenant, and it becomes lawful to kill them without previous admonishment it is related that 'Avishah, one of the Pro plists wives, having killed a acrpent in her chamber, was slarmed by a dream, and fearing that it might have been a Muslim Jinni, as it did not enter her chamber, when she was undressed, gave in sime as an expiation, twelve thousand dirhams (about £300), the price of the blood of a Muslim

The Jinn are said to appear to mankind most commonly in the shapes of serpents, dogs, cats, or human beings. In the last case they are sometimes of the stature of men, and sometimes of a size enormously gigantic. If good, they are generally resplendently handsome, if evil, horribly hideous They become invisible at pleasure (by a rapid extension or rarefaction of the particles which compose them), or suddenly disappear in the earth or air, or through a solid wall. Many Muslims in the present day profess to have seen and held intercourse with them.

The Zauba'ak, which is a whirlwind that raises the sand or dust in the form of a pillar of prodigious height, often seen sweeping across the deserts and fields, is believed to be caused by the flight of an evil gening the whirlwind," the Araba eften exclaim, "Iron! Iron!" (Hadid! Hadid!) or, "Iron! thou unlucky!" (Hadid! ya Mashum!), as the Jinn are supposed to have a great dread of that metal or they exclaim." God is most great!" (Allahu akbar!) A similar superstition prevails with respect to the waterspout at sea

It is believed that the chief abode of the Jinn is in the mountains of Qui which are supposed to encompass the whole of our earth. But they are also believed to pervade the solid body of our earth, and the firmament, and to choose, as their principal places of resort, or of occasional abode, baths, wells, the latrina, ovens ruined houses market-places, the junctures of roads, lie sea, and rivers

The Arabs, therefore, when they pour water, &c, on the ground, or enter a bath, or let down a bucket into a well, or visit the latrina, and on various other occasions sat, "Permission!" or "Permission, ve blessed!" (Izn ! or Izn ya Mubarakun') The evil spirits (or evil genti), it is said had liberty to enter any of the seven heavens till the hirth of Jesus, when they were excluded from three of them On the birth of Muhammad they were forbidden the other four They continue, however, to ascend to the confines of the lowest heaven, and there listening to the conversation of the angels respecting things decreed by God, obtain knowledge of futurity, which they sometimes impart to men, who by means of tahemans or certain involutions make them to serve the purposes of magneal performances

What the Prophet said of Iblis in the following tradition, applies also to the evil Jinn over whom he presides. His chief abode [among men] is the bath, his chief places of resort are the markets and junctures of roads, his food is whatever is killed without the name of God being pronounced over it, his drink, whatever is intoxicating, his Mu azzin the mizmar (a musical pipe), ie any musical instrument), his Qur an, poetry, his written character, the marks made in geomancy his speech, falsehood, his snares are women.

That particular genn presided over particular places, was the opinion of the early trabs. It is said in the Quran (Suran example, And there were certain min who sought refuge with cortain of the Jinn." In the commentary of the Jalain, I find the following remark on these words—"When they halted on their journey, in a place of lear, each man said, 'I seek refuge with the lord of this place, from the mischief of his foelish ones!'" In illustration of this, I may insert the following tradition, translated from al-Qarwin; —"It is related by a certain narrator of traditions, that he descended into a valley with his sheep, and a wolf carried off a ewe from among them, and he arose, and raised his voice, and cried, 'O inhabitant of the valley' whereupon he heard a voice saying. O welf, restore to him his sheep!' and the wolf came with the ewe, and left her, and departed." The same opinion is held by the modern Arabs, though probably they do not use such an invocation.

A similar superstition, a relic of ancient Egyptian credulity, still prevails among the people of Cairo It is believed that each quarter of this city has its peculiar guardiangenius or Agathods mon, which has the form of a serpent

It has already been mentioned that some of the Jinn are Mushims, and others infidele. The good acquit themselves of the imperative duties of religion, namely, prayers aliasgiving, fasting during the month of Ramazin, and pilgrimage to Makkah and Mount 'Arafät, but in the performance of these duties they are generally invisible to human beings

No man, it is said evoi obtained such ab solute power over the Jinn as Sulaiman ibu Dā'ud (Solomon, the son of David). This he did by virtue of a most wonderful talisman, which is said to have come down to him from heaven It was a sealing ring, upon which was engraved the most great name" of God [AL-ISMU L-A ZAM], and was partly composed of brass and partly of iron. With the brass he stamped his written commands to the good Junn, with the iron (for a reason before mentioned) those to the evil Jinn or devils Over both orders he had unlimited power, as well as over the birds and the winds and, as is generally said the wild beasts. His warir. Asaf the sen of Bankhiyah, is also said to have been acquainted with "the most great name, by uttering which the greatest miracles may be performed even that of raising the dead By vertue of this name, engraved on his ring Sulaiman compelled the Jinn to assist in building the temple of Jerusalem, and in various other works Many of the evil gern he converted to the true faith, and many others of this class, who remained obstinate in infidelity he confined in prisons He is said to have been monarch of the whole earth Hence, perhaps, the name of Sulaiman is given to the universal monarchs of the presdamite Jinn, unless the story of his own universal dominion originated from confounding him with those kings of the Jinh

The injuries related to have been inflicted upon button beings by evil genit are of various kinds (semit are said to have often carried off beautiful women, whom they have forcibly kept as their wives or concubines. Malicious or disturbed genit are aspect—3 often to station themselves on the roofs, or at the windows.

of houses, and to throw down brioks and stones on persons passing by When they take possession of an umnhabited house, they seldom fail to persecute terribly any person who goes to reside in it. They are also very apt to pilfer provisions, do Many learned and devout persons, to secure their property from such depredations, repeat the words, "In the name of God, the Compassionate, the Merciful!" on locking the doors of their houses, rooms, or closets, and on covering the bread-basket, or anything containing food During the month of Ramazan, the evil geni: are believed to be confined in prison, and, therefore, on the last night of that month, with the same view, women sometimes repeat the words shove mentioned, and sprinkle salt upon the floors of the spartments of their houses

To complete this sketch of Arabian mythology, an account must be added of several creatures generally believed to be of inferior orders of the Jinu. One of these is the Ghül, which is commonly regarded as a kind of Shaitān, or evil genii, that eate men, and is also described by some as a Jinu, or an enchanter, who assumes various forms. The Chüls are said to appear in the forms of various animals, and of human beings, and in many monstrons shapes, to haunt burial-grounds and other sequestered spots, to feed upon dead human bodies, and to kill and devonr any human creature who has the misfortune to fall in their way, whence the term "Chül" is applied to any cannibal

An opinion quoted by a celebrated author respecting the Ghul is, that it is a demoniaral animal, which passes a solitary existence in the deserts, resembling both man and bruto that it appears to a person travelling alone in the night and in solitary places, and, being supposed by him to be itself a travelier, lures him out of his way Another opinion stated by him is this that, when the Shaitans attempt to hear words by stealth [from the confines of the lowest heaven], they are struck by shooting stars, and some are burnt, some falling into a sea, or rather a large river (bahr), become converted into crocodiles und some, falling upon the land, become Ghuls The same author adds the following tradition "The Ghul is any Jinn that is opposed to travely assuming various forms and appearances and affirms that several of the Companions of the Prophet saw Ghuls in their travels and that Umar among them saw a (ibil while on a journey to Syria before Islam, and struck it with his

It appears that "Gliul" is, properly speaking a name only given to a female demon of the kind above described the male is called Quirub" It is said that these beings and the chaddar; or Charrar, and other similar creatures, which will presently be mentioned, are the offspring of Iblis and of a wife whom God created for him of the fire of the Samum (which here signifies, as in an instance before mentioned, "a smokeless fire"), and that they sprang from an egg. The female

(hill), it is added, appears to men'm the deserts, in various forms, converses with them, and sometimes prostitutes herself to them

The Si'lat, or Si'la', is another demoniacal creature, described by some [or rather, by most authors] as of the Jinn It is said that it is mostly found in forests, and that when it captures a man, it makes him dance, and plays with him as the cat plays with the A man of Islahan asserted that mouse many beings of this kind abounded in his country that sometime the wolf would hunt one of them by night, and devour it, and that, when it had seized it, the Si'la' would cry out, 'Come to my help, for the wolf devoureth me l" or it would ery, "Who will liberate me? I have a hundred dinars, and he shall receive them!" But the people knowing that it was the cry of the Sila, no one would liberate it and so the wolf would eat it

An island in the sea of China (Sin) is called the island of the Sida, by Arab geographers from its being said to be inhabited by the demons so named, they are described as creatures of hideous forms supposed to be sharfans, the offspring of human beings and Jun, who can men.

The Chaddar is another creature of a similar nature described as being found in the borders of al-Yaman, and sometimes in This mah, and in the upper parts of Egypt. It is said that it entices a man to it, and either tortures him in a mannel not to be described or merely terrifies him, and leavee him.

The Dalhan is also a demoniacal being, in habiting the islands of the seas having the form of a man and riding on an ostrich. It eats the flesh of nien whom the sea casts on the shore from wrecks. Some say that a Dalhan once attacked a ship on the sea, and desired to take the crew, but they contended with it whereupon it uttered a cry which caused them to fall on their faces, and it took them

The Shiqq is another demoniacal creature, having the form of half a human being (like a man divided longitudinally) and it is believed that the Nasnäs is the offspring of a Shiqq and of a human being. The Shiqq appears to travellers, and it was a demon of this kind who killed, and was killed by 'Al qamah, the son of Safwan, the son of Umarvah, of whom it is well known that he was killed by a Jinn. So says af-Qazwinī.

The Nasnäs (above mertioned) is described as resembling half a human being, having half a bead, half a body, one arm, and one leg, with which it hops with much agility, as being found in the woods of al-Yaman, and being endowed with speech, "but God," it is added, "is all knowing." It is said that it is found in Hazramaut as well as al-Yaman and that one was brought alive to al-Mutawakkil lit resembled a man in form, sceeping that it had but half a face, which was in its breast, and a tail like that of a aheep. The people of Hazramaut, it is added, eat it, and its fiesh is sweet. It is only generated in their country

A man who went there asserted that he saw a captured Namas, which cried out for mercy, conjuring him by God and by himself

A race of people whose head is in the breast, is described as inhabiting an island called Jabah (supposed to be Java), in the also described as inhabiting the island of Raij, in the sea of China, and having wings like those of the bat

The Hetif is a being that is heard, but not seen; and is often mentioned by Arab writers It is generally the communicator of some intelligence in the way of advice, or direction, or warning (See Lane s Modern Egyptians, Tiane's Notes on the Arabian Nights )

GENTILES Arabic Ummī (امى), from umm, "a mother") pl ummıyun, lit" Ignorant as new-born babes" Hebrew According to al-Baizawi, all the people of the earth who do not possess a divine Book In the Quran the term is specially applied to the idelaters of Arabia

Surah lxi 2 "He ((fod) it is who sent unto the Gentiles a Prophet amongst thom to recite to them His signs and to purify them, and to teach them the Book, the wisdom, although they were before in obvious error

GEORGE, St [JIRJES, AL-KHIZE] "The AL-GHABAH (العابة)

A name given to the open plain near al Madinah

GHABN (🚓 Fraud or decent

(عدار) GHADDĀR A species of demon saud to be found on the borders of al-Yaman. [GENIL]

GHADIR (24) A festival of the Shi ahs on the 18th of the month of Zu 1-Hijjah, when three images of dough filled with honey are made to represent Abu Bakr, Umar, and 'Usman, which are stuck with knives and the honey is sipped as typical of the blood of the usurping Khalifahs The festival is named from Ghadu "a pool, and the festival commemorates, it is said, Muhammad having declared 'Ali his successor at Ghadīr Khūm, a watering place midway between Makkah and al-Madīn ili

GHAIB (عیب) "Secret" Lnt The terms Gharbu 'l-Huwiyah 'Socret essence," and al-Gharbu'l-Mutlag, " the absolute unknowable," are used by Sufi mystics to express the nature of God ('Abdu r-Raz zāq's Dict of Suf : Terms )

GHAIRAH (5,2) "Jealousy" Muhammad is related to have said, "There is a kind of jealousy (yhairah) which Ged likes, and there is a kind of jealousy which The jealoney which God he abominates likes is when a man has suspicion that his wife or slave girl comes and sits by a stranger the jealousy which God abominates is when, without cause, a man harbours in his heart a had opinion of his wife." (Maskedt, book mil o xv pt 2.)

GHAIR-I-MAHDI (غير مهدى) Lit. "Without Mahdi" A small sect who believe that the lmam Mahdi wili not reappear They say that one Saiyid Muhammad of Jeypore was the real Mahdi, the twelfth Imam, and that he has now gone never more to return. They venerate him as highly as they do the Prophet, and opnsider all other Muslims to be unbelievers On the night called Lailatu 'l Qadr, in the month of Ramazun, they meet and repeat two rak ah prayers After that act of devotion is over, they say "God is Almighty, Muhammad is our Prophet, the Quran and Mahdi are just and true Imam Mahdi as come and gone Whoseever dashe Muhdi is come and gone Whosoever disbe lieves this is an infidel." They are a very ianatical sect (See Quaun a Islam)

GHAMARAT (عمرات), plural of ghamrah, 'aby 88" A word used to express the agonies of death It occurs in the Qur an, Surah vi 98 'But couldst thou see when the ungodly are in the floods of death (ghumaratu 'l-maul), and the angels reach forth their hands, saying, 'Yield up your scale this day shall ye be recompensed with a hu-miliating punishment,"

AL-GHANI (الغنى) "The Inde-pendent One" One of the ninety-mne special "The Indenames or attributes of God expressing the superiority of the Almighty over the necessities and requirements of mankind. The word occurs in the Quran, Surah ix 6, and is translated by Palmer "He is rich" usurpation."

GHAŞB ( "Using by force,

Ghost, in its literal sense, means the forcibly taking a thing from another. In the language of the law it signifies the taking of the property of another which is valuable and sacred, without the consent of the proprietor, in such a manner as to destroy the proprietor's possession of it, whence it is that usurpation is established by exacting service from the slave of another, or by putting a burden upon the quadruped of another, but not by sitting upon the carpet of another, because by the use of the slave of another, and by loading the quadruped of another, the possession of the proprietor is destroyed, whereas by sitting upon the carpet of another the possession of the pro-prietor is not destroyed. It is to be observed that if any person knowingly and wilfully usurp the property of another, he is held in law to be an offender, and becomes respon sible for a compensation If, on the con trary, he should not have made the usurpa tion knowingly and wilfully (as where a per son destroys property on the supposition of its belonging to himself and it afterwards proves the right of another), he is in that case also liable for a compensation, because a compensation is the right of men, but he is not an offender, as his erroneous offence is cancelled (Hidayah vol ili p 522.)

AL-GHASHIYAH (Least), "The Covering, Overwhelming" A name given to the LEXEVINITH Sürah of the Qur'an, the word occurring in the first verse for the Day of Judgment "Has there come to thee the story of the overwhelming?"

GHASIL (غامل) "A washer of the dead." An official is generally appointed for this purpose by the Imam of the parish.

GHASSAN (60-2). A tribe of Arabs inhabiting the western sude of the Syrian desert in the time of Muhammad (See Muir's Lafe of Mahomet, vol. 1 p claxxii)

GHATAFÂN (Julie). An Arabian tribe descended from Quie

GHAUS (apt) Let "One to whom we can cry for help." A mediator A title given to a Muhammadan saint Some hold it to be the highest order of anothry, whilst others regard it as second in rank to that of Quib According to the Chiyagu 'l-Lughah' it is an inferior rank of sanctity to that of Quib

GHĀZI (5)4) One who fights in the cause of Islami A hero, a warrier (he who slave an infide! It is also a title of distinction conforred by Mushim rulers upon generals and warriers of renown In the Turkish Empire the title of Chasi implies something similar to our "Field Marshal". The Prophet is related to have said "God is appeared for him who goes forth to fight in the road of God, for His satisfaction and for that of His Prophet. He shall, if he be not killed, return to his home with plunder and rewards. And if he die, his reward is paradise." (Mishkāt, book xvii. c. 1)

GHAZWAH (أعربة) A mil.tary force when it is lead by either an Apostic (Rasŵ!) or an Imam A small force commanded by one of the Imam s leutenants is a sariyah, or brigade (See Ghyāgu 'l-Lughah in loco)

AL-GHAZZALI (Japil) Abū Hamid Muhammad ibn Muhammad ibn Muhammad ibn Ahmad al-Ghazzāli, is a well known Sunni doctor surnamed Hunatu 'l-Islām ("the proof of Islām"). He was a native of Tūs and for sometime a professor in the college at Nasapūr Born a # 450 (a.p. 1058), died a.H 505 (a.p. 1111), at Tūs His exposition on the nature of God will be found in the article god. His great theological work is the Idyā'u 'Ulima' 'd-Dim.

GHIBAH: (4-0-2) "Slander, calumny" Anything whispered of an absent person to his detriment, although it be true. (Bultān expressing a false accusation.) Chibah is condemned in the Qur'an (Sūrah xlix. 12) "O' believers, avoid frequent suspicions, for some suspicions are a crime, neither let one of you traduce (ghidah) another in his absence" A chapter is devoted to the condemnation of backbiting and calumny in the Traditions (vide Minhkat, book xxi. ch x.)

GHIFAE () An Arabian tribe in the time of Muhammad who inhabited a tract of country in the vicinity of al-Madinah They were descendants of Abū Zarri 7-Ghifārī.

CHISHAWAH (5,444) Let "A covering" A dimness in the eye. A word used in the Qur'an for spiritual bindness Sürah ii 6 "Their hearts and their ears hath God sealed up, and over their eyes is a covering"

CHISLIN (blood, and matter, supposed by Muhammadans to run down the skin and fissh of the damned in hell. See Qur'an, Sûrah lxix. 36 "No friend shall he hav here that day, nor food but ghistin"

GHUL (غول) A man-devouring demon of the woods A species of Jinn [dexii]

GHULÂM (AL), pl ghilmah A boy under age A term used in modern Mushm for a slave the legal word being 'abd it occurs in the Quran for a son. Surah in 42 'She (Mary) said, 'How can I have a son when a man has not touched me!

GHULAT (SM) Lst 'The Zealst. A title given to a leading sect of the Shi tha who, through their excessive zeal for the limins, have raised them above the negree of human beings

GHULUL (Jak) Defrauding or purloining any part of the lawini plunder in a jihad or religious war. Forbidden in the Quran, Sürah in 155 "But he who shall defraud, shall come forth with his defraudings on the day of the resurrection then shall every soul be paid what it hath merited, and they shall not be treated with injustice."

GHURĀB (إلجاب) Lit "A crow" Ghurabu 'l-Bain 'The crow of separation" \term used by the Sufi mystics for a certain state of separation from God. ('Abdu 'r-Razzāq's Dict of Sufi Terms)

CHURRAH ($4) A fine of five Lundred dirhams. A slave of that value. It is the fine for a person striking a woman no as to occasion a miscarriage. (Hedayah, vol. iv. p 552)

GHUSL (J.A.), as distinguished tom ghas! (washing) is the religious act of pathing the whole body after a legal impurity it is founded upon the express injunction of the Qur'an, Sürah v 9 "If ye are polluted then purify yourselves." And the Traditions most minutely relate the occasions on which the Prophet performed the ceremony of gives or bathing. The Muslim teachers of all seets are unanimous in preserbing the washing of the whole body after the following acts, which render the body junub, or impure (1) Huyz, menses, (2) nifus, puerpernum, (3) jimā, coitus, (4) ikhlām pollutio nocturns. It is absolutely necessary that every part of the body should be wasned, for 'Alī relates that the Prophet said, He who leaves but one hair unwashed on his body, will be punished in hell accordingly" (Mishkāt, book in c viii.)

فسل مسنون) GHUSL MASNÜN (غسل مسنون) Let "Washings which are Sunnah"

Such washings are founded upon the Sunnah, or precept and practice of Muhammad, although they are not supposed to be of divine institution. They are four in number (1) Upon the admission of a convert to Islām, (2) Before the Friday pravers and on the great festivals (3) After washing the dead, (4) After blood-letting (See Sahihu I-Bukhāra, p. 39, Bābu 'I-(hus!) Akrimah relates that people came from al-Irāq and asked Ibn 'Abbās if he believed that bathing on Fridays was a divine institution and Ibu 'Abbās replied, "Ne, but bathing is a great purifier, and I will tell you how the custom of bathing began. The people were engaged in daily labour and were blankers, and the people sweated to such a degree as to cause a bad smell, so the Prophet said, 'O men' thathe ye on Fridays and put some scent on your clothes." (Matthow's Mishkāt, vol 1 p. 120, from the Hadīs of Abu Dā nd.)

GIANTS There is but one allusion to giants in the Quran, namely, to the tribe 'Ad, who are spoken of as men' with lofty statures" (Surah lxxxix 6), and the commentator, Shah 'Abdu 'l-Azīz' of Dolhi, says they were men of not less than twelve yards in statuse According to a tradition in the Kitābu 'sh Shafah by the Qārī 'Ayār (p 65), Adam was sixty yards in height In the Ghiyāgu 'l Lughah, a giant named Uj is mentioned, who was born in the days of Adam and lived until the time of Moses, a period of 8,500 years, and that he was so high, that the flood in the days of Nouh only reached to his waist. There are traditions and stories of giants whose graves exist unto the present day, throughout the whole of Asia Opposite the Chuich Mission House at Peshawur is a grave mine yards long, which is held in great reverence by both Muhamimadans and Hindus. De la Belle, in his Travels in Persia, vol 11 p 59, mentions several which exist in Persia Giant graves in Hindustan are numerous

GIDEON In the Qur'an there is evidently a confusion in one passage between the story of Saul as told therein, and the account of Gideon given in the Olu Testament, as the following extracts will show —

"Ard when Saul marched forth with his forces, he said, 'God will test you by a river

He who drinketh of it shall not be of my band, but he who shall not taste it, drinking a drink out of the hand excepted, shall be of my band.' And, except a few of them, they drank of it And when they had passed it, he and those who believed with him, the former said, 'We have no strength this day against Gohath (Jālūt) and his forces.' But they who held it as certain that they must meet God, said, 'How oft, by God's will, hath a small host vanquished a numerous hest! and God is with the steadfastly enduring." (Sūrah ii 250)

Which compare with Judges vii 5—
"So they brought down the people unto the water, and the Lord said unto Gideon, Every one that lappeth of the water with his tongue, as a dog lappeth, him shalt thou set by himself, likewise every one that beweth down upon his knees to drink
The Lord said, By the three hundred men that lapped will I save you, and deliver the Midianites into thine hand"

GIFTS. Arabic hibah (4.4), pl. hibāt A deed of gift The term hibah in the language of Muslim law means a transfer of property made immediately and without exchange He who makes the gift is called the wāhib, or donor; the thing given, mauhūb, and the person to whom it is given is mauhūb (ahu

Muhammad sanctioned the retraction of a gift when he said "A donor preserves his right to his gift, so long as he does not obtain a return for it" Although there is another tradition which says "Let not a donor retract his gift, but let a father if he pleases retract his gift to his son." Ash Shaft's maintains that it is not lawful to retract a gift, except it be from a father to a son. All the doctors are agreed that to retract a gift is an abomination, for Muhammad eaid "The retraction of a gift is like eating one's spittle". The general opinion is that a gift to a stranger may be retracted, but not a gift to a stranger may be retracted, but not a gift to a kineman. A retracted gift, by the mutual consent of the partice, should be effected by a decree of the Qāzi or judge (Hidāyah, vol. in p. 290)

GIRDLF Arabic nation (303)
Amongst the Bakhsashis and several other orders of laqir investiture with a girdle is the sign of incorporation into the order. The Bakhtäshis say that Adam was the first to near the girdle worn by them, and after him hifteen other prophets wore it in succession, viz Seth, Noah, Shu'aib, Job, Joseph, Abraham, Husha, Yusha', Jirjis, Jonas Salih Zakariah, al-Khizi, Ilyas, and Jesus (Brown's Derzushes, p. 145)

GNOSTICS "The singular correspondence between the allumons to the cru cifixion in the Coran, and the wild speculations of the early heretics, have led to the conjecture that Mahomet acquired his notions of Christianity from a Gnostic source. But Gnosticism had disappeared from Egypt before the sixth century, and there is no reason for supposing that it had at any time gained footing in Arabia Besides, there is no affinity between the supernaturalism of the Gnostics and Docetse, and the rationalism of the Coran. According to the former, the Deity must be removed far from the gross contact of evil matter, and the Æon Christ, which alighted upon Jesus at His baptism, must ascend to its native regions before the crucifizion. With Mahomet, on the contrary. Jesus Christ was a mere man-wonderfully born, indeed-but still an ordinary man, a servant of the Almightv, as others had been before him But although there is no ground for believing that Gnostic doctrines were taught to Mahomet, yet some of the strange fancies of those hereties, preserved in Syrian tradition, may have come to the ears of his informants (the chief of whom, even on Christian topics, seem to have been Jews, anable probably to distinguish heretical fable from Christian doctrine), and have been by them adopted as a likely and convenient mode of explaining away that which formed the great barrier between Jews and Chris (Mur's Loje of Mahomet, now ed tians ' p 161)

The name of the Creator of the Universe in the Quran is Allah, which is the title given to the Supreme Being by Mu hammadans of every race and language

Allah is supposed to be derived from ilali a deity or god, with the addition of the definite article al—Al-ilāh, the God'—or, ac cording to some authorities, it is from lah i r Al-lah, "the secret one" But Abu Hanifab says that just as the essence of God is un changeable, so is His name, and that Atlah has ever been the name of the Lternal Being (See Chyagu 'l-Lughah')
Allah may be an Arabic rendering of the Hebrew 58 el, and the unused root 578 wi, 'to be strong," or from 11178, the sun-gular form of אלדור It is expressed in Persian and Hindustani by the word Ahuda, derived from the Persian khud, self the self-existing one Another word very frequently used for the Almighty in the Qur'in is Rabb, which is generally translated in English versions of the Quran, "Lord." It seems to stand in the relative position of the Jehovah of the Old Testament and the Kupus of the New Testament. The word is understood by Muslims to mean " the sustainer," but it is probably derived from the Hebrew rubbah, "a stronghold," or from its root rab, which, ac cording to Gesenius, means " a multitude," or anything of sus or importance

The title Allah is called the lame 'z-Za', or, the essential name of God, all other titles including Rabb, being considered Asma'u s-fat, or "attributes" of the Divine Being These attributes are called al-Asma'u 'l-huna.

or the "excellent names." The expression occurs in the Qur'an (Surah vii 179), "But Gods are excellent names, call on Him thereby' This verse is commented upon in the Traditions, and Abn Hurairah says that Muhammad said, "Verny, there are ninety-nine names of God, and whoever recites them shall enter into Paradise"

In the same tradition these names (or attributes) are given as follows 1 Ar-Ruhman The Merciful 2 Ar-Rakim The Compassionato 8 Al-Maltk The King Al-Quddies The Holy An-Salam The Peace Al-Mu'min The Faithful Al-Muharmin The Protector The Mighty Al . Azzz Al-Jabbar q. The Repairer Al Mutakabbu Al-Khāliy 10 The Great The Creator 11 Al-Bart The Maker Al-Musau urr The Fashiouce 13 Al-(shaffar Al Qahhār Al Wahhāb The Forgiver 14 The Dominant 11 16 The Bestower Ar Razzāq Al-Futtāh 17 The Provider The Opener The Knower 18 Al- Aam 18 Al-Qābrz 20 The Restrainer The Spreader 41-Baset 21 22 41-Khajiz The Abaser The Exalter 23 A)-Ran' 24 Al-Murz-The Honouror 25 Al Muzil The Destroyer 26 As Samo The Hearci 27 Al Basir The Seer 28 Al Hakun The Ruler 29 11 · 1dl The Just Al-Lott OŁ. The Subtle 31 11 Khalu I he Aware 32 41 II ihm The Clement di Al Azun The Grand. Al Chafus 34 The Forgiving 35 Ash-Shakur The Grateful. Al . 1/2 The Exalted 36 37 Al-Kabir . The Great Al Haf vz Al-Muqu 38 The Guardian. 39 The Strengthener. Al-Hasib Al-Jabl The Reckoner 40 41 The Majestic The Generous 42 Al-Karım 43 Ar Ragib The Watcher The Approver Al-Mujub 44 Al- Wast The Comprehensive The Wise Al Hakım 16 Al Wadud The Loving The G orious 48 Al-Majid 49 Al-Bair The Rasser The Witness 50 Ash-Shahad -1 Al-Hagg The Truth Al Wakil The Advocate. 52 53 Al-Qaux The Strong Al-Matin The Firm 54 Al- Hali The Patron 55 The Laudable oв Al Hannel

Al Muhst

Al Mubdi

Al-Mwid

Al-Mukya

The Counter

The Beginner

The Restorer

The Quickener

57

58

19

| 61. Al-Munit                                 | The Killer        |  |  |  |
|----------------------------------------------|-------------------|--|--|--|
| 62. Al-Hay .                                 | The Living        |  |  |  |
| 68. Al-Qaiyum                                | The Subsisting    |  |  |  |
| 64 Al- Wand                                  | The Funder        |  |  |  |
| 65 Al-Majid                                  | The Glorious.     |  |  |  |
| 66. Al-Wahid                                 | The One           |  |  |  |
| 67 Ab-Samad                                  | The Eternal.      |  |  |  |
| 67 Ab-Samad68. Al-Qādir                  | The Powerful      |  |  |  |
| 69 Al-Muqtader                               | The Prevailing    |  |  |  |
| 70 Al-Mugaddim                               | The Bringing for- |  |  |  | |                                              | ward              |  |  |  |
| 71 Al-Mu'akhkhur                             | The Deferrer      |  |  |  |
| 72. Al-Awwal                                 | The First.        |  |  |  |
| 73 Al-Akhur                                  | The Last          |  |  |  |
| 74 Az-Zāhur                                  | The Fyident       |  |  |  |
| 75 Al-Batin                                  | The Hidden.       |  |  |  |
| 76 Al-Wali                                   | The Governor      |  |  |  |
| 77 Al-Muta'āli                               | The Exalted       |  |  |  |
| 78. Al-Barr                                  | The Righteous     |  |  |  |
| 79 At-Tauwāb                                 | The Accepter of   |  |  |  |
| 10 211 2 200-0                               | Repentance        |  |  |  |
| 80 Al-Muntagim                               | The Avenger       |  |  |  |
| Al Al- Atuen                                 | The Pardoner      |  |  |  |
| 81 Al-Afûw82 Ar-Ra'uf                    | The Kind          |  |  |  |
| 83 Mālsku l-Mulh                             | The Ruler of the  |  |  |  |
| OU 2/2 main to 12/ 4/10                      | Kingdom           |  |  |  |
| 84. Zū '-Jalāls wa'l-                        |                   |  |  |  |
| Ikrām                                        |                   |  |  |  |
|                                              |                   |  |  |  |
| 85 Al-Muqsıt86 Al-Jämi                   |                   |  |  |  |
| 87 Al-Ghani                                  | The Giver         |  |  |  |
| 88 Al Muchai                                 | The Enricher      |  |  |  |
| 88 Al Mughni89 Al-Mut                    |                   |  |  |  |
| 90 Al-Mani                                   | The Withholdor    |  |  |  |
| 91 Az-Zarr                                   | The Distresser    |  |  |  |
| 92 An-Nafi                                   | The Profiter      |  |  |  |
| 98 An-Nür                                    | The Light         |  |  |  |
| 94 Al-Hidi                                   | The Guide         |  |  |  |
| 95 Al Radio                                  | The Incomparable  |  |  |  |
| 94 Al-Hādī95 Al-Badī96 Al-Bāgī       | The Enduring      |  |  |  |
| 97 Al-Wares                                  | The Inheritor     |  |  |  |
| 98 Ar-Hashid                                 | The Director      |  |  |  |
| 99 As-Sabur                                  | The Patient       |  |  |  |
|                                              |                   |  |  |  |
| The list either begins or closes with Allah. |                   |  |  |  |

The list either begins or closes with Allah, thus completing the number of one hundred names, which are usually recited on a resary in the ceremony of Zikr [ZIKR], as well as at all lessure moments, by devout Muslims. The Wahhabis do not use a resary but count the names on their fingers, which they say was the custom of the Prophet, for from the Traditions it appears that Muhammad did not use a resary

According to the Traditions (Mishkat, book x c 1) the Almighty has an "exalted name" known as the Ismu '! A'gam, which Muhammad is related to have said was either in the Suratu'l-Bayarah, the second chapter of the Quran, 158th verse, or in the Smalu Ali 'Aman, the third chapter, first verse The names of God which occur in these two verses are ar-Rahman, "the Mer offul," ar-Rukim, "The Compassionate," al Hasy, "the Living," and al-Qaiyum, "the Subsisting" There is, however, another tradition, from which it would appear that the name may be either al-Ahad, . the One," or ur-Samad, "the Eternal"

Abdu 'l-riaqq, in his remarks on these traditions, save that it is generally held, ac cording to a tradition by 'Ayishah, that this great name is known only to the prophets and other saintly persons. The compiler of the Kitābu 't-Ta'rīfāt says it is none other than the name of Allāh

The Prophet having said that whoever calls upon God by this name shall obtain all his deares (Miskat, book > 0, i pt 2), the various sects of fagirs and mystics spend much time in endeavouring to ascertain what the name really is [DA'WAH], and the person who is able to assert that he has obtained this secret knowledge possesses great influence over the minds of the superstitious.

There can be little doubt that the discussion regarding this exalted name has arisen from the circumstance that Muhammad became aware of the fact that the Jews pever recited the great name of Jehovah, and spoke of it as "the great and terrible name," " the peculiar name" of God

The attributes of God as expressed in the minety-nine names, are divided into the asma's 'l jalaliyah, or the glorium attributes, and the asma'u 'l-jamaliyah, or the terrible attributes Such names as ar-Kuhm, "the Mer ciful," al-Karim, "the Kind," and al Afus, the Forgiver," belonging to the former, and al Quest, "the Strong," al Muniaque, "the Avenger," and al-Quest, "the Powerful," to the latter

In praying to God it is usual for the worshipper to address the Almighty by that name or attribute which he wishes to appeal will address God as either al-Afan, "the Pardoner," or at-Tauwab 'the Receiver of repentance'

A belief in the existence of God, His Unity. His thsolute Power, and in the other essen tial attributes of an Eternal and Almighty Being, is the most important part of the Muslim religion, and is supposed to be ex pressed in the two clauses of the well-known formula

the Ith

Lā ilāhu II-lā I-lahu There is no deity But Allah.

The first clause, "There is no deity," is known as the Nuft or that which is rejected, and the second clanse, "But Allah," as the Igbat, or that which is established, the term Naf I wa-Isbat being applied to the first two clauses of the Muslim's Kolemuk, or

The teaching of Muhammad in his Qur'an as to the nature of God, forms such an important consideration in an exposition of Islam, that no apology is needed for full and lengthy quotations from that book on the subject

The following verses are arranged in chronological order according to Jalan 'd-

din as-Suyuti's list

Süratu'l Ikhläs Chapter oxini. (One of the earliest chapters of the Qur'an )

"Say, He is God, One [God] "God, the Eternal.

"He begetteth not nor is begetten, "And there is none equal unto Him" Süratu 'l-A-röf Chapter vii 52 (Given at al-Madinal.)
"Verily your Lord is God, who created the heavens and the earth in six days then He ascended the throne. He causeth the night to cover the day; it followeth it swiftly and He created the sun and the moon and the stars, made subject utterly to His command Do not the whole creation and command belong to Him? Blessed be God, the Lord of the Worlds."

Sirate Maryam Chapter xix. 91-96, (Given at Makkah.)

"They say, 'The Compassionate hath gotten offspring' Ye have done an impious thing.

"It wanteth little but that the heavens be rent thereat, and that the earth cleave asunder, and that the mountains fall down in pieces.

"For that they have attributed offspring to the Compassionate, when it beseemeth not the Compassionate to get offspring

"There is none of all that are in the hea vens and the earth but he shall come unto the Compassionate as a servant He hath known them and numbered them with an exact numbering

"And each of them shall come unto Him on the day of resurrection, alone.

"Verily those who have believed and have done the things that are right, on them the Compassionate will bestow [His] love" Surget 'l-Hir Chapter xv 16-25

(Given at Makkah.)

"We (God) have placed in heaven the twelve signs of the Zodsac, and adorned them for the heholders with the constellations,

"And We have guarded them (by means of shooting stars) from every accursed devil

"Excepting him who listened by stealth, whom a manifest shooting star pursueth

"We have also spreed forth the earth, and thrown thereon firm mountains, and We have caused to spring forth in it every kind [of green thing] weighed.

"And We have provided for you therein nocessaries of life, and for him whom ye do not sustain,

"And there is not a thing but the store houses thereof are with Us and We send it not down save in determined quantities

"We also send the fertilizing winds, and We send down water from heaven, and give you to drank thereof and ye are not the storers of it.

And verily We give life and death, and We are the heirs of all the creation

"We also know those who have gone hefore you, and We know those who follow after [you]

"And verily thy Lord will assemble them together for He is Wise Knowing

Süratu 'l-An am Chapter vi 59-64

(Given at Makkah )

"With Him are the keys of the hidden things none knoweth them but He and He knoweth whatsoever is on the land and in the sea, and there faileth not a leaf but He knoweth it, nor a grain in the dark parts of the earth, nor a most thing nor a dry thing, but [it is noted] in a distinct writing

"And it is He who taketh your souls at night, and knoweth what ye have gained in the day, then He reviveth you therein, that an appointed time may be fulfilled. Then unto Him shall we return then will He declare unto you what ye have done

"And He is the Supreme over His servants, and He sendeth watchers over you, until when death cometh unto any one of you, Our messengers take his soul, and they fail

"Then are they returned unto God their Lord, the True Doth not judgment belong to Him? And He is the most quick of reckoners

" SAY, Who delivereth you from the darknesses of the land and of the sea, when ye supplicate Him humbly and in secret, saying, If Thou doliver us from these dangers, we will assuredly be of [the number of] the thankful ?

"har God deliversth you from them and from every affliction "

16, 95-103

"Verily God causeth the grain to come forth, and the date-stone He bringeth forth the living from the dead, and He bringeth forth the dead from the bving This is God. then wherefore are ye turned away?

'He causeth the dawn to appear, and hath ordained the night for rest, and the sun and the moon for reckoning time this is the appointment of the Mighty, the Wise

"And it is lie who hath ordained for you the stars that ye may be guided by them in the darkness of the land and of the sea. We have clearly shown the signs of Our power unto the people who know "And it is He who hath produced you from one soul and there is a place of rest and of storing. We have clearly shown the signs to the people who understand.

"And it is He who hath sent down water from heaven and We have produced thereby the germs of everything, and We have caused the green thing to come forth therefrom, from which We draw forth grains massed, and from the palm-tree, from its fruit-branch, clusters of dates beaped together and gardens of grapes, and the olive and the pomeguanate like one another and not like. Look ye at their fruits when they bear fruit, and Verily therein are signs unto their ripening the people who believe

" let they have set up the Junn as partners of God though He hath created them, and without knowledge have they falsely attributed to Him some and daughters Extolled he His purity and high be He exalted above that which they attribute [to Him]!

" He is the Author of the heavens and the How then should He have offspring. earth when He hath no consort and hath created everything and knoweth everything?

"This is God your Lord There is no God but He, the Creator of everything therefore worship ye Him, and He is guardian over ( everything.

"The eyes see Him not, but He seeth the eyes and He is the Gracious, the Knowing Suratu Bani Isra'ıl. Chapter Ixvii 1-4

(Given at Makkah )

ed Blessed be He in whose hand is the dominion and who is all powerful,

"Who hath created death and life, that He may prove you, which of you [will be] best in works and He is the Mighty, the Very-Forgiving

"Who hath created seven heavens, one Thou seest not any fault in above another the creation of the Compassionate up the eyes again to hearen Dost thou soo any fissures?

"Then lift up the eyes again twice, the sight shall return unto thee dull and dim

Suratu /- Ankabut Chapter xxix 40-43

(Given at Makkah)
"The likeness of those who take to themselves Tutelars instead of God 18 as the like ness of the spider, which maketh for herself a dwelling, and the frailest of dwellings surely is the dwelling of the spider ! If they

"Verity God knoweth whatever thing they invoke in His stead, and He is the Mighty, the Wise

"And these parables we propound unto men, but none understand them except the WISE

"God hath created the heavens and the verily therein is a sign unto earth in truth the believers

Suratu 'l-Bagarah Chapter 11 157-160

(Given at al-Madinah )

"And your God is One God there is no god but He, the Compassionate, the Merciful

"Verily in the creation of the heavens and the earth, and the varying of night and day. and the chips that course upon the sea luden with what is profitable to mankind and the water that God hath sent down from heaven, quickening the earth thereby after its death, and scattering about it all kinds of beasts, and in the changing of the winds, and the clouds that are compelled to do service be tween heaven and earth, are signs unto a people who understand

"Yet among men are those who take to themselves, beside God, idols, which they love as with the love of God but those who have believed are more loving towards God than these towards their idols"

16,256 There is no God but He, the " God 1 Ever-Living, the Ever-Subsisting Slumber To Hum beseizeth Him not, nor sleep longeth whatsoever is in the Heavens and whatsoever is in the Earth Who is he that shall intercede with Him, unless by His permission? He knoweth what [hath been] before them and what [shall be] after them, and they shall not compass aught of His knowledge save what He willets His Throne comprehendeth the Heavens and the Earth, and the care of them buildeneth Him not And He is the High, the Great

Chapter III. 25 Suratu Alı 'Imran, (Given at al-Madinah )

" Say, O God, to whom belongeth dominion, Thou givest dominion to whom Thou wilt, and from whom Thou wilt Thou takest it away Thou exaltest whom Thou wilt, and whom Thou wilt Thou humblest. In Thy hand is good Verily Thou art all-powerful.

"Thou causest the might to pass into the day, and Thou causest the day to pass into the night, and Thou bringest forth the hving from the dead, and Thou bringest forth the dead from the living, and Thou givest sus-tenance to whom Thou wilt without mea-

Suratu'i Raid Chapter zui 18 (Given at al-Madinah )

' It is He who maketh the hightning to appear unto you, [causing] fear and hope of rain, and formeth the pregnant clouds

And the thunder proclaimeth His per fection with His plaise, and [likewise] the angels, in fear of Him. And He sondeth the thunderbolts, and striketh with them whom He pleaseth, whilst they dispute concerning God, for He is mighty in power "
Suratu 'n-Nisa" Chapter iv 51

(Given at al-Madinah )

"Vorily God will not forgive the associat ing with Him [any other being as a god], but will forgive other sins unto whom He pleaseth, and whose associateth [another] with God hath wrought a great wickedness."

The following is an interpretation of the Muslim belief in the existence and nature of God, by the famous scholastie, divine, the Imam al-Ghazzalı iii bis book entitled ul-Magradu V-asna, un extruct from which Ockley has translated from Pocock's Sperimen Historia Arabum -

"Praise he to God the Creator and Restorer of all things, who does whatsoever He pleases, who is master of the glorious throne and mighty force, and directs His sencere ser vants into the right way and the atraight path, who favoureth them, who have once borne testimony to the unity, by preserving their confessions from the darkness of doubt and hesitation, who directs them to follow His chosen apostle, upon whom be the blessing and peace of God, and to go after His most honcurable companions, to whom he hath vouchsafed His assistance and direction which is revealed to them in His essence and operations by the excellencies of His attri butes, to the knowledge whereof no man attains but he that hath been taught by hearing To these, as touching His essence, He maketh knows that He is one, and hath no partner, singular, without anything like Him, uniform, having no contrary, separate having no equal He is ancient, having no first eternal, having no beginning, remaining for ever, having no end, continuing to etermity, without any termination. He per sists, without ceasing to be, remains without fuiling, and never did cease, nor ever shall cease to be described by glorious attributes. nor is subject to any decree so as to be determined by any precise limits or set times, but is the First and the Last, and is within and without.

"(What God as not) He, glorifled be His name is not a body endued with form, nor a substance circumscribed with limits or deter mined by measure, neither does He resemble budies, as they are capable of being measured or divided. Neither is He a substance, neither do substances exist in Him, neither is He an accident, nor do accidents exist in Him Neither is he like to anything that exists, neither is anything like to Him, nor is he determinate in quantity nor comprehended by bounds, nor circumsembed by the differences of situation, nor contained in the heavens He sits upon the throne, after that manner which He Himself hath described, and in that same sense which He Himself means, which is a sitting far removed from any notion of contact, or resting upon, or local situation, but both the throne itself, and whatsoever is upon it, are sustained by the goodness of his power, and are subject to the grasp of His hand But He is above the throne, and above ell things, even to the utmost ends of the earth, but so above as at the same time not to be a whit nearer the throne and the heaven, since He is exalted by (infinite) degrees shove the throne no less than He is exalted above the earth, and at the same time is near to everything that hath a being nay, 'nearer to man than their jugular veins, and is witness to everything' though His nearness is not like the nearness of bodies. as neither is His ossence like the essence of bodies. Neither doth He exist in anything, neither doth anything exist in Him, but He is too high to be contained in any place, and too holy to be determined by time for He was before time and place were created, and is now after the same manner as He always was He is also distinct from the creatures by His attributes, neither is there anything besides Himself in His essence, nor is His essence in any other besides Him He is too holy to be subject to change, or any local motion, neither do any accidents dwell in Him, nor any contingencies befall Him but He abides through all generations with His glorious attributes, free from all danger of dissolution As to the attribute of perfection, He wants no addition of His perfection As to being, He is known to exist by the apprehension of the understanding, and He is seen as He is by an ocular intuition, which will be vouchsafed out of His meroy and grace to the holy in the eternal mansion, completing their joy by the vision of His glorious presence.

"(His power) He, praised be His name, is living, powerful, mighty, omnipotent, not hable to any defect or impotence, neither slumbering nor eleeping, nor being obnoxious to deeny or death. To Him belongs the kingdom, and the power, and the might His is the dominion, and the excellency, and the creation, and the command thereof The heavens are felded up in His right hand, and all creatures are couched within His grasp His excellency consists in His creating and producing, and His unity in communicating existence and a beginning of being He created men and their works, and measured out their maintenance and their determined times. Nothing that is possible can escape His grasp, nor can the vicussitudes of things clude his power. The effects of his might are innumerable, and the objects of his knowledge infinite

"(II're knowledge.) He, praised be His name, knows all things that can be understood, and comprehends whatsoever comes to pass, from the extremities of the earth to the highest heavens. Even the weight of a pismire could not escape Him either in earth or heaven, but He would perceive the creeping of the black pismire in the dark night upon the hard stone, and discern the motion of an atom in the open air. He knows what is secret and conceals it, and views the conceptions of the minds, and the motions of the thoughts, and the immost recesses of secrets, by a knowledge aucient and eternal that never ceased to be His attribute from eternal eternity, and not by any new knowledge, superadded to His essence, either in hering or adventitions

' (His will) He, praised be His name, doth will those things to be that are, and disposes of all accidents Nothing passes in the empire, nor the kingdom, neither little nor much, nor small nor great, nor good nor evil, nor profitable nor hartful, nor faith nor infidelity, nor knowledge nor ignorance, nor prosperity nor adversity, nor increase nor decrease, nor obedience nor rebellion, but by His determinate counsel and decree, and His definite sentence and will Nor doth the wink of him that seeth, nor the subtlety of him that thinketh, exceed the bounds of His will, but it is He who gave all things their beginning, He is the creator and restorer, the sole operator of what He pleases, there is no reversing His decree nor delaying what He hath determined, nor is there any refuge to man from his rebollion against Him, but only His help and mercy, nor bath any man any power to perform any duty towards Him, but through His love and will. Though mon, genn, angels and devils, should conspire togother outlier to put one single atom in motion, or cause it to cease its motion, without His will and approbation, they would not be able to do it His will subsists in His essence amongst the rest of His attributes, and was from eternity one of His eternal attributes, by which He willed from eteninty the existence of those things that He had decreed, which were produced in their proper seasons according to His eternal will, without any before or after, and in agreement both with His knowledge and will, and not by methodising of thoughts, nor waiting for a proper time, for which reason no one thing is in Him a hindrance from another

"(His hearing and sight) And He, praised be His name, is hearing and seeing, and heareth and seeth. No audible object, how still seever, escapeth His hearing, nor is any thing visible so small as to escape his sight for distance is no hindrance to HIs hearing, nor darkness to His sight. He sees without pupil or eye-lid, and hears without any passage or ear, even as He knoweth without a heart, and performs His actions without hearstance of any corporeal limb, and creates without any instrument, for His attributes (or properties) are not like those of men, any more than His essence is like theirs

"(Hts word) Furthermore, He doth speak, command, forbid, promise, and threaten by an eternal, ancient word, subsisting in His sesence Neither is it like to the word of the ereatures, nor doth it consist in a voice arising from the commotion of the air and the collision of bodies, nor letters which are separated by the joining together of the lips or the motion of the tongue The Qur'an, the Law, the Gospel, and the Psalter, are books sent down by Him to His apostles and the Qur'an, indeed, is read with tongues, written in books, and kept in hearts yet as subsisting in the essence of (lod, it doth not become liable to separation and division whilst it is transferred into the hearts and the papers Thus Moses also beard the Word of God without voice or letter, even as the saints be-hold the essence of God without substance or accident And since these are his attri butes, He liveth and knoweth is powerful and willeth and operateth, and seeth and speaketh, by life and knowledge and will and hearing, and sight and word, not by His umple essence.

"(His works) He, praised be His name, exists after such a manner that nothing besides Him hath any being but what is pioduced by His operation, and floweth from His justice after the best, most excellent, most perfect, and most just model He is moreover, wise in His works, and just in His decrees. But His justice is not to be compared with the justice of men For a man may be supposed to act unjustly by invading the possession of another, but no impustice can be concoived by God, insemuch as there is nothing that belongs to any other besides Himself, so that wrong is not imputable to Him as meddling with things not apportaining to Him All things, Himself only excepted genn, men, the dovil, angels, heaven, earth, animals, plants, substance, accident, intelligible, sensible, were all created originally by Him. He created them by His power out of mere privation, and brought them into light, when as yet they were nothing at all, but He alone existing from eteroity, neither was there any other with Him Now He created all things in the beginning for the manifestation of His power, and His will, and the con firmation of His word, which was true from all eternity Not that He stood in need of them, nor wanted them, but He manufestly declared His glory in creating and producing, and commanding, without being under any elligation, nor out of necessity Loving kindness, the showing favour and grace, and beneficence belong to Him, whereas it is in His power to pour forth upon man a variety of torments, and affliet them with various kinds of sorrows and diseases, which, if He were to do, His justice could not be arraigned, nor would be be obargeable with injustice. Yat he rewards those that worship Him for their obedience on account of his promise and beneficence, not of their merit nor of necessity, since there is nothing which He can be tied to perform, nor can any injustice be supposed in Him, hor can He be under any obligation to any person whatsoever. That His creatures, however, should be bound to serve Him, aniseth from His having declared by the tongues of the prophets that it was due to Him from them. The worship of Him is not simply the dictate of the understanding, but He sent messengers to carry to men His commands, and promises, and threats, whose veracity He proved by manifest miracles, whereby men are obliged to give oredit to them in those things that they relate."

included in the attributes of God as given in His ninety nine titles or names, there are the Haft sifat, or Seven Attributes, Muhammad al Baiqawi has expressed them as follows -

(1) Hayat, or Lafe God Most High is alone to be adored He has neither associate nor equal. He is free from the imperfections of humanity He is neither begotten nor does He beget He is invisible He is without figure form colour or part. His existence has neither beginning nor and. He is imminitable. If He so wills, He can annihilate the world in a moment of time and, if it seem good to Him, recreate it in an instant, Nothing is difficult to Him, whether it be the creation of a fly or that of the seven heavens He receives neither profit nor loss from what ever may happen If all the Infidels became believers and all the irreligious pious, He would gam no advantage On the other hand, if all Believers became infidels, He would suffer no loss

(2) *Ilm or Knowledge He has knowledge of all things hidden or manifest, whether in heaven or on earth He knows the number of the leaves of the trees, of the grains of wheat and of sand Events past and future are known to Him He knows what enters into the heart of man and what He utters with His mouth He aloue, except those to whom He has revealed them, knows the invisible things He is free from forgetfulness, negligence and error His knowledge is eternal it is not posterior to His essence.

(3) Quarah, or Power He is Almighty. If He wills, He can raise the dead, make stones talk, trees walk, annihilate the heavens and the earth, and recreate of gold or of silver thousands similar to those destroyed He can transport a man in a moment of time from the east to the west, or from the west to the seast or to the seventh heaven His power is sternal a priori and a pusteriors. It is not posterior to His essence

(4) Iridah, or Will He can do what He wills, and whatever He wills somes to pass. He is not obliged to act Everything, good or evil, in this world exists by His will. He wills the faith of the believer and the piety of the

If He were to change His will religious there would be neither a true believer nor a prous man. He willeth also the unbelief of the unbeliever and the irreligion of the wicked and, without that will, there would neither be unbelief nor irreligion. All we do wado by His will what He willeth not does not come to pass If one should ask why God does not will that all men should believe, we answer "We have no right to enquire about what God wills and does He is perfectly free to will and to do what He pleases" oresting unbehevers, in willing that they should remain in that state, in making serpents, scorpions and pigs in willing, in short, all that is evil, God has wise ends in view which it is not necessary that we should We must acknowledge that the will of God is eternal and that it is not posterior to His essence

(5) Sam', or Hearing He hears all sounds whether low or loud. He hears without an ear, for His attributes are not like those of men.

(6) Başar, or Seeing He sees all things, even the steps of a black aut on a black stone in a dark night, yet He has no eye as men have

(7) Kalām, or Speech He speaks, but not with a tongue as men do He speaks to some of His servants without the intervention of another, oven as He spoke to Moses, and to Muhammad on the night of the ascension to beaven He speaks to others by the instrumentality of Gabriel, and this is the usual way in which He communicates His will to the prophets It follows from this that the Qur'an is the word of God and is eternal and uncreated (Sale's Faith of Islam)

With regard to the Muhammadan belief in the Supreme Being, Mr. Palgrave, the wellknown Uniental traveller, thus expresses himself -

"'There is no god but God,' are words simply tantamount in English to the negation of any delty save one alone and thus much they certainly mean in Arabic, but the imply much more also. Their full sense is, not only to deny absolutely and unreservedly all plurality, whether of nature or of person, in the Supreme Being, not only to establish the unity of the Unbegetting and Unbegot, in all its simple and uncommunicable Oneness, but besides this, the words in Arabic and among Arabs imply that this one Supreme Being is also the only Agent, the only Force, the only act existing throughout the universe, and leave to all beings else, matter or spirit, instinct or intelligence, physical or moral, nothing but pure unconditional passiveness, alike in movement or in quiescence, in action or in capacity The sole power, the sole motor, movement, energy, and deed, is God the rest is downright inertia and mere instrumentality, from the highest archangel down to the simplest atom of creation. Hence, in this one sentence, is summed up a system which, for want of a better name, I may be permitted to call the Pantheism of Force, or of Act, thus exclusively assigned to God, Who absorbs it all, exercises it all, and to Whom alone it can be asoribed, whether for preserving or for destroying, for relative evil or for equally relative good. I say 'relative,' be cause it is clear that in such a theology no place is left for absolute good or evil, reason or extravagance, all is abridged in the autocratical will of the One great Agent 'sic velo, sic jubeo, set pro rations poluntas' or, more significantly still, in Arabio Kena yeshao (ka-ma yazhau), 'as He wills it, to quote the constantly recurring expression of the Coran.

"Thus immeasureably and eternally exalted above, and dissimilar from, all creatures, which he levelled before Him on one common plane of instrumentality and mertness, God is One in the totality of omnipotent and omnipresent action, which acknowledges no rule, standard, or limit, save His own sole and absolute will He communicates nothing to His creatures, for their seeming power and act ever remain His alone, and in return He receives nothing from them, for whatever they may be, that they are in Him, by Him, and from Him only And, secondly, no enpeplority, no distinction, no pre-eminence, can be lawfully claimed by one creature over its fellow, in the utter equalisation of their unexceptional servitude and abasement, all are slike tools of the one solitary Force which employs them to crush or to benefit, to truth or to error, to honour or shame, to happiness or misery, quite independently of their individual fitness, deserts, or advantage, and simply because 'He wills it,' and 'as He willa it '

"One might at first signt think that this tremendous Autocrat, this uncontrolled and unsympathising Power, would be far above anything like passions, desires, or inclinations Yet such is not the case, for He has with respect to His creatures one main feeling and source of action, namely, jealousy of them, lest they should perchance attribute to themselves something of what is His alone, and thus encreach on His all-engressing kingdom. Hence He is ever more prone to pumsh than to reward, to inflict pain than to bestow pleasure, to ruin than to build It is His singular satisfaction to let created beings continually feel that they are nothing else than His slaves, Illa tools, and contemptable tools also, that thus they may the better acknowledge His superiority, and know His power to be above their power, His cunning above their cuming, His will above their will, His pride above their pride, or rather, that there is no power, cunning, will, or pride, save His own

"But He Hunsolf, sterile in His maccessible height, neither loving nor enjoying aught save His own and self-measured decree, without son, companion, or counsellor, is no less barren of Himself than for His creatures, and His own harrenness and lone egoism in Himself is the cause and rule of His indifferent and unregarding despotism around. The first note is the key of the whole tune, and the primal idea of God runs through and modifies the whole system and creed that centres in Him

"That the notion here given of the Deity, monstrous and blasphemous as it may appear, is exactly and literally that which the Coran conveys or intends to convey, I at present take for granted But that it indeed is so, no one who has attentively perused and thought over the Arabic text (for mere cursory reading, especially in a translation, will not suffice), can hesitate to allow. In fact, every phrase of the preceding sontences, every touch in this odious portrait, has been taken to the best of my ability, word for word, or at least meaning for meaning, from the 'Book' the trush mirror of the mind and scope of its writer

"And that such was in reality Mahomet's mind and idea, is fully confirmed by the witness-tongue of contemporary tradition Of this we have many authentic samples the Saheeh (Sahih), the Commentary of Beydawn (al-Barzawn), the Mishkat ul Masabih d fifty similar works, afford ample testin ony on this point. But for the benefit of my readers In general, all of whom may not have drunk equally deep at the fountain heads of Islamic dogma, I will subjoin a specimen, known perhaps to many Orientalists, yet too characteristic to be here omitted a repetition of which I have endured times out of number from admiring and approving Wahhabis in Neied

"'Accordingly, when God'-so runs the tradition I had better said, the blasphemy resolved to create the human race, He took into His hands a mass of earth, the same whence all mankind were to be formed, and in which they after a manner pre existed, and having then divided the clod into two equal portions, He threw the one half into hell, saying, "Theee to eternal fire, and I care not" and projected the other half into heaven, adding, "and these to Paradiss, I care not." (See Mishkatu 'l-Masabih Babu 'l-Qadr ) *Commentary would here be superfluone But in this we have before us the adequate idea of predestination, or, to give it a truer name, pre-damnation, held and taught in the school of the Coran Paradise and hell are at once totally independent of love or hatred on the part of the Derty, and of merits or dements, of good or evil conduct, on the part of the creature, and, in the corresponding theory, rightly so, since the very actions which we call good or ill-desorving, right or wrong, wicked or virtuous, are in their essence all one and of one, and accordingly ment neither praise nor blame, punishment nor recompense, except and simply after the arbitrary value which the all-regulating will of the great despot may choose to assign or impute to them. In a word, He burns one individual through all eternity amid red hot chains and seas of molten fire, and seats another in the plenary enjoyment of an ever-lasting brothel between forty celestial concubines, just and equally for His own good pleasure, and because He wills it here and hereafter, in their physical, social, and moral light—the level of slaves to one sole Master, of tools to one universal Agent. But the equalising process does not stop here beasts, birds, fishes, insects, all participate of the same honour or debasement; all are, like man, the slaves of God, the tools and automata of His will, and hence Mahomet is simply logical and self-consistent when in the Coran he informs his followers, that birds, beasts, and the rest are 'nations' like themselves, nor does any intrinsic distinction exist between them and the human species except what accidental diversity the 'King, the Proud One, the Mighty, the Giant,' &c , as he styles his God, may have been pleased to make, just as He willed it, and so long as He may will it

"Men are thus all on one common level,

"However, should any one think himself aggrieved by such association, he may console himself by reflecting that, on the other hand, angels, archangels, genu, devils, and whatever other spiritual beings may exist, are no less on his level also and that if he himself be no better than a camel, he is, however, no worse than Gabriel or any seraph. And then, over all and above all, There is no god but God'"—(Lentral and Eastern

Arabia, vol 1 p 865)

AND MAGOG GOG Arabic Yājūj wa Mājūj, also spelt Ma'jūj wa Ya'yin (Egold) A barbarous people of Central Asia, perhaps the Turkomans, who are in the Qur'an represented as doing evil in the land in the days of Zū l-Qarnain (or Alexander) See Sūrah xviii 98-97

'They said, 'O Zu 'l-Qarnain' verily Gog and Magog waste this land, shall we then pay thee tribute, so thou build a rampart between ns and them ?"

"He said, Better than your tribute is the might wherewith my Lord hath strengthened me, but help me strenuously, and I will set a barrier between you and them

"" Bring me blocks of iron,"-until when it filled the space between the mountain sides-'Ply,' said he, 'your bellows,'-until when he had made it red with heat (fire), he said,-· Bring me molten brass that I may pour upon

"And Gog and Magog were not able to scale it, neither were they able to dig through it

"'This,' said he, 'is a mercy from my Lord."

They are also spoken of m Surah xxi 95. 96, as a people who shall appear in the last

"There is a ban on every city which we shall have destroyed, that they shall not arise again,

"Until a way is opened for Gog and Magog, and they shall hasten from every high land.

Al-Baizāwī sava Yājūj and Mājūj are two tribes descended from Japheth the son of Nosh, and some say Yājūj belong to the Turks and Mājūj to the Jūs. (Comp Esskiel axxviii. 2, xxxix. 1, Rev xvi 14, xx 8.)

The sale of gold is only lawful when it is exactly equal in point of weight, for Muhammad said, "Sell gold for geld, from hand to hand, at an equal rate according to weight, for any inequality in point of weight is usury"

(Idem, vol ii 552)

"It is not lawful for a man or woman to eat or drink out of gold or silver vessels" (Idem, vol. vi 86)

GOLIATH Arabic Jālūt (حالي)
The giant whom King David slew Mentaoned in the Quran Sürah ii 251 "And when they went forth to battle against Jālūt and his army, they said, 'O Lord, give us patience, and strengthen our feet, and help us against the infidels!" Therefore they discomfited them by the will of God, and David slew Jālūt!

The commentators have not ventured to give any account of Jalut.

GOMORRAH Arabic Ghamūrah (5)04) Not mentioned by name in the Qūr'an, but Sadūm wa (hamūrah are un derstood to be the "overturned cities" referred to in Sūrahs ix 71, lxix 9

GOOD WORKS Arabic as-Sālikāl (الساليات) According to the teaching of the Qur'an, good works without faith will not save from the torments of hell.

Strah xviii 108-5 "Shall we tell you who are they that have lost their labour most, whose efforts in the present his have been mistaken, and who deemed that what they did was right? They are those who believed not in the signs of the Lord, or that they should ever meet Him Vain, therefore, are their works, and no weight will we allow them on the day of Resurrection"

Faith in the above is belief in the mission of Muhammad all Muslims being considered in a state of grace, no matter what their actions may be. With reference to the good deeds of Muslims, the following is the teaching of Muhammad, as recorded in the Traditions

(Michkat, book z chap. 111 ) -

"When a man is brought to Islam and he performs it well, God covers all his former sins, and he gets ten rewards for every good act, up to seven hundred, and even more than that, whereas the reward of misdeeds is as one to one, unless God passes that over likewise"

"There are three persons whose actions are not written, one a person asleep until he awakes, the second, a boy not arrived at puberty, the third, a madman until he recovers his reason."

"Verily, God recordeth both the good deeds and the evil deeds. He who has proposed to do evil, and did not do it, for him God recordeth one perfectly good deed. And he who intended to do good and put his mientions into practice, for him God recordeth from ten to seven hundred good deeds (according to their merits). And he who intended to do evil but did it not, God recordeth one good act, but he who intendeth to do evil send doeth it, for him God recordeth one evil deed."

"Verily, the condition of that person who does evil and after that good deeds, is like the condition of a man with tight armour on, which has troubled him. He does one good deed and the rings of the armour become open. He does another good deed, and the armour talls from his body "

"Verily there was a man amongst those who were before you to whom the angel of death came to take his soul, and he was asked 'Have you done any good act?' He said in answer, 'I do not remember that I have done any good.' It was said to him, 'Look well into yourself, and consider if you have done any good work. He said, 'I do not find any good in myself, except that I used to buy and sell in the world and used to claim my right from the rich, but allowed them their leisure to pay me when they liked, and I forgave the poor' Then God brought that man into paradise."

"An adulteress was forgiven, who passed by a dog at a well, and the dog was holding out his tongue from thirst, which was near killing him. The woman drew off her boot and tied it to the end of her veil, and drew water for the dog, and gave him to drink, and she was forgiven on account of that act. It was asked the Prophet, 'Verily, are there rewards for our doing good to quadrupeds, and giving them water to drink?' He said, 'There are rewards for benefiting every animal having a moist liver ""

"Your smiling in

"Your smiling in your brothers face is aline, and your exhorting mankind to virtuous deeds is aline, and your prohibiting the forbidden is aline, and your showing men the road when they lose it is aline, and your removing assisting the blind is aline, and your removing stones, thorns, and bones, which are inconvenient to man is aline, and your pouring water from your bucket into that of your brother is aline for you."

GOSHAH-NISHIN (کوههٔ کاون) Lit "One who sits m a corner" A Persian term for a devout person who in retirement engages in the contemplation of the Deity

GOSPEL Arabic Injil (انجها). A term applied to the whole of the New Testament scriptures [NEW TESTAMENT]

GRAMMAR. [ILMU 'L-ADAB]

GRANDFATHER. Arabic jadd (44) If a father die without appointing an executor, the grandfather represents

And m making contracts of mar the father mage, the grandfather has precedence of an executor, although the executor takes precedense in managing the property (Hadayah, vol. iv p 555) in case of the father being poer, it is the duty of the grandfather to act for his grandehild in the distribution of alms &c. (Idem, vol ii p 244)

GRANDMOTHER Arabic jaddah (4up) If the mother of an infant die, the right hizaneh, or guardianship, rests with the maternal grandmother in preference to the paternal, but if she be not living the paternal grandmother has the right prior to any other relation The paternal grandmother in also entitled to a sixth of the effects of a child of her son, if the child's mother be dead, as being the mother's sbare (Hidayah vol 1 p 886)

GRAVE Arabio qabi (قسر), Heb The graves of Muhammadans are so dug as to allow the body to lie with its face towards Makkah, consequently in India they are dug from north to south It is usual to dig a grave the depth equal to the height of the breast of a middle-sized man, and to make a recess at the bottom, which is called land, in which the body is placed. The body having been placed in this recess, it is closed with unburnt bricks, and the grave is filled with earth and a mound raised over it

The Traditions of Muhammad, as well as the works of Muslim doctors, all teach that a dead body is conscious of pain and there fore great care is taken to prevent any pressure upon the body

'Amir relates that his father Sa'd ibn Abi Waqqas said on his death bed, "Make a land for me towards Makkah and put unburnt bricks upon my grave, as was done in the case of the Prophet (Schiku Muslim p 211)
Sufyan at Tammar relates that he 'saw the

Prophet's grave, and the top of it was like a camel's buck " (Sahihu | Bukhari)

Ibn 'Abbas says "a red cloth was placed upon the Prophet's grave" (Mishkat, book

Jabir says "the Prophet prohibited building with mortar on graves, and also placing inscriptions upon them" (Mishkat, book v c vi) But notwithstanding this tradition (which is acted upon by the Wahhabis), masonry tombs are most common in all parts of Islam, and form some of the most striking specimens of Muhammadan architecture TOM B&

GRAVE, The Punishments of the ['AZABU 'L-QABR ]

GREEKS Arabic or-Rum (الروم), by which is meant the Byzantine or Eastern GREEKS Empire In the xxxth chapter of the Qur'an. entitled the Suratu 'r-Rum, or the 'Chapter of the Greeks," there is a reference to the defeat of the Byzantine power by the Perstans with a supposed prophecy of future successes The chapter begins thus — "Alti Lam Mim THE GREEKS have been defeated

"In a land hard by But after their defeat they shall defeat their foes,

"In a few years First and last is the affan with God And on that day shall the faitnful rejoice

'In the aid of their God He aideth whom Ho will, and He is the Mighty, the Merciful.
"It is the promise of God. To his promise God will not be untrue but most men knew if not "

Following al Baixawi, the Jalalan, and other commentators, Sale remarks that-

The accomplishment of the prephecy contained in this passage, which is very famous among the Muhammadans, being insisted en by their doctors as a convincing proof that the Qur'an really came down frem heaven, it may he excusable to be a little particular

The passage is said to have been revealed on occasion of a great victory obtained by the Persians over the Greeks, the news whereof coming to Makkah, the infidels became strangely elated, and began to abuse Muhammad and his followers, imagining that this success of the Persians, who, like themselves, were idolators, and supposed to have no scriptures, against the Christians, who pretended as well as Muhammad to worship one God and to have divine scriptures, was an carnest of their own future successes against the Prophet, and those of his religion, to check which vain hopes it was forefold in the words of the text, that how improbable acever it might seem, yet the scale should be turned m a few years, and the vanquished Greeks prevail as remarkably against the Persians That this prophecy was exactly fulfilled, the commentators fail not to observe, though they do not exactly agree in the accounts they give of its accomplishment, the number of years between the two actions being not placesely determined. Some place the victory gained by the Persians in the fifth year before the Hijrah, and their defeat by the Greeks in the second year after it, when the battle of Badr was fenght, others place the former in the third or fourth year before the Hijiab, and the latter in the end of the sixth or beginning of the seventh year after it. when the expedition of al Hudashiyah was undertaken. The date of the victory gained by the Greeks in the first of these accounts, interferes with a story which the commentators tell of a wager laid by Abu Bakr with Ubasy ibn Khalf, who turned this prephecy into ridicule Abu Bakr at first laid ten young camels that the Persians should receive an overthrow within three years, but on his acquainting Muhammad with what he had done, that Prophet told him that the word bi 2, made use of in this passage, signified no determinate number of years, but any number from three to mine (though some suppose the tenth year is included), and therefore advised him to prolong the time and to raise the wager, which he accordingly proposed to Ubsiy, and they agreed that the time assigned should be nine years and the wager a hundred camels Before the time was elapsed, Ubany died of a wound received at Uhud, in the third year of the Hijrah; but the event afterwards showing that Abit Bakr had won, he received the samels of Ubay's heirs, and brought them in triumph to Muhammad History informs us that the successes of Khosru Parvis, King of Persis, who carried or a terrible war against the Greek empire, to revenge the death of Maurice, his fatherin-law, slain by Phonas, were very great, and continued in an uninterrupted course for twoand-twenty years Particularly in the year of Christ 615 about the beginning of the sixth year before the Hijrah, the Porsians, maving the preceding your conquered Syria, made themselves masters of Palestine and took Jerusalsm, which seems to be that signal advantage gained over the Greeks mentioned in this passage, as agreeing best with the terms here used, and most likely to alarm the Araba by reason of their vicinity to the scene of sotion, and there was so little probability st that time of the Greeks being able to re trieve their losses much less to distress the Persians, that in the following years the arms of the latter made still farther and more considerable progresses, and at length they laid siege to Constantinople itself. But in the year 625, in which the fourth year of the Hijrah began, abut ten yours after the taking of Jerusalem, the Greeks, when it was least expected, gained a remarkable victory over the Persians, and not only obliged them to quit the territories of the empire by carrying the war into their own country, but drove them to the last extremity and spoiled the capital city al-Madayin, Heraclius en joying thenceforward a continued sories of good fortune, to the deposition and death of Khoeru (Sale's Koran, in loco)

GROVE, The Alabic Askah ( [ [] The Ashabu 'l Atkah, or "the people of the Grove," are mentioned four times in the Quran, Surehe xv 78, xxvi 176, xxvii 21, 1 13, as being a tribe or class of people who treated the prophets as liars The following particulars regarding them are given in Surah zzvi 170 –

" The people of the grove of Madyan treated the Apostles as hars.

"When Shu'alb their brother sam to them,

· Will ye not fear God?

"I truly am your trustworthy Apostle. "Fear God, then, and obey me

"No reward ask I of you for this my reward as of the Lord of the Worlds alone"

GUARDIANSHIP Guardianship over a mmor is of two kinds (43)) or guardianship of the property and education and marriage of the ward, and hisanak (alle), or guardianship over the rearing and bringing up of the child

Quardians are either so by matural right or by testament, or by appointment by a judge.

The guardianship of a minor for the management and preservation of his property devolves first on his or her father, then on the father's executor, next on the paternal grandfather, then on his executor, then on the executors of such executors, next on the ruling power or his representative, the Qari, or judge In default of a father, father's father, and their executors, as above, all of whom are termed near guardians, it rests in the Qaşî to appoint a gnardian of an infant's property The other paternal kinsmen who ere termed remote kindred, and the mother succeed according to proximity, to the guar-drauship of an infant for the purpose of education and marriage; they have no right to be guardians of his property, unless ap-pointed to be so by the ruling authority, or in the original proprietors will, proved by competent witnesses. The mother's right of guardianship is, however, forfeited upon her being remarried to a stranger, but regained when she is divorced by him, and has again become a widow

In default of the mother se well as of the paternal kindred of a minor, his maternal relations are, according to proximity entitled to guardianship for the purposes of education and marriage, and not for the management of his property, unless so appointed in the late owners will or by the Qazī

The general rule is that a guardian, executor, or anyone who has the care of the person and properly of a minor can enter into a contract which is or likely to be advantageous and not injurious to his ward

A guardian may sell or purchase moveables on account of his ward, either for an equivalent or at such a rate as to occasion an incom sidorable loss but not at such a rate as to make the loss great and apparent (Hidayah

vol 14 p 553)
A guardian is allowed to borrow money for the support and education of his ward, even by pawning the minor's property the debt so contracted must be paid out of his (the minor's) estate or by him when he comes of age It is not lawful for a guardian to pledge into his own bands goods belonging to his ward on account of a debt due to him or into the hands of his child being an infant, or into the hands of his slave being a merchant and free from debt (Hidayah, vol 1v p.

214)
A father can pawn the goods of his infant child into his own hands for a debt due from the child, or into the hands of another of his children being an infant

A father may also pawn on account of his own debt the goods belonging to his minor son, who on coming of age will redsem the goods discharging the debt, and have a claim on the father for the sum

The contract of pawn entered into by a father with respect to his minor child's goods cannot be annulled by the minor, even if it were not for his own debt or for his own benefit

The mother is, of all the persons, the best entitled to the custody (hizanah) of her infant child during marriage and after separation from her husband, unless she be an apostate, or wicked, or unworthy to be trusted. (Fatāwā i 'Alamgiri, vol. i p 728)

Next the mother's mother how high scever is entitled to the custody (hizana) of a child; failing her by death, or marriage to a stranger, the full sister is entitled, failing her by death or marriage to a stranger, the half-sister by the mother failure of her m the same way the daughter of the full sister, then the daughter of the half-sister by the mother Next the maternal aunt in the same way, and then the paternal aunte also in like manner (Fatāwā-i-Alam giri, vol. i p 728.)

An umm-s-walad (or a female slave who has borne a child to her master), when emanci-pated, obtains the right of taking her child

(Hidayah, vol. i. p. 889)

When it is necessary to remove a boy from the custody of women, or there is no woman of his own people to take charge of him, he is to be given up to his agnate male relatives ('asabah). Of these the father is the first, then the paterna grandfather, how high scever, then the full brother, then the half-brother by the father, then the son of the full brother, then the son of the half-brother by the father, then the full paternal uncle, then the half paternal uncle by the father then the sons of paternal uncles in the same order But though a boy may he given up to the son of his paternal uncle a girl should not be entrusted to him

No male has any right to the custody of a female child, but one who is within the prohibited degrees of relationship to her, and an 'aşābak who is profligate has no right to her oustody (Fatāwā i. Alamgiri, vol. 1 p 729)

A female's custody of a boy terminates when he is seven years old, and of a girl at her puberty

Vale custody of a boy continues till puberty, of a female not only till puberty, but till she can be safely left to herself and trusted to take oare of herself

When a female has neither father nor grandfather nor any of her 'asaboh to take charge of her, or the 'aşābah is protigate, it is the duty of the judge to take orgnizance of her condition, and if she can be trusted to take care of herself, he should allow her to live sione, whether she be a virgin or a sanyi-dah, and if not, he should place her with some female amin, or trustee, in whom he has con fidence, for he is the superintendent of all Musims. (Fatawa-1-'Alamort, vol. 1 p 730)

When a mother refuses to take charge of a child without hire, it may be committed to another

A boy or girl having passed the period of hizanah, has no option to be with one parent in preference to the other, but must neces-sarily thenceforth remain in charge of the father (Hudiyah, vol 1. p. 889)

Before the completion of uddah, or dissolution of marriage, the proper place of bisanak is that where the husband and wife live, and the former cannot take away the child out of the custody of the latter After completien of her 'iddah, and separation from her husband, a woman can take her child to the place of her nativity, provided the marriage had been contracted there or it is so near from the place of separation or husband's residence, that if the husband should leave the latter in the morning to visit the child, he can return to his residence before night There is also no objection to her removing with the child from a village to the city or chief town of the district, the same being advantageous to the child, and in no respect injurious to the father. If the child's mother he dead, and its hizanah or custody has passed to the maternal grandfather, she can-not remove the child to her own city, though the marriago had taken place there Other women than the grandmother are like her in raspect to the place or hezanah

When an umm 1-would har been emancipated, she has no right to take her child from the city in which the father is residing

(Hidayah, vol 1 , Futawa i-'Alamgiri, vol L, Durru l-Mukhtar, p. 846 Tami'u 'r-Rumuz, Tagore Lectures, 1879, Baulie's Digest, p 43Õ)

GUEST Arabic zaif ( ). [HOSPITALITY]

(گــرز) GURZ (1) The Persian word for the mitrayah, or iron mace, wherewith the infidel dead are emitten in their graves by the angels Munker and Nakir [ AEABU 'L QABR.]

(2) An iron mace pointed at one end and having a knob at the other covered with epikes, and used by the Gurz Mar, or Rufa'i faqirs for striking against their breasts in their devotional exercises. (Qanun-1-Islam,

p 291)

H.

HABA' ( Dust," especially the finer particles which fly about and are only conspicuous in the sun's rays

A term used by the Sufi myetics for those portions of matter (hayela) which God has distributed in creation. ('Abdu 'r-Razzaq's Dict of Sufi Terms.)

HABIB AN-NAJJAR (مبيب النجار) "Habib the Carpenter," whose story is told in the Qur'an (Sûrah xxxv. 12), as follows -

"Set forth to them the instance of the people of the city (se of Antioch) when the Sent Ones came to it

"When we sent two (i.e. John and Jude) unto them and they charged them both with imposture—therefore with a third (i.e Simon Peter) we strongthened them and they said. 'Verily we are the Sent unto you of God'

"They said, "Ye are only men like us Nought hath the God of Mercy sent down

Ye do nothing but ite.'

"They said, 'Our Lord knoweth that we are surely sent unto you,

""To procisim a clear message is our only duty'

"They said, Of a truth we augur ill from you, if ye deset not we will surely stone you and a grievous punishment will surely betall

"They said, 'Your augury of ill is with yourselves Will ye be warned? Nay, ye are an erring people

"Then from the end of the city a man (1 & Habib, the carpenter) came running He said 'O my people' follow the Sent Ones, "'Follow those who ask not of you a recompense and who are rightly guided "And why should I not wership Him who made me, and to whom ye shall be brought back?

" Shall I take gods hoside Him? If the God of mercy be pleased to afflict me, their intercession will not avert from me aught, nor will they deliver " Truly then should I be in a manifest error "" Verily, in your Lord have I believed, therefore hear me?

44—It was said to him, Enter thou into Paradisa (i.e after they had atomed him to death). And he said 'Oh that my people knew

"'How gracious (lod hath been to mu and that He hath made me one of His honoured

"But no army sent we down out of heaven after his deah, nor were we then sending down our angels-

"There was but one shoul from Gubriel, and lo! they were extract

Oh! the musery that rests upon my servants! No apostle cometh to them but they laugh him to soorn?

Al Baisaws, the commentator, says the people of the City of Antiach were idolaters and that Jesus sent two of his disciples, Yahya and Yunas (John and Jude) to preach to them And when they arrived, they met Habib, the carpanies, to whom they made known their mission. Habib said, "What signs can ve show that ye are sent of God?" And the dissiples replied, "We can beat the sick and give sight to those who are boin blind, and cure the leprosy" Then Habib brought his sick son to them and they laid their hands And Habib upon him and he was healed believed on Jesus, and he made known the gospol to the people of the city. Many of the people then came to the disciples and were also healed. The news then reached the car of the governor of the city, and he sent for the two disciples and they preached to him the replied, "In your God different from our God?" They said "Yes He is as who is they said thy gods." The governor than sent them away and put them in prison When they were in prison, Jesus sent Sham'im (Simon Peter), and he came secretly and made friends with the servants of the governor, and in time gained access to the governor's presence, and performed a miracle in the presence of the governor by raising a child who had been dead seven days The child when raised from the dead, said he had seen Jesus Christ in heaven, and that he had interceded for the three disciples in prison. The governor believed and many others with him. Those who did not believe raised a disturbance in the city, and Habib the carpenter exhorted them to believe For this he was stoned, and, having died, entered into Paradise.

Habib's tomb is still seen at Antioch and is visited by Mahammadans as a shrine,

HABIL (هبيل) [ADEL]

HABWAH (690). The posture of sitting with the legs and thighs contracted towards the bally the back bonk forwards, and supported in that position by the arms crossed over the knees Muslims are forbidden to sit in this posture during the re-cital of the Khutbah on Fridays (Michkat book iv p 45, pt 2) as it inclines to drowsmess

HADAS (44) State of an unclose person of one who has not performed the usual ablutions before prayer mitive sense hadd signines "obstruction." whence a porter or gate-keeper is called haddad or "obstructer," from his office of prohibiting people from entering. In law it expresses the punishments, the limits of which have been defined by Muhammad either in the Qur'an ci in the Hadis. These punishments are '1) For adultary, stoning, (2) For furneca tion, a hundred stripes, (3) For the false accusation of a married person with adultary (or Qas)), eighty stripes, (4) For apostusy desth, (5) For drinking wine, eighty stripes, (6) For theft, the cutting off of the right hand, (7) For highway where, for simple roobery of the Highway, the loss of hands and feet, for robbery with murder death, either by the sword or by crucilizion (Hidayak vol. 11 p 1 [PUNISHMENT]

(الحديد) AL HADID " Iron ' The title of the Lvuth Surah of the Quran in which the word occurs (verse 25) "We sent down from in which are both keen violence and advantage to men."

HADIS (tento) What happens for the first time new, fresh That which is horn in time as opposed to qudim, or that which is without a beginning, as God.

HALIS ( ), pl ahudis TRA-DITION

HADIS QUDSI (محدوث مدسى A relates a revelation from God in the language of the Prophet An example is found in the Michkat (book is a pt 1) "Abu Hurairah said, 'The Prophet of God islated these words of Gad, "The sons of Adam vex me, and abuse the age, whereas I am The AGE itself: In my hands are all events I have made the day and mght"."

HADIYAH (4428) A present or referring made to persons of consequence, kings or rulers

HADY (acc) Cattle sacrificed at Makkab during the Prigrimage, as distinguished from animals sacrificed on the Great Festival, which are called uzbiyuh. These animals are branded and sent off with strings round their necks, as offerings to the sacred temple. They may be bullocks, or camels, or sheep, or goats (Mishkāt, book xi. c viii.)

HĀFIZ (1816) Let "A guardian" or protector (1) One of the names of God, al-Hāfiz (2) A governor, e.g. Hāfizu'l-Bart, the guardian of the Yakkan temple (3) One who has committed the whole of the Qur'an to memory

"Usman relates that the Prophet said "The best person amongst you is he who has learnt the Qur'an and teaches it. (Mishkat, book vii. c 1) In the east it is usual for blind men to commit the Qur'an to memory, and to thus obtain the honourable distinction of Hāpa

HAFSAH (& ) One of Muhammad's wives She was the daughter of 'Umar, and the widow of Khunais, an early convert to Islam She married Muhammad about six months after her former husband's death During the lifetime of the Prophet she was a person of considerable influence in his counsiels, being the daughter of 'Umar She survived Muhammad some years, and has recorded several traditions of his sayings

HAGAR Arabic Hājar () ha)
The slave wife of Abraham and the mother of Ishmael. Al Baizāwī says that Hājar was the slave girl of Sarah, the wife of Abraham, and she admitted her to Abraham, and from her was born Ishmael Sarah became jealous of Hājar (because she had a son), and she demanded of Abraham that he should put both the mother and child away, and he sent them away in the direction of Makkah, and at Makkah God produced for them the spring Zamzam [zamzam] When the tribe of Jurhum saw that there was water in that place, they said to Hājar, "If yon will share with you the milk of our herds," and from that time Makkah became a place of importance (Tafsiru 'l-Basṣāwī, p. 424)

HAIR Arabio sha'r, sha'ar (هور)
Heb אינער

The sale of human hair is unlawful in the same manner as the use of it for any purpose is unlawful. Being a part of the human body, it is necessary to preserve it from disgrace, to which an exposure of it to sale necessarily subjects it. It is related in the traditions that God has cursed women who use false hair (Hidayah, vol. n. p. 439) [Head]

HATTIYAH (Lista). A sect of Muslims founded by Ahmad ibn Hait, who said there were two Gods, one whose existence is from eternity (qadim), i.e. Allah, and the other who is created in time (numaddas), i.e. al Masih (Christ), and that it is he who will judge the world in the last day And he maintained that this is the meaning of the words which occur in the traditions "God created man in his own image." (Kutābs 'l-Tatrifāt, in loco)

HAIWAN (()) The animal creation, which is divided into hairon nating, or rational beings, and hairon saket, or irrational beings [ANIMALS, BRINGS.]

AL-HAIY (""); Heb "]. "The Laving One" One of the ninety-nine attributes of God. The term frequently occurs in the Qur'an.

HA'IZAH (LEL-) A menstruous woman. [MENSTRUATION]

HÄJAR ( [HAGAE ]

AL-HAJARU 'L-ASWAD الحرالاسود) Let "The Black Stone" The famous black stone which forms part of the sharp angle of the Ka'bah in the temple at Makkab Mr Burkhardt says, "It is an irregular oval, about seven inches in diameter, with an undulating surface, composed of about a dozon smaller stones of different eizes and shapes, well joined together with a small quantity of cement, and perfectly well smoothed, it looks as if the whole had been broken into as many pieces by a violent blow, and then united again. It is very difficult to determine accurately the quality of this stone, which has beer worn to its present surface by the millions of touches and kisses it has recoived. It appeared to me like a lava, containing several small extraneous particles of a whitish and of a yellow substance Its colour is now a deep reddish brown approaching to black. It is surrounded on all sides by a horder composed of a substance which I took to be a close coment of pitch and gravel of a similar, but not quite the same, brownish colour. This border serves to support its detached pieces, it is two or three inches in breadth, and rives a little above the surface of the stone Both the horder and the stone steelf are encircled by a silver band, broader below than above, and on the two sides, with a considerable swelling below, as if a part of the stone were hidden under it. The lower part of the border is studded with silver nails"

Captain Burton remarks, "The colour appeared to me black and metallic and the centre of the stone was sunk about two inches below the metallic circle Round the sides was a reddish brown coment, almost level with the metal, and sloping down to the middle of the stone. The band is now a massive arch of gold or silver gilt. I found the aperture in which the stone is, one span and three fingers broad."

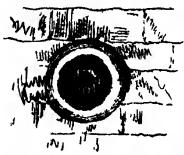

According to Ibn 'Abbas, Muhammad said

the black stone came down from Paradise, and at the time of its descent it was whiter than milk, but that the sine of the children of Adam have caused it to be black, by their touching it. That on the Day of Resurrection, when it will have two eyes, by which it will see and know all those who touched it and kissed it, and when it will have a tongue to speak, it will give evidence in favour of those who touched and kissed it

Maximus Tyrius, who wrote in the second century, says " The Arabians pay homage to I know not what god, which they represent by a quadrangular stone," alluding to the Ka'bah or temple which contains the black stone. The Guebars or Ancient Persians, assert that the Black Stone was amongst the images and relics left by Mahabad and his successors in the Ka'bah, and that it was an emblem of Saturn. It is probably an aerolite and owes its reputation like many others, to its fall from the sky Its existence as an object of adoration in an iconuclastic religious system, can only be accounted for by Mnhammads attempt to conciliate the idelaters of Arabu.

A complete list of the falls of aerolates and meteoric stones through the atmosphere, is published in the Edinburgh Philosophical Journal, from a work by Chiadni in German, in which the subject is ably and fully treated

TER HAJARU 'L-ASWAD. (Burton)

HAJB (+++-) A legal term in the Muhammadan isw of inheritance, signifying the cutting off of an heir from his portion.

who has performed the keyl, or pilgrimage to Makkah. It is retained as a title of honour by those who have performed the pilgrimage, e g Hay: Qasım, i.e. "Qasım the Pilgrim" [East]

HAJJ (ga) Lat "setting out," "tending towards" The pilgrimage to Mak kah performed in the month of Zu 1-Hijah, or the twelfth menth of the Muhammadan year It is the fifth pillar of Muhammadan practical religion, and an incumbent religious duty, founded upon express injunctions in the Qur'an. According to Muhammad it is a divine institution, and has the following autholity in the Qur'an for its due observance -

(It is noticeable that all the verses in the Qur'an with regard to the pelgrimage are in the later Sürahe, when they are arranged in their chronological order.)

Surah xxii. 28 --

"And proclaim to the peoples a PILGRIM-AGE (kay) Let them come to thee on foot and on every fleet camel, arriving by every deep defile

"That they may bear witness of its benefits to them, and may make mention of God's name on the appointed days (i.e. the ten first days of Zū 'l-Hijjah), over the brute beasts with which He hath supplied them for sus-tenance Therefore eat thereof yourselves, and feed the needy, the poor,

"Then let them bring the neglect of their persons to a close, and let them pay their ows, and circuit the ancient House

"This do And he that respecteth the sacred ordinances of God, this will be best for him with his Lord"

Sürah u 158 -

"Verily, as-Safa and al-Marwah are among the signs of God whoever then maketh a pilgrimage (hay) to the temple, or visiteth it, shall not be to blame if he go round about them both. And as for him who of his own accord doeth what is good-God is Grateful, Knowing

Idem, 192

"Accomplish the pilgrimage (hap), and the visitation ('umrah) for God and if ye be hemmed in by foes, send whatever sacrifice shall be the easiest, and shave not your heads until the offering reach the place of sacrifice. But whoever among you is sick or has an atiment of the head, must expiate by fasting, alms or an offering

And when yo are safe from foes, he who contents numself with the visitation ('umrah) until the pilgrimage (hap), shall bring what over offering shall be the easiest. But he who findeth nothing to offer, shall fast three days in the pilgrimage itself, and seven days when ye return they shall be ten days in This is binding on him whose family shall not be present at the sacred Mosque (al-Masjidu 'l-haram). And fear God, and know that God is terrible in punishing

"Let the pilgrimage be made in the months already known (i.e. Shawwal, Zu 'l-Qa'dah, and Zu 'l-Hijjah) whoever therefore undertaketh the pilgrunage therein, let him not know a woman, nor transgress, nor wrangle in the pilgrimage. The good which ye do, God knoweth it And provide for your journey; but the best provision is the fear of God fear me, then, O men of understanding !

'It shall be no crime in you if ye seek an increase from your Lord (s.e. to trade), and when ye pass swiftly on from 'Arafat, then ramember God near the holy temple (oi-Mas-new'l-karam), and remember Him, because He hath guided you who before this were of those who went astray

"Then pass on quickly where the people quickly pass (a c. from 'Arafat), and suk pardon of God, for God is Forgiving, Merciful.

"And when ye have finished your holy rites, remember God as ye remember your own fathers, or with a yet more intense re-membrance! Some men there are who say, O our Lord! give us our portion in this world;' but such shall have no portion in the next life

"And some say, 'O our Lord! give us good in this world and good in the next, and keep us from the torment of the fire

"They shall have the lot which they have merited and God is swift to reokon

"Bear God in mind during the stated days but if any haste away in two days (is after the hap), it shall be no fault in him. And if any tarry longer, it shall be no fault in him, if he foar God. Foar God, then, and know that to Him shall ye be gathered?

Sürah 111 90 -

"The first temple that was founded for mankind, was that in Bakkah (i.e. Makkah) — Blessed, and a guidance to human beings

In it are evident signs, even the standingplace of Abraham (Magamu Ibrahim) and he who entereth it is said. And the pilgrimage to the temple, is a service due to God from those who are able to journey thither "

Surah : 2 ---

"O Believers! violate neither the lites of God, nor the sacred month, nor the offering nor its chambents, (i.e. on the necks of an mais), nor those who piess on to the sacred house (al-Baitu 'l-Haram) seeking favour from them Lord and his good pleasure in them'

The performance of the pilgrimage is in cumbent upon every Muslim, once in his life time, if he be an adult, free same, well in health, and has sufficient money for the expenses of the journey and for the support of his family during his absence

If a woman perform the pigrimage she must do it in company with her husband, or a near relative (mahram). If she can obtain the protection of a near relative and has the necessary expenses for the journey, it is not lawful for her husband to prevent her performing the pilgrimage. This mahram is a near relative whom it is not lawful for her to marry

The Imam ash-Shan'i denies the necessity of such attendance, stating that the Qur'ar makes no such restriction. His objection is, however, met by a Tradition. "A certain man came to the Prophet and said. My wife is about to make the hajj but I am called to go on a warlike expedition." The Prophet said. Turn away from the war and accompany thy wife in the hajj."

For a lawful hap there are three actions which are forz and five which are worth, all the rest are sunuah or musichabb. The farz are to wear no other garment except the shram, to stand in 'Arafat, to make the towaf, or circuit round the Ka'bah

I'he want duties are to etay in al-Muzdalfab to run between Mount as-Safa and Mount al-Marwah, to perform the Ramyu 'r-Rijam, or the casting of the pebbles, if the pilgrims are non Meccays, to make an extra tawaf, to shave the head after the pilgrimage is over

The hajj must be made at the appeinted season Surah ii 193 "Let the pilgrimage be made in the months alread, known' These months are Shawwal, Zû 1-Qa'dah, and the first ten days of Zû 1-Hijah The actual hajj must be in the month Zū 7-Hijah, but the preparations for, and the siyah, or intention of the hajj can be made in the two preceding months. The "unrah, or ordinary visitation ["unrah], can be done at any visitation ["unrah], can be done at any time of the year except on the ninth and four succeeding days of Zu "l-Hiljah. On each of the various loads leading to Mak kah, there are at a distance of about five or six miles from the city stages called Mīqāt. The following are the names On the Madinah road, the stage is called Zū "l-Halifah, on the 'trāq road, Zātu 'Arq, on the Syrian road, Hujfah, on the Najd load, Qarn, on the Yaman road, Yalamlam

THE PILORIN

Tre following is the orthodox way of performing the pilgrimage, founded upon the example of the Prophet himself (See Sahihu 'l-Bukhari, Kitabu 'l Manasik, p. 205)

Upon the pilgrim's arrival at the last stage near Makkah, be bathes himself, and performs two rak'ah prayers, and then divest-ing himself of his clothes, he assumes the pilgrum's sacred robe, which is called thrum This garment consists of two seamless wisppers, one being wrapped round the waist, and the other thrown loosely over the shoulder, the head being left uncovered Sandals may also be worn, but not shoes or boots After he has assumed the pilgrims garb, he must not amoint his head, shave any part of his body, pare his neils, nor wear any other garment than the thram The pilgrim having now entered upon the hajj, faces Makkah, and makes the negat (intention), and says God, I purpose to make the hajj, make this service easy to me and accept it from me." Ho then proceeds on his journey to the sacred city and on his way, as well as at different periods in the pilgrimage, he recites, or sings with a loud voice, the pilgrim's song, called the Taknyak (a word signifying waiting or standing for orders) In Arabic it runs the (as given in the Salubu 'l-Bukhāri, p 210) In Arabic it runs thus Labbarka! Allāhunma! Labbarka! Labbarka! La Shārrka laka! Labbarka! Inna 'l-hamda wa 'n-nı'mata laka, wa 'lmulku laka!

Lä shärska laka!"

Which, following the Persian commentator, 'Abdu'l-Haqq, may be translated as follows "I stand up for Thy service, O God! I stand up!

I stand up! There is no partner with Thee! I stand up!

Verily Thine is the Praise, the Bleesing and the Kingdom!

There is no partner with Thee "" immediately on his arrival at Makkah he performs legal ablutions in the Masjidu I-haram, and then kisses the black stone (al-Hajaru 1-aswad) He then encompasses the Ka'bah seven timee, three times at a quick step or run, and four times at a slow pace These acts are called the tauaf and are performed by commencing on the right and leaving the Kabah on the left Each time as the pilgrim passes round the Ka'bah, he touches the Ruknu 'l-Yamanī, or the Yamanī corner, and kisses the sacred black stone He then proceeds to the Maqama Ibrahim (the place or Abraham), where he recites the 119th verse of the und Surah of the Qur'an, 'Take ye the station of Abraham for a place of prayer," and performs two ruk'ah prayers after which he returns to the black stone and kiases it He then goes to the gate of the temple leading to Mount as-Safa, and from it ascends the hill, recting the 153rd verse of the Hnd Sürah of the Qur'an, "Verily as hafa and al-Marwah are the signs of God." Having arrived at the summit of the mount furning towards the Ka'bah, he recites the following -

"There is no deity but only God! God is great! There is no deity but God alone! He hath performed His promise, and lath aided His servant and hath put to flight the hoste of infidels by Himself alone!"

These words are recited thrice runs from the top of Mount as-Safa to the summit of Mount al-Marwah seven times, repeating the aforesaid prayers on the top of each hill This is the sixth day, the evening of which 18 spent at Makkah, where he again encompasses the Ka'bah

Upon the seventh day he listens to the khutbah, or oration, in the great mosque, in which are set forth the excellences of the prigrimage and the necessary duties required of all true Mushms on the following days

On the eighth day, which is called Tarwiyah, he proceeds with his fellow pilgrims to Mina, where he stays and performs the usual services of the Muslim ritual, and remains the night

The next day (the minth) after morning prayer, he proceeds to Monnt Arafat, where he recites the usual prayers and listons to another khutbah He then leaves for al-Muzdalifah, a place midway between Mins and 'Arafat, where he should arrive for the sunset prayer.

The next day, the tenth, is the Yaumu n-Nutr, or the "Day of Sacrifice," known all through the Muslim world and celebrated as the 'Idu'l-Azhā Early in the morning, the pilgrims having said their prayers at Muzdalifsh, then proceed in a body to three pillars in Mina, the first of which is called the Shaifanu 'l-Kabir, or "Great Devil" The pilgrim casts seven stones at each of those pillars, the ceremony being called the Ramyu 'r-Rejem, or casting of stones Holding the raim, or pebble between the thumb and fore-finger of the right hand, the pilgrim throws it at a distance of not less than fifteen feet, and save-" In the name of God, the Almighty, I do this, and in hatred of the devil and his shame." The remaining six stones are thrown in the same way It is said that this ceremony has been performed ever since the days of Abraham grim then returns to Mins and performs the sacrifice of the 'Idu'l-Azhā The victim may be a sheep, or a goat, or a cow, or a camel, according to the means of the pilgrim

Placing its head towards the Ka bah, its fore-legs being bandaged together, the pilgrim stands on the right side of his victim and plunges the knife into its throat with great force, and cries with a loud voice, 'Allāhu Akhar!" "God is great! O God, accept this sacrifice from me!"

This ceremony concludes the pilgrimage, and the haji or pilgrim then gets himself shaved and his nails paied, and the thram or pilgrim garment is removed Although the pilgrimage is over, he should still rest at Makkah the three following days, which are known as the Ayyamu't-Tashriq, or the days of drying up of the blood of the sacrifice Three well-earned days of rest after the peripatetic performance of the last four days

Before he leaves Makkah he should once more perform the circuits round the Kabah and throw stones at the Satanic pillars at Mina, seven trmes He should also drink of the water of the samzam well.

Most Muslims then go to al-Madinah, and make their salutations at the shrino of Muhammad This is regarded as an incumbent duty by all except the Wahhabis, who hold that to make the visitation of the Prophets tomb a religious coremony is shirk, or aseq-

ciating the cresture with God

From the time the pilgrim has assumed the thram until he takes it off, he must abstain from worldly affairs and devote himself entirely to the duties of the hall lie is not allowed te hunt, though he may catch fish if he can "O Behevers, kill no game while ye are on pilgrimage" (Suish v 96) The Prophot also said "He who shows the place where game is to be found is equally as bad as the man who kills it. The haji must not ecratch himself, lest vermin be destroyed, or a hair be uprooted. Should be feel uncomfortable, ho must rub himself with the open palm of his The face and head must be left uncovered, the hair on the head and beard unwashed and uncut "Shave not your heads until the offering reach the place of sacrifice" (Edrah ii. 192.) On arriving at an alevated place, on descending a valley, on meeting any one, on entering the city of Makkah or the sacred temple, the hair should continually repeat the word "Labbaska, Labbaska", and whenever he sees the Ka'bah he should recite the Takbir, "God is great !" and the Ta'lih "There is no derty but God!"

The pilgramage known as the hajj, as has been already stated, can only be made on the appointed days of the month of Zu 7-Hijjah. A visit at any other time is called the 'Umrah ['umman.] If the pilgrim arrives as late as the ninth day, and is in time to spend that day, he can still perform the pilgrimage legally

The pilgrimage cannot be performed by proxy by Sunni Muslims, but is allowed by the Shi'shs, and it is by both considered a mentorious act to pay the expenses of one who cannot afford to perform it. But if a Muhammadan on his death-bed bequeath a sum of money to be paid to a certain person to perform the pilgrimage, it is considered to satisfy the claims of the Muslim law. If a Muslim have the means of performing the pilgrimage, and omit to do so, its omission is equal to a kabirah, or mortal sin.

According to the saying of the Prophet (Mushkat, book x1 ch 1), the merits of a pilgrimage to Makkah are very great -

"He who makes a pilgrimage for God's sake, and does not talk loosely, nor act wickedly, shall return as pure from sin as the day on which he was born" "Verily, they (the hall and the 'umrah) put away poverty and am like the fires of a forge removes dross The reward of a pilgrimage is para-dise" "When you see a pilgrim, salute and embrace him, and request him to ask pardon of God for you, for his own sine have been forgiven and his supplications will be accepted

For a philological and technical explana tion of the following terms which occur in this account of the hajj, refer to the words as they occur in this dictionary 'ARAFAH, ATTANU 'T-TASHRIQ, HAJARU 'L-ASWAD, HAJI, ihram, marwah, masjidu 'l-Haram, maqamu IBRAHIM, MAHRAM, MIQAT, MUZDALIFAH, TA-WAF, UMBAH, RANYU L-JIMAR, ZAMZAM, TAL-RIYAH, RUK'NU 'L-YAMANI, TARWIAH, KHUT-BAN, 'IDU 'L-AZHA, SAYA.

The Muslim who has performed the pilgrimage is called a han, which title he retains, e.g Han Quem, the Pilgrim Qasim.

Only five Englishmen are known to have visited Makkah, and to have witnessed the ceremonies of the pilgrimage -Joseph Pitts, of Exeter, A.D 1678, John Lewis Burck-hardt, A.D 1814, Lieutenant Richard Burton, of the Bombay Army, AD 1853, Mr H Bicknell, AD 1862, Mr T F Keane, 1880 The narratives of each of these "pilgrims" have been published. The first account in English of the visit of a European to Makkah, is that of Lodovico Bartema, a gentleman of Rome, who visited Makkah in 1508 His narrative was published in Willes and Eden's Decades, A.D 1555

Professor Palmer (" Introduction" to the Qur'an, p. hii.) says .-- "The ceremonics of the pilgrimage could not be entirely done away with. The universal reverence of the Arab for the Kaabah was too favourable and obvious a means for uniting all the tribes into one confederation with one common purpose in view The traditions of Abraham the father of their race, and the founder of Muhammad's own religion, as he always declared it to be, no doubt gave the ancient temple a peculiar sanctity in the Prophet's eyes, and although he first settled upon Jerusalem as his quilah, he afterwards reverted to the Kasbahitself Here, then, Muhammad found a shrine, to which, as well as at which, devotion had been paid from time immemorial, it was one thing which the scattered Arabian nation had in common—the one thing which gave them even the shadow of a national feeling and to have dreamed of abohshing it, or even of duminishing the honours paid to it, would have been madness and ruin to his enterprise. He therefore did the next best thing, he cleared it of idols and dedicated it to the service of God"

Mr Stanley Lane Poole (Introduction to Lane's Selections, p. laxxiv) remarks —

"This same pilgrimage is often urged as a sign of Mohammad's tendency to superstition and even idelatry It is asked how the destroyer of sdols could have reconciled his conscience to the circuits of the Kabah and the veneration of the black stone covered with adoring kisses. The rites of the pil-grimage cannot certainly be defended against the charge of superstation, but it is easy to see why Mohammad enjoined them. They were hallowed to him by the memories of his ancestors, who had been the guardians of the sacred temple, and by the traditional reverence of all his people, and besides this tie of association, which in itself was enough to make it impossible for him to do away with the rites, Mohammad perceived that the worship in the Ka'bah would prove of real value to his religion. He swept away the more idolatrons and immoral part of the ceremonies, but he retained the pilgrimage to Mekka and the old veneration of the temple for reasons of which it is impossible to dispute the wisdom. He well knew the consolidating effect of forming a centre to which his followers should gather, and hence he reasserted the sanctity of the black stone that 'oame down from heaven', he ordained that everywhere throughout the world the Muslim should pray looking towards the Kabah, and he enjoined him to make the pil-grimago thither Mekka is to the Muslim what Jerusalem is to the Jew It bears with at all the influence of centuries of associations It carries the Muslim back to the oradie of his faith, the childhood of his prophet, it reminds him of the struggle between the old farth and the new, of the overthrow of the idols, and the establishment of the worship of the One God And, most of all, it bids him remember that all his brother Muslims are worshipping towards the same sacred spot, that he is one of a great company of believers, united by one faith, filled with the same hopes, reverencing the same thing, worshipping the same God. Mohammad showed his knowledge of the religious emotions in man when he preserved the sanctity of the temple of Islām."

The Makkan pilgrimage admits of no other explanation than this, that the Prophet of Arabia found it expedient to compromise with Arabian idolatry And hence we find the superstition and silly customs of the Haji grafted on to a religion which professes to be both monotheistic in its principle, and iconoclastic in its practices

A careful and critical study of Islam will, we think, convince any candid mind that at first Muhammad intended to construct his religion on the lines of the Old Testament. Abraham, the true Muslim, was his prototype, Moses his law-giver, and Jerusalem his Qublen. But · iroumstances were ever wont to change not nly the Prophet's revelations, but also his moral standards. Makkah became the Qiblah and the spectacle of the Muslim world nowing in the direction of a black stone, whilst they worship the one God, marks tsiam, with its Makkan pilgrimage, as a religion of compromise

Apologists of Islam have endeavoured to shield Muhammed from the solemn charge of having "forged the name of God," but we know of nothing which can justify the act of giving the stupid and unmeaning occemonies of the pilgrimage all the force and sclemnity of a divine enactmetit.

The Walthabis, the Puritans of Islam, regard the circumambulation of the Prophet's tomb as superstitious (as shark, or associating something with God, in fact), but how can they justify the foolish ceremonies of the hajj? If reverence for the Prophet's tomb is shirk, what are the runnings at as-Safa and al-Marwah, the stonings of the pilars, and the kissings of the black stone? No Muslim has ever yet attempted to give a spiritual explanation of the ceremonies of the Makkan pilgrimage, for in attempting to do so he would be charged with the heresy of sherk !

Mr W S Blunt in his Future of Islam, has given some interesting statistics regarding the pilgrimage to Makkah in the year 1880, which he obtained during a residence at Cairo, Damaseus, and Jiddah. The figures, he says, are taken principally from an official record kept for some years past at Jiddah, and checked as far as European subjects are concerned, by reference to the consular gonts residing there

TABLE OF THE MECCA PILGRIMAGE OF 1880

| Nationality of Pilgrims                                                      | Arriving by           | Arriving byLand | Total of Mussul-man populationrepresented. |
|------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----------------------|---------------------|----------------------------------------------------|
| Ottoman subjects including pilgrims from                                     |                       |                     |                                                    |
| Syria and Irak, but not from Egypt or                                        | A #05                 |                     |                                                    |
| Arabia proper                                                                | 8,500                 | 1,000               | 22,000,000                                         |
| Egyptians                                                                    | 5,000                 | 1,000               | 5,000,000                                          |
| Mogrebbins ("people of the West"), that                                      |                       |                     |                                                    |
| 18 to say, Arabio-speaking Mussalmans                                        |                       |                     | ĺ                                                  |
| from the Barbary States Tripoli, Tunis Algiers, and Morocco These are always |                       |                     |                                                    |
| classed together and are not easily distin-                                  |                       |                     |                                                    |
| guishable from each other                                                    | 6,000                 |                     | 18,000,000                                         |
| Arabs from Yemen                                                             | 3,000                 |                     | 2,500,000                                          |
| Owen and Wedi smant                                                          | 3,090                 |                     | 8.000,000                                          |
| ,, ,, Nejd, Assur, and Hasa, most of                                         | 0,0.,0                |                     | 0,000,000                                          |
| them Wahlabites                                                              | _                     | 5,000               | 4,000,000                                          |
| , Hejaz, of these perhaps 10 000                                             |                       | 0,000               |                                                    |
| Moccane                                                                      |                       | 22,000              | 2,000,000                                          |
| Negroes from Soudan                                                          | 2,000                 |              | 10,000,000 (?                                      |
| Zanmbar                                                                      | 1,000                 |                     | 1,500,000                                          |
| Malabari from the Cape of Good Hope                                          | 150                   |                     |                                                    |
| Persians                                                                     | 6 000                 | 2,500               | 8,000,000                                          |
| Indians (British subjects)                                                   | 15,000                | _                   | 40,000,000                                         |
| Malays, chiefly from Java and Dutch subjects                                 | 12,000                | _                   | 30,000,000                                         |
| Chinese                                                                      | 100                   | _                   | 15,000,000                                         |
| Mongols from the Khanates, included in the                                   |                       |                     |                                                    |
| Ottoman Haj                                                                  |                       | _                   | 6,000,000                                          |
| Lazis, Circassians, Tartars, &c. (Russian                                    |                       | }                   |                                                    |
| subjects), included in the Ottoman Haj                                       | -                     | _                   | 5,000,000                                          |
| Independent Afghans and Beluchis, included                                   |                       |                     | 0.000.000                                          |
| in the Indian and Persian Hajs                                               |                       |                     | 8,000,000                                          |
| Total of pilgrims present at Aralat                                          | 98.950                |                     |                                                    |
|                                                                              | Total Census of Islam |                     | 175,000,000                                        |

(حجة الرداع) 'L-WADA' (حجة الرداع) The last or farewell pilgrimage performed by Muhammad, and which is taken as the model of an orthodox haji It is called the Hajju Lakhar, or Grester Pilgrimage in the Quran. Surah ix 3 (See Mishkät, book xi cb in, and Muir's Life of Mahomet) It is supposed to have commenced February 28, A.D 632.

HAJJ MABRUR (حج مبرور) approved or accepted pilgrimage (Mishkut, book xi ch i pt. 2) A pilgrimmage to Makkah performed according to the conditions of Muslim law

An arbitrator appointed by a quest to settle disputes It is not lawful to appoint either a slave or an unbeliever or a slauderer, or an inlaut, as an

According to the Qur'an, Surah iv 39, domestic quarrels should be settled by an arbitrator -" If ye fear a breach between the two (as husband and wife) then appoint an arbitrator from his people, and an arbitrator from her people?

Al-Hakam, the Abstrator, is one of the mnety-nine attributes of God, although it is not so employed in the Qur'an

HAKIM (ماكم) "A just ruler"
The term Ahkamu'l Hakimin, "the Most Just of Rulers, is used for God, Qur'an, Sürah xev 8, also, Khairu 'l-Hākimin, i e "Best of Rulers," Sūrah vu 85

HAKIM (مكيم), pl hukamā', Heb Let "A wise person" (1) A . תַכַם philosopher (2) A doctor of medicine (3) Al-Hukim, "The Wise One" One of the ninety-nine attributes of God It frequently occurs in the Quran, eg Surah ii 123 "Thou art the Mighty and the Wise'

HĀL (المال) A state, or condition A term used by the Sufi mystics for those thoughts and conditions which come upon the heart of man without his intention or desire, such as sorrow, or fear or pleasure, or desire, or last If these conditions are stable and in transient, they are called malkah or mayam, but if they are transient and fleeting, il ey are called hal. (Abdu 'r-Razzaq's Dictionary of Suf : Tirms )

A state of ecstasy induced by continued contemplation of God It is considered a divine gift and a sure prognostication of speedily arriving at "The Truth"

Professor Palmer says (Oriental Mysticism, p 66), "This assiduous contemplation of startling metaphysical theories is exceedingly attractive to an Oriental mind, and not unfrequently produces a state of mental excitement akin to the phenomena observed during the recent religious revivals. Such ecstatic state is considered a sure prognosti cation of direct illumination of the heart by God, and constitutes the fifth stage (in the mystic journey) called hal or ocstase

HALĀL (ملال) Lit "That which is united or loosed" That which is lawful as distinguished from haram, or that which is unlawful

AL-HALIM (حليم) "The Clement." One of the ninety-mne attributes of God. It eccurs in the Quran, eg Surah ii 225 "God is forgiving and clement"

Let "Things HAMĀ'IL (حمائل) anspended " An smulet or charm [AMOLET]

HAMĀLAH (Dums) Compensation for manulaughter or murder, called also diyah [DIYAH]

HAMALATU 'L-ARSH (LL. Lit "Those who bear the (العرعر throng, Certain angels mentioned in the Quran, Surah xl 7 "Those who bear the throng." throne (ie the Hamulatu 'l-'Arsh) and those around it (is the Karubin) colobrate the praise of their Lord, and believe in Him, and ask pardon for those who believe"

Al Baghawi, the commentator, says they are eight angels of the highest rank are so tell that their feet stand on the lowest strate of the earth and their heads reach the highest heavens, the universe does not reach up to their navels, and it is a journey of seven hundred years from their ears to (Al Baghawi, Bombay their shoulders! edition, vol 1) p 23)

HAMAN (هامان) The prime minister of Pherach Mentioned in the Qur an in three different chapters Sürah xxviii 7 "For suiners were Pha-rach and Haman"

Surah xxix 38, "Korah (Qurun) and Pha-tach and Human' with proofs of his mission did Moses come to them and they behaved proudly on the earth " Surab zl. 38 -

' And Pharach said, 'O Haman, build for me a tower that I may reach the avenues "'The avenues of the beavens, and may mount to the God of Moses, for I verily deem him a liar''

Some European critics think that Muhammnd has here made Haman the favourite of Ahasnerus and the enemy of the Jews, the vizier of Pharach The Rabbins make this virier to have been Korah Jethro, or Balaam.

(Midr Julkut on Er ch 1, Sect 162-168)
In the Mishküt (book iv ch i pt 3), there is a tradition that Muhammad said he who neglects prayers will be in hell with Korah, Pharach, Hāmān, and Ubaiv thin Khalf (an in fidel whem Muhammad slow with his own hand at the battle of Uhud)

AL-HAMD (المحد), the "Praise" A title of the first chapter of the Qurun According to Kitabu | Tarrifat, "praise (hamd) of God is of three kinds -

(1) Al hamdu I-Quidi, the praise of God with the tongue, with those attributes with which He has made known Himself (2) Alhandu'l-Fr'li, the praise of God with the body according to the will of God (8) Al-hande I Hali, the praise of God with the heart and spirit

"The Laud-الحبيد) AL-HAMID (الحبيد) able." The One worthy of praise. One of the ninety-nine attributes of God. It fre-quently occurs in the Quran, e.g. Sürah xi. 76, "Verily He is to be pressed."

الم ميم) HÀ MIM (ما ميم). Seven Sürahs of the Qur'un begin with the letters C a, p m, and are called al-Hawamim. They are the EL, KLI, KLII, KLII, KLIV, KLV, and KLVI Various opinions are held by Muhammadan commentators as to the meaning of these mysterious letters. Jelain 'd-din as-Suyūtī in his Itque, says these letters are simply unitial latters, the meaning of which is known only to God, but Ibn 'Abbas says the letters &, and e m, stand for Ruhman," the Merciful," one of the attributes of God

Mr Rodwell, in his Introduction to the Koran, says, " Possibly the letters Ha, Mim, which are prefixed to numerous successive buras were private marks, or initial letters, attached by their proprietor to the copies furnished to Said when effecting his recension of the text under Othman. In the same way, the letters prefixed to other Suras may be monograms, or abbreviations, or initial letters of the names of the persons to whom the copies of the respective Suras belonged.

HAMRAU 'I-ASAD (July 1946) A village or small town, the scene of one of Muhammad's expeditions against the Quraish Having reached thus spot he kindled five hundred fires to make the Quraish believe that the pursuing force was very large, and, contentung himself with this demonstration, he returned to al-Madinah, from which it was about 60 mules According to Burton, it is the modern Wasitah.

"At Hamra al Asad, Mahomet made prisoner one of the enemy, the poet Abu Ozza, who had loitered behind the rest. He had been taken prisoner at Bedr, and, having five daughters dependent on him, had been freely released, on the promise that he would not again bear arms in the war against the Prophet. He now sought for mercy 'O Mahometl' he prayed, 'forgive me of thy grace' 'Nay, verily,' said the Prophet 'a believer may not be twice hitten from the same hole. Thou shalt never return to Merca, stroke thy beard and say, I have again deceived Mahemet Lead him forth to execution! 'So saying, he motioned to a bystander, who with his sword struct off the captive's head" (Muir's Lafe of Mahomet, new ed. p 276)

HAMZAH (500) Muhammad s uncle, who embraced Islam and became one of its bravest champions. He was at the battle of Uhud and slew Usman, one of the leaders of the Quraish, but was soon afterwards himself killed by a wild negro named Wahahi, and his dead hody shamefully mutilated. At his death Muhammad is recorded to have said that Hamsah was "the lion of God and of His Apostle." The warlike deeds of Hamzah are recorded in Persian poetry, in which he is celebrated as Amir Hamsah.

HAMZĪYAH (عمرية). A sect of Muslims founded by Hamzah ibn Adrak, who say that the children (infants) of infidels will be consigned to the Fire of Hell, the general belief of Muhammadans being that they will have a special place in al-A'raf (Kıtabu't-Tairifat, in loco )

HANAFI (حنيقى), HANIFI (حنيقى) A member of the sect of Sunnis founded by the Imam Abu Hanifah. [ABU HANIFAH.]

[IBN HANBAL.] HANBAL

HANBALI (حببلي) A member of the Hanbali sect of Sunni Muslims. IRM HAMBAL ]

HAND Arabic yad (عد), pl ayādī Heb T

(1) It is a rule with Muslims to honour the right hand above the left, to use the right hand for all honourable purposes, and the left for actions which, though necessary, are unclean. The hands must be washed before prayers [ABLUTIONS] and before meals

(2) The expression yadu 'llah, the " hand of God," occurs in the Qur'an —

Surah v 69 ' The Jews say, ' God's hand is fettered', their hands are fettered, for they are cursed."

Sürah xlvın. 10 "God's hand is above their hands"

There is a controversy between the orthodox Sunnis and the Wahhabis regarding the expression, "God's hand" The former maintaining that it is a figurative expression for the power of God, the latter holding that it is leteral, but that it is impossible to say in what sense or manner God has a hand, for as the essence of God is not known, how can the manner of His existence be understood?

HANDKERCHIEFS The custom of keeping a handkerchief in the hand, as is frequently practised, is said to be abominable Many, however, hold that it is al-(makruh) lowable, if done from motives of necessity, This, says Abu Hanifah, is approved, for the practice is abominable only when it is dono estentationaly (Hidayah, vol. p 95)

HANIF (Late), pl hunafa' Lat.
"One who is inclined (1) Anyone sincered in his inclination to Islam (2) One orthodox in the faith (3) One who is of the religion of Abraham (See Majma'u 'l-Bihar, in loco) The word occurs ten times in the Qur'an

I -Six tunes for the religion of Abraham -

Surah u 129 "They say, Be ye Jews or Christians so shall ye be guided! Say 'Not so!' but the faith of Abraham, the Hani, he was not of the idolaters.

Sürah in. 60 "Abraham was not a Jew nor yet a Christian, but he was a Hamif resigned, and not of the idolaters

Idem, 89 "Follow the faith of Abraham, a Hanif, who was not of the idolaters"

Sürah vi 162. "The tauh of Abraham the Monif, he was not of the idelaters"

Sürah zvi 121 "Verily Abraham was an Imam, o Hanif, and was not of the idolaters" Surah vi. 79 (Abraham said) "I have turned my face to Hum who originated the heaven and the earth as a Hany, and I am not of the ideleters"

IL-Four times for one sound in the faith .

Sürah x 105 '" Make steadfast thy face to the religion as a Hanif, and be not an idolater

Sürah xxii 32 "Avoid speaking falsoly being Hanifs to God, not associating aught

Sürah zevili 4 "Being sincere in religion unto Him, as Hanifs, and to be steadfast in prayer "

Surah xxx 29 "Set thy face steadfast towards the religion as a Manif"

III -The term was also applied in the early stages of Islam, and before Muhammad claimed the position of an inspired prophet, to those who had endeavoured to search for the truth among the mass of conflicting dogmas and superstations of the religions that existed in Arabia Amongst these Hamis were Waragah, the Prophet's cousin, and Zaid ibn Amr. surnamed the Enquirer They were known as Hamis, a word which originally meant "inclining one's stops toward anv-thing," and therefore against either a convert or a pervert Muhammad appears from the above verses (when chronologically arranged), to have first used it for the relagion of Abisham, but afterwards for any sincere professor of Islam

الميةة) HAQIQAH "Truth, sincerity 3

(1) The essence of a thing as meaning that by being which a thing is what it is As when we say that a intional animal is the haquoh of a human being (See Kitabu't-Tarifat

(2) A word or phiase used in its proper or original sense, as opposed to that which is figurative A speech without trope or

figure

(8) The sixth stage in the mystic journey of the Sufi, when he is supposed to receive a revelation of the true nature of the God head, and to have arrived at "the Truth"

'L - MUHAM-AL - HAQIQATU (العليقة المحمدية) MADIYAH original essence of Muhammad, the Nur : Muhammadiyah or the Light of Muhammad, which is believed to have been created before all things (Kitabu 't-Ta'rifat, in loco.)

The Wahhabis do not believe in the preexistence of their Prophet, and the doctrine us most probably an invention of the Suff

mystics in the early stages of Islam

According to the Imuin Quatalani (Mu wahrb-s laduniya vol 1 p. 12), it is related by Jabir ibn 'Abd, 'llah al-Anser, that the Pro phet said, "The first thing created was the light of your Prophet which was created from the light of God This light of mine roamed about wherever God willed, and when the Almighty resolved to make the world, he divided this light of Muhammad into four portions, from the first he created the Pen (quiam), from the second, the Tablet (laud), from the third, the highest heaven and the throne of God ('arsh), the fourth portion was divided into four sections from the first were created the Hamalatu 1- Arch, or the eight angels who support the throne of God , from the second, the kursi, or lower throne of God, from the third, the angels, and the fourth, being divided into four subdivisions, from it were created (1) the firmaments or seven hea vens, (2) the earth, (3) the seven paradises and seven hells, (4) and again from a fourth section were created (1) the light of the eves (2) the light of the mind, (8) the light of the love of the Unity of God, (4) the re maining portion of creation"

The author of the Hayatu'l-Qulub, a Shī'ah book of traditions (See Merrick's translation p 4), says the traditions respecting the creations from this Light of Muhammad are numerous and discordant, but that the discrepan cies may possibly be reconciled by reterring the diverse dates to different eras in the process of creation "The hely light of Mu hammad," he says, "dwelt under the empy rean seventy-three thousand years, and then resided seventy thousand years in Paradis' Afterwards it rested another period of seventy thousand years under the coelestial tree called Sidratu 'l-Muntaha, and, emigrating from heaven to heaven, arrived at length in the lowest of these celestial mansions, where it remained until the Most High willed the creation of Adam

(A very currous account of the absurd behef of the Shisha on this subject will be found in Mr Merrick's edition of the Hightu '/ Qulub , Boston, 1850 )

HAQIQI (خيشى) "Interal," as opposed to that which is majazi, or figura

"Truth, justice" HAQQ (حق) A term used in theology for that which is true, eq The word of God, religion In law it implies that which is due. A thing decreed, a claim. By the Sufi invetice it is always used for the Divine Essence, God Al-Haqq, "The Truth" One of the ninety

nino attributes of God

al-HAQQAH (III) Int "The surely Impending" The title of the LEINTH Surah of the Qur'an in which the word occurs in the opening verse "The mevit sble! (al-Hāqqatu!) What is the inevitsble! (al-Hāqqaiu') What is the mevitable?" The word is understood by all commentators to mean the Day of Resurrection and Judgment. It does not occur in any other portion of the Qur'an.

HAQQU 'L-'ABD (حق العبد) "The right of the slave (of God)." In law the right of an injured individual to demand redress and justice

HAQQU 'ILLAH' (Alt w.). "The right of God." In law, the retributive chastisement which it is the duty of a magistrate to inflict for erime and offences against morality and religion. In theology it means prayer, alms, fasting, pilgrimage, and other religious duties

HAQQU 'I.-YAQIN (هن اليفين) "A conviction of the truth." A term used by the Suff mystics for a state in which the seeker after truth has in thought and reflection a positive evidence of his extinction and of his being incorporated in the Essence of God [YAQIN]

HAQQU'N-NĀS (حق الماس) "The right of men" A term in law implying the same as Haqqu'l-'Abd

HARAM (62), pl Huram "That which is sacred (1) Al Haram, the sacred precincts of Makkah or al Madinah (2) Haram, the apartments of women in a Muhammadan household [HARME] (8) Huram, wives

HARAM (مراح) Let "prohibited" That which is unlawful The word is used in both a good and a bad sense, e.g. Baitu'l-haram the sacred house, and Mātu'l-harām, unlawful possessions. Ibnu t-barām, an illegitimate son, Shahru'l-ḥarām a sacred month

A thing is said to be haram when it is for bidden, as epposed to that which is hulal, or lawful. A pilgrim is said to be haram as soon as he has put ou the pilgrim a garb

as he has put on the pilgrun s garb

Haramu 'llan la afa'la is a form of oath that a man will not do a thing

HARAMU 'L - MADINAH (

Land) The sacred boundary of alMadinah within which certain acts are unlawful which are lawful dewhere. The Imam Abū Hanifah says that although it is respectful to the position of the sacred city, as the birth-place of the Prophet, not to bear arms, or kill, or cut grass, &c, still it is not, as in the case of Makkah, an incumbent religious duty. According to a tradition by 'Alī ibn Abī Tālib (Mishkāl, book xi ch xvi), ine Hudādu'l-Haram, or sacred limits of al Madinah are from Jabal 'Air to bour According to Burton, the diameter of the Haram is from ten to twelve miles. (El Medinah und Meccah, vol. 1 p. 362)

The sacred boundary of Makkah within which certain acts are unlawful which are lawful elsewhere. It is not lawful to carry arms, or to fight within its limits. Its thorns must not be broken, nor its game molested, nor must anything be taken up which has fallen on the ground, unless it is done to restore it to its owner— Its fresh grass or even its dry grass must not be cut, except the bog rush (12khr), because it is used for black smith's fires and for thatching houses (A tradition by Ibn 'Abbas, Mishlat, book xi ch my pt 1) "Abdu T-Haqq says that when Abraham, "the friend of God," placed the black stone at the time of the building of the Ka'bah, its east, west, north, and south quarters became bright with light, and that wherever the brightness extended itself became the Hudādu 'I Haram, or the limits of the sacred city. These limits are marked by manars or pillars on all sides, except on the Jiddah and Jairanah roads, regarding which there is some dispute as to the exact distance

HAREEM [HARIM]

HARES Arabic arnab, pl. aranib
Heb The fiesh of the hare is lawful, for the Prophet ate it and commanded his companions to do so (Hadāyah, vol iv p 75) A difference of opinion has in all agos existed at to the value of the hare as an alticle of food. The Greeks and itomans ate it in spite of an opinion that prevalled that it was not wholesome. In the law of Moses, it is specified amongst the unclean animals (Lev xi 6, Deut xiv 7). The Parsees do not eat haro's flesh, nor do the Armenians.

HARF ( ) (1) An extremity, verge, or border (2) A letter of the alphabet (3) A particle in grammar (4) A dialoct of Arabia, or a mode of expression poculiar to certain Arabs. The Qur an is said to have been revealed in seven dialects ( ab'at ahruf ) [QUE'AN ] (5) A term used by the Sufi mystics for the particle of any true essence HARIM or HAREEM (حزم). A word used especially in Turkey, Egypt, and Syria for the female apartments of a Muhammadan bousehold in Persia, Afghanistan and India, the terms harangah, mahall-saran und zanānuh are used for the same place.

The seclusion of women being enjoined in the Qur'an (Surah xxxii 55), in all Muhammadan countries it is the rule for respectable women to remain secluded at home, and not to travel abroad unveiled, nor to associate with men other than their husbands or such male relatives as are forbidden in marriage by reason of consequence In consequence of these injunctions, which have all the force of a divine enactment, the female portion of a Muhammadan family always resides in apartments which are in an inclosed courtyard and excluded from public view molusure is called the harim, and sometimes haram or in Peisian zananah, from san, a "woman") Mr Lane in his Mode n Egyptions, has given a full account of the Egyptian harm. We are indebted to Mrs. Meer Ali for the following very graphic and interesting description of a Muhammadan zanānah or harim in Lucknow

Mrs Meer All was an English lady who married a Muhammadan gentleman, and reided amongst the people of Lucknow for twelve years. Upon the death of her husband she returned to England, and published her Observations on the Musclmans of India, which was dedicated, with permission, to Queen Adelaide.

"The habitable buildings of a native Muhammadan home are raised a few steps from the court, a line of pillars forms the front of the building, which has no upper 100ms, the roof is fiat, and the sides and back without windows, or any sperture through which air can be received. The endes and back are merely high walls, forming an onclosure, and the only air is admitted from the fronts of the dwelling-place facing the court-yard The spartments are divided into long halls, the extreme corners having small rooms or dark closets purposely built for the repository of valuables or stores, doors are fixed to these closets, which are the only places I have seen with them in a zanānah or mahall (house or palace occupied by females), the floor is either of beaten earth, bricks, or stones, boarded floors are not yet introduced. As they have neither doors nor windows to the halls, warmth or privacy is seenred by means of thick wadded curtains, made to fit each opening between the pillars Some zanānaha have two rowe of pillars in the halls with wadded curtains to each, thus forming two distinct halls, as occasion may serve, or greater warmth be required, this is a convenient arrangement where the establishment of servants, slaves, do 10 extensive.

"The wadded curtains are called pardahs, these are sometimes made of woollen cloth, but more generally of coarse calico, of two colours, in patchwork style, striped, vandyked, or in some other ingeniously contrived and ornamented way, according to their individual taste.

*Besides the pardahs, the openings between the pillars have blinds nestly made of inc bamboo strips, weren together with coloured cords, these are called chicks Many of them are painted green, others are more gaudy, both in colour and variety of patterns. These blinds constitute a real comfort to everyone in India, as they admit air when let down, and at the same time shut out these and other annoying insects, besides which, the extreme glare is shaded by them—a desirable object to foreigners in particular.

"The floors of the halls are first matted with the coarse date-leaf matting of the country, over which are spread shagranjis (thick cotton carpets, peculiarly the manufacture of the Upper Provinces of India, woven in stripes of blue and white, or chades of blue), a white calico carpet covers the shagranji on which the females take their seat

"The bedsteads of the family are placed, during the day, in lines at the back of the halls, to be moved at pleasure to any chosen spot for the night's repose, often into the open court-yard, for the benefit of the pure air. They are all fermed on one principle, differing only in size and quality, they stand about half a yard from the flow, the legs round and broad at bottom, narrowing as they rise towards the frame, which is laced over with a thick cotton tape, made for the purpose, and plaited in cheequers, and thus rendered soft, or rather elastic, and very pleasant to recline upon. The legs of those bedsteads are in some instances gold and silver gilt, or pure silver, ethers have enamel paintings on fine wood, the inferior grades have them merely of wood painted plain and varnished. The sorvants' bedsteads are of the common mange-wood without criament, the lacing of these for the sacking being of elastic string manufactured from the fibre of the cocca-nut.

"Such are the bedstands of every class of people. They seldom have mattresses a white quilt is spread on the lacing, over which a calco sheet, tied at each corner of the bedstead with cords and tassels, eeveral thin flat pillews of beatsn cotton for the head, a mushn sheet for warm weather, and a well wadded rassi (coverlid) for winter is all these children of Nature deem essential to their comfort in the way of sleeping. They have no idea of night-dresses, the same suit that adorns r lady, is retained both night and day, until a change be needed. The single article exchanged at night is the dispatia (a small shawl for the head), and that only when it happens to be of silver tissue or embroidery, for which a muslin or calco sheet is substituted.

"The very highest circles have the same habits in common with the meanest, but those who can afford shawls of Cashmere, prefer them for sleeping in, when the cold weather renders them bearable Blankets are never used except by the poorest pea-santry, who wear them in lieu of better garments night and day in the winter season, they are always black, the natural colour of the wool The quits of the higher orders are generally made of silk of the brightest hues, well wadded, and lined with dyed muslin of assimilating colour, they are usually bound with broad silver ribands, and sometimes bordered with gold brocaded trim-The middling clasers have fine chintz quits, and the serverts and slaves coarse ones of the same material, but all are on the same plan, whether for a queen or the meanest of her slaves, differing only in the quality of the material. The mistress of the house is easily distinguished by her seat of honour in the hall of a zananah, a massad not being allowed to any other person but the lady of the mansion. The massad carpet is spread on the fluor, if possible near to a pillar about the centro of the hall, and is made of many varieties of fabric—gold oloth, quilted silk, brocaded silk, velvet, fine chintr, or whatever may suit the lady's taste, cir cumstances, or convenience. It is about two yards square, and generally bordered or fringed, on which is placed the all-important mashed. This article may be understood by those who have seen a lace-maker's pillow in England, excepting only that the masuad is about twenty times the size of that useful httle article m the hands of our industrious villagers. The masned is covered with gold cloth, silk, veivet, or calico, with square piljows to correspond, for the elbows, the knees, &c. This is the seat of honour, to be invited to share which, with the lady-owner, is a mark of favour to an equal or inferior : when a superior pays a visit of honour, the prided seat is usually surrendered to her, and the lady of the house takes her place most hambly on the very edge of her own carpet. Looking-glasses or ornamental furniture are very rarely to be seen in the zanānah, even of the very richest females. Chairs and sofas are produced when English visitors are expected, but the ladies of Hindustan prefer the usual mode of sitting and lounging on the carpet, and as for tables, I suppose not one gentlewoman of the whole country has over been seated at one; and very few, perhaps, have any idea of their useful purposes, all their meals being served on the floor, where dastarkhwans (table-oloths we should call them) are spread, but neither knives, forks, spoons, glasses, nor napkins, so essential to the comfortable enjoyment of a meal amongst Europeans. But those who never knew such comforts have no desire for the indulgence, nor taste to appreciate them.

"On the several occasions, amongst native society, of assembling in large parties, as at burths and marriages, the halls, although extensive, would be inadequate to accommodate the whole party They then have awnings of white calloo, neatly flounced with muslin, supported on poles fixed in the court-yard, and connecting the open space with the great hall, by wooden platforms which are brought to a line with the building, and covered with shatranji, and white carpets to correspond with the floor-furniture of the hall, and here the ladies sit by day and sleep by night very comfortably, without feeling any great inconvenience from the absence of their bedsteads, which could never be arranged for the accommodation of so large an assemblage—nor is it

"The usually barren look of these almost unfurnished halls, is on such occasions quite changed, when the ladies are assembled in their various dresses, the brilliant display of jewels, the gluttering drapery of their dress, the various expressions of countenance, and different figures, the multitude of female attendants and slaves, the children of all ages and slaves in their variously ornamental dresses, are subjects to attract both the eye and the mind of an observing visitor, and the hall, which when empty appeared desolate and comfortless, thus filled, leaves nothing wanting to render the scene attractive

"The buse of human voices, the happy playfulness of the children, the chaste singing of the downis fill up the anumated picture. I have sometimes passed an hour or two in witnessing their innocent amusements, without any feeling of regret for the brief sacrifice of time I had made. I am free to confess, however, that I have returned to my tranquil home with increased delight after having witnessed the bustle of a zanknah assembly. At first I pitied the apparent members of their lives but this feeling has worn away by intimacy with the people, who are thus precluded from mixing generally with the world They are happy in their sonfinement; and never having felt the sweets of liberty, would not know how to use the boon if it were to be granted them As the bird from the nest immured in a cage is both cheerful and contented, co are these females They have not, it is true, many intellectual resources, but they have naturally good understandings, and having learned their duty they strive to fulfil it. So far as I have had any opportunity of making personal observations on their general character, they appear to me obedient wives, dutiful daughters, affectionate mothers, kind mistresses, sincere friends, and liberal bene-factresses to the distressed poor These are These are their moral qualifications, and in their religious duties, they are zealous in performing the several ordinances which they have been matruoted by their parents or husbands to observe If there be any ment in obeying the injunctions of their law-giver, those whom I have known most intimately, deserve praise since 'they are faithful in that they profess'

"To ladies accustomed from infancy to confluement, this kind of life is by no means irksome, they have their employments and their amusements, and though these are not exactly to our tasts, nor susted to our mode of education, they are not the less relished by those for whom they were invented They perhaps wonder equally at some of our modes of dissipating time, and fanoy we might epend it more profitably Be that as it may, the Be that as it may, the Muslim ladies, with whom I have been long intimate, appear to me always happy, contented, and satisfied with the seclusion to which they were born, they dosire no other, and I have ceased to regret they cannot be made partakers of that freedom of intercourse with the world we deem so essential to our happiness, since their health suffers nothing from that confinement by which they are preserved from a variety of snaves and temptations, besides which, they would deem it disgraceful in the highest degree to mix induscriminately with men who are not rela-They are educated from infancy for retirement, and they can have no wish that the custom should be changed, which keeps them apart from the society of men who are not very nearly related to them. Female society is unlimited, and that they enjoy without restraint

"Those females who rank above peasante or inferior servants, are disposed from principle to keep themselves strictly from observation, all who have any regard for the character or the honour of their house, seclude themselves from the eye of strangers, carefully instructing their young daughters to a rigid observance of their own prudent example. Little girls, when four years old, are kept strictly behind the pardak (ht "curtain"), and when they move abroad it is always in covered conveyances, and under the guardianship of a faithful female domestic, who is equally tenacious as the mother to preserve the young lady's reputation unblemushed by concealing her from the gaze of man.

The ladies of zanānah life are not restricted from the society of their own sex, they are, as I have before remarked, extravegantly fond of company, and equally as hospitable when entertained. To be alone is a trial to which they are seldom exposed, every lady having companions amongst her dependants, and according to her means the number in her establishment is regulated. Some ladies of rank have from two to ten companions, independent of slaves and domestics, and there are some of the royal family at Lucknow who entertain in their service two or three hundred female dependants, of all classes. A well-filled zanānah is a mark of gentility, and even the poorest lady in the country will retain a number of slaves and domestics, if she cannot afford companions, besides which they are miserable without society, the habit of associating with numbers having grown up with infancy to maturity 'to be alone,' is considered, with women thus situated, a real calamity "On occasions of assembling in large parties, each lady takes with her a companion hesides two or three slaves to attend upon her, no one expecting to be served by the servants of the house at which they are visiting. This ewells the numbers to be provided for, and as the visit is always for three days and three nights (except on "fds, when the visit is confined to one day), some forethought must be exercised by the lady of the house, that all may be accommodated in such a manner as may secure to her the ro-putation of hospitality

"The kntchen and offices to the rankinsh, I have remarked, occupy one side of the quadrangle, they face the great or centre half appropriated to the assembly These kntchens, however, are sufficiently distant to prevent any great annoyance from the smoke—I say smoke, because chimneys have not get been introduced into the kitchens of the natives

"The fire-places are all on the ground, something resembling stoves, each admitting one saucepan, the Asiatio style of cooking requiring no other contrivance boiled joints are never seen at the dinner of a native, a leg of mutton or sirloin of beef weald place the hostess under all sorts of difficulties, where knives and forks are not understood to be amongst the useful appendages of a meel The varieties of their dishes are countless, but stews and ournes are the chief, all the others are mere varieties. The only thing in the shape of roast meats are small lean cutlets bruised, seasoned and cemented with pounded poppy seed. Several being fastened together on skewers, they are grilled or rosated over a charcoal fire spread on the ground, and then called kabab. which word implies roast meat

"The kitchen of a zanānah would be inadequate to the business of cooking for a large assembly, the most choice dishes only for the highly-favoured guests), are cooked by the servants of the establishment. The needed abundance required in entertaining a large party is provided by a regular bashr cook, several of whem establish themselves in native cities, or wherever there is a Muslim population. Orders being previously given, the morning and evening dinners are punctually forwarded at the appointed hours in covered trays, each tray having portions of the several good things ordered, so that there is no confusion in serving out the feast on its arrival at the mansion. The food thus prepared by the basar cook (nanhar, he is called), is plain boiled rice, sweet rice, this (rice-milk), mutanjan (rice sweetened with the addition of preserved fruits, raisins, &c coloured with saffron), salans (curries) of many varieties, some cooked with vegetables, others with unitie fruits with or without meat, putôrs of many sorts, kabéss, preserves, pickles, chatnis, and many other things too tedious to admit of detail

"The bread in general use amongst natives is chiefly unleavened nothing in the likeness of English bread is to be seen at their meals, and many object to its being fermented with the intexicating toddy (extracted from a tree) Most of the native bread is baked on iron plates over a charcoal fire. They have many varieties both plain and rich, and some of the latter resembles our pastry, both in quality and flavour

"The dinners, I have said, are brought into the zanānah, ready dished in the native earthenware, on travs and as they neither use spoons nor forks, there is no great delay in setting out the meal where nothing is required for display or effect, beyond the ex-cellent quality of the food and its being well cooked. In a large assembly all cannot dine at the dastarkhwan of the lady hostess, even if privileged by their rank, they are, there fore, accommodated in groups of ten, fifteen, or more, as may be convenient, each lady having her companion at the meal, and her slaves to brush off the intruding flies with a chaurs, to hand water, or to fetch or carry any article of delicacy from or to a neighbouring group The slaves and servants dine in parties after their ladies have finished in any retired corner of the court-yard-always avoiding as much as possible the presence of their superiors

"Bofore anyone touches the meal, water is carried round for each lady to wash the hand and ruse the mouth. It is deemed unclean to eat without this form of ablution, and the person neglecting it would be held unholy. This done, the lady turns to her meal, saying "Bismillah!" (In the name or to the praise of God!), and with the right hand conveys the food to her mouth (the left hand is never used at meals), and although they partake of every variety of food placed before them with no other aid than their flugers, yet the mechanical habit is so perfect, that they neither drop a grain of rice, soil the dress, nor retain any of the food on their fingers. The custom must always be offensive to a foreign eys, and the habit none would wish to copy, yet everyone who witnesses must admire the neat way in which eating is accomplished by these really Children of Nature'

"The repast concluded, the lota (vessel with water), and the laggar (to receive the water in after rinsing the hands and mouth), are passed round. To every person who, having announced by the 'Ash-Shukru lillah!' (All thanks to God!) that she has finished, the attendants present first the powdered peas, called descen, which answers the purpose of soap in removing grease, do from the fingers-and then the water in due course Scap has not even yet been brought into fashion by the natives, except by the washermen, I have often been surprised that they have not found the use of soap a necessary article in the nursery, where the only substitute I have seen is the powdered pea

"Lotes and laggans are articles in use with all classes of people, they must be poor indeed who do not boast of one, at least, in their family They are always of metal, either brass, or copper lacquered over, or They are always of metal, sino, in some cases, as with the nobility, silver and even gold are converted into these useful articles of native comfort

"China or glass is comparatively but little used, water is their only beverage, and this is preferred, in the absence of metal basins, out of the common red earthen katora (cup shaped like a vase)

"China dishes, howls, and basins, are used for serving many of the savoury articles of ford in , but it is as common in the privacy of the palace, as well as in the huts of the peasantry, to see many choice things intro-duced at meals served up in the rede red earthen platter, many of the delicacies of Asiatic cookery being esteemed more paint able from the earthen flavour of the new vessel in which it is served.

"('lims ter-sets are very rarely found in the rananah, tea being used by the natives more as a medicine than a refreshment, except by such gentlemen as have frequent intercourse with the "Sahib Log" (English gentry), among whom they arquire a taste for this delightful beverage. The ladies, however must have a severe cold to induce them to partake of the beverage even as a remedy, but by no means as a luxury I unagined that the inhabitants of a zanamati were sadly deficient in actual comforts when I found, upon my first arrival in India, that there were no proparations for breakfast going forward, everyone seemed engaged in pan esting, and smoking the huggah, but no breakfast after the morning names. I was, however, soon satisfied that they felt no sort of privation, as the early meal so common in Europe has never been introduced in Lastern circles Their first meal is a good substantial dinner, at ten, eleven, or twelve o'clock, after which follows pan and the huqqah, to this succeeds a sleep of two or three hours, providing it does not impede the duty of prayer -the pious, I ought to remark, would give up every indulgence which would prevent the discharge of this duty The second meal follows in twelve hours from the first, and consists of the same substantial fare, after which they usually sleep again until the dawn of day is near at hand.

"The huqquh (pipe) is almost in general use with females It is a common practice with the lady of the house to present the huggar she is smoking to her favoured guest mark of attention is always to be duly appreciated, but such is the deference paid to parents, that a son can rarely be persuaded by an indulgent father or mother to smoke a huqqahın their revered presence, this praiseworthy feeling originates not in fear, but real genuine respect The parents entertain for their son the most tender regard, and the father makes him both his companion and his friend, yet the most familiar endearments do not lessen the feeling of reverence a good son untertains for his father This is one among the many samples of patriarcnal life, and which I can never witness in real life, without feeling respect for the persons who fellow up the patterns I have been taught to venerate in our Holy Scripture

"The huqqab (pipe) as an indulgence or a privilege, is a great definer of etiquette. In the presence of the king or reigning nawab, no subject, however high he may rank in blood or royal favour, can presume to smoke native courts, on state occasions huggans are presented only to the Governor-General, the Commander in Chief, or the Resident at his court, who are considered equal in rank, and therefore entitled to the privilege of smoking with him, and they cannot consistently resist the intended honour Should they dislike smoking, a hint is readily understood by the huggah bardar to bring the huggah, charged with the materials, without the addition of fire Applications of the munhaul (mouthpiece) to the mouth, indicates a sense of the honour conferred " (Observations on the Mu salmans of India, vol. 1 p 304)

ارحارث (حارث) HĀRIŞ A surname which frequently occurs amongst "the Companions" In the Tagribu t Takzib there are not fewer that sixty-five persons of this name, of whom short biographical notes are given

Haris ibn Namfal ibn al Haris ibn 'Abdi T-Muttalls, was a Companion of some consequence, he lived close to the house of the Prophet, and had frequently to make room as the Prophet's Harim extended uself

[HOUSES ]
Harrs ibn Hisham ibn el-Mughirah, is another Companion, who lived at Makkah

Harrs son of Saward the Samit, the post, was executed at Uhud.

HARISIYAH ( L.) A sect of Muslims founded by Abū 'l-Harig, who in opposition to the sect Abazīyah, said it was not correct to say the acts of men were not the acts of God (Kitabu 't-Tarrifat, in loco)

HARUN (والاله) [AARON] HĀRŪT WA MĀRŪT (, (ماروت Two augels mentioned in the Quran. They are said to be two angels who, in consequence of their compassion for the frailties of mankind, were sent down to earth to be tempted. They both sinned, and being permitted to choose whether they would be punished now or hereafter, chose the former, and are still suspended by the feet at Babel in a rocky pit, where they are great teachers of magio

The account of these two angols in the Quran, is given in Sürah it 96

"They (the Jews) followed what the devils taught in the reign of Solomon not that Solomon was unbelieving, but the devils were unbelieving. Soroery did they teach to men, and what had been revealed to the two angels, Harût and Marût, at Babel. Yet no man did these two teach until they had said, 'We are only a temptation. Be not then an unbeliever' From these two did men learn how to cause division between man and wife but unless by leave of God, no man did they harm thereby They learned, indeed, what would harm and not profit them, and yet they knew that he who bought that art should have no part in the life to come! And vile the price for which they have sold themselves -if they had but known it ?

HASAD (Ama). "Envy, malevolence, maleo" It occurs twice in the Qur'an Surah ii. 103 "Many of the people of the Book (i.e. Jews and Christians) desire to bring you back to unbelief after ye have beheved, out of selfish envy, even after the truth hath been clearly shown them"
Surah exul. 5 "I seek refuge

the envy of the envious when he envies"

AL-HASAN (المسل) Khalifah. The eldest son of Fatimush, the daughter of Muhammad, by her husband the Khalifah 'Ali. Born A.H. 3 Diod A.H. 49 He succeeded his father 'Ali as Khalifah A.H. 41, and reigned about are months He resigned the Caliphate in favour of Mn's wiyah, and was eventually possoned by his wife Ja'dah, who was suborned to commit the deed by Yazid, the son of Mu'awiyah, by a promise of marrying har, which promise he did not keep Al-Hasan had twenty children, fifteen sons and five daughtors, from whom are descended one section of the great family of Salyids, or Lords, the descendants of the Prophet The history of al-Hasan, together with the tragical death of his brother al-Hussin, form the plot of the muracle play of the Mu-[EUSAIN, MUHARRAM, SAIYID ] harram.

HASHIM ( The great grandfather of Muhammad Born, according to M C de Perceval, AD 464 Sprenger places his birth in AD 442. He married Salmah, by whom he had a son, Abdu l-Mukahis the father of 'Abdu Ilah, who was the father of Muhammad The author of the Qāmūs says Hāshim's original name was war, but ho was surnamed Hāshim on account of his hospitality in distributing bread (hashm, to break bread) to the pilgrims at Makkah HASHR (-4-). Lit. "Going forth from one place, and assembling in another" Hence the word is used in the Qur'an in two senses, viz an emigration and an assembly, e.g Sürah liz. 2 " It was He who drove forth from their homes those people of the book (i.e. Jews) who misbelieved, at the first enggration. (Hence al-Hashr is the title of the gration." (Hence al-Hashr is the title of the Lixth Sürah of the Qur'an) Sürah xxvii. 17 "And his hosts of the jinn and men and birds were assembled for Solomon."

The term Yaumu 'l-Heshr is therefore used for the Day of Resurrection, or the day when the dead shall migrate from their graves and assemble for judgment. It occurs in this sonse in the Quran, Sürah 1 42

"Verily we cause to live, and we cause to
To us shall all return.

"On the day when the earth shall swiftly cleave asunder over the dead, will this gathering be easy to Us AL-HASIB ( "The Rockoner," in the Day of Judgment. One of the ninety-nine attributes of God. The title occurs in the Qur'an three times.

Surah IV 7 "God suffloeth for taking

Account '

Idem, 88 . "God of all things takes an account "

Surah xxxiii. 89 "God is good enough at reckoning up."

HASSĀN (ULLA) The son of Sabit. A celebrated poet in the tume of Muhammad, who embraced Islam He is said to have hved 120 years, 60 of which were passed in idolatry and 60 in Islam.

It is related in the Traditions that the Prophet on the day of battle with the Banu Quraizah, cried out, "O Hassan ibn Sabit, abuse the infidels in your verse, for verily Gabriel aclps you!" (Mishkat, book xxii ch ix pt. 1) [POSTRY]

HĀTIB IBN 'AMR ( ) An oarly convert to Islam, and one of the most trusted of Muhammad's followers. Me distinguished himself at the taking of Makkah

HAULANU 'L-HAUL (حولان الحول العول A complete year " A term used in Muhammaden law for the period property must be in possession before zakāt is required of it. (Hidayah, vol 1. p 2)

HAUZU 'L-KAUSAR ( ) A pend or river in Paradise According to Muhammad's ssyings in the Traditions (Mishkat, book xxiii ch. xii), it is more than a month's journey in oircumference, its waters are whiter than snow and sweeter than honey mixed with milk, and those who drink of it shall never thirst. The word kaugar occurs once in the Quran, namely in Surah cviii.. which derives therefrom its title, and where its translation and meaning is doubtful. "Verily, we have given thee al-Kaugar" Al Baizāwī, the commentator, says it either means that which is good or abundant, or the pond al-Kaugar which is mentioned in the Traditions.

HAWA (1-1). "Desire, love, hankering after" A term used by the Suff mystics for lust, or unholy desire Hawa-s-Nafsani, "the lust of the flesh", Ahl-s-Hawa, " a sceptic, an unbeliever '

HAWAJIM (مراحبة). Let "Assaults, shocks." A term used by the Safi mystics for those thoughts of the heart which enter it without desire or intention. ('Abdu 'r-Razzāq's Dict of Sufi Terma.)

HAWAJIS (هواجس) "Thoughts"

A term used by the Sun mystics for the worldly thoughts of the heart ('Abdu 'r-Razzaq's Dict of Sufi Terms )

احواله) HAWĀLAH A legal term signifying the removal or transfer of a debt by way of security or corroboration from that of the original debtor to that person to whom it is transferred. (Ridayah, vol. 11 p 606)

HAWAMIM (مواصيم) A title given to the seven chapters of the Qur'an which begin with the letters & Ha & Mim, namely, xxx, Süratu 7-Mumin xxx, Süratu Fussilat xını, Süratu 'l-ZukbxLII, Süratu 'sh-Shūi ruf, xLIV, Sūratu d O khān, xLV, Sūratu 'I-Jasiyah, xxvi, Süratu I-Ahqaf

For an explanation of the letters H M at the commencement of these Surahs, see

HA MIN.

It is related in the Traditions that a man said to the Prophet, "I am old, and my memory is imperfect, and my tongue is stiff, and the Prophet replied, "Then repeat three of the Surahs beginning with Ha Mim (Mishkat, book vin ch 1 pt. 8)

HAWARI (حواري). The word used in the Qur'an (Surahs iii. 45, lxi 14) for the Apostles of Josus. Al-Baizawi, the Muhammadan commentator, says it is derived from hawar, "to be white, and was given to the disciples of Jesus, either on account of their purity of life and sincerity, or because they were respectable men and were white garments In the Traditions (Meskiet, book i ch vi pt 1) it is used for the followers of all the Prophets The word may be derived from the Althiopic hawryra, "to go, to be sont"

AL-HAWASSU 'L - KHAMSAH (الجواس الجمسة). [FIVE BENSES]

HAWAZIN (a) A great and warlike tribe of Arabia in the days of Muhammad, who dwelt between Makkah and at-Talf Muhammad defeated them at the battle of Hunain, A.H. 8, a victory which in the Qur'an, Sürah ix. 26, is ascribed to an-gelic aid. (See Muir's Life of Mahomet, new ed p 432.)

HAWIYAH (4)4) A division of ball. The bottomless put for the hypocrites Qur'an, Serah ci. 6, "But as for him whose balance is light, his dwelling shall be Hawsyah"

HAWK, The Arabic ba's (54), sagr It is lawful to hunt with hawks provided they are trained A hawk is held to be trained when she obeys the voice of har master [HURTING]

HAYA' (هياء) "Shame, pudency, modesty" The word does not occur in the Qur'an but in the Traditions it is said, "Allahu hayiyun," : c "God acts with modesty" By which is understood that God hates that which is immodest or shameless. Muhammad is related to have said, "Modesty (haya") brings nothing but good " (Mishkat, book xxii oh xux)

HAYĀT (حيرة) "Life." The word frequently occurs m the Qur'an, eg Surah zwin 44, "Wealth and children are an adornment of the life of this world" Surah 11 25, "For you in retaliation is there life, O ye possessors of mind!"

Al Hayātu'd-dunyā, "the worldly life," is a term used in the Qur'an for those things in this world which prevent from attaining to the eternal life of the next world

Sursh n 80 'Those who have bought thus worldly life with the future, the torment shall not be lightened from them nor shall they be helped "

HAYUUA (هـورلي) "Matter"
The first principle of everything material It does not occur in either the Quran or the

HAYZ (مسيخي Menses NAM-ATRUATION ]

HAZAR (ملر) According to Arabic lexicons, the word means vigilance or a cautious fear but it only occurs twice in the Quran and in both instances it implies terror

Surah ii 18 "They put their fingers in their ears at the thunder-clap for fear of death" (Hazara 'l Maut) Idem, 244 "Dost thou not look at those who left their homes by thousands for fear of death

AL-HAZARĀTU 'L-KHAMS العبرات الحمس) According to the Kitābu 't-Ta'rifāt, al-hozarātu 'l-Khamsu 'l-Hahiyah, or "the five divine existences," is a term used by the Sufi mystics for the follow-

1 Hazratu 'l-gharbs 'l-mutlaq, That existence which is absolutely unknown, ar

God

2. Hazı atu 'sh-shahadatı 'l-mutlagak, Thom celestial (agrām) and terrestrial (agsām) existences which are evident to the senses.

3 Hazratu 'ālamı 'l arwah That existence which consists of the spiritual world of angele and spirits

4 Huzratu talamı flemegal, That existence, which is the unseen world, where there is the true likenous of everything which exists on the earth

5 Hazratu 'l-jambah, The collective existence of the four aiready mentioned

HAZIR ZAMINI (حاضر هامنی)
Bail for the person, which, according to the Imam Abu Hanifah, is lawful. Bail for property is called mäl عقسعة

HAZRAH (%)—) Let "Presence". This title of respect has no equivalent in English, as it is employed in a variety of acceptations. Applied to an officer of rank, it would mean "your honour", to a olergyman, "your reverence"; to a king, "your nagesty" When applied to the names of prophets, apostles, or saints, it expresses the accredness of his office and character, i.e. our Saviour is called Hazratu 'Isa, and the Virgin Mary, Hazratu Maryam The word is much used in Persian theological works. It is seldom used in this sense in Arabic books. Hazratu 'llāk, "the presence of God," is an Arabic term in prayer

HEAD Arabicra's, rās (v)) Heb
DNO. The author of the Raddu'lMuhtār, vol i p 670, says "It is abominable (makrāh) to say the prayers with the head uncovered, if it be done from laziness, but it is of no consequence if a Muslim say his prayers with his head uncovered from a sense of humility and unworthiness But still it is better not to uncover the head, for humility is a matter connected with the heart"

Amongst Muhammadans it is considered a sign of disrespect to receive a visitor with the head uncovered, consequently on the approach of a visitor the turban or cap is immediately placed on the head.

There is no general custom as to shaving the head or otherwise. In Afghanistan, Muhammadans generally shave the head, but the Baluchis and many other Muslim tribes wear long hair

The Egyptians shave all the rest of the hair, or leave only a small tuft (called shield) upon the crown of the head Mr Lane says This last custom (which is almost universal among them) is said to have ori ginated in the fear that if the Musim should fall into the hands of an infidel, and be slain, the latter might cut off the head of his victim, and finding no hair by which to hold it, put his impure hand into the mouth, in order to carry it, for the beard might not be sufficiently long, but was probably adopted from the Turks, for it is generally neglected by the Badawis, and the custom of shaving the head is of late origin among the Arabs in general, and practised for the sake of cleanlinese

Persian Asmān (ماسا), Heb (ماسا), Heb (ماسا), Heb (ماسا), Heb (ماسا), Heb (ماسا), which expresses the firmament as distinguished from Firidaus, or Paradise, the abodes of bliss [paradise] In the Qur'an it is stated that there are seven paths, or stages, in heaven. Sûrah xxin 17 "And we have created above you seem paths, nor are we heedless of the creation." By which the commentators understand that they are paths of the angels and of the celestial bodies. The creation of the heaven is declared to be for God's glory and not for His pastime. Surah xxi. 16 "We created not the heaven and the earth, and that which is between them, by way of sport"

It is the general belief that at the last day the heavens will fall, but that they are now upheld by God's power Sürah xxii. 64 "He holds up the heaven from falling on the earth save at His bidding"

According to the traditions (Msahkāt, book xxiv ch. vii), Muhammad during the mi'rāj, or night journey, passed through these seven heavens, and they are stated to be as follows (1) That which is of pure virgin silver and which is Adam's residence, (2) of pure gold, which is John the Baptist's and Jeaus', (3) of pearls, which is Joseph's, (4) of white gold, which is Enoch's, (5) of silver which is Aaron's, (6) of ruby and garnet, which is Moses', (7) which is Ahraham's These accounts are, however, most confused, for in some books and according to popular tradition, the fourth and not the second heaven is assigned to Jesus

This view is in harmony with the seven spheres of Ptolemy, the first of which is that of the moen, the second Mercury, the third Venus, the fourth the Sun, the fifth Mars, the sixth Jupiter, the seventh Saturn, each of which orbs was supposed by the ancients to revolve round the earth in its proper sphere Muhammad said the distance between each heavenly region is five hundred years' journey (Marker's book arrays of the state of the second transport of the se

(Mishkat, book xxiv ch 1 pt. 3)

The Rabbis spoke of two heavens (af Deut x 14), "The heaven and the heaven of heavens," or seven (***πανάβασιν, Clem. Alex Strom, 1ν 7. 636) "Reach Lakisch dixit septem esse colos, querum nomina sunt, 1 velum, 2 expansum, 8 nubes, 4 habitaculum, 5 habitatio, 6 sedes fixa, 7 Araboth (See Wetstein, ad 2 Cor xii. 2). St. Paul's expression, "έως τριτοῦ ουρανοῦ," 2 Cor xii 2, has led to some discussion, for Grotius says the Jews divided the heaven into three parts, (1) Nubiferum, the atmosphere, (2) Astriferum, the firmament, and (3) Empyreum, the abode of God But the statement, however, does not seem to be supported by any known Rabbinic authority.

HEBER [HUD]

HEGIRA [HIJBAH]

HEIRS Arabic waris (وارف), pl

HELL The place of torment is most frequently spoken of in the Qur'an and Traditions as an-Nar, "the fire," but the word Jahannam occurs about thirty times. It is said to have seven portals or divisions. Surah xv 44 "Verily, hell (jahannam) is promised to all together (who follow Setan) It has seven portals, and at every door there is a separate party of them"

The Persian word used for hell in books of theology is dozaka

The seven divisions of hall are given by Muslim commentators as follows -

- 1 Jahannam (Air), yearen, the purgatorial hell for all Muhammedane For accord mg to the Qur'an, all Muslims will pass through the regions of hell Surah xix. 72 down to it (hell), that is settled and decided by thy Lord."
- 8. Laza (اللي) Strah zevi: 5 "For Laza, dragging by the scalp, shall claim him who turned his back and went away, and amassed and hearded
- 8 Al-Hujamak (Lab.) Süreh civ 4 -"Ney! for verily he shall be flung into al-Hutamak, "And who shall teach thee what al Huta mak 15?

" It is God's kindled fire

"Which shall mount above the hearts of the dammed

"It shall verily rise over them like a vault,

"On outstretched columns"

4 Satur (سعير), Streh iv 11 "Those who devour the property of orphans unjustly, only devour into their belies fire, and they broil in sa'ir "

(The word occurs in fourteen other places.)

Surah hv 47 "The 5 Sagar (سار) sinners are in error and excitement. On the day when they shall be dragged into the fire on their faces! Taste ye the touch of sagar!"

Sürah İxxiv 44 "What drove you into sugar 1 "

shall be Hawiyah"

6. Al-Jahm ( Sürah ii 118 "Thou shalt not be questioned as to the fellows of al-Jahim" (Ashabu'l-Jahun)

(The word occurs in twenty other places) 7 Hawiyah (41944) Sürah oi 8 "As for him whose balance is light, his dwelling

The Muhammadan commentators, with that utter recklessness which so characterizes their writings, distribute these seven stations as follows (see al-Baghawi, al-Batzawi, and others) (1) Jahamam, the purgatorist hell for Muslims. (2) Laza, a blazing fire for Christians (8) Al-Hutamah, an intense fire for the laws. for the Jews. (4) Sa'ur, a flaming fire for the Sabians (5) Sugar, a scorcing fire for the Magn (6) Al-Jahim, a huge hot fire for idolaters (7) Hāwvyah, bottomless pit for the hypocrites A reference to the Qur'an will prove that they are that they are the least reason for prove that there is not the least reason for assigning these regions to their respective

"At each portal a separate party The teaching of the Qur'an (which is chiefly confined to these Suraha which, ohronologically arranged, are the earliest), is as fol-JOME .

tenants beyond the sentence already quoted

Sürah ixxiv 26-84 (generally held to be the second Surah composed by Muhammad, and relating to al-Walid ibn al-Mughirah, a person of note amongst the unbelieving Makkam) .

"We will enrely cast him into Sagar
"And who shall teach thee what Bagar is?

"It leaveth nought, it spareth nought,

"Blackening the skin.

"Over it are nineteen angels "None but angels have we made guardians of the fire (ashabu n-ndr) nor have we made this to be their number but to perplex the unbelievers, and that they who possess the Scriptures may be certain of the Truth, and that they who believe may increase their faith,

"And that they to whom the Scriptures have been given, and the believers, may not doubt .

"And that the infirm of heart and the unbelievers may say, What meansth God by this parable?

"Thus God musleadeth whom He will, and whom He will He doth guide aright, and none knoweth the armies of thy Lord but Himself and this is no other than a warning to mankind *

Sürah ixxxvin 1-7 .-

"Hath the tidings of the day that shall overshadow resched thee?

"Downcast on that day shall be the countenances of some,

" Fravaibng and worn,

" Burnt at the scorebing fire,

" Made to drink from a fountain flergely botling

"No food shall they have but the fruit of zarī' (a bitter thorn),

"Which shall not fatten nor appease their hunger '

Sürah laxvın 21-30 -

- " Holi (Jahannam) truly shall be a place of snares,
- "The home of transgressors,

"To abide therein ages,

- "No coolness shall they taste therein nor any drink,
  "Save boiling water and running sores,

" Meet recompence!

"For they looked not forward to their account,

"And they gave the lie to our signs, charging them with falsebood,

"But we noted and wrote down all

"' Taste this then and we will give you increase of nought but torment."

The above are all Madinah Surahs composed in the earlier stage of Muhammad's mission. The aliusions to hell in the Makkan Sürahe are brief and are in every case directed against unbelievers in the Prophet's mission, and not against sin, ag Sürah in 69, "God hath promised to the hypocrites (se dissemblers as far as Islam was concerned), men and women, and unto the unbelievers, hell-fire to dwell therein for ever

The teaching of Muhammad in the Traditions is much more specific, but it is impossible to assign a date for these traditions, even assuming them to be authentic. They are given on the authority of al-Bukhari and Muslim (Mishkat, book xxiii. ch. xv.) -

"'The fire of the world is one part of seventy parts of hell fire It was said, 'O Prophet of God! verily the fire of the world would be sufficient for punishing. The Prophot replied, 'Hell-fire has been made more than the fire of the world by sixty-nme parts, every part of which is like the fire of the world.'

"Verily, the easiest of the infernals in punishment, is he who shall have both his shoes and thongs of them of fire, by which the brains of his head boil, like the boiling of a copper furnace, and he will not suppose that anyone is more severely punished than himself, whilst verily, he is the least so"

"On the Day of Resurrection, the most luxurious of the world will be brought, and dipped once into the fire after that it will be said, 'O ohild of Adam, did you by you in the world?' He will say, 'I swear by God I never saw any good, nor did com-fort ever come near me. And a man of the severest distresses and troubles in the world will be brought into paradise, and it will be said to him, 'O son of Adam, did you ever see any trouble, and did distress ever come to you in the world? And he will say, 'I swear by God, O my Lord I never suffered troubles in the world, nor did I ever see hardship "

"There are some of the infernals that will be taken by the fire up to their ankles, and some up to their kness, and some up to their waist, and some up to their necks "

"Hell-fire burnt a thousand years so that it became red, and burnt another thousand years till it became white, after that it burnt a thousand years till it became black, then hell fire is black and dark, and never has any

"Verily, hot water will be poured upon the heads of the infernals, and will penotrate into their bellies, and will cut to pieces everything within them so that they will come out at their feet and this is the meaning of the word of God, Boiling water shall be poured on their heads, and everything in their belies shall be dissolved thereby,' after that, they will be made as they wern"

"The infernals shell be dronched with vellow water, draught after draught, and it will be brought to their mouths and they will be disgusted at it, and when very near, it will scorch their faces, and when they drink it it will tear their entrails to pieces says, 'They who must dwell for ever in hellfire, will have the boiling water given them to drink which shall burst their bowels', and God will say, 'If the infidels complain of thirst, they shall be assisted with water like molten copper, which will fry their faces, it will be a shocking beverage"

For most of these circumstances relating to hell and the state of the damned, Muhammad was in all probability indebted to the Jews and, in part, to the Magians, both of whom agree in making seven distinct apartments in hell (Nishmat hayim, 1 82, Gemar Arulin, t. 19, Zohar ad Exod xxvi 2 &c and Hyde de Rel Vet Pers, p 245), though they vary in other particulars

The former place an angel as a guard over each of these infernal apartments, and suppose he will intercede for the miserable wretches there imprisoned, who will openly soknowledge the justice of God in their con demnation (Midrash, Yalkut Shemuni, pt 11. f 116) They also teach that the wicked will suffer a diversity of punishments, and that by intolerabl cold (Zokar ad. Exed xix) as well as heat, and that their faces shall become black (Yalkut Shemun, ub. sup f 86), and believe those of their own religion shall also be punished in hell hereafter according to their crimes (for they hold that few or none will be found exactly righteous as to deserve no punishment at all,) but will soon be delivered thence, when they shall be sufficiently purged from their sma-by their father Abraham, or at the intercession of him or some other of the prophets (Nishmat hayim, f. 82, Gemar Arubin, f. 19)

The Magrans allow but one angel to preside over all the seven hells, who is named by them Vanand Yezad, and, as they teach, assigns punishments proportionate to each person a crimes, restraining also the tyranny and excessive cruelty of the devil, who would, if left to himself, torment the damned bevond their sentence (Hyde, de Rel. Vet Pers p 182) Those of this religion do also mention and describe various kinds of torments whorewith the wicked will be punished in the next life, among which though they recken extreme cold to be one, yet they do not admit fire, out of respect, as it seems, to that element, which they take to be the representation of the divine nature, and therefore they rather choose to describe the damned souls as suffering by other kinds of punishment, such as an intolcrable stink, the stinging and biting of serpents and wild beasts, the cutting and tearing of the flesh by the devils, excessive hanger and thirst, (See Eundem ibid., p 899, and the like Sale's Pre Din )

The author of the Sharhu 'l-Muwaquf, p 586, also says . It is agreed amongst all orthodox Mushms that all unbelievers, without exception, will be consigned to the fire for ever, and that they will never be free from torment" "But," he adds, "there are cortain heretics, who call themselves Muslims, who deny the eternity of the torments of the tue For, they say, it is an essential property of all things fleshly that they come to an end. And, moreover, it is not possible for a thing to exist which goes on burning for ever But to this we reply that God is all powerful and can do as He likes "

The sect called as-Samumiyab, founded by Samāmah ibn Ashras an-Numairi, say "The Jews, and Christians, and Majūsi, and Zanādigah, will, after the Day of Judgment, return to dust just as the animals and the little children of unbelievers do " (Sharku 'l-Munagef, p 688)

The same writer says (p 657) "Besides those who are unbelievers, all those (Muslims) who are sinners and have committed great sins (kabā'er), will go to hell but they will not remain there always, for it has been said in the Qur'an (Surah xeix 7), "He who does an atom of good shall see its reward.

With reference to the verse in the Qur'an, which distinctly states that all Mushms shall enter hell (Surah xix. 78, "There is not one of you that shall not go down to it"), al-Kamālān, the commentators, say, that according to extant traditions, all Muslims will enter hell, but it will be cool and pleasant to those who have not committed great sins, or, according to some writers, they will simply pass along the bridge Sirāt, which is over the infernal regions

HELPERS, The. [ANSAR]

HERACLIUS Arabic Huraql (عرقا) The Roman Emperor to whom Muhammad sent an embassy with a letter inviting him to Islam, A.H. 7, A.D. 628

"In the autumn of this year (A D 628), Herachus fulfilled his vow of thanksgiving for the onderful success which had crowned his arms (in Persia), he performed on foot the pilgin-mage from Edessa to Jerusalem, whore the true of oss,' recovered from the Persians, was with solemnity and pomp restored to the Holy Sepulchre While preparing for this journey, or during the journey itself, an un outh despatch in the Arabic character was laid before Herachus. It was forwarded by the Governor of Bostra, into whose hands it had been delivered by an Arab chiof The epistle was addressed to the Emperor himself, from ' Mahomet the Apostle of Ged, the rude impression of whose seal could be deouphered at the foot. In strange and simple accents like those of the Prophets of old, it summoned Heraclius to acknowledge the mission of Mahomet, to cast saide the idolatrous worship of Jesus and his Mother, and to return to the Catholic faith of the one only God The letter was probably cast aside, or preserved, it may be, is a strange currenty, the effusion of some harmless fanatic" (Mur's Life of Mahomet, now ed p 383)

Tradition, of course, has another story "Now the Emperor was at this time at Hims, performing a pedestrian journey, in fulfilment of the vow which he had made, that, if the Romans overcame the Persians, he would travel on foot from ' onstantinople to Aolia (Jerusalem) So having read the letter, he commanded his chief men to meet him in the royal camp at Hims. And thus he addressed them — Ye chiefs of Rome! Do you desire safety and guidance, so that your kingdom shall be firmly established and that ye may follow the commands of Jesus, Son of Mary? 'And what, O King! Jesus, Son of Mary?' 'And what, O King! shall secure us this?' 'Even that ye follow the Arabian Prophet, said Herachus. Where upon they all started aside like wild asses of the desert, each raising his cross and waving it aloft in the air Whereupon Heraclius despairing of their conversion, and unwilling to lose his kingdom, desisted, saying that he had only wished to test their constancy and faith, and that he was now satisfied by this display of firmness and devotion The courtiers bowed their heads, and so the Prophet's despatch was rejected." (Kätibu'l-Wagidi p 50, quoted by Muir, in a note to the above passage.)

The letter written by Muhammad to Herachus is, according to a tradition by Ibn

'Abbās, as follows ---

"In the name of God the Merciful, the Compassionate This letter is from Muhammad the Messenger of God, to Hiraql chief of ar-Rüm Peace be upon whoseever has gone on the straight road! After this, I say, verily I call thee to Islām. Embrace Islām that ye may obtain peace Embrace Islām and God will give thee a double reward. If ye resect Islām, then on thee shall reat the sins of thy subjects and followers. O ye people of the Book (i.e. Christians) come to a creed which is laid down plainly between us and you, that we will not serve other than God, nor associate aught with Him, nor take each other for lords rather than God. But if they turn back, then say, 'Bear witness that we are Muslims'" (Qur'ān, iii. 57) (See Sahālu Muslim, p. 98.)

The Shi'ah traditions give the above letter almost verbatim (See Merrick's Hayatu 'l-Qulub, p 89)

"Not long after, another despatch, bearing the same seal, and couched in similar terms, reached the court of Herachus It was addressed to Harith VII, Prince of the Bani Ghassan, who forwarded it to the Emperor, with in address from himself, solioiting permission to chastise the audacious impostor But Herachus regarding the ominous voice from Arabia beneath his notice, forbade the expedition, and desired that Harith should he in attendance at Jerusalem, to swell the imperial train at the approaching visitation of the temple Little did the Emperor imagine that the kingdom which, unperceived. by the world, this obscure Pretender was founding in Arabia would in a few short years wrest from his grasp that Holy City and the fair provinces which, with so much toil and so much glory, he had just recovered from the Persians!" (Mur's Lafe of Make-(Mur's Lafe of Mahomet, p 884)

(For the Shi ah account of the embassy to Herachus, see Merrick's Hayâlu 'l-Qulub, p 88)

HERMAPHRODITE (Arabic Athunga) is a person who is possessed of the organs of generation of both man and woman, and for whose apritual existence the Michammadan law legislates (vide Hidayah, vol. iv p 559) For example, it is a rule, with respect to equivocal hermaphrodites, that they are required to observe all the more comprehensive points of the spiritual law, but not those concerning the propriety of which, in regard to them, any doubt exists in public prayer they must take their station between the men and the women, but in other respects observe the oustoms of women (Idam, p 561)

HIBAH ( A legal term in Muhammadan law, which signifies a deed of gift, a transfer of property, made immediately and without any exchange [GIFTS.]

HIDAD (احسفاد). "Mourning"
The state of a widow who abstains from " Mourning " scents, ornaments, &c., on account of the death of her husband Hidad must be observed for a period of four months and ten days (Hidayah, vol 1 p 870)

HIDAYAH (4144) Let "Guidance" The title of a well known book on Sunni law, and frequently quoted in the pre-sent work There are many Muhammadan works entitled al-Hidayah but this is called Hedayah / ?l-/www, or "a guidance in parti-cular points" It was composed by the Shaikh Burhanu d-din Ali, who was horn at Marghinan in Transoxania about A.H 580 (A D 1185), and died A.H 598

There is an English translation of the Hidayah (omitting the chapters on Prayer and Purification), by Charles Hamilton, four

vols, London, A.D 1791

"The guarding of the covenant" A term used by the Sufi mystics for remaining firm in that state in which God has brought them ('Abdu r-Razzāq's Dict of Suf : Terms)

HIGHWAY ROBBERY Arabic qat'u 't-tariq (قطعو الطريق) Persian rakzan: Highway robhery is a very heinous Persian offence according to Muhammadan law, the punishment of which has been fixed by the Qur'an (Surah v 87) "The recompense of those who war against God and His apostlo and go about to enact violence on the earth, is that they be slain or crucified, or have their alternate hands and feet out off, or be yak, highway robbers are of four kinds, viz.
(1) Those who are smead before kinds, viz. banished the land." According to the Hidarobbed or murdered any person, or put any person in fear These are to be imprisoned by the magnetrate until their repentance is evident (2) Those who have robbed but have not murdered. These are to have their right hand and left foot struck of (8) Those who have committed murder but have not robbed These are punished with death (4) Those who have committed both robbery and murder These are punished according to the option of the magistrate. If he please, he can first cut off a hand and foot, and then put them to death hy the sword, or hy crucifixion, or he may kill them at once without inflicting amputation. If any one among a band of 10hbers be guilty of murder, the punishment of death must be inflicted upon the whole band.

HIJAB (حجاب) A partition or curtain Veiling or concealing

(1) A term used for the seclusion of women enjoined in the Qur'an, Surah xxxiii 53 "And when ye ask them (the Prophet's wives) for an article, ask them from behind a curtain, that is purer for your hearts and for thours

(2) A term used by the Suff mystics for that which obscures the light of God in the ('Abdu r-Raszaq s Dict of soul of man.

Suf i Terms)

HIJĀZ (حجاز). Lat. "A barrier or anything similar by which two things are sepa rated." The name of Hydzis given to that tract of country which separates Najd from Tahamah, and is an irregular parallelogram about 250 miles long and 150 miles wide. It may be considered the holy land of the Muhammadans, for within its limits are the sacred cities of al-Madinah and Makkah, and most of its places are someway connected with the history of Muhammad It is a barren district consisting of sandy plains towards the shore and locky hills in the interior, and so desti-tute of provisions as to depend, even for the nocessailes of life, on the supplies of other countries. Among its fartile spots is Widi Fatimah, which is well watered, and produces grain and vegetables. Sajrah abounds in date trees At-Ta'if, seventy-two miles from Makkah, is celebrated for its gardens, and the neighbourhood of al-Madinah has cultivated The towns on the coast are Jiddah fields and Yambu', the former being considered the port of Makkah, from which it is distant about fifty-five miles, and the latter that of al-Madmah. Al-Hijaz is bounded eastward by a lofty range of mountains; which, near at-Ta'it, take the name of Jabain 7-Qura. The scenery there is occasionally beautiful and picturesque, the small rivulets that descend from the rocks afford nourishment to the plains below, which are clothed with verdure and shady trees The vicinity of Makkah is bleak and bare for several miles it is surrounded with thousands of hills all nearly of one height, their dark and naked peaks rise one bohind another, appearing at a distance like cocks of hay. The most celebrated of these are as Safa, Arafah and al-Marwah, which have always been connected with the religious rites of the Muhammadan pilgrimage.

HIJR (----) In its prime means interdiction or prevention. In its primitive sense

(1) In the language of the law it signifies an interdiction of action with respect to a particular person, who is either an infant, an idiot, or a slave (Hidayah, vol ili p 468)

(2) Al-Hijr is a territory in the province of al Hijāz between al-Madinah and Syria, where the tube of Samud dwelt. It is the title of the xvth Surah of the Qur'an, m the 80th verse of which the word occurs "The mhaverse of which the word occurs bitants of al-Hijr likewise accused the mea-senger of God of imposture"

HIJRAH (4-4) Let "migration"
(1) The departure of Muhammad from Mak kah (2) The Muslim era (8) The act of a Muslim leaving a country under infidel rule (4) Fleoing from sin.

The date of Muhammad's flight from Makkah was the fourth day of the first month of Rabi', which by the calculation of M Caussin de Perceval was June 20th, AD 622. The Hlyrah, or the era of the "Hegira," was instituted seventeen years later by the Khalifah 'Umar, which dates from the first day of the first lunar month of the year, viz. Muharram, which day in the year when the era was established fell on Thursday the 15th of July A.D. 622. But although 'Umar instituted the official era, according to at-Tabari, the custom of referring to events as happening before or after the Hijrah originated with Muhammad himself

Professor H H. Wilson in his Glossary of Terms gives the following method of ascer taining the Muhammadan and Chiistian years .

Multiply the Hijrah year by 2,977, the difference between 100 solar and as many lunar Muhammadan years, divide the product by 100, and deduct the quotient from the Hijrah year, add to the result 621,569 (the decimal being the equivalent of the 15th July, plus 12 days for the change of the Kalendar), and the quotient will be the Christian year from the date at which the Muhammadan year begins, thus, Hij 1269×2977 = 3777 8, which divided by 100 = 37 778 and 1269 = 37 778 = 1281-222, this + 621569 - 1852791, the decimals corresponding to 9 months and 15 days, ze the 15th of October, which is the commencement of the Hij year 1269 The reverse formula for finding the corresponding Hijrah year to a given Christian year, is thus laid down Subtract 622 from the correct year, multiply the result by 1-0307, ont off two decimals and add 46, the sum will be the year, which, when it has a surplus decimal, requires the addition of 1 thus, 1852-622-1280, 1230×1-0807-1267 761, 1267 76 + 46 = 1268 22, add there fore 1, and we have the equivalent Hijrah year

The Persian era of Yezdegurd commenced on June 16th, AD 632, or ten years later than the Hijrah

HIKMAH (L.S.) Al-hıkmah, "the wisdom," is a term used by the Şūfī mystics to express a knowledge of the essence, attributes, specialities, and results of things as they exist and are seen, with the study of their osuse, effects, and uses This is said to be the wisdom mentioned in the Quran, Sürak ii 272 "He (God) bringeth the wisdom (at-takmak) unto whom He willeth."

The Sufis say there are four kinds of wisdom expressed in the term al-hikmah -

(1) Al-hikmater 'l-Mantuyah, " spoken wiswhich is made known in the Qur'an, or in the Tangah, "the Path" (se the Sufi path)

(2) Al-lekmatu 'l-maskutah, "unspoken wisdom." Such as understood only by Şüfi mystics, and not by the natural man.

(3) Al-hikmatu 'I-majhūdah, " unknown wisdom," or those acts of the Creator the wisdom of which is unknown to the creature, such as the infliction of pain upon the creatures of God, the death of infants, or the eternal fire of hell Things which we believe, but which we do not understand

(4) Al-hikmatu 'l-jami'ah, "collective wisdom," or the knowledge of the truth (haqq), and acting upon it, and the perception of error (bail) and the rejection of it ('Abdu r-Rassiq's Dect of Sufi Terms )

HILAL (Ja) The new moon A term used for the first three days of the

HILF (-41-) An oath, a vow Helf namah, a written solemn Hahf, one who takes an eath An affidavit declaration

HILFU 'L-FUZUL (Joseph A confederacy formed by the descendants of Häshim, Zuhrah and Taim, in the house of 'Abdu 'llah ibn Jud'an at Makkah, for the suppression of violence and injustice at the restoration of peace after the Sacrilegious war Muhammad was then a youth, and Sir William Muir says this confederacy "aroused an enthusiasm in the mind of Mahomet, which the exploits of the sacrilegious war failed to kindle"

(حلم) HILM Being mild, gentle, clement Restraining oneself at a time when the spirit is roused to anger Delaying in punishing a tyrant (Kitābu 't Ta'rīfāt) Hence of Halin, the Clement, is one of the uttributes of God

HIMA ( , Lit " guarded, forbidden" A portion of land reserved by the ruler of a country as a grazing ground. (See Mishkat, book xii ch 1 pt 1) 'Know ye that every prince has a grazing ground which 19 forbidden to the people and know ye the grazing place (hima) is the thing forbidden by Him to men"

HIMMAH ( Resolution, strength, ability" A term used by the Sūfī mystics for a determination of the heart to incline itself entirely to God. (Abdu'r Razzūq's Dict of Sūf'i Terms)

HINNA' (ala) The Lawsonia the hands and feet on festive occasions [MARRIAGE] Muhammad enjoined the use of himse', and approved of women staining their hands and feet with it He also dyed his own beard with it, and recommended its use for this purpose (Mishkat, book xx c 4) It has therefore become a religious custom, and is sunnah

HIQQAH ( Language ) A female camel turned three years The proger age for a A female camel camel to be given in zukāt, or legal alms, for camels from forty-six to sixty in number.

HIRA' (حراء) The name of a mountain near Makkah, said to have been the scene of the first revelation given to Muhammad [MUHAMMAD]

HIRAQI (هرقل) Herachus the Roman Emperor, to whom Muhammad sent an embassy, A H 7, A D 628 [HERACLIUS.]

The Arabic term yarah اجارة), which means the use and en-19) ment of property for a time, includes hire, rental, and lease. The hirer is termed aper, or major. The person who receives the rent is the mustager

The following are some of the chief points in the Sunni law with regard to sjarah, and for further particulars the reader must refer in English to Hamilton's Hidayah, vol. iii. p 312, or in Arabic to such works as the Durru'!- Mukhtar, Fatawa-1-'Alamguri, and the Raddu'l-Muhtar, in which works it is treated in the Babu 'l-Ijarah.

A contract of hire, or rental, or lease, is not valid unless both the usufruct and the hire be particularly known and specified, because there is a traditional saying of the Prophet, "If a person hire another let him first inform him of the wages he is to receive "

A workman is not entitled to anything until his work is finished, but the article wrought upon may be detained until the workman be paid his full wages, and the workman is not responsible for any loss or damage in the article during such detention. If a person hire another to carry u letter to al-Basrah and bring back an answer, and he accordingly go to al-Basrah and thore find the person dead to whom the letter was addressed, and come back, and seturn the letter he is not entitled to any wages whatever! This strange ruling is according to Abu Hanifah and two of his disciples, but the Imam Muhammad says the messenger bught to be paid

It is I will to here a house or shop for the purpose of residence although no mention bo made of the business to be followed in it and the lessee is at liberty to carry on any business he pleases, unless it be injurious to the building For example, a blacksmith or a fuller must not reside in the house, unless it is previously so agreed, since the exercise of those tradee would shake the building

It is lawful to here or lease land for the purposes of cultivation, and in this case the hirer is entitled to the us of the road leading to the land, and likewise the water (re his turn of water) although no mention of these be made in the contract

A lease of land is not valid unless mention is made of the article to be raised on it, not only with a view to cultivation, but also for other purposes, such as building, and so Or the lessor of the land may make declaration to the effect -" I let the land on this occasion, that the lessee shall raise on it whatever he pleases"

If a person hire unoccupied land for the purposes of building or planting, it is lawful, but on the term of the lease expiring it is incumbent on the lesses to remove his buildmgs and trees, and to restore the land to the lessor in such a state as may leave him no claim upon it, because houses or trees have no specific limit of existence, and if they were left on the land it might be injurious to the proprietor But it is otherwise when the land is hired or leased for the purpose of tillage, and the term of the lease expires at a time when the grain is yet unnipe. In this case, the grain must be suffered to remain upon the ground at a proportionate rent, until it is fit for reaping

The here of an animal is lawful, either for carriage, or for riding, or for any use to which animals are applied. And if a person here an animal to carry a burden, and the person who lets it to hire specify the nature and quantity of the article with which the hirer is to load the animal, the hirer is at liberty to load the animal with an equal quantity of any article not more troublesome or prejudicial in the carriage than wheat, such as barley, &c The hirer is not at liberty to load the animal with a more prejudicial article than wheat (unless stipulated beforehand), such as salt or iron. For a hired animal perishing from ill-usage, the lurer is responsible. (For the sayings of Muhammad on the subect of here and leaven, refer to the Mushkat, Bahu 'I- Irarah )

HIRS (حرص) "Avarice, greed, sagerness" Derivatives of the word occur thies times in the Quran. Surah ii 90 "Avance, greed, " Then wilt find them (the Jews) the greediest of men for life " burah iv 128 " And ye may not have it at all in your power to treat your wives with equal justice, even though you be anxious to do so " Surah xii 104 ' And yet most men though thou ardently desire it, will not beheve '

"Understanding, HISS (ma) sonse' Hisr batin, internal sense, hiss gahir, oxiernal sense, him mushfami, common sense, HIZĀNAH (مانة) Al-hızanah u the right of a mother to the oustody of her 'The mother is of all persons the chi'dren best entitled to the custody of her infant children during the commubial relationship as well as after its dissolution." (Fatawa-i-'Alamgiri, vol 1 p 728)

When the children are no longer dependent on the mother's care the father has a right to educate and take charge of them, and is entitled to the guardianship of their person in preference to the mother Among the Hamais, the mother is entitled to the custody of her daughter until she arrives at puberty, but according to the other three Sunni sects, the custody continues until she is married.

There is difference of opinion as to the extent of the period of the mother's enstody over her male children The Fanafia limit it to the child's seventh year, but the Shaff'is and Malakis allow the boy the option of remsining under his mother's guardianship until he has arrived at puberty Among the Shrabs, the mother is entitled to the enstedy of her children until they are weaned, a period limited to two years. After the child is weared, its custody, if a male, devolves on the father, if a female, on the mother The mother's custody of the girl continues to the seventh year

The right of hizanah is lost by the mother if she is married to a stranger, or if she missonducts herself, or if she changes her domicile so as to prevent the father or tutor from exercising the necessary supervision over the ehild

Apostany is also a bar to the exercise of the right of hizanah. A woman, consequently, who apostatizes from Islam, whether before or after the right vests in her, is disentitled from exercising or claiming the right of hizanah in respect to a Muslim child

The custody of illegitimate children appertains exclusively to the mother and her relations (Personal Law of Muhammudans by Synd Amir Ali, p 214) [GUARDIAN-

HOLY SPIRIT Arabic Ruhu'l-Quds (روح اللحس) The Holy Spirit is mentioned three times in the Quran In the Sürat. 'n-Nahl (xyrth, 104), as the inspiring agent of the Qur'an 'Say, The Holy Spirit brought it down from thy Lord in truth."

And twice in the Süratu l-Baqarab (and 81 and 254), as the divine power which sided the Lord Jesus " and We strengthened him by the Holy Spirit" (in both verses)

Fire Jalaian al-Barsawi, and the Muslim commentators in general sav this Holy Spirit was the angel Gabriel who sanctified Jesus, and constantly aided Him, and who also brought the Qur'an down from heaven and revealed

it to Muhammad

For a further consideration of the subject. 400 SPIRTT

HOMICIDE MURDER

Arabic 'asal (Jue). In HONEY the Quran it is specially mentioned as the gift of God Surah xvi 70 'Thy Lord inspired the hee Take to houses in the moun tains, and in the trees, and in the hives they build. Then eat from every fruit and walk in the beaten paths of thy Lord. There cometh forth from her body a draught varying in hue, in which is a cure for nian."

HORSES Arabic faras (فرس), khail (خيل), pl khuyūl Muhammad's affection for horses was very great, as was natural to an Arabian. Anas says there was nothing the Prophet was so fond of as women and horses Abū Qatadalı relates that Mu bummad said "The hest horses are black with white foreheads and having a white upper lip" But Abū Wahhāh says the Prophet considered a hay horse with white forehead, white fore and hind legs the best. An instance of the way in which the traditionists sometimes contradict each other! (Mishkot, hook xvii. c ii )

In the Hidayah (Arabic edition, vol'in p 432) it is said that horses are of four kinds (1) Birzaun Burgun a beavy draught horse brought from foreign countries (2)
'Attq, a first blood horse of Arabia (3) Hopin, a half-bred berse whose mother is an Arab and father a foreigner (4) A half bred horse whose father is an Arab and whose mother is a foreigner

In taking a share of plunder, a horseman is entitled to a double share, but he is not entitled to any more if he keep more horses than one

HOSPITALITY. Arabic zwafah (ميانة). It is related that Muhammad

"Whoever believes in God and in the Day of Resurrection must respect his guest

"If a Muslim be the guest of a people and he spands the whole might without being en tertained, it shall be lawful for every Muslim present to take money and grain necessary for the entertainment of the man."

"It is according to my practice that the host shall come out with his guest to the door of his house." (Michial, book xix

(.it do

Hospitality is enjoined in the Qurun. Surali iv 40, "Show kindness to your parents, and to your kindred, and to orphans, and to the poor, and to your neighbour who is akin and to your neighbour who is a stranger, and the companion who is strange, and to the son of the road HOUR, The Arabic as-Sa'ah الساعة). A term frequently used in the Quran for the Day of Judgment

Sursh vi 81 When the hour comes sud dealy upon them "

Surah vii 186, "They will ask you about the hour for what time it is fixed."

Surah xv. 85; "Verily the hour is surely Surali xvi 79 . Nor is the matter of the hour aught but as the twinkling of an eye, or nigher still "

Surah vvn 1 "Verily the earthquake of the hour is a mighty thing'

Surah his 46 "Nav the hour is their promised time ' and the hour is most severe and bitter '

HOURS OF PRAYER terms ' House of Prayer" and "Canonical Hours,' being used in the Christian Church (see Johnson's Engl Canons and Canons of Cuthbert ch 15), we shall consider under this lith the stated periods of Muhammadan prayer [PRAYER.] They are five (i) Fagr ( ), day break , (2) Zuhr ( ), when the sun begins to decline at undday , (3) 'Agr ( )oc), undway between zuhr and maghrib. (4) Maghrib (مغرب), evening, (5) 'lshe (sline), when the night has closed in. According to the Traditions (Mishkat, book TXIV (h vii pt. 1), Muhammad professed to have received his instructions to say prayer five times a day during the Miraj, or the relebrated right journey to heaven He said, God first ordered him to pray fift, times a day, but that Moses advised him to get the Almigniy to reduce the number of sanonical hours to five he himself having tried fifty times for his own people with very ill BTECOBER 1

It is remarkable that there is but one passage in the Qur'an, in which the stated hours of prayer are enjoined, and that it mentions only four and not five perioda Suratu'r-Rum, xxx. 16, 17 "Glorify God when it is evening (moss?), and at morning (subh), and it be prayed in the heavens and in the earth,—and at afternoon ('ashi), and at noon-tide (suhr). But al-Jalalan, the commentators say all are agreed that the term, "when it is masa" (evening or night), inchades both subset and after sunset, and therefore both the magarib and 'isha' prayers are included

Three hours of prayer were observed by the Jews David says, "Evening, morning, and at noon will I pray" (Ps lv 17) Dame! "kneeled upon his knees three times a day" These three hours of the Jews seem to have been continued by the Apostles (see Acts III. 1), and were transmitted to the early church in succeeding ages, for Tertulian speaks of "those common hours which mark the divisions of the day, the third, sixth, and minth, which we observe in scripture to be more solemn than the rest" (De Orat, e 25) And Clement of Alexandria says, "If some fix stated hours of prayer, as the third, sixth, and ninth, the man of knowledge prays to God throughout his whole life." (Stom. l. vil. c. 7, sect. 40) Jerome says, "There are three times in which the knees are bent to God. Tradition assigns the third, the sixth, and the ninth hour" (Com. in Dan, e vi 10)

In the third century there seems to have been five stated periods of prayer, for Basil of Cappadocia speaks of five hours as suitable for monks, namely, the morning, the third hour, the sixth, the ninth, and the evening (Regulæ funus Tract Resp ad Qu, 37, sections 3-5)

It is therefore probable that Muhammad

It is therefore probable at a total periods of obtained his idea of five stated periods of prayer auring his two journeys to Syria But he changed the time, as will be seen from the table annexed, which was drawn up by Mr Lane at Cairo, and shows the times of Muhammadan prayer with the apparent European time of sunset, in or near the lati tude of Cairo at the commencement of each zodiacal month -

|                                                                                                                      | Maghrab                                 |                                                                   | ' Ishā                                        | Fajr                                                    | Zuhr                                                | 'Aşr                                                |
|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----------------------------------------|-------------------------------------------------------------------|------------------------------------------------------|---------------------------------------------------------|-----------------------------------------------------|-----------------------------------------------------|
|                                                                                                                      | or                                      |                                                                   | or                                                   | Oz                                                      | or                                                  | or                                                  |
|                                                                                                                      | Sunset                                  |                                                                   | Night                                                | Daybreak                                                | Noon                                                | Afternoon                                           |
|                                                                                                                      | Muslim                                  | European                                                          | Muslim                                               | Muslim                                                  | Muslim                                              | Muslim                                              |
|                                                                                                                      | Time                                    | Time                                                              | Time                                                 | Time                                                    | Time                                                | Time                                                |
| June 21July 22   May 21Aug 28   Apl. 20Sept 28   Mar 20Oct 23   Feb 18Nov 22   Jan. 20Dec 21 | Sunset,or 12 o'clockMushm Time. | 7 4 PM.6 58 "6 81 "6 4 "5 37 "5 15 "5 4 " | 1 841 301 221 181 181 221 24 | 8 68 309 2410 2411 1811 5912 15 | 4 565 75 295 566 286 456 56 | 8 138 489 49 249 859 419 48 |

NR.-The time of noon, according to Muhammadan reckoning, on any particular day, subtracted from twelve, gives the apparent time of sunset on that day according to European reckoning

HOUSES Arabic bait (see), pl buyūt, dār (,\s), pl diyar, dūr, Heb In the time of Muhammad the houses of the Arabs were made of a framework of jarid, or palm-sticks, co-vered over with a cloth of camel's hair, or a curtain of a similar stuff, forming the door Those of the better class were made of walis of unbaked bricks, and date-leaf roofs plastered over with mud and clay Of this description were the abodes of Muhammel's family (Burton, vol. i p 488)

Sir William Muir, translating from the account given by the secretary of al-Waqidi (Lafe of Mahomet, new ed , p 546), says —

"Abdallah ibn Yazid relates, that he saw the house in which the wives of the Prophet dwelt at the time when Omar ibn ('Abd) al-Asiz, then governor of Medina (about A.R.

100) demolished them. They were built of unburnt bricks, and had separate apartments made of palm branches, daubed (or built up) with mud, he counted nme houses, each having separate apartments in the space from the house of Ayesha, and the gate of Mahomet to the house of Asma, daughter of Hese n Observing the dwelling-place of Omm Salma, he questioned her grandson concerning it and he told him that when the Prophet was absent on the expedition to Dûma, Omm Salma built up an addition to her house with a wall of unburnt bricks When Mahomet returned, he went in to her, and asked what new building this was She replied 'I pur posed, O Prophet, to shut out the glances of men thereby I' Mahomet answered, 'O Omm Salma! verily the most unprofitable thing that eateth up the wealth of a believer is building,' A citizen of Medina present at the time, confirmed this account, and added that the curtains (Anglo-Indice, purdas) of the doors were of black hair-cloth. He was present, he said, when the despatch of the Caliph Abd al Malik (A.H. 86-88) was read aloud, commanding that these houses should be brought within the area of the Mosque, and he never witnessed sorer weeping than there was amongst the people that day. One exclaimed, 'I wish, by the Lord! that they would leave these houses alone thus as they are, then would those that spring up hereafter in Medina, and strangers from the ends of the earth, come and see what kind of building sufficed for the Prophet's own abode, and the sight thereof would deter men from extravagance and pride.

"There were four houses of unburnt bracks, the apartments being of palm-branches, and five houses made of palm-branches built up with mud and without any separate apartments. Each was three Arabian yards in length. Some say that they had leather curtains for the doors. One could reach the roof with the hand. The house of Haritha was next to that of Mahomet. Now, whenever Mahomet took to himself a new wife, he added another house to the row, and Haritha was obliged successively to remove his house and build on the space beyond. At last this was repeated so often, that the Prophet said to those about him, 'Verily, it shameth ms to turn Haritha over and over again out of his house.'

THE USUAL PLAN OF AN ORDINARY HOUSE IN CENTRAL ASIA.

The houses of the rural poor in all parts of Islam, in Turkey, Egypt, Syria, Arabia Persia, Aighanstan, and India, are usually built either of mud or of unburnt bricks. In mountainous parts of Aghanistan they are built of stones (collected from the beds of rivers) and mud. They are generally one storey high, and of one apartment in which the cattle are also housed. The roofs are flat and are formed of mud and straw laid upon branches of trees and rafters. The windows are small apertures, high up in the walls, and sometimes grated with wood

A MUHAMMADAN HOUSE IN PESHAWUR.

There are no chimneys, but in the centre of the roof there is an opening to emit the smoke, the fire being lighted on the ground in the centre of the room. In front of the house there is an inclosure, either of thorns or a mud wall, which secures privacy to the dwelling A separate building, called in Asia a Aujrah, or guest chamber, is provided for male visitors or guests, this chamber being common property of the section of the village, except in the case of chiefs or wealthy land-owners, who keep hujrahs of their own. In towns the houses of the inferior kind do not differ much from those in the villages, except that there is sometimes an upperstorey In some parts of Afghanistan and Persia, it becomes necessary for each house-holder to protect his dwelling, in which case a watch tower, of mud, is erected close to the house

The injunctions of Muhammad regarding the sectuation of women have very greatly influenced the plan and arrangement of Muhammadan dwelling-houses of the better class throughout the world, all respectable houses being so constructed as to sectude the female apartments from public view. In cities such as Cairo, Damascus Delhi, Peshawur, and Cabul, the prevailing plan of dwelling-houses is an entrance through a blank wall, whose mean appearance is usually reheved by a handsome door-way and a few latticed windows. A respectable house usually consists of two courts, the first being that used by the male visitors and guests, and the inner court is the harm or zananah reserved for the female members of the family Facing the outer court will be an upper chamber, or bala khānah as it is called in Peisian, the uncert, in which there will be a diwān, or raised seat or sofa, upon which the immates can set eat, or sleep. This is the usual reception room. In Asia this bala khānah seans to take the place of the more elabo rate quant described by Mr Lane in his Modern Egyptians, vol. i p 89, which is either on the ground or upper floor. Within the first enclosure will be the stables for horses and cattle, and in its centre a raised dais as seats for servants and attendants. It should be noticed that there are no special bed-rooms in Eastern houses. Male visitors and friends will sleep in the verandahs of the outer court, or on the diwan in the upper court.

A MUHAMMADAN HOUSE IN CAIRO (Lare)

The harim or women's apartments in the unner court is entered by a small door. It is a quadrangle with verandahs on each of the four sides, formed by a row of pillars the apertures of which are usually closed by sliding shutters. The back of the rooms being without windows, the only air being admitted from the front of the dwelling-place. The apartments are divided into long place. It is a spartment, the extreme corners having small closets purposely built as store rooms. On festive occasions these verandah rooms will be spread with handsome carpets, earpete and pillows being almost the only furniture of an Eastern dwelling, chairs being a modern invention. The roofs of these rooms are flat, and as the top is fenced in with a barrier some four feet high, the female members of the household sleep on the top of the house in the hot weather [HARIN]

INTERIOR OF A MUHAMMADAN HOUSE IN CAIRO (Inne)

In no point do Oriental habits differ more from European than in the use of the roof Its flat surface, in fine weather the usual place of resort, is made useful for various household purposes, as drying corn, hanging up linen, and drying fruit

In the centre of the unner court or harim, there is usually a well, so that the female domestics are not obliged to leave the seclusion of the harim for water-carrying In a large court, of a wealthy person, there is usually a raised dais of either stone or wood, on which carpets are spread, and on which the ladies sit or rechne. In the better class of dwellings, there are numerous courtyards, and special ones are devoted to winter and summer uses In Peshawur, most respectable houses have an underground room, called a tah khanah, where the inmates in the hot weather eleep at mid-day These rooms are exceedingly cool and pleasant on hot sultry days

Over the entrance door of a Muhammadan dwelling it is usual to put an inscription, either of the Kalimah, or Greed, or of some erso of the Qur'an.

We have only attempted to describe, briefly, the ordinary dwelling-houses of Muhammadans, which are common to all parts of the Eastern world, but in large wealthy cities such as Damascus, Cairo, Delhi, and Lucknow, there are very handsome houses, which would require a longer description than our space admits of For Mrs Meer Ali's account of a Muhammadan harim or zanānah, soc HARIM

HOUSES, Permission to enter Arabic ustr'zūn (wlisen) To enter suddenly or abruptly into any person's house or apartments, is recknied a great incivility in the East, and the law on this subject is very distinctly laid down in both the Qui'an and the Traditions

Sürah xxiv 27-29 -

"O ye who believe! enter not into other houses then your own, until ye have asked leave, and have saluted its inmates This will be best for you haply ye will bear this in mind.

"And if ye find no one therein, then enter it not till leave be given you, and if it be said to you, 'Go ye back,' then go ye back This will be more blameless in you, and God knoweth what ye do.

"There shall be no harm in your entering houses in which no one dwelleth, for the supply of your needs and God knoweth what ye do openly and what ye hide."

The traditionists record numerous injunctions of Muhammad on the subject. A man asked the Prophet, "Must I ask leave to go in to see my mother?" He said, "Yes" Then the man said, "But I stay in the same house with her " The Prophet said "But you must ask permission even if you stay in the same house" Then the man said, "But I wait upon her!" The Prophet said, "What! would you like to see her naked? You must ask permission "

The Khalifah 'Umar said it was according to the teaching of the Prophet that if you salam three times and get no reply, you must then go away from the house

Abu Hurairah says that the Prophet said "When snyone sends to call you then you can return with the messenger and enter the house without permission" (Mishkat, book xxu ch i pt. 2)

HU, HUWA (a) The personal pronoun of the third person, singular, masculme, HE, re God, or He is It occurs in the Qur'an in this sense, eg Surah in 1, 331 🌢 🕽 🎝 🕽 Allāhu lā slāha silā Huwa, "God, there is no god but HE," which sentence is called the sufy wa ishal (or that which is re-jected, "there is no god," and that which is affirmed, "but He" The word is often used يا هو يا هو يا من by Sufi mystics in this form ya'lamu mã hữ ıllā hữ, "O He (who 18), O He (who 18), O He whom no one knows what He Humself is but Humself" Some commentators have supposed the word He to stand for the exalted name of God, the Ismu 7-a zum, which Muslim doc'ors say is only known to God. [JEHOVAH, ISMU L-A'EAM.]

HUBAL or HOBAL (هبل) great image which stood over the well or hollow within the Karbah In the cavity beneath wers preserved the offerings and other treasures of the temple (At-Tabari, p 6, treasures of the temple (At-Tabari, p 6, quoted by Muir) The idol was destroyed by Muhammad at his final conquest of Makkah, A.H 8, AD 630 "Mounted on (his camel) Al Caswa he proceeded to the Kaabah, reverently saluted with his staff the sacred stone and made the seven circuits of the temple. Ther pointing with the staff one by one to the numerous idols placed around, he commanded that they should be hewn down. The great image of Hobal reased as the tutelary desty of Mecci, in front of the Kasbah, shared the common fate 'Truth hath come,' exclaimed Mahomet in words of the Coran, as it fell with a crash to the ground, 'and falsehood hath vanished, for falsohood is evanescent (Sürah xvii 88) See Muir, Lafe of Muhomet, new ed. p 422 It is remarkable that there is no distinct allusion to the idol in the whole of the Qur'an

HUBS (حسى) Any bequest for plous purposes. A term used in Shr'ah law for way! Anything devoted to the service (See Baillie's Imameea Code, of God p 227)

HŪD (هود) A prophet said to have been sent to the tribe of Ad. Al-

Baisawi says he was, according to some, the son of 'Abdu 'Hah, the son of Rabah, the son of Khalid, the son of 'Ad, the son of 'Aus the son of Iram, the son of Sam, son of Noah, or, according to others, Hüd was the son of Shalah, son of Ariakhshad, con of Sam, son of Noah. D'Herbelot thinks he must be the Heber of the Bible (Judges iv 1)

The following are the accounts given of him in the Qur'an, Sürah vu 63-70 -

"And to 'Ad we sent their brother Hud O my people, said he, worship God ye have no other God than Him will ye not then fear Him?' Said the unbeheving chiefs among his people. We certainly perceive that then art unsound of mind, and verily we deem thee an impostor' He replied, 'O my people' there is no unsoundness of mind in me, but I am an apostle from the Lord of the worlds The messages of my Lord do I announce to you, and I am your faithful counsellor Marvel ye that a warning hath come to you from your Lord through one of yourselves that He may warn you? But temember when He made you the successors of the people of Nosh, and increase I you in tallness of stature Remember then one favours of God, happily it shall be well with yon' They said, 'Art thou come to us in order that we may worship one God only, and desert what our fathers worehipped? Then bring that upon us with which thou threatenest us, if thou be a man of truth' He replied, 'Vengeance and wrath shall suddenly light on you from your Lord. Do ye dispute with me about names that you and your fathers have given those idols, and for which God hath sent you down no warranty? Wait ye then, and I too will wait with you. And We delivered him and those who were on his side by our mercy, and we cut off to the last man those who had treated our signs as lies and who were not believers"

Strah xL 52-68 -

'And unto 'Ad We sent their brother Hud He said, 'O my people, worship God. Ye have no God beside Him Lo, ye are only devisers of a lie, O my people! I ask of you no recompense for this, verily my recompense is with Him only who hath made me Will ye not then understand? And O my people ask pardon of your Lord, then turn unto Him with penitence! He will send down the heavens upon you with copious rains. And with strength in addition to your etrength will He increase you, but turn not back with deeds of evil. They replied, O Hud, thou hast not brought us process of thy mission, and we are not the persons to abandon our gods at thy word, and we believe the not. We can only say that some of our gods have smitten thee with evil. He said, 'Now take I God to witness, and do ye also witness, that I am innocent of that which ye associate (in worship with God) heside himself Conspire then against me altogether and delay me not, Lo, I trust in God, my Lord and yours No moving creature is there which He holdeth not by its forelock Right, truly, is the way in which my Lord goeth. So if ye turn back, then I have already declared to you that wherewith I was sent to you, and my Lord will put another people in your place, nor shall ye at all injure Him, verily, my Lord keepeth watch over all things.' And when our doom eams to be inflicted, We rescued Hüd and those who had like faith with him, by our special mercy; and We rescued them from the regorous chastisement. And these men of 'Ad gainsaid the signs of their Lord, and rebelled against His messengers and followed the bidding of every proud contumacious person, followed therefore were they in this world by a curse, and in the day of the Resurrection it shall be said to them, 'Did not, verily, the people of 'Ad disbelieve their Lord?' Was it not said, 'Away with 'Ad, the people of Hüd?'"

Sürah xxv: 123-139

"The people of 'Ad treated the Sent Ones as hara When then brother Hud said to thom, 'Will ye not fear God? I truly am your apostle, worthy of all credit, fear God then and obey me I ask of you no reward for this, for my roward is of the Lord of the worlds alone Build ye a landmark on every height, in pastime? And raise ye structures to be your lasting abodes? And when ye put forth your power, do ye put it forth with harshness? Fear ye God, then, and obey me, and fear ye Him who hath plenteously bestowed on you, ye well know what? Plenteously bestowed on you, ye well know what? Plenteously bestowed on you flocks and children, and gardens and fountains Indeed, I fear for you the punishment of a great day' They said, 'It is the same to be whether thou warn or warn us not, verily this is but a creation [tale] of the ancients, and we are not they who shall be punished' So they charged him with imposture and Wo destroyed them. Verily in this was a sign yet most of them believed not"

AL-HUDAIBIYAH (Amail) Al-Hudaibiyah, a well on an open space on the verge of the Haram or sacred territory, which encircles Makkah. Celebrated as the scene of a truce between Muhammad and the Quraish known as the truce of al-Hudaibiyah, when the Prophet agreed not to enter Makkah that yesr, but to defer his visit until the next, when thoy should not enter it with any weapons save those of the traveller, namely, to each a sheathed sword. (Muir, from Kättbu 'l-Wäqidi.)

The treaty is referred to in the Qur'an as "a victory," in the xivinth Sürah, lat verse "We have given thee an obvious victory." A chapter which is said to have been revealed on this occasion and to have foretold the final taking of Makkah, which happened two years afterwards (See al - Baizani, in loco).

HUJJAH (4...) "An argument, a proof" The word occurs in the Qur'an.
Sürsh 11 145 "Turn your faces towards it (the Ka'bah) that men may have no argument sgainst you, save only those of them who are unjust "

Surah vi. 64 "These are our arguments which we gave to Abraham against his people."

Surah vi 150 "God's is the perfect argument (kujjatu 'l-bālighah)

HUJJATU 'L-HAQQI 'ALA 'L-(حجة الحق على النطاق) KHALQ " The demonstration of truth upon the creature" A term used by the Sufi mystics for the Insamu 'l-kamıl, or the "perfect man," as Adam was when he proceeded from the hand of his Maker, and when he became a demonstration of God's wisdom and power before the angels of heaven. As is stated in the Quran, Surah ii 29 "Thy Lord said I am about to place a vicegerent (khalifah) in the earth. ('Abdu 'r-Razzāq's Dict of Suf: Terms )

HUJRAH ( The "chamber" in which Muhammad disd and was buried, which was originally the apartment allotted to Ayishah, the Prophet's favourite wife. It is situated behind the Masjidu 'n-Nabi, or Prophet's mosque, at al-Madinah, and 18 an pregular square of fifty-five feet, separated from the mosque by a passage of about 26 feet Inside the Hujrah are supposed to be the three tombs of Mnhammad, Abu Bakr, and 'Umar, facing the south surrounded by stone walls, without any aperture, or, as others say, by strong planking Whatever this material may be, it is hung outside with a curtain, somewhat like a four-post bed The outer railing is separated by a darker passage from the inner, and is of iron fil agree, painted green and gold This fence, which connects the columns, forbids passage to all men. It has four gates, the Babu I-Muwa-jihah (the Front Gate), the Babu Fajimah (the Gate of Fajimah), the Babu sh-Sham (the Syman Gate), and the Babu 't-Taubah (the Gate of Repentance) The Syrian Gate is the only one which is not kept closed, and is the passage which admits the officers in charge of the place On the southern side of the fence there are three small windows about a foot square, which are said to be about three cubits from the head of the Prophet's tomb Abovs the Hujrah is the green dome, surmounted by a large gilt crescent, springing from a series of globes Within the building are the tombs of Muhammed, Abū Bakr, and 'Umar, with a space reserved for the grave of our Lord Jesus Christ, whom Mushms say will again visit the earth, and die and be buried at al-Madinah The grave of Fatimah, the Prophet's daughter, is supposed to be in a separate part of the building, although some say she was buried in Baqi' The Prophet's body is said to be stretched full length on the right side, with the right paim supporting the right cheek, the face fronting Makkah. Close behind him is placed Aba Bakr, whose face fronts Muhammad's shoulder, and then 'Umar, who occupies the same position with respect to his predecessor Amongst Ohristian historians there was a popular story to the effect that Muhammadans believed the coffin of their Prophet to be suspended in the air, which has no foundation whatever in Muslim Lterature, and Niebuhr thinks the story must have arisen from the rude pictures sold to strangers. Captam Burton gives the annexed plan of the building

- 1 Muhammad
- Abu Bikr
- 3 'Umar
- The space for the tomb of Jesus
- 5 Fatimah

It is related that Mnhammad prayed that God would not allow his followers to make his tomb an object of idolatrons adoration. and consequently the adoration paid to the tomb at al-Madinah has been condemned by the Wahhābis and other Muslim reformers

In &D 1804, when al Madinah was taken by the Wahhabis, their chief, Sa'ad, stripped the tomb of all its valuables, and proclaimed that all prayers and exclamations addressed to it were idolstrous (See Burton's Pilgrivol 11, Burckhardt's Arabia and Wahhabis)

The garden annexed to the tomb is called ar-Rauzak, which is a title also given by some writers to the temb itself

Abū Dā'nd relates that al-Qāsım the grandson of Abu Bakı came to 'Ayıshah and said. "O Mother, lift up the curtain of the Prophet's tomb and of his two friends, Abu Bakr and 'Umar, and she uncovered the graves, which were neither high nor low, but about one span in height, and were covered with red gravel. (Mishkat, book v eh vi. pt 2)

AL-HUJURĀT حسرات "Chambers" The title of the xiixth Surah of the Qur'an, in which the word occurs.

HUKM (حكم), pl ahkām command, rule sentence, judgment, of God, or of the prophets, or of a ruler or judge." It occurs in different senses in the Qur'an, ag — Sürah in 73 "It beseameth not a man, that God should give him the Somptures and the Judgment and the Prophecy, and that then he should say to hes followers, 'Be ye worshippers of me, as well as of God', but rather, Be ye perfect in things pertaining to God, since ye know the Scriptures and have stidied deep."

(Both Sale and Rodwell translate the word al-hukm, "the wisdom," but Palmer renders it more correctly "the judgment")

Sürah in 4; "Judgment is God's alone
He bids you worship only Him."

Sürah xx: 79 "To each (David and Solomon) we gave judgm at and knowledge

Al-hul mu 'sh-Shar's, " the injunction of the " is a torm used for a command of God, which relates to the life and conduct of an adult Muslim (K.tahu 't-Tarifat, in loco )

" descend-HULUL (حلول)  $L\iota t$ alighting; transmignation" A SMI term for the indwelling light in the soul of HUMAN SACRIFICES is no trace in the Qui'an or Traditions of the immolation of human beings to the Deity as a religious rite. But M C de Percival (vol n p 101) mentions a Chassanide prince who was sacrificed to Venus by Munzii King of Hira' Infanticide was common in ancient Arabia, but it seems to have been done either as arriongst the Rajputs of India from a feeling of disappointment at the birth of female children, or to avoid the expense and trouble of rearing them. The latter seems to have been the ordinary leason, for we read in the Quran, Surah xvn 33 "Kill not your children for fear of poverty" [INVANTICIDE]

AL-HUMAZAH (Ilania) "The slanderer" The title of the civth Surah of the Qur'an, so called because it commences with the words " Woe unto every slunderer The passage is said to have been revealed against al-Akunas ibn Shariq, who had been guilty of slandering the Prophet.

HUNAIN (عنين) The name of a valley about three miles to the north-east of Makkah, where in the eighth year of the Hijrah a battle took place between Muhammad and the Banu Hawazin, when the latter were defeated In the Qur'an, the victory of

Hunam is ascribed to angelic assistance Surah ix. 25 "Verily God hath assisted you in many battle-fields and on the day of Hunain"

HUNTING Arabic said (age), There are special rules Heb ציד. laid down n Mushm law with regard to hunting (See Hamilton's Hidayah vol lv p 170) It is lawful to hunt with a trained dog, or a panther (Arabic fand, Persian yuz, which is an animal of the lynx species, booded and trained like a hawk), or a hawk, or a falcon

The sign of a dog being trained is his catching game three times without eating it

A hawk is trained when she attends to the call of her master If the dog or panther ent any part of the game it is unlawful, but if a hank eat of it, it is lawful, but it the dog mercly eat the blood and not the flesh it is lawful. If a hunter take game alive which his dog has wounded, he must slav it according to the law of Zabh, namely, by cutting its throat, with the head turned Makkah-wards, and resiting, "In the name of the Great God!" The law is the same with lespect to game shot by an arrow if a sportsman let By an arrow (or fire a gun) at game, he must repeat the invocation, "In the name of the Great God!"

And then the flesh becomes lawful if the game is killed by the shot But if only wounded, the simual must be slain with the invocation Game hit by an arrow which has not a sharp point is unlawful, and so is that killed by throwing pebbles

Game killed by a Magian, or an apostate, or a worshipper of mages is not lawful, because they are not allowed to perform gable. But that claim by a Christian or a Jew is lawful

Hunting is not allowed on the pilgrimage nor within the limits of the sacred cities of Makkah and al-Madinab

'Adī ibn Hatim (Michkut, book xvin ch 1) gives the following tradition on the subject of bunting

The Prophet said to me, 'When you send your dog in pursuit of game, repeat the name of trod, as at alaying an animal then if your dog holds the game for you and you find it alive, then slay it, but if you find your dog has killed it, and not eaten of it, then eat at but if the dog has eaten any of it, do not you eat it for then the dog has kept it for himself Then if you find another dog along with yours, and the game is killed, do not sat of it for verily you cannot know which of the dogs killed it and if the other dog killed it, it might so be that when he was let lose riter the game, the name of God might not have been repeated. And when you sh ot an arrow at game, repeat the name of God, the same as in slaving an animal, then if you lose sight of the game, and on finding it perceive nothing but the impression of your own arrow, then eat it if you wish, but if you find the game drowned, do not eat of it, although the mark of your arrow should be in it "

HUR (حور), the plural of haura The women of Paradise described in the Qur'an. eg Sûrab ly 56-78 -

- Therein shall be the damsels with retiring glances, whom nor man nor djinn hath touched before them
- 'Which then of the bounties of your Lord will ye twain deny?

" Like jacynths and pearls

Which &c

"Shall the reward of good be aught but good?

"Which &c

- "And beside these shall be two other rardens
  - "Which, &c

"Of a dark green "Which, &c

"With gushing fountains in each

"Which, do

- "In each fruits and the palm and the " Which, &c
  - "In each, the fair, the beauteous ones:

"Which, &c.

"With large dark eyeballs, kept close in hour pavilions:

"Which, &c

"Whom man hath never touched, nor any

" Which, &c

"Their spouses on soft green cushions and on beautiful carpets shall recline

"Which, &c"
Blessed be the name of thy Lord, full of majesty and glory."

AL-HUSAIN ( ). The second son of Fatimah, the daughter of Muhammad, by her husband 'Ali, the fourth Khalifab A brother to al-Hasan, the fifth Khalifah. According to the Shi'ahs, he was the third Khalifah. He was born A.H. 4, and died at Karbala AH. 61, being cruelly slain in his conflict with Yazid, the seventh Khalifah, according to the Sunnis

The martyrdom of al-Husain is celebrated by the Shi'ahs every year during the first ten days of the Muharram [MUHARRAM], an account of his tragic death is therefore necessary for understanding the intensity of feeling with which the access and incidents of the last days of the "Imam Husain" are enacted in the "Miracle Play," a translation of which has been given in English by Sir Lewis Pelly The following account is taken from the Preface to this work, p xi

"Shortly after the accession of Youd (Yazīd), Husam received at Mecca secret messages from the people of Oufa (al-Kūfah), entreating him to place himself at the head of the army of the faithful in Babylonia. Yend, however, had full intimation of the intended revolt, and long before Hussin could reach Cufa, the too easy governer of that city had been replaced by Obaidallah (*Ubaidu lish ibn Ziyad), the resolute ruler of Bussorah (al-Başrah), who by his rapid measures disconcerted the plans of the conspirators, and drove them to a premature outbreak, and the surrender of their leader Muslim The latter foresaw the ruin which he had brought on Husam, and shed bitter tears on that account when captured. His head was struck off and sent to Yexid. On Husain arriving at the confines of Babylonia, he was met by Harro (al-Hurr), who had been sent out by Obaidallah with a body of horsemen to intercept his approach. Husain, addressing them, asserted his title to the Califate, and invited them to submit to him. Harro replied, 'We are commanded as soon as, we meet you to bring you directly to Cufa into the presence of Obsidellah, the son of Ziyad.' Husain answered, 'I would cooner die than submit to that, and gave the word to his men to ride on, but Harro wheeled about and intercapted them. At the same time, Harro said, 'I have no commission to fight with you, but I am commanded not to part with you until I have conducted you into Onfa', but he bade Husain to choose any road into that city 'that did not go directly back to Mecca,' and 'do you,' said he, 'write to Yeald or Obaidallah, and I will write to Obaidallah, and perhaps it may please God I may meet with comething that may bring me off without my being forced to an extremity on your account. Then he retreated his force a little to allow Hussin to lead the way towards Outs, and Hussin took the road that leads by Adib and Cadisia This was on Thursday the 1st of Mohurrum (Muharram), A.E. 61 (A.D 680) When night came on, he still continued his march all through the night. As he rode on he nodded a httle, and waking again, said, 'Men travel by night, and the destinies travel toward them, this I know to be a mossage of death.'

In the morning, after prayers were ever, he mended his pace, and as he rode on there came up a horseman, who took no notice of him, but saluted Harro, and delivered to him a letter, giving orders from Obaidal-lah to lead Husain and his men into a place where was neither 'own nor fertifications, and there leave them till the Syrian forces should surround them

"This was on Friday the 2nd of Mohurrum. The day after, Amer ('Umar ibn Sa'id) came upon them with four thousand men, who were on their march to Dailam. They had been encamped without the walls of Oufa, and when Obaidallah heard of Husain's coming, he commanded Amer to defer his march to Dailam and go against Husain. But one and all dissuaded him. Beware that you go not against Husain, and rebel against your Lord, and cut off mercy from you, for you had better be deprived of the dominion of the whole world than meet your Lord with the blood of Husain upon you.'
Amer was fain to acquiesce, but upon Obaidallah renewing hie command with threats, he marched against Husain, and came up with him, as aforesaid, on Saturday the 3rd of Mohurrum

"On Amer sending to inquire of Husain what brought him thither, the latter replied, The Cufans wrote to me, but since they reject me, I am willing to return to Mesca Amer was glad when he heard it, and said, I hope to God I may be excused from fighting against him ' Then he wrote to this purpose to Obaidallah, but Obaidallah sternly re plied, 'Get between him and the river,' and Amer did so, and the name of the place where be cut Hassin off from the Euphrates was called Kerbela (Karbala). 'Kerb (angush) and bela (vexation), Trouble and affliction,' said Hussin when he heard it. Amer, in which he proposed either to go to Yezid, to return to Mecca, or, as some add but others deny, to fight against the Turks Obaidallah was at first inclined to accede te these conditions, until Shamer stood up and swore that no terms should be made with Husain, adding significantly that he had been informed of a long conference between Husain and Amer

"Then Obaidallah sent Shamer with orders to Amer, that if Husain would surrender unconditionally, he would be received, if not, Amer was to fall upon him and his men, and trample them under his feet Should he refuse to do so, Shamer was to strike off Anier's head, and hunselt command the attack against Husain

"Thus passed Sunday Monday Tuesday Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday, the 4th 5th, 6th, 7th, 8th, and 9th of Mohurrum On the evening of the 9th Amer drew up his forces close to Husain's camp, and himself rode up to Husain as he was sitting in the door of his tent just after the evening praver. and told him of the conditions offered by Obaidallah Husain desired Amer to give him time until the next morning, when he would make his answer

"In the night his sister came weeping to his bedside, and, awaking him exclaimed Alse for the desolation of my family my mother Fatima is dead and my father Ali, and my brother Hasan Alas for the destruc tion that is past! and alas for the destruction that is to come! 'Saster,' Husain replied 'put your trust in God, and know that man is born to die, and that the heavens shall not remain, everything shall pass away but the presence of God, who created all things by His power and shall make them by His power to pass away, and they shall return to flim alone My father was better than me, and m mother was better than me, and my brother was better than me and they and we and all Muslims have an example in the Apostle of God' Then he told his men that Obardallah wanted nebody but him and that they should go away to their homes But they said, 'God forbid that we should ever see the day wherein we survive you! Then he commanded them to cord then tents close together, and make a line of them so And be as to keep out the enemy's house digged a trench behird his camp which he filled with wood to be set on file, so that he could only be attacked in front. The rest of the night he spent in prayer and supplication, while the enemy's guard patielled all night long round and round his camp

"The next morning both sides prepared for the slaughter Husain first washed and anomted himself with musk, and soveral of his chief men did the like, and one asking them what it mount Husein replied plea santly, 'Alas! there is nothing between us and the black-eyed girls of Paradise but that these troopers come down upon us and slay us!' Then he mounted his horse, and set the Coran before him, crying, 'O God, Theu art my confidence in every trouble and my hope in every adversity!' and submitted him self to the judgment of his companions before the opened pages of the sacred volume. At this his sisters and daughters began to weep, when he cried out in bitter anguish self reproachfully, God reward the son of Abbas, in allusion to advice which his cousin. Abdullah ibn Abbas, had given him to leave the women behind in Mecca. At this moment a party of the enemy's horse blooked bound of the course. wheeled about and came up to Husain, who expected to be attacked by them But it was Harro, who had quitted the ranks of the Syrian army and had now come to die with Hussin, and testify his repentance before men and God. As Harro rode into the doumed camp, he shouted back to Amer, Alas for you!' Whereupon Amer commanded his men to 'bring up the colours' troops, Shamer shot an arrow into the camp, saying, Bear witness that I shot the first arrow, and so the fight began on both sides It raged, chiefly in a series of single combata, until noon day, when both sides retired to prayer, Husain adding to the usual office the Prayer of Fear' never used but in cases of extremity When shortly afterwards the fight was renewed, Hussin was struck on the hoad by a sword Faint with the loss of blood he sat down by his tont and took upon his lap his little son Abdullah, who was at once killed by a flying arrow He placed the little corpse upon the ground, crying out, 'We come from God and we return to Him O God, give me strength to bear these mis fortunes. Growing thirsty he ran toward the Euphrates, where, as he stooped to drink, an arrow struck him in the mouth Raising his hands, all besmeared and dripping with blood, to beaven he stood for awhile and prayed earnestly His bittle nephew, a beau tiful child, who went up to kiss him, had his hand cut off with a sword, on which Husam again wept saying, 'Thy reward, dear child, is with the forefathers in the resims of bliss' Hounded on by Shamer the Syrian troops now surrounded him, but Husain nothing daunted, charged them night and left. In the midst of the highling, his sister came between bim and his alayers, crying out to Amer, how he could stand by and see Hussin slain Whereupon, with tears trickling down his beard, Amer turned his face away, Shamer, with threats and curses, set on his soldiers again, and at last one wounded Husam upon the hand, and a second gashed him on the neck, and a third thrust him through the body with a spear No soomer had he fallen to the ground than Shamer rode a troop of horsemen over his corpse backwards and forwards, over and over again, until it was trampled into the very ground, a scarcely recognisable mass of mangled flesh and mud.

"Thus, twelve years after the death of his brother Hasan, Husain, the second son of Ali, met his own death on the bloody plain of Kerbela on Saturday the 10th day of Mohurrum AH 61 (AD 680) "

From al-Hussin and his brother al-Hasan are derived the descendants of the Prophet known throughout Islam as Saiyids [SAI-YID, HASAN, MUHARRAM.]

(t;3) HUSBAND Arabic sauj A husband is not guardian over his wife any further than respects the rights of marriage, nor does the provision for her rest upon him any further than with respect to food, clothing, and ledging (Hidayah, vol 1. 68), but he may be impresented for the maintenance of his wife (lbidem, vol ii p. 628) The evidence of a husband concerning his wife is not accepted by the Sunnis, but it is allowed in Shī'sh law (16 vol ii p (85) The Muhammadan law demands that a Muslim husband shall reside equally with each of his wives, unloss one wife bestow her right upon another wife (16, sol | p 184)

ارحس الحلق) HUSNU 'L-KHULQ "A good disposition.' Abu Hurairah re lates that one of the Companions once asked Muhammad, "What is the best thing that has been given to man?" and Muhammad replied, "A good disposition" Muhammad is also related to have said that the "heaviest thing which will be put in the scales of a Muslim in the Day of Judgment is a good disposition" (Mishkat, hook xxii ch xix pt 2)

(الحلبة) HUTAMAH (الحلبة A division of Hell, mentioned in the Quran, Surah

" Wos to every backbiter

"Who amasseth wealth and storeth it against the future!

"He thinketh surely that his wealth shall be with him for ever

" Nay! for verily he shall be flung into at hutamah,

"And who hall teach thee what al hute mak 18?

"It is God's kindled are,

. Which shall mount above the hearts of the damned :

"It shall verily rise over them like a vault,

"On outstretched columns"

The Imam al Baghawi says it is the division of Hell specially reserved for the Jews

HUWAIRIS (حويرث) One of the citizens of Makkah, who was excluded from the general amnesty on the taking of Makkah, in consequence of his having pursued Zainab. Muhammad's daughter, while endeavouring to effect her escape from Makkah He was afterwards sereed and claim by 'Alı

HUZAIFAH (حلينة) The son of al-Yaman. He was a "sworn companion" of the Prophet, one of the most eminent of the Ashab, and it is recorded by Muslim the Traditionist, that he was specially instructed by the Prophet His father, al Yaman, also called His or Hussil, was likewise a companion, who fell at Uhud Huzaifah died in the time of 'Ali's Khalifate, AR. 36 (See Tuqribu't-Tuhgib, p 51) Sir William Mun says he was the Companion who first suggested to Usman the necessity of the recension of the Quran, A H 38 (Lafe of Mahomet new ed p 556)

"Hodzeifa, who had warred both in Armenia and Adzerbaijan, and had observed the different readings of the Syrians, and of the men of Irac, was alarmed at the number and extent of the variations, and warned (himan to interpose and 'stop the people before they should differ regarding them scriptures as did the Jews and Christians "

The ancestor of (هديل) HUZAIL the Banu Hazail, a tribo distinguished in the annals of war and poetry, and, as we learn from Buckhardt, still occupying under the same name the environs of Makkah. (Travels in Arabia, vol 1 pp 63, 66)

HYPOCRISY Arabic riya (641). mnfāq (طاق), makı (مکر), mudāhanal (مداهداً) When there is an allusion to hypocrasy in the Quran, it refers to that class of people known as al-Munafiquin, or the hypocrites of al-Madinah, who in the days of the Prophet professed to follow him. whilst secretly they opposed him [NUNA-FIQUE] 22de Sürahs 11 7, xxxiii. 47, Ivii 13 But in the Traditions we have the following with reference to this sin Mishkat, book i ch un pt d) -

"The signs of hypcorisy are three speak ing falsely, promising and not performing, and hong perfidious when trusted"

"There are four qualities, which being possessed by anyone, constitute a complete hypocrite, and whoever has one of the four has one hypocritical quality till he discards it perfidy when trusted, the breaking of agreements, epeaking falsely, and prosecuting hostility by treachery"

HYPOCRITES Arabic mundfique (منافقون) A term applied by Muhammad to those residents of al-Madinah who during his first stay in that city outensibly joined Islam but in secret were disaffected. IBAHIYAH (Laul) A sect of libertines who consider all things lawful

IBAQ (341) The absconding of slaves. The fugitive slave being termed ābiq or, if he be an infant, zāll, or the strayed one. The restorer of a fugitive slave is entitled to a reward of forty dirhams, but no reward is given for the restoration of a strayed infant slave. [SLAVERY]

IBAZIYAH (Labl) A sect of Muslims founded by 'Abdu 'lläh ibn Ibaz, who said that if a man commit a kuhīrah or great sin, he is an infidel and not a believer (Kitābu 't-Ta'rīfāt, in loco)

[DEVIL] (ابليس) IBLÍS

IBN 'ABBAS (Los and Abdu 'Abdu 'Abdu 'Aliah, the eldest son of 'Abbas, and a consin of Muhammad One of the most celebrated of the Companions, and the relator of numerous traditions. It is said that the angel Gabriel appeared to him, when he was only ten years old, and revealed to him the meaning of the Qur'an, which accounted for his intimate acquaintance with the letter and the ring of the book. He was called Tarjumānu (Qur ān, or "the interpreter of the Qur'an.' He was appointed Governor of al-Basrah by the Khalifah 'Ali, which office he held for some time. He returned to the Hija' and did at at-Tā'n A.H. 68 (A D 687), aged 72 years

IBN HANBAL (أبن حسل) The Imām Abū 'Abdi 'llāh Ahmad ibn Hanbal the founder of the fourth orthodox sect of the Sunnis, was born at Bagndad v IL 164, A D 780, where he received his education under Yazid ibn Harun and Yahya ibn Satid On ash Shaff'i coming to Baghdad (A ft 195), Ibn Hanbal attended the lectures delivered there by that doctor, and was matrix ted by 1 mm in the traditions In process of time be acquired a high reputation from his profound know ledge of both the civil and spiritual law and particularly for the extent of his crudition with respect to the precepts of the Prophet of which it is said that he could repeat also a million. His fame began to spread just at the time when the disputes ran highest concorning the nature of the Qur'an, which some held to have existed from oternity whilst others maintained it to be created Unfortunately for Ibn Hanbal, the Khalifah al-Mu tasım was of the latter opinion, to which this doctor refusing to subscribe, he was imprisoned and severely scourged by the Khalifah's order

For this hard usage, indeed, he afterwards received some estisfaction from al-Mutawakkil, the som of al-Mutasim, who, upon succeeding to the throne, issued a decree of general toleration, leaving every person at liberty to judge for himself upon this point. This tolerant Khalifah set the persecuted doctor at liberty, receiving him at his Court with the most honourable marks of distinction, and offering him a compensatory present of 1,000 pieces of gold, which, however, he refused to accept After having attained the rank of Imam, he retired from the world, and led a recluse life for several years He died AH 241 (AD 855), aged 75 He obtained so high a reputation for sanctity, that his funeral was attended by a train of 800,000 men and 60,000 women, and it is asserted as a kind of miracle, that on the day of his decease no fewer than 20,000 Jews and Christians embraced the faith. For about a century after his death, the sect of Ibu Hanbal were numerous and even powerful, and uniting to their zeal a large proportion of fanaticism, became at length so turbulent and troublesome as to require the strong arm of Government to keep them in order Like most other functical sects they dwindled away in process of time, and are now to be met with only in a few parts of Arabia. Although orthodox in their other teneth there was one point on thich they differed from the rest of the Muslims for they asserted that God had actually set Muhammad apon his throne, and constituted him his substitute in the government of the inniverse an assertion which wa . egarded with horror, as an impious blasphemy, and which brought them into great disceptie. This, however, did not happen until many years after Ibn Hanbal's decease and is in no degree attributed to him lle published only two works of note one entitled the Musical which is said to contain above 30,000 traditions selected from 750,000, and another, a collection of anothegus, or proverbs, containing many admirable precepts upon the government of the passions He had several eminent pupils, particularly Ismā'il al-Bukhāri and Muslim Ibn Dā'ūd His authority is but seldom quoted by any of the modern commentators on jurisprudence

The modern Wahhabis are supposed to follow (to some extent) the teachings of Alimad ibn Hanbal

The well known Mnharmadan biographer He drew his descent from a family of Balkh. He was born at Arbelah but resided at Damasons, where he filled the office of chief Qazi, and died an 681 (AD 1282). His biographical dictionary has been translated into English by Baion de Siane (Paris 1848) The biographical notes in the present work are chiefly from Ibn Khallikin's work.

IBN MAJAH ((1) (1)) Abil 'Abdi 'Ish Muhammad Ibn Yazıd Ibn Majah al-Qazwini was maulawl of the tribe of Rabi ah, and a celebrated Hafig of the Qur'an and is known as the compiler of the Katöbu's-Sentin, or "Book of Traditions" This work is counted one of the six Sahiks, or authentic collections of Hadis Born A.E. 209 (A.D 824). Died A.E. 278 (A.D 886).

IBN MASTID (ابن مسمود) 'Abdu 'lish ibn Mas'id, "a companion" of consider 'Abdu shie note One of the illustrious "ten" ("Asharah Mubashsharah) to whom Muhammad gave an assurance of Paradise present at the battle of Badr and subsequent engagements Died at al-Midinah AH 32 aged 60

IBN MULJAM ( (M)) The Muslim who slew the Khalifah 'Ali The author of the Hayatu 'L-Qulūb (Merrick's Translation, p 204) says when 'Ali was martyred by Ibn Mulj im his celestial likeness that the says that the says that the says the says that the says the says that the says the says that the says that the says that the says that the says that the says that the says that the says that the says that the says that the says that the says that the says that the says that the says that the says that the says that the says that the says that the says that the says that the says that the says that the says that the says that the says that the says that the says that the says that the says that the says that the says that the says that the says that the says that the says that the says that the says that the says that the says that the says that the says that the says that the says that the says that the says that the says that the says that the says that the says that the says that the says that the says that the says that the says that the says that the says that the says that the says that the says that the says that the says that the says that the says that the says that the says that the says that the says that the says that the says that the says that the says that the says that the says that the says that the says that the says that the says that the says that the says that the says that the says that the says that the says that the says that the says that the says that the says that the says that the says that the says that the says that the says that the says that the says that the says that the says that the says that the says that the says that the says that the says that the says that the says that the says that the says that the says that the says that the says that the says that the says that the says that the says that the says that the says that the says that the says that the says that the says that the says that the says the says that the says the says that the says that the says that the says the says (se in the Alamu I-Migal) appeared wounded also, wherefore angels visit the similitude morning and evening and ourse the name of Ibn Muljam

A mys-ابن مياد) IBN ŞAIYĀD terious personage who lived in the time of Muhammad, and who was mistaken by some people for ad-Dajiklu 'l Masih or the Anti christ 'Abdu I-Haqq says some say he was a Jew of al-Madmah named 'Abdu 'linh Ibn 'Ilmar relates that the Prophet went to Ibn Saiyad accompanied by a party of his companions, and found him playing with boys, and at this time lie had nearly reached puberty, and Ihn Sanyad had no intimation of the coming of the Prophet and the com pamons, till the Prophet struck him upon the back, and said 'Do you bear witness that I am the Prophet of God?" Then Ibn Saiyad looked at the Prophet and eard, 'I bear witness that you are the Prophet of the ulliterate" After that he said to the Prophet, "Do you bear witness that I am the Prophot of God?" Then the Prophet pressed him I believe in with both his hands and said God and His Prophets', and then said to Ibn Saiyad "What do you look at." He said, "Sometimes a person comes to me telling the truth, and sometimes another person telling lies like as magicians to whom devils bring truth and falsohood." The Prophet said, "The Devil comes to you, and brings you news, false and true After that, the Prophet said . Verily I have concoaled a revelation from you" (which was the one in which there is ment on or the smoke), and Ihn Saiyad raid, "It it the one with the smoke?" Then the Prophet said "Begone! yon cannot surpass your own degree!" Ibn 'Umar said, "O Prophet of God! do you permit me to strike off Ibn Salyad's head?" He said, "If Ibn Saijad be Dajjal, you will not be able to kill him, because Jeans will be his slayer, and if he is not Dajjal there can Atten this be no good in your killing him. After this the Prophet and Ubary ibn K ? al-Ansari went towards some date trees belonging to Ibn Saiyad, and the Prophet hid bimself behind the branches, to listen to what he would say, before Ibn Saiyad discovered him. And at this time I'm Saryad was lying upon his bed, with a sheet over his face, talking to himself, and his mother saw the Prophet standing behind the branches of the trees, and said to her son, "Muhammad is standing At this he became silent, and the Prophet said, "Had not his mother informed him he would have said something to have discovered what he is " Then the Prophet repeated, "Praised be fied, by that which is worthy of , and then mentioned Dajjal and said, "Verily, I fear for you from Dajial, there is no Prophet but he alarmed his people about him, Verily, Noah frightened his people about Dajial but I will tell you a thing lie the matter of Dajjäl, which no one Prophet ever told his people know that he is blind, and that verily God is not blind."

Abu Saud al-Khudu says "Ibn Saiyad asked the Prophet about the earth of Paradise, and he said 'The earth of Paradise is in whiteness like flour twice sifted, and in smell like pure musk' And I accompanied Ibn Sarvad from al-Madinah to Makkah, and he said to me 'What ir tible I have experienced from people supposing me Dajjāl! Have you not neard, O lbn Saiyād the Prophet of God say "Verily, Dajjal will have no children"? and I have, and verily the Prophet has said, "Dajjai is an infidel," and I am a Muslim' and the Prophet said, "Dajjal will neither outer "... Madinah nor Makkah' and neither enter d-Madmah nor Makkah verily, I am going from el-Madinah and intend going to Makkah' After that, Ibn Saivad said, in the latter part of his speech, Beware, I swear hand and I know the pince of Dajjal's birth, and whee he stays and I know his Then this made me father and moth 1 doubtful, and I said, May the remainder of your divs be lost to you. A person present said to Ibn Saiyad, Would you like to be Daijul. He said, 'I I possessed what Daljul is described to have, such as the power of leading astray, I should not dishke it "
Ibn Umar says "I met Ibn Saiyad when he had swollen eyes, and I said, 'How long has this been?' He aid 'I do not know' I said, 'Do not know man that your eyes are in your head?' He said. If God pleased He could create eyes in your limbs, and they would not know anything about it, in this manner also, man is a employed as to be insensible to pains. They lon Salyad made a noise from his nose, louder than the braving of an ass" (Mishkat, book xxin ch v) الى عبر) UMAR) 'Abdı 'ı Rahman 'Abdu 'llah, son of 'Umar the colchiated Khalifah, was one of the most eminent of the "companions" of Muham-mad He embraced Islam with his father when he was only eight years old. For a period of sixty years he occupied the leading position as a traditionist, and al-Bukhaii, the collector of traditions, says the most authentic are those given on the authority of Ibn 'Umar He died at Makkah A H 78 (A.D 692), aged 84 Tears.

IBRAHIM (ابراهيم) The patriarch Abraham [ARRAHAM]

IBRAHIM (Analyt). The infant son of Muhammad by his slave girl, Mary the Copt Born AH 8, died AH 10 (AD The infant 681).

(عيد) ID؛ FESTIVAL

'IDAN (عيدان) The Dual of 'Id, a festival. The two festivals, the 'Idu T-Fifr, and the 'Idu 'l Azhā

'IDDAH (see) Let "Number"
The term of probation incumbent upon a Lit "Number" woman in consequence of a dissolution of marriage, either by divorce or the death of her husband. After a divorce the period is three months, and after the doath of her husband, four months and ten days, both periods being enjoined by the Qur'an (Sürah ixv 4, 11 284)

'IDGAH (عيدكاة) Lit "A place of festival" A Persian term for the muscille, or praying-place, set apart for the public prayers said on the two chief festivals, viz 'Idu 'I-Fitr, and 'Idu 7-Azha ['IDAN ]

IDIOTS Arabic magnun ( , pl majann Mr Lane, in his Modern Egyptians, vol 1. p 288, says -

"An idiot or a fool is vulgarly regarded by them as a being whose mind is in heaven while his grosser part mingles among ordinary mortals, consequently he is considered an especial favourite of heaven Whatever enormities a reputed saint may commit (and there are many who are constantly infringing precepts of their religion), such acts do not affect his fame for sanctity, for they are considered as the results of the abstraction of his mind from worldly things his soul, or reasoning faculties, being wholly absorbed in devotion, so that his passions are left without control Lunatics who are dingerous to society are kept in confinement, but those who are harmless are generally regarded as saints Most of the reputed saints of Egypt are either lunatics, or idiots or impostors

IDOLATRY The word used in the Qur'an for idolatry is shirk ( ), and for an idelator, mushrik ( pl. mushri kun In theological works the word wagant (وثني) is used for an idolator (wasin an (رثني), and 'ibādatu 'l-ausān (مادة الأرثان), for idolatry

In one of the earliest Surahs of the Qur'an (when chronologically arranged), lu 35-43, idolatry is condemned in the following lan-

"Were they created by nothing or were they the creators of themselves

"Created they the Heavens and Earth? Nay, rather, they have no faith "Hold they thy Lord's treasures? Bear they the rule supreme?

"Have they a ladder for hearing the angels? Let anyone who hath heard them bring a clear proof of it

"Hath God daughters and ye sons? Askest thou pay of them? They are themselves weighed down with debts

"Have they such a knowledge of the secret things that they can write them down?

"Desire they to lay snares for thee? But the snared ones shall be they who do not believe.

"Have they any God beside God? Glory be to God above what they jour with Him."

But they are in a later Surah (nearly the last), ix. 28, declared unclean, and forbidden to enter the sacred temple at Makkah. That was after Muhammad had destroyed the idols in his last pilgrimage to the Sacred

"O Believers! only they who join gods with God are unclesn! Let them not, therefore after this their year, come usar the sacred temple. And if ye fear want, God, if He please, will enrich you of His abundance for God is Knowing, Wise "

In a Surah given about the same time (17 51, 116), idolatry is declared to be the unpardonable sin -

' Verily, God will not forgive the union of other gods with Himself' But other than this will He forgive to whom He pleaseth And he who unitely gods with God hath de vised a great wickedness."

"God truly will not forgive the joining other gods with Himself Other sins He will forgive to whom He will but he who joineth gods with God, bath erred with far-gone error'

Nor is it lawful for Muslims to pray for the souls of idolaters, as is evident from Surah ix 114

"It is not for the prophet or the faithful to pray for the forgiveness of those, even though they be of kin who associate other beings with God after it bith been made clear to them that they are to be the inmates of Hell

"For neithor did Ahiaham ask forgiveness for his father but in pursuance of a promise which he had promised to him but when it was shown him that he was an enemy to God, he declared bimself clear of him

Abraham was pittul, kind Sir William Mur says (Int p ccxu) that 'Mahomet is related to have said that Amr son of Lobai (the first Khozaite king, A b 200) was the earl est who dared to change the 'pure religion of Ishmael,' and set up idols brought from Syria. This, however, is a mere Muslim concert The practice of idolatry thinkly overspread the whole peninsula from a much more remote period

From the chapters from the Qur'an, already quoted, it will be soon that from the very first Muhammad denounced idelatry But the weakness of his position compelled him to move cautiously The expressions contained m the al-Madinah Suraha, given when Mu-hammad could not enter Makkah, are much more restrained than those in the Surahs givon after the capture of Makkah and the destruction of the idols of the Karbah

At an early period (about the fifth year) of his mission, Muhammad seems to have contemplated a compromise and reconciliation with Makkan idolatry Sir William Mair

(quoting from at-Tabarr, pp 140-142, and Ratibu'l-Waqidi, p 40), says —

"On a certain day, the chief men of Mecca, assembled in a group beside the Kaaba, discussed, as was their wont, the affairs of the city Mahomet appeared, and, seating himself by them in a friendly manner, began The to recite in their hearing Sura lin chapter opens with a description of the first visit of Gabriel to Mahomet, and then unfolds a second vision of that angel, in which certain heavenly mysteries were revealed It then proceeds .

And see ye not Lat and Ozza, And Manat the third besides?

"When he had resched this verse, the devil suggested to Mahomet an expression of thoughts which had long possessed his soul, and put into his mouth words of reconcila tion and compromise, the revelation of such as he had been yearning that God might send unto his people, namely

These are the exalted females

And verily their intercession is to be hoped

The Coreish were astonished and delighted with this acknowledgment of their derives and as Mahomet wound up the Sura with the closing words,-

Wherefore bow down before God, and serve Hum,

the whole assembly prostrated themselves with one accord on the ground and wor shipped Walid alone unable from the in himities of age to bow down took a handful of earth and worshipped pressing it to his forehead

"And all the people were pleased at that which Mahomet had spoken, and they began to say, Now we know that it is the Lord alone that giveth life and taketh it away, that createth and supporteth And as for these our goddesses, make intercession with Him for us wherefore as thou hast con ceded unto them a portion, we are content to follow theo

· But their words disquiete ! Mahomet, and he retired to his house in the evening Gabriel visited him, and the Propuet (as was And his wont) recited the Sura unto him Cabriel said . What is this that thou hast done ' thou hast repeated before the people words that I never gave unto thee So Mahemet grieved sore, and seared the Lord greatly, and he said, 1 have spoken of God that which he bath not said But the Lord comforted His Prophet and restored his confidence, and cancelled the verse and revealed the true reading thereof (as it now stands), numej a

And see we not Lat and OATE. And Manat the third besides

What' shall there be male progeny unto you, and female unto him?

That were indeed an unjust partition!

They are naught but names, which we and your fathers have invented &c

· Now, when the Corsish heard this they spoke among thomselves, saying, 'Mahomet buth repented his favourable mention of the rank of our goddesses with the Lord hath changed the same, and brought other words instead' So the two Satanic verses were in the mouth of every one of the unbehevers, and they increased their malice, and stirred them up to persecute the faithful with still greater severity" (bir W Murs Left of Mahomet, new ed p 86, seqq)

The Commentators do not refer to this cir cumstance, and pious Muhammadans would reject the whole story but as in W Muir says, the authorities are too strong to be impugned."

These narratives of ap-labari and the secretary of al-Waqidi are fully borne out in the facts of Muhammad's subsequent compromise with the idolatrous feelings of the people, for whilst he removed the images from the Ka hah, he at the same time retained the black stone as an object of superstituous reverence, and although he destroyed leaf and Na'luh, the desties of as-Sata and al-Marwab, he still retuned the 'nunnings to and fro, and tue storings of the pillars," as part of the sacred rates of what was intended to be a purely theistic and iconoclastic system most singular feature in the fetichism of Arabia was the adoration paid to unshapen st nes and Muhammad found it impossible to construct his religion without some com promise with the popular form of idolatry It is a ourious circumstance that so much of the zeal and bigotry of the Wahhabi puri taus is directed against the shirk, or idolatry, of the popular veneration for tombs and other objects of adoration, and yet they see no objection to the adoration of the black stone, and those other strange and peculiar customs which form part of the ritos of the Makkan pilgrimage

IDOLS Arabic nasan (وثن), pl auein, also anam (ana), pl asnam, both words being used in the Quran. Ten of the idols of ancient Arabia are mentioned by name in the Quran, viz — Süiah iv 52 "Hast thou not observed those to whom a part of the Scriptures hath been given 'They believe in al- libt and at-Iaghut and say of the infidels. These are guided in a better path thun those who hold the faith Surah lui 19 "Havo ye considered al-Lat, al-'Uzzu and Manat the thud?

Sursh lax: 21 "They have plotted a great plot and said, "Ye shall surely not leave your gods se shall surely neither leave Wadd, nor Sieca, nor 'aghus, noi Ya'ug nor Nasi, and they led astrav many

Al-Itht and at Tayhūt (the latter also men tioned in Surah ii 257, 259) were, according to Jalalu d-din, two idols of the Quraish whom certain renegade Jews honoured in order to please the Quraish

Al-Lat was the chief idol of the Banu Saqif at at-Ta'if The name appears to be the feminine of Allah God.

Al 'Uzza has been identified with Venus, but it was worshipped under the form of an acacia tree, and was the duty of the Banu Ghatafan

Monet was a large sacrificial stone worshipped by the Bant Khuzë'ah and Bant Husail

The five idols, Wadd, Suwe', Yaghus, Ye'uq, and Nasr, the commentators say, were originally five persons of eminence in the time of Adam, who after their deaths were worshipped in the form of idols

Wadd was worshipped by the Banu Kalb in the form of a man, and as said to have represented heaven.

Sawa" was a female derty of the Banû Hamdân.

Yaghug was a delty of the Bant Mazhij and in the form of a hon

Young was an idol of the Bank Murad in the shape of a horse,

Nasr was, as its name implies, an image of an eagle, and worshipped by Himyar

It is said (according to Burkhardt, p. 164) that at the time of Muhammad's suppression of idol worship in the Makkan temple, there were not fewer than 360 idols in existence

The chief of the minor deities was Hubal, an image of a man, and said to have been originally brought from Syria. Other well-known idols were Isāf, an idol on Mount as-Ṣāfā, and Nā'ilah, an image on Mount al-Marwah, as part of the rites of the pilgrimage, the Prophet not being able to divert entirely the regard of the people for them

Habhah was a large sacred stone on which camels were sacrificed, and the Hajaru 'l-Asvaal, or Black Stone, was an object, as it still is, of idolatrous worship. In the Kabah there were also images representing Abraham and Ishmael, each with divining arrows in his hand.

The statement, made by some writers, that the image or picture of Jesus and Mary had a place in the Ka'bah, seems to be without any authority

Although Herodotus does not refer to the Ka'bah, yet he mentions as one of the chief divinities of Arabia Altiat, which is strong evidence of the existence of an idol called al-Lât at that time as an object of worship (Herod. in. 8) [IDOLATEY]

IDRIS (الربحي) A prophet mentioned twice in the Quran, about whose identity there is some discussion

Sürah xix. 57 "Commemorate Idvis in the Book, virily he was a man of truth and a Prophet, and we raised him to a lofty place."

Sürah xxı 85, "And Ishmael, and Idrīs, and Zū 7-kifi—all steadfast in patience"

Al-Baisawi says Idris was of the posterity of Shis (Seth), and a forefather of Noah, and his name was Uhnükh (Enoch, Heb 7)7, Consecrated). He was called Idris from dars, "to matruct," from his knowledge of divine mysteries, and thirty portions of God's sacred soriptures were revealed to him. He was the first person who learned to write, and he was the inventor of the science of astronomy and arithmetic

Husain says, "In the Jami's 'l-Usul, it is written that Idris was born one hundred years after the death of Adam."

The Jalalan say the meaning of the words in the Qur'an, " we reused him to a lofty place," is that he liveth either in the fourth heaven, or in the sixth or seventh heaven, or that he was raised up from the dead and taken to Paraduse.

The Kāmālān say, "In the book called the Rausatu 'l-Abbāb, Ibn Jarīr relates that Idrīa was the special friend of one of the angels of heaven, and that this angel took him up into the heavens, and when they arrived in the fourth heaven they met the Angel of Death. The angel asked the Angel of Death how many years there were remaining of the hife of Idrīs, and the Angel of Death said, 'Where is Idrīs, for I have received orders to bring death to him?' Idrīs then remained in the fourth heaven, and he died in the wings of his angel friend who had taken him from earth"

Some of the Commentators think Idris and Elijah (Ilyis) are the same persons. But the accounts given seem to identify him with Enoch 'IDU'L-AZHĀ (عمدالاهم) Vulg.

'Id-1-Zuhā, "The least of sacrifice" Oalled also Yaumu'n-Nahr, Qurbān-'Id, Baqarah-'Id (se the cow featival), and in Turkey and Egypt'Idu Burrān. It is also called the 'Idu'l-kabir, the great festival, as distinguished from the 'Idu'l-Fifr, which is called the minor festival, or al-'Idu's-saghir

It is celebrated on the tenth day of Zü 'l-Hijjah, and is part of the rites of the Makkan pilgrimage, although it is observed as well in all parts of Islam both as a day of sacrifice and as a great festival It is founded on an injunction in the Qur'an, Sürah xxii.

33-38

"This do And they who respect the symbols of God, perform an action which proceedeth from piety of heart.

"Ye may obtain advantages from the cuttle up to the set time for slaying them, then, the place for sacrificing them is at the ancient House

"And to every people have we appointed symbols, that they may commemorate the name of God over the brute beasts which He hath provided for them. And your God is the one God. To Him, therefore, surrender vourselves and bear thou good tidings to those who humble themselves,—

"Whose hearts, when mention is made of God, thrill with awe, and to those who remain steadfast under all that befalleth them, and observe prayer, and give alms of that with which we have supplied them.

"And the camels have we appointed you for the secrifice to God much good have ye in them. Make mention, therefore, of the name of God over them when ye slay them, as they stand in a row, and when they are fallen over on their sides, eat of them, and feed him who is content and acketh not, and him who asketh. Thus have We subjected them to you, to the intent ye should be thankful.

"By no means can their flesh reach unto God, neither their blood, but piety on your part reacheth Him. Thus hath He subjected them to you, that we might magnify God for His guidance: moreover, announce glad tidings to those who do good deeds"

The metitution of the sacrifice was as follows -A few months after the Hijrah, or flight from Makkah Muhammad, dwelling in al-Madinah, observed that the Jews kept on the tenth day of the seventh month, the great fast of the Atonement. A tradition records that the Prophet asked them why they kept this fast He was informed that it was a memorial of the deliverance of Moses and the children of Israel from the hands of Pharaoh "We have a greater right in Moses than they ' said Muhammad, so he fasted with the Jews and commanded his followers to fast also This was at the period of his mission when Muliammed was friendly with the Jews of al-Madinah, who occasionally came to hear him preach The Prophet also occasionally attended the synagogue Then came the change of the Qublah from Jerusalem to Makkah, for the lows were not so ready to change their creed as Muhammad had at hrst hoped In the second year of the Hijrah Muhammad and his followers did not perties pate in the Jewish fast, for the Prophet now instituted the 'Idu l-Azha The idolstrou-Arabs had been in the habit of making all animal pilgrimage to Makkah at this season of the year. The offering of animals in ceremony of that pilgrimage That portion - the sacrifice of snimals -- Muhammad idopted in the feast which now at al-Madinah he substituted for the Jawish fast. This was well calculated to attract the atten tion of the Makkans and to gain the goodwill of the Arabs Muhammad could not then make the pilgrimage to Makkah, for as vet there was a hostile feeling between the innabitants of the two cities, but on the tenth day of the month &u l-Hajjah at the very time when the Arabs at Makkah were engaged m sacrificing victims, Muhammad went forth from his honse at al Madinah, and assembling his followers instituted the Idu'l-Azha. Two toung kids were brought before him One he sacrificed and said "O Lord' I sacrifice this for my whole people, all those who bear witness to Thy unity and to my mission O Lord! this is for Muhammad and for the family of Muhammad"

There is nothing in the Qur an to connect this sacrifice with the history of Ishmael but it is generally held by Muhammadaus to have been instituted in commemoration of Abraham's willingness to offer up his son as a sacrifice. And Muhammadan writers generally maintain that the son was Ishmael and not Isase, and that the scane took place on Mount Mina near Makkah, and not in the land of Moriah, as is stated in General

The following is the account given by Muhammadan writers —"When Ibrahim (the peace of God be upon him) founded Makkah, i the Lord desired him to prepare a feast for Upon Ibrahim's (the friend of God) requesting to know what He would have on the occasion, the Lord replied, 'Offer up thy son Ismu'il' Agreeably to God's command he took Isma'il to the Ka'bah to sacrifice him, and having laid him down, he made several meffectual strokes on his throat with a knife, on which Ismail observed. Your eyes being uncovered it is through pity and compassion for me you allow the knife to miss it would be better if you blindfolded chen secreticed me? Ibrahim acted upon his son a suggestion and having repeated the words Bismi ilahi, allahu akbar' (er 'In the name of God' God is great!), bo drew the knife across his son's neck. In the mean while, however, Gabriel had substituted a broad-tailed shoep for the youth Ismail, and Ibrahim unfolding his eyes observed, to his surprise, the sheep slain, and his son standing (See Quanu'l-Ambrua behind him

It is a notable fact that whilst Mulammad professed to abroyate the Jewish ritual and also ignored entirely the doctrine of the Atonement as taught in the New Testament, denving even the very fact of our Saviour's cruculation he made the "day of sacrifice" the great central featirs) of his religion

There is a very iemarkable Hadis, related by 'Ayishah, who states that Muhammad said "Man hath not done anything on the Idu'l Azha more pleasing to God than spilling blood for verily the animal sacrificed will come on the day of resurrection, with its horns its hair, and its hoofs, and will make the scale of his (good) actions heavy Verily its blood reacheth the acceptance of (rod, before it falleth upon the ground, therefore be joyful in it" (Mishkat book iv ch xln sec 2)

Muhammid has thus become a witness to the doctine of the Christian faith that "with out shedding of blood, there is no remission" The animal sacrificed must be without blemish, and of full age but it may be either a gost, a sheep, a cow, or a came!

The roligious part of the festival is observed as follows.—The people assemble in the morning for prayer, in the fldgah, or place erected outside the city for these special testival prayers. The whole congregation then standing in the usual order the Imam takes his place in front of them and leads them in two rak also of prayer. After prayers the Imam ascends the mimbar or pulpit and delivers a Khutbah, or oration, on the subject of the restrict

We are indebted to Mr Sell for the following specimen of the Khutbah -

In the name of God, the Compassionate, the Merciful

God is Great There is no God but God (200) is Great! God is Great and worthy of all praise. He is Holy Day and night we should praise Him He is without partner without equal. All praise be to Him Holy is He, Who makes the rich generous, Who provides the sacrifice for the wise He is Great without an equal. All praise be to Listen! I testify that there is no God but God. He is alone, without partner This testimony is as bright as the early dawn, as brilliant as the glorious feast day Muhammad is His servant who delivered His message On Muhammad, and on his family, and on his Companions may the peace of God rest. On you who are present, O congregation of Muslimin, may the mercy of God for ever rest. O servants of God! our first duty is to fear God and to be kind. God has said, 'I will be with those who fear Me and are kind.

"Know, O servants of God! that to rejoice on the feast day is the sign and mark of the pure and good Exalted will be the rank of such in Paradise, especially on the day of resurrection will they obtain dignity and honour Do not on this day foolish acts is no time for amusements and negligence This is the day on which to utter the praises of God. Read the Kalımah, the Takbir and the Tambid. This is a high festival season and the feast of sacrifice Read now the Takbirn t-Tashriq God is great! God is great! There is no God but God! God is great! God is great! All praise be to Him! From the morning of the 'Arafah, after every farz rakah, it is good for a person to repeat the Takbiru't-Tashriq The woman before whom is a man as Imam, and the traveller whose Imam is a permanent resident, should also repeat this Takbir It should be said at each Namaz until the Salatu'l-'Asr of the Feast day (10th) Some, however, say that it should be recited every day till the afternoon of the thirteenth day, as these are the days of the Tashriq If the Imam forgets to recite, let not the worshipper forget Know, O believers, that every free man who 18 a Şāhib-i-Nisāb should offer saorifice on this day, provided that this sum is exclusive of his horse, his clothes, his tools, and his household goods and slaves It is wajib for everyone to offer eacrifice for himself, but it is not a wajib order that he should do it for his children. A goat, a ram, or a cow, should be offered in sacrifice for every seven persons. The victim must not be one-eyed, blind, lame, or very thin.

"If you sacrifice a fat animal it will serve you well, and carry you across the Sirat O Believers, thus said the Prophet, on whom be the mercy and peace of God, 'Sacrifice the viotim with your own hands, this was the Sunnah of Ibrahîm, on whom be peace'

"In the Kıtabu Zadı 't-Taqwa rt 18 said that, on the 'Idu'l-Figr and the 'Idu 'l-Azhā, four naft raktaks should be said after the farz Namas of the 'Id. In the first rak'ah after the Süratu 'l-Fätihah recite the Süratu 'l-A'la (Surah lxxvn), in the second, the Suratu'sh-Shams (Surah zer.), in the third, the Suratu 'z-Zuha (Sürah xeiii.), in the fourth, the Süratu 'l-Ikhläs (exu)
"O Behevers, if ye do so, God will pardon the sins of fifty years which are past and of fifty years to come The reading of these Surahs is equal, as an act of merit, to the reading of all the books God has sent by His prophets.

"May God include us amongst those who are accepted by Him, who act according to the Law, whose desire will be granted at the Last Day To all such there will be no fear in the Day of Resurrection; no sorrow in the examination at the Day of Judgment. The best of all books is the Quran Obelievers! May God give to us and to you a blessing for ever, by the grace of the Noble Qur'an May its verses be our guide, and may its wise mention of God direct us aright I desire that God may pardon all believers, male and female, the Muslimin and the Muslimit O believers, also seek for pardon. Truly God is the Forgiver, the Merciful, the Eternal King, the Compassionate, the Clement. O belisvers, the Khutbah is over Let all desire that on Muhammad Mustafa the mercy and peace of God may rest"

The Khutbah being ended, the people all return to their homes. The head of the family then takes a sheep, or a cow, or a goat, or camel, and turning its head towards

Makkah says

"In the name of the great God.

"Verily, my prayers, my sacrifice, my life, my death, belong to God, the Lord of the worlds He has no partner that is what I am bidden for I am first of those who are Muslem (se resigned) "

And then he slays the animal The flesh of the animal is then divided into three portions, one third being given to relations, one third to the poor, and the remaining third reserved for the family Quite apart from its religious ceremonies, the festival is observed as a great time of rejoicing, and the holiday is kept for two or three days in a similar way to that of the minor festival or the 'Idu 7-Fitr [RAJJ, ISHMARL, SACRIFICE ]

"The Festival of the Breaking of the Fast" It is oalled also 'Idu Ramazan, the 'Idu 's-Sadagah (Feast of Alms), and the 'Idu 'ssaghir (Minor Festival) It commences as soon as the month's fast in Ramasan is over, and consequently on the first day of the month of Shawwal. It is specially a feast of alms-giving "Bring out your alms," said Ibn 'Abbas, "for the Prophet has ordained this as a divine institution, one Sa' of barley or dates, or a half Sa' of wheat this is for every person, free or bond, man or woman, old or young, to purify thy fast (s.e the month's fast just concluded) of any obscene language, and to give victuals to the poor" (Mishkat, book vi ch. iii.)

On this festival the people, having pre-viously distributed the alms which are called the Sadaqutu 'LFitr, assemble in the vast assembly outside the city in the Idgah, and, being led by the Imam, recite two rak ahs of prayer After prayers the Imam ascends the mimbar, or pulpit, and delivers the kind-bas, or oration. We are indebted to Mr Sell for the following specimen of one of these sermons.

"In the name of God, the Compassionate, the Merciful.

"Holy is God who has opened the door of mercy for those who fast, and in mercy and kindness has granted them the right of entrance into heaven. God is greater than all. There is no God save Hlm. God is great! God is great! and worthy of praise It is of His grace and favour that He rewards those who keep the fast He has said 'I will give in the future world houses and palaces, and many excellent blessings to those who fast. God is great! Holy is He who 'certainly sent the Qur'an to our Pro-phet in the month of Ramazan, and who sends angels to grant peace to all true behavers God is great! and worthy of all praise We praise and thank Him for the 'Idu 7-Figr, that great blessing, and we testify that be-side Him there is no God. He is alone. He has no partner This witness which we give to His Unity will be a cause of our safety here, and finally gain us an entranco to Paradisc Mnhammad (on whom he the mercy and peace of God) and all famous prophets are His slaves He is the Lord of genii and of man From Him comes mercy and peace upon Muhammad and his family, so long as the world shall last God is greater than all There is none beside Him. God is great! God is great! and worthy of all praise company of Believers, O congregation of Muslims, the mercy of the True One is on you. He says that this Feast day is a blessing to you, and a curse to the unbelievers Your fasting will not be rewarded, and your prayers will be stayed in their flight to heavon until you have given the sadaqah O congregation of Believers, to give alms is to you a want duty Give to the poor come measures of grain or its money equivalent Your duty in Ramagan was to say the Tarawih prayers, to make anpphoation to Ged, to sit and meditate (s'tsker) and to read the Qur'an Tho religious duties of the first ten days of Ramagan gain the mercy of God, those of the second ten ment His pardon, whilst those of the last ten save those who do them from the punishment of hell. God has declared that Ramazan is a noble month, for is not one of its nights, the Lailatu I-Qadr, better than a On that night Gabriel thousand months? and the angels descended from heaven till the morning breaks it is full of blessing eloquent interpretor, and its clearest proof is the Qur'an, the Word of God, most Gracious. Holy is God who says in the Quran 'This is a guids for men, a distinguisher between right and wrong. O Believers, in such a month be present, obey the order of your God, and fast, but let the sick and the travellers substitute some other days on which to fast, so that no days be lost, and say 'God is great! and praise Him God has made the fast easy for you O Believers, God will bless you and us by the grace of the Holy Qur'an. Every verse of it is a benefit to us and fills us with wisdom. God is the Bestower, the Holy King, the Munificent, the Kind, the Nourisher, the Mercuful, the Clement."

The Khutbah being ended, the whole congregation raise their hands and offer a munijat for the remission of sins, the recovery of the slok, increase of rain, abundance of corn, preservation from misfortune, and freedom from debt. The Imam then descends to the ground, and makes further supplication for the people, the congregation saying "Amin" at the end of each supplication. At the close of the service the members of the congregation salute and embrace each other, and offer mutual congratulations, and then return to their homes, and spend the rest of the day in feasting and merriment

Mrs Meer Hasan Ali, in her Observations on the Musalmans of India, says

"The assemblies of the ladies on this festival are marked by all the amusements and indulgences they can possibly invent or enjoy in their seclinded state. Some receiving, others paying visits in covered conveyances, all doing honour to the day by wasning their bast jawellery and most splendid dress. The Zanānah rings with festive songs and loud music, the cheerful meeting of friends, the distribution of presents to dependants, and remembrances to the poor all is life and joy, cheerful bustls and amusement, on this happy day of festival, when the good lady of the mansion sits in state to receive presents from inferiors and to grant proofs of her favour to others."

Mr Lane, in his Modern Egyptians, vol. in p. 238, thus describes the 'ldu 'l-Figr, as kept in Egypt -

"Soon after sunrise on the first day, the people having all dressed in new, or in their best clothes, the men assemble in the mosques, and perform the prayers of two rek'ahs, a Soonneh ordinance of the 'eed, after which, the Khateeb delivers an exhortation. Friends, meeting in the mosque, or in the street, or in each othor's houses, congratulate and ombrace and kiss each other They generally visit each other for this purpose Soms, even of the lower classes, dress themselves entirely in a new suit of clothes, and almost everyone wears something new, if it be only a pair of shoes. The servant is presented with at least one new article of clothing by the master, and receives a few plasters from each of his master's friends, if they visit the house, or even goes to those friends to congratulate them, and receives his present, if he have served a former master, he also visits him, and is in like manner rewarded for his trouble, and sometimes he brings a present of a dish of sweet cakes, and obtains, in return, money of twice the value, or more. On the days of this 'eed, most of the people of Cairo eat salted fish, and thin, folded pancakes, and a kind of bun Some families also prepare a dish consisting of stewed meat, with onions, and a quantity of treacle, vine gar, and coarse flour, and the master usually procures dried fruits, such as nuts, raisins, de, for his family Most of the shops an the metropolis are closed, except those at which eatables and sherbet are sold, but the streets present a gay appearance, from the crowds of passengers in their holiday clothes

"On one or more days of this festival, some or all of the members of most families, but chiefly the women, visit the tombs of their relatives. This they also do on the occasion of the other grand festival. ["IDU "L-AZHA.] The visitors, or their servants, carry palm branches, and sometimes sweet basil, to lay upon the tomb which they go to visit. The palm-branch is broken into several pieces, and these, or the leaves only are placed in the tomb.

"Numerous groups of women are seen on these occasions, bearing paim-branches, on their way to the cometeries in the neighbourhood of the metropolis. They are also provided, according to their circumstances, with cakes, bread, dates or some other kind of food, to distribute to the poor who resort to the burnal-ground on these days Sometimes tents are pitched for them the tents surround the tomb which is the object of the visit The visitors recite the Faf'hhab, or, if they can afford it, employ a person to recue tirs, the Soorat Ya' Seen or a larger portion Often a khutmeh (or recital of of the Kuran the whole of the Quran) is performed at the tomb or in the house, by several nokees Then men generally return immediately after these lites have been performed and the fragments or leaves of the palm-branch laid on the tomb the women usually go to the temb early in the morning, and do not return until the afternoon some of them (but these are not generally esteemed women of correct conduct), if they have a tont pass the night m it, and remain until the end of the featival, or until the afternoon of the following Friday, so, too, do the women of a family passessed of a private enclosed burisl ground, with a house within it, for there are many such enclosures, and not a few with houses for the accommodation of the females in the midst of the public cemeteries of Intrigues are sam to be not uncommon with the females who spend the night in tents among the tombs The great cemetery of Bab en-Nuar, in the desert tract immediately on the north of the metropolis, presents a remarkable scene on the two esds In a part next the city-gate from which the burral-ground takes it name many swings and whirligigs are erected and several large tents, in some of which dancers reciters of Aboo-Zoyd, and other performers, amuse a dense crowd of spectators and throughout the burial-ground sie seen numerous tents for the reception of the visitors of the tombs About two or three days ofter the 'eed above described, the 'Kisweb or covering of the Kuabeh which is sent innually with the great caravan of prigrims as conveyed in procossion from the citadel of the metropolis where it is manufactured at the Sooltan's expense, to the mosque of the Hassaueyn.

to be sewed together and lined preparatively to the appronching pilgrinage [KISWAH]

The vusting of tembs on the occasion of the two festivals is not a custom in India It is generally done in the Muharram, both by the Sumīs and the Shānha

TFFAH (dae) "Chastity, nence, purity" Ahlu "iffah, "those w

TFRIT (علبت) A demon, or of demons, mentioned in the Qur'an xxvii 89) They are said to be giant very malicious. The ghosts of the dead are sometimes called by this [GENIL.]

IFTAR (july) Let "Break Breaking the month's fast on the ever the Idu'l-Fitr, that is, at the first at the new moon, after sunset. It is also for breaking the fast every evening afte set during the month of Ramaçãn. It cording to the example of the Proph break the fast by eating either dates or

IHDAD (أحداد) The peric mourning observed by a widow for her band namely, four months and ten [могимия]

THLAL (Jak) Lit 'Raisin voice" A ferm used for the Tal [TALBINAH]

IHRAM (pl) Let "Prol mg" The pilgrun a dress and also the m which the rilgrun is held to be fro time he assumes this distinctive gath he lays it and a lit consists of two white cotton cloths, each six feet in three and a half broad. One of these a termed ride" is thrown over the back exposing the arm and shoulder, is knot the right side in the style railed a Tho other called sizer is wrapped rour loins from the waist to the knee, and k or tucked in at the middle

In the state of thram, the pilgrim is bidden the following actions connection or kissing women, covering the face fumes hunting or slaving animals, a my the head with oil, cutting the best shaving the head, colouring the ciothes, ng the head or heard with marsh make cutting the nails, plucking a blade of cutting a green tree. But although the grim is not allowed to hunt or slay and he may kill the following noxious created a hon a biting dog, a snake or scorp crow a kite, and a rat for each a against the rules of thram, special sac are ordained, according to the officials.

IHSAN (company) Let "To conflavours on to perform an action in a program of the Tradition of the sincere warship of God Muhas said Issan was "both to worship God thou sawest Him, and to remember the seest thee" (Mashkat, book 1 ch. 1) The word is used in this sense by the mystics ("Abdu 'r-Razsaq's Diet of Terms)

IHŞĀN (class). Let "Keep. wife secinded" A legal term for a m man (Hiddynh, vol. ii. n. 49)

المار الحج البية البية البية البية البية البية البية البية البية البية البية البية البية البية البية البية البية hundering of the Pilgrimage For example If a pilgrim be stopped on his way by any unforeseen circumstance, such as sickness or accident, he is required to send an animal to Arabic ed, vol. 1 p 184) The mountain is founded upon the teaching of the Qur'an, Strail is 192 "And if he be prevented, then send whatever offering shall be easiest and shave not your heads until the offering reach the place of sacrifier But wheever among you is sick, or hath an ailment of the head, must explate by fasting, or alms, or a victim for shoulder. And when ye are secure (from hindrances) then he who delights in the visitation ('Umrah) of the holy place until the Pilgrimage, shall bring whatever offering shall be the ensiont But he who hath nothing to offer shall fast three days in the Pilgrimage. and seven days when ye return they shall he ten days m all"

IHTIKAR (June) Hoarding up gram with the object of raising the price Used for monopoly of all kinds. Ahu Hantsah restricts its use to a monopoly of the necessaries of life. It is strictly forbidden by Muhammad, who is related to have said "Whoever monopoliseth is usinner", "Those who bring gram to a city to sell at a cheap rate are blessed and they who keep it back in order to sell at a high rate are cuised" (Mishkūt, book xu ch vin)

IHTILAM (בהלאם) Pollutio nocturna, after which ghost, or legal bathing, is absolutely necessary [ричинскатись]

IHTIMAM (please) "Superintendence, care" The trust or jurisdiction of a landowner over certain portions of land IHYAU 'I.-MAWAT ("The revival of dead lands" A legal term for the cultivation of wastes.

IHZÃR (العفار) A summons citing to appear before a Quar or Judge

IJAB (الجالب) The first proposal made by one of the parties in negociating or concluding a bargain [MARRIAGE]

IJĀRAH (أحارة) Price, hire, wages, reut, profit, emolument, according to the subject to which it applies [HIKE.]

IJMA' (Steal) The third foundation of Islam It literally means "collecting," or "assembling," and in Muslim divinity it expresses the unanimous consent of the Mujtahidun (learned doctors), or, as we should call it "the unanimous consent of the Fathers' A Mujtahid is a Muslim divine of the highest degree of learning, a title usually conferred by Muslim rulers [MUJTAHID] There are three foundations of Islam; (1) Ittifaq-1-Quali, unsumous consent expressed in declaration of openon, (2) Ittifaq 1-Fift expressed in unanimity of practice, (3) Ittifaq

1-Sakut, when the majority of the Mujtahidum signified their tacit assent to the opimous of the minority by "silence" or non-interference.

The Mujtabidun capable of making Ijmë must be "men of learning and piety, not heretios, nor fools, but men of judgment"

There is great diversity of opinion as to up to what period in the history of Islam Imacian be accepted. Some doctors assert that only the Imaci of the Mujtahidun who were of the Mujtahidun who were who wore not only "companions" but "descendanta" of the "Prophet," can be accepted whilst others accept the Imaci of the Ansars (helpers), and of the Muhapran (fugitives), who were dwellers in al-Madinah with Muhammad. The majority of learned Mushin divince however, appear to think that Imaci may be collected in every age, although they admit that, owing to the numerous divisions which have arisen amongst Muhammadans, it has not been possible since the days of the Teibo u 'I Tähim (i.e., the followers of the followers of the Companions)

The following is considered to be the relative value of Ima' -

That of the Ashāb (companions) is equal to Hadig Mutavātir That which was decided afterwards but in accordance with the mammous opinion of the Ashab, is equal to Hadig-1 Khabar-1-Mashhūr and that upon which there was diversity of opinion smongest the Ashab but has since been decided by the later Mujtahidūn is equal to Hadig 1-Khabar 1-Wāhid (See Svud Ahmad Khana Kesay)

Some European writers confuse the term Ima with Ijtihad. But Ijtihad is the deduction made by a single Mujtahid whilst Ijma is the collective opinion of a council of

Mujtahidan, or subghtened doctors

Amongst the Shi'ale there are still Mujtabidun whose Jima' is accepted, but the Sunn's have four orthodox schools of interpretation named after their respective founders—Hanaff Shafa i, Malaki, and Hamblai. The Wahnabis for the most part reject Jima' collected after the death of the Companious

It will be easily understood what a fruitful source of religious dissension and sectarian strife this third form into of the rule of latth is. Invided as the Chiistian Church is by its numerous see's it will compare favourably with Muhammadanism even in this respect. Muhammad, it is related prophesied that is the Jewish Church had been divided into seventy-ine sects! and the Christians into soventy-two' so his followers would be divided into seventy-thies sects! But every Muslim historian is obliged to admit that they have far exceeded the limits of Muhammad's prophecy for, according to 'Abdu I-Qādir al-Jīlani, there are at least 150

IJTHAI) (احتجاد) Let "Exertion" The logical deduction on a legal of theological question by a Multahid or learned and enlightened doctor as distinguished from lyme, which is the collective opinion of a council of divines.

This method of attaining to a certain degree of authority in searching into the principles of jurisprudence is sanctioned by the Tra-

"The Prophet wished to send a man named Mu'az to al-Yaman to receive some money collected for alms, which he was then to distribute to the poor On appointing him he said 'O Mu'az, by what rule will you act? He replied, 'By the Law of the Qur'an' 'But if you find no direction therein?' 'Then I will act according to the Sunnah of the Prophet.' 'But what if that fails?' 'Then I will make an Isthad, and act on that 'The Prophet raised his hands and said, 'Praise be to God who guides the messenger of His Prophet in what He pleases '"

The growth of this system of divinity is traced by a Sunni writer, Mirza Quaim Beg, Professor in the University of St Petersburg (extracts from which are given in bell's Faith of Islam), as follows .

1 God, the only legislator, has shown the way of felicity to the people whom He has chosen, and in order to enable them to walk in that way He has shown to them the procepts which are found partly in the eternal Qur'an, and partly in the sayings of the Prophet transmitted to posterity by the Companione and preserved in the Sunnah That way is called the Shari'ah (law) The rules thereof are called Ahkam (commandments)

2 The Qur'an and the Sunnah which since their manifestation are the primitive sources of the orders of the Law, form two branches of study, viz 'lim-1-Tafsir, or the interpreta tion of the Qur'an, and 'lim-1-Hadia, or the study of Tradition

3. All the orders of the Law have regard either to the actions (Din), or to the behef

(Iman) of the faithful (Mukallif)

4. As the Qur'an and the Sunnah are the principal sources from whence the precepts of the Shari'sh have been drawn, so the rules recognised as the principal elements of actual jurisprudence are the subject of 'Ilm-i-Figh, or the science of Law

Figh in its root eignifies "conception, comprehension" Thus Muhammad prayed for Ibn Mae'ud "May God make him comprehend (Fayqaha-hu), and make him know the interpretation of the Qur'an' Muhammad in his quality of Judge and chief of the Believers decided, without appeal or contradiction, all the affairs of the people His sayings served as a guide to the Companions After the death of the Prophet the first Khalifahs acted on the authority of the Traditions Meanwhile the Qur'an and the Sunnah, the principal elements of religion and legislation, became little by little the subject of controversy It was then that men applied themselves vigorously to the task of learning by heart the Qur'an and the Traditions, and then that jurisprudence became a separate soience No science had as yet been systematically taught, and the early Musalmans did not possess books which would serve for such teaching A change soon, however, took place. In the year in which the great jurisconsult of Syria died (AH. 80), Nu man ibn Sabit, surnamed Abu Hanifah, was born. He is the most celebrated of the founders of the schools of urioprudence, a science which ranks first in all Muslim seats of learning. Until that time and for thirty years later the learned doctors had all their knowledge by heart, and those who possessed good memories were highly esteemed Many of them knew by heart the whole Cur an with the comments made on it by the Prophet and by the Companions, they also knew the Traditions and their explanations, and all the commands which proceed from the Qur'an and the Sunnah Such men enjoyed the right of Mujtabidun They transmitted their knowledge to their scholars orally It was not till towards the middle of the second century of the Hijrah that treatises on the different branches of the Law were written, after which six echools (Mazhabs) of jurisprudence were formed The founders (all Imams of the first class) were Abu Hanifah, the Imamu 'l A'gam or greatest Imam (AH. 150), Sufyan as-Sauri (AH. 161), Malik (AH 179), ash-Shāfi (AH 204), Ibn Ḥanbal (AH 241), and the Imam Dawud ag-Zahiri (A H 270) The two sects founded by as-Şauri and az-dahuri became extinct in the eighth century of the Hijrah The other four still remain These men venerated one another younger ones speak with great respect of the Thus ash-Shafi'i says "No one in elder the world was so well versed in jurisprudence as Abu Hanifah was, and he who has read neither his works nor those of his disciples knows nothing of jurisprudence." Ibn Hanbal. when sick, wore a shirt which had belonged to ash-Shāfi'i, in order that he might be cured of his malady, but all this did not prevent thom starting schools of their own, for the right of Inthad is granted to those who are real Mujtahidun.

There are three degrees of Istahud

1 Istihād fi'ah-Shar, absolute independence in legislation

2 Inhad for 'l-Mazhab, suthority in the judicial systems founded by the Mujtahidun of the first class

3 Istihad fi'l-Masail, authority in cases which have not been decided by the authors of the four systems of jurisprudence.

The first is called a complete and absolute authority, the second relative, the third special

(1) Istihād fi 'sh Shar'

Absolute independence in legislation is the guit of God He to whom it is given when seeking to discover the meaning of the Divine Law is not bound to follow any other teacher He can use his own judgment This gift was bestowed on the jurisconsults of the first, and to some of the second and third centuries The Companions, however, who were closely connected with the Prophet, having transmitted immediately to their posterity the treasures of legislation, are looked upon as Mujtahidun of much higher authority than those of the second and third centuries. Abū Hanifah says "That which comes to us from the Companions is on our head and eyes (s.e. to be received with respect) as to that which comes from the Tabifun, they are men and we are men."

Since the time of the Tābi'an this degree of Mujtahid has only been conferred on the six great Imams before mentioned. Theoretically any Muslim can attain to this degree, but it is one of the principles of jurisprudence that the confirmation of this rank is dependent on many conditions, and so no one now gains the honour These conditions are

1 The knowledge of the Qur'an and all that is related to it, that is to say, a com-plets knowledge of Arabic literature, a pro-found acquaintance with the orders of the Qur'an and all their sub-divisions, their relationship to each other and their connection with the orders of the Sunnah candidate should know when and why each verse of the Qur'an was written, he should have a perfect acquaintance with the literal meaning of the words, the speciality or generality of each clause, the abrogating and abrogated sentences. He should be able to make clear the meaning of the "obscure' раннадев (Mutashābsh), to disoriminate between the literal and the allegorical, the universal and the particular

2 He must know the Qur'an by heart with all the Traditions and explanations

3 He must have a perfect knowledge of the Traditions, or at least of three thousand

He must know their source, history, object, and their connection with the laws of the Qur'an He should know by heart the most important Traditions

4 A pious and austere luie

5 A profound knowledge of all the sciences of the Law

Should anyone now aspnc to such a degree another condition would be added,

6 A complete knowledge of the four schools of jurisprudence

The obstacles, then, are almost insurmountable On the one hand, there is the severity of the 'Ulama', which requires from the can-didate things almost impossible, on the other, there is the attachment of the 'Ulama' to their own Imams, for should such a man arise no one is bound now to listen to him The Imam Ibn Hanbal said "Draw your knowledge from whence the Imams drew theirs, and do not content yourself with following others, for that is certainly blundness of sight" Thus the schools of the four Imams remain intact after a thousand years have passed, and so the 'Ulama' recognise since the time of these Imams no Mujtahid of the first degree Ibn Hanbal was the last

The rights of the man who attamed to this dogree were very important. He was not bound to be a disciple of another, he was a mediator between the Law and his followers, for whom he established a system of legislation, without anyone having the right to make any objection. He had the right to explain the Quran, the Sunnah, and the Ijmä', according as he understood them. used the Prophet's words, whilst his disciples only used his. Should a disciple find some discrepancy between a decision of his own Imam and the Qur'an or Traditions, he must abide by the decision of the Imam The Law does not permit him to interpret after his own When once the disciple has entered fashion the sect of one Imam he cannot leave it and join another He loses the right of private judgment, for only a Mujtahid of the first class can dispute the decision of one of the Imams. Theoretically, such Mujtahidun may still arise, but, as we have already shown, practically they do not

(2) Istshad fi 'l-Mazhab

This degree has been granted to the immediate disciples of the great Imams who have elaborated the systems of their masters They enjoyed the special consideration of the contemporary 'Ulama', and of their respective Imams who in some cases have allowed them to retain their own opinion. The most famous of these men are the two disciples of Abū Hamfah, Abū Yūsuf, and Muhammad ibn al-Hasan. In a secondary matter their opinion carries great weight. It is laid down as a rule that a Mufti may follow the unanimous opinion of these two even when it goes against that of Abū Hanīfah

(8) Istihād fi 'l-Masa'il.

This is the degree of special independence The candidates for it should have a perfect knowledge of all the branches of jurisprudence according to the four schools of the Arabic language and literature They can solve cases which come before them, giving reasons for their judgment, or decide on cases which have not been settled by previous Muj-tahidun, but in either case their decisions must always be in absolute accordance with the opinions of the Mujtahidun of the first and second classes, and with the principles which guided them Many of these men attained prost celebrity during their lifetime, but to most of them this rank is not accorded till after their death Since their Imam Qaşi Khan died A.H. 592), no one has been recognised by the Sunnis as a Mujtahid even of the third class.

There are three other inferior classes of jurists, called Muqallidun, or followers of the Mujtahidun, but all that the highest in rank amongst them can do is to explain obscure passages in the writings of the older juriscon-By soms of the 'Ulama' they are considered to be equal to the Mujtahidun of the hird class If there are several conflicting legal opinions on any point, they can select one opinion on which to base their decision. This a mere Qizi cannot do. In such a case he would have to refer to these men or to their writings for guidance They seem to their writings for guarantees on the legal sys-have written commentaries on the legal systems without originating anything new The author of the Hidayak, who lived at the end of the sixth century, was a Muqalhd.

IKHLÄS (الحلام) Let "Smoornty" (1) A theological term, implying that a Mushim performs his religious acts in the sight of God alone, and not to be seen of men Al-Ikhlas, the title of the exuth Surah of the Qur'an. A chapter which occurs in the daily prayer, and reads thus -- "Say 'He is God alone!

God the Eternal

He hegets not, and is not bepotten! Nor is there anyone like unto him ! ' ' Professor Palmer says this chapter is generally known as al-Ikhlas, "clearing oneself," se of belief in any but one God

(اكراة) IKRÄH COMPULLION

'IKRIMAH (مكرمة) Let ' A hen pigeon" The son of Abii Jahl ibn Hisham A " companion ' of the Prophet He embraced Islam after the final taking of Mak kah. For some years he and his father, Abu Jahl, were determined opponents of Islam He was one of the heroes of the Quraish at the battle of Badi, and com-manded the left wing of the Quraish arm; at Uhud He opposed the Prophet s advance on Wakkah, and on defeat fled to Jiddah, intending to escape to Airica, but he was brought back by his wife to Makkah, and seeived pardon from Muhammad, and em hraced Islam He became one of thu Baki's generals, and died in his reign

'IKRIMAH (هکرمه) Abit 'Abdı llah 'Ikrimah ibu 'Abdı 'llah, was a slave belonging to Ibn Abbas His master took great pains to teach him the Qui an and the Traditions and consequently he is known as a traditionist of some note. His master, Ibn 'Abbas, died without giving him his liberty, and 'Ali the son of Ibn 'Abbas sold him to Khalid the Yarid for four thousand dinars But Tkrimali went to Ali and said bave sold your father's learning for four thou sand dinare!" Upon this, 'Ali being ashamed obtained Khuhd's consent to ununl the nargain and he granted Tkrimah his liberty He died A.R. 107 (A D 725) aged 84

[LĀ' (•¾t) A form of divorce in which a man makes a vow that he will not have connection with his wife for not less than four months and observes it invio The divorce is theirby effected appo furto without a decree of separation from the judge See Quran, Süratu l-Baqarah ii 226 "Those who swear off from their women they must want four months, but if they break their vow, God is forgiving and merciful "

Sulaiman ibn Yeski savs 'I wis il com pany with about ten of the Prophots Companions, and every one said. 'A man who awears that he will not go near his wife for four months shall be imprisoned until he return to her, or he shall divorce her' (Mishkat, book xiii ch xiii)

ILAH (41) An object of worship or adoration, ie a god, or deity. The term Alläh, "God," being Iläh with the definite article of al, ie al-släh "the God" II.AHI (at) From Hāh, "God."

(1) That which is divine, e.g. ad-dine 't-Hāhi, the divine religion (2) Hāhi is also used for the era instituted by the Empeloi Akbar, commencing with the first year of his reign, AH 963, AD 1550 Although found on the come of Akbar and his immediate successors, it never obtained currency, and is now obsolete

(اعلان) I'LAN Publishing the notice of marriage by sonding measurgers to the houses of friends. A onstom which is founded upon the express injunction of the Prophet, as reported by 'Ayishah 'Give notice of marriages, perform them in mosques, and best drums for them ' (Mishkat book xiii en 17 pt 2)

(الهام) ILHAM [INSPIRATION ] AL-ILHAMU R-RABBAN I ا Inspiration (الألهام الرباني)

ILLEGITIMATU CHILDREN An illegitimate child, Alahit waladu 'z-zina' راك الزمام), has legally no father, and a pu tative father is, therefore, excluded from the custody of such a child. The child only inherita from its mother and the mother's relations, who in return inherit from him (Tagore Law Lectures 1873, pp 123, 488)

(عليون) ILLIYUN (عليون) The seventh stage of celestial bliss. Also the register in which the good deeds of Muslims are said to be wintien See Sainatu 't-Intfif, luxuit. 18 "The register of the righteous is in Illivun" See also Mashkat, book v ch m pt 3 " The angels follow it (the soul) through each heaven, and the angels of one region pass it on to the next until it reaches the seventh heaven when God says, Write the name of my servant in 'Illiyan, and return him to the earth, that is, to his body which is buried in the earth '

LLM (ale) Let "To know, knowledge" In Muslim theology, the word "To know, 'Ilm is always used for religious knowledge 'Abdu 1-Haqq says it is the knowledge of re ligion as expressed in " the Book" (Quran) and the "amah" (liaditions) and is of two kinds, Ilmu I-Mubadi, clomentary knowledge, on that relating to the words and sentences of the Qui an and Hadis and Ilmu '-Ma quant, perfected knowledge, or that relating to faith and works, as taught in the Qur'an There is also 'I'mu 'l-Maka and Hadis. shafah, revenled knowledge, or that socret knowledge, or light, which shines into the heart of the prous Muslim whereby he becomes onlightened as to the truths of religion This spiritual knowledge is also called Time 'l-Haqiqah, or the knowledge of the truth' It 18 related (Mishkat, book 11 ch | Arabic ed.) that the Prophet said 'Ilm is of three kinds. viz Ayatu 'l-Muhkam, Sunnatu 'l-Qu'im, and Farezatu l-Adil, and that whatever is be youd these three is not necessary. The learned doctors explain these terms as follows. Agatu 'l-Muskom, the established text or verses of the Qur'an, Sunsatu 'l-Qa'im, the correct Ahadig or Traditions; and Fari-Qur'an and the Traditions.

The acquisition and the imparting of religious knowledge is very highly commended by Muhammad (see Meshkāta 'l-Maṣābiḥ in

"The desire of knowledge is a divine commandment for every Muslim, and to instruct in knowledge these who are unworthy of it, is has putting pearls, jewels, and gold on the necks of swine

"Whoever is asked about the knowledge which he hath, and concealeth it, will be remed with a bridge of fire on the Day of Resurrection"

"There are two avariesous persons that are never satisfied one of them in knowledge, the more he attains the more he desired, other of the world, with the things of which he is never satisfied "

"That person who will pursue the road of knowledge, God will direct him to the road of Paraduse, and verily the angels spread their arms it receive him that seeketh after know ledge and everything in heaven and earth will ask grace for him. Verily the superiority of a learned man over a worshipper is like that of the full moon over all the stars "

'ILMU 'L-ADAB (علم الدب) The science of Philology In Hayi Khalfan, Lexicon, vol. i p 215, quoted by Lane, it is "the science by which one guards against error in the language of the Arabs, with respect to words and with respect to writing

The science of polite writing is classed under twelve heads 1, tughah, lexicology, 2, sarf, accidence, 8, sahtique, derivation, 4, nahw, syntax, 5, ma'ani, sense or meaning, 6, hand, syntax, 5, maran, sense or meaning, 6, bayan, elequence, 7, 'armz, prosedy, 8, qaf; yah, rhyme, 9, rasmu'l-khatt, caligraphy, 10, qarzush shir, versification, 11, usha'u 'n-nagr, prose composition 12, muhazarah, dictation These sections are regarded as distinct sciences

(علم الاعلاق) ILMU 'L-AKHLAQ' Ethics, morals The best known works on the subject are the Persian works—the Akhlaq : Jalati, by Faqir Jani Muham-mad, A H 908 which has been translated into English, with references and notes, by W F Thompson Esq (London, 1889), the Akhling 1-Nasyri by Nasiru 'd-din at-Tusi, A R 672, and the Akhling-1-Muksini by the Maulawi Hussin al Kashlfi (Hussin the com mentator), A H 910

'ILMU 'L-AKTĀF (علم الكتاب). The science of divining by the shoulder blades of sheeq It was the custom of the ancient Arabs to place the shoulder-bone of a sheep in the sun, and to examine it, and so divine by its marks future events, in the same way as by the science of palmistry (Kashfis 'a-Zumun, in local)

("LAU 'I.-'AQA'ID (ALA) [ MMU T-KALAK ]

'ILMU 'L-ASMA' (ala, ). The knowledge of the names, titles, or attributes of God [GOD, MERR, SUFIEM.]

'ILMU 'L-BATIN (علم البالق). The mysho seience, the same as Tasawwii SUFIIGH.

'ILMU 'L-FALAK (علم الله) The ence of Astronomy According to the Muscience of Astronomy hammadans the earth is the centre of the astronomical system. The seven planets, which are called the nujumu 's-sanyarat or wandering stars, as distinguished from fixed stars, are 1, Qamar, Moon, 2, Utarid, Mercury, 3, Zuhiah, Venus, 4, Shams, Sun, 5, Mirrikh, Mars, 6, Mushtari, Jupiter, 7, Zuhal, Saturn

The Arabian arrangement of the planets is that of Ptosemv who placed the earth in the centre of the universe, and nearest to it the moon, whose synodic revolution is the shortest of all, being performed in 291 days Next to the moon he placed Mercury, who returns to his conjunctions in 116 days After Mercury followed Venus whose periodic time is 584 days Beyond Venus he placed the sun, then Mars next Jupiter, and lastly Saturn, beyond which are the fixed stars

The signs of the zodisc (mintagatu'l-burij) are called 1, Hanal, Ram, 2, Saur, Bull, 3, Jauza, Twins, 4, Saratan, Crab, 5, Asad, Lion, 6, Susbalah (let an ear of corn), Virgin 7. Mizan, Scales, 8, Agrab, Scorpton, 9, Quer (bow) Archor, 10, Judy (he-goat), Caproorn 11, Dahr (watering pot). Aquarius, 12. Hut,

(علم العراكفي) ILMU 'L-FARĀ'IZ' The law of mheritance [IMMERSTANCE.]

'ILMU 'L-FIQH (علم العنة) Juris pradence, and the knowledge of all subjects connected with practical religion In the first place, Figh deals with the five pillars of practical religion 1, the recital of the creed, 2, prayer, 3, fasting, 4, zakāt or almegiving, 5, hay or pilgrimage and in the second place with all questions of jurisprudence such as marriage, divorce, inheritance, sale, evidence, slavery, partnership warfare, &c. &c

The chief Sunni works on the subject are Of the Hanafi sect, the Hidayah the Fatawai-Alamgiri, the Durre I Mukhktar, and Raddu '!-Muhtar, of the Shafi'i and Malaki sects. the Kitābu'l-Anwār, the Muharrar and the Ikhtilāfk'l A'immak The best-known Shrah works on juraprudence are the Shara'i'u'l Islām, the Mafātih and the Jāmi'u 'sk

Statet

"ILMU 'L-HADIS (عالم الحديث), The voience of the Traditions, as the various canons which have been established for assertaining the authenticity and genumeness of the Hadis or Traditions The Nukabata 'l-Fikar, with its commentary the Numera 'Ascalani (Lee sed Calcutta, 1862) is a well known work on the subject

علم) ILMU 'L-HANDASAH (علم . The science of Geometry

'IIMU 'L-HIKMAH ( فملم المكانا ، Also 'Ilmu 'l-Falsafah (calla la) [PHILOSOPHY]

'ILMU 'L-HISAB (عسلم الحساب)

(علم الالهيات) TLMU'L.ILĀHIYĀT (عاليهاك) A knowledge of divinity [THEOLOGY]

'LMU'L-INSHA' (علم الانشاء) The art of literary composition [INSHA']

'ILMU 'L-JABR (عسلم الجسسر) Algebra

(علم الكف) ILMU 'L-KAFF' science of palmiatry said to have been practised by Daniel

(عملم الكلام) ILMU 'L.KALAM' Scholastic theology It is also known as 'Ilmu'l-'Aqa'id, the science of the articles of The author of the Kashfu 'z-Zunun defines it as "the science whereby we are able to bring forward proofs of our religious belief, and it includes the discussion of the nature of the existence and the attributes of God

'Ilmu'l-Kalām is the discussion of all subjects connected with the six articles of the Muslim Creed 1, the Unity of God, 2, the Angels 3, the Books 4 the Prophets 5, the Day of Judgment, 6, the Decrees of God, as distinguished from al-Figh, which is an exposition of the five foundations of practical religion -1, recital of the Creed,

2, prayer, 3, fasting, 4 zakat, 5 hajj
The most colebrated works on the subject of 'Aqa'ıd or 'Ilmu 'l-Kalam are Sharhu 'l-Aqa'ıd, by the Maulawi Mas'ud Sa'du d-din at-Taftazani, AH 792 the Sharhu l-Muwaqif, by Suiyid Sharif Jurjan...

(ملم الأمل LLUGHAH) (ملم الأمل) Lexicography [ARABIC LEXICONS]

(عمليم المنطق) LANTIQ (عمليم المنطق) Logical science [LOOIC]

(علم المساحة) TLMU'L-MASAHAH) Menauration

'L-MILÄHAH (p-ILMU (السلمة The nautical art science of making and navigating ships

(علم الموسيةي) ILMU'L-MÜSIQA' The science of Music MUSIC ]

'ILMU 'L-USUI، (علم الأصول) The smence of the "ropts," or fundamentals of the religion of Muhammad namely, of the Quran, Ahadia, Ijma, and Quan The science of exegests, or the rules of interpretation of these four roots of Islam An explanation of the methods of this science will be found in the article on QUR'AR, Sect vin, the same principles applying to the other three fundamentals

The best known works on the 'Ilmu l-Ush are the Masar by 'Abdu liab ibn

Ahmad an-Nasafi, A.H 710, and mentary, the Nuru 'l-Anwar, also by 'Ubaidu 'liah ibn Mas'ud, A.H. its commentary, at-Taurth, by author, and a super-commentary wihu 't-Tauzih, by Sa'du 'd-din ] 'Umar at-Taftazani, A H 792

AL-ILMU 'L-YAQIN ( ) Certain knowledge, demonstration gious life, a knowledge of the trut

ناسه) ILMU'N-NABĀTĀT (سالة The knowledge of the use

النجوم) ILMU 'N-NUJŪM' Astrology "The science by which covered the events both of the pres the future by means of the posit stars ' (Kashfu 'z Zunun, in loco) LOGY ]

رسل ILMU 'R-RAML' رسل Geomancy A pretended divination of lines on the sand (raml) It is at been practised as a miracle by eix vız Adam, Idris, Luqman, Arm nuah), Sha'yā' (Isaiah), Damel (S 'z-Zunun, ın loco )

'ILMU 'R-RİYAZAH (🍱 Mathematics The author of z-Lunun save the science of I divided into four sections geometry, 2, hrah, astronomy, arithmetic, 4, mūsiqā, music لم السحر) S-SIHR؛ السحر) science of magic [MAGIC.]

'ILMU 'SH-SHI'R [PORTRY ]

'ILMU 'S-SIMIYĀ' (*\** Natural magic, chiromancy, palmis ميمى) I'ILMU 'T-ŢABĪ'I' علم Natural philosophy

'ILMU 'T-TAJWID (مويد called also 'Ilmu't-Qıra'ah The reading the Qur'an correctly The n lar work on the subject is al-Mu I Juzariyah, by the Shaikh Muha Muhammad al-Inzari (A.H. 833)

'T-TASAWWUF TIMU التموك) The mystic or conte [SUFIISM.] scionce

'ILMU 'T-TASHRIH ( The sunne of anatomy

'T-TAWĀRIKH ·ILMU التواريع), or 'Ilmu 't-Tu'rikh logy, history For a complete list madan bistories of an carly date, a 'z Zunun in locu ام اللب) ILMU 'T-TIBB' science of Medicine For a list books of an early date, see Kashfi in loco

ILQA' (Jun) Lat "L infusing " A theological term us teaching of the heart by the power of God. Inspiration of soul in that which is good

IMAGES It is unlawful for a Muhammadan to have an image of any kind in his house (Mishkāt, book xx. ob. v) [PICTURES, IDOLS.]

IMAM (plot). One whose leadership or example is to be followed A pat term, a model, an example of evil The term is used in the Qur'an in these senses

Sürah ii 118 "Verily I have set thee (Abraham) as an Imām (or a leader) for mankind."

Sûrah xvi. 73 "The day when we will call all men by their Iman (or leader)."

Sürah xxxvi, 11 "Everything we have set down in a clear model"

Surab zv 79 "They (Sodom and Midian) are an obvious example"

Surah xxv 74 "Make us a model to the pious"

Muhammadans use the term in the following senses -

(1) The Imam, or Khalifah, of the Muslim cople. The author of the Hidayak says, by the rightful Imam is understood a person in whom all the qualities essential to magis-tracy are united, such as Islamism, freedom, samity of intellect, and maturity of age, and who has been elected into his office by any tribe of Muslims, with their general consent, whose view and intention is the advancement of the true religion, and the etrengthening of the Muslims, and under whom the Muslims enjoy security in person and pro-perty, one who levies title and tribute according to law, who, out of the public treasury, pays what is due to learned men preachers, qarıs, muftis, philosophers, public teachers, and so forth, and who is just m all his dealings with Muslims, for whoever does not answer this description is not the right Imam, whence it is not incumbent to support such a one, but rather it is incum-

THE IMAM LEADING PRATERS AND REGITING THE FATHAH OR FIRST SURAH OF THE QUR'AN (E. Campbell.)

bent to oppose him, and make war upon him until such time as he either adopt a proper mode of conduct, or be slain as is written in the Ma'dinu'l-Haqa'iq, copied from the Faua'id (Hidayah, vol 11 p 248)

For a discussion of this meaning of the title, refer to the article on KHALIVAH, which is the term used for the Imam of the Sunnī Muslims.

(2) The Shī'ahs apply the term Imām to the twelve leaders of their sect whom they call the true Imāms [ser'ah] and not using the term Khalīfah for this office as the Sunnis do The Shī'ah traditions are very wild on the subject of the Imāmate, and contrast unfavourably with those of the Sunnis

In the Hayate N-Quist (Merrick s edition, p 203), Muhammad is said to have related "On the night of the ascension, the Most High commanded me to inquire of the past prophets for what reason they were exalted to that rank, and they all testified, We were raised up on account of your prophetical office, and the Imamate of 'Ali ibn Abi Tālib, and of the Imams of your posterity A divine voice then commanded, 'Look on the right voice then commanded, 'Look on the right side of the empyrean.' I looked and saw the simulitude of 'Ali and al-Hasan, and al-Husain, and 'Ali ibn al Husain (altas Zainu 'I 'Abidin), and Muḥammad al-Bāqir, and Ja'far as-Sādiq, and Mūsā al-Kāzim, and 'Ali ibn Mūsā ar-Rizā, and Muhammad at-Jaqi, and 'Ali an-Naqi, and al Hasan al Askarī, and al-Mahdi, all performing prayers in a sea of light These, said the Yost High, are my proofs, vicegerents, and friends, and the last of them will ake vongeance on my enemies "

(3) The linum or leader, of any system of theology or law Abu Hanifah and the other three doctors of the Sunnis are called Imaine and so are other leading doctors of divinity 4

ļ

ŕ

The term is still used for a religious leader For example, the head of the Wahhābis on the North-West frontier of India is called the Imam, and so is the chief of Najd (4) The Imam or leader of prayers in any Masind. Mr Sale says it answers to the Latin Astistes Each mosque, however small, has its Imām, or priest, who is supported by endowments The office is not in any sense a sacerdotal one, the Imām not being set apart with any ceromony, as in the case of a Christian preabyter, nor the office being hereditary as in the case of the Hindu Brahmins. The position of Imam in this sense is not unlike the sheliach, or legatus, of the Jewish synagogue, who acted as the delegate of the congregation, and was the chief reader of prayers in their name. But quite independent of the daily appointed minister of a mosque who is responsible for its services, and receives its revenues, no congregation of Muslim worshippers can assemble without one of the party taking the lead in the prayers by standing in front, and who is said 'to act as Imām" for the assembly

The rules laid down on this subject, as given in the Traditions, are as follows (Mishkat, book iv ch. xxvii., xxviii)—

Ahū Sa'īd al-Khudrī says the Prophet said "When there are three persons, one of them must act as Imam and the other two follow him, and the most worthy of them to act as such is he who repeats the Qur'an best"

Abū Ma'sūd al-Anṣārī says the Prophet said "Let him act as lmām to a congregation who knows the Qur'ān thoroughly, and if all present should be equal in that respect, then let him perform who is best informed in the rules of prayer, and if they are equal in this respect also, let him act as lmām who has fled for the sake of Islām, and if equal in this likewise, let that person act who is oldest, but the governed must not act as Imam to the governor"

Abû Hurarah relates that the Prophet said: "When any of you acts as Imam to others, he must be concise in his prayers, because there are decrepit, aged, and sick persuas amongst them, and when any one of you says his prayers alone, he may be as prohib as he pleases [MASJID]

IMAM-BARAH (المام بارة) A building in which the festival of the Muharram is celebrated, and service held in commemoration of the deaths of 'All and his sons, al-Hasan and al-Husain At other times, the tames, or shrines, are pressived in it, sometames it is used as the manusoleum of the founder of the family [MUHARMAM.]

IMAMIYAH (down) Lat "The followers of the Imam." The chief sect of the Shi'as, namely, those who acknowledge the twelve Imams [SHI'AE.]

IMAM MUBIN (()) "The clear prototype or model" The expression occurs twice in the Qur'an, Sürah xxxvi 11, "Everything we do set down in a clear prototype" (fi Imamin Mubinsin). He to be used for the Qur'an as record Sürah xv 79, "Verily t both, Sedom and Midian, a clea (lats - Imamin Mubinin) M teachers use the word for the Makfüg, or the Tablet of Decrees

AL-IMAMU 'L-MAHD! Int. "The w (السمهدي Leader " Umm Salmah relates ti phet said, "Strife and disputati created among men when a Khalifi and this shall be in the last days. of the people of al-Madinah will and will flee from al-Madinah to N the men of Makkah will come make him Imam by flattery, but be pleased. Then men shall a him as Imam. Then an army shall advance against him, and shall be engulphed in an ear Bada'ah, betweer Makkah and Then when the people shall see thi se the Substitutes or good peop will come from Syria, and a mul al-Traq And after that a man si of the Quraish, of the tribe of Ka also send an army against him te but he shall be victorious Then people according to the laws of B and will give strength to Islam upo and he will remain on the earth s Then will he die, and Muslims will in his behalf

The Shī'aha believe that al-aiready come and is still conceal part of the earth. For they si to be the last of the twelve Imi Muliammad 'Abdu 'l-Qāşim [sur will again appear in the last c Shī'aha say that Muhammad si people, I am the Prophet and 'Alī and from us will descend al Mahe of the Imams who will conquer a and will take vengeance on the (Harjātu'l Qulūb, p. 342.)

I'MĂN, IMĂN (ايمان) which, according to the Muhammac is the belief of the heart and the ci the ups to the truth of the Musl Faith is of two kinds I man Mu simple expression of faith in the the Qur'an and the Ahadig, or and I'man Mususal, or a formal of behef in the aix articles of t Creed 1, m God, 2, the Angel 3, the Books of God 4, the P God, b, the Day of Judgment, 6, tion to good and evil. In the I'mam includes practice ('Amal') a belongs to the religious life of the life is related (Mishkat, book i. c. Muhammad said, "That person the sweets of faith who is please as his Lord, with Islam as hi and with Muhammad as the Proph And again (16), "The most exec ir to love him who loves God, as him who hates God, to keep the tongue employed in repeating the name of God [ZIKE] and to do unto men as you would wish them to do unto you, and to reject for others what you would reject for yourself"

Salvation by faith without works is clearly taught (Mashkat, book 1 ch. 1) by Muhammad, e.g "When anyone of you shall have believed truly and sincerely, then whatever good action that person may do will be rewarded from ten to seven hundred fold, and every sin he may commit will be expiated one by one before he dies" Good works, however are the test of faith. A man asked the Prophet what was the sign whereby he might know the reality of his faith. He said, "If thou dost derive pleasure from the good that thou hast done, and art grieved for the evil which thou hast committed, then thou art a true believer" (Mishkat, book 1 ch 1) Some of the Prophet's friends came to him and said "Verily, we find in our minds such wicked propensities, that we think it even a sin to speak of them." The Prophet said, "Do you find them really bad?" They said, "Yes" He said, "This is an evidence of faith." By which he meant, if the man had not faith he would not have felt the wickedness of his heart

'IMLIQ (sale) The grandson of Shem, the son of Nosh. The progenitor of the 'Amaliqah the Amalekites of Scripture. They are said to be some of the earliest inhabitants of Makkah and al-Madinah

IMMACULATE CONCEPTION of the Virgin Mary This doctrine was asserted by Muhammad (Mishkat, book i. ch. ii. pt. 1)
The Prophet said "There is not of the sons

Adam, except Mary and her Son one born but is touched by the Devil at the time of his birth, and the child makes a loud noise from the touch."

When or where the doctrine of the Immaculate Conception was first taugh is quite unknown. Perrone says that some writers have ascribed its origin to France and he kinself is of opinion that it came from the East, and was recognized in Naples in the ninth century (Blunt's Dictionary of Doctrinal and Historical Theology, in loco)

The doctrine of the Immaculate Conception was finally imposed as an Article of Faith in the Romish Church, by Piue IX, Dec 8th,

1654

IMMODESTY [MODESTY]

IMPOSTURE. The Quraish charged Muhammad, at the early period of his preaching, with imposture The following Straha were given in answer to these Sürah xxv 5-7." Those who misbaheve say,

This is nothing but a lie which he has forged, and another people hath helped him at it', but they have wrought an injustice and a falashood. And they say, 'They are old fork's tales which he has got written down while they are dictated to him morning and evening

Say He sent it down who knows the secrets of heaven and earth."

Sürah laix. 49-43 "Verily it is the speech of a noble Apostle, and it is not the speech of a poet —little is it ye believe!"

"And it is not the speech of a soothsayer,—httle is it that ye mind! It is a revelation from the Lord, the Lord of all the worlds."

IMPOTENCY. Arabic 'Ananah (Lilia), 'Inninah (Lilia) Both according to Sunni and Shi'sh law it cancels the marriage contract, but the decree of the Qazi is necessary before it can take effect [DIVORCE]

IMPRISONMENT Arabic Sun to the Hanifi school of jurisprudence, the person upon whom punishment or retaliation is claimed, must not be impresoned until evidence be given, either by two people of unknown character (that is, of whom it is not known whether they be just or unjust). or by one just man who is known to the Quzi, because the imprisonment, in this case, is founded on suspicion, and suspicion cannot be confirmed but by the evidence of two men of unknown character, or of one just man It is otherwise in imprisonment on account of property, because the defendant, in that instance, cannot be imprisoned but upon the evidence of two just men, for imprisonment on such an account is a grievous oppression, and, therefore, requires to be grounded on complete proof. In the Mabsüt, under the head of duties of the Quxi, it is mentioned that, according to the two disciples the defendant in a case of punishment for slander, or of retaliation, is not to be imprisoned on the evidence of one just man, bocause, as the exaction of bail is in such case (in their opinion) lawful, bail is, therefore to be taken from him When a claimant establishes his right before the Quzi, and demands of him the imprisonment of his debtor, the Qazi must not precipitately coinply, but must first order the debtor to render the right, after which, if he should attempt to delay, the Qazı may imprison him If a defendant, after the decree of the Qazi against hum, delay the payment in a case where the debt due was contracted for some equivalent (as in the case of goods purchased for a price, or of money, or of goods borrowed on promise of a return), the Qari must immediately imprison him, because the property he received is a proof of his being possessed of wealth. In the same manner, the Qazi must imprison a refractory defendant who has undertaken an obligation in virtue of some contract, such as marriage or bail, because his voluntary engagement in an obligation is an argument of his possession of wealth, since no one is supposed to undertake what ho is not competent to fulfil

A husband may be imprisoned for the maintenance of his wife, because in with-holding it he is guilty of oppression, but a father cannot be imprisoned for a cabt due to his son, because imprisonment is a species of severity which a son has no right to be the cause of inflicting on his father, in the same sanner as in cases of retaliation or punishment If, however, a father withhold maintenance from an infant son, who has no property of his own, he must be imprisoned, because this tends to preserve the life of the ohild. (Hedayah, vol. 111)

According to Muhammadan writers the name of two different persons The one the father of Moses and Aaron, and the other the father of the Virgin Mary Christian writers imagine that the Qur'an confounds Mary, the mother of Jesus, with Mary or Maryam, the aster of Moses and Aaron The verses are as follows —

Surah m. 30 "Verily, above all human beings did God choose Adam and Noah, and the family of 'Imran, the one the posterity of the other, and God heareth and knoweth Remember when the wife of 'Imran said, 'O mv Lord, I vow to Thee what is m my womb, for And I have named Thy special service her Mary, and I commend her and her off spring to Thy special protection."

Surah lavi 12 "And Mary the daughter of Imran, ever virgin, and into whose womb

We breathed Our spirit " Surah xiz. 29. "O sister of Aaron' thy father was not a wicked man, nor unchaste thy mother ' And she made a sign unto them pointing towards the babe

Al-Bazawi the commentator, says the Imran first mentioned in Surah in is the father of Moses, and the second the father of Mary the Virgin. He attempts to explain the anachronism in Surah xix by stating that (1) Mary is called the sister of Aaron by way of comparison, (2) or because she was of the Levitical race, (3) or, as some have said, there was a man of the name of Aaron, renowned either for pusty or wickedness, who hved at the time, and she is said, by way of derision, to be like him

IMBAK (امساك). Let "Keeping back." The word occurs only once in the Quran, Sarah u 228 · "Divorce (may happen) twice, then, keep them in reason or let them go in kindness."

The word is used in theological works for being miserly in charity, and in giving in God's service, in opposition to Infaq

IN'AM (انعام) A gift, a benefaction in general A gift by a superior to an inferior In India, the term is especially applied to grants of land held rent free, and in hereditary and perpetual occupation, the tenure came in time to be qualified by the reservation of a portion of the assessable revenue, or by the exaction of all proceeds exceeding the intended value of the original assignment, the term is also vaguely applied to grants of rent-free land without reference to perpetuity or any specified conditions. The grants are also distinguishable by their origin from the ruling authorities, or from the village communities and are again distinguishable by peculiar reservations, or by tapplicable to different objects

Sanad-i-In'am is a grant eman the ruling power of the time of free from all Government exaction petuity, and validified by a Sanad, deed of grant, it usually comp included in the village area, but uncultivated, or has been abandent is subject to the village functions

Nisbat-i-In'am (from sisbah, " a are lands granted rent-free by the of its own lands, the loss or deduct accruing to the Government, assessi made good by the village communison's Glossary of Indian Terms)

INCANTATION [DA'WAH

INCENSE Arabic Bakh Luban (البان) Heb לבונה, i zhu. 23, &c The use of meense part of the religious customs of th although its use as a perfume for is permitted by the Traditions I ever, much used as an offering at t of the Mnhammadan saints, and important item in the so-called i Daiwah. [DA'WAH]

INFANTS, The Religion ( general rule is that the religion of is the same as that of its pare where one of the parents is a Muh and the other of a different persons Jew or a Christian), the infant acrounted a Muhammadau, on the that where the reasons are equally the preference is to be given to the (Hidayah, vol 1 p 177 Sharif pendix No 71 Bailine's Inheritance INFANT SALVATION author of Durru 'l-Mukhtar, vol. says Abu Hanifah gave no answ question whether the infants of (those who associate another with have to answer for themselves in t Judgment or not, or whether the herit the Fire (i.e. Hell), or go to (Janual) or not. But Ihn al-Hu said, the learned are not agreed n questions, and it is evident that A fah and others are at a loss t them , and, moreover, there are con traditions recorded regarding ther is evident that in the matter of they (the infants) will be committe and we are not able to say anythu ing this matter Muhammad ibn (the disciple of Abu Hanish),

"I am certain God will not comm to the punishment (of hell) until he mitted sin." And Ibn Abi Sharif ( of Ibn al-Hasan, says the Compan ellent regarding the question of t of infants, but it is related by t Nawawi (commentator on the Sadii that there are three views regardin vation of infants. Some say they hell, some de not venture an epmi

子とうる方は我はなる。

である ないのかない ないのかない

subject, and some say they will enter Paradise, and the last view he considers the correct one, in accordance with the tradition which says, "Every child is born according to the law of God."

INFAQ (344). Let. "Giving forth, expending" The word occurs once in the Qur'an, Sürah xvn 102 "Did ye control the treasuries of the mercy of my Lord, then ye would hold them through fear of expending (mfaq), for man is ever mggardly"
The word is used for giving in charity and in God's service, in opposition to imsak.

INFIDEL There are words used for those in a state of infidelity ا, kafir (کافر), one who hides or denies the truth, 2, mushrik ( ), one who gives companions to God, 8, multid ( ), one who has deviated from the truth, 4, zandiq زندیل), an infidel or a zend-worshipper, 5, munafiq (white), one who secretly disbelieves in the mission of Muhammad, 6, murtadd (عرتك), an apoetate from Ielām, 7, dahri (دهری), an athorst , 8, wasaniy (دهری), a pagan or idolater

AL-INFITAR () "The cleaving asunder" The title of the LXXXIII Sarah of the Qur'an, in which the word occurs Zamakhshari, according to Savary, eays that " the Muslims who shall recite this chapter shall receive a divine favour for every drop of water that drope from the clouds, and another for each grave on the face of the earth."

INHERITANCE Arabic Fara'ız (ميراث ), Mīrās (فراكض) The law of inheritance is called ilms 'l-fura'sz, or 'slm-s-The verses in the Qur'an upon merās which the law of inheritance is founded are called Ayatu ' Mawaris, the Verses of Inhe ritance, they begin at the 12th verse of Suratu'n-Nisa', or the svth chapter of the Qur'an, and are as follows

"With regard to your children, God commandeth you to give the male the portion of two females, and if they be females more than two, then they shall have two-thirds of that which their father hath left but if she be an only daughter, she shall have the half, and the father and mother of the deceased shall each of them have a sixth part of what he hath left, if he have a child but if he have no child, and his parents be his helps. then his mother shall have the third; and if he have brethren, his mother shall have the sixth, after paying the bequests he shall have bequeathed, and his debts. As to your fathers, or your children, ye know not which of them is the most advantageous to you This is the law of God Verily, God is Knowing, Wise!

"Half of what your wives leave shall be yours, if they have no issue, but if they have issue, then a fourth of what they leave shall be yours, after paying the bequests they shall bequesth, and debts

"And your wives shall have a fourth part of what ye leave, if ye have no issue, but if ye have issue, then they shall have an eighth part of what ye leave, after paying the bequests ye shall bequesth, and debts

"If a man or woman make a distant relation their heir, and he or she have a brother or a easter, each of these two shall have a sixth, but if there are more than this, then shall they be sharers in a third, after payment of the bequests he shall have bequesthed, and debts,

"Without loss to any one. This is the ordinance of God, and God is Knowing, Gracious 1"

The earliest authority in the Traditions on the subject of unherstance is Zaid ibn Sabit, and the present law is chiefly collected from his eayings, as recorded in the Hadis There are no very important differences between the Sunni and Shia'h law with reference to this question. The highest authority amongst the former is the book as-Sirājiyah, by Sirāju 'd-din Muhammad, A.H 600, which has been published with a commentary entitled Mamzu, by Sir W Jones, Galcutta, 1792

The Shi'ah law of inheritance will be found in the Mafatih and the Jame's 'sh-Shatat

The property of a deceased Muslim is applicable, in the first place, to the payment of his funeral expenses, eccondly, to the dis-charge of his debts, and, thirdly, to the payment of legacies as far as one-third of the residue The remaining two-thirds, with so much of the third as is not absorbed by legacies are the patrimony of the heirs Muhammadan is therefore disabled from disposing of more than a third of his property by will (See As-Sirajiyah.)

The clear residue of the estate after the payment of funeral expenses, debts, and legscies, descends to the heirs, and among these the first are persons for whom the law has provided certain specific shares or portions, and who are thence denominated Sharers, or zawa

'l-furūz

In most cases there must be a residue after the shares have been estisfied, and this passes to another class of persons who from that circumstance may be termed Residuaries, or tasabah

It can soldern happen that the deceased should have no individual connected with him who would fall under these two classes, but to guard against this possible contingency, the law has provided another class of persons, who, though many of them may be nearly re lated to the deceased, by reason of their remote position with respect to the inheritance. have been denominated Distant kindred, or zawū 'l-arham

' As a general rule," says Mr Ameer Ali, "the law of succession both among the Shiahs (Shi'ahs) and the Sunns, proceeds on the assumption of intestacy During his lifetime a Mussulman has absolute power over his property, whether it is ancestral or self-acquired, or whether it is real or personal He may dispose of it in whatever way he likes such dispositions in order to be valid and effective, are required to have operation given to them during the lifetime of the owner. If a gift be made, the subject matter of the gift must be made over to the donee during the lifetime of the donor, he must, in fact, divest himself of all proprietary rights in it, and place the donee in possession. To make and place the donee in possession I o make the operation of the grit dependent upon the denor's death, would invalidate the donation So also in the case of endowments for charatable or religious purposes A disposition in favour of a charity, in order to be valid, should be accompanied by the complete divestment of all proprietary rights As re gards testamentary dispositions, the power is limited to one-third of the property, provided it is not in favour of one who is entitled to where in the inheritance. For example, the proprietor may devise by will one-third of his property to a stranger, should the devise, however, relate to more than one-third, or should it be in favour of an keir, it would be invahd

"This restriction on the testamentary powers of a Mussulman, which is not without analogy in some of the Western systems, leads to the consequence that, as far as the major portion of the estate and effects of a deceased proposities is concerned the distribution takes place as if he had died intestate.

"Intestacy is accordingly the general rule among the Mussilmans, and as almost in every case there are more heirs than one entitled to share in the inheritance of the deceased, it is important to bear in mind the points of contact as well as of divergence between the Shiah and the Sunn schools.

"As regards the points of contact, it may be stated generally that both the Sunnis and the Shiahs are agreed on the principle by which the individuals who are entitled to an inhoritance in the estate of the deceased can he distinguished from those who have no right. For example a Mussulman upon his death, may leave behind him a numerous In the absence of certain body of relations determinate rules, it would be extremely dif hoult to distinguish between the inheriting and the non-inheriting relations. In order to obviate this difficulty and to render it easy to distinguish between the two classes of heirs, it is recognized by both the school. as a general rule, and one capable of universal application, that when a deceased Mussulman leaves behind bim two relations, one of whom is connected with him through the other, the former shall not succeed whilst the mtermediate person is alive. For example, if a person on his death leave behind lum a son and that son's son, this letter will not succeed to his grandfather's estate while his father is alive. The other rule, which is also framed with the object of discovering the heirs of a deceased individual is adopted with some modification by the two schools. For example, on the succession i male agnates, the Sunnis prefer the nearer m degree to the more remote, whilst the Shight app'v the rule of nearness or propinquity to all case; without distinction of class er sex. If a person die leaving behind him a brother's son, and a brother's grandson, and his own daughter's son, among the Sunns, the brother's son being a male agnate and nearer to the deceased than the brother's grandson, takes the inheritance in preference to the others; whilst among the Shiahs, the daughter's son, being nearer in blood, would exclude the others." (Personal Law, by Ameer All, 141)

p 41)
The law of inheritance, even according to Muslim doctors of law, is acknowledged to be an exceedingly difficult object of study, it will, therefore, be impossible to follow it out in all its intrinsacios, but we give a carefully-drawn table by Mr A Ramsey, on the Sunni law, and a more simple one on Shī'ah inheritance

by Mr Ameer Alı

I -SHARERS.

Are always entitled to some shares
 Are liable to exclusion by others who are nearer
 B Denotes those who benefit by the return

* 1° Father. (a).—As mere sharer, when a son or a son's son, how low scever, he takes if (β).—As mere residuary, when no successor but himself, he takes the whole or with a sharer, not a child or son's child, how low scever, he takes what is left by such sharer (γ).—As sharer and residuary, as when there are daughters and son's daughter, but no son or son's son, he, as sharer, takes if daughter takes if, or two or more daughters if, son's daughter if, and father the remainder as residuary

† 2" TRUE GRANDSATHER, se father's father, his father and so forth, into whose line of relationship to deceased no mother enters, is excluded by father, and excludes brothers and sisters, comes into father's place when no father, but does not, like father, reduce mother s share to § of residue, nor enturely exclude paternal grandmother take, in the absence of children, or son's descendants, and father and true grandfather, one 1, two or more between them 1. R

one $, two or more between them $ R

* 4° DAUGHTERS, when no sons take, one $, two or more, $ between them with sons become residuaries and take each half a son's share R

† 5° Nov's DAUGHTERS, take as daughters, when there is no child take nothing when there is a son or more daughters than one take ‡ when only one daughter, are made residuaries by brother or male cousin how low specter R.

seever R

6 Mother takes 1, when there is a child or son's child, how low seever, or two or more brothers or sisters of whole or half blood, takes 1, when none of these when husband or wife and both parents, takes 1 of remainder after deducting their shares the residue going to father if no father, but grandfather, takes 1 of the whole R

† 7' TRUE GRANDMOTERE, i.e father's or mother's mother, how high seever, when no mother, takes if if more than one, is between them Paternal grandmother is excluded by both father and mother, maternal grand mother by mother only. R

† 8° FULL SISTERS, take as daughters when no children, son's children, how low seever, father, true grandfather or full brother with full brother, take half share of male when daughters or son's daughters, how low seever, but neither sons, nor sons' sons, nor father, nor true grandfather, nor brothers, the full sisters take as residuaries what remains after daughter or son's daughter have had their share. R

† 9° HALF SISTERS BY SAME FATHER AS full sisters, when there are none with one full elster, take &, when two full sisters, take nothing, unless they have a brother who makes them residuance, and then they take half a male's share. R

† 10° Half Sisters by Mother only when no children or son's children how low soever, or father or true grandfather take one 1, two or more 1 between them R 11° HUSBAND if no child or son's child, how low soever, takes 1, otherwise 1

* 12° Wife if no child or son's child, how low soever, takes 1 if otherwise, 1 Several widows share equally

COROLLARY -All brothers and sisters are excluded by son, son's son, bow low soever father or true grandfather Half brothers and sisters, on father's side, are excluded by these and also by full brother Half brothers and sisters on mother's side are exclude ! by any child or son's child, by father and true grandfather

IL-RESIDUARIES

A -RESIDUARIES IN THEIR OWN RIGHT, being males into whose line of relationship to the deceased no female enters.

(a ) Descendants

- 1 Son. 2 Son's son.
- 8 Son's son's son
- 4 Son of No 3
  - 4A. Son of No 4
  - 4B. And so on, how low scever

(b) Ascendants

- 5 Father
- 6 Father's father 7 Father of No. 6 Father of No 6.
- 8 Father of No 7
- 8A. Father of No 8
  - 8B. And so on, how high soever

(c) Collaterals

- 9 Full brother
- 10 Half brother by father
- 11 Son of No 9
- 12 Son of No 10

  - 11A Son of No 11 12A Son of No 12
  - 11B. Son of No 11A 12B Son of No. 12A.
  - And so on, how low soever
- 18. Full paternal uncle by father
- 14 Half paternal uncle by father 15 Sen of No 18
- 16 Son of No 14
  - 15A Son of No 15.
  - 16A Son of No 16
    - And so on, how low scever

- 17 Father's full paternal uncle by father's
- 18 Father's half paternal uncle by father's side
- 19 Son of No 17
- 20 Son of No 18
  - 19A Son of No 19
  - 20A. Son of No 20
- And so on, how low soever
- 21 Grandfather's full paternal uncle by father's side.
- 22 Grandfather's half paternal uncle by father's side.
- 23 Son of No 21 24 Son of No 22
  - 23A Son of No 28
  - 24A Son of No 24

And so on, how low soever

- NB-a A nearer Residuary in the above Table is preferred to and excludes a more romote
- B Where saveral Residuaries are in the same degree, they take per capita not per stripes, ie they share equally
  - y The whole blood is preferred to and ex cludes the half blood at each stage B - RESIDUARIES IN ANOTHERS RIGHT. being certain females, who are made residuaries by male- parallel to them, but who, in the absence of such males, are only entitled to legal shares These female Residuaries take each half as much as the parallel male who makes them Residuaries

- 1 Daughter made Residuary by eon. 2 Son s daughter made Residuary by son's
- 3 bull sister made Residuary by full brother
- 4 Half sister by father made Residuary by her brother
- C RESIDUARIES WITH ANOTHER, being cortam females who become residuaries with other females
- 1 Full sisters with daughters or daughters' SONS
- 2 Half electes by father NB—When there are several Residuaries of different kinds or classes, eg residuaries in their own right and residuaries with another, propinquity to decessed gives a pre-ference so that the residuary with another, when nearer to the deceased than the residuary in himself, is the first.

If there be Residuaries and no Sharers, the Residuaries take all the property

It there be Sharers, and no Residuaries, the Sharors take all the property by the doctrine of the "Return." Seven persons are entitled to the Return 1st, mother, 2nd, grandmother, 3rd, daughter, 4th, son's daughter, 5th, full sister, 6th, half sister by father, 7th, half brother or sister by mother.

A posthumous child inherits There is no presumption as to commorients, who are supposed to die at the same time unless there be proof otherwise

If there be neither Sharers nor Residuaries. the property will go to the following class (Distant allured)

III -DISTANT KINDRED

Comprising all relatives, who are neither Shares nor Residuaries

CLASS L

Descendants Children of daughters and son's daughters

- I Daughter's son.
- 2. Daughter's daughter
- 8. Son of No 1
- Daughter of No 1
- Son of No 2
- 6 Daughter of No 2, and so on, how low scover, and whether male or female
  - 7 Son's daughter's son
  - 8. Son's daughter's daughter
  - 9 Son of No 7
  - 10 Daughter of No 7
  - 11 Son of No 8
- 12 Daughter of No 8 and so on, how low soever, and whether male or female
- NB.—(a)—Distant kindred of the first class take according to provimity of degree but, when equal in this respect those who claim through an heir, is sharer or residuary, have a preference over those who claim through one not an heir
- (B)—When the sexes of their ancestors differ, distribution is made having regard to such difference of sex, eq daughter of daughter's son gets a portion double that of son of daughter's daughter, and when the claimante are equal in degree, but different in sex males take twice as much as females

CLASS 2

Ascendants False grandfathers and false grandmothers

- 18 Maternal grandfather 14 Father of No 18, father of No 14, and so on, how high soever (se all false grandfathers)
  - 15 Maternal grandfather a mother
- 16 Mother of No 15, and so on, how nigh scever (1 e all false grandmothers)
- NB—Rules (a) and ( $\beta$ ), applicable to class 1, apply also to class 2 Further ( $\gamma$ ) when the sides of relation differ, the claimant by the paternal side gots twice as much as the claimant by the maternal side

CLASS 8

Parents' Descendants

17 Full brother's daughter and her deseendants.

- 18. Full sister's son
- 19 Full sister's daughters and scendants, how low scever.
- 20 Daughter of half brother by i her descendants
  - 21 Son of half sister by father
  - 22 Daughter of half sister by i
- their descendants, how low scever
  28 Son of half brother by mothe
  24 Daughter of half brother
- and their descendants, how low soe
- 25 Son of half sister by mother
   26 Daughter of half sister by m their descendants, how low soever
- NB—Rules (a) and ( $\beta$ ) app class 1, apply also to class 3 when two olamants are equal in proximity, one who claims throug duary is preferred to one who claim

CLASS 4

Descendants of the two grandiathe two grandmothers

- 27 Full paternal aunt and he dants *
- 28 Half paternal aunt and he dants
- 29 Fathers half brother by m his descendants
- 30 Father's half sister by moth descendants *
  - 21 Maternal uncle and his desce
  - 32 Maternal aunt and her descei * Male or Female, and how low s
- N B (c) The sides of relation be unries and aunts of the whole bloo ferred to those of the half and nected by same father only, whether females, are preferred to those co the same mother only  $(\eta)$  When relation differ, the claimant by pat tion gets twice as much as the di  $(\theta)$  Where maternal relation. strength of relation are equal, the twice as much as the female
- GENERAL RULE -Each of these cludes the next following class
- IV -SUCCESSOR BY CONTRACT C FRIENDSHIP
- V -- SUCCESSOR OF ACKNOWLED DRED
  - -UNIVERSAL LEGATER VII.—PUBLIC TREASURY

A SYNOPTICAL TABLE OF SHI'AE INHERITANCE

I -Consangulaty, or Nasab

Third Class First Class Second Class (1) Immediate (2) Mater (2) Lineal descendants, (1) Paternal uncles sons and daughters ascendants viz. and aunts and and at father and mother and grandohildren. their children. their .

- (1) Ascendants of second and third degrees viz. grand-parents and their parents
- (2) Brothers and sisters and U children.

For the Muhammadan law of inheritance m English, refer to Sir William Jones' translation of the Straiged (Calcutta, AD 1792), reprinted by Mr Almaric Ramecy, AD 1869 The Muhammadan Law of Inheritance, by Mr N B E Beille, A D 1882, by Mr S G Grady, A D 1889, also Personal Law of the Muhammadaus, by Mr Ameer Ali, 1880 Arabic works on the subject are For Sunni law, as-Sirājīyah, ash-Sharif iyah, Hidāyah, Durru 'l-Mukhtār', for Shī'ah law Jām'u 'sh-Shatāt. Mafātīh, Sharā'i'u 'l-Islam, Irshād-i-Allämah.

INHIBITION Arabic hiji (---), which, in its primitive sense, means interdiction or prevention." In the language of the iaw it signifies an interdiction of action with respect to a particular person, the causes of inhibition being three infancy, insanity, and servitude

The acts of an infant, se one under puberty, are unlawful, unless sanctioned by his guardian. The acts of a lunatio who has no lucid intervals are not at all lawful, and so are those of a male or female slave (Hedayah, m p 468)

INITIAL LETTERS of the Qur'an QUR'AN ]

INJIL (James), Gr Evayyéktov Evangel Injil 18 used in the Qui'an, and in the Traditions, and in all Muhammadan theological works of an early date, for the revelations made by God to Jesus But in secont works it is applied by Vuhammadans to the New Testament The word occurs twelve times in the Qur'an, as in the following Surahs, which we have arranged chronologically, and not as they occur in the Quran (It will be seen that the expression Injil is not mentioned in the earlier burnhs chronological table of Surahs in article QUE'AN.)

Surah vii 156 'Who follow the Apostle the illiterate Prophet, whom they and written down with them in the Law (Tamat)

and the Gospel (Infil)

Surah m 2; "He has sent thee n book (se the Qur'an) confirming what was before it, and has revealed the Law, and the Gospel before, for the guidance of men.

Sürah in. 48 "He will teach him the Book and Wisdom, and the Law and the Gospel"

Sürah in 58 "Why do ye dispute about Abraham, when the Law and the Gospel were not revea ed until after him "

Suran avi 27 "We gave him (Jesus) the Gospel, and we placed in the hearts of those who tollowed him kindness and compassion.' Sutah alvili 29 . "Their marks are in ison isces from the effects of aderation that is their similitude in the Law, and their similitude in the Gospel"

Sürah ix 112 "Promised in truth in the Law, in the Gospel, and in the Qur'an."

Sürah v 50 "We brought him (Jesus) the Gospel"

Sürah v 51 'Then let the people of the Gospel judge by what is revealed therein.' Sürah v 70 "And were they steadfast in the Law and in the Gospel?"

Sursh v 72 'Ye lest on nought until ye stand fast by the Law and the Gospel and what is revealed to you from your Lord"

Surih v 110 "When I taught thee the Book, and Wisdom, and the Law, and the Gospel'

There are also allusions to the Christian

Scriptures in the following verses

Surah xix 31 (The infant Jesus said,) 'Verily, I am the servant of God Be hath given me the book, and He hath made me a prophet"

Muhammad was much more indebted to Judaism than Christianity for the teaching he received, which enabled him to overthrow Arabian idolatry and to establish the worship of the One Time God [CHRISTIANITY, JUDAISM], and consequently we find more frequent allusions to the Law of Moses than to the Gospel of Christ and, as it has been already stated, the references to the Gospel as a revelation are in the later Surahs. But in all references to the Injil as an inspired record, there is not one single statement to the effect that the Christians of Muhammad's day did not possess the genuine Scriptures In Sürah iv 169, (which is an al-Madinah Surah), the Christians are charged with extravagance, or error in doctrine, but not with not possessing the true Gospels

'Ye people of the Book commit not extravagance in your religion, and say not of God other than the truth For verily the Messiah, Jesus, the son of Mary, is an apostle of God, and His word which He placed in Mary, and a spirit from Him Wherefore. Mary, and a spirit from Him believe in God, and in His apoetle, and say not, - the Trunty' - refrain, it will be better for you. For verily God is one God . far exalted is He above the possibility that there should be unto Him progeny ! to Him belongeth whatever is in the heavens and in the earth, and He sufficeth as a guardian.

In Surah ly. 6, there is an appeal to the Gospel in support of Muhammad's mission, and the appeal is made without any doubt that he was referring to a genuine saying of Christ, well known to the Christians of that day The verse is as follows :—

"When Jesus, the son of Mary, said
O children of Israel' verily, I am the apostic of God to you, verifying 'he law that was before ms, and giving you glad tidings of an | apostle who shall come after me, whose name shall be Ahmad But when he did come to them with manifest signs, they said, 'This is manifest sorcery ! "

The allusion is to the promise of the Paraclete in John xv1 7, the Muslims declaring that the word wapakhyros has been substituted for the Greek περικλυτός, the word Ahmad, which is equivalent to Muhammad, meaning "Praised" The charge which modern Muslims bring against the Christians of having either lost, or changed the original Scriptures, is treated of under the head of CORRUPTION OF THE SCRIPTURES, but some currous statements on the subject will be found in an article in the Kashju z-Zunun It is a Bibliographical Dictionary, compiled by Hājjī Khalifah about 200 years ago The statements in its article on INSIL are such a strange mixture of fact and fiction that we translate the article from the Arabic in ea-

"The Injil 18 a book which God revealed to Isa ibn Maryam In the work entitled al-Muwahib (by Shihabu d-Din Ahmad al-Qastalani, died A H 923), it is recorded that the Injil was first revealed in the Syrac tongue, and has since been translated into seventeen languages But in the Sahilu 'l-Bukhari (A.H 256), in the story of Waraqah ibn Naufal, it is related that the Injel was revealed in Rebrew According to Wahb ibn Munabbih, as quoted by Zamakhshari (A H 588) in the Kashshaf, the Injil was revealed to Jesus on the 13th day of the month Rama san, although some say it was on the 18th day of that month, 1200 years after the reve lation of the Zabur (Psulms) to Moses

"It is a disputed question whether or not the Injulabrogates the Law of Moses (Inuat) Some ear that Jesus was not a Sahibu sh Shari'ah (a law giver) for it is said in the Injil —

قال عيسى إنى ما جائت لتمديل هوع موسى عليه السلام بل لتكميله

'I am not come to abrogate (tahdil) the Law of Moses, but to fulfil it (takmil)

"But al Barzawi (A.H. 685) in his com-mentary the Anuaru t-Tunzil, seems to prove that the Law of Jesus does abrogate the Law of Moses (Sharu Musa) for there are certain things revealed to Jesus which were not revealed to Moses

"At the commencement of the Injil is inscribed باسم الآب و الابن الحم, 'In the name of the Father and of the Son,' &c And the Injil, which is now in the hands of the Christians, is merely a history of the Christ (Sirate 'l Massh), collected by his four companions Matta, Lūqā, Marqus and Yühannā.

"In the book entitled the Tuhfatu 'l-Adib f: Raddi 'alā Ahis'; Salīb, or 'A refutation of the servants of the Cross' (written by Abdu 'llāh, a pervert from Christianity to Islām, A. R. 828), it is said that these four Companions are they who corrupted the religion of Josus, and have added to it that they were not of the Haweriyan, or Apostles, mentioned in the Qur'an Matia did not see Jesus until the year he was taken up to heaven, and after the Ascension of Jesus 'he wrote in the city of Alexandria, with his own hand, his Injil, in which he gives an account of the birth and life of Jesus, mentioning several circumstances which are not mentioned by others. Lings also did not see Jesus, but he was converted to Christianity by one Bühs (Paul), who was an Israelite, who himself had not seen Jesus, but was converted by Ananiga (Ananias). Marqus also did not see Jesus at all, but was converted to Christianity offer the Ananias of the Ananias of the Ananias of the Ananias of the Ananias of the Ananias of the Ananias of the Ananias of the Ananias of the Ananias of the Ananias of the Ananias of the Ananias of the Ananias of the Ananias of the Ananias of the Ananias of the Ananias of the Ananias of the Ananias of the Ananias of the Ananias of the Ananias of the Ananias of the Ananias of the Ananias of the Ananias of the Ananias of the Ananias of the Ananias of the Ananias of the Ananias of the Ananias of the Ananias of the Ananias of the Ananias of the Ananias of the Ananias of the Ananias of the Ananias of the Ananias of the Ananias of the Ananias of the Ananias of the Ananias of the Ananias of the Ananias of the Ananias of the Ananias of the Ananias of the Ananias of the Ananias of the Ananias of the Ananias of the Ananias of the Ananias of the Ananias of the Ananias of the Ananias of the Ananias of the Ananias of the Ananias of the Ananias of the Ananias of the Ananias of the Ananias of the Ananias of the Ananias of the Ananias of the Ananias of the Ananias of the Ananias of the Ananias of the Ananias of the Ananias of the Ananias of the Ananias of the Ananias of the Ananias of the Ananias of the Ananias of the Ananias of the Ananias of the Ananias of the Ananias of the Ananias of the Ananias of the Ananias of the Ananias of the Ananias of the Ananias of the Ananias of the Ananias of the Ananias of the Ananias of the Ananias of the Ananias of the Ananias of the Ananias of the Ananias of the Ananias of the Ananias of the Ananias of the Ananias of the Ananias of the Ananias of the Ananias of the Ananias of the Ananias of the Ananias of the Ananias of the Ananias of the Ananias of the Ananias of the Ananias of the Ananias of the Ananias of the Ananias converted to Christianity, after the Ascension of Jesus, by the Apostle Bītrū, and received the Inju (Gospel) from that Apostle in the city of Rome And his Gospel in many respects contradicts the statements of the other three Yuhanna was the son of the sister of Maryam, the mother of Jesus, and the Christians assert that Jesus was present at the marriage of Yuhanna, when Jesus changed the water into wine. It was the first miracle performed by Jesus

"When Yahanna saw the miracle, he was converted to Christianity, and left his wife and followed Jesus He was the writer of the fourth Infil (Gospel) It was written in Greek, in the city of Ephesus These are the four persons who altered and changed the true Injul, for there was only one Injul revealed to Jesus, in which there was no contradiction These people have invented or discrepancy lies concerning God and His Prophet Jeans, upon whom be puace, as it is a well known fact, although the Christians (Nasara) deny it For example, Marque has written in the first chapter of his Gospel that in the book of the Prophet Issiah it is easd by God, 'I have cent an angel before thy face, namely, before the face of Jesus, whereas the words are not in the book of Isaiah but in that of Malachi. [See Mark 1 2 In the Received Version the words are "in the Prophets", but in the Revised Version we have "in Issuch the prophet "]

"Again, it is related by Matta, in the first or rather thirteenth chapter of his Gospel [sec, see, however, Matt xu 40], that Jesus said My body will remain in the belly of the earth three days and three nights after my death just as Jonas was in the whale's belly ' and it is evident it was not true, for Matta agrees with the three other writers of the Gospels that Jesus died in the sixth hour on Friday, and was buried in the first hour of the night on Saturday, and rose from the dead early on Sunday morning, so that he remained in the belly of the earth one day and two nights. So there remains no doubt that the writers of the Gospels told the untruth For neither Jesus said of himself, nor did God in his Injil say of him, that Jesus will be killed or buried in the earth, for God has said (i.e. in the Qur'an, Sürah iv 156). They slew hun not, for certain! Nay, God raised him up unto Himself For this cause there were various divisions amongst the Christians Other circumstances similar to these are mentioned in the Tuhfatu 'l-Adib Then there are the fundamental rules and dectrines (al-Quoësd), upon which the Christions are, with very few exceptions, universally agreed, namely: (1) At-Taghtis (Baptism), (2) Faith in the Taght, or Trimity, (3) the incarnation of the Uquam (se the essence) of the Son in the womb of Mary, (4) a behaf in the Fittah (i.e. the Holy Communion), (5) the Confession of all sins to the Prest (Otema). These five fundations also are full (Quess). These five foundations also are full of falsehood, corruption, and ignorance"

"In the work entitled al-Insana "I-Kāmal (written by the Shaikh 'Abdu'l-Karim ibn Ibrahim al-Jili, lived A H 767-811) it is said that when the Christians found that there was at the commencement of the Injil the name of the Father and Son, they took the words in their natural meaning, and [think ing it ought to be Ab, father Unim, mother, and Ibn, son] understood by Ab, the Spirit, by Umm, Mary, and by Ibn, Jesus, and on this account they said, Saltqu Salasatin, i.e. (God is) the third of three! (Sürah v 77) But they did not understand that by Ab is meant God Most High, by Umm, the Mahiyatu L. Haqa'iq, or 'Essence of Truth' (Unidditus veritatum), and by Ibn, the Book of God, which is called the Wuyudu'l Mutlaq, or 'Absolute Existence,' being an emanation of the Essence of Truth, as it is implied in the words in their natural meaning, and [think the Essence of Truth, as it is implied in the words of the Qur'an, Surah xiii 9 'And with him is the Ummu'l-Kitab, or the Mother of the Book'"

AL-INSAN (الانسان) "Man" The title of the LXXVIIh Surah of the Qur'an, called also Süratu 'd-Dahr, both words occurring in the first verse "Did there not pass over man (main) a long space of time (dah) during which he was a thing not worthy of remembrance "

Some take these words to be spoken of Adam, whose body, according to tradition was first a figure of clay, and was left for forty years to dry, before God breathed into it; but others understand them of man in general and of the time he lies in the womb

(See al-Barzāwi, in loco)

AL-INSANU 'L-KAMIL (الاسان) الكامل) "The perfect man" A term used by the Sun mystics for one in whom are combined all the attributes of divinity and of humanity (Kitābu 't-Tarifāt, in loco) Also title of a mystic work by 'Abdu 'l-Karīm ibn Ibrahim al-Jilī (lived A H. 767-811).

Let "Construc-(liste) AHRMI ting, raising-up" The term is particularly applied to literary compositions and forms of letter-writing

Mr Lane, in his Modern Egyptians, vol 1 p 272, mentions the Shaikh of the great Mosque, the Azhar, as the author of a collection of Arabic letters on various subjects, which are intended as models of epistolary style, such a collection being called an Insha

INSHA'A'LLAHUTA'ALA ( اله ماله) (الله تعالي "If it should please God Almighty" A every frequent ejaculation amongst Mushms [ISTISKA']

AL-INSHIRAH (الانفراع) "Ex-panding" The title of the xcivth Surah of the Quran, which opens with the words "Have we not expanded thy breast" It is supposed to allude to the opening of Muhammad's heart in his infancy, when it is said to have been taken out and cleaned of original sin (See ul Barzāwi, in loco)

INSOLVENCY of a debtor is established by a judicial decree, and after such a declaration a bequest by such a person is void If, however, the creditors relinquish their claim, the bequest is then valid. (Hidāyah, 1v p 475)

INSPIRATION Arabic wahy According to the Nuru'l-(وحی Anugr, by Shaikh Jiwan Ahmad (A.H 1180), inspiration is of two kinds. Wahy salier, external inspiration, or Wahy batin, internal inspiration

I - External Inspiration is of three kinds -(1) Wahyu Qur'an, or that which was received from the mouth of the angel Gabriel, and reached the ear of the Prophet, after he knew beyond doubt that it was the angel who spoke to him. This is the only kind of inspiration admitted to be in the Qur'an. It is sometimes called the Wahy matte

(2) Isharqtu 'l-Malak, or that which was received from the angel but not by word of mouth, as when the Prophet said, "the Holy Ghost has breathed into my heart"

(3) Ilham or Wahys qaib, or that which was made known to the Prophet by the "light of prophecy" This kind of inspiration is said to be possessed by Walis or saints, in which case it may be either true or false

II .- Internal Inspiration is that which the Prophet obtained by thought and analogical reasoning, just as the Mujtahidun, or enlightened doctors of the law obtain it. It is the belief of all orthodox Muslims that their Prophet always spoke on matters of religion by the lower forms of inspiration (: e. Isharatu 'l-Malak, Ilham, or Wahyu qalb), and, consequently a Hadis is held to be inspired in as great a degree although not in the same manner as the Qur'an itself. The inspiration manner as the cut an itself the Wahy ghair math (See Nuru'!-Anwar, p 181, Mishkat, book 1 ch. vi pt 2.)
Suratu n Najm, hii 2 "Your lord (sabs) erreth not, not is he led astray, neither speaketh he from impulse

According to the strict Muhammadan doctrine, every syllable of the Qur'an is of a directly divine origin, although wild rhapsodical Surahs first composed by Muhammad (as xol., o, cn, cm) do not at all bear marks of such an assumption, and were not probably intended to be clothed in the dress of a message from the Most High which characterizes the rest of the Qur'an But when Muhammad's die was east (the turning point in his career) of assuming that Great Name as the speaker of His revelations, then these earlier Surahs also came to be regarded as emanating directly from the Deity Hence it arises that Muhammadans rigidly include every word of the Qur'an, at whatever stage delivered, in the category of Qāla 'llāhu, or "Thus saith the Lord," and it is one of their arguments against our Christian scriptures that they are not entirely east in the same mould—not exclusively oracles from the mouth and spoken in the person of God (Mair's Lefs of Mahomet)

The following is a description of inspiration as given by Ibn Khaldûn, "The sign that a man is inspired," he save, "is, that he is at times completely absent, though in the society of others. His respiration is stentorious and he seems to be in a cataleptic fit, or in a swoon. This, however, is merely apparent, for in reality such an ecstasis is an absoiption into the invisible world, and he has within his grasp what he alone is able to conceive, which is above the conception of others. Subsequently these spiritual visionadescend and become perceptible to the incuities of man. They are either whispered to him in a low tone, or an angel appears to him in human shape and tells him what he brings from God. Then the ecstasis ceases, and the prophet remembers what he has heard

INTELLECT Arabic 'aql (عقل),

fahm (isa), idrak (sel, sl)

The Faqir Jani Muhammad ibn As'ad, in his work the Akhlaq-1-Jalali, says "The reasonable mind has two powers, (1) the power of perceiving, and (2) the power of impelling, and each of these powers has two divisions in the percipient power, 1st, an observative intellect, which is the source of impression from the celestral sources, by the reception of those ideas which are the materials of knowledge, 2nd, an active intellect, which, through thought and reflection, is the remote source of motion to the body in its separate actions Combined with the appetent and vindictive powers, this division originates the occurrence of many states productive of action or impact, as shame, laughing, civing, in its operation on impiration and supposition, it leads to the accession of ideas and arts in the partial state, and in its relation with the observative sense and the connection maintained between them, it is the means of originating general ideas relating to actions, as the besuty of truth, the odiousness of falsehood, and the like The impelling power has likewise two divisions 1st, the vindictive power, which is the source of forcibly repelling what is disagreeable 2nd, the appetent power, which 14 the source of acquiring what is agreeable" (Thompson s ed. p 52)

INTERCALATION of the Year Arabic ness? The privilege of committing the last of the three continuous sacred months for the one succeeding it, the month Safar.

in which case Muharram became secular, and Safar sacred. M Caussin de Perceval supposes that this innovation was introduced by Qusaiy an ancestor sixth in ascent from Muham mad, who lived in the middle of the fifth century. Dr Sprenger thinks that intercelation in the ordinary sense of the word was not practised at Makkah, and that the Arab year was a purely lunar one, performing its cycle regularly, and losing one year in every thirty-three

The custom of nasi' was abolished by Muhammad, at the farewell pilgrimage, A.H. 10, as is stated, in the Qur'an, Sürah ix

86. 37 ---

"Twelve months is the number of months with God, according to God's book, since the day when He created the heavens and the earth of these four are sacred, this is the right usage But wrong not yourselves therein, attack those who join gods with God in all, as they attack you in all and know that God is with those who fear Him.

'To carry over a sacred month to another, is only a growth of infidelity. The Infidels are led into error by it. They allow it one year, and forbid it another, that they may make good the number of months which God hath hallowed, and they allow that which God hath prohibited."

INTERCESSION Arabic Shafū'ah (àsha) There is a general belief amongst Muhammadans that their Prophet is a living intercessor for them at the throne of God, but the Wahhābis state that the intercession of their Prophet will only be by the permission (Iga) of God at the last day, and that there is no intercession for sins until the Day of Judgment. The teaching of the Qur'an and the Traditions seems to be in favour of this view.

Surab in 256 "Who is he that can intercede with Him but by His own permission?"

Surah xix 90 "None shall most (in the Day of Judgment) with intercession save he who hath entered into covenant with the God of mercy "

Surah xx 108 "No intercession shall avail on that day, save his whom the Morciful shall allow, and whose words He shall approve

Surah xxxiv 22 "No intercession shall avail with him but that which He Himself alloweth"

Surah xxxix 45 "Intercession is wholly with God"

Sürah lxxvii 38 On the day whereon the spirit (Rūh) and the angels shall stand ranged in order they shall not utter a word save he whom the God of mercy permits, and who shall say what is right."

The statements of Muhammad, as contained in the Traditions, are as follows —

"He is most fortunate in my intercession in the Day of Judgment, who shall have said from his heart, without any mixture of hypocrisy, 'There is no deity but God.'"

"I will intercede for those who shall have committed great suns "

"Three classes will intercede on the Day of Judgment, the Prophets, the Learned, the Martyre" (Mesklät, book xxxiii ch xu)

The suther of the Sharh-s-Mawagef says (p 588) According to the Sunnis, the intercession of Muhammad is specially for those who have committed great sins (ahlu 'l-kaba'ır), for the purpose of removing punishment, for Muhammad has said, "My intercession is for those who have committed great sins" But the Mu'taxilahs say the intercession of Muhammad is for the increase of merit, and not for the prevention of punishment, for it is said in the Quran, Surah ii 45 "Fear the day wherein no soul shall pay recompense for another son! Nor shall intercession be accepted for it, nor shall compensation be taken from it, nor shall they be helped"

INTERMEDIATE STATE The state of the soul between the time of death and the resurrection is generally expressed by the term 'Alam-i-Barzakh, for an explanation of which refer to the article Barzakh Suff writers use the term Alam-, Armáh, "The world of spirits"

From the Traditions it would appear that Muhammad taught that the intermediate state is not one of unconsciousness. To the wicked it is certainly not, but inaxmuch as the Muslim is encouraged to "sleep like the bridgegroom" it may be inferred that the intermediate state of the Muslim is held to oe one of absolute repose" [FUNISHMENTS OF THE GRAVE]

INZAR (انطار) Listening or lending an ear to the bankrupt's disternent or petition

INZI'AJ (glass) Let "Being disturbed and moved from its place ' teim need by the Safi mystics for the movement and excitement of the heart in the direction of God through the effect either of a sermon, or of music and singing ('Abdu r-Razzaq's Dect of Saft Terms)

IQALAH (Stat) "Cancelling" In law, the cancelling or dissolution of sale, or any other contract

IQAMAH (Lots) Let "Causing to stand" A recitation at the commencement of the stated prayers when said in a congregation, after the worshippers have taken up their position it is the same as the I'zān, with the addition of the sentence, "Verily prayers are now ready" (Und qāmati s-said) The sentences are, however, recited angly by all the sects except the Hausis who give it exactly as the I'zān It is not recited by the Imam, but by the person who stands behind him, who is called the Muquadi or "follower" In large mosques it is nearly for the Mu'azzin, or caller to prayer, to take this office. But in his absence the person who happens to be behind the Imam recitor the Iqāmah. [IMAM]

IQRAR (), Acknowledgment, confession

(1) A legal term used for the avowal of the right of another upon one's self in sales, contracts, and divorce (2) A theological term used for a confession of the Muslim fatth, or a confession of sin. (8) Iqrār-nāmah, a legal deed of acknowledgment (4) Iqrār-nāmah galāgī, a deed of arbitration by a third party (5) Iqrāru 'l-agām, a confession of guilt by a prisoner (6) Iqrār 'āmm, a public acknowledgment

IQTIZA (curit) Let "Demanding" A term used in the exegesis of the Quran for sentences which demand certain conditions, e.g. Sürah iv 94 "Whose killeth a Mu'min (a believer) by mischance shall be bound to free a slave" Here the condition demanded is that the slave shall be the property of the person who frees him, and if he have not a slave to free, then some other explation is required.

IRADAH (5.1)) Purpose, will, intention (1) A ward used for the intention, or will of man (2) Irādatu 'llah, the will of God (3) According to the Sūfi mystics, it is a flame of love in the heart which desires God and longs to be united with Him. ('Abdu r-Razzāq's Dict of Sūfī Terms)

IRAM (a) A place mentioned in the Qur'an, Surah lxxxix 6 "Iram of the columns, the like of which has not been created in these anda"

It is related that ash-Shaddad, the son of Ad ordered the construction of a terrestial paradise in the desert of Adan, ostensibly to rival the celestial one, and to be called fram after his great grandfather. On going to take possession of it he and all his people were atruck dead by a noise from heavon and the paradise disappeared.

AL-IRAQ (Jan) Let "A side, or shore I country frequently mentioned in the Traditions which extends from 'Abbadan to al Minsil in length, and from al-Qadisiyah to Halwan in breadth Said to be on samed because it was on the "shore" of the rivers lights and Euphrates. Its principal cities were as Basiah and al-Küfah and were called al Iraquan or the Two Iraqs IRBAN (واعرات) Earnest-money paid in any legal transaction.

IRHAS (Asia) Let "Laying the Foundation A torm used for any wonder wrought in helialf of a Prophet before he assumes the prophetic office for example, the existence of a 1ght on the forehead of Muhammad's ancestors is an Irhös (Kitāus 'Irhitifāt)

TRON Arabic al-Hadid (2014)
The title of bursh type in the Cur'an, in the 25th verse of which it is said "We (God) sent down 1708, in which are both keen violence and advantages to men" Zamakhshafi says that Adam brought down with him from Paradice five things made of iron, viz an anvil, a pair of tongs, two hammers, a greater and lesser, and a needle.

IRTIDĀD (りょり) [APOSTASY]

'ISA (and) The name given to Jesus in the Qur'an and all Muhammadan writings. [JESUS CHRIST]

Arabic Ishaq (dimi) ISAAC The son of Abraham He is mentioned in the Qur'an as specially the child of promise, and a gift from God to Abraham, and also as an inepired prophet
Sürah zzi 72 "And We (God) gave him

(Abraham) Isaac and Jacob as a farther gift, and we made them all righteous "

Sürah xix 50

"And when he had separated himself from them and that which they worshipped beside God, we bestowed on him Isaac and Jacob, and each of them we made a prophet

"And we bestowed gifts on them in our mercy, and gave them the lofty tongue of

trath

The birth of Isaac as a child of promise to Abraham is related in Sürah zi 72-77

"And our messengers came formerly to Abraham with glad tidings Peace, said they He said, Peace, and he tarried not, Peace, said. but brought a roasted calf "And when he saw that their hands touched it not, he mishked them, and grew fearful of them. They said, 'Fear not, for we are sent to the people of Lot' "His wife was standing by and laughed, and we announced Isaac to her, and after Isaac, Jacob.

"She said, Ah, wee is me! shall I bear a son when I am old, and when this my husband m an old man? This truly would be a marvellous thing

"They said, 'Marvellest thou at the command of God? God's mercy and blessing be upon you, O people of this house praise and glory are His due?

"And when Abraham's fear had passed away, and these glad tidings had reached him, he pleaded with its for the people of Lot. Verily, Abraham was right kind, pitiful, relenting "

Abraham's willingness to offer up his son is told in the Quran, and from the text there would seem little doubt but Isaac was intended, although al-Baixawi and many commentators declare it was Ishmael The acoount runs thus (Sürah xxxvii 97-118) —
"And he said, 'Verily, I repair to my Lord who will guide me

"'O Lord give me a son, of the righteons' "We announced to him a youth of meek-

"And when he became a full-grown youth, "His father said to him, 'My son, I have seen in a dream that I should sacrifics thee, therefore, consider what thou seest right'

"He said, 'My father, do what thou art bidden, of the patient, if God please, shalt thou find me'

" And when they had surrendered them to the will of God, he laid him down upon his forehead

"We oried unto him, 'O Abraham!

"'Now hast thou satisfied the vision. See how we recompense the righteous.

"This was indeed a decisive test.

- "And we ransomed his son with a costly victim.
  - "And we left this for him among posterity,

" PEACE BE ON ABRAHAM!

- "Thus do we reward the well-doers, "For he was of our believing servants
- "And we announced Isaac to him-a righteous prophet-

"And on him and on Issae we bestowed our blessing And among their offspring were well-doers, and others, to their own hurt undoubted sinners"

The feast of sacrafice, the 'Idu 'l-Asha, is said to have been instituted in commemoration of this event. ['IDU 'L-AZHA.]

Synd Ahmad Khan Bahadur, in his Essays on Arabia, remarks that learned Muhammadan theologians distinctly say it was Issae and not Ishmael who was to have been offered up, but our researches scarcely confirm the learned Syud's statement Ismail al-Bukhārī, no mean authority, says it was Ishmaei, and so does al-Baizāwī

The weight of traditional authority seems to be in favour of Isaac, and so does the text of the Qur'an, which we have explained in the account of Ishmael, and yet amongst both the Sunnis and the Shi'ahs the opinion is now almost universal that it was Ishmael.

[ISHMALL.]

ISAIAH Arabic Sha'ya' ( ) The name is not mentioned in the Quran, but al-Baizāwi, the commentator, in remarking on Suratu 7 Mi'raj, xvil 4 -" We decreed to the children of Isra'il in the Book, 'Ye shall verily do evil in the earth twice," says the two sins committed by the Israelites were first the murdar of Shavya ibn Amsiya (se Issiah, son of Anio2) or Armiya (i.e. Jeremish), and the second, the murder of Zakaria and John the Baptist and the intention of killing Jasus

I'SAR (ايفار) Honouring another above oneself Thinking of another's gain rather than ous's own. The highest form of human friendship

'ISHA' (alta) The Night Prayer The liturgical prayer recited after the night has well set in [PRAYER.]

(اسمال) QÄHBI TBAAC

(اسمانية) ISḤĀQĪYAH A Shi'ah sect founded by a person named Ishio, who held that the Spirit of God existed in the Khalifah 'Ali

ISHĀRATU 'L-MALAK (الملك INSPIRATION

ISHMAEL Arabic Isma W Jeeland) The eldest son of Abraham, by his " we/e" Hagar [MAJAR]

(1) The progemtor of the Arabian race, and, according to the Qur'an, an inspired prophet. Sürah xix, 55 —

"And commemorate Ishmael in 'the Book,' for he was true to his proruse, and was an Apostle, a prophet,

"And he enjoined prayer and almsgiving on his people, and was well-pleasing to his Lord."

(2) Said to bave assisted his father in the construction of the Rabah Surah n 119, 121 —

"And remember when we appointed the Holy House as man's report and safe retreat, and said, 'Take ye the station of Abraham for a place of prayer' And we commanded Abraham and lahmael, 'Purify my house for those who shall go in procession round it, and those who shall abide there for devotion, and those who shall bow down and prostrate themselves'

"And when Abraham, with Ishmuel, raised the foundations of the House, they said, 'O our Lord! accept at from us for Thou art the Hearer, the Knower'"

(8) Also mentioned in six other places

Surah u 184 "Do ye say that Abraham and Ishmael, and Isaac and Jacob and the Tribes were Jews, or Christians? 'Surah us. 78 "And what was revealed to Ahraham and Ishmael and Isaao and Jacob and the Tribes"

Sursh iv 161 "And we inspired Abraham and Ishmael, and Jacob and the Tribes bursh vi 86 "And Ishmael and Flishs and Jonah, and Lot "

Sursh xxi 85 "And Ishmael, and Idiis, and Zu'l-Kifl, all these were of the patient" Sürah xxxvul. 48 "And remember Ishmael, and Elisha, and Zu 1-Kifi, for each was righteous'

(4) According to the Old Testament, Ishmael had twelve sons, and Muhammadan tradition also agrees with this

Genesis xxv 12 "Now these are the enerations of Ishmael, Abraham's son, whom Hagar the Egyptian, Sarah's handmaid, hare unto Abraham And these are the names of the aons of Ishmael, according to their generations the first-born of Ishmael, Ne bajoth, and Kedar, and Adbeol, and Mibsam, and Mishma, and Dumah, and Massa, and Hadar, and Tema, and Jetur, and Naphish, and Kedemah. These are the sons of Ishmael, and these are their names by their oastles, twelve princes according to their nations

The names of these sons of Ishmael can still be distinguished amongst the tribes, the names of which occur in Muhammadan history Nebajoth (Nabayus), the founder of the Nabathean nation, who succeeded the Idumeans in Arabia, and were an important people in Northern Arabia Kedar (Qaidar) was also a famous tribe, so famous that the Badawis of the desert applied the name to all Jews Dumah is still preserved in the name Dūmatu I Jandal Tema corresponds with Taimah, and Jetur with the Jadur of modern Arabia Muhammad is said to have been descended from Ishmael's second son Kedar (Qaidar), through one named 'Adnan. The period between 'Adnan and Ishmael is doubtful. Some reckon forty generations, others only four Umm Salmah, one of the doubtful. Prophet's wives, said 'Adnan was the son of 'Adad, the son of Humaisa, son of Nabat, son of Ishmael. (See Abu 'L-Fida', p 62) Muslim historians, however, admit that the pedigree of Muhammad beyond 'Adnan is uncertain, but they are unanimous in tracing his descent to 'Adnän in the following line (1) Muhammad, (2) 'Abdu Iläh, (3) Abū Muṭṭalib, (4) Hāshim (5) 'Abdu Manāf, (6) Quṣāiy, (7) Kilāb, (8) Murrah (9) Ka'b, (10) Luwaiy, (11) (14) (15) Ka'b, (10) Luwaiy, (14) (15) (15) (15) (15) (11) Ghalib, (12) Fihi, (18) Mālik, (14) An-Nazr (15) Kmānab, (16) Khuzamah, (17) Mudrikah, (18) Al-Ya's, (19) Muzar, (20) Nizār, (21) Ma'add, (22) 'Adam Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada Anada A Syud Ahmad Khan Bahadur, traces the descent of Muhammad to Kedar, the son of Ishmael, and the view is one in accordance with that of most Mushm writers. In the time of Isaiah the two chief Arabian tribes seem to have been the descendants of Nebajoth and Kedar (See Ismah lz 7) "All the flooks of Kedar shall be guthered unto thee, the rams of Nebsjoth shall minister unto thee"

(5) The account of Hagar leaving Abraham's home is given in numerons traditions But there are two traditions given by Ibn Abbas, and recorded in the Sakih of al-Bukhan which are the foundation of Muhammadan history on the subject. We give them ts they have been translated by Synd Ahmad Khan and afterwards append the Scripture narrative, which can be compared with the traditions of Islam -

Tradition I

For reasons known only to Abraham and his wife, Sarah, the former took Ishmael, his son, and the boy's mother (Hagar), and left his country

And they had with them a skin full of Ishmael's mother drank from out the skin, anckling her child

Upon her arriving at the place where Mecca now stands, she placed the child under a bush

Then Abraham returned to come back to his wife, and the mother of Ishmael followed

Until she reached Keda

And she called out, "O Abraham, with whom leavest thou me?"

He answered, "With God." She replied, "I am eatisfied with my God." Then she returned, and commenced drinking out of the skin, and suckled her infant until the water was consumed

And she thought that if she went and looked around, she might, perhaps, see someone, and she went

She ascended Mount Safa, and looked around to see whether or not there was anyone in sight, then hastily returning through the widerness, she ascended the mountain of Marva

Then she said, "I must now go and see bow my child is." And she went, and saw that he was at the point of death, but not being able to compose her mind, she said,
"If I go and look around, persoventure I may see someone" And accordingly she ascended the mountain of Safa, but could descry no one

And this she repeated seven times

She then said, "It will be better for me to go and see my child. But she suddenly heard a voice

And she replied, "Kindly assist me, if you have any compassion "

The angel was Gabriel

The narrator of the tradition, stamping the earth with his foot, said, this was exactly what the angel did, and that water issued from the spet, and she began to widen the

It is related by Ibn 'Abbas, that the Prophet and that had she (Hagar) allowed the water to remain in its former state, the water would then have continued issuing forth for ever

She used to drink that water and suckle

her child.

Tradition II

Abraham brought with him his wife (Hagar) and his son (Ishmael),

Whom she (Hagar) suckled

And they both placed the child close by the spot where the Kaaba now stands unds: a bush.

Near the well of Zamzem, near the lofty side of the temple—and in those days Mecoa was unmhabited and without water—and they deposited the child in the above place

And Abraham placed beside them a bag

full of dates.

And a skin full of water

Then returned Abraham, and Ishmael's mother ran after him,

And said, "Abraham, whither goest thou, and wherefore leavest thou me here?

"In this wilderness, where there is no one te pity me, neither is there anything to eat? This she repeated several times, but Abraham hearkened not unto her Then she asked him, " Has God commanded thee to do this?" He snawered, "Yes"

"Then," said she, "God will cause no harm to come unto me "

Thereupon she returned back.

And Abraham went away, and when he reached Saneos, he could not see those he had left behind him.

Then he turned towards Mecca, and prayed thus "O Lord, I have caused some of my offspring to settle in an unfruitful valley, near thy holy house, O Lord, that they may be constant in prayer Grant, therefore, that the hearts of some men may be affected with kindness towards them, and do thou bestow on them all sorts of fruits, that they may give thanks"

And the mother of Ishmael began to suckle her child, and to drink water out of the skin

until it was emptied

And she and her son felt thirsty And when she saw that her ohild was suffering from thirst, she could not bear to see it in such a plight, and retired, and resched the mountain of Safa, that was mear, and ascending it, looked at the plain, in the hope of seeing someone, but, not perceiving anyone, she came down from the mountain.

When she reached the desert, she gurded up her loins and ran as one mad, until she crossed the desert, and ascended Mount Marva, but she could not see anyone

She repeated the same seven times

It is related by Ibn 'Abbas, that the Prophet said that this was the origin of the custom of true believers running between these mountains during the Haj

And when she ascended the Marva mountain,

she heard a voice

She was startled thereat, and upon hearing it again, she said, "Wherefore callest thou on me? Assist me if thou canst

She then eaw an angel near the Zamzem

He (the angel) made a hollow place, either by his foot or with his wing, and the water issued forth, and the mother of Ishmael commenced widening it

She filled the skin with water, which came out of it as from a fountain.

It is related by Ibn Abbas that the Prophet said "May God bless the mother of Ishmael Had she left the Zamzem as it was, or had she not filled her skin with water, then the Zamzem would always have remained an overflowing fountain

Then she drank the water, and suckled

her child

The account as given in the Bible, Geneels

xxii 9, is as follows . ' And Sarah saw the son of Hagar the Egyptian, which she had borne unto Abraham, mocking Wherefore she said unto Abraham, Gast out this bondwoman and her son, for the son of this bondwoman shall not he heir with my son, even with Isaac And this thing was very greevous in Abraham's sight, because of his son And God said unto Abraham, Let it not be grievous in thy sight because of the lad, and because of thy bond woman, in all that Sarah hath said unto thee. hearken unto her voice, for m Isaac shall thy seed be called And also of the son of the bondwoman will I make a nation, because he is thy seed And Abraham rose up early in the morning, and took bread, and a bottle of water, and gave it unto Hagar, putting it on her shoulder, and the child, and sent her away, and she departed, and wandered in the wildsrnsss of Beersheba. And the water was spent m the bottle, and she cast the child under one of the shrubs And she went, and set her down over against him a good way off, as it were a bow shot, for she said, Let me not see the death of the child And she sat over against him, and lifted up her voice, and wept And God heard the voice of the lad, and the angel of God called to Hugar out of heaven, and said unto her,

What alleth thee, Hagar? Fear not, for God hath heard the voice of the lad where he is. Arise, lift up the lad, and held him in thine hand, for I will make him a great nation And God opened her eyes, and she saw a well of water, and she went, and filled the bottle with water, and gave the lad drink And God was with the lad, and he grew, and dwelt in the wilderness, and became an archer And he dwelt in the wilderness of Paran, and his mother took him a wife out of the land of Egypt."
With reference to the above account, as given in Holy Scripture, Synd Ahmad Khan remarks .

"Notwithstanding the perfect coincidence of the facts taken from the Scriptures with those from the Koran, as above shown, there are, nevertheless, three very important questions which suggest themselves respecting Ishmael's settlement

"First Where did Abraham leave Ishmael and his mother after expelling them from hie home?

"Secondly Where did Ishmael and Hagai settle after their wanderings in the desert?

"Thirdly Was it in the very spot where they had rested for the first time, or in some other place?

"The Koran mentions nothing on the subject, but there are some local traditions, and also a few Hadeeses, which treat of it, the latter, however, by reason of their not posecesing sufficient authority, and from their not being traced up to the Prophet, are as little to be relied on as the former The local traditions being deemed unworthy of credit, from their mixing up together occurrences that had happened on various and different occasions, we do not think it necessary to dwell on the first question more than has been done by the Scriptures themselves, which say that 'He (Abraham) eent her (Hagar) awav, and she doparted, and wandered in the wilderness of Boersheba

"As for the two remaining questions, although the language of Scripture is not very clear-since, in one place it says, And he (Ishmsel) grew, and dwelt in the wilderness, and became an archer' (Gen. xxi 20), and in another, 'He (Ishmael) dwelt in the wil-derness of Paran' (Gen. xxi. 21), passages which would certainly lead us to infer that Ishmael had changed the place of his abode, yet, as no Christian commentator represents him as having removed from one place to another, and as, moreover, neither the religious nor the local traditions of the Mohammedans in any way confirm the above, it may be safely asserted that Ishmael and his mother did not change the place where they dwelt, and that by the word 'wilderness' alone the sacred writer meant the wilderness of Paran. The solving of the whole question depends, therefore, upon ascertaining and fixing the position of the said wilderness of Paran, where Ishmael is said to have settled

"Oriental geographers mention three places known by the appellation of Paran First, ss known by the appellation of Paran First, that wilderness wherein the city of Mecca now stands, and the mountains in its vicinity; secondly, those mountains and a village which are situated in Eastern Egypt, or Arabia Petrma; and thirdly, a district in the pra-vince of Samarcand"

(6) Al-Baişawî says it was Ishmael, and not Isaao, whom Abraham was willing to offer up as a sacrifice, but this view is neither supported by the text of the Qui'an nor by the preponderance of traditional testimony we compare Surah x1.74 "And We announced Issac (as the child of promise) to her," with Sürah Exevi 99 "We announced (as a child of promise) to him a youth of meekness, and when he became a full-grown youth, his father said to him, My son, I have seen in a dream that I should sacrifice thee'"-there can be no doubt in any candid mind that as far as the Qur'an is concerned, Isaac and not Ishmael is intended. [ISAAC]

The two commentators al-Kamālān quote a number of traditions on the subject say Ibn 'Umar, Ibn 'Abbas, Hasar, and 'Abdu 'lish ibn Ahmad, relate that it was Isaso, whilst Ibn Mas'ūd, Mujāhid, Tkrimah, Qatādah, and Ibn Ishāq say it was Ishmael But whatever may be the real facts of the case, it is certain that popular tradition amongst both sunnis and Shi'ahs assigns the honour to Ishmael, and believe the great Festival of Sacrifico, the 'Idu I-Azha, to have been estab blished to commemorate the event. ['IDU 'L-

AZHA.]

The author of the Shi'ah work, the Hayatu 'l Qulub (Merrick's ed. p. 28) says "On a certain occasion when this illustrious father (Abisham) was performing the rites of the prigrimage at Mecca, Abraham said to his beloved child, 'I dreamed that I must sacrifice you, now consider what is to be done with reference to such an admonstron' Ishmael replied, 'Do as you shall be commanded of God Verify your dream. You will find me endure patiently' But when Abraham was about to sacrifice Ishmael, the Most High God made a black and white shoep his substitute, a sheep which had been pasturing forty years in Paradise, and was created by the direct power of God for this event. Now every sheep offered on Mount Mina, until the Day of Judgment is a substitute, or a commemoration of the substitute for Ishmael."

The idea is universal amongst Muhammadans that the mudent took place on Mount Mine near Makkah, and not in the "land of Morish," as stated in Genesis xxii 8 (For a discussion on the site of Mount Moriah, eee Mr Geerge Grove's article in Smith's Dict of the Bible

bir William Muir says (Lafe of Mahomet, new ed p xvii) "By a summary adjustment, the story of Palestine became the story of the Hejaz The precincts of the Kaaba were hallowed as the scene of Hagar's distress. and the sacred well Zamzem as the source of her relief. The pilgrims hasted to and fro between Safa and Marwa in memory of has hurned steps in search of water. It was Abraham and Ishmael who built the (Meccan) temple, placed in it the black stone, and established for all mankind the pilgrimage to Arafat. In imitation of him it was that stones were flung by pilgrims at Satan, and sacrifices were offered at Mina in remembrance of the vicarious sacrifice by Abraham instead of his son. And thus, although the indigenous rites may have been little if at all altered, by the adoption of the Abrahamic legends, they came to be viewed in a totally different light, and to be connected in the Arab imagination with something of the cancuty of Abraham, the Friend of God The gulf between the gross idolatry of Arabia and the pure theism of the Jewa was bridged over Upon this common ground Mahomet took his stand, and proclaimed to his people a new and a spiritual system, in accents to which all Arabia could respond The rites of the Kaaba were retained, but stripped by him of every idolatrous tendency, and they still hang, a strange unmeaning shroud, around the living tuesm of Islam"

" Love " (عشل) ISHQ' A word used by mystic writers to express a divine love The word, however, preferred ov or thodox Mushm writers for the love of God, or love to God, 15 hubb (--)

ISLAM (1) Resignation to the will of God The word generally used by Muhammadans themselves for their religion 'Abdu 'I-Hada says it implies submission to the divine will, and Muhammad explained it (1) Bearing witness that there is but one God (2) Reciting the daily prayers, (a) Giving the legal alms, (4) Observing the Remezan or month's fast, (5) Making the pigrimage to Makkeb once in a lifetime

In the Quran the word is used for doing homage to God Lelam la said to be the religion of all the prophets from the time of Abraham, as will appear from the following verses (Surah in 78 79) —"SAY We believe in God and in what hath been sont down to Abraham, and Ishmael, and Isaac, and Jacob, and the Tribes, and in what was given to Moses, and Jesus and the Prophet from their Lord We make no difference between them, and to Him are we resigned (re Muslims) Whose desireth any other religion 'ban lalam that religion shall never be accepted of Him, and in the next world he shall be lost"

There are three words used by Muham madan writers for religion, namely Din, Millak and Mazhab, and in the Kulabu 't-Tarifut, the difference implied in these words is said to be as follows -Dm, as it stands in its relation to God, e.g Dinu 'llah, the religion of God, Millah, as it stands in relation to a prophet or lawgiver, eg Millatu Ibrahim, the religion of Abraham, and Maghab, as it stands in relation to the divines of Islam, e.g. Maghab Hanafi, the religion or religious teaching of Abu Hanifah. The expression Din, however, is of general application [RELIGION]
Those who profess the religion of Islam are called Musalmans, Muslims, or Mn'mins Ablu 'l-Kitāb, " the people of the Book," 18 used for Muhammadans, Jews, and Chris-

ISM (اثم) A sin , anything for-bidden by the law

'ISMAH ( Lac ) Lil "Keeping back from sin." The continence and freedem "Keeping from sin which Muhammadans say was the state of each Prophet, and which is that of nfant children

السماعيل) ISMĀ'ĪL [ISHMAEL]

ISMA'IL (احماليل) The name of the angel who is said to have accompanied the angel Gabriel in his last visit to the He is said to Prophet on his death-bed command one hundred thousand angels. (Mishkat, book xxiv ch x pt 8)

ISMÄ'ILIYAH (أساعيلية) A
Shi'ah sect who said that Isma'il ibn Ja'far as Sadiq was the true Imam and not Musa al-Kazım, and who held that God was neither existent |nor non-existent, nor intelligent nor unintelligent, nor powerful nor helpless, &c , for, they said, it is not possible for any thing or attribute to be associated with God, for He is the maker of all things, even of names and attributes (Kstabu 't-Ta'rifat, in loce)

ISM-I-JALALI (اسم جلالي) Any of the attributes of God which express His power and greatness, eg al-Hak : the Judge, al Adıl, the Just, al-K : the Great [son

ISM-I-JAMALI (اسم جمالی) Any of the attributes of God which express His mercy or condescension eg ar-Rahm, the Compassionate, as-Sami, the Hearer, al-Hafiz, the Guardian

المم صلة) ISM-I-SIFAH Name of a divino attribute

(الاسم الاعظم) L-A'ZAM (الاسم الاعظم) The exalted name of God, which is generally believed to be known only to the Prophets. Muhammad is related to have said that it occurs in either the Süratu 1-Baqarah, it. 256 "God (Allah) there is no God but He (Hw), the Laving (ul-Haiy) the Self-subsistent (al Qaiyum)", or in the Suratu Ali Imran, us 1, which contains the same words, or in the Suratu Ta Ha xx 110 "Faces chall be humbled before the Living (al Hasy) and the Self-subsistent (al-Qaryum)

It is therefore generally held to be either Allah, or Hū or al-Haiy, or al-Qayūm. It is very probable that the mysterious title of the Divine Being refers to the great name of Jehovah, the superstitious reverence for which on the part of the Jews must have been well known to Muhammad

(اسم الذات) ISMU 'Z-ZAT of the Divine Essence, the essential name of God se Allib, or Hu, as distinguished from His attributes [ALLAH]

ISNA-ISHARIYAH (الناعشرية) Let "The twelve cans" Those Shi ahs who acknowledge the twelve lmams [SHI'AM]

ISQĀŢ (blant) [ABORTION]
ISRĀ (chart). [MI'RAJ.]

ISRAEL Arabic Isrā'il (Jan.)
The surname of Ya'qūb (Jacob) Al-Balzāwī says the meaning of Isrā'īl in Hebrew is Sufwatu 'llāh, s.e., "the sincere friend of God"; or, as some say, 'Abdu 'llāh, "the servant of God Banū Isrā'īl, "the children of Israel," is a term that frequently occurs in the Qur'ān. The xviith chapter of the Qur'ān, known as the Sūratu 'l-Mi'rāj, is also called the Sūratu Banī Isrā'il.

ISRAF (امراف) Let "Wasting" Extravagance in religious duties, ie doing more than is required by the law

ISRAFIL (امراضل) The Archangel who will sound the trumpet at the Day of Resurrection. His name however, does not occur meither the Quren, or the Traditions

ISRAR (In) A word used by the Arabs for a horse pricking up his ears, and not obeying the rein. A term in Muhammadan theology for persisting in any sin, and being determined to commit the sin in future.

ISSUE OF BLOOD Arabic Istihasah (Limit) [MUSTAHAZAH]

ISTI'ANAH (abail) Let "Seeking aid." Implering help from God The word occurs in the Süratu I-Fätihah, or the first chapter of the Qur'an, which is part of the liturgical prayer Octable waigaka nastain, 'Of Thee only do we seek help."

ISTIBRA' (التمراء) The purification of the womb The period of probation, of one menses to be observed after the purchase of a female slave (or in the case of a virgin under age), the period of one month before she is taken to her masters bed

ISTIBŞĀR (التيمار) A Book of Muhammadan traditions received by the Shi'aha, compiled by Shakh Nasiru d Din Abū Ja'far Muhammad at Tūsī, A is 672

ISTIDIAL (استدلال) A term used in the science of exegesis for those sentences which require certain proofs [QUR'AN]

ISTIDRAJ (أسندراء) Let "Promoting by degrees, step by step" The word occurs in the Qur'an for an unbeliever being brought by degrees to hell and destruction brought by degrees to hell and destruction Surah vii 181 "They who say our signs are lies We (God) will bring them down step by step from whence they know not"

Surah lavin 44 "We (God) will surely bring them down step by step from whence they do not know, and I (God) will let them have their way for My device is sure" their way, for My device is sure"

(In this verse the sudden transition from the first person plural to the first person singular, for the Almighty, is peculiar, it is, however, of frequent occurrence in the Quran)

ISTIGHFAR (January) Seeking forgiveness of Ged It is related of Muhammad that he said —

"I swear by God that I ask pardon of God, and repent before Him more than seventy times daily.

"O men, repent and turn to God, for verily I repent before Him one hundred times a day" (Mishlett, book x ch. iii)

ISTIHĀZAH (أستافة) The issue of blood of women during which time they are coremonially unclean (Vide Mishkāt, book iii. ch xvi)

ISTIIISĀN (Outer) Let "Approving" A term used in the excessis of the Qur'an and of the Hadis It implies the rejection of Quyas [QUYAS], and the admission of the law of expediency of the law of expediency

For example it is a law of Islam that everything that is washed must be squeezed like a cloth, but, as it is impossible to squeeze a vessel, it is evident that it must be cleaned without squeezing (Näru'l-Anwär, p 208)

ISTIKHĀRAH (5,1221) Lit
"Asking favours" A prayer for special favours and blessings, consisting of the recital of two rakah prayers (Mishkāt, book ty ch. xl)

Jäbir says "The Prophet taught the Isti-khārah, as he also did a chapter of the Qur'an, and he said, 'When anyone of you intends ucing a thing, he must perform two rak'ah prayers expressly for Istikhārah and afterwards rette the following simplication O God, I suppliest Tay help, in Thy great wisdom, and I pray for ability through Thy power I ask a thing of Thy bounty Thou knowest all, but I do not. Thou are powerful, and I sm not Thou knowest the secrets of men O God! if the matter I am about to undertake is good for my faith, my life, and my futurity, then make it easy for me, and give me success in it. But if it is bad for my faith, my life, and my futurity, then put it away from me, and show me what is good, and the person praying shall mention in his prayer the business which he has in hand'

This very simple and commendable injunction has, however, been perverted to superstitious uses

Mr Lane, in his Modern Egyptians, says—
"Some persons have recourse to the Qur'an for an answer to their doubts—This they call making an "istikhdrah," or application for the favour of Heaven, or for direction in the right course—Repeating three times the open ing chapter, the 112th chapter, and the fifty eighth verse of the sixth chapter, they let the book fall open, or open it at random, and, from the seventh line of the right-hand page, draw their answer

"The words often will not convey a direct answer, but are taken as affirmative or negative according as their general teneur is good or bad, promising a blessing, or denouncing a threat, &c Instead of reading the seventh line of this page, so me count the number of letters khu and sheen which occur in the whele page, and if the khu's predominate, the inference is favourable Khu represents kheyr, or good, sheen, shur, or evil. There is another mode of istikhárak, which is, to take hold of any two points of a sebhhah (or rosary), after rociting the Fat'hhah three times, and then to count the beads be tween these two points, saying, in passing the first bead through the fingers, '[I assert] the absolute glory of God,' in passing the sec ond 'Praise be to God,' in passing the sec ond 'There is no doity but God ' and repeating these expressions in the same order, to the last bead, the answer is affirmative and favourable, if the second, indifferent, if the last, negative This is practised by man persons

"Some, again, in similar cases, on lying down to sleep at night, beg of God to direct them by a dream, by causing them to see something white or green, or water, if the action which they contemplate be approved, or if they are to expect approaching good fortune, and if not, by causing them to see something black or red, or fire, they then recite the Fat'hhah ten times, and continue to repeat these words 'O God, favour our lord Mohammad''— until they fall asleep" (Modern Egyptians, vol 1 338)

Amongst plous Muslims in Asia it is usual to recite the two rak-ah prayers before retiring to rest, in the hope that God will reveal His will in a dream during the night

STILAD (استجالات) Claim of offspring A legal term signifying the act of a Mushim, having a child born to him of a female slave, which he acknowledges as his own, whereby the slave becomes free (Hidayah, vol 1 p 478)

ISTILAH (client), pl Istelāhāt A phrase, a term, idiom A theological term. The author of the Ketābu't-Ta'refāt says it is the agreement of a tribe, or sect, or party, to give a special meaning to a word, over and above that which it has in its literal sense, but which is in accordance with it ISTINJA' (approximately) Abstersion, concerning which there are most minute instructions in the Traditions and in other books of Muslim divinity. Such acts of cleansing must be performed with the left hand, with not less than three handfuls of water, or with three of dry earth (Mishkat, book ii 1)

ISTINSHAQ (alam) The act of throwing water up into the nostrils, which is part of the religious ablution or wazū. [ABLUTION]

ISTIQAMAH (a Law) Let "Standing erect" A term (1) used by the Suff mystics for rectitude of life, purry of life, (2) being constant in religion according to the rules of the Qur'an

ISTIQBAL () Lit "Going forth to meet" (1) A custom amongst Orientals of going cut to meet a friend or guest on his arrival, (2) turning the face towards Makkah for prayer, (3) a coming era or period, the future.

ISTIRJĀ' (كَاتُوكُ) Lit "Returning' A term used for the act of appealing to God for help in the time of affliction by repeating the following ejaculation from the Qur'an, Strah in 150 Inna li'llāhi wa timā slathi raptūn, "Verlly, we belong to God, and verily we shall retuin to God." This formula is used by Muhammadans in any danger or sudden calamity, especially in the presence of death

ISTISHAB (المتحاد) A law or injunction commained in a previous revelation (e.g. the Law of Moses) and not abrogated by the succeeding law-giver

ISTISNA' (**Lit.**) Let "Excepting or excluding" A term used for the custom of exclaiming, "If God will." It is in accordance with the injunctions of the Quran, Surah avil. 28 "And never say of anything, 'Verily, I am going to do that tomorrow, without, 'If God will.'" (Compare James 1v 15 "For ye ought to say, If the Lord will.")

ISTISQĀ' (المسلطاء) Prayers for rain, consisting of two rak'ah prayers (Mish-kāt, book iv ch. hii)

I'TAQ (اهتال) Let "Setting free"
The manumission of slaves [SLAVERY]

ITFIR () [POTIPHAR]

I'TIKAF (LINCAL) Seeking retirement in a mosque during the last ten days of the Fast of Ramazan, during which time the worshipper does not leave the place, except for necessary purposes. The time is spent in reciting the Qur'an and in performing the ceremony of Zikr, or the recital of the names and praises of the Deity.

'ITQ (عدل) "Being free" In the language of the law it signifies the power given to a person by the extinction of bondage Hence the emancipation of slaves. (Hidayak, vol 1 p 413)

ITTIHAD (July) Union, concord, intimate friendship A term used by the Sufi mystics for "seeing the existence of all things visible as only existing in God." ('Abdu'r-Razzāq's Diet of Sufi Terms.)

IZN (U) Permission [INTER-

"IZRA'IL (John)" The Angel of Death, or the Malaku'!-Maut, who comes to a man at the hour of death to carry his soul away from the body See Qur'an, Surah xxxii 11 "The Angel of Death shall take you away, he who is given charge of you. Then unto your Lord shall ye return"

Muhammad is related to have said that when the Angel of Death approaches a believer he sits at his head and says, "O pure soul, come forth to God's pardon and pleasure!" And then the soul comes out as gently as water from a bay But in the case of an unfidel, the Angel or Death sits at his head and says, "O impure soul, come forth to the wrath of God?" And then the Angel of Death draws it out as a hot spit is drawn out of wet wool (Mishkāt, book v gh. ii.)

J

JABALU MUSA (حبل موسى) The Mount of Moses, Mount Sinai It is called in the Quran, Surah ii. 60, at-Tur, The Mountain."

AL-JABARIYAH (الجبرية) Let "The Necessitarians" A sect of Muhammadans who deny free agency in man.

They take their denomination from Jabr which signifies "necessity or compulsion, because they hold man to be necessarily and mevitably constrained to act as he does by force of God's eternal and ummntable decree This sect is distinguished into two species, some being more rigid and extreme in their opinion, who are thence called pure Jabariyahs, and others, more moderate, who are therefore called middle Jabariyahs The former will not allow men to be said either to set, or to have any power at all, either opera tive or acquiring, asserting that man can do nothing, but produces all his actions by necessity, having neither power, nor will, nor choice, any more than an manimate agent They also declare that rewarding and punishing are also the effects of necessity, and the same they say of the imposing of commands This was the doctrine of the Jahmiyahs, the followers of Jahm ibn bufwan, who likewise held that Paradise and Hell will vanish or he annihilated after those who are destined thereto respectively shall have entered them, so that at last there will remain no existing being besides God, supposing those words of the Qur'an which declare that the inhabitants of Paradise and of Hell shall remain therein for ever, to be hyperholical only, and intended for corroboration, and not to denote an oternal duration in reality The moderate Jabariyahs are they who ascribe some power to man, but such a power as hath no influence on the action, for as to those who grant the power of man to have a certain influence on the action, which influence is called Acquisition, some will not admit them to be called Js bariyahs, though others reckon those also to be called muddle Jabariyahs, and to contend for the middle opinion between absolute necessity and absolute liberty, who attribute to man acquicition, or concurrence, in producing the action, whereby he gaineth commendation or blame (yet without admitting it to have any influence on the action), and, therefore, make the Asharians a branch of this sect. (Sale's Koran, Introd )

JABARUT (wyst) The possession of power, of omnipotence. One of the mystic stages of the Sufi [sufits ]

JABBAR (بحبار) Ommpotent, an absolute sovereign Al Jabbar, "The Absolute" One of the ninety-nine names or attributes of (rod

Sürah lix 23 "The King the Holy, the Peaceful, the Faithful, the Protector, the Mighty, the Absolute the Great

JABIL (حيل) The Angel of the Mountains mentioned in the Shi'ah work, Hayātu'l-Qulūb (Merrick's ed p 128)

JABIR (حابر) The son of a poor citizen of al-Madinah, slain at Uhud He embraced Islām and accompamed Muham mad in numerous battles He lived to a great age, for he died at al-Medinah A.H. 78, aged 94 years

JABR (---) A Christian servant of a family from Harramaut—a convert to Islām—accoused by the Qursish with having instructed the Prophst instructed the Prophst Surah xvi 105 "We knew that they said,

'It is only some mortal that teaches him.'
The tengue of him they incline towards is barbarous, this is plain Arabic "

Hussin says Jabr was one of the Ahlu 'l-Kitāb, and was well read in the Taurāt and Injūl, and Muhammad used to hear him read these books as he passed by his house

JACOB Arabic Ya'que (page)
The son of Isaac, an inspired prophet There are frequent but brief allusions to the Patriarch Jacob in the Qur'an in connection with Abraham and Isaac The story of his journey to Egypt will be found in the account of Joseph as given in the with Sarah of the Qur'an [JOSEPH.]

A hrief reference to his death is made in

Sürah u ch 127 -

"Were ye present when Jacob was at the point of death? when he said to his sons, 'Whom will ye worship when I am gone?' They said 'We will worship thy God and the God of thy fathers Abraham and Iemael and Isaac, one God, and to Him are we surrendered (Muslims)' That people have now passed away, they have the reward of their deeds and ye shall have the meed of yours but of their doings ye shall not be questioned. They say, moreover, Become Jews or Christians that yo may have the true guidance' Say. Nay! the religion of Abraham, the sound in fath, and not one of those who join gods with God!"

JADD (4). A term used in Muhammadan law for either a paternal or a maternal grandfather. The word has also the meaning greatness, majesty, as in Sürah lxxii. 3 "May the Majesty of our Lord be exalted" [GRANDFATHER]

JA'FAR ( Ason of Abū Tälib and a cousin to Muhammad He was a great friend to the poor, and was called by Muhammad Abū 'l-Masākīn," the father of the poor" He fell bravely at the battle of Mu'tah, AH 8

JA'FARU'S-SĀDIQ (Jahra)
Abū 'Abdi'llah Ja'far ibn Muhammad ibn 'Ali ibn al-Husain ibn 'Ali ibn Abī Tāhb, was one of the twelve persons who, according to the Shī'ahs, are considered the rightful Imāms [shr'Ah] He was surnamed as-Ṣādiq, "The Veracious," on account of his uprightness of character He was a learned man, and his pupil, Abū Mūsā, is said to have composed a work of two thousand pages containing the problems of his master Ja'faru 's-Ṣādiq Ja'far was born Ah 80, and died Ah 148, and was buried in the cemetery al-Bakī at al-Madīnah.

JĀGĪR (جاگير) Persian Jā, "A place," Gīr, "Occupying" A tenure common under the Muhammadan Government, in which the public revenues of a given tract of land were made over to a servant of the State, together with the powers requisite to enable him to collect and appropriate such revenue and administer the general government of the district The assignment was either couditional or unconditional, in the former case, some public service, as the levy and maintenance of troops, or other specified duty was engaged for the latter was left to the entire disposal of the grantee The assignment was orther for a stated term, or, more usually, for the lifetime of the holder, lapsing, on his death, to the State, although not unusually renewed to his heir, on payment of a nazarana or fine, and sometimes specified to be a hereditary assignment, without which specification it was held to be a life-tenure only (Ben tieg xxxvii 1723, cl. 15) A Jügir was also hable to forfeiture on failure of performance of the conditions on which it was granted or on the holder's incurring the displeasure of the Emperor On the other hand, in the mability of the State to vindicate its rights, a Jägir was sometimes converted into a per petual and transferable estate, and the same consequence has resulted from the recognition of sundry Jagir as hereditary by the British Government after the extinction of the Native Governments by which they were originally granted, so that they have now come to be considered as family properties, of which the holders could not be rightfully dispossessed, and to which their legal heirs succeed, as a matter of course, without fine or nazurana such having been silently dispensed with (Wilson's Glossary of Indian Terms)

JAHANNAM (جهنم) [HELL]

JAHL (Je-) "Ignorance" A term used by theologians for an ignorance of religious truths, which they say is of two kinds Jahl-1-Basit, simple ignorance, and Jahl-1-Murakkab, or complicated ignorance, or confirmed error

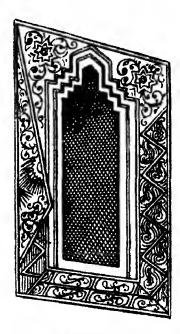

JAIFAR (جغر) A king of 'Uman to whom Muhammad cent a despatch inviting him to Islam, which event led eventually to the conversion of that province

"On his return from the siege of Tayif, towards the close of the eighth year of the Hogna Mahomet sent Amru with a despatch to Jeviar King of Omân, summoning him and his brother to make profession of the true faith. At hist they gave answer 'that they would be the welkest among the Arabs, if they made another man possessor of their property' But as Amru was about to depart, they repented, and, calling him back, embraced Islâm. The people followed their example, and without demur paid their tithes to Amru, who continued till the Prophet's death to be his representative in Omân." (Murr's Life of Mahomet new ed p 471)

JAIHUN (Jack) The river Jihon, or Bactrus, said to be one of the rivers of Eden [RDEN]

JA'-I-NAMAZ (جای طن) Persian "The place of pravei" A term used in Asia for the small mat or carpet on which a Muslim prays It is called in Arabic Supādah and Muşallu

The carpet is about five feet in length, and has a point or Qiblah worked in the pattern to mark the place for prostration.

A JA-I WAMAZ, OR PRAYER CARPET, AS USED IN PEGHAWAR

JAIYID ( Pure money, current com. A term used in Muslim law (Hidāyah, vol in p 152.)

JALAL (JA). Being glorious or mighty Zū'l-Jalāl, "The Glorious One," is an attribute of God See Qur'an, Surah ly 78 "Blessed be the name of thy Lord who is possessed of glory and honour

Al-Julal is a term used by Sufi mystics to express that state of the Almighty which places Him beyond the understanding of His creatures ('Abdu'r-Razzaq's Dictionary of Suf'i Terms)

AL-JALALAN (יובאלנט) "The two Jalais" A term given to two commen-" The ; tators of the name of Jalulu 'd-din, whose joint work is called the Tufsiru i Iulaloin, the first half of which was compiled by the Shaikh Jalalu'd-din al-Mahalli, died a u 864 and the rest by Jalalu 'd-din is Suvuti died A.H 911

Jalulu d-din as Suyūti was a prolitic author Grammar, rhetoric dogmatical and proctical theology, history, criticism inedicine, and anstomy, comprise some of the subjects on which he wrote His Itgan, which is an eplanatory work on the Quran, his teen I in lished by the Asiatic Society of Bonga, and edited by Dr. Sprenger (An Ic57) and lu-History of the Temple of Jerusalem has been translated by the Rev. James Reynolds for the Oriental Translation Society (AD 1836) [JERUSALEM.]

JA'LU 'L-JAUF' (حمل الجوب) An-other name for Dumatu I-Jaudul a place near Tabuk [DUMAH ]

(جالوت) JĀLŪT GOLIATE 1

JAMBAH (5) Let "Gravel, or small pebbles" (1) The three pilars at Mina, at which the Makkan pilgrams three seven pebbles. They are known read that the middle and it Tarbin. first, al-Wusta the middle and il 'Iqibin the last According to Muslim writers these pillars mark the successive spets where the Devil, in the shape of an old Shaikh appeared to Adam, Abraham, and Ishmael, and was driven away by the simple process which Gabriel taught them of throwing seven small pebbles The Jamratu le lqibah is l nown as the Shartamu 'l-Kabu, or the " Great Devi

Captain Burton, in his El Med net and Merra, vol 11 227, anga -

'The Shartanu I-hebir is a dwell but tress of rude masonry, about eight feet high by two and a half broad, places against a rough wall of stones, at the Meccan critatice to Muna. As the coremons of Rem, or Lapidation, must be performed on the first day by all pilgrims between sumise and sum set, and as the fiend was inclicious enough to appear in a rugged pass, the crowd is it is the place dangerous (m one side of it crowd which is not forty feet broad stood a tow of shops, belonging principally to bulbers. On the other side is the rugged wall of the pillar, On with a chevaux de frist of Bedouire and naked

The narrow space was crowded with pilgrims, all struggling hke drowning men to approach as near as possible to the Devil"

THE SHAITAND 'L-KABIR (Burton)

(2) Jum halse means a "live coal," and is an us'r or a real or meteorological term used to signify one infusion of vital heat into the elem nts in spring of rather, at the end of whier freeding of the theory there are three Jamarat one, the infusion of heat into the or occur thirty days before the vernal equinox the second affecting the waters, seem days later and the third, vivifying the earth sixteen days before the equinox ("atriag > b Dictionary in loco )

JAM'U'L-JAM' ( ) Lot. In plural of a plural " A term used by the Sue mystice for the high position of the Peri ou Man or al-Insanu'l-Kamil

J' iA片(ート) "Majesty" Aterm of issued a sed in Judia in addressing a person of 18 K c office whether Native or European I sub c'al Your high eminence"

JAN ABAH (خمانة) A state of uncleanness The Niddok, or separation, of Levilia va his menses costus, childbirr I l'et meturna, contact with the m having performed the offices of natura pian the person in a state of Janabah tion [PI RIFICATION ]

(جنارة) TAN I ZAH JINAZAH (جنارة) term and both for the bier, and for the funeral service of a Mi slim, also for the corpse itself. M RIAL

JĪVN (Ja) The father of the JANNAH (Aug.) pl Jannāt 1 Fig. 11 11 arm used for the regions of colera a new [lakadres] (2) 1 term used he suf nestins to express different the perad e of works o that enjoyment which is derived from sensual ple isures such es cating driving, de Jimma' c'l-Werasak, the pradise of nigritance which is a disposition he that of the sairts and prophets Januate a Sect the paradise of attributes, usea mi g like God fannatu - Zut the para dise of essence being um of with God (re acos prion into the Livine essence) r-Razzāq's Inchonary of Sufi Terms )

JANNATU 'ADN (جنات عدس)
The Gardens of Eden. (Sürah ix 78, et alias)
[PARADISE]

JANNĀTU 'L-FIRDAUS (الفردوس) The Gardens of Paradise (Surah xviii 107) [Paradise]

JANNATU' L-KHULD (جنة الحلد)
The Garden of Eternity (Surah xxv 16)
[PARADISE]

JANNĀTU 'L-MA'WA (الماري The Gardens of Refuge (Sûrah xxxii 19) [PARADISE]

JANNATU'N-NA'IM (جناس النعيم)
The Gardens of Delight (Sürsh v 70)
[PARADISE]

JAR MULASIQ (جار صلاحة) "A next-door neighbour" A term used in Muhammadan law for a joint proprietor in a house, or room or wall of the house (Hidayak, vol. in p 565)

JARR (**) "Dragging" A degree of chastisement practised according to Muhammadan law, namely, by dragging the offender to the door and exposing him to seorn (Hamilton's Hidayah, vol. 11 p 76)

AL-JASIYAH (المالة) Let "The Kneeling" A title given to the XLvth Sürah of the Qurlan, in which the expression occurs

(verse 26) —

"And Gods is the kingdom of the Heavens and of the Earth, and on the day when the Hour shall arrive, on that day shall the despisers perish. And thou shall see every nation kneeling, to its own book shall every nation be summoned — This day shall yo be repaid as ye have wrought

JASULIQ (καθολικὸς The Catholicos, or Primate of the Christians In the Christians, and under him is the Mitrān (Metropolitan), and then the Usquf (Bishop), and then Qasis (Presbyter), and then Shammās (Deacon)"

Mr. Lane, in his Dictionary, gives the Order of Bifraq (Patriarch) as under the Jaguliq, which term we understand to mean, in Mu hammadan works, none other than the Patriarch, e.g. of Jerusalem, or Antioch, &c.

JAWAMI'U 'L-KALIM (علم الكلم) Lit "Comprehending many significations" A title given to the Qur'an and to certain traditions, because it is related that the Prophet said that has been revealed to me which comprehends many significations (Kashfu'l-Istilāhāt, in loco)

JAZ'AH (Le.i.) A female camel in her fifth year The proper age for a camel given in maket or legal alms for camels from sixty-one to seventy-five in number [ZAKAT]

JAZBAH (44-). "Attraction" A term used by the Sūfi mystics to express a yearning after the Divine Being. The nearer approach of man to his Maker through God's grace. ('Abdu 'r-Razzāq's Dictionary of Sūfī Terms.)

JEDDAH Arabic Jiddah (544)
The principal seaport of Arabia, and one of the Miqui or stages where the Makkan pilgrims put on the Jiram or pilgrim's robe. It is also celebrated as the place of Eve's sepulchrad to waist, and 80 paces from waist to heel (Burton)

JEHOVAH Heb הַלְּדִי In the Old Testament it is usually with the vowel points of אָדְרָאָ, but when the two occur together, the former is pointed it, that

13, with the vowels of [17], as in Obad
1. 1, Heb iii 19 The LXX generally render 11 by Kύριος, the vulgate by Dominus, and in this respect they have been followed by the
A.V where it is translated "The Lord."
The true pronunciation of this name, by which God was known to the Hebrews, has been entirely lost, the Jews themselves sarupulonsly avoiding every mention of it, and substituting in its stead one or other of the words with whose proper vowel-points it may happen to be written. This onstom, which had its origin in reverence, and has almost degenerated into a superstition, was founded upon an erroncous rendering of Lev xxiv 16, "He that blasphemeth the name of God shall surely be put to death", from which it was inferred that the mere utterance of the name constituted a capital offence. In the Rabbinical writings it is distinguished by various euphemistic expressions, as simply "the name," or "the name of four letters" (the Greek tetragrammaton), "the great and terrible name", "the peculiar name," is appropriated to God alone, "the separated or removed from human knowledge, or, as some render, "the name which has been interpreted or revealed" (Professor W A Wright, M A Smith's Dictionary of the Bible, in loco)

This superstitious reverence for the word Jehovah must have been the origin of the Ismu 'l-A'zam, or "exalted name," which Muhammad is related to have said was known only to God and His prophete, but which, he said, occurs in one of three verses in the Qur'an, namely Stratu 'l-Baqarah ii. 256 "God! (Allāh) there is no God but He (Hū) the Living One (al-Hary), the Self-Subsisting One (al-Qaryām)", or, in the Suratu Ali 'Imrān ii. 1, which contains the Suratu Ali 'Imrān ili. 1, which contains the same words, or, in the Sūratu Tā Hā xx. 110 "Faces shall be humbled before the Living One (al Haiy), the Self-Subsistent One (al-Qatyunt)."

Some European scholars (see Catafago's Arabic Dictionary) have functed the Yahüh [7], 7, or Yahovah of the Hebrews, is identical with the ejaculation of the Muslim devotes, Yā Hū, "O Hel" (i.e God) Al-Baizāwi says the word Hū (better Huwa), ie. HE (God), may be the Ismu 'l-A'; 2am, or Exalted Name of the Almighty, especially as it occurs in two of the verses of the Qur'an indicated by Muhammad, namely, Sūrahs in 256, in 1 [Huwa, GOD]

JEREMIAH Arabic Armiyā (ارسم))
The prophet is not mentioned in the Qur'an, but Muslim historians say he was contemporary with Ma'add, the son of 'Adnan, the renowned ancestor of Muhammad The Kātibu 'l-Wāqidī says "God watched over 'Adnan's son Ma'add, who was by the command of the Lord taken by Armiyā and Abrakhā (Jeremish and Beruch) into the land of Herram and nurtured sately" According to the Ghyāgu 'l-Lughah, he is the same as al Khir [AL-KHIZE.]

JERUSALEM Arabic al-Basiu 'l-Muqaddas (اليب المقدس), "the Hoiv House," or Basiu 'l-Maqdus (اليت المقدس), "the House of the Sanctuary ', Aurashalim (الرهايم); البين (الرهايم), se Aelia Capitolina

In the Qur'an Jerusalem is never mentioned by name, and in the Traditions and other Muslim works, it is always called al-Battu 'l-Muqadous, "the Holy House," as referring to the Temple of Jerusalem, or lived. The allusions to it in the Qur'an, are as follows—

Surah 11 55 (where God, after giving the manna and quails, is represented no saying to the children of Isrsel) "Enter the city and eat therefrom as plentifully as ye wish "Al-Baixāwi the commentator says this city was the the Baita'l-Maqdia (Jerusalem), or Aribā (Jaracha)

or Ariba (Jericho)
Sûrah ii 261 "Like him who passed by a city when it was desolate, and as he walked over its roofs said, 'How will God revive this after its destruction?" Commentators say Elias or al-Kharr visited the city of Jerusalem after its destruction by Nebuchad-

Surah xxx opens with a reference to the Persians conquering Syria and taking Jeru-

In Sûrah xvii 1, Muhammad is represented as having taken his flight from Makkah to Jerusalem "Celebrated be the praises of Him who by night took his servant from the Masndu "Laram (the Sacred Mosque) to the Masndu "Laga" (the Remote Mosque), the precinct of which we have blessed"

And in Surah I. 40, one of the signs of the approach of the last day will be "The orier (to prayer) shall cry from a near place" (t.e. a place from which all men shall hear) Husain says this "near place" is the Temple at Jerusalem

A curious account of Jerusalem and its temple, the Masjidu 1-Aqsa, or Distant Mosque (so called because it is a distant object of migrimage), has been written by Jalalu 'd-din as-Suyūti, one of the commentators on the Qur'an, known as the Jalalan. It was written in the year A.H. 848, A.D. 1444, and the special object of the book appears to be to exalt the merits of Jerusalem as a place of prayer and pilgrimage. [For an account of the Temple, see MASJIDU L-AGEA.] He says Jerusalem is specially honoured as being the scene of the repentance of David and Solomon. The place where God sent His angel to Solomon, announced glad tidings to Zacharias and John, showed David a plan of the Temple, and put all the beasts of the earth and fowls of the air in subjection to him It was at Jeru salem that the prophets sacrificed, that Jesus was born and spoke in his cradle, and it was at Jarusalem that Jesus ascended to heaven, and it will be there that He will again descend Gog and Magog shall subdue ever place on the earth but Jerusalem, and it will be there that God Almighty will destroy them It is in the holy land of Jerusalem that Adam and Abraham, and Isaac and Mary, are burned And in the last days there will be a general flight to Jerusalem, and the Ark and the Shechinah will be again restored to the Temple There will all mankind be gathered at the Resurrection for judgment, and God will enter, entrounded by His angels, into the Holy Temple, when He comes to judge the earth (See Reynolds' Translation, p 16)

The peculiar reference paid to the Sacred Rock (as-Sakhrah) seems to be one of the many instances of afterthought and addition to Islam since the time of Muhammad, Murawiyah seems to have encouraged it in order to direct the affections and fanaticism of his subjects into a new channel, and to withdraw their exclusive attention from Makhah and al Madinah, where the rival family of Ah resided

In the same book there is a desultory account of the taking of Jerusalem by the

Khalifah Umar

After the conclusion of the battle of Yarmük (Hieromax), the whole army of the Muslims marched into the territory of Palestine and Jordan. Then they closely besieged the city The conquest was attended with difficulty until the arrival of the Khalifah 'Umar with four thousand horse He came upon the holy place on the eastern side, and than encircled the city. They fought for a long time, until at last the inhabitants aent a party to the walls with a flag of truce, asking for a purior. The Patriarch (Sophronus) then demanded the safe conduct of a messenger to 'Umar. The envoy came without hindrance and requested 'Umar to make peace and to accept tribute.

Jalain 'd-din gives a copy of the treaty which the Mushims compelled the people of Jerusalem to sign It reads as follows —

"In the name of God, the Merciful and Compassionate! This is the writing from the Christians of the Hely City to 'Umar ibn al-

Chattab, the Commander of the Faithful When you came down upon us, we asked of you a capitulation for ourselves and our pos sessions, and our children, and the people of our religion, and we have stipulated with you, that we shall not be polluted by interruption in our places of worship, or whatever chapels, or churches, or cells, or monestones of monks, may be therein, and that no one shall live therein who may have the impress of Muslims (by long residence), and that we will not prohibit the Muslims from entering them, oy night or by day, and that we will open the gates wide to passengers and to travellers, and if any Muslim passing he shall take up his lodging with us three nights, we shall give him food, and not entertain in our churches a spy, nor conceal him unknown to the Muslims and not teach our children the Qur'an and not publicly exhibit the 1950cating or Christian religion, and not beg my one to embrace it, and not hinder autone of our relations from entering the Muslim ielgren if he will, and that we should honcur the Muslims and make much of them and place them in our assemblics, if amone of them will, and give them the chief seats, and not imitate them in our dress, neither in girdles, nor in the turban, nor the shipper nor the parting of the hair, and never write in their language, nor call ourselves by their surnames, and that we should never ride upon great saddles, nor suspend our swords by belts, and never accept a ms (the bow, sword, and club), nor carry them with us and that we should never engrave upon our signet-rings in the Arabic language and that we should not sell wine, and that we should shave the front of our heads and the up cur dress, wherever we may be and not wear wide girdles at our waist, and that we should never publicly exhibit the cross upon our churches, nor expose our crosses nor ever mecribe them in the path of the Muslims nor in their market places and never strike our bells the (quick) stroke ner raise our voices over the dead, not publicly expose the lights, or anything else, in the roads and markets of the Muslims, and never come near them with our dead, and never receive any slave who has drawn upon bimself familiarity with Muslims, and never look upon their in their houses

We learn moreover, from the same autho rity, as follows —

"When Umai ratified the treaty, he added thereto - And that we will not strike any one of the Muslims We stipulate this with you for ourselves and the people of our reli gion, and we accept these terms of capitulation and if we subsequently violate a point of that which we have stipulated, upon our hves be it, and let there be no faith with us and may it he allowed you to do to us what ever is lavful against rebellions and revolting subjects (In t of Jerusalem, by Jalalu 'd-dm, Reynolds' Translation)

There were within the city 12,000 Greeks and 50,000 natives and the Khalifah 'Umar insisted that all the Greeks depart within three days, and that the natives should pay tribute Five dinars were imposed upon the rich, four upon the middle classes, and three upon the lower classes, very old and very young persons paid nothing

When Umar entered the Holy City, his first object was to find the Sacred Rock (as-Sukhrah), the site of the Masjidu 'l-Aqsa, to which Muliammad said he was carried on Buraq on the night of the Miraj [MIRAJ], and he therofore requested the Patriarch to direct They first want to the him to the spot Church of the Resurrection, and the Patriaich said, 'This is the Mosque of David." But Uman said, "Thou hast spoken falsely, for the Apostle of Grd (Mnhammad) described tne place to me, and it was not like this" They then went to the church on Zion, and the Pririarch said, ' This is the Mosque of David" But 'Umar said, ' Thou hast spoken fairely And in this manner the Patria took 'Umur to every church in the city And in this manner the Patriarch last they came to a gate, which is now called Balu'l Munamn ad, or the Gate of Muham mid, and clening away the fifth on the steps they came to a narrow passage, and the Khahian, crooping on his knees came to the central sewer Here standing up, 'Umai looked at the rick (as Sakhrah) and then exciaimed, By Ihm in whose hand is my life, this is the place which the Apostle of God (upon whom he peace and blessing) dea ribed to us" 'Umar then ordered a mosque to be built thereon And Abdu 'l-Mairk ibu Marwan built the mesque of the Baitu 1-Muquddas (now known as the Mosque of 'Umar) He spent upon it the produce of seven years tax upon Egypt. He began it in A.H 69 and inshed it in A H 72

Some authority quoted by Jalaiu 'd-din says the Holy City did not cease to be in the hands of the Mushma from its surrender to Umar until the year A.H 491, when it was taken by the Franks, who killed therein a vast number of Muslims in the space of seven days In the Masjidu l-Aqsa alone, they killed 70 000 and they took from as-Sakhrah the ressols of gold and silver and the wealth which was preserved in strong boxes "But" ho adds Salahu 'd-din (Saladin) was raised up for he complete deliverance of the Holy City for he was the most renowned of Lions.

and the very brightness of Fire

(Tor a further account of the taking of the city by Saladin, see Re molds translation of Jelalu 'd-din's History of the Temple of Jerusalem, p 199)

A breef outline of the History of Jerusalem from the Time of Christ

3. The crucifixion, death resurrection, and ascension of Jesus Christ at Jerusalem

4.3. St Paul's first visit to Terusalem after his conversion to Christianity

69 Takon by fitus

186 The Emperor Hadrian bestows on the city the name of Aelia CapitolinaA.D. (This name is used by Jalah 'd-din in his book, A.D 1444)

386. Jerusalem under Christian rule, the Murtyrion and the Church of the Resurrection built

614 The city invested and taken by the Persians under Chosroes II (See Qur'an, Sürah xxx )

The era of the flight of Muhammad

The Emperor Heraclius enters Jeru 628 salem in triumph

687 The patriarch Sophionius surrenders the Holy City to the Khalifah 'Umai Liberty of worship secured to the Christians in churches which already existed, but they are prohibited the erection of new churchos mosque built on the reputed site of Jacob's vision, now known as the mosque of 'Umar Said to be on the site of the temple called by Muslims Massidu I Aqsa, the Remote Mosque or as Sakhrah the Rock

800 Ambassadors sont by the Emperor Charlomagno to distribute alms in the Holy City The Khalifah Hai in ar-Rashid sends back as a present to the Emperor the keys of Calvary and the Holy Sepulchre

820 Held for a time by the rebel chief Tamum Abu Harab

Falls into the hands of the Fatimate 969 Khalifah Mu'izz The Church of the Holv Sepulchie burnt

The pilgrimage of Robert of Nor 1035 mandy

The pilgrimage of Lastbert of Cam 1054

1065 The pilgimage bishops

Jerusalem pillaged by the nmv of 1077 Malik Shah

1084 The Turkoman chief Urtok becomes rules of the Holy City The Chris tions suffer

The city retaken by the Fatimate 1098Khalifah

40,000 Crushders appear before it-1099 walls The city taken by the Cru saders 40 000 Mushims slain God frey of Bouillon made king (Fer eighty teas the city remained in the hands of the Christians )

Retaken by Saladin (Salahu d din) 1187 the Muslim general

Coded to the Christ ans by viitue of a 1219 treaty with the Emperor Frederick

1289 Taken by the Mushims

Again ceded to the Christians 1243

The Christians defeated at Gaza and Jerusalem occupied by the 1244 Muslims

Nominally annexed to the kingdom of 1277 Sicily

Becomes part of the Empire of the Ottoman Sultan Selim I

Sultan Sulaimen I builds the present 1542. walls

A D 1832. Muhammad 'All Pashs of Egypt takes the city

1840 Restored to the Sultan of Turkey [AS-SAKHRAH, MASJIDU 'L-AQSA.]

Arabic 'Isd 'l-JESUS CHRIST Musih (عيسى المسيح) In the Quran, the Lord Jesus Christ is spoken of under the following names and titles .

(1) 'Isā (هيسي), " Tesus " Al-Baizāwī says it is the same as the Hebrew Ishu. (اليشوع), and derived from al-ayes, " white mingled with red,' without however explainmg this derivation

(') Isa alm Maryam (מינים אנ), "lesue the son of Mary," from whom He was born by the lower of God

(3) At M the ( Limit), 'the Messiah"

Turah in 40 'His name shall be Messiah Запио Al-Kamalan, the commentators, say he is called al-Masih either because he was both blessed and anounted by the angel Gabriel, or because whomsoever Jesus touched wis healed

(4) Kalmain 'llāh (كلمة ), "the Word of Ged' Smah iv 169 His word" Husain save by this expression is meant he who was horn it 'he express flat of God (Surah xix. 36 ' He says only to it BE and it is ")

(5) Qaulu /-Haqq (قرل الحق) "The Wo d of Truth' Surah xix 35 Some commentators take the expression gaulu 'Ihalf as I ferring to the statement made being the word of truth,' whilst others take it as a cferring to Christ Himself, "The Word of Truth

(6) Rühun min Allah (all o ), "A Spirit from God virah iv 169 "A Spirit from Him Al Baizawi says it is a spirit which proceeded in the frod. The title Ruhu 'liah is the special habinan for Jesus Christ LHET- J

(رسول الله), "The Merenger of food' bursh iv 169 It is the same title as Muhammad assumed for him self, if the Prophet, or Apostle, or Messenger of God

(8, المند الله), 'The Servant of od" الله عند 15 'Verily, I am the ser ant of soil

(ع) \abumu lāh (البي الله), 'The Prophet of God Saral xxx 81 'He hath made me a Prophet '

(10) Wajihun fi 'd-dunya wa 'l-ākhirah (وجية في الدنيا والاخرة), 'Illustrious in this world and in the next," namely, as al-Baixāwī explains it in this world as a Prophet, in the next as an intercessor " Sursh in 40

In order to present the somewhat incoherent nariative of the Qur'an in a systematic form, we shall urange its history of the Lord lesus into (1) The Annunciation of the Virgin, (2) The Birth of Josus, (3) His Miracles, (4) His Mis, on, (3) H.s Crneillxion, (6) His Divinity and Sinlesoness, (7) The Tranty, (8) His Second Coming (as taught in the Traditions), (9) His Exaltation in Heaven. From a perusal of these selections it will be seen that Muhammad taught that Jeaus was miraculously born of the Virgin Mary, who was sister of Aaron and the daughter of 'Imran, near the trunk of a palm tree That the Jews charged the Virgin with being unchaste, but the babe, speaking in his cradle, vindicated his mother's That Jesus performed muracles, giving life to a clay figure of a bird, healing the blind, curing the leper, quickening the dasd, and bringing down a table from heaven "as a festival and a sign" That he (Jesus) was specially commissioned as the Apostle or Prophet of God to confirm the Law and to reveal the Gospel That he proclaimed his mission with many manifest signs, being strengthened by the Holy Spirit That he foretold the advent of another Prophet, whose name should be Ahmad That the Jows intended to crucify him, but God deceived them, for they did not crucify Jesus, but only his likeness That he is now in one of the stages of celestial bliss That after he left this earth his disciples disputed amongst themselves, some calling him a God, and making him one of a Trinity of the "Father, the Mother and the Son" That he will come again at the last day, and will slay Antichrist, kill all the swine, break the Cross, remove the poll-tax from the infidels. That he will reign as a just king for forty-five years, marry, and have children, and die and be buried near Muhammad at al-Madinah, between the graves of Abu Bakr and 'Umar

I — The Annunciation of the Virgin

Surah iii 37-48 "And remember when the angels said, 'O Mary' verily hath God chosen thee, and purified thee, and chosen thee above the women of the worlds' O Mary! be devout towards thy Loid, and prostrate thyself, and bow down with those who bow This is one of the announcements of things unseen by thee To thes, O Muhammad' do we reveal it, for thou wast not with them when they cast lots with reeds which of them should rear Mary, nor wast thou with them when they disputed about it Remember when the angel said, 'O Mary' Verily God announceth to thee the Word from Him His name shall be, Messiah Jesus the son of Mary illustrious in this world, and in the next, and one of those who have near acress to God, and he shall speak to men alike when in the oradle and whon grown up, and he shall be one of the just' She said, How, O my Lord! shall! have a son when man hath not touched me?' He said, 'Thus God will create what He will, when He decreeth a thing, He only saith, "Be," and it is ' And He will teach him the Book, and the Wisdom. and the Law, and the Evangel and he shall be an spostle to the chilien of Israel

Sürah xix 16-21: "And make mention in the Book, of Mary, when she went apart from her family, eastward, and took a veil to shroud herself from them and Wa sent Our spirit to her, and he took before her the form of a perfect man. She said 'I fly for refuge from thee to the God of Mercyl II thou fearest Him, begone from ma.' He said 'I am only a messenger of thy Lord, that I may bestow on thee a holy son.' She said 'How shall I have a son, when man hath never touched me? and I am not unchaste! He said 'So shall it be. Thy Lord hath said "Easy is this with me, and we will make him a sign to mankind, and a mercy from us. For it is a thing decreed"!"

[In the earlier part of Sürah iii the Virgin Mary is spoken of as the daughter of 'Imrān. Commentators say that 'Imrān died before Mary was born. In the traditions it is stated if that the only two persons born into the world who have not been touched of the Devil are Mary and her son Jesus "Thus teaching not only the Immaculate Conception of Mary, but also of her mother "When she went eastward 'Hussin says, she went out of her house in an eastward direction, in order to perform hor ablutions, when Gabriel appeared to her ]

II -The Birth of Jesus

Surah ziz 22-34 "And she conceived him, and retired with him to a far-off place And the threes came upon her by the trunk of a palm She said Oh, would that I had died ene thus, and been a thing forgotten, forgotten quite! And one cried to her from below her 'Grieve not thou, thy Lord hath provided a streamlet at thy feet -And shake the trunk of the palm-tree toward thee it will drop fresh ripe dates upon thee Eat then and drink, and be of cheerful eye and shouldst thou see a man, say,-Verily, I have vowed abstinence to the God of mercy — To no one will I speak this day 'Then came she with the babe to her people, bearing him They said, 'O Mary' now hast thou done a strange thing! O sister of Aaron! father was not a man of wickedness, nor un-chaste thy mother' And she made a sign to them, pointing towards the babe. They said, 'How shall we speak with him who is in the cradle, an infant?' It said, 'Verily, I am the servant of God, He hath given me the Book and He hath made me a prophet, and He hath made me blessed wherever I may be, and hath enjoined me prayer and almagiving so long as I shall hvs, and to be dutiful to her that bare me and he hath not made me proud, dopraved. And the peace of God was on me the day I was born, and will be the day I shall dre, and the day I shall be raised to life."

Surah xxin 52 "And we appointed the Son and his Mother for a sign, and we prepared an abode in a lofty spot, quiet and watered with springs"

[Professor Wahl understands this last verse to refer to Paradise, but the Muslim commentators all refer it to the place of abodo, and al-Baizāwī and Husain say it was either in Jerusalem, or Damascus, or Ramleh! Husain says Jesus was born in Bethiehem. The expression, "O sister of Acron," as applied to the Virgin Mary, suggests an anachronism of some consequence, but the commentators get over the difficulty The Kamalan say it is a figurative expression implying that she was pure and righteous like a sister of Aaron But al-Barsawi says it means that she was of the tribe of Aaron. European authors suggest that there was a confusion between Miriam the Virgin and Miriam the sister of Moses Al-Baixawi says "The palm to which she fled, that she might lean on it in her travail, was a withered trunk, without any head or verdure, and this happened in the winter season, notwithstanding which, it miraculously supplied her with fruits for her refreshment, as is mentioned immediately" Mr Sale says "It has been observed, that the Mohammedan account of the delivery of the Virgin Mary very much resembles that of Latons, as described by the poets, not only in this circumstance of their laying hold on a palm-tree (though some say Latons embraced an olive-tree, or an olive and a palm, or else two laurels), but also in that of their infants speaking, which Apollo is fabled to have done in the womb." (See Homer, Hymn. in Apoll , Callimach, Hymn in Delum )

III -The Miracles of Jesus

Sürah m 43-46 "And He will teach him the Book, and the Wisdom, and the Law, and the Evangel, and he shall be an apostle to the children of Israel 'Now have I come, he well say, 'to you with a sign from your Out of clay will I make for you, as it Lord were, the figure of a bird and I will breathe into it, and it shall become, by God's leave, a bird. And I will heal the blind, and the leper, and by God's leave will I quicken the dead, and I will tell you what ye eat, and what ye store up in your houses! Truly in this will be a sign for you, if ye are believers ' And when Jesus perceived unbelief on their part, He said, 'Who my helpers with God''. The apostles said, 'We will be God's helpers! We believe in God, and bear thou witness that we are Muslims O our Lord! we believe in what thou hast sent down, and we follow the apostle, write us up, then, with those who bear witness to him ""

[The commentators al-Jalalan say Jesus made for his disciples a bat, for it is the most perfect of birds in make, and it flew while they looked at it, but when it had gone out of their sight, it fell down dead. That he cured in one day fifty thousand persons, and that he raised Lasarus ('Azar) from the dead also Shem, the son of Noah, who had been dead 4,000 years, but he died immediately, also the son of an old woman, and the daughter of a tax-collector.]

Stirah v 112-115 "Remember when the Apostles said 'O Jesus, Son of Mary' is thy Lord able to send down a furnished table to us out of Heaven?' He said 'Fear God if ye be believers' They said 'We desire to eat therefrom, and to have our hearts assured, and to know that thou hast indeed spoken truth to us, and to be witnesses thereof' Jesus, Son of Mary, said 'O God, our Lord! send down a table to us out of Heaven, that it may become a recurring festival to us, to the first of us and to the last of us and a sign from thee, and do thou nourish us, for thou art the best of nourishers.' And God said 'Verily, I will cause it to descend unto you, but whoever among you after that shall disbelieve, I will surely chastise him with a chastisement wherewith I will not chastise any other creature'"

[Mr Sale, in his commentary on this miracle, says (quoting from al-Baizāwī) -"This miracle is thus related by the commentators Jesus having, at the request of his followers, asked it of God, a red table immediately descended in their sight, between two clouds, and was set before them Whereupon he rose up, and having made the ablution, prayed, and then took off the cloth which covered the table, saying, 'In the name of God, the best provider of food!' What the provisions were, with which this table was furnished, is a matter wherein the expositors are not agreed One will have them to be nine cakes of bread and nine fishee, another bread and fiesh, another, all sorts of food, except flesh another, all sorts of food, except bread and flesh, another, all except bread and fish, another, one fish, which had the taste of all manner of food, and another, fruits of paradise, but the most received tradition is, that when the table was uncovered, there appeared a fish ready dressed, without scales or prickly fins, dropping with fat, having salt placed at its head, and vinegar at its tail, and round it all sorts of herbs, except leeks, and five loaves of bread, on one of which there were clives, on the second, honey, on the third, butter, on the fourth, cheese, and on the tifth, dried flesh They add, that Jesus, at the request of the apostles, showed them another miracle, by restoring the fish to life, and causing its scales and fins to return to 1 at which the standers by, being affrighted, he caused it to become as it was before that one thousand three hundred men and women, all afflicted with bodily infirmities or poverty, ate of these provisions, and were satisfied, the fish remaining whole as it was at first, that then the table flew up to heaven in the sight of all, and everyone who had partaken of this food were delivered from their infirmities and misfortunes, and that it continued to descend for forty days together, at dinner-time, and stood on the ground till the sun declined, and was then taken up into the clouds some of the Mohammedan writers are of opinion that this table did not really descend but that it was only a parable, but most think the words of the Koran are plain to the contrary A further tradition is, that several men were changed into awine for disbelieving this miracle, and attributing it to magic art, or, as others pretend, for stealing some of the victuals from off it

IV -The Mission of Jesus

Sürah lvn. 26,27 "And of old sent we Noah and Abraham, and on their seed conferred the gift of prophecy, and the Book, and some of them we guided aright, but many were evil doers. Then we caused our apostles to follow in their footstope, and we caused Jesus the son of Mary to follow them, and we gave him the Evangel and we put into the hearts of those who followed him kindness and compassion but as to the monastic life, they invented it themselves The desire only of pleasing God did we prescribe to thom, and this they observed not as it ought to have been observed but to such of them as beheved gave we their reward, though many of them were perverse "

Sürah v 50, 31 "And in the footsteps of the prophets caused we Jesus, the son of Mary. to follow, confirming the law which was before him and we gave him the Evangel with its guidance and light, confirmatory of the preceding Law, a guidance and warning to those who fear God, -And that the people of the Evangel may judge according to wrat God hath eent down therein And whose will not judge by what God hath sent dowr-such are the perverce "

Surah in 81 "Moreover, to Moses gave we the Book," and we raised up apostles after him, and to Jesus, son of Mart, gave we clear proofs of his mission, and strengthened him by the Holy Spirit So oft then as an apostle cometh to you with that which sour souls desire not, swell ye with pride, and treat some as impostors, and slav others?"

Surah in 254 'Some of the apostles we have endowed more highly than others Those to whom God hath spoken He hath rused to the loftrest grade, and to Jesus the Son of Mary we gave mamfest signs, and we strengthened him with the Holy Spirit And if God had pleased, they who came after them would not have wrangled after the clear signs had reached them But into disputes they fell some of them believed, and some wer infiders, yet if God had pleased they would not have thus wrangled but God duth what he will "

Surah lx1 6 "And remember when Jesus the son of Mary said, 'O children of Israel! of a truth I am God a apostle to you to confirm the law which was given before me, and to announce an apostle that shall come after me whose name shall be Ahmad! But when he (Ahmad) presented himself with clear proofs of his mission, they said, 'This is manifest sorcery!""

Sürah vi. 85 "And Zachariah John, Jesus, and Line all were just persone" Sürah iv 157 "And there shall not be one or the people of the Book but shall believe in him (Jesus) before his doath, and in the day of judgment he shall be a witness against them

Surah ni 44 " And I have come to attest the 'aw which was before me, and to allow you part of that which had been forbiddon you, and I come to you with a sign from your Lord Fear God, then, and obey me, of a trnth God is my Lord, and your Lord Therefore worship Him This is a right This is a right way'

V -The Crucifixion of Jesus

Surah m. 47-50 "And the Jews plotted, and God plotted But of those who plot is God Remember when God said, 'O the beet Jesus! verily I will cause thee to die, and will take thee up to myself and deliver thee from those who believe not, and I will place those who follow thee above those who believe not, until the Day of Resurrection. Then, to me is your return, and wherein ve differ will I docide between you And as to those who believe not, I will chastise them with a terrible chastisement in this world and in the next, and none shall they have to help them' But as to those who believe, and do the things that are right, He will pay them their recompense God loveth not the doers of evil"

Surah iv 155, 156 And for their unbehef [are the Jews cursed]—and for their having And for their saving, 'Verily we have elain the Messiah Jesus the son of Mary, an Apostle of God' Yet they slew him not, and they crucifica bim not, but they had only his likeness And they who differed about him were in doubt concorning him. No sure know ledge had they at cut mm, but followed only an opinion and they really did not slay him, but God took him up to Himself And God is Mighty, Vise!"

Tale, in his notes on the Quran, says "The person crucified some will have to be a spy that was sent to entrap him, others that it was one Pitian who by the direction of Judas entered in at a window of the house where Jesus was, to kill him and others that it was Judas himself, who agreed with the rulers of the Jews to betray him for thirty pieces of silver, and led those who were sent to take him. They add, that Jesus, after his crucifixion in effigy, was sent down again to the earth to comfort his mother and disciples and acquaint them how the Jews were deceived, and was then taken up a second time into heaven. It is supposed by several that this story was an original in vention of Mohammad's but they are certainly mistaken for several sectaries held the same opinion long before his time Basilidians, in the very beginning of Christianity denied that Christ himself suffered, but [severted] that Simon the Cirenean was cruci h d in his place. The Corinthians before them, and the Carpocratians next (to name no more of those who affirmed Jesus to have been a merc man), did believe the same thing, that it was not himself, but one of his followers, very like him, that was crucibed Photins tells us that he read a book entitled The Journeys of the Apostles, relating the acts of Peter, John, Andrew, Thomas, and Paul, and among other things contained therein this was one, that Christ was not crucified, but another in his stead, and that therefore he laughed at his crucifiers, or those who thought they had crucified him." The "Cross of Christ" is the missing bink in the Muslim's creed, for we have in Islam the great anomaly of a religion which rejects the doctrine of a sacrifice for sin, whilst its great central feast is a Feast of Sucrefice. It is related by the Muslim historian al-Wāqidī, that Muḥammad had such repugnance to the sign of the cross that he destroyed everything brought to his house with that figure upon it.]

VI -- Divinity and Sonship of Christ, and His Sinleseness

Surah xix 35, 36 "That is Jesus the son of Mary, the word of truth (*Qaulu'!-Haqq), whereon we do dispute! God could not take to Himself a son! Celebrated be His praise! When He decrees a matter He only says to it, 'BE,' and it is, and verily God is my Lord and your Lord, so worship Him this is the right way. But the sacts have differed among themselves"

Surah in. 51, 52 "These signs, and this wise warning do we rehearse to thee Verily, Jesus is as Adam in the sight of God He created Him of dust He then said to him,

Be'-and he was'

Sürah xlin 57-65 "And when the Son of Mary was set forth as an instance of deline power, lo' thy people cried out for joy thereat And they said, 'Are our gods or is he the better?' They put this forth to thee only in the spirit of dispute Yea, they are a contentious people Jesus is no more than a servant whom we favoured, and proposed as an instance of durine power to the children of Israel, and if we pleased, we could from vourselves bring forth Angels to succeed you on earth and he shall be a sign of the last hour doubt not then of it and follow ye me this is the right way, and let not Satan turn you aside from it, for he is your manifest foe And when Jesus came with manifest proofs, he said, ' Now am I come to you with wisdom, and a part of those things about which ve are at variance I will clear up to you fear ve God, therefore, and obey me Verily, God is my Lord and your Lord wherefore, wor-ship ye him this is a right way. But the different parties fell into disputes among themselves , but woe to those who thus transgressed, because of the punishment of an afflictive day ! "

Sursh ix 30 • The Jews say Ears is the Son of God, and the Christians say that the Messish is the Son of God that is what they say with their months imitating the sayings of those who misbelieved before—

God fight them !- How they lie !"

Surah iii 72,73 "And some truly are there among them who torture the Scriptures with their tengues, in order that ye may suppose it to be from the Scripture, yet it is not from the Scripture. And they say, 'This is from God', yet it is not from God and they utter a lie against God, and they know they do so It beseemeth not a man, that God should give him the Scriptures and the Wisdom, and the gift of prophecy, and that then he should say to his followers, 'Be ye worshippers of me, as well as of God', but rather, 'Be ye perfect in things pertaining to God, since ye know the Scriptures, and have studied deep."

Surah v 19 "Infidels now are they who say, 'Verily God is the Messiah Ibn Maryam (son of Mary)! Sax And who could aught obtain from God, if he chose to destroy the Massiah Ibn Maryam, and his mother, and all who are on the earth together?'"

There is a remarkable Hadis related by Anas, which inadvertently proves that, whilst Muhammad admitted his own sinfulness, as wall as that of other prophets, he could not charge our Lord with sin. It is as follows 'The Prophet of God said, 'In the Day of Resurrection Muslims will not be able to move, and they will be greatly distressed, and will sav, "Would to God that we had asked Him to create some one to intercede for us, that we might be taken from this place, and be delivered from tribulation and sorrow? Then these men will go to Adam, and will env, 'Thou art the father of all men, God created thee with His hand, and made thee a dweller in Paradiss, and ordered His angels to prostrate themselves before thee, and taught thee the names of all things Ask grace for us we pray thee!" And Adam will say, 'I am not of that degree of eminence you suppose, for I committed a sin in eating of the grain which was forbidden. Go to Noah the Prophet, he was the first who was sent by God to the unbelievers on the face of the earth" Then they will go to Noah and ask for intercession, and he will say, "I am not of that degree which ve suppose" And he will remember the sin which he committed in asking the Lord for the deliverance of his son (Hūd), not knowing whether it was a right request or not and he will say. 'Go to Abraham who is the Friend of God." Then they will go to Abraham, and he will say, "I am not of that degree which ye sup-And he will remamber the three occasions upon which he told lies in the world, and he will say, "Go to Moses, who is the servant to whom God gave His law, and whom He allowed to converse with Him " And they will go to Moses, and Moses will say, "I am not of that degree which ye suppose' And he will remember the am which he committed in slaying a man, and he will say, "Go to Jesus, He is the servant of God, the Apostle of God, the Spirit of God, and the Word of God" Then they will go to Jesus, and He will say, "Go to Muhammad who is a servant, whose sins God has forgiven both first and last" Then the Muslims will come to me, and I will ask permission to go into God's presence and intercede for them (Mishkat, book xxin ch xii)

[In dealing with Muhammadans the Christian missionary must not treat their system as though the teachings of Islam were precisely those of the modern Socialism (we speak of the modern Socialism, (we speak of the modern Socialism, for both the Social, uncle and nephew, admitted the miraculous conception of Christ, and said he ought to be worshipped) Islam admits of the miraculous conception of Christ, and that He is the "Word" which God "conveyed

inte Mary", and whilst the other five great prophets are but "the chosen," "the preacher," "the friend," "the converser with," and "the messenger of "God, Jesus is admitted to be the "Spirit of God" He is the greatest miracle worker of all the prophets, and whilst Muhammad is dead and buried, and saw corruption, all Muslim divines admit that Jesus "saw no corruption," and still hves with a human body in Paradise

Moreover, it is said in the Hadis that the Haqiqatu'l-Muhammadiyah or the Nur-t-Muhammad, "the essence, or light of Muhammad," was created before all things which were made by God The pre-existence of the divine "Word which was made flesh and dwelt amongst us" is not, therefore, an idea

VII -The Trenty

foreign to the Muslim mind ]

Sürah v 76-79 "They misheheve who say, 'Verily, God is the Messiah, the son of Marv but the Messiah said, 'O children of Israel! worship God, my Lord and your Lord, verily, he who associates aught with God, God hath forbidden him Paradise, and his resort is the Fire, and the unjust shall have none to help them. They misbelieve who say, 'Verily, God is the third of three, for there is no God but one, and if they do not desist from what they say there shall touch those who misbelieve amongst them grievous woe they not turn again towards God and ask pardon of Him? for God is forgiving and merciful' The Messiah, the son of Mary, is only a prophet! Prophets before him have passed away, and his mother was a confessor. they used both to eat food See how we turn saide!" Strah IV 169 "O ya people of the Book ! overstep not bounds in vour religion and of God, speak only truth The Messiah, Jesus son of Mary, is only an apostle of God, and His Word which he conveyed into Mary, and a Spirit from Him Believe, therefore, in God and His apostles, and say not, 'Three' (te there is a Trinity)-torbear-it will be better for you. God is only one God! Far be it from His glory that He should have a son! His, whatever is in the Heavens, and whatever is in the Earth ' And God is a sufficient Guardian.

explain to them the signs, yet eee how they Surah v 116, 117 "And when God shall suy - O Jesus, Son of Mary hast thou said unto mankind—"Take me and my mother as two Gods, bende God?"' He shall say—'Glory be unto Thee! it is not for me to say that which I know to be not the truth, had I said that, verily thou wouldest have known it Thou knowest what is in me, but I know not what is in Thee, for Thou wall knowest things unseen! I spake not to them aught but that which thou didst bid me-" Worship God, my Lord and your Lord", and I was a witness against them so long as I was amongst them but when Thou didst take me away to Thyself Thon wert the watcher over them, for Thou art witness over all'

[From the text of the Qur'an it appears that Muhammad thought the Holy Trinity of the Christians consisted of the Father, the Son, and the Virgin, and historians tell us that there existed in Arabia a sect called Collyridians, who considered the Virgin Mary a divine person, and offered in worship to her a cake called Collyris, it is, therefore, not improbable that Muhammad obtained his perverted notion of the Holy Trimty from the existence of this sect From the exthe existence of this sect From the expression "they both ate food," we must conclude that Muhammad had but a sensuous idea of the Trinity in Unity, and had never been instructed in the orthodox faith with reference to this dogma

Al-Baizāwī (A. H. 686), in his commentary on Sürah iv 169, says "Say not there are Three," that is "Do not say there are three Gods," namely, Allah and al-Massh and Maryam, or "De not say God is Three," meaning that there are Three Aquinm (and or Essences Holy Spirit), and interpreting it thus Ab, the Zat or Essence Ibn, the Ita or Knowledge, and Ruhu 'L Qud, the Hayat or Lafe of

God

Husem (A.E. 900) quotes al-Bazawi, and offers no opinion of his own

The Jalalan (A.H. 911) say "Three" means Aliah and 'Isa and his Mother

The word generally used by Muhammadan writers for the Trinity in at-Taskis (التغليث) [TRINITY]

VIII -The Second Coming of Jesus

The Qur'an has no definite teaching on the subject, but the Traditions have. See Mishkatu'l Masabih, book xxiii ch. vi.)

Abu Hurairah relates that the Prophet said, "I swear by God, it is near, when Jesus, con of Mary, will descend from the heavens upon your people, a just king, and he will break the cross, and will kill the swine, and will semove the poll-tax from the unenfranchised, and there will be great wealth in his time, so much that nobody will accept of it, and in that time, one prostration in prayer will be better than the world and everything in it

And Abu Hurairah said, "If ye doubt about this coming to pass, then read this verse (Surah iv 157), and there shall not be one of those who have received the Scriptures who shall not believe in Him (Jesus) before His death "

Abu Hurairah again relates that the Prophet said, "I swear by God, Jesus son of Mary will come down, a just king, he will kill the swine and break the cross, and remove the poll-tax from the unenfranchised, and camels will not be rode in his time on account of the immensity of wealth, and man's being in want of nothing, and verily enmity, hatred and mairce will go from man, and verily, Jeens will call people to wealth, and nobody will take it'

Jabur relates that the Prophet said, " A section of my people will always fight for the true religion, and will be victorious, unto the resurrection. Then Jesus son of Mary will come down, and the prince of my people will say to him, 'Come in front, and say prayers for us.' And he will say to him, 'I shall not act as Imam, because some of you are princes over others' And Jesus will say this from respect to my people."

'Abdu'lläh ibn'Amr relates that the Prophet said "Jesus will come down to the earth, and will marry and have children, and will stay on the earth forty-five years and then die, and be buried in my place of burial, and I and Jesus shall rise up from one place between Abū-Bakr and 'Umsr' [HUJRAH] [HUJRAH]

IX -His Exaltation in Heaven

There is some difference of opinion as to where Jesus Christ now is All Muelim divines agree that "he saw no corruption, but they differ as to the exact stage of celestial bliss in which he resides in the body According to a tradition by Qatadah (Meshkat, book xxiv oh vn), Muhammad said on the night of the Mi'raj or celestial journey be saw John and Jesus in the second heaven. The Jalalan agree with this tradition But in the commentary known as the Jam'u'l Bayan (vol 1 656) it is said he is in the third region of bliss whilst some say he is in the fourth

X -The Disciples of Jesus

The disciples of Jesus are called in the Qur'an al Hawariyan, a word which seems to be derived from an Ethiopic root, signifying " to send " but which al-Bazzāwi says means "white ones," and that it was given to the disciples of Jesus either because they were holy and smoore men or because they wore white clothes It is noticeable that not one of the twelve apostles is mentioned by name in the Qur'an. In the story told of disciples visiting the city (of Antioch), three disciples are mentioned, and commentators say they were John, Jude and Simon [See Sürah XXXVI. 13, 19-HARIB THE CARPANTER.] John the Baptist and his father Zacharias are mentioned (Sürahs xix 7, xxi 90)

JETHRO. SHU'AIB

JEWELS Arabic Jauhar (جوهر), pl wahrr According to the Hidayah a thief is liable to suffer amputation of the hand for stealing jewels, such as a ring set with emerald, ruby, or chrysolite, as such are rare articles, and are not held to be of an indifferent nature, neither are they undesirable (Vol n p 93)

A sellem sale [BH LDK], or a sale in trust, of jewels and marine shells, is not lawful, because the unities of these vary in their value (Vol. ii p 539) In the partition of property, jewels must not be divided by the Qazi, but by mutual arrangement in the family, because of the great difference in the actual value of fewels (Vol iv 18.)

JEWS, JUDAISM. The Jews are mentioned in the Quran and Traditions under the names of Yahūdī (عودى), pl. Yahūd, and Banu Isra'ul (بنو اسرائيل), " Children of Israel " No distinction is made between Jews and Israelites They are acknowledged to be a people in possession of a divine book, and are called Allu 'l-Kıtāb, or " people of the book " Moses is their special law-giver (Abraham not having been a Jew, but a "Hanly Muslim"). they are a people highly-favoured of God, but are said to have perverted the meaning of Scripture, and to have called Ezra "the Son of God' They have an intense hatred of all true Muslims, and, as a punishment for their sins, some of them in times past had been changed into apes and swine, and others will have their hands tied to their necks and he cast into the Fire at the Day of Judgment

The following are the selections from the Qur'an relating to the Jews

Sürah n 116 "O children of Israel! remember my favour wherewith I have favoured you, and that high above all mankind have I raised you."

Surah v 48, 49 "Verily, we have sent down the law (Tourat) wherein are guidance and light By it did the prophets who professed Islam judge the Jews, and the doctors and the teachers judged by that portion of the Book of God, of which they were the keepers and the witnesses Therefore, O Jews 1 fear not men but fear Me, and barter not away my signs for a mean price! And whose will not judge by what God hath sent down-such are the Infidels And therein have we enacted for them, 'Life for life, an eye for eye, and nose for nose, and ear for ear, and tooth for tooth, and for wounds retaliation' -Whose shall compromise it as alms shall have therein the expistion of his sin, and whose will not judge by what God hath sent down-such are the transgressors

Sûrah ni 60 "Abraham was not a Jew nor yet a Christian He was a Hanif Muslim and not an idolster "

"The Jews say, Ezrs Sürah ix 30 (Uzair) is a son of God', and the Christians say, 'The Messiah is a son of God' Such the saying in their months! They resemble the saying of the Infidels of old! God do battle with them! How are they misgaided!" Sürah vi 147 "To the Jews did we forbid every beast having an entire hoof, and of both bullocks and sheep we forbade them the fat, save what might be on their backs, or their entrails, and the fat attached to the bone With this have we recompensed them, because of their transgression and verily, we are ındeed equitable"

Surahiv 48, 49 "Among the Jews are those who displace the words of their Scriptures, and say, 'We have heard, and we have not obeyed Hear thou, but as one that heareth not and look AT us', perplexing with their tongues, and wounding the Faith by their revilings But if they would say, 'We have heard, and we obey, hear thou, and REGARD us', it were better for them, and more right. But God hath cursed them for their unbelief. Few only of them are believers!"

Surah ii 70-78 "Desire ye then that for your sakes the Jews should believe? Yet a part of them heard the word of God, and then, after they had understood it, perverted it, and knew that they did so And when they fall in with the faithful, they say, 'We believe', but when they are apart one with another, they say, 'Will ye acquaint them with what God bath revealed to you, that they may dispute with you about it in the presence of your Lord?' Understand ve then aim? Know they not that God knoweth what they hide, as well as what they bring to light? But there are illiterates among them who are not acquainted with the Book but with lies only, and have but vague fancies Woe to those who with their own hands transcribe the Book corruptly, and then say, This is from God, that they may sell it for some mean price! Woe then to them for that which their hands have written' and, Woe to them for the gains which they have made!"

Sural v 64-69 "SAY O people of the Book ' do ve not disavow us only because we believe in God, and in what He hath sent down to us, and in what He hath cent down aforetime, and because most of you are doers of all? SAY Can I announce to you any retribution worse than that which awaiteth them with God? They whom God hath cursed and with whom He hath been angry-some of them hath He changed into apes and swine, and they who worship Tagut are in evil plight, and have gone far astray from the right path! When they presented themselves to you they said, We believe', but Infidels they came in unto you, and Infidels they went forth! God well knew what they concealed Many of them shalt thou see hastening together to wickedness and malice, and to eat unlawful things Shame on them for what they have done! Had not their doctors and teachers forbidden their uttering wickedness and their eating unlawful food, had indeed would have been their doings! 'The hand of God,' say the Jews, 'is chained up' Their own hands shall be chained up-and for that which they have said shall they be cursed Nay! outstretched are both His hands! At His own pleasure doos He bestow gifts That which hath been sen, down to thee from thy Lord will surely increase the "ebellion and unbelief of many of them and we have put enmity and hatred between them that shall last till the day of the Resurrection. Oft as they kindle a beacon fire for war shall God quench it! and their aim will be to abet disorder on the earth but God leveth not the abettors of disorder"

Nearly all the leading scripture characters connected with Old Testament history are either mentioned by name in the Qur'an or are referred to in the Traditions and commentaries

(a) In the Qur'an we have Adam (Adam), Ahel (Habu), Cam (Qabil), Enoch (Idru), Noah (Nüh), Abraham (Ibrahīm), Lot (Lut), Isaac (Ishāq), Ishmael (Ismā'il), Jacob (Ya'qūb), Joseph (Yūsuf), Job (Atyūb), Moses (Mūsā), Aaron (Hārun), Korah (Qārūn), Pharaob (Kiraun), Haman (Haman), David (Dā'ud) Goliath (Jālūt), Solomon (Sulaimān)

Saul (Tālūt), Jonah (Yūnas), Elisha (Alyusa')

(b) In the Traditions and in the earliest commentaries on the Qui'an are mentioned Eve (Hawwa') Hagar (Hayar), Nebuchad nezzar (Bukhtnussar) Joshus (Yusha'), Jereminh (Armiya), Isaiah (Sha ya'), Benjamin (Binyamin), Leekiel (Hizqu), Baalam (Bal'am), Damel (Danigal) Surah (Sarah), and many But it is remarkable that after Solomon, there is no mention of the Kings of Israel and Judah

(c) The chief incidents of Jewish history are recorded in the Qur'an with a strange and curious admixture of Rabbinical fable. creation of the world, the formation of Adam and Eve the fall, the expulsion from Eden, Cam's and Abel's sacrifices the death of Abel Noah's preaching the Arr built, the deluge, the tower of Babel, Abraham, the friend of God, his call from idolatry, Isaac the son of promise, Sarah s incredulity, Hagai and Ishmuel, the willingness of Abraham to sacrihee his son, Lot and the cities of the plain, Jacob and the tribes, Joseph sold into Egypt, Potiphar's wife, Joseph tempted, the dreams of the baker and butler, and of the king, Moses, his preservation in infancs, kills an Egyptian, flies to Midian, works miracles in the presence of Pharach, manna from heaven, the giving of the law, Aaron's rod, the golden caif, the passage of the Red Sea Job's patience, Balasm cursing the Israelites, David's psalms, his sin and repentance. Solomon's wisdom, the Queen of Sheba, the building of the temple, Jonali's preaching, his escape from the fish these and many other incidents, evidently taken from the Old Testament and worked up into a narrative with the assistance of Talmudic interpretations, form the chief historical portion of the Qur'an

(d) Many of the doctrines and social precepts of the Qur'an are also from Judaism The Unity of God, the ministry of angels, the inspired law the law of marriage and divorce, domestic slavers, the day of Sacrifice, prayer and ablution the lex talionis, the degrees of affinity the stoning of the adulterer, and many other injunctions, are precisely those of the Mosaic code, with some modifications to meet the requirements of Arabian social life

Whilst, therefore, Mnhammad took little of his religious system from Christianity, he was vastly indebted to Judaism both for his historical narratives and his doctrinos and precepts Islam is nothing more nor less than Judaism plus the Apostleship of Muhammad. The teachings of Jesus form no part of his religious system [CHRISTIANITY]

(e) The Quraish charged Muhammad with want of originality in his revelations even at the end of his career, and when he was uttering his latest Surahs, "they said, as our versee were rehearsed to them— This is nothing but tales of yore'" (Surah vm 81) "And when it was said to them, What is it your Lord sent down? They said, 'Old folk's tales'" (Surah zvi 25.) The Quraish even charged him with having obtained assistance, "They said it is only some mortal who teaches him" And Muhammad admits there was someone who might be suspected of helping him, for he replies, "The tongue of him whom they lean towards is barbarons and this (Qur'an) is plain Arabic" (Surah xv. 105) Hussin, the commentator, in remarking upon this verse, says, "It is related that there was a slave belonging to 'Amr ibn 'Abdı 'lläh al-Hazramı, namod Jabr (and according to some a second slave named Yasar), who need to read the Law and the Gospel, and Mnhammad used, when he passed, to stand and listen"

And the whole construction of the Qur'an bears out the supposition that its subject matter was received orally and worked into poetical Arabic by a man of genius ever he may have heard from the roadings of Jabr and Yasar of the text of the Old and New Testament scriptures, it is very evident that he obtained his explanations from one well versed in Talmudic lore A Jewish Rabbi, Abraham Geiger, in AD 1833, wrote a prize essay in answer to the question put by the university 'Inquiratur in fontes Alco lani sen legis Mihammedica eos, qui ox ludaismo derivandi ant " His essay in reply is entitled, ' Was hat Mohammed aus dem Judenthume aufgenommen? In this trea tise it is clearly demonstrated how much the whole system of lalam is indebted to Talmudic Judaism for its teachings Its nar ratives, its doctrines and its theological terms, are chiefly derived from those of the

The works of Geiger, J M Arnold Hershom, McCaul, Bishop Barclay, Leutsch, Lightfoot Schottgen, Ugolini, Meuschen (which pending a complete translation of the Talmud can be consulted), will, upon comparison with the teachings of the Quran, reveal how entirely Muhammad constructed his religious system on the lines of Talmudic Judaism We are indebted to the late Dr J M Arnold's Islam and christianity, for the following review of the subject, he having largely availed him elf of the facts given in Gerger's celebrated essay, already referred

The seven heavons and the seven earths which are held in the Talmud, have found their way into the Quran During the creation, God's glorious throne was placed in the air upon the water 2 According to the Talmud, " the world is the sixtieth part of the garden, the garden is the sixtieth part of Eden", and Mnhammad states that the breadth of the gardon is that of heaven and earth 3 Both in the Qur'an and Talmud we find seven hells as the appointed abode for the damned, and each hell has seven gates in both documents The entrance of Jahan-

<sup>1</sup> Chagigs, ix 2, <sup>2</sup> Bashi ou Gen, i 2; and Strahs xl 9, xxvii, 26, xxiii 117 lxxxv 15 <sup>3</sup> Thannith, x , Pessshim, xoiv ; and Strah iii.

127 Talmud Eurbin, xix 1 Mairean on Pa xi , and Strah zv 44.

nam is marked, according to the Sukkah, by two date-trees, between which smoke issues. and the Qur'an speaks of a tree in hell [ZAQQUM] of which the damned are to est, and of which many terrible things are related. In the Talmud the prince of hell demands supply for his domain, and a similar request is made in the Qur'an. Between the seven heavens and the seven hells is an informediate place [A'RAF] for those who are too good to be cast into hell and too imperfect to be admitted into heaven. This intermediate This intermediate abode is, however, so narrow, that the conversations of the blessed and the damned on either side may be overheard. Again, the happiness of Paradise [PARADISE] is similarly described in both Tahmud and Qur'an, aiso the difficulty of attaining it. The Tahmud declares that it is as easy for an elephant to enter through the eye of a needle, the Qur'an substituting a camel for an elepment. That the dead live in the night of God is stated in both documents in the same terms, and that there is no admission to the actual presence of the Almighty before the Day of Judgment and the resurrection of the dead The signs of the last day as given in the Qur an are borrowed equally from the Scriptures and the Talmud / [RESURRECTION ]

The lengthened descriptions in the Quran of the future resurrection and judgment are also tinged with a Talmudical colouring That t. several members of the human body shall bear witness against the damned, and that idols shall share in the punishment of their worshippers, is stated in both the Talmud and Quran The time of the last judgment Muhammad declined to fix, resting upon the Jewish or Scriptural sentence, that "one day with God is like a thousand" The Jews, in speaking of the resurrection of the dead, allude to the sending down of rain, the Qur'an also affirms that this means of quickening the dead will be employed 10 Further still the Talmudical idea that the dead will rise in the garments in which they wore buried, likewise has been adopted by Islam " The Jewish opinion was that "all the prophots saw in a dark, but Moses in a clear muror" 12 In the Qur'an, God sends down His angelic messenger, Gabriel, as " the Holy Ghost," with revelations, and this very

<sup>4</sup> Snkkah xxxvii , and Sürahs xxxvii 60 , xliv

43 Cthioth by Eabbi Akibe, vui 1, and Sürah!

' Midrash on Ecoles vii 14, and Surah vii 44-47 * Mushnah Aboth, 1v 17; and Surahs 1x. 38;

nın 26 Sürah vii 38

"Sürahs 1xx 23, kxxxx 27
"Sürahs xxi 104, xxxx 67, xliv 9, xvii. 60, xxx 98 xxx 2, xxvii 89 Compared with Isa xxxv 4, Ezek xxxvii, xxxxx
"Chagiga, xxv , Thaanith xi , and Sürahs xxiv 24, xxxvi 65, xli 19, Sukkah, xxix., and Sürah

24, xxxvi 65, xli 19, Surkan, xxvi 82, and Sürah xxi 98

Ps xc 4, Sanhedrin, xcv 2; and Sürah xxi 46, xxxii 4, Erek xxxvii 13, and Sürah c 9

10 Theanith, at the beginning; and Sürahs vi 96

xxx 49 xxxvi 33, xli 39, xliii 10

11 Sanhedrin, xc 2, Khethubhoth, cxi 2

12 Jebhamoth, xlix, and Sürah xiiii. 50 notion of Gabriel being considered the Spirit of God seems to be borrowed from the Jews.1

Again, the demonology of the Qur'an is chiefly taken from the Talmud Three properties the demons have in common with angels, and three with mon-they have wings like angels, they can fly from one end of the world to the other, and know things to come But do they know future events? No, but The three they listen behind the veil properties in common with men are they assu and drink, indulge in physical love, and die This Jewish idea was adopted in the Quran, and spun out ad libitum, for instance, whilst hetening once to the angelic conversations, they were hunted away with stones Their presence in places of worship is admitted both in the Talmud and the Qur'an, thus it happened that "when the servant of God stood up to invoke Him, the Jims all but pressed on him in the crowd " [GENU] Amongst the moral precepts which are borrowed from the Talmud, we may mention that children are not to obey their parents when the latter demand that which is ovil Prayer may be performed standing, walking, or even riding; devotions may be shortened in argent cases, without committing sin,6 drunken persons are not to ongage in acts of worship, 7 ablutions before prayer are in special cases enforced, but generally required both in the Talmud and the Qur'an; each perm.t the use of sand instead of water [TAYAM MUM], when the latter 19 not to be procured 9. The Talmud prohibits loud and noisy prayers, and Muhammad gives this short injunction -"Cry not in your prayers", 10 in addition to this secret prayer, public worship is equally commended. I ho Shome prayer of the Jons is to be performed "when one is able to distinguish a blue from a white thread, this is precisely the criterion of the com mencement of the fast in the Quran " [RAMAZAN]

The following social precepts are likewise copied from Judaisin a divorced woman must wait three months before marrying again<sup>12</sup>[DIVORCE], mothers are to nurse their children two full years, and the degrees of affinity within which marriages are lawful <sup>13</sup> [MARRIAGE] The historical incidents which Muhammad borrowed from Judaism are embodied, rogardless of the sources from which he gleaned them, and indifferent to all order or system Ignorant of Jewish history, Muhammad appropriates none of the historical

1 Kings xxi
 2 Chagiga xvi
 1, and Sürahs xv
 17, 34; xxxvii
 78, lxxxi
 24 lxvii
 5, xxxvii
 7; lxxii
 9 80rah xxii
 19

* Jebhamoth, vi. 1 and Strah xxix 7

* Berachoth x., and Strahs ii 230, iii 188, x

- 13,

  Mishnab Berschoth, 17 4, and Sürah 17 102

  Berschoth, xxxi 2 and Sürah 17 48

  Mishnah Berschoth, 11 4; and Sürahs iv 46;
- * Berachoth, xivi , and Shrah v 8

  * Berachoth xxxi 2, and Shrah xvii, 110

  ** Mishnah Berachoth, i.2; and Shrah ii 188

  ** Mishnah Jebhamoth, iv 10 and Shrah ii 226

  ** Mishnah Jebhamoth, iv 10 and Shrah ii 226

  ** Talmud Bethaboth, iv 1; and Shraha ii 226, axxi 18; xxiv 31; Joseph , Aniq ii 9

way-marks which determine the great epochs recorded in the Old Testament, but confines himself to certain occurrences in the lives of single individuals At the head of the antediluvian patriarchs stands the primogenitor of the human race. In Surah, ii 28-38 we read, "When thy Lord said to the angels, Verily I am going to place a substitute on earth, they said, Wilt thou place there one who will do evil therein and shed blood? but we celebrate Thy presso and sanctify Thee God answered, Verily I know that which ye know not, and He taught Adam the names of all things, and then proposed them to the angels, and said, Declare unto me the names of these things if ye say truth They answered, Praise be unto Thee, we have no knowledge but what Thou teachest us, for Thou art knowing and God said O, Adam, tell them their WIBB And when he had told them their names names, God said, Did 1 not tell you that I know the secrets of heaven and earth, and know that which ye discover, and that which Let us examine whence the ve conceal? Qur'an obtained this information "When God intended to oreste man, Ho advised with the angels and said unto them. We will make man in our own image (Gen. 1. 26) Then said they, What is man, that Thou rememberest him (Paalm vin 5), what shall be his peculiarity? He answered, His wisdom is superior to yours. Then brought He before them cattle, animals, and birds, and asked for their names, but they knew it not After man was created, He caused them to pass before Him, and asked for their names and he answered, This is an ex, that an ass this a horse, and that a camel But what is thy name? To me it becomes to be called 'earthly,' for from 'earth 1 am created "! To this may be added the fable that God commanded the angels to worship Adam,2 which is likewise appropriated from Taimudic writings Some Jewish fables record that the angels contemplated worshipping man, but were prevented by God, others precisely agree with the Qur'an,3 that God commanded the angels to worship man, and that they obeyed with the exception of Satan

The Sunnah informs us that Adam was sixty yards high, and Rabinnical fables make him extend from one end of the world to the other, but upon the angels esteeming him a second derty, God put His hand upon him and reduced him to a thousand yards [ [ADAM.]

The account given in the Qur'an of Cain's murder is borrowed from the Bible, and his conversation with Abel, before he slew him, is the same as that in the Targum of Jerusalem, generally called pseudo-Jonathan After the murder, Cain sees a raven burying Midrash Rabbah on Leviticus, Parashah ziz , and Genezis, Parashah viii , and Sanhedrin,

<sup>2</sup> Surahs vii 10-26, xv 28-44, xvi 62-69; xviii 46, xx 115, xxxvii 71-86
2 Midrash of Rabbi Moses, examined by Zuns,

&lt;sup>4</sup> Eisenmenger, Judenthum, vol 1 p 365 <sup>5</sup> Strah v 80.

another, and from this sight gains the idea of The Jewish fable differs interring Abel. only in asoribing the interment to the parents " Adam and his wife sat weeping and lamenting him, not knowing what to do with the body, as they were unacquainted with burying Then came a raven, whose fellow was dead he took and buried it in the earth, hiding it before their eyes Then said Adam, I shall do like this raven, and, taking Abel's corpse, he dug in the earth and hld it "1 The sentence following in the Qur'an-" Wherefore we commanded the children of Israel, that he who slayeth a soul, not by way of retaliation, or because he doeth corruptly in the earth, shall be as if he had slain all mankind, but he who saveth a soul alive shall be as if he saved all souls alive," would have no connec tion with what precedes or follows, were it not for the Targum of Onkelos, in the parsphrase of Gen. 1v 10, where it is said that the blood of Cain's brother cried to God from the earth, thus implying that Abel's posterity And in the Mishnah San were also cut off hedrin, we find the very words which the Qur'an attaches to the mnrder, apparently with sense or connection <sup>2</sup> [ABRL, CAIN]

Noah stands forth as the preacher of righteousness, builds the ark, and is saved, with his family, 3 his character is, however, drawn more from Rabbinical than Biblical sources The conversations of Noah with the people, and the words with which they mooked him whilst building the ark,4 are the same in Talmudical writings as in the Qur'an, and both declare that the generation of the flood was punished with boiling water [ NOAH ]

The next patriarch after the flood is Hud, who is none other than Eber, another sample of the ignorance of Muhammad In the days of Hud the tower is constructed, the "obstinate here," probably Nimrod, takes the lead, the sin of idolatry is abounding, an idol is contemplated as the crowming of the tower, but the building is overthrown, the tribes are dispersed, and punished in this world and in the world to come . These par ticulars are evidently horrowed from scripture and Rahhmical writings In the Qur'an, however, the dispersion is caused by a poisonous wind, and not by the confusion of The significance which the Qur'an tongues. gives to Hud is again in perfect accordance with Rabbinical Judaiem "Eber was a great prophet, for he prophetically called his son Peleg (dispersion), by the help of the Holy Ghost, because the earth was to be dispersed 7 Among all the patriarchs, Abraham was most esteemed by Muhammad, as being neither Jew nor Christian, but a Muslim That he wrote books is also the belief of the Jewish doctors 1 His attaining the knowledge of the true faith, his zeal to convert his generation, his destruction of the idols, the fury of the people, their insisting on his being burned, and his marvellous deliverance all these particulars in the life of Abraham, as given by the Qur'an, are minutely copied from Jewish fictions [HUD, ABRAHAM.]

The Qur'an states that the angels whom Abraham received appeared as ordinary Arabs, and he was astomshed when they declined to eat According to the Talmud, they also " appeared to him no more than Arabs, but another passage adds "The angels descended and did eat Are they, then, said to have really eaten? No! but they appeared as if they did eat and drink." As a proof of Muhammad's uncertainty respecting the history of Abraham, we add, that the doubt regarding their having a con in their old age is expressed in the Qur'an by Abraham instead of Sarah, and she is made to laugh at the promise of a son, before it was given Again, the command to offer his son is given to Abraham before Isaac 18 horn or promised, so that the son who was to be offered up could be none other than Ishmael, who was spoken of immediately before as the "meek youth I" Muhammadan divines are, however, not agreed whether Ishmael was to be offered up, although it is reported by some that the horns of the ram, which was sacrificed in his stoad, were preserved at Makkah, his We may ac-[ISHMAEL] dwelling place ' count for Muhammad's reckoning Ishmael among the prophets and patriarchs, from his being considered the patriarch of the Arabs and the founder of the Kabah

Among the sons of Jacob, Joseph occupies the pre-emmence His history is mainly the same as in the Bible, embellished with the fabulous tradition of the Jews Among these is the assumption that Joseph "would have sinned had he not seen the evident demon-stration of his Lord" That this is borrowed is clear from the following fable Rabbi Jochanan saith, "Both intended to commit sin seizing him by the garment, che said, Lie Then appeared to him the form with me of his father at the window, who called to him, Joseph l Joseph! the names of thy brothers shall be ongraven upon the stones of the Ephod, also thene own wilt thou that it shall be erased?" 4 This is almost literally repeated by a Mushm commentary to the Surab xii 24 The fable of Potiphar's wife inviting the Egyptian ladies to a feast, to see Joseph, because they had laughed at her, and of their being so overcome with admiration of Joseph, that they acoidentally out their hands in eating fruit, is exactly so related in a very ancient Hebrew book, from which Mu-hammad doubtless, derived it. The story hammad doubtless, derived it about the garment being rent, and the setting

<sup>1</sup> Pirke Rabbi Elieser, xxi, and Sürah v 34
2 Mishnah Sanhedrin, iv 5
3 Geiger's Fssay, p 109, and Sürahs vii 57, x
72, xxii 48 xxii 23 xxv 39; xxv 105 xxix
18, xxxvii 73, liv 9, lxxi 1
4 Sanhedrin, oviii
2 Rosk Hashansh, xvi 2, Sanhedrin, oviii, and Sürahs xi 42, xxiii 97
6 Mishnah Sanhedrin, x 3 and Särah xi 69
7 Seder Olam, quoted Midrash Jalkut, lxn

The Jews ascribe to him the Sepher Jerrah
 Midrash Rabbah on Genesis, Parash xvii
 Kiddushin, lii

Sotah, xxxvi 2
 Surah xii 26, and the Commentary of al-Farrar up of an evidence of guilt or unnocence respecting it, is also borrowed, to the very letter from the same source 1 In this Surah it is also stated, that "the devil made him (Joseph) forget the remembrance of his Lord, in perfect harmony with the Jewish tradition, "Vain speech tendeth to destruction, though Joseph twice urged the chief butler to remember him, yet he had to re-main two years longer in prison "2" The seeking protection from man is hero represented the instigation of 2.0

JEW8

JOSEPH.

The Qur'an causes Jacob to toll his sons to enter at different gates, and the same in junction is given by the Patriarch in the Jewish writings "Jacob said to them, Enter not through one and the same gate 3 exclamation of the sons of Israel, when they found the cup in Benjamin's sack-" Has he stolen? so has his brother also '-are clearly a perversion of the words which the Jowish traditions put into their mouths ' Behold a thief, son of a fomale thief!' referring to the stealing of the heraphim by Rachel Muhammad, again, acquaints us that Jacob knew by divine revelation that his son Joseph was still abve, and Jewish tradition enables us to point out whence he obtained the information We read in the Midraeh Jalkut, "An unbeliever asked our master, Do tho dead continue to live? your parents do not believe it, and will ye receive it ' Of Jacob, it is said, he refused to be comforted, had he believed that the dead still lived, would be not have been comforted? But he answered, Fool, he knew by the Holy Ghost that he still really lived, and about a living person people need no comfort "5

Muhammad made but scanty allusions to the early patriarchs, Juseph only excepted. but concerning Moses, it was his interest to he more profuse in his communications, possibly from the desire to be considered like him, as he is generally thought to have taken that prophet as his model Among the oppressions which Pharach exercised towards the Jews, are named his ordering thoir children to be oast into the water Moses, the son of Imran was put into an ark by his mother, Pharaoh's wife, observing the child, rescues him from death, and gives him back to his mother to nurse When Moses was grown up, he sought to assist his oppleased brethren, and kills an Egyptian, being the next day reminded of this deed by an Hebrew. next day reminded of the december of the design of the country When of an inhabitant of that country When about to leave Midian, he sees a burning bush, and, approaching it, receives a call to ge to Egypt to exhort Pharach, and perform miracles, he accepts the mission, but requests the aid of his brother Asron.1 Pharach, however remains an infidel, and gathers his sorcerers together, who perform only inferior miracles, and, in spite of Pharach's threats, they become believers Indgment falls upon the Egyptians, they are drowned, whilst the Israelites are eaved 3 A rock whilst the Israelites are saved A rock yields water Moses receives the law,4 and desires to see the glory of God 5 During Moses' absence, the Israelites make a golden calf, which he destroys, and reducing it to powder, makes them drink it After this, Moses chooses seventy men as assistants? The spies sent to Canaan are all wicked with the exception of two the people being deceived by them, must wander forty years in the desert Korah, on quarrelling with Moses, is swallowed up by the earth Korah. The maivellous journey of Moses with his servant is not to be omitted in this summary of events 10 Among the details deserve to be mentioned, that Haman and Korah were counsellors of Pharach 11 It is not surprising that Muhammad should associate Haman with Pharach as ar enemy of the Jews, since he cared little when individuals lived, provided they could be introduced with advantage Korah, according to Jewish tradition, was chief agent or treasurer to Pharaoh P The ante-exodus persecution of the Jews is ascribed to a dream of Pharach 17 This is in exact accordance with Jewish tradition, which, as Canon Churton remarks, has in part the sanction of Acts vii and Hebrews xi, though not found in Exodus "The sorcerers said to Pharach, A boy shall be born who will lead the Israelites out of Egypt Then thought he, Cast all male children into the river and he will be cast in among them "14 The words (Exod x1 7), "I will call one of the Hebrew women," produced the Rabb meal fiction, "Why just a Hebrow woman? This shows that he was handed to all the Egyptian women, but he would not dank, for God said, The mouth which shall once speak with me, should it drink what is unclean?" la This was too valuable for Muhammad to omit from the Qur'an 16 Although it is nowhere said in the Bible that the sign of the laprous hand was wrought in the presence of Pharach, yet the Qur'an relates it as having there taken place.<sup>17</sup> And in this also it was preceded by Jewish tradition—" He put his hand into his bosom, and withdrew it leprons, white as snow, they also put their hands into their

<sup>1</sup> Midrash Jalkut, czivi 2 Midrash Rabbah or Gen zi 14, Geiger, p 148, and Surah xii 42

&#x27; Midreah Rabbah on Genesis, Parash xei , and 90rah xii 67 ' Midreah Rabbah, xeii , Gen xx. 19 and

Corah xii 77 Midresh Jalkut, exhiu and burah xii 80 Surahs xx 47 xxviii 2

<sup>1</sup> Sürahs xx 8, xxvi 9, xxxvii 29, ixxix 15 2 Sürahs vii 101, x 76, xi 99, xx 50 3 Sürahs ii 46, vii 127, x 90, xx 79, xxvi 52 Xxviii. 40, xiii 55 6 Sürahs vii 143 5 Sürahs vii 143 5 Sürahs vii 143 Sürahs vii 135, ii 52, iz 132 Sürahs ii 48, vii 147, xx. 82 Sürah vii 155 Sürah v 23 Sürah xxviii 16 10 Streh xviu 59

<sup>10</sup> Sürak xvin 59
11 Sürak xvin 38, xxi 25
12 Sürak xvin 38, xxi 38, xi 25
13 Sürak xxvin 5
14 Pirke Rabh Elleger, rivin
15 Sürak xxvin 5

<sup>15</sup> Sotah xii 2

Sarah xxiii 11 17 Surahs vii 105, xxv 32

bosoms and withdrew them leprous, white as snow" Again, among Moses' own people, none but his own tribe believed him? This Muhammad doubtless inferred from the state ment of the Rabbis "The tribe of Levi was exempted from hard labour" Among the soroerers of Egypt, who first asked for thoir wages, and then became believers, when their serpents were swallowed by that of Moses, Pharaoh himself was chief Here, again, Muhammad is indebted to Judaism "Pha raoli, who lived in the days of Moses, was a great soreers" In other places of the Qur'an, Pharach claims divinity,7 and Jewish tradition makes him declare, "Already from the beginning ye speak falschood for I am Lord of the world, I have made myself as well as the Nile", as it is said of him (Ezek xxix 8), ' Mine is the river, and I have made it"8 The Arab prophet was much confused with regard to the plagues, in some places he enumerates nine, in others only five, the first of which is said to be the Flood! 10 As the drowning in the Red Sea happened after the plagues, he can only allude to the Deluge

The following somewhat dark and uncertain passage 11 concerning Pharaoh has caused commentators groat perplexity. It is stated that Pharach pursuod the Israelites until actually drowning, when, confessing himself a Muslim, he was saved altvo from the bottom of the sea, to be a "witness for ages to come" 12 But we find that it is merely a version of a Jewish fable "Perceive the great power of repentance! Pharach, King of power of repentance! Pharaon, Egypt, uttered very wicked words—Who is the God whose voice I shall obey? (Exod. like unto thee among the gods?' (xv 2) God saved him from death for it saith Almost had I stretched out my hands and destroyed, but God let him live, that he might declare his power and strength " 18

As Jewish commentators add to Exed xv 27, where we read of twelve fountains being found near Elim, that each of the tribes had a well,14 so Muhammad transposes the statement, and doclares that twelve fountains sprang from the rock which had been smitten by Moses at Rephidim 15 The Rabbimeal fable, that God covered the Israelites with Mount Smai, on the occasion of the lawgiving 16 14 thus amplified in the Qur'an "We shook the mountain over them, as though it

I Pirke Rabbi Elieser, zlvili

Bürah z 23

Midrach Rabbah, Parash v

Bürahs vn 11, xxvı 40

Sürahs zx 47, xxvi 48

Midrach Jalkut, clxxxı

Nurahs zxvili 38, zlni 50

Rab Exodus, Parash v

Sürahs zvil 103, xxvıı 112

Sürah vil 130

11 Sürah z 90

12 Sürah z 90

12 Sürah z 90

13 Sürah z 90

14 Sürah z 90

15 Sürah z 90

16 Sürah z 90

17 Sürah z 90

18 Sürah z 90

18 Sürah z 90

19 Sürah z 90

10 Sürah z 90

10 Sürah z 90

10 Sürah z 90

10 Sürah z 90 14 Rachi on Exodus xv 27
15 Canon Churton pointed out to Dr J M Aruold that the statement of twelve streams flowing from the rock occurs in the Litergy of St. Thomas (wide Howard s Uhrist of St. Thomas, p 234)
16 Aboda Sarah, il 2 had been a covering, and they imagined that it was falling upon them, and we said, "Receive the law which we have brought unto you with reverence". The Quran adds that the Israelites, now demanding to see God, die, and are raised again. It will not be difficult to trace the origin of this fig-ment When the Israelites demanded two things from God-that they might see his glory and hear his voice—both were granted to them. Then it is added, "These things, however, they had no power to resist as they came to Mount Sinai, and He appeared unto them their sonis escaped by His speak ing, as it is said, 'My soul escaped as He spake' The Torah, however, interceded for them, saying, Does a king give his daughter to marriage and kill his household? whole world rejoices (at my appearance), and thy children (the Israelites) shall they die?' At once their souls returned, therefore it is said The doctrine of God is perfect, and brings back the soul "3 In the matter of the golden calf, the Qur'an follows as usual the fabulous account of the Rabbinical traditions Both represent Asion as having been nearly killed when at first resisting the entreaty of the people The Sanhedrin relates "Aaron saw Chui slaughtered before his eyes (who opposed them), and he thought, If I do not vield to them they will deal with me as they dealt with Chur"<sup>4</sup> According to another passage in the Qur'an, an Israelite named as-Samiri enticed them, and made the calf Like the wandering Jew in Christian fable as-Samni is punished by Moses with endless wandering, and he is compelled to repeat the words, "Touch me not" Jewish traditions make Mikah assist in manufacturing the idol calf 7 but Muhammad either derived as-Samiri from Samael, or, as the Samaritans are stated by the Arab writers to have said, "Touch me not," he may have considered as Somiri as the author of the sect of the Samaritans That the calf thus produced by as-Samiri from the ornaments of the people, lowed on being finished, sis evidently a repetition of the following Jewish tradition 'The calf came forth (Exod xxil 24) roaring, and the Is rachtes saw it Rabbi Jehuda says, Samael entered the calf and roared to deceive the Israelites' The addition, that the tribe of Levi remained faithful to God, is both Scriptural and Rabbinical The matter of Korah is honoured with singular embellishments, for instance, Kersh had such riches, that from ten to forty strong men were required to carry the keys of his treasures 10 Abū 7-Fidā, says forty mules were required to convey the keys Jowish tradition is still more extra-

1 Surah vii 170
2 Surahs u 52, iv 152
5 Aboda Sarah, ii 2
5 Sanbedrin, v, and Surah vii 150
5 Sinah xx 87, 90, 96
5 Surah xx 87, 90, 96
7 Rash to Sanhedrin, ei 3
Pirke Rubbi Eiseser, clix, and Surah vii 147,

<sup>* 90</sup> Pirke Rabbi Elieser, xlv ; and Surah vii 150, see Exodus axxii 26 10 Surab xxvin 76

vagant "Joseph buried three treasures in Rgypt, one of which became known to Korah Riches are turned to destruction to him that possesses them (Eocles v 12), and this may well be applied to Korah The keys to the treasures of Korah made a burden for 800 white mules "

The accusation from which God cleared his servant Moses, of which the Qur'an makes mention, was occasioned by Korah "Alu Aliah says it refers to Korsh hiring a harlot to reproach Moses before all the people, upon which God struck her damb, and destroyed Korah, which cleared Moses from the charge" This is unquestionably an ampli fication of the following passage "Moses heard, and fell on his face What was it he heard? That they accused him of having to do with another man's wife"3 Others conceive the unjust charge from which Moses was cleared, to have been that of murdering Aaron on Mount Hor, bocause he and Eleszer only were present when Aaron died! That they had recourse to Jewish tradition, will appear from the subjoured extract "The whole congregation saw that Asron was dead, and when Moses and Eleazar cume down from the mountain, the whole congrega tion gathered together, asking Where is Aaron? But they said, He is dead. How can the Angel of Death tench a man, by whom he was resisted and rostramed, as it is said, He stood between the dead and the living, and the plaguo was stayed? If to bring him, it is well if not, we will stone you Moses prayed, Lord of the World, remove from me this suspicion! Then God opened and showed them Aarou's body" And to this the pas them Agrous body And to this the passage applies The whole congregation saw &c (Numb xx. 29, 75) [Moses]

The time of the Judges is passed over in noticed, and from the manner in which the election of a king is introduced,4 it would appear that Muhammad was ignorant of the long interval between Moses and Saul.<sup>5</sup> [saul.] Of David's history, only his victory over Goliath and his fall through Bathsheba are recorded [DAVID] The Traditions make mention of the brevity of his slumbers, and commentators of the Qur'an affirm the same "The Apostle of God said David alept half the night, he then rose for a third purt, and slept again a sixth part" This is derived slept again a sixtu past that the king from the Rabbis, who assert that the king from the Rabbis, who assert that the king from the Rabbis, who assert that the king from the Rabbis again a sixtu past that the king from the Rabbis again a sixtu past that the king from the Rabbis again a sixtu past that the king from the Rabbis again a sixtu past that the king from the Rabbis again a sixtu past that the king from the Rabbis again a sixtu past that the king from the Rabbis again a sixtu past that the king from the Rabbis again a sixtu past that the king from the Rabbis again a sixtu past that the king from the Rabbis again a sixtu past that the king from the Rabbis again a sixtu past that the king from the Rabbis again a sixtu past that the king from the Rabbis again a sixtu past that the king from the Rabbis again a sixtu past that the king from the Rabbis again a sixtu past the Rabbis again a sixtu past the Rabbis again a sixtu past the Rabbis again a sixtu past the Rabbis again a sixtu past the Rabbis again a sixtu past the Rabbis again a sixtu past the Rabbis again a sixtu past the Rabbis again again a sixtu past the Rabbis again a sixtu past the Rabbis again again a sixtu past the Rabbis again again again a sixtu past the Rabbis again again again again again again again again again again again again again again again again again again again again again again again again again again again again again again again again again again again again again again again again again again again again again again again again again again again again again again again again again again again again again again again again again again again again again again again again again again again again again again again again again again again again again again again again again again again again again again again again again again again again again again again again again again again again again again again again again again again again again again again again again again again again again again again again again again again again aga slept only for the term of " aixty breathings Of the wisdom of Solomon, the Qur'an makes particular montion, and to support the state-ment, adds, that he understood the language of birds, this was also the opinion of the Jewish doctors The winds, oi, more pro-bable, spirits, obeyed him and demons, birds, and beasts, formed part of his standing

2 Pirke Rabbi Elieser, xlv
2 Al Farris on Surch xxxxx. 69
3 Al Farris on Surch xxxxx. 69
4 Pirke Rabbi Elieser, xlv
5 Pirke Rabbi Elieser, xlv
5 Surch it 247 "Dost thou not look at a crowd of the children of Israel after Moses time, when they said to a prophet of theirs, Raise up for us a king, and we will fight in God s way
6 Muhammad ascribes to Suil what the Scrip tures relate of Gideor Judges vii 5
8 See Berachoth

army 1 Jewish commentators record that "demons of various kinds, and evil spirits were subject to him "? The story of the Queen of Shehs, and the adventures of the lapwing, are only abridgments from Jewish traditions. With regard to the fable, that demons assisted Solomon in the building of the Temple, and, being deceived, continued it after his death, we may here add that Muhammad borrowed it directly from the Jews 4 When Solumon became haughty, one of his many demons ruled in his stead, till he repented The Sanhedrin also refers to this degradation "In the beginning Solomon reigned also over the upper worlds", as it is said, Solomon sat on the throne of God", after that only over his staff, as it is said, "What pro fit hath a man of all his labour?" and still later, "This is my portion of all my labour "1 On repenting, he maimed his horses, consider ing them a neeless inxury. In the Talmud and the scriptures, we find allusion to his obtaining them as well as to their being pro

bibited [ SOLOMON ]

Elijah is among the few characters which Muhammad notices after Solomon, nothing, indeed, is mentioned of his rapture to heaven, jet he is considered a great prophet? Among the Jews, Edijah appears in human form to the pions on earth, he visits them in their places of worship and communicates revelations from God to emment Rabbis In this charater Elijah also appears in Muslim divinity [ELIJAH] Jonah is the 'man of the fish", 8 Mnhammad relates his history in his nauel style not omitting his journey to Nineveh, or the gourd which afforded him shade [Jonar ] Job, too, with his suffering and cure is noticed [Jon], also the three men who were east into a burning flery furnaceio (Dan m. 8), the turning back of the shadow of degrees on the occasion of Hezekinh's recovery !!

(See Arnold's Islam and Christianity, Longmans, London, 1874, p 116, eegq Dr. J M Arnuld gives in many instances the original Hebrew of his quetations from the Taimud)

In the Qur'an there are several Hebrew and Talmudie terms which seem to indicate that its author had become familiar with Tahundic teaching The following are the most noticeable .

(1) The Qur an, Oh, from gara, "to read," Heb NJD, and equivalent to NJDD, "read ing" See Neb vin 8 "And caused them to understand the reading"

2 Saraha xxi 81 xxvii 15, xxxiv 11, xxxviii

21 Surah xxv 47, and 2 Kings xx 9

Sunsedria, ax, amo min. man un at Parash xi Sunsedrin, xxi, and Surah xxxviii 20 7 Surah vi 85, xxxvii 123, 130 8 Surah vi 85, x. 98, xxi 87, kxvii 48 8 Surah xi 83 xxxviii 40 10 Surah kxxx 47 and 2 Kunga xx 9

(2) The Magani, Sarah zv 86, whi Magānī, مناني, "repetitions," 86, which is the Talmudic כשנה.

(8) The Taurāi, آورية, used for the Books of Moses, the Heb Tost of the Old Tes-

- (4) The Shechinah, or Sakinah, L. Surah ii 249 "The sign of his kingdom is that there shall come to you the ARK (Tabut), and SHECHINA (Sukmah) in it from the Lord." Heb שׁכֵּרֹכְה. A term not used in the Bible, but used by the Rabbinical writers to exprese the visible presence of God between the Chernbim on the Mercy seat of the Tabernacle
- (5) The Ark, Tabut, world In Surah 11. 249, for the Ark of the Covenant, and in Sürah xx. 89, for Noah's Ark The Heb (which is used in the Bible for Yoah's Ark and the ark of bulgushes) and not the Heb | | , the former being Rabbinical
- (6) Angel, Malak, elle, Heb TNTD, an angel or messenger of God
- (7) Spirit, Ruk, Cy, Heb TTT. A torm used both for the angel Gabriel and for Tesus Christ
- (8) The Sabbath, Sabt www Suran vii 164, n 62. Heb חשש.
- (9) Jahannam, yeevva, hell, post Rabbinical גרונט, and not the of the Old Testament. The final letter o proves that it was adopted from the Talmudic Hebrew and not from the Grock

المبراثيل) JIBRA'IL The angel Gabriel [GABRIEL]

JIBT ( An idol of the Quraish mentioned in the Qurain, Sûrah iv JIBT An idol of the 54 "They (certain renegade Jews) believe in Jibt and Taghut, and ear of the infidels, These are guided in a better path than those who hold the faith" The Jaiklan say certain Jews used to do homage to these idols m order to please the Quraich

JIHAD (Jan) Let "An effort, or a striving" A religious war with those who are unbelievers in the mission of Mu-hammad It is an incumbent religious duty, established in the Qur'an and in the Traditions as a divine institution, and enjoined specially for the purpose of advancing Islam and of repelling evil from Muslime

When an infidel's country is conquered by a Musium ruler, its inhabitants are offered three alternatives :-

(1) The reception of Islam, in which case the conquered become enfranchised citizens of the Mushm etate.

(2) The payment of a poll-tax (Jizyah), by which unbelievers in Islam obtain protection, and become Zimmis, provided they are not the idolaters of Arabia

(8) Death by the sword, to those who will not pay the poil tax Sufi writers say that there are two Jihads. al-Jshadu 'l-Akbar, or "the greater werfare, which is against one's own lusts, and al-Jskadu 'l-Asghar, or "the lesser warfare," against infidels.

The duty of religious war (which all commentaters agree is a duty extending to all time) is laid down in the Qur'an in the following verses, and it is remarkable that all the verses occur in the al-Madinah Surahs, being those given after Muhammad had established himself as a paramount ruler, and was in a position to dictate terms to his

Surah ix 5,6 "And when the sacred months are passed, kill those who join other gode with God wherever we shall find them, and seize thom, besiege them, and lay wait for them with every kind of ambush but if they shall convert, and observe prayer, and pay the obligatory alms, then let them go their way, for God is Gracious, Merciful. If any one of those who join gods with God ask an asylum of thee grant him an asylum, that he may hear the Word of God, and then let him reach his place of safety This, for that they are people devoid of knowledge" Sürah ix 29 "Make war upon such of those to whom the Scriptures have been given as believe not in God, or in the last day, and who forbid not that which God and His Apostle liave forbidden, and who profess net the profession of the truth, until they pay tribute (nzyah) out of hand, and they be humbled '

Sürah iv 76-79 "Let those then fight on the path of God, who exchange this present life for that which is to come for whoever nghteth on God's path, whether he be slain or conquer, we will in the end give him a grent reward. But what hath come to you that we hight not on the path of God, and for the weak among men, women, and children, who say, 'O our Lord! bring ue forth from this city whose inhabitants are oppressors, give us a champion from Thy presence, and give us from thy presence a defender 'They who believe, fight on the path of God, and they who believe not, night on the path of Tagut Fight therefore against the friends of Verily the craft of Satan shall be powerless! Hast thou not marked those to whom it was eaid, 'Withhold your hands awhile from war, and observe prayer, and pay the stated alms. But when war is commanded them, lo ! a portion of them fear men as with the fear of God, or with a yet greater fear, and say 'O our Lord! why hast Thou commanded us war? Couldst thou not have given us respite till our not dietant end? SAY Small the fruition of this world, but the next life is the true good for him who feareth God I and ye shall not be wronged so much as the skin of a date-etone"
Surahil 214 215 "They will ask thee conceruing war in the Secred Month Sax To war therein is bad, but to turn aside from the cause of God, and to have no fasth in Him, and in the Sacred Temple, and to drive out its people, is worse in the sight of God, and evil strife is worse than bloodshed Thoy will not cease to war against you until they turn you from your religion, if they be able but wheever of you shall turn from his religion and die an infidel, their works shall be fruitless in thie world, and in the next they shall be consigned to the fire, therein to abide for aye But they who believe, and who fly their country and fight in the cause of God may hope for God's mercy and God is Gracious, Merciful

Sürah vin 39-42 "SAY to the infidels If they desist from their unbelief what is now past shall be forgiven them, but if they return to if, they have already before them the doom of the ancients! Fight then against them till strife be at an ond, and the religion be all of it God's If they desist, verily God beholdeth what they do but if they turn their back, know ye that God is your protector Excellent protector! excellent helper And know ye, that when ye have taken any booty, a fifth part belongeth to God and to the Apostle, and to the near of kin, and to orphans, and to the poor, and to the wayfarer

Long chapters in the Traditions are devoted to the subject of Jihud (see Sahihu l-Bukhāri and Sahihu Mushm, Arabic editions, Bāhu 'l-Jihād), from which the following are quotations of the sayings of the Prophet—

"God is sponeor for him who goeth forth to fight on the road of God (Sabiki 'llāh') If he be not killed, he shall return to his house with rewards and booty, but if he be slain, ho shall be taken to Paradise'

"I swear by God I should like to be killed on the road of God, then be killed and brought to life again, then killed again and then brought to life again, so that I may obtain new rewards every time"

"Guarding the frontiers of Islam for even one day is worth more than the whole world and all that is in it"

"The fire of hell shall not touch the logs of him who shall be covered with the dust of battle in the road of God"

He who assists another with arms to fight in the way of God, is as the champion, and is a charer of the rewards. And he who stayeth behind to take charge of the family of a warrior is even as a champion in war."

'This religion will ever be established, even to the Day of Resurrection, as long as Muslims light for it'

"In the last day the wounds of those who have been wounded in the way of God will be evident, and will drop with blood, but their smell will be as the perfume of musk."

"Being killed in the road of God covers all sins, but the sin of debt"

"He who dies and has not fought for the religion of Islam, nor has even said in his heart, 'Would to God I were a champion that could die in the road of God,' is even as a hypocrite."

"Fighting in the road of God, or resolving to do so, is a divine duty When your Imam orders you to go forth to fight, then obey him"

The following is the teaching of the Hanafi school of Sunnis on the subject of Jihād, as given in the Hidāyah, vol ii p 140—

'The sacred injunction concerning war is sufficiently observed when it is carried on hy any one party or tribe of Muslims, and it is then no longer of any force with respect to the rost It is established as a divine ordinance, by the word of God, who said in the Qui'an, 'Slay the infidels,' and also by a saying of the Prophet 'War is permanently established until the Day of Judgment' (meaning the or-dinance respecting war). The observance, howover, in the degree above mentioned, suffices, because war is not a positive injunction, as it is in its nature murderous and destruc tivo and is onjoined only for the purpose of advancing the true faith or ropelling evil from the servants of God, and when this ond is answered by any single tribe or party of Muslims making war, the obligation is no longer binding upon the rest, in the same manner as in the prayers for the dead—(if, however, no one Muslim were to make war, the whole of the Muslim, would incur the criminality of neglecting it) -and also because if the injunction were positive, the whole of the Muslims must consequently engage in wai, in which case the materials for war (such as horses, armour, and so forth) could not be procured Thus it appears that the obscivance of war as aforesaid suffices, except where there is a general summons (that is, where the infidels invade a Muslim territory, and the Imam for the time being issues a general proclamation requiring all persons to go forth to fight), for in this case war becomes a positive injunction with respect to the whole of the inhabitants, whether men or women and whether the Imam bo a just or an un just person, and if the people of that territory be unable to repulse the infidels, then war becomes a positive injunction with respect to all in that neighbourhood and if these also do not suffice it, then comes a positive injunction with respect to the next neighbours, and in same manner with respect to all the Muslims from east to west

"The destruction of the sword is incurred by infidels, although they be not the first aggressors, as appears fram various passages in the traditions which are generally received to this effect

"It is not incumbent upon infants to make war, as they are objects of compassion neither is it incumbent upon slaves or women, as the rights of the master, or of the husband, have precedence, nor is it so upon the blind, the mained, or the decrepid, as such are incapable. If, however, the infidels make an attack upon a city or territory, in this case the repulsion of them is incumbent upon all Muslims, insomuch that a wife may go forth without the consent of her husband and a slave without the leave of his master, because war then becomes a positive injunction and possession, either by bondage or by marriage, cannot come in competition with a positive injunction, as in prayer (for instance) or fasting. This is supposing a general summons, for without that it is not lawful for a woman or slave to go forth to make war without the consent of the husband or master, as there is in this case no necessity for their assistance, since others suffice, and hence no reason exists for destroying the right of the husband or master on that account If there be any fund in the public treasury, so long as the fund lasts any extraordinary exaction for the support of the warriors is abominable, because such exaction resembles a hire for that which is a service of God as much as prayer or fasting, and, hire being forbidden in these instances so is it in that which re-sembles them. In this case, moreover, there is no occasion for any extraordinary exactions, since the funds of the public treasury are prepared to answer all emergenous of the Muslims, such as war, and so forth If, however, there be no funds in the public treasury, in this case the Imam need not hesitate to levy contributions for the better support of the warriors, because in levying a contribution the greater evil (namely, the destruction of the person) is repelled, and the contribution is the smaller evil, and the imposition of a smaller evil to semedy a greater is of no con-A confirmation of this is found in sequence what is related of the Prophet, that he took various articles of armour, and so forth, from Safwan and 'Umar, in the same manner also he took property from married mon, and bestowed it upon the unmarried, in order to en courage them and enable them to go forth to fight with cheerfulness, and he also used to take the horses from those who remained at home, and hostowed them upon those who went forth to fight on foot When the Mnslims enter the enemy's country and besiege the cities or strongholds of the infidels, it is necessary to invite them to embiace the faith, because Ibn 'Abbäs relates of the Prophot that he never destroyed any without previously inviting them to embrace the faith If, therefore, they ombisce the faith it is unnecessary to war with them, because that which was the design of the war is then obtained without wai. The Prophet, moreover, has said we are directed to make war upon men only until such time as they shall coniess, 'There is no God but one God' But when they repeat this creed, their persons and properties are in protection (aman) If they do not accept the call to the faith, they must then be called upon to pay nizyak, or capitation tax, because the Prophet directed the commanders of his armies so to do, and also because by submitting to this iax war is forbidden and terminated upon the authority of the Qur'an (This call to pay capitation tax, however, respects only those from whom the capitation tax is acceptable, for, as to apostates and the idelaters of Arabia, to call upon them to pay the tax is useless, since nothing is accepted from them but em bracing the faith, as it is thus commanded in the Qur'an) If those who are called upon to pay capitation tax consent to do so, they then become entitled to the same protection and subject to the same rules as Muslims, because 'Ali has declared infidels agree to apptation tax only in order to render their blood the same as Muslims' blood, and their property the same as Muslims' property

"It is not lawful to make war upon any people who have never before been called to the faith, without previously requiring them to embrace it, because the Prophet so in structed his commanders, directing them to call the infidols to the faith, and also because the people will hence perceive that they are attacked for the sake of religion, and not for the sake of taking their property, or making slaves of their children, and on this considers tion it is possible that they may be induced to agree to the call in order to save themselves from the troubles of war

"If a Muslim attack infidels without previously calling them to the faith, he is an offender because this is forladden but yet if he do attack them before thus inviting them and slay them, and take their property, neither fine, expirition, nor atonement are due, because that which protects (namely, Islam) does not exist in them, nor are they under protection by place (namely, the Darn 'l-Islam, or Muslim territory), and the mere prohibition of the act is not sufficient to sanction the exaction either of fine or of atone ment for property, in the same manner as the slaving of the women or infant children of infidels is forbiddon, but if, notwithstanding a person were to slay such, he is not liable to a hne li is laudable to call to the faith a poople to whom a call has already come, in order that they may have the more full and ample warning but yet this is not incumbent, as it appears in the Traditions that the Prophet plandered and despoiled the tribe of al-Mustaliq by surpriso, and he also agreed with Asamah to make a predatory attack upon Qubna at an oarly hour, and to set it on tire, and such attacks are not preceded by a call (Quhua 14 a place in Syria some assert it is the name of a tribe)

"If the infidels, upon receiving the call, neither consent to it nor agree to pay capitation tax, it is then incumbent on the Muslims to call upon God for assistance, and to make war upon them, because God is the assistant of those who serve Him, and the destroyer of His enemies, the intidels, and it is necessary to implore His aid upon every occasion, the Prophet, moreover, commands us so to do And having so done the Muslims must then with God's assistance attack the infidels with all manner of warlike engines (as the Prophet did by the people of Tant), and must also set fire to their habitations (in the same manner as the Prophet fired Baweera), and must mundate them with water and tear up their plantations and tread down their grain because by these means they will become weakened, and their resolution will fail and their force be broken , these means are, therefore, all sanctified by the law.

"It is no objection to shooting arrows or other musiles against the infidels that there may chance to be among them a Muslim in the way either of bondage or of traffic, because the shooting of arrows and so forth among the infidels remedies a general evil in the repulsion thereof from the whole body of Muslims, whereas the slaying of a Muslim slave or trader is only a particular evil, and to repel a general evil a particular evil must be adopted, and also because it seldom happens that the strongholds of the infidels are destitute of Muslims, since it is most probable that there are Muslims residing in them, either in the way of bondage or of traffic, and hence, if the use of missile weapons were prolubited on account of these Muslims, war would be obstructed If the infidels in time of battle should make shislds of Muslim chil dren or of Muslims, who are prisoners in their hands, yet there is no need on that scrount to refrain from the use of missile weapons, for the reason already mentioned It is requisite however, that the Muslims in using such weapons aim at the infidels, and not at the children or the Muslim captives, because, as it is impossible in shooting to distinguish precisely between them and the intidels, the person who discharges the weapon must make this distinction in his intention and design by siming at the infidels, and not at the others, since thus much is practicable, and the distinction must be made as far av is practicable

"There is also neither fine not expiation upon the warriors on account of such of their arrows or other missiles as happen to but the children or the Muslims, because the war is in observance of a divine ordinance, and atonement is not due for anything which may happen in the fullilment of a divine ordinance, for otherwise men would neglect the fulfilment of the ordinance from an apprehension of becoming liable to atonoment. It is otherwise in the case of a person eating the bread of another when perishing for hunger as in that instance atonement is due, although eating the bread of other people, in such a situation, be a divine ordinance, because a person perishing for hunger will not refrain from eating the provision of another, from the apprehension of atonsmont, since his life depends upon it, whereas war is attended with trouble and dangerous to life, whence men would be deterred, by apprehension of atone-ment, from engaging in it There is no objection to the warriors carrying their Qur'ans and their women along with them, where the Missim force is considerable, to such a degree as to afford a protection from the enemy, and not to admit of any apprehension from them, because in that case safety is most probable, and a thing which is most probable stands and is accounted as a thing certain If the force of the warriors be small (such as is termed a Surreyas), so as not to afford security from the enemy, in this case their carrying their women or Qur'ans along with them is repro-bated, because in such a situation taking these with them is exposing them to dishonour, and taking the Qur'an with them, in particular, is exposing it to contempt, since infidels scoff at the Qui'an, with a view of insulting the Muslims, and this is the true meaning of the saying of the Prophet. "Carry not the Quran along with you into the territory of the enemy (that is, of the infidels) If a Mushing go into an infidel camp under a protection, there is no objection to his faking his Qur'an along with him, provided these intidels be such as observe their sngagements, because from these no violence is to be apprehended

"It is lawful for aged women to accompany an army, for the performance of such business as suits them, such as dressing victuals, administering water and preparing medicines for the sick and wounded, but with respect te young women, it is better that they stay at home, as this may prevent perplexity or The woman, however, must not disturbance engage in fight, as this argues weakness in the Muslims Women, therefore, must not taks any personal concern in battle unless in a case of absolute necessity, and it is not laudable to carry young women along with the army, either for the purpose of carnal gratification, or for service, if, however, the necessity be very urgent, female slaves may be taken, but not wives A wife must not engage in a fight but with the consent of her husband, nor a slave but with the consent of his owner (according to what was already stated, that the right of the husband and the master has precodence), unless from necessity where an attack is made by the enemy

* It does not become Muslims to break treaties or to act unfairly with respect to plunder or to disfigure people (by cutting off their ears and noses, and so forth), for as to what is related of the Prophet, that he disfigured the Corneans, it is abrogated by subsequent prohibitions In the same manner it does not become Muslims to slay women or children, or men aged, bedradden, or blind, because opposition and fighting are the only occasions which maks slaughter allowable (according to our doctors), and such persons are meapable of these For the same reason also the paralytic are not to be slain, nor those who are dismembered of the right hand, or of the right hand and left foot. Ash-Shaff'i maintains that aged men, or persons bedridden or blind, may be slain, because (according to him) infidelity is an occasion of slaughter being allowable, and this appears in these persons. What was before observed, however, that the paralytic or dismembered are not to be slain, is in proof against him, as infidelity appears in these also, yet still they are not slain whence it is evident that mere infidelity is not a justifiable occasion of slaughter The Prophet, moreover, forbade the slaying of infants or single persons, and once, when the Prophet saw a woman who was clain, he said, 'Alas! this woman did not fight, why, therefore, was she slain?' But yet, if any of these persons be killed in war, or if a woman be a queen or chief, in this case it is allowable to slay them, they being qualified to molest the servants of God So, also, if such persons as the above should attempt to fight, they may be slain, for the purpose of removing evil, and because fighting renders slaying allowable

"A lunatic must not be slain unless he fight, as such a person is not responsible for his faith, but yet where he is found fighting it is necessary to slay him, for the removal of evil It is also to be observed that infants or lunatice may be slain so long as they are actually engaged in fight, but it is not allowed to kill them after they are taken prisoners, contrary to the case of others, who may be alam even after they are taken, as they are liable to pumshment because they are re-sponsible for their faith.

"A person who is insane occasionally stands, during his lucid intervals in the same predicament as a sane person

"It is abcminable in a Muslim to begin fighting with his father, who happens to be among the infidels, nor must he slay him, be cause God has said in the Qur'an, 'Honous thy father and thy mother,' and also because the preservation of the father's life is moumhent upon the son, according to all the doctors, and the permission to fight with him would be repugnant to that sentiment If, also, the son should find the father, he must not slay him himself, but must hold him in view until some other come and slay him, for thus the end is answered without the son slaying his father, which is an offence

"If, however, the father attempt to slav the son, insomuch that the son is unable to repel him but by killing him, in this case the son need not hegitate to slay him, because the design of the sen is inerely to ropel him, which is lawful, for if a Mushim were to draw his sword with a design of killing his son, in such a way as that the son is mable to repol him but by killing him, it is then lawful for the son to slay his father, because his design is merely repulsion In a case, therefore, where the father le an infidel, and attempts to slay his son, it is lawful for the son to slay the father in self-defence a fortion:

"If the Imam make peace with ahens at with any particular tribe or body of them and perceive it to be eligible for the Muslims, there need be no hesitation, because it is said in the Qur'an 'If the infidels be inclined to peace do ye likewise consent thereto,' also because the Prophet in the year of the punishment of Eubea, made a peace between the Mushus and the people of Mecca for the space of ten years, peace, moreover is war in effect where the interest of the Muslims requires it, since the design of war is the removal of evil, and this is obtained by means of peace, contrary to where peace is not to the interest of the Muslims, for it is not in that case lawful as this would be abandening war both apparently and m effect It is here, however, proper to observe that it is not absolutely necessary to restrict a peace to the term above recoded (namely, ten years), because the end for which peace is made may be sometimes mere effectually obtained by extending it to a longer term. If the Imam make peace with the aliens for a single term (namely, ten years), and afterwards perceive that it is most advantageous for the Maslims' interest to break it, he may in that case lawfully renew the war after giving them duo notice, because, upon a change of the circumstances which rendered peace advisable, the breach of peace is war, and the observance of it a desertion of war, both in appearance and also in effect, and war is an ordinance of God, and the foreaking of it is not becoming (to Muslims). It is to be observed that giving due notice to the enemy is in this case indispensably requisite in such a manner that treachery may not be induced, since this is forbidden. It is also requisite that such a delay be made in renewing the war with them, as may allow intelligence of the peace being broken off to be universally received among them, and for this such a time suffices as may admit of the king or chief of the enemy communicating the same to the different parts of their dominion, since by such a delay the charge of treachery is avoided.

'If the infidels act with perfidy in a peace, it is in such case lawful for the Imam to attack them without any previous notice, since the breach of treaty in this instance originates with them, whence there ie no occasion to commence the war on the part of the Muslims by giving them notice. It would be otherwise, however, if only a small party of them were to violate the treaty by entering the Muslim territors and there committing robberies upon the Muslims, since this does If, morenot amount to a breach of treaty over, this party be in force so as to be capable of opposition, and openly fight with the Muslims, this is a breach of treaty with respect to that party only, but not with respect to the rest of their nation or tribe, because, as this party have violated the treaty without any permission from their prince, the rest are not answerable for their act, whereas if they niade their attack by permission of their prince, the breach of treaty would be regarded as by the whole, all being virtually implicated in it

· If the Imam make peace with the aliens in return for property, there is no scruplo, because since peace may he lawfully made without any such gratification, it is also lawful m return for a gratification This, however, is only where the Muslims stand m need of the property thus to be acquired, for if they be not in necessity, making peace for property is not lawful, since peace is a desci tuon of war both in appearance and in effect It is to be observed that if the Imam receive this property by sending a messenger and making poace without the Muelim troops entering the enemy's territory, the object of disbursement of it is the same as that of juzyah or capitation-tax, that is, it is to be expended upon the warriors and not upon the poor If, however, the property be taken after the Muslims have invaded the enemy, in this case it is as plunder one fifth going to the Imam and the remainder to be divided among the troops, as the property has in fact been taken by force in this instance. It is incumbent on the Imam to keep peace with spostates, and not to make war upon them, in order that they may have time to consider their situation, since it is to be hoped that they may again return to the faith. It is, therefore, lawful to delay fighting with them in a hope that they may again embrace Islam, but it is not lawful to take property from them If, however, the Imam should take property from them, it is not incumbent upon him to return it, as such property is not in protection. If infidels harm is the Muslims, and offer them peace in return for property the Imam must not accode thereto, as this would be a degradation of the Mushim honour, and disgrace would be attached to all the parties concerned in it, this, therefore, is not lawful except where destruction is to be ap prehended, in which case the purchasing a peace with property is lawful because it is a duty to repel destruction in every possible mode"

[For Khalifah 'Uman's treatment of the garrison of Jerusalem when captured, see the treaty given in the article JERUSAI FR.]

JIHĀZ (١٠٠) (1) The wedding trousseau of a Muhammadan wife Those vestments and furniture which a bride brings to her husband a house and which ever remain the property of the wife (Hidayah, yol up 100) (2) The word is also used for the shroud of a de id Mushim

JINAYAH (أحم), pl Jināyut The legal term for all offences committed against the person such as murder, wounding, drowning &

JINN (-) [GENII]

JIRAN (()) "Neighbouis" If a person make a bequest to his neighbouis (pran) it includes according to some doctors, all those houses which are within forty cubits of his lonse in every direction Some say it is forty houses on either side of his (bus Baille & Digest of Indamyah Law, pp. 216, 346) [EKIGHBOLES]

JIRJIS (Control) George St. George of Pagland The author of the Alinyagu I Lughuh save that, 'Jingis Baqiyaris the name of a prophet who was on several occasions killed it his prophe, and was again raised to his by God, and over and over again instructed and preached the way of God. Ho is called Baqiya on account of his being raised up from the dead.' This seems to be a wild and exaggerated secount of the story of George of Cappidocia, who suffered death in the first year of the reign of Julian. It is a mystery how this Goorge ever was admitted into the Christian Calondar at all, and still more marvellous how he became a Muham madan prophet as well as the patron saint of lengland. Jalalu 'd-din as-Suyūtī, in his History of the Temple of Jerusalem, says

Jirjis was at Damascus in the time Mu'awiyah the Khalifah [AL-KHIZE.]

JIZYAH (4, ) The capitat tax, which is levied by Muhammadan ru upon subjects who are of a different fabut claim protection (aman) It is foun upon a direct injunction of the Qur' "Make war upon such of those, to whom Somptures have been given, as believe no God or in the last day, and forbid not twhich God and his Apostles have forbide and who profess not the profession of truintil they pay tribute (jizyah) out of thand, and they be lumbled"

According to the Hidäysh (vol 11 p 2 jizyah is of two kinds that which is estimated voluntarily, and that which is forced. The usual rate is one dinarevery make person, females and child being exempt according to Abū Hisfah, but included by Ash-Shāfi. should be imposed upon Jews, and Chians, and Magians but it should not accepted from the Alabian idelate or from apostates, who should be kill But from idelates of other countries the Arabia it may be accepted at should not lavied upon manks, or hermits, or paupe or slaves. He who pays the capitation is and obtains protection from the Muhamia dan state is called a zimmi

JOB Arabic Asymb ( ) Me tioned in the Quran as a prophet and example of patience

Surah xxi 83,84 "And remember Job who cried to his Lord, 'Tiuly evil hath touch int. but Thou art the most merculal of the who show morely. So we heard him, it ightened the burden of his woe and we gishim back his family, and as many more withom,—a mercy from us, and a memorial those who serve us."

Surah xxxviii 40-44 "And remember of servant Job when he cried to his Lo Verily, Satan hath laid on me disease a pain 'Stamp,' said we, 'with thy fo This is to wash with, cool, and to drink' A wo gave him back his fainily and as ma more with them in our mercy, and for monition to men of judgment. And we said 'Take in thine hand a rod, and strike with nor break thine eath' Verily, we found he patient' How excellent a servant, one we turned to Us was he!"

Surah iv 161 "And we have inspir thee as we inspired — Jesus and J and Jonali, and Aaron, and Solomon" Surah vi 84 "And we have guided

David and Solomon, and Job, and Joseph Mr Sale, following the commentate al-Jalalan and al Baizawi, says "The M hammadan writers tell us that Job was the race of Esan, and was blessed with numerous family and abundant riches, b that God proved him by taking away all the had, even his children, who were killed I the fall of a house notwithstanding which he continued to serve God and to return Hi thanks as usual, that he was then struck with a filthy disease, his body being full of worms and so offensive that as he lay on the dunghill none could bear to come near him that his wife, however (whom some call Rahmeh the daughter of Ephraim the son of Joseph, and others Makhir the daughter of Manasses), attended him with great patience, supporting him with what she earned by her labour, but that the devil appearing to her one day, after having reminded her of her past prosperity, promised her that if she would worship him he would restore all they had lost whereupon she asked her husband's consent, who was so angry at the proposal, that he swore, if he recovered, to give his wife a hundred stripes, and that after his affliction his wealth increased, his wife also becoming young and handsome again, and bearing him twenty-six sons Some, to express the great riches which were bestowed on Job after his sufferings , say he had two threshing-floors, one for wheat and the other for barley, and that God sent two clouds, which rained gold on the one and silver on the other till they ran over The traditions differ as to the continuance of Job's calamities one will have it to be eighteen years another, thirteen, another, three, and another, exactly seven years seven months and seven hours

JOHN BAPTIST Arabic Yahya

( ) Mentioned three times in the Qur'an,
The Eixth Sürah opens with an account of the Birth of John the Baptist -

"A recital of thy Lord's mercy to his servant Zacharias, when he called upon his Lord with secret calling, and said 'O Lord, verily my bones are weakened, and the hoar hairs glisten on my head, and never, Lord, have I prayed to Thee with ill success now I have fears for my kindred after me, and my wife is barren give me, then, a successor as Thy special gift, who shall be my heir and an heir of the family of Jacob and make him, Lord, well pleasing to Thee Zacharias! verily we announce to thee a son,—his name John that name We have given to none before him' He said 'O my Lord! how when my wife is barren shall I have a son, and when I have now reached old age, failing in my powers?' He said 'So shall it be. Thy Lord hath said, Easy is this to me, for I created thee aforetime when thou wast nothing' He said 'Vouchsafe me, O my Lord! a sign.' He said 'Thy sign shall be that for three nights, though sound in health, thou speakest not to man' And he came forth from the sanctuary to his people, and made signs to them to sing praises morn and even. We said 'O John! receive the Book with purpose of heart' -and We bestowed on him wisdom while yet a child, and mercifulness from Ourself, and purity, and pious was he, and duteous to his parents, and not proud, rebellions. And peace was on him on the day he was born, and the day of his death, and shall be on the day when he shall be raised to life!" Sürah xxi. 89 "And Zacharias, when he called upon his Lord saying, 'O my Lord, leave me not childless but there is no better heir than Thyself' So we heard him, and gave him John, and we made his wife fit for child-bearing. Verily, these vied in goodness, and called upon us with love and fear, and humbled themselves before us."

Surah vi 85 "And, we guided . . Zacharias, and John, and Jesus, and Elias, all righteous ones"

JOKING Arabic Muzāh (حاح) It is said Muhammad was fond of jesting, but Ibn 'Abbās relates that the Prophet said, "Do not joko with your brother Muslim to hurt him."

Anas relates that the Prophet said to an old woman, "No old woman will enter Paradise" The old woman said "Why?" And the Prophet said, "Because it is written in the Qur'an (Sürah lvi 35) 'We have made them virgins' There will be no old women in heaven" (Mishlāt, book xxii ch xii)

JONAH Arabic Yūnus (مولس). Mentioned in the Qur'an as a prophet, and as Sāhibu 'l-Hūt and Zū 'n-Nūn, "He of the Fish"

Surnhxxxvii 139-148 "Jonas, too, was one of the Apostles (mursalin), when he fied unto the laden ship, and lots were cast, and he was doomed, and the fish swallowed him, for he was blameworthy But had he not been of those who praiso Us, in its bolly had he surely remained, till the day of resurrection. And we cast him on the bare shore—and he was sick,—and we caused a gourd plant to grow up over him, and we sent him to a hundred thousand persons, or even more, and because they believed, we continued their enjoyments for a season."

Surah lxvii. 48-50 "Patiently then await the judgment of thy Lord, and be not like him who was in the fish (Sāhību '!-Hūt), when in deep distress he cried to God. Had not favour from his Lord reached him, cast forth would he have been on the naked shore, overwhelmed with shame but his Lord chose him and made him of the just."

Sürah z. 98 (called the Süratu Yünus)
"Verily they against whom the decree of thy Lord is pronounced, shall not believe, even though every kind of sign come unto them, till they behold the dolorous torment! Were it otherwise, any city, had it believed, might have found its safety in its faith. But it was so, only with the people of Jonas. When they believed, we delivered them from the penalty of shame in this world, and provided for them for a time. But if thy Lord had pleased, verily all who are in the earth would have believed together. What! wilt thou compal men to become helievers?"

Sürah vi 86 "We guided Ishmael and Ehshs, and Jonah, and Lot"

Sûrah xx: 87 "And Zu 'n-Num (he of the fish), when he went on his way in anger, and thought that we had no power over him But in the darkness he oried, There is no Ged but Thou Glory be note Thee! Verrly, I have been one of the evil deers' so we heard him and rescued him from misery for thus rescue we the faithful "

[Sale, in his Notes on the Quran, quoting from al-Jalalan and al-Barzawi, says "When Jonah first began to exhort the people to repentance, instead of hearkening to him, they used him very ill, so that he was obliged to leave the city, threatening them at ha de parture that they should be destroyed within three days, or, as others say within for y But when the time drew near and they naw the heavens overcast with a black cloud which shot forth fire and filled the air with smoke and bung directly over the city they were in a terrible consternation, and getting into the fields, with their families and cattle they put on sackcloth and humbled themselves before God, calling aloud for pardon and sincerely repenting of their past wicked-Here Wherenpon God was pleased to forgive them, and the storm blew over It is said that the fish, after it had availowed Jonah, swam after the ship with its head above water, that the prophet might breathe who con tinued to praise God till the hah came to land and vomited him out Some imagine Jonah's plant to have been I fig , and others, the mor (or banana), which hears very large leaves and excellent fruit, and that this plant withered the next morning, and that Jonah being much concerned at it God made a remonstrance to him in behalf of the Nine vites, agreeably to what is reported in tripinge "

JORDAN Arabic Ardan, Urdunn (ورس)) Referring to Surah in 30, the legend is that the priests threw lots by casting arrows into the river Jordan, as to which should take charge of the Virgin Mary after the Annunciation "Thou were not no them when they threw their lots which of them should take care of Mary, nor wert thou by them when they did dispute'

Joseph Arabic Yusuf (4) The son of Jacob, and, according to the Qur an, an inspired prophet. (Surahs vi 84, xl

The account of Joseph occupios a whole chapter in the Qur'an, entitled the Chapter of Yusul (Sürah xII) Al-Baigāwi says that certain Jews instigated the Quisish to inquire of Muhammad the story of Joseph and his family going into Egypt and that in order to prove the truth of his mission, God sent Mu hammad this chapter the Sinatu Yusuf, from heaven The same writer sats it is a most meritorious chapter, for whoseever shall read it and teach it to others shall have an easy death. (See al-Bazzawi in loco )

The story of Yuruf wa Zulankhah is one of the most popular love songs in the East was produced in Persian verse by Nüru'd dîn Abdu'r-Rahman ibn Ahmad Tami, A.H. 898 And the Shaikh Humdu lläh ibn Shamai 'd-din Muhammud (A R 909), rendered it into

Turki verse

The author of the Akhlaq-r-Jalak says

"We have it amongst the sayings of Muhammad that women should be forbidden to read or listen to the history of Joseph (as told en the Qur'an), lest it lead to their swerving from the rule of chastity" (Thompson's edition)

We give the account as told in the Quran, with the commentators' remarks in statics, as rendered by Mr Lane in his Selections from the Kuran (new ed by Mr S Lane Pools), the account of Joseph's temptation, which Mr Lane omits, being added from Rodwell's translation of the Qur'an

"Remember, when Joseph said unto his father () my father, verily I saw in sleep eleven stars and the sun and the moon I saw them making obeisance unto me He replied, O my child, relate not the vision to thy brethren lest they contrive a plot against thee, knowing its interpretation to be that they are the stars and that the sun is thy mother and the moun thy father, for the devil is unto man a manifest enemy. And thus as theu sawest, thy Lord will choose thee, and teach thee the interpretation of events, or dreams, and will accomplish his favour upon thee by the gift of prophecy, and upon the family of Jacob, as He accomplished it upon thy fathers before, Abraham and Isaac for thy Lord is knowing and wise -- Verily in the history of Joseph and his brethien are signs to the inquirers -When they (the h ethics of Joseph) said, one to another, Verily Jeeph and his brother Bengamin are dearer unto our father than we, and we are a number of men verily our father is in a manufest error, slay ye Joseph or diffe him away into a distant land so the face of your father shall be directed alone unto you requiring no other, and we shall be after it a just people -a speaker among them, wimely, Juliah, said, slay not Joseph, but throw him to the bottom of the well, then some of the travellers may light upon him, if ye do this And they were satisfied therewith. They said, O our father, wherefore dost thou not intrust us with Joseph, when verily we are faithful unto him? Send him with us to-morrow ento the plum, that he may divert himself and sport, and we will surely take care of him He replied, Venily your taking him away will grieve me, and I fear lest the wolf deyour him while ye are heedless of him They said, Surely if the wolf devour him, when we are a number of men, we shall in that case be indeed weak So he sent him with them when they went away with him, and agreed to put him at the bottom of the well, they did so, They pulled off his shirt, after they had beaten him and had treated him with contempt and hid desired to sky him, and they let him down, and when he had arrived half-way down the well they let him fall, that he migh die, and he fall into the water. He then betook himself to a mass of rock, and they called to him, so he unswered them, imagining that they would have mercy upon him. They however de They however de sired to crush him with a piece of rock, but Judah prevented them And We said unto him by revelation, while he was in the well (and he was seventeen years of age, or less), to queet

Ass heart, Thou shalt assuredly declare unto them this their action, and they shall not know thee at the time. And they came to their father at nightfall weeping. They said, O our father, we went to run races, and left Joseph with our clothes, and the wolf devoured him, and thou wilt not believe us, though we speak truth. And they brought false blood upon his shirt. Jacob said anto them, Nay, your minds have made a thing seem pleasant unto you, and ye have done it, but patience is seemly, and God's assistance is implored with respect to that which ye relate "And travellers came on these way from Midian to Egypt, and alighted near the well, and they sent their drawer of water, and he let down his bucket into the well so Joseph caught hold upon st, and the man drew him forth, and when he saw him, he said, O good ness! This is a young man!— And his brethren thercupon knew his case wherefore they cume nuto him, and they concealed his case, making him as a piece of merchandise, for they said. He is our slave who hath abscorded And Joseph was silen', few ing lest they study slay him And God knew that which they did And they sold him for a mean price, [for] some dirhems counted down, twenty, or two and-twenty, and they were indifferent to him The travellers then hought him to Egypt and he who had bought him sold him for twenty deenter and a part of shoes and two garments. And the Egypti in who bought him namely, Kitfeer (Litf's on Itf's), said unto his wite Zeleekha (Zalik'ia) front him hospitably, poradventure he may be advantageous to us or we may adopt him as a son for he was childless. And thus We prepared an establishment for Joseph in the land of Equpt, to teach but the interpretation of events, or dream, for God is well able to effect His purpose but the greater number of men, namely, the unbelievers, know not this And when he had attained his age of strongth (thirty yea s, or three-und-thirty, We bestowed on him wisdom and knowledge in matters of religion, before he was sent as a prophet, for thus do We recompense the well-doers" (Surah xii

"And she in whose house he was, concerved a passion for him, and sue shut the doors and said, 'Come bither' He said. God keep me! Verily, my loid hath given me a good home and the injurious shall not presper

4-22.)

"But she longed for him and he had longed for her had he not sacin a token from his Lord. Thus we averted evil and defilement from him, for he was one of our sincers servants."

"And they both made for the door, and she rent his shirt behind, and at the door they met her lord 'What' said she, 'shall be the recompense of him who would do evil to thy family but a prison of a sore punishment?'

family but a prison of a sore punishment?"

"He said, 'She solicited me to evil' And a witness out of her own family witnessed
"If his shirt he rent in front she speaketh truth, and he is a liar

"'But if his shirt be rent behind, she lieth and he is true'

"And when his lord saw his shirt tern behind, he said, 'This is one of your devices' verily your devices are great!

"'Joseph! leave this affair And thou, O sunned'

"And in the city, the women said, 'The wife of the Prince hath solicited her servant he hath fired her with his love but we clearly see her manufest error'

"And when she heard of their cabal, she sent to them and got ready a banquet for them, and gave each one of them a knife, and said. 'Joseph shew thyself to them' And said. 'Joseph shew they saw him 'bey were amazed at him, and cut their hands, and said, 'God keep us! This is no man' This is no other than a noble angel!

"She said, 'This is he about whom ye blamed me. I vished him to yield to my desires, but he stood turn. But if he obey not my command, he shall surely be cast into prison, and become one of the despised.'

'He said, 'O my Lord! 1 prefer the prison to compliance with their bidding but unless thou turn away their snares from me, I shall play the youth with them and become one of the nawive.'

"And his Lord heard him and turned aside their sucres from him—for He is the Hearer, the Knower" (Rodwell, Süish xu 28-34)

"Then it seemed good anto them, after they had seen the signs of his innecence, to impreson hem. They will assuredly impreson him for a time unto the talk of the people respect ing him cease. So they imprisoned him. And there entered with him into the prison two young men seriants of the king, one of whom was nis cup leaves and the other was his victualler. And they found that he interpreted dieans wherefore one of them namely, the cup heare, said, I dreamed that I wa pre-sing grapes and the other said, I dreamed that I was carrying upon my head some bread whereof the birds did eat acquaint us ith the interprotation thereof 500 We est thee to be one of the beneacent -He replied There shall not come urto you are food wherewith ye shall be fed in a dream, but I will acquaint you with the interpretation thereof when ye are anuke, before the interpretation of it come unto you This is a part of that which my Lord hath taught me. Verily I have abandoned the religion of a people who believe not in God and who dis believe in the world to come, and I follow the religion of my fathers, Abraham and Isaar and Iacob It is not not for us to asso-ciate anything with God This knowledge of the unity hath been given us of the bounty of God towards us and towards mankind, but the greater number of men are not thankful. O ye two companions (or inmutes) of the prison, are sundry lord, better, or is God, the One, the Almighty? Ye worship not, beside Him, aught save names which ye and your fathers have given to idols, concerning which God hath not sent down any convincing save unto God alone He hath commanded that ye worship not any but Him This is the right religion, but the greater number of men know not O ye two companions of the prison, as to one of you, namely, the cupterer, he will serve wine unto his lord as formedly, and as to the other he will be cruformerly; and as to the other, he will be cru-cified, and the birds will eat from off his head. Upon this they said, We dreamed not aught. He replied, The thing is decreed concerning which ye [did] ask a determination, whether ye have spoken truth or have hed And he said unto him whom he judged to be the person who should escape of them two, namely the cup bearer, Mention me unto thy lord, and say unto him, In the prison is a young man impresoned unjustly—And he went forth But the devil caused lum to forget to men tion Joseph unto his lord so he remained in the prison some years it is said, seven, and st is said, twelve

"And the king of Equpt, Er Reigan the son of El-Weleed (Raigan ibn al Wolld al-Imliqi) sald, Verily I saw in a dicam seven fat kine which seven loan Line devoured, and seven green ears of corn and seven other ears dried up O ye nobles explain unto mo my dream, if ye interpret a dream —They replied, These are confused droams, and wo know not the interprotation of droams. And he who had eecaped, of the two young men, namely the cup-bearer, said (for heremombered after a time the condition of Joseph), I will acquaint you with the interpretation thereof wherefore soud me So they sent h m, and he came unto Joseph, and said, O Joseph, O thou of great versarity, give ue an explanation respecting seven fat kine which seven lesn kine devoured, and soven gicon one of corn and other seven dried up, that I may return unto the mon (the king and his companions), that they may know the intermetation thereof He replied, Ye shall sow seven yours as usual (this is the interpretation of the seven fat hane ) and what yo reap do ye leave in its ear, lest it spoil, except a little, whereof ye shall cat Then there shall come, after that, seven griovous [yours] (this is the in interpretation of the seven lean kine ) they shall consume what ye shall have provided for them, of the grain sown in the seven years of plenty, except a little which ye shall have kept Thon there shall come, after that, a year wherein men shall be aided with rain, and wherein they shall press grapes and other frusts —And the king said, when the mes-senger came unto him and acquainted him with the interpretation of the dream Bring unto me him who hath interpreted it ' (Surah xii 85-50)

"And when the messenger came to Joseph, he said, 'Go back to thy lord, and ask him what meant the women who cut thoir hands, verily my lord knoweth the snare they laid Then, said the Prince to the women, 'What was your purpose when ye selected Joseph? They said, 'God keep us' we know not any ill of hum.' The wafe of the Prince said, · Now doth the truth appear It was I who would have led him into unlawful love, and he is assuredly one of the truthful' 'This,' said Joseph, 'that my lord may learn that I did not in his absence play him false, and that God guideth net the machinations of deceivers Yet do I not absolve myself verily the heart is prone to evil, save these on which my Lord has mercy Lol my Lord is Gracious, Fergiving, Merciful' And the King said, 'Bring him to me I will take him for my special service'" (Rodwell, Sūrah xn. 50-54)

"And when he had spoken unto him, he said unto him, Thou art this day firmly esta-blished with us, and intrusted with our affairs What then seest thou fit for us to do? -He answered, Collect provision, and sow abundant seed in these plentiful years, and store up the grain in its ear then the people will come unto thee that they may obtain provision from thee The king said, And who will act for me in the affair ? Joseph said, Set me over the guanarios of the land, for I am careful and knowing — Thus did We prepare an establishment for Joseph in the land, that he might take for himself a dwelling therein wherever he pleased -And it is related that the king crowned him, and put a ring on his finger, and instated him in the place of Kitfeer, whom he dismissed from his office, after which, Kitfeer died, and thereupon the king married him to his wife Zelerkua, and she bore him two sons We bestow Our mercy on whom We please, and Wo cause not the reward of the welldoes to pensh and certainly the reward of the world to come is better for those who have believed and have feared

And the years of scarcity began, and afflicted the land of Cunaan and Syria, and the biethron of Joseph came, except Benjamin, to procure provision, having heard that the governor of Lyopt gave food for its price And they went it unto him, and he knew them, but they knew him not, and they spake unto him in the Hebrow language, whereupon he said, as one who distrusted them, What hath brought you to my country? So they answered, For corn But he said, Perhaps ye are spies I hey replied, God preserve us from being spies ! He vaid, Then whence are ye? They answered, It wand, I hen whence are yet a neg answeren, I som the land of Canaan, and our father is lacob the prophet of God. He said, And hath he sons beside you? They answered, Yea we were twelve, but the youngest of us went away, and perished in the desert, and he was the dearcst of us unto him, and his uterine brother remained, and he retained him that he might console himself thereby for the loss of the other And Joseph gave orders to lodge them, and to treat them generously And when he had furnished them with their provision, and given them their full measure, he said, Bring me your brother from your father, namely, Benjamin, that I may know your veracity in that ye have said. Do ye not see that I give full measure, and that I am the most hospitable of the receivers of guests! But if ye bring him net, there shall be no measuring of corn for you from me, nor shall ye approach me. They replied, We will solicit his father for him, and we will surely perform that And he said anto his young men, Put their money, which they brought as the price of the corn, in their sacks, that they may know it when they have returned to their family peradventure they will return to us. for they will not deem it lawful to keep't! —And when they returned to their father, they said, O our father, the measuring of corn is denied us of thou send not our brother unto him, therefore send with us our brother, that we may obtain measure, and we will surely take care of him He said, Shall I intrust you with him otherwise than as I intrusted you with his brother Joseph before? But God is the best guardian, and He is the most merciful of those who show mercy-And when they opened their goods, they found their money had been returned unto them They said, Oour father, what desire we of the gene-rosity of the king greater than this? This our rosity of the king greater than this? money hath been returned unto us, and we will provide corn for our family, and will take care of our brother, and shall receive a camel-load more, for our brother This is a quantity load more, for our brother This is a quantity easy unto the king, by reason of his munificence—He said, I will by no means send him with you until ye give me a solemn promise by God that ye will assuredly bring him back unto me unless an inevitable and insuperable impediment encompass you And they complied with this his desire And when they had given him their solemn promise, he said. God is witness of what we eay And he sent him with them, and he said, O my sons, enter not the city of Miser by one gate, but enter by different gates, lest the ent eye fall upon you. But I shall not avert from you, by my saying this, anything decreed to be fall you from God I only say this from a feeling of com-passion Judgment belongeth not unto any save unto God alone On Him do I rely, and on Him let those rely who rely

"And when they entered as their father had commanded them, separately, it did not avert from them anything decreed to befall them from God, but only satisfied a desilo in the soul of Jacob, which he accomplished that is, the desire of averting the evil eye, arising from a feeling of compassion and he was ondowed with knowledge, bocause Wo had taught him but the greater number of mon, namely the unbelievers, know not God's inspiration of his saints And when they went in unte Joseph, he received unto him (or pressed unto him) his brother He said, He said, Verily, I am thy brother therefore be not sorrowful for that which they did from envy to us And he commanded him that he should not inform them, and agree with him that he should employ a stratagem to retain him with him And when he had furnished them with their provision, he put the cup, which was a measure made of gold set with jewels, in the sack of his brother Benjamin cried, after they had gone forth from the chamber of Joseph, O company of travellers, ye are surely theves They said (and turned unto them), What is it that ye miss? They answered, We miss the king's measure, and to hum who shall bring it shall be given a camel-load of corn, and I am surety for it. namely the load. They replied, By God! ye well know that we have not come to act oorruptly in the land, and we have not been thieves The errer and his companions said, Then what shall be the recompense of him who hath stolen it, if ye be liars in your saying, We have not been threver,—and it be found among you? They answered, His recompense shall be that he in whose sack it shall be found shall be made a slave he, the thief, shall be compensation for it, namely, for the thing stolen. Such was the usage of the family of Jacob Thus do We recompense the offenders who are guilty of theft -So they turned towards Joseph, that he might search their sacks And he began with their sacks, and searched them before the sack of his brother Benjamin, lest he should be suspected. Then he took it forth (namely the measure) from the sack of his biother Thus, eath God, did We contrive a stratagem for Joseph It was not lawful for him to take his brother as a slave for theft by the law of the king of Egypt (for his recompense by his law was beating, and a fine of twice the value of the thing stolen, not the being made a slave), unless God had pleased, by inspiring him to inquire of his brethren and inspiring them to reply according to their usage. We exalt unto dogrees of knowledge and honour whom We please, as Joseph, and there is who is knowing about everyone elso endowed with knowlodge -They said, It he steal, a brother of his hath stolen before, namely, Joseph, for he stole an idol of gold belonging to the father of his mother, and broke it, that he might not And Joseph concealed it in his worship st mind and did not discover it to them said within himself, Ye are in a worse condition than Joseph and his brother, by reason of your having stolen your brother from your father and your having treated him unjustly, and God well knoweth what ye state concerning him .-They said, () prince, verily he hath a father, a very old man, who loveth him more than us, and consoleth himself by him for the loss of his son who hath perished, and the separation of him greeth him, therefore take one of us as a slave in his stead, for we see thee [to be one] of the beneficent He replied, God pre serve us from taking [any] save him in whose possession we found our property, for then (if we took another), we [should be] un-

And when they dospaired of obtaining him, they retired to confer privately together. The chief of them in age (namely, Reuben, or in judgment, namely, Judah), said, Do yo not know that your father hath obtained of you as solemn promise in the name of God, with respect of your brother, and how we formerly failed if your duty with respect to Joseph? Therefore I will by no means depart from the land of Egypt until my father give me permission to return to kim, or God decide for me by the delivery of my brother, and He is the best, the most just, of those who decide. Return ye to your father, and say, O our father verily thy son hath committed theft, and we bore not testimony against him have according to that which we knew of a certainty by ou. seeing the cup in his took and we were not acquainted with what was unseen by us when we gave the solemn promuse had we known that he would commit theft, we had not taken him And send thou, and ask the people of the city in which we have been (namely, Misr) and the company of travellers with whom we have arrived (who were a people of Canaan) and we are surely speakers of truth - to they re turned to him, and said unto him those words He replied, Nay, your minds have made a thing seem pleasant unto you, and ye have done it (he suspected them, on account of then former conduct in the case of Joseph), but patience is seemly peradventure God will bring them back (namely, Joseph and his hiother) unto me, together, for He is the Knowing with respect to my case, the Wiss in His att And he turned from them, and said, Ol my sorrow for Joseph! And his eyes became white in consequence of mourning, and he was oppressed with silent grief They said, By God, thou wilt not cease to think upon Joseph until thou be at the point of death or be of the number of the dead He replied, I only complam of my great and unconcests ble grief and my sorrow unto God, not unto any beside Him, for He it is unto whom complaint is made with advantage, and I know by revelation from God what ye know not , namely, that the dream of Joseph was true, and that he is hing I'h n he said, O my sons, go and seek news of Joseph and his brother, and despair not of the meroy of God for none despaneth of the mercy of God except the unbelieving people

"So they departed towards Jupt unto Joseph, and when they went in unto him, they said, () Princo, disticas (that is hunger) hath affected us and our family, and we have come with pultry money (it was base money, or some other sort) yet give us full measure, and be charitable to us, by excuring the badness of our money, for God recompenseth those who act charitably And he had pity upon them, and companyon affected him and he lifted up the curtain that was between him and then then he said unto themen reprouch, Do ye know what ye did unto Joseph, in beating and selling and other actions and his brother, by your injurious conduct to him after the separation of his brother, when he were ignorant of what would be the result of the cane of Joseph ! They replied, after they had accognised him (desiring confirmation), Ait thou indeed Joseph? He answered I am Joseph, and Joseph? this is my brother God hath been gracious unto us, by bringing us together, for whose over feareth God and is patient [will be rewarded] God will not suffer the reward of the well-doors to perish. They replied By God, verily God hath preferred thee above ns, and we have been indeed sinners. Ho said, There shall be no reproach oast on you this day God forgive you, for He is the most merciful of those that show mercy And he usked them respecting his father so they answered, Hix eyes are gone And he said, Go ye with this my shirt (it was the shirt of Abraham, which he were when he was cast into the fire it was on his, that is, Joseph's neck, appended as an amulet, in the well, and it was from paradus Gabriel commanded him to send st, and said, In it is its odow, that is, the odour of paradise, and it shall not be cast upon any one afflicted with a disease but he shall be restored to health), and cast it, said Joseph. upon the face of my father he shall recover his sight and bring unto me all your family -And when the company of travellers had gone forth from El-'Areesh of Egypt, their father said, unto those who were present of has offspring, Verily I perceive the smell of Joseph (for the zephyr had conveyed it to him, by peronession of Him whose name be exalted, from the austance of three days journey, or eight, or more) were it not that ye think I dote, ye would believe me They replied, Ry God, thou art surely in thine old error And when the messenger of good tidings (namely, ludah) reams with the shirt (and he had borne the bloody shirt, wherefore he desired to rejoice him, as he had greeted him), he cast it upon his fare, and he recovered his eight Thereupon Jacob said, Did I not say unto you, I knew, from God, what ye knew not? They said O our father, ask pardon of our crimes for us for we have been sinners. He replied I will ask paidon for you of my Lord for He is the Very forgiving, the Merciful.-He delayed dury so unral the first appearance of the auwn, that the prayer might be more likely to be answered, or, as some say, until the night of [that is, presed ng] Friday. They then repaired to Egypt, and Joseph and the great men came forth to meet them, and when they went in unto Joseph, in his pavilion or tent. he received unto him (or pressed into him) has parents (his father and his mother and his maternal auni), and said unto them, Enter ve Miss, if God please, in eafer, So they entered and Joseph seated himself upon his couch, and he caused his parents to ascend upon the seat of state, and they (that is, his parents and his brethren) fell down, bowing themselves unto him (bending, but not putting the farehead) upon the ground such being their mode of obersance in that time said. O my father, this is the interpretation of my dream of former times my Lord hath made it time and He bath shown isvous unto me, since He took me forth from the prison (he sord not, from the well,-from a motive of generosity, that his brethren might not be abushed), and hath brought you from the desert, after that the devil had excited discord between me and my brethren, for my Lord is gracious unto whom He pleaseth, for He is the Knowing, the Wise -- And his father resided with him four and twenty years, or seventeen, and the period of his separation was eighteen, and the person of nessembles, and death eighteen, or forty, or eighty years. And death came unto him, and thereupon he charged Joseph that he should carry him and bury him by his futhers. So he went himself and buried him. Then he returned to Egypt and remainer after him three and twenty years, and when his case was ended, and he knew that he should not last upon earth, and his soul desired the lasting passession, he said, O my Lord, Thou hast given me domimon, and taught me the interpretation of events (or dreams) Creator of the heaven; and the earth, Thou art my guardian in this world and in the world to Make me to die a Muslim, and join me with the righteous among my forefuthers And he lived after that a week or more, and died a hundred and twenty years old And the Egyptians disputed concerning his burial so they put him in a chest of marble, and buried him in the upper part of the Nile, that the blessing resulting from him might be general to the tracts on each side of it Extolled be the perfection of Him to whose dominion there is no end' (Surah vn 54 to the end)

For the Talmude origin of this account,

HOO JUDAISM

JOSHUA Arabic Yūsho' (يوهع) Son of Nun. Not mentioned by name in the Qur'an, but is most probably "the servant" mentioned in Sürah zvill 59 "When Moses said to his servant, 'I will not stop until I reach the confinence of the two seas, or for years I will journey on." (Vid. al-Baizāwī in loco)
Some say he is the Zū 'l-Rifl of Sūrah xxi
85 [LU 'L-RIFL]

JUBAIK (pas) Jubair ibn Mutum an-Naufali One of the Companions, and acknowledged as a traditionist by al-Bukhari and Muslim He was one of the most learned of the Quraish chiefs Died at Makkah a H 54 Ibn Jubair, his son was an Imam of great ionown, he died A H '99

(جب العرن) 'L-HUZN JUBBU "The pit of sorrow," which Muhammad said was a desert in hell, from which holl itself calls for protection, and which is reserved for readers of the Qur'an who are haughty in their bohaviour (Mishkat, book u ch iii)

JUDGE Arabic Qazī (قامى) A magistrate or judge appointed by the ruler of a Muhammadan country He should be an adult, a free man, a Muslim, sane, and un-convicted of slander (qazf) It becomes a convicted of slander (qazf) Muslim not to covet the appointment of Qazi, for the Prophet has said "Whoever seeks the appointment of Qazī shall be left alone, but to him who accepts the office on compulsion, an angel shall descend and guide him "

(Mishkat, book zvi ch iu) The Qazī must exercise his office in some public place, the ohief mosque being recommended, or, if in his own house, he should see that the public have free access He must not accept any presents except from relatives and old friends, nor should be attend feasts and entertainments given by others than his In addition to his relatives and friends duties as magistrate, it is his duty to attend funerals and weddings, and when present it is his right and office to perform the ceremonies A woman may exercise the office of a Qani, except in the administration of punishment (hadd) or retaliation (quad). (Hidayah, vol. i, p. 613)

JUDGMENT-DAY Arabic Quemah (doles) RESURBECTION ]

AL-JÜDİ (الجدى) Mount Ararat, upon which the ark of Noah rested Mentioned in the Qur'an, Sarah x 46 "And it (the ark) settled on al Jüdt"

Judi is a corruption apparently for Mount Grouds, the Gordves of the Greeks, situated between Armenia and Mesopotamia

Alnsworth, in his Travels in the Truck of the Ten Thousand says tradition still points to Jabal Juda as the scene of the event, and maintains the belief that fragments of the ark exist on its summit

Whiston, in his History of Armenia, p. 861, says Araratea is the name of a province and not of a mountain in Armenia

JUI. (Jan) The hire or reward of labour An extraordinary pay or donation. In the language of the law, a reward for bringing back a fugitive slave

همادی) 'L-UKHRA JUMADA The sixth month of the Muhammadan year [MONTHS.]

(جمادى الاولى) JUMĀDĀ 'L-ŪLĀ The fifth month of the Muhammadan year [MONTHS]

JUM'AH ( [PRIDAY ]

Separated" The nuclean A person who is in a state of uncleanness [JANABAH] whereby he or she cannot perform any religious act or join in religious assemblies [PURIFICA-TION ]

JURF (حزب ) Lit "A wasted river-bank" A place three miles from al-Madinah celebrated in Muhammadan history

JUSTIFIABLE HOMICIDE The Muhammadan law on the subject is as fol-

' If any person d-aw a sword upon a Muslim he (the Muslim) is at liberty to kill him in self-defence, because the Prophet has said, 'He who draws a sword upon a Muslim renders his blood liable to be shed with impumity', and also, because a person who thus draws a sword is a robel and guilty of sedi tion, and it is lawful to slay such, God having said, in the Qur'an, 'Slay those who are guilty of sedition, to the end that it may be prevented. Besides, it is indispensably requisite that a man repel murder from himself and as, in the present instance, there is no method of effecting this but by slaying the person, it is consequently lawful so to do If however, it be possible to effect the seli-defence without slaying the person, it is not lawful to slay him. It is written in the Jama Sagheer (al-Jami'u 's-Sughir), that if a person strike at another with a sword, during either night or day, or lift a club against another in the night in a city, or in the day-time in the highway out of the city, and the person so threatened kill him who thus strikes with the sword, or lifts the club, nothing is incurred, because, as striking with a sword affords no room for delay or deliberation, it is in this case necesto kill the person in order to repel him, and although, in the case of a club, there be more room for deliberation, yet in the night time assistance cannot be obtained, and hence the person threatened is in a manner forced, in repelling the other's attack, to kill him (And so likewise where the attack is made during the day-time in the highway, as there assistance cannot readily be obtained) Where, therefore, a person thus slays another, the blood of the slam is of no account If a innatic draw a sword upon a person, and the person slay him, the fine of blood is due from his property, and does not fail upon his Akilas (Agilah) As-Shaff's maintains that nothing whatever is mourred in this instance in the same manner, also, if an infant draw a eword and make an attack upon a person, or if an animal attack anyone, and the person so attacked slay the infant, or the animal, a fine is due on account of the infant, or the value on account of the anunal, according to Abu Hanifah, but not according to ash-Shan'ı

"If a person draw a sword upon another, and strike him, and then go away, and the person struck, or any other, afterwards kill this person, he is liable to retaliation. This is where the etriker retires in such a way as indicates that he will not strike again, for as, upon his so retiring, he no longer continues an asseriant, and the protection of his blood (which had been forfeited by the assault) reverts, retaination is consequently incurred by killing him

"If a person come in the night to a stranger, and carry off his goode by theft, and the owner of the goods follow and slay him, nothing whatever is incurred, the Prophet having eaid, 'Ye may kill in preservation of your property' It is to be observed, however, that this is only where the owner cannot recover his property but by killing the thief for if he know that upon his calling out the thief would relinquish the goods, and he notwithstanding neglect calling out, and slay him, retaliation is incurred upon him, since he in this oase slays the person unrighteously." (Heds yah, vol iv p 291)

JUWAIRIYAH (مونية) One of Muhammad's wives She was the daughter of the chief of the Bani 'i-Mustahq She survived the Prophet some years

Sir Wilham Mur writes (Life of Mahomet new ed p 309) "The captives of the Ban Mustabok having been carried to Medina with the rest of the booty, men from their tribe soon arrived to make terms for their release One of them was Juwerria, a damsel about twenty years of age, full of grace and beauty the daughter of a chief, and married to one of her own tribe She fell to the lot of a citizen, who, taking advantage of her rank and comeliness, fixed her ransom at nine ounces of gold Despairing to raise so large a sum, she ventured into the presence of the Prophet, while seated in the apartment of Ayesha, and pleaded for some remission of the heavy price demanded for her freedom. Ayesha no sooner saw that she was fair to look upon, and of a sprightly winning carriage, than her jealousy prognosticated what was about to come to pass Mahomet listened to her supplications 'Wilt thou hearken,' he said, 'to something better than that thou askest of me?' burprised by his gentle accents, she inquired what that might be 'Even that I should pay thy ransom, and marry thee myself!' The damsel forthwith expressed her consent, the ransom was paid, and Mahomet, taking her at once to wife, built a seventh house for her recept on As soon as the marriage was noised abroad, the people said that the Bam Mustalick naving now become their relatives, they would let the rest of the prisoners go free as Juweiria's dower, 'and thue no woman,' said Ayesha, telling the story in after days, was ever a greater blessing to her people than this Juwenne.'"

JUZ' (*)+) One of the thirty portions into which the Qur'an is divided [BIPARA]

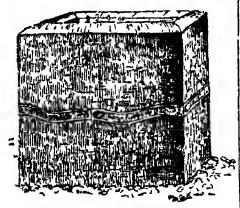

K.

(كعبة) KA'BAH Lit "A cube" The oubs-like building in the centre of the mosone at Makkah, which contains the Hajaru 'l-Aswad, or black stone

I A Description of the Karbah —It 18, 80 cording to Burckbardt and Burton an oblong massive structure 18 paces in length, 14 in breadth, and about 35 feet in height. It is constructed of grey Makken stone, in large blocks of different sizes, joined together in a very rough manner, with cement (Burton says it is excellent mortar, like Roman eement) The Ka'bah etands upon a base two feet in height, which presents a sharp mehned plane, its roof being flat, it has, at a distance, the appearance of a perfect cube. The only door which affords entrance, and which is opened but two or three times in the year (Burton says it can be entered by pilgruns, by paying the guardian a liberal fee), is on the east side, and about seven feet above the ground At the south-east corner of the Ka'bah, near the door, se the famous black stone [HAJARU 'L-ASWAD], which forms a part of the sharp angle of the building, at four or five feet above the ground The black etone is an irregular oval, about seven inches m diameter, with an undulating surface, composed of about a dozen smaller stones of different shapes and sizes It is surrounded on all sides by a border of reddish brown cement, both the stone and the border being eneuroled by a band of a massive arch of gold or silver gilt, the aperture of the stone being one span and three fingers broad the corner facing the south, there is another atone about five feet from the ground It is one foot and a half in length, and two inches in breadth, placed upright, and of common Makkan stone According to the rites of the pilgrimage, this stone, which is called ar Ruknu 'l-Yamani, or Yaman pillar, should only be touched with the right hand as the pilgrim passes it, but Captain Burton says he frequently saw it kissed by the pilgrims Just by the door of the Ka'bah, and close to the wall, is a elight hollow in the ground, lined with marble and sufficiently large to admit of three persons sitting, which is called al-Mijan, and supposed to be the place where Abraham and hie son Ishmael kneaded the chalk and mud which they used to build the Ka'bah. Here it is thought meritorioue to pray On the basic of the Ka'bah, just above the Mijan, is an ancient Kufic inscription, which norther Burckhardt nor Burton were able to decipher or to copy On the northwest side of the Karbah, about two feet below its summit, is the water-epout, which is called the Mı'zābu' r Rahmah, or the water-spout of mercy This spout is of gold, and was some hither from Constantinople in AH 981 It carries rain from the roof, and discharges it upon Ishmael's grave There are two large green marble slabs, which are said to have been presents from Cairo, A. H. 241, which are supposed to mark the graves of Hagur and Ishmsel. The pavement round the Karbah consists of a very handsome messic of various coloured stones, and 1- said to have been laid down a H 826 On one eide of the Kathah ie a semicircular wall, the extremities of which are in a line with the eides of the Ka'bah, and distant about vix foot leaving an opening which leads to the grave of Ishmael The wall is called al Hatim, "the broken' and the enclosed area al-Hijr, "the enclosure." The Kabah is covered with a coarse tissue of mixed silk and cotton, being of a brilliant black colour, and with a gold band round it, upon which is macribed the ninetieth verse of the third chapter of the Qu'ran "Verily the first home founded for mankind was surely that at Bakkah, for a blessing and a guidance to mankind" The inscription being in large Kufic characters. For a further account of this cover, see KISWAH

THE KA'BAH (From a Photograph)

THE RA'BAH (Burton)

II The History of the Kathah, is embraced in the history of the Baitu 'llah or masjidu 'I-HARAM

According to the Traditions and the inventive gen us of Muslim writers, the Ka'bah was first constructed in heaven (where a model of it still iem ins, called the Baitu'l-Ma mur) two thousand years before the creation of the world Adam erected the Kathah on earth exactly below the spot its perfect model occupies in heaven, and selected the stones from the five sacred mountains, Smar, al Judi, Hira', Ohyet and Lebanon Tsn thousand angels were appointed to guard the structure, but, as Buickhardt remarks, they appear to have been often most remies in their duty! At the Deluga the Sacred House was destroyed But the Almightv in said to have instructed Abraham to rebuild it In its reconstruction Abraham was assisted by his son Ishmael, who with his mother Hagar were at the time residents of Makkah, Abraham having journeved from Sylla in order to obey the commands of God

Upon digging they found the original foundations of the building. But wanting a stone to mark the corner of the building, Ishmael started in search of one, and as he was gring in the direction of Jabal Qubais, the angel dabriel not aum and gave him the famous black ston. Ibn 'Abbas relates that the Prophet said, the black stone when it came down from Paradise was whiter than milk, but that it has become black from the sins of those who have touched it (Mishk it, book xi ch iv pb 2)

Upon the death of lehmsel the Kathah fell into the possession of the Banu Jurhum, and remained in their hands for a thousand years. It then became the property of the Bann Khuza'ah, who held it for three hundred years But being constantly exposed to torrents, it was destroyed, and was rebuilt by Qusaiy ibn Kılab, who put a top to it Up to this time it is said to have been open at the roof

It is said, by Muhammadan historians, that Amr ibn Luhary was the first who introduced idolatry into Arabia, and that he brought the great idol Hubal from Hait in Mesopotamia and placed it in the sacred house It then became a Pantheon common to all the tribes [IDOLS] The tribe of Quanty were the first who built dwelling-houses round the Ka'bah The successors of the Banu Quesiy were the Quraish. Soon after they came into possession, the Kathah was destroyed by fire, and they rebuilt it of wood and of a smaller size, than it had been in the time of the Banu The roof was supported within by six pillars, and the statuo of Hubal was placed over a wall then existing within the Kabah This took place during the youth of Minhammad Al-Azraqi, quoted by Burckhardt, says that the figure of the Virgin Mary and the infant Jesus was sculptured as a deity upon one of the six pillars nearest the gate.

The grandfather of Muhammad, 'Abdu 'l-Muttalib, the son of Hashim, became the custodian of the Sacred Honse, and during his time, the Ka'bah being considered too low in Its structure, the Quraish wished to raise it, so they demolished it and then they rebuilt till the work reached the place of the black stone Each tribe wishing to have the honour of raising the black stone into its place, they quarrelled amongst themselves But they at last agreed that the first man who should enter the gate of the enclosure should be umpire Mnhammad was the first to enter, and he was appointed umpire He thereupon ordered them to place the stone upon a cloth and each tribe by its representative to take hold of the cloth and lift it into its place The dispute was thus ended, and when the stone had reached its proper place, Muhammad fixed it in its situation with his own hand.

At the commencement of Muhammad's mission, it is remarkable that there is scarcely an allosion to the Ka'bah, and this fact, taken with the circumstance that the earliest Qiblah or direction for prayer, was Jerusalem, and not the Ka'bah, seems to imply that Muhammad's strong iconoclastic tendencies did not incline his sympathics to this ancient idol temple with its superstitions ceremonies. Had the Jews favourably received the new prophet as one who taught the religion of Abraham, to the abrogation of that of Mosss and Jesus, Jerusalem and not Makkah would have been the sacred city, and the ancient Rock [SAKHBAH] and not the Ka'bah would have been the object of superstitious reverence

Taking the Sūrahs obronologically, the carliest reference in the Qur'an to the Ka'bah accurs in Sūrah lii. 4, where the Prophet wears by the frequented house (al-Bastu'l-Ma'mur), but commentators are not agreed whether it refers to the Ka'bah in Makkah, or its heavenly model above, which is said to be frequented by the angels. We then come to Sürah xvii 1, where Muhammad refers to his celebrated night dream of his journey from the Sacred Mosque (al-Masjidu'l-Harām) at Makkah to the Remote Mosque (al-Masjidu'l-Agra) at Jerusalem And in this verse we find the Rock at Jerusalem spoken of as "the precinct of which We (God) have blessed, to show him (Muḥammad) of our signs," proving that even then the Prophet of Arabia had his heart fixed on Mount Zion, and not on the Ka'bah

When Muhammad found himself established in al-Madinah, with a very good prospect of his obtaining possession of Makkah, and its historic associations, he seems to have withdrawn his thoughts from Jerusalem, and its Sacred Rook and to fix them on the house at Bakkah as the home founded for mankind,—Blessed, and a guidance to all creatures. (Sürah in 90) The Jews proving obdurate, and there being little chance of his succeeding in establishing his claim as their prophet spoken of by Moses, he changes the Qiblah, or direction for prayer, from Jerusalem to Makkah The house at Makkah is made "a place of resort unto men and a sanctuary" (Sürah ii 119)

The Qibiah is changed by an express command of the Almighty, and the whole passage is remarkable as exhibiting a decided concession on the part of Muhammad to the claims of the Kathah as a central object of adoration.

(Surah m 188-145)

"We appointed the Qiblah which thou formerly hadst, only that we might know him who followeth the apostle, from him who turneth on his heels. The change is a difficulty, but not to those whom God hath guided But God will not let your faith be fruitless, for unto man is God Merciful, Gracious We have seen thee turning thy face towards every part of Heaven, but we will have thee turn to a Qiblah which shall please thee Turn then thy face towards the sacred Mosque, and wherever ye be, turn your faces towards that part They, verily, to whom 'the Book' hath been given, know this to be the truth from their Lord and God is not regardless of what ye do Even though thou shouldest bring every kind of sign to those who have received the Scriptures, yet thy Qiblah they will not adopt, nor shalt thou adopt their Qiblah, nor will one part of them adopt the Qiblah of the other And if, after the knowledge which hath come to thee, thou follow their wishes, verily then wilt thou be-come of the unrighteous. They to whom we have given the Scriptures know him—the aposite—even as they know their own children but truly a part of them do conceal the truth, though acquainted with it. The truth is from thy Lord. Be not then of those who doubt All have a quarter of the Heavens to which they turn them, but wherever ye be, hasten emulously after good God will one day bring you all together, verily, God is all-powerful. And from whatever place thou comest forth, turn thy face toward the sacred Mosque, for this is the truth from thy Lord, and God is not inattentive to your doings And from whatever place thou comest forth, turn thy face toward the sacred Mosque, and wherever ye be, to that part turn your faces, lest men have cause of dispute against you but as for the impious among them, fear them not, but fear me, that I may perfect my favours on you, and that ye may be guided aright "

The verses of the second Surah of the Qur'an are, according to Jalalu 'd-din and other commentators, not in their chronological order It is therefore difficult to fix the precise date of the following verse

Surah 11 108 "Who is more unjust than he who prohibits God's mosques, that His name should not be worshipped there, and who strives to run them."

According to al-Bazawi, the verso eithor refers to the sacking of Jerusalem by Titus, or to the Quraish who, at al-Hudaibiyah, had prevented the Prophet from entering Makkah until the following year

In the seventh year of the Hijrah, Muhammad was, according to the treaty with the Quraish at al-Hudaibiyah in the previous year, allowed to enter Makkah, and perform the circuit of the Ka'bah Hubal and the other idols of the Arabian pantheon were still within the sacred building, but, as Muhammad's visit was limited to three days, he confined himself to the ordinary rites of the 'Umrah, or vientation, without interfering with the idolatrous arrangement of the Ka'bah ttself Before he left, at the hour of midday prayer, Bilal ascended the holy house, and from its summit gave the first call to Mushm prayers, which were afterwards led by the Prophet in the usual form.

The following year Muhammad occupied Makkah by force of arms The idels in the Ka'bah were dostroyed, and the rites of the pilgrimage were established as by divine enactment From this time the history of the Karbah becomes part of the history of

Islam

The Khalifah 'Umar first built a mosque round the Ka'bah, A.H. 17

For a history of the sacred mosque at Makkah, see MASJIDU 'L-HAHAM

KA'B IBN MĀLIK بن) A companion of the Prophet and one of the Ansars of the tribe of Khazraj He was celebrated as a poet, and embraced Islam after the second pledge of 'Akabah He was one of the three companions who refused to accompany Muhammad on the expedition to Tabūk (Hilal and Mararah being the other two), and who are referred to in the Qur'an, Surah ix 118, 119 "Verily He is kind to them, unto the three who were left behind" For a time Muhammad was displeased with them, but he afterwards be-came reconciled Ka'b became a companion of some note, and died during the reign of 'Ali AL-KABIR ("The Great One." One of the minety-nine attributes of God, Sürah xxxiv 23 "He is the High (al-'Ali) and the Great (al-Kabir)."

KABIRAH ( ). The fem. of kabir, "great." A term used in theological books for Gunāh-i-Kabīrah, "a great sin", namely, that sin which is clearly forbidden in the law, and for which punishment has been ordained of God. [six ]

KA'BÎYAH (کعبیة). A sect of Muslims founded by Abū Qasım Muhammad ibn al-Ka'bī, who was a Mu'tazılī of Bagdād, who said the acts of God were without purpose, will, or desire

KACHKUL (کیکول). Persian (vulg kachkol) The begging bowl of a religious mendicant [FAQIR]

KAFĀLAH (IJW) [BAIL]

KAFAN (كمن) The shroud for the dead It usually consists of three pieces of cloth for a man and five for a woman. Those for a man 1, An ezar, or piece of cloth, reaching from the navel to the knees or ankle joints, 2, A quants, or shirt, from the neck to the knoes, 3, A sheet to cover the whole corpse. For a woman there are also a breast band and head band. The whole being of white [BURIAL]

KAFFĀRAH (奶奶), from kafr, "to hide" Heb כפרים Lat " Coverings, atonements, expiation."

The word occurs four times in the Qur'an .

Sürah v 49 "Whose remitteth it as alms shall have expected for his sins."

Surah v 91 "Its expected shall be to feed ten persons." "This is the expection for your oaths."

Sürah v 96 "In expeation thereof shall ye feed the poor "

The other word used is fidyak [FIDYAH]
The expression kaffaratu 'z-zunub, "atonement for sins," is used for expiation by prayer, alms, fasting, and pilgrimage. [EX-PIATION ]

AL-KĀFĪ (الكافى) "The Sufficient One." An attribute of God mentioned in the Qur'an, Sürah xxxix. 37 "Is not God sufficient for His servant "

AL-KĀFĪ (الكائى) The title of a collection of traditions by Abū Jaitar Muhammad ibn Ya'qub al-Kulini (A.H. 328) received by the Shi'ahs

KĀFIR (کار), pl kāfirān Lut "The coverer" One who hides or covers up the truth

The word is generally used by Muhammadans to define one who is an unbeliever in the ministry of Muhammad and his Quran, and in this sense it seems to have been used by Muhammad himself Sürah n. 87 1 "Those who misbeliove (wa'llazina kafaru), and call our signs lies, they are fellows of the Fire they shall dwell within for ever "

It is also used for those who believe in the Divinity of the Lord Jesus, and the Holy Trinity Sürah v 76 They infeed are in fidels (la-qad kafara'llazīna), who say Gud is al-Masīhu ibn Maryam Verilv him is al-Masihu ibn Maryatu a ho associates anything with God hath God verbidden Paradise, and his resort is the Fire"

Surah v 77 "They are infidels who say

Verily God is the third of three'

[On this passage the Kamalan say it refers to the Nestorians and to the Malaku'iy ah who believe that God is one of three, the other two being the mother and son ]

According to the Raddu 'l-Muhtar (vol in p 442), there are five classes of käfirs or middles (1) Those who do not believe in the Great First Cause, (2) Those who do not believe in the Unity of God, as the Sanawiyah who believe in the two eternal principles of light and darknoss, (3) Those who be-heve in the Unity of God, but do not believe in a revelation (4) Those who are idolaters (5) Those who helieve in (rod and in a never lation, but do not believe in the general mis sion of Muhammad to the whole of mankind

as the Christians a sect of the Jews (30)
Saiyid Sharif Jurjan says "Mankind are divided into two parties, namely those who acknowledge the mission of Muhammad ar those who do not believe in it Those who do not believe in his mission are either those who reject it and yet believe in the mspiration and divine mission of other prophets, as the Jews or Christians, and also the Manus (Fire Worsbippers), or those who do not believe in any lavolation of Gods will Those who do not believe in any revelation from God, are either those who arknowledge the existence of God as the Brühmä (Buddhists?) or those who dony the existence of a Supreme Ruler, as the Indiri or Atheists."

"Those who do not acknowl age Muhammad as an mapired prophet are either those who do it vilfully and from more onmity, cr those who co not acknowledge it from reflection and due study of the subject. For the former is eternal punishment and for the latter that purishment which is not eternal There are also those who, whilst they are Muslims, are not orthodox in their belief, these are heretics, but they are not kafirs Those who are orthodox are an-Najı or the salvationists" (Sharhu / Muwaqif, p 597)

KAFUR (کفور) The unthanktul, or ungrateful Condemned in the Qui an, or ungratering Condemned in the Salam, Surah, Surah, Son God loveth not the false, the unthankful"

KĀFŪR (کافور) Lut "Camphor" A fountain in Paradisc inentioned in the Qur'an (bûrsh lxxx1 5) as the fountain wherof the servants of the Lord shall druk. But al-Bazāwi, the commentator, takes it for an rupellative, and believes that the wine of Para diae will be mixed with comphor because of its agreeable cociness and smell

AL-KAHF (LASS). "The Cave The title of the xvinth ohapter of the Qur an, in which is related the story of the Seven bleepers of Ephesus, known as the Askabu 'l-Kahf

KĀHIN (کھن), pl kahanah and kuhhān A soothsayer, or augur The word occurs only twice in the Quran, and in both instances it is used for "a scothsayer"

Surab lu 29 'For thou (Muhammad) by the firm of thy Lord, art neither a soothsaver (kāhin), nor one possessed (majnun)" Surah lxix 42 "Neither is it (the Qur'an)

the word of a sooth-saver (kāhin)"

The word is used in the Traditions in the same sense only . Mishkat, book ir chap 1 "The Prophot raid, believe in Islam, and put not your trust m soothan ers (kuhunah) Mishkat, book xxi ch ii "Ayishan re lates that the Prophet was asked about kahanah fortuno-cellers, and he said, ' You must rot believe anything they say ' It was then said, 'O Prophet, why do they then sometimes tell lies? And the Prophet said Because one of the jun stoals away the truth and carries it to the magician's ear, and the magicians (kuhhān) mix a hundred lies with it

The Hebrew 773 Koham, ispeds, 18 applied in the Old Testament not only to the Jewish priests hat also to Melchizedek (Gon xiv 18), Potiphia (Gen. xh 45 see marginal reading in our English version), and to Jeth o (Fx n 16)

KAHRUBĀ (کهرها) Let "Attracting Straws" Flectricity, or the power of attraction A Suff term

KAIFĪYAH (کیفیه). " Detailed cii cumstancos ' A term used in Muhammadan thing cy kari water-takkir, "the manner of attack", kari water-trakkhah, "a fixed or permanent quality", kari water-takkah, "a noveable or accidental quality"

KA'LAH (&) A kind of sale which is prohibited Mishkät, book xii ch. v pt 2 "The Prophet has forbidden selling on credit for credit"

'Abdu 'l Haqq explains it thus "If 'Ami owe Zaid a piece of cloth, and Bakr ten dir hams, and Zaid say to Bakr, I have sold you the piece of cloth, which is with 'Amr for ten dirhams "-this sale is forbidden.

KALAM (M) "A word, speech" 'Ilmu'l falum, "scholastic theology", fusibu l-Lulam, "eloquent', muhasealu 'l-kalam, 'the substance of a discourse"

KALAMU 'LLÄH (کلم الله) "The Word of God" A title given to the Qur'in Surah ii 70 "Already a sect of them have heard the Word of God"

KALIMAH (كلمة) Let. "The Word" The Creed of the Muslim.

لا اله الا الاة محمد رسول الله

La Nāha illā 'llāhu Muhammadun Rasūlu llāh

"There is no doity but God Muhammad is the Apostle of God"

The whole sentence as it stands does not occur in the Qur'an, but the first part of the creed, "There is no deity but God," is in the Suratu Muhammad, or xivith chapter of the Qur'an, verse 21, and the second part, "Muhammad is the Apostle of God," is in tho Suratu 1-Fath, or kLvilith chapter, verse 29 The first sontence is known as the Najy and the Isbat, or the rejection (there is no derty) and the affirmation (but God), and is recited often as a religious office by the Sufi

The whole crood frequently occurs in the Traditions, and is an oft-recurring clause in the daily prayer

This Kalimah occupies a similar place in the Muslim religion to the "Shema' Israil' the Hebrew Bible in the Jews' religion The Shema: ("Hear") is the fourth verse of Deut vi. "Hear, O Israil, Jchovah our Elohim is one Jehovah", which is frequently used in daily morning and evening service of the Jews From the Traditions (Mishkal, book xi ch 2, pt 1) it appears that a something similar to this well known symbol of the Muslim creed, was in use amongst the ancient Arabians, and is still recited by Muslims, amongst whom it is known as the Talbiyah "I stand up for Thy service, O God! There is no partner with Thee" [TALBIYAL]

The recital of the kalimah is the first of the five foundations or pillars of practice, and, according to the Fawatdu sh-Shartah, every Muslim should recite it aloud at least once in his lifetime, and he should understand its meaning [RECITAL OF THE CREED]

KALIMATU 'L-HAZRAH كلبة) The fiat of God when He said 'Be,' and it was created The word Kun, is therefore called the Kalimatu i Hazrah It occurs in the Qur'an, Surah xxxvi 82 "His bidding is only when He desires anything to say to it 'BE,' and it is " And in about eleven other places KALIMATU 'SH - SHAHADAT (كلعة الشهادة) "The word of testimony" The following expression of belief, · I bear witness that there is no derty but (sod, and that Mulianimad is His Apostle" PRAYER.

"The كليم الله) "The Converser with God" A title given to the Prophet Mosos (vide Mishkat, book xxu ch zu) It is also referred to in the Qur'an, Sürah iv 162 "Mosea did God speak to-conversing"

KALISAH, KILISAH (کلیسة) Christian Church. EKKAngia The word is used in books of Muhammadan law for both Christian and Juwish places of worship. word kanisah 18 also used. [KANISAH.]

(كامل) KAMIL "Perfect, complote " Al-Insanu 'l-Kam·l, " the perfect man." A mystic term [INSANU 'L-KAMIL]

A sect of (كاملية) KAMILĪYAH Shī'ah Mushms founded by Abū 'l-Kāmıl, who said the Asahab, or Companions of the Prophet, were middels, because they rejected the house of 'Alī in forming the Khalifate, and he even called the Khalifah 'Alī an infidel because he did not claim his rights when Muhammad died (Kitābu 't-Ta'rīfāt, in loco)

KAN'ĀN (كنعان) "Canaan" Not mentioned by name in the Qur'an The Commontators al-Baizāwī and Jalālu 'd-dīn, say he was the son of Noah, but the author of the Qumus dictionary says he was the son of Shem (According to the Old Testament, he was the son of Ham, Gen x. 6, 1 Chron

He is said to be that son of Neah who was drowned, through unbelief, in the deluge See

Qui an, Sürah xi 44 [NOAH]

A Christian (كنيسة) KANISAH church, a Jowish synagogue, or a pagan temple It is used in the Hidāyah (vol. ii p 219) for a synagogus [CHURCHES]

AL-KANZU 'L - MAKHFI (الكبر للمغنى) Lit "The Secret Treasure" A term used by the bufis for the essence and personality of God

KĀRAWĀN (کاروان) Persian "A carsvan." The Arabic term is Qāṇlah. A party of merchants proceeding on a journey under the direction of a leader who is called a Qottluk Bāshi

KARBALĀ' (كرياك ), or MASH-HADU 'L HUSAIN A city in al-'Irāq, celebrated as the scene of the martyrdom of al Husain [AL III SAIN] and the place of his sepul thre It is fifty miles south-west of Baghdad, and about six miles west of the Euphrates

"The Gene-AL-KARIM (الكريم) rous One ' One of the ninety-nine attributes of God

KARŪBĪN (خوبين). [CHERUBIM.]

KASHF (کشف ) The uncovering of anything covered, manifestation. A mystic term used for a revelation of any secret truth to the mind of man, by the grace and power of God

An Amanuensis, a clork, a secretary In the latter sense it is used for Muhammad ibn Sa'd ibn Mani' a... Zuhrī the secretary to al-Waqidi [KA-THE 'L WAQIDI ]

KATIBU 'L - WĀQIDI الوالدي) The secretary of al-Waqidi A Muslim historian, largely quoted by Sir William Muir in his Life of Mahomet, and also by Sprenger, and often given as an authority in the present work

Mr Ameer Ali in his Lefe of Muhammad (London, 1878), couples the name of Kāttbu L-Wāqidī with that of al-Waqidī himseli, as regarded by "the Muhammadan as the least trustworthy and most carelees biographers of Muhammad," and quotes Ibn Khallikan in support of his opinion It is quite true that Ibn Khallikan does speak of the traditions received by al-Waqidi as "of focble authority," but he bears testimony to the trustworthmess of al-Waqud's secretary in the strongest terms, se will be seen in the ful lowing quotation, and it is manifestly unfair of Mr Ameer Ali to couple the two names together in his preface —

* Abû Abd Allah Muhammad Ihn Sand Ibn Manı az-Zuhrı, was a man of the highest talents, merit, and eminence Ho hved for some time with al-Wakidi [WAQIDI] in the character of a secretary, and for this reason he became known by the appollation of Katibu-l-Wakidi. Amongst the masters under whom he studied was Sofyan Ibn Oyams. Traditional information was delivered on his own authority by Abû Bakr Ibn Abid-Dunya and Abû Muhammad al Hârith Ibn Abi Osama at Tamimi He composed an oxcellent work, in fifteen volumes, on the difforent classes (tabakat) of Muhammad's companions and of the Tabis It contains also a history of the khalifs brought down to his own time. He left also a smaller Tabakat His character as a veracious and trustworthy historian is universally admitted. It is said that the complete collection of al-Wakidi's works remained in the possession of four persons, the first of whom was his secretary, Muhammad ibn Saad. This distinguished This distinguished writer displayed great acquirements in the sciences, the traditions, and traditional lite rature, most of his books troat of the traditions and law The Khatib Abû Bakr, author of the history of Baghdad, speaks of him in these terms 'We consider Muhammad ibn Sand as a man of unimpeached integrity and the Traditions which he delivered are a proof of his veracity, for in the greater part of the information handed down by him, we find him discussing it, passage by passage' He was a mawla (slave) to al-Hussin Ibn Abd Allah Ibn Obaid Allah Ibn al-Abbas Ibn Abd al Muttalih He died at Baghdad on Sunday the 4th of the latter Jumada, An. 208 (De cember, A.D 818), at the age of sixty two yours, and was interred in the cometory outside the Damascus gate (Bab as-Shum.)"-(1bn Khallikan, Brog Dict , in loco )

AL-KAUSAR (1221) Let "Abundance" A pond in Muhammad's paradise known as the Hauzu 'l-Kausar, or "The Pond of Abundanco"

The word occurs once in the Qur an, Surah oviil. 1-3 -

"Truly we have given thoe an abundance (i e al-Kaugar), "Pray therefore to the Lord, and slay the " Verily whose hateth thee shall be child-

But it is not clear whether the pond is intended in this verse. Al-Baişāwī thinks it refers to abundance of blessings and not to the pond

Anas relates that the Prophet said the prophet saw the pond al-Kausar in the night of his Mi'raj or heavenly journey [Mi'RAJ] and that it "was a river of water on each side of which there were domes, each formed of a hollow pearl"

Abdn lah ibn Amr relates that the Prophet said "the circumference of al-Kaugar is a month's journey, and it is a square, its water whiter than milk, its smell sweeter than musk, and its cups for drinking sparkle like the stars of heaven. He who drinks of its waters shall never thirst" (Mıshkat, book xxiii ch xii)

KHABAR-I-WÄHID (خبر واحد). A term used in the Traditions for a tradition related by one person and handed down by one chain of narrators. [TRADITION]

KHABAR MUTAWATIR ( A term used for a tra-(متوأثر dition which is handed down by very many distinct chains of narrators, and which has been always accepted as authentic and gonuine, no doubt ever having been raised against it

Syud Ahmad Khan savs all learned Muslims of every period have declared the Qur'an is the only Hadis Mutawatir, but some have doclared certain Ahadis also to be Mutawater, the number of such not exceeding five (Lusay on the Traditions, p. 15) [TRADI-TIONS 1

KHABIS (عبيث) "Impure, base, wicked"

Qur'an viii 38 "That God may distinguish the vile from the good, and may put the vile one on the top of the other, and heap all up togother, and put them into hell"

KHADIJAH ( Khadijah the Great" The first wife of Muhammad, and the first convort to a belief in his mission.

She was a Quraish lady of good fortune, the daughter of Khuwailid, who was the great grandson of Qusaiv Before she married Muhammad, she was a widow who had been twice married, and had borne two sons and a daughter Upon her marriage with Muhammad, she had attained her fortieth year, whilst he was only twenty-five years of age She continued to be his only wife until the day of her death. She died December, AD 619, aged 65, having been his counsellor and support for five-and-twenty years She had borne Muhammad two sons and four daughters al-Qāşım, and 'Abdu 'liāh, also called at Taivib and at-Tāhir, Zamab, Ruqaiyah, Fatimah, and Umm Kulsüm Of those, only Fatuman survived the Prophet, and from her and her husband 'Ali are descended that posterity of Saiyids who are the subjects of such frequent patitions in the khutbahs and the liturgical prayers in all parts of the Muhammadan world.

Muhammad ever retained his affection for Khadijah. 'Ayishah said "I was never so jealous of any one of the Prophet's wives as I was of Khadijah; although I never saw her The Prophet was always talking of her, and he would very often slay goats and out them up, and send pieces of them as presents to Khadījah's female friends I often said to him, One might suppose there had not been such another woman as Khadijah in the world!' And the Prophet would then praise her and say she was so and so, and I had children by her" (Mishkat, book xxix. ch. xxil.)

According to a traditional saying of Mu-hammad, Khadijah, Fāṭimah, the Virgin Mary, and Asiyah the wife of Pharaoh, were the four perfect women (Mishka zziv ch. zzix, pt. 2) [MUHANNAD] (Mishkat, book KHAFI ( "Hidden " A term used in works on exegens for that " Hidden" which is hidden in its mosning, as compared with that which is obvious [QURAN]

KHAIBAR () A rich and populous valley, eight stages from al-Madinal, inhabited by Jews It is celebrated in the history of Islam as the scone of one of Muhammad's expeditions, AH. 7, when he chief Kinanah was slain and the whole valley conquered. (See Muir's Lafe of Makomet, new ed , p 388, seqq)

Here the Prophet instituted muttah, or [MUTAH ] Here were temporary marriage the special orders regarding clean and unclean animals promulgated Here Muhammad married Safiyah, the widow of the chief of Khaibar Here Zainab, the sister of the warrior Marhab, who had lost her husband, her father, and her brother in battle, tried to posson the Prophet with a possoned kid The campaign of Khaibar, therefore, marks an epoch in the Prophet's history [MUHAM-MAD.]

KHAIRAT (عبرات ) The plural of Khair "Charity, good deeds" The word occurs in the Quran in its singular form (khour), but in modern theological works it is more frequently used in its plural

لفير العرون The best generations A term used for the first three generations of Muslims from the time of the Prophet Muhammad is related to have said there would be three virtuous generations, the one in which he lived and the two following it

KHALFIYAH (معلمية) A sect of Muslims founded by Khalfu 'l-Khariji, who maintained, contrary to the general bellef, that the children of idolaters will be oternally damned

KHĀLID (এ៤) Son of al-Walid The famous Muhammadan general. He fought against Muhammad at Uhud and defeated the Muslim army The Prophet married Maimunah, who was an aunt to Khalid, a lady fifty-one years of age, and soon afterwards Khalid himself embraced Islam and became one of its most powerful champions. He led the Bedouin converts in the advance on Makkah, and was present as one of the chief leaders of the Muslim army at the battle of Hunain, and subsequent expeditions. In the reign of Abū Bakr, he murdered Malik Ibn Nuwairah, an ominent Arab chief, and married his widow. The murder greatly displeased the Khalifah Abū Bākr, and he would have ordered Khalld to be put to death, but 'Umar interceded for him He afterwards took the lead in various expeditions He invaded al-Traq and Syria, took Bustrah, defeated the Christians at Ajnadin, commanded the Muslim army at Yarmük, and subdued the country as far as the Euphrates. After the taking of Damasons, ho was recalled by 'Umar, and sent to Hims and Ba'labakk He died at Hims am. 18, and 639

KHĀLIDŪN (عالدون), pl. of khālad, "Everlasting" A term used to express the everlasting character of the joys of heaven and the torments of hell It is used fifty times in the Qur'an in this sense. [RIERNAL PUNISHMENT ]

KHALIFAH (Lala), pl Khulafa', from khalf, "to leave behind" Anglice, "Caliph" A successor, a lieutenant, a vicegerent, or deputy The word is used to the Qur'an for Adam, as the vicegerent of the Almighty on earth

Surah 11 28 "And when thy Lord said to the angels, 'I am about to place a vicegeront (khalifah) on the earth, they said, Wilt Thou piece therein one who will do evil therein and shed blood ?'"

And also for David Sürah xxxviil 25 "O David verily Wo have made thee a vicegerent (khalifah), judge then between mon with truth.

In Muhammadanism it is the title given to the successor of Muhammad, who is vested with absolute authority in all matters of state, both civil and religious, as long as he rules in conformity with the law of the Qur'an and Hadis The word more frequently used for the office in Muhammadan works of jurisprudence, is Imām (leader), or al-Imāmu '?-A':am (the great leader) It is hold to be an essentis! principle in the establishment of the office, that there shall be only one Khalifah at the same time, for the Prophet said "When two Khalifahs have been set up, put the last to death and preserve the other, for the last is a rebel." (Mishkat, book xvi ch 1)

According to all Sunni Muhammadan books, it is absolutely necessary that the Khalifah be "a man, an adult, a sane person, a free man, a learned divine a powerful ruler, a just person, and one of the Curatal (1 c. of the tribe to which the Prophet himself belonged)

The Shi'shs hold that he should be one of the descendants of the Prophet's own family, but this is rejected by the Sunnis and Wah-

The condition that the Khalifah should be of the Quraish is very important, for thoreby the present Ottoman Sultans fail to establish their claims to the Khalifate (Arabic Khilafah) The four immediate successors of Muhammad are entitled the halufau'r Rashdun, or "the well-directed Khalifaha." According to the Baghgatu 'r Raid, only the first five Khali fahe, Abu Bakr, Umar Usman, Ali and al-Hasan, are entitled to the distinction of Kha lifah, the others being mercly Amus or Governors After the deaths of the first five Khalifaha, the Knalifate, which is allowed by all parties to be elective and not hereditary, passed successively to the Umayades (Banu (Imayah) The first Khalifah of this dynasty was Mu'awiyah, the grandson of Umaiyab of the Quraish tribe, who received the Khalifato Of the Umayades, there from al Hasan were fourteen Khalitaha who reigned at Damascus, extending over a period from A H 41 to AR 132 (AD 661 to AD 750) The title then passed to Ahu 1-'Abb is, the fourth in descent from al-'Abbas the uncle of Mn hammad, and the Abbasido Khalifalis, thirty seven in number, who reigned at Baghdad from Au 132 to An 656 (A.D 750 to AD 1259)

The temporal power of the Alibande Kba lifaha was everthrown by Halak Khan, grandson of the colehrated Chenjiz Kkan AD 1250, but for thice centuries certain de scendants of the Abbaside, or Baghdad Khalifahs, resided in Fayjit, and asserted their claim to the spiritual power The founder of the present dynasty of Turkish Sultans was Usman (Othman), a chioftain descended from the Orghu/ Turks (born at Sakut, AD 1259), who was at first the ruler of a small ter ritory in Bithyma, but whom 1299 invaded tho whole country of Makkah, and subsequently extended his conquests to the Black, Sea and whose successor Salun (munth in descent). obtained the title of Khalifah from one of the Abbaside Khalifahs in Egypt About the year AD 1515 (Au 921), Salim I, rule of the Ottoman Turks and Emperor of Constantinople, finding himself the most powerful prince of his day in Islam, and wishing still further to consolidate his rule, conceived the ides of reviving in his own person the extinct glories of the Khalifate He had more than one claim to be considered their champion by orthodox Muhammadans, for he was the grandson of that Mubammad II who had finally extinguished the Roman Elapiio of the East, and he had himself just onded a successful campaign against the horetical Shah of Persia His only rivals among Sunni princes were the Muslim Emperors in India, the Emperor of Morocco, and the Mameluke ruler of Egypt, then known to the world as pur excellence, "the Sultan" With the two former, at rulers of what were remote lands of Islam, Salim seems to have troubled himself little, but he made war on Egypt In a.D 1516 he invaded Syria, its outlying province, and in A.D 1517 ho entered Oairo

There he made prisoner the reigning Mameluke, Qansau 'l-Qhauri, and had him publicly beheaded

He then, in virtue of a very doubtful cession made to him of his rights by one Mutawakkil Ibn 'Amii 'l Hākim, a descendant of the house of al 'Abbas, whom he found living as titular Khalifah in Cairo, took to himself the following style and title Sultānu s-Solātīn un Hākimu 'l-Hākimin, Maliku'l Bahrun wa Hāniyn 'l-Garrum, Khalifatu'r-Rusūh'l'lüh, Amīru'l-Mu'minm, wa Kultān, wa Khān, that is "Ring of kings and Ruler of rulers, Monarch of the two seas (the Meditarranean and the Red Sea) and Protector of the two lands (al-Hijāz and Svria, the holy lands of Islām), Successor (Khalifah) of the Apostle of God, Ruler of the Faithful, King and Chief' It is said that he first had the satisfaction of hearing his name men tored in the public prayers as Khalifali when he visited the Great Mosque of Zacharias at Aloppo, on his return northwards in 1619

Such are the titles still claimed by the Ottoman Sultans, who arrogate to themselves the position of Khalifahs and Successors to the Prophet It 18, however, a mere assertion, for the title and office being elective and not hereditary, it was not in the power of any Khalifah to transfer it to another Force of circi instances alone has compelled the ruler of the Ottoman Empire to assume the position, and has induced his subjects to acquiosce in the usurpation We have not seen a single work of authority, nor met with a single man of learning, attempting to prove that the Sultans of Turkey are rightful Khalifabs, for the assumption of the title by anyone who is not of the Quraish tribe is undoubtedly illegal and heretical, as will be seen from the following authorities -

Mishbata 'l Masabh, book xxii ch xii 'lbn 'Amr relates that the Prophet of God and 'The Khalifab shall be in the Quralsh tribe as long as there are two persons in it, one to rule and another to serve'"

Sharks '-Mussage!, p 606 Archic edition, Egypt "It is a condition that the Khelliah (Imām) be of the Quraish tribe All salmit this except the Khawārij and (crtain Mutanlahs We all say with the Prophet 'Let the Khelliah be of the Quraish', and it is certain that the Companions acted upon this injunction, for Abū Bakr urged it as an authority upon the Ansars, on the day of Sakhitah when the Companions were present and ingreed It is, therefore, for a certainty established that the Khalliah must be of the Quraish"

The Hupatu 'liaht 'l-Balayhah, p 335, Arabic edition, Delhi 'It is a necessary condition that the Khalifah (Imam) be of the Quraish tribe"

The Kash hafu " Intelâhût, A Dictionary of Technical Terns Edited by Colonel N Lees, in loco " The Khalifah (Imam) must be a Quraish"

It is a matter of history that the Wahhabia regarded the Turkish Sultan as a usurper, when Satud took Makkah and al-Madinah in 1804, and to the present day, in countries not under Turkish rule, the khutbah is re-oited in behalf of the Amir, or ruler of the Muslim state, justead of the Ottoman Sultan, which would not be the case if he were acknowledged as a lawful Khalifah In a collection of khutbahs, entitled the Majma u Khutab, the name of the Sultan of Turksy does not once occur, although this collection is much used in Muhammadan etates have eeen it stated that the Sultan is prayed for in Hyderabad and Bengal, but we beheve it will be found, upon careful inquiry, that he was not mentioned by name, until very recently, in any of the mosques of India khutbahe, in which there are prayers for the Ottoman Sultan by name, have been unported from Constantinople

According to Mr W S. Blunt, the chief arguments of the Hamfite 'Ulama' in support of the claime of the present Ottoman dynasty are—

(1) The right of the Sword.—The Khalifate being a necessity (and this all Mushims admit), it was also a necessity that the de facto holder of the title should be recognised until a claimant with a better title should Now, the first qualification of a appear claimant was, that he should make the claim, and the second, that he should be supported by a party, and Salim had both claimed the Khalifate and supported his pretensious at the head of an army He challenged the world to produce a rival, and no rival had been found

(2) Election, that is, the sanction of a legal body of elders. It was argued that, as the ahlu 'aqd' (or council), had been removed from al-Madinah to Damascus, and from Damascue to Baghdad, and from Baghdad to Cairo, so it had been once more legally removed from Cairo to Constantinople Salim had brought with him to St Sophia's some of the 'Ulama' (learned men) of the Azhar mosque in Cairo, and these in conjunction with the Turkish 'Ulama had elected him of ratified his election. A form of election is to the present day observed at Constantinople in token of this right, and each new Sultan of the house of 'Uaman, as he succeeds to the temporal sovereignty of Turkey, must wait before being recognised as Khalifah till he has received the sword of office at the hands of the 'Ulama' This ceremony it is customary to perform in the

(3) Nomination.—Sultan Salim, as has been already said, obtained from Mntawakkil, a descendant of the Abbaeides, and himself titularly Khalifah, a full cession of all the Khalifah rights of that family The fact, as far as it goes, is historical, and the only flaw in the argument would eeem to be that Mutawakkil had no right thus to dispose of a title to an alien, which was his own only in virtue of his birth As a piecedent for nomination, they cite the act of Abu Baki, who on his death-bed recommended 'Umar as his successor in the Khalifato.

mosque of Alyub

(4) The Guardianship of the Two Shrines (Haraman), that is to say, of Makkah and Jerusalem, but especially of Makkah. It has been asserted by some of the 'Ulama', and it is certainly a common opinion at the present day, that the sovereignty of al-Lijar is in itself sufficient title to the Khalitate. It seems certainly to have been so considered in the first age of Islam, and many a bloody war was then fought for the right of protecting the Baitu 'llah, but the connection of al-Hijuz with the empire of the Khalifahs has been too often broken to make this a very tenable argument In the tenth century, Makkah was held by the Karmathian heretics, in the thirteenth by the Imams of Santa, and for seven years in the present century by the Wahhābis Still the de facto sovereignty of the Haramain, or two shrines, was one of Salim's pleas, and it is one which has reapseared in modern arguments respecting the

Khalifal rights of his descendants

(5) Possession of the Amanat, or sacred relics Thie last is a plea addressed to the vulgar rather than to the learned, but it is one which cannot be passed by nanoticed here, for it exercises a powerful influence at the present day over the ignorant mass of Muslims It was asserted, and ie still a pious bolief, that from the sack of Baghdad in AD 1258, certain relicts of the Prophet and his Companions were saved and brought to Cairo, and thence transferred by Salim to Constantinople These were represented as constituting the imperial maignia of office, and their possession as giving a title to the suc-They consisted of the cloak of the cession Prophet, borne by his soldiers as a standard, of some hairs of the Prophet's beard, and of the sword of Umar The vulgar still believe them to be preserved in the mosque of Aiyub at Constantinople (See The Future of Islam, by Wilfind Scawen Blunt, London, 1882,

On the general question as to whether or not an Imam, or Khalifah, to necessary for Islam, the author of the Skarhu'l-Musoay! says, "The appointment of an Imam (i.e. Abalifah) is incumbent upon the united body of Mushins, according to the orthodox law of the Sunnis, although the Mutazilahs and Zaidiyahs asy it is merely expedient, but not ordered by the law, whilst the Ishmalliyahs and the Imamiyahs say God will Himself appoint an Imain for the establishment of sound Some say the appointment of an doctrine linkin is only necessary when Muslims are at peace amongst themselves and united, and not when they are in a state of rebellion.

The arguments in favour of the absolute necessity of an Imam, or Khalifah, being appointed, are that in the time of Abu Bakr, the first Khalifah, it was established by general consent, and Abū Bakr, in his first khutbah after the death of Muhammad, saids "Beware' Muhammad is certainly dead, and it is necessary for this religion that some one should be appointed for its pretection And all the Muslims at that time consented to this saying of Abu Bakr, and consequently in all ages Muslims have had an Imam it is well known that without such an officer Islam cannot be protected from evil, for without him it is impossible to maintain the orders of the Muslim law, such as marriage Jihad, punishment, and the various ordinances of Islam (Sharhu'l-Muwaqif, p. 603)

The following are some of the injunctions of Muhammad regarding the Imam or Kha-

"When two Khalifahs have been set up, put the last of them to death and preservo the other, for the second is a rebel

"He who soknowledges an linain must obey him as far as he can, and if a pretender comes, kill him "

"Whomever God appoints as Imam, and he does not protect his peoplo, shall nover smell

the smells of paradise

"It is indispensable for every Muslim to listen to, and approve the orders of the Imam. whether he likes or dislikes, so long as he is not ordered to sin and act contrary to law, then when he is ordered to sin, he must neither attend to it nor obey it "

"Whoever quits obedience to the Iniain and divides a body of Muslims, dies like the people in ignorance and whoover takes a part in an affray, without knowing the true from the false, does not fight to show his religion but to aid oppression, and if he is slain, then he dies as the people of ignorance and that person who shall draw his sword upon my people, and kill the virtuous and the vicious and not fear the killing of Mushims or those protected by them, is not of me nor am I of him."

"The Companious said O Prophet when they are our enemies and we thens, may we not fight with them?' He said, 'No, so long as they keep on foot the prayers amongst you', this he repeated, 'Beware! he who shall be constituted your prince, see if he does anything in disobedience to God and if he does, hold it in disploasure, but do not withdraw yourselves from his obedienco"

"He who forsakes obedience to the Imam, will come before God on the Day of Resurcetion without a proof of his faith and he who dies without having professed to the Imam, dies as the people of ignorance"

"Prophets were the governors of the children of Israel, when one died, another supplied his place, and verily there is no prophet after me, and the time is near when there will be after me a great many Khalifshs The Companions said, 'Thon what do you order us?' The Prophet said, 'Oboy the Khalifah, and give him his due, for verily God will ask about the duty of the subject'"

"Beware! you are all guardians, and you will all be asked about your subjects, then the Imam is the guardian of the subject, and he will be asked respecting the subject and a man is as a shepherd to his own family, and will be asked how they behaved and his conduct to them, and a wife is a guardian to her husband's house and children, and will be interrogated about them, and a slave is a shepherd to his master's property, and will be asked about it whether he took good care of it or not

"God never sent any prophet, nor ever made any Khalifah, but had two counsellors with him one of them directing lawful deeds, and that is an angel, and the other, in sin, and that is the devil, and he is guarded from ain whom God has guarded " (Mishkat, book xvi ch 1)

I—The Khalifahs of the Sunnis, from the death of Muhammad to the present time

(1) The four rightly directed Khalifaha, and al-Hasan (at Makkah) — 1 Abū Bakr, A H. 11 (A D 632)

(Collected the Qur'an into one volume )

'Umar, A.H. 13 (AD 634)

(Conquered Egypt, Syria, and Persia.) 3 'Uaman, AH 23 (AD 648)

(Invades Cyprus, revolt at al-Kufah)

4 'Ali, A 11 35 (A D 655) (Revolt of Mu'awayah 'All neesssinated)

5 Al-Hasan, A.H 40 (AD 660)

(Resigns, poisoned)
(2) Umaiyade dynasty The Banu Umaivah (at Damascus)

1 Mu'nwiyah I , A H 41 (A D 661)

(Siege of Constantinople, makes Damascus the (spital)

2 Yazid I , A H 60 (A.D 679)

(Destruction of al Husain's party and his death ) 3 Mu'āwiyah II., A.H. 64 (A D 683) (Deponed)

4 Marwan I, A u 64 (A D 683)

(Porsoned) 'Abdu 'l-Malik, A.H 65 (AD. 684)

(Arabian money first coined.)
Al-Willd I All 86 (A.D 705)

(Commest of Africa Spain, Bukharah ) 7 Sulaman, A 11 96 (A D 715)

(Defeated before Constantinople, dies of grief)

8 'Umar (Omer), A H. 99 (A D 717), (Poisoned)

9 Yazid II , An 101 (AD 720) (His generals successful in war )

10 Hisham, A H 100 (A D 724) (Charles Martel ohecks the conquest of the Atabs in the West, rise of the Abbasides )

11 Al-Walid II , A H 125 (A.D 748) (Siam by conspirators)

12 Yazid III., A.H 126 (A D 744)

(Diod of the plague)
13 Ibrahim, AH 126 (A'D 744)

(Deposod) Marwan, AH 127 (AD 744)

(Defeated by the Abbasides, pursued to Egypt, and slam on the banks of the Ntlo )

The end of the Umayah dynasty, Am. 182
(AD 749)

(3) The Abbaside dynasty Ad-Daulatu 1-Abbasiyah (at Baghdad and baumara) 1 Abū 'l-'Abbās as-Saffāh, an 132 (a.D 750).

(Resides at al-Kūfalı)

2 Al-Mansur, A H 166 (A D 754) (Abdu r-Rahman, the Umaryah Khalifah seizes bpain, Baghdad founded).

8 Al-Mahdi, A.H. 158 (AD 775) (Conquers Nicomedia on Sea of Marmore, making the Empress Irene pay tribute.) Al-Hadi, A # 169 (A.D. 785)

5 Harunu 'r-Rashid, A н 170 (A н 786) (The hero of Arabian Nights, a flourishing period of Arabian literature )

Al-Amin, A.E. 193 (A.D 809) Al-Ma'mun, A.E. 198 (A.D 813)

(The Augustan period of Arabian letters.)

8 Al-Mu'tasim, AH 218 (AD 888) (Makes the city of Saumara his capital, decline of the Khalifate.) Al-Wäsig, A.H. 227 (A.D 841)

10 Al-Mutawakkil, A.H. 282 (A.D. 847) (A persecutor of the Jowa and Christians, murdered)

Al-Muntasir, A H 247 (A.D 861)

12 Al-Musta'ın, A.H. 248 (AD 862)

19 Al-Mu'tazz, AH. 252 (AD 866) 14 Al-Muhtadī, AA 255 (AD 869)

15 Al-Mutamid, A H 256 (A.D 870)

(Re-establishes the capital at Baghdad)

16 Mu'tazid, A.H. 279 (A D 892) (Conquers Persia, Ismail San seizes Turkistan from the Khalifah) Ismail Samain

17 Al-Muktafi L, A H 289 (A.D 902) (Ismuil Samain seizes Persia from the Khalifah )

18 Al-Muqtadir, A H 295 (AD 908) (The Fätimites in Egypt )

Al-Qahir, A.H. 320 (A.D 932) (Blinded and doposed )

20 Ar-Razi, A H. 322 (A D 934)

(The last of the Khalifahs who ever recited the khutbah

21 Al-Muttaqi, A.H 329 (A.D 940) (Decline of the Abbasides)

22 Al-Mustakfi, A H 383 (A D 944).
28. Al-Muşt', A H 384 (A D 945)
(The Fatimate Khalifahs seize all North Africa and Egypt.)

24. At-Tai', A.H. 363 (A D 974) (Deposed)

Al-Qadir, A # 881 (A D 991)

(Mahmud of Ghazm conquers India ) 26 Al-Qa'ım, ah 422 (ad 1031)

(Rise of the Schukian Turks ) 27 Al Muqtadi, AH 467 (AD 1075)

(The first crusade, rise of Hasan Jubah, and his followers the Assassius)

28 Al Musta'gu, AH 487 (AD 1094) (Jerusalem taken by the Fatumites)

29 Al-Mustarshid, A H 512 (A D 1118) (Murdered by the Assassins )

30 Ar-Rashid, A H 529 (A D 1135) (Murdered by the Assassins

31. Al-Muktafi II, AH 530 (AD 1186) (Defeated by the Turks, s second crusade, A.D 1146)

82. Al-Mustanjid, A.H 555 (A.D 1160) (Disorders in Persia )

Al-Mustahdī, A.H 566 (AD 1170) (Saladın, the Sulkan of Egypt, conquere Syris )

34 An-Nasır, A H 575 (A.D 1180) (Conquests of Jengiz Khan, thurd crusade, A.D. 1189)

 85 Az-Zāhir, a H. 622 (a D 1225).
 86 Al-Mustansir, a H. 628 (a D 1226) (Persia subject to the Moghuls) 37 Al-Musta'sım, A.H. 640 (A D 1240). (Halaku, the Turk, a grandson of Jengiz Khan, takes Baghdad and puts the Khalifah to death, a.H. 656 (a b 1258) the uncle of the last Khalifah goes to kgypt, while the Khalifate continues only as a spiritual power

(4) The Usman, or Turk Dynasty (at Constantinople)

'Usman I (Othmun), AD 1299

Urkhan, A.D 1326

Mund (Amurath), AD 1360 Bayazid I, AD 1389

Sulaman I, AD 1402

6 Müsa, AD 1410

Muhammad I, A B 1418 Murad II, A D 1421

Muhammad II, AD 1451 10 Bayuzid II , A D 1481

Salun I (Solm), AD 1512 11

(Assumes the title of Khalifah )

Sulaimān II, A D 1520 12

13 Salım Il , A D 1566

Muind III AD 1574 14

15 Muhammad III., A D 1595

Ahmad L AD 1603 16 Mustafil, AD 1617 17

(Deposed in favour of his nepher )

'l'sman II, AD 1618 Mustafa I AD 1622 18

(Restored and again deposed.)

20 Marad IV AD 1623

21 Ibrahim, AD 1640

Muhammad IV , AD 1649 22

Sulaman III, AD 1687

24 Ahmad II, AD 1691

Mustafa II, AD 1695 Ahmad III., AD 1703 25 26

27 Mahmad I , A D 1780 28 'Usmāu III', ad 1754

24 Mustafa III , AD 1757

30 'Abdu 'l-Hamid L, 1774

1 Salim III, AD 1788 32 Mustafa IV, AD 1807 33 Mahmud II, 1808

34 'Abdu 'l-Majid, A D 1839

85 Abdu I-Aziz, ad 1861 36 Murăd V, ad 1876 85

37 'Abdu 'l-Hamid, AD 1876

II -The Shi uhs only regard those as nightful Imams (they do not use the word hhalifuh) who are descended from 'Ali (the son-in-law of the Prophet) and his wife Fatimah, the Prophet's daughter According to their traditions Muhammad distinctly According nominated 'Ali as his successor when he was returning from his faiewell pilgrimage. They say, that on his way to al-Madinan, the Pro-phet, with 'Ali and certain other of the Companions stayed at a place called Ghadim-i-Khūm And that it was here revealed by Gabriel that he should nominate 'Alī as his successor He is related to have said, "O ye people, I am your Prophet and Ali is my successor From us (1 e 'Ali and my daughter) shall descend al-Mahdi, the seal of the Ishams" (See Hayatu 'l-Qulub, p 884)

According to the Shi'ahs, there have only been twelve lawful Imams

1 'All, son-in-law of Muhammad

2 Al-Hasan, eldest son of 'Alī and Fātimah

8 Al-Husain, the second son of 'Ali and Fitimah.

4. Zamu 'L'Abidin, son of al-Husain

5 Muhammad al-Baqir, son of Zainu I-Abidin.

6 Jafaru 's-Sadiq, son of Muhammad al Bägir.

Musa 1-Kazım, son oi Ja'iar

8 'Ali ar-Rază, son of Müsa 9 Muhammad at-Taqi, son of 'Alı ar-Rază.

10. 'Alī an-Naqı, son of at-Taqī

11 Al-Hasan al-'Askari, son of 'Ali 12 Muhammad, son of al-Askari, or the Imam Mahdi, who is supposed to be still alive, although he has withdrawn himself from the world, and that he will appear again as al-Mahdi, the Director, in the last days [AL-MARDI]

The Kinga of Persus have never claimed to be in any sense the successors of the Prophet

Sultan Mahmud 'Abdu 'llab (A H 706, A D 1806), was the first monarch of Persia who proclaimed himself a Shi'sh

III. The Fatimide Khalifahs were a dv nasty who claimed the Khalifate in the reign of the Abbaside Khalifah Muquadir, then founder, 'Ubaidu 'lish, pretending to be al Mahdi, "The Director," and a descendant of Fatimah, the daughter of the Prophet They reigned over Egypt and North Africa from A.D 910 to A.D 1171, and were in all fourteen Khalifaha

1 'Ubaidu lläh, ap 910 (Ravaged the cousts of Italy and invaded Egypt several times )

2 Al-Qa'ını, A D 938 8 Al-Mansur, A D 946

4 Al-Mu'izz, A D 955

(Established the Khalifate of the Fatimides in Egypt, defeated in Spain, took Sioily, founded Cauo conquered Syria and Palestine.)

5 Al-'Azīz, A D. 978

(Married a Christian woman, whose brothers he made Patriarchs of Alexandaa and Jerusalem )

6 Al-Hākım, ▲ n 996

(Persecuted Jews and Christians)

7 As-Zahir, A.D 1021

(The power of the Fatimides declines)

6. Al-Mustaneir, a.p. 1037

(The rise of the Turks.)

Al-Musta'li, A.D 1094

(Defeated by the Crusaders ) 10 Al-Amir, A.D. 1101

11 Al-Hafig, A.D 1129

12 Az-Zafir, AD 1149

18. Al-Fa'ia, a.D 1154. 14. Al-Asid, a.D 1160

(The last of the Fatimade Khalifaha His Wazir, Nurn'd-din, on the death of his master submits to the Abhaside Khalifah Mustahdi, AD 1171)

FATTMITAR ]

IV -The Khalifate of Cordova in Spain was founded by a descendant of the deposed Umaiyah dynasty, 'Abdu 'r-Rahman ibn Mu'āwiyah Muslim Amīis had ruled at Cordovs from a.b 711, when Tārik and Mūsā came over from Africa and invaded Spain. But 'Abdu 'r-Rahman was the first to assume the title of Khalifab

The following is a list of the Khalifahs of Cordova and Granada from AD 755 to the fall of Granada A.D 1492 -1 'Abdu 'r-Rahmān I, AD 755

(Cordova embellished and the Mazquita erected )

2 Hisham I, A D 786 3 'Abdu 'r-Rahman II, A D 786

Al-Hakam I, AD 796

(Surnamed " The Ornel ")

'Abdu 'r-Rahman III , a p 821 (Christians poraecuted)

Muhammad I, AD 852

(Alfouso the Great obtains victories) Al-Munayyır, A D 860

Abdu Ilah, AD 888

(Flourishing period of literature and science at Cordova )

9 'Abdu 'r-Rahman IV , AD 912 The beroic age of Spain )

10 Al-Hakam II , A 1) 961

Hisham II, AD 976 11

Sulaiman AD 1012

(Defeated and executed by 'Ali )

13 'Ah, AD 1015

Abdu r-Rahmān V, A D 1017 Al-Qāsını, A D 1018 14

Lő

'Abdu 1-Kahman VI, AD 1023 16

Muhammad IL, AD 1023

18 Husham III, A D 1026 (Esteemed for his equitable and humane government )

Jawabir, AD 1031

20 Muhammad III, AD 1044

Muhammad IV , A D 1060 21

22 Muhammad V, AD 1069

(Siego of Toledo, A D 1082)

23 Yusuf L, AD 1094

24 'Ali, A D 1107

23

Tashifin, A D 1144 Abdu 'l-Mun'ım A D 1147 26

27 Yusuf II, AD 1168

48 Yr'jub I, AD 1178 **)()

Mphammad VI, AD 1199 30

Ya'qub IL, AD 1218 31 Abū Ya'qūb, A.D. 1218

Abû Malik, AD 1223

33 Al-Ma'nun, A.D 1225

(Died in Morocco )

Abu 'Ali, A.D 1225

(Cordova surprised by Ferdinand of Leon and Castile, and taken The fall of the Khalifate of Cordova, A.D 1286 A Khalifate established by the Moors at Granada )

The hhalifahs or Sultans of Granada

35 Muhammad I, AD 1288

(Encourages literature ) Muhammad II, A D 1273

37 Muhammad III., AD 1802

38. An-Nāsir, a.D 1809 39. Ismā'ii I., a.D 1818. 40. Muhammad IV., a.D 1825 41. Yūsuf I., a.D 1833

42 Muhammad V, A.D 1854 48 Ismā'll II., A.D 1859

44. Abū Sa'īd, AD 1860

45 Yusuf II, AD 1891

46 Muhammad VI, 4 D 1896 47 Yüsuf III., AD 1408

48 Muhammad VII., A.D 1423

49 Muhammad VIII., A.D 1427 50 Muhammad VII. (restored), A.D 1429 51 Yüsuf IV., A.D 1432

52. Muhammad VII. (again restored), AD 1482

58 Muhammad IX., AD 1445

54 Muhammad X., An 1454

55 'Ali, a D 1468 56 Abū 'Abdı 'Ilāh, a.D 1488

57 'Abdu 'llāh az-Zaggāl, A.D 1484

(The fall of Granada, and the consolidation of the Spanish Monarchy, A.D. 1492)

Thus, smidst the acclammations of Chris tendom, Ferdinand and Isabelia planted the symbol of Christian faith on the walls of Granada, and proclaimed the destruction of Muhammadan rule in Spain.

KHALILU 'LLÄH الله) (عليل "The friend of God" A title given to Abraham in the Qur'an, Sûrah iv 124 "For God took Abraham as his friend."

With regard to this verse, al-Baizawi says "Abraham in a time of dearth seut to a friend of his in Egypt for a supply of corn but the friend denied him, saying, in his ex case, that though there was a famine in their country also, yet, had it been for Abraham s own family, ne would have sent what he desired, but he knew he wanted it only to entertain his guests, and give away to the poor, according to his usual hospitality. The servants whom Abraham had sent on this message, being ashamed to return empty to conceal the matter from their neighbours, filled their sacks with fine white sand, which in the East pretty much resembles meul Abraham being informed by his servants on their return of their ill success, the concern he was under threw him into a sleep and in the meantime Sarah, knowing nothing of what had happened, opening one of sacks, found good flour in it, and immediately set to making bread Abraham awaking, and smelling the new bread, asked her whence she had the flour 'Why,'says she, 'from your friend in Egypt.' 'Nay,' replied the patriarch, 'it must have come from no other than my friend, God Almighty '" [ABRAHAM.]

KHAMR (+++) The word used in the Qur'an for wine or anything that in-

Sürah ii 216 "They will ask thee about wine (khamr), and games of chance say in both is sin and profit to men, but the sin of both is greater than the profit of the same."

By the orthodox, the term khaser is generally held to include not only alcoholic drinks, but opium and other narcotics Some understand it to include tobacco, hence the destruction of tobacco pipes in the streets of Makkah by the Wahhabis [WAHHABI]

KHAN (مان) Persian "A ruler, a chief" A term used for the supreme ruler of small countries or provinces The Khan of the Taitars It is also one of the titles of the Sultan of Turkev It is also used for a caravansary or inn, being a corruption of the Persian khanah, 'a home"

AL-KHANNAS (الحماس) A demon montioned in the Qur'an, Surah exiv (the last chapter)

"SAY I betake me for refuge to the Lord of men,

. The King of men,

"The God of men,

"Against the mischief of the stealthily withdrawing whisperer (al-khannas),

"Who whispereth in man's breast-

' Against gonn and men"

KHANZAB (حرب A demon who casts doubt at the time of prayer 'Usman ibn Abi 'l-'Āsī iclates that he came to the Prophet and complained that he was disturbed by the devil during prayers The Prophet said "This is a demon called Khanzab who disturbs prayer When you are aware of any such disturbance seek protection of God and spit over your left shoulder three times" 'Usman did so, and all doubt and perplexity was dispelled.

KHARABAT (خرابات) "A wine-shop or tavern" A mystic term for the society of the Murshid, or inspired teacher See Diwan-1-Hanz (Bickhell's edition, p

"Within the Magian's house of wine our

"Behold this marvel what a light and where that sight I see "

KHARĀJ (خراح) A tax, or tribute on land This was originally applied to a land tribute from non-Muslim tribes (Hidayah, vol u p 204), but it is now used for a tax, or land-rest due to the State La-kharaj 18 a term used for lands exempt from any such paymont

KHARQU 'L-'ADAH (غبق العادة) Let ' The splitting of Nature " That which is contrary to the usual course of nature A term uso for miracles. Either (1) Mujizah, miracles worked by Prophets, or (2) Kara-mah, wonders performed by walls or saints; or (%) Istidag, wonders worked by the power of Satan. [MIRACLES.]

KHASHYAH ( "Fear" Khashyatu 'liah, "The fear of God," is an expression which occurs in the Qur'an.

Surah in 69 There are some that fall down for fear of God"

Surah iv 79 "A portion of them fear men as with the fear of God, or with a yet greater fear "

KHASR ()—). Let "The middle or waist" An act forbidden in prayer, as related by Abū Hirairah, who said "The Prophet forbade Khasr in prayer" (Mishkāt, book iv oh. xx.) It is generally held to be the act of holding the waist with the hands to relieve the sensation of fatigue experienced in the position of standing some divines believe it to be a prohibition to lean on a mishsarah, or staff, in prayer, whilst others give to it the sense of cutting short the verbal forms of prayer, or remaining too short a time in the prescribed stittude (bhaikh 'Abdu'l-Haqq) KHĀSS ( "Special" as distinguished from 'Amm, "goneral" A term frequently used by Muhammadan writers and in treatuses on exegesis KHATIMU 'N-NABİYİN (

"The seal of the Prophets"

A title assumed by Muhammad in the Qur'an

Burah xxxiii 40 "He is the Apostle of God and the seal of the Prophets" By which is meant, that he is the last of the Prophets

خانم) "The seal of prophecy" A term used for the largo mole or fleshy protuberance on Muhammad's back, which is said to have been a divine sign of his prophetic office.

"Abdu 'llah ibn Sarjis describes it as being as large as his closed fist, with moles round about it Abû Ramsah wanted to remove it, but Muhammad refused saying, "Tho Physician thereof is He who placed it thore"

KHATIR (, ) "Mind, conscience" A term used by mystic teachers Khātir is said to be of four kinds Al-hhātiru 'r-Rabbānī, "conscience inspired of God", ul-hhātiru 'l-Malaki, "conscience inspired by angels", al-Khātiru 'n-Nafsanı, a conscience inspired by the flesh", al-Khātiru 'sh-Shaitani, "a conscience inspired by the devil" (Kitābu 't-Ta'rifāt, in loco) khatmah (Law) An epilogue, but more generally a recitation of the whole of the Qur'an. (hhatm, "concluding")

Mr Lane in his Arabian Nights (vol 1

Mr Lane in his Arabian Nights (vol 1 p 382), says the most approved and common mode of entertaining guests at modern private festivities, is by a khatmah, which is the recitation of the whole of the Qur'an Their mode of recitation is a peculial chanting

KHATN (www) A legal term for the husbands of female relations within the prohibited degrees. It his includes all the relations of these husbands (Hidayah, vol iv p 518)

KHATNAH (& [GIRGUMCI-

KHATT ( ) A line, a letter of the alphabet, an epistic (1) A figure drawn by exorests making an incantation (2) Khatt-i-Sharif, "royal letters, a diploma" (3) 'Abdu 'llāh ibn 'Abbās says a khatt, or "letter," is the language of the hand, and its divine origin is stated in the Qur'an, Sürah xevi 4 "Who hath taught is the use of the pen" It is said Adam first wrote with his inger in the dust, but others say it was Idris. The same traditionist says the first who invoited the Alabic character, were three persons of the tribe of Bulān of the race of Bulān Taiy

Ibn Ishāq says there are four classes of Arabic writing the Makkī, the Madanī, the Basrī, and the Kūfī, and the first who wrote the Qur'ān in a clear and elegant writing, was Khālid ibn Abī 'l-Haiyāj and that he was set to the work by Sa'd, who employed him as a caligraphist for the Khalīfah Walīd ibn 'Abdi 'l-Malik AH 86, and that Khāli obn 'Abdi 'l-Malik AH 86, and the Kufīc character (Khushfu 'z-Zunūn, Flugel's ed, vol ui p 149)

KHAUF ( "Fear" Generally used for the fear of God 'Abdu'llah ibn Mas'fid relates that Muhammad said 'There is no Muslim whose eyes shed tears, although they be as small is the head of a fly, from fear of God, but shall escape hell ine ' (Mishkāt, book xxii ch xxix pt 8)

KHAWARIJ (خارج). Let "The Revoltors" A sect of Mushms who affirm that any man may be promoted to the dignity of Khalifala, even though he be not of the Quraish tribe, provided he be elected by the Muhammadan nation. The first who were so-called were the 12,000 men who revolted from Ali after they had fought under him at the battle of Siffin, and took offence at his submitting the decision of his right to the Khalifate to the arbitration of men when, in their opinion, it ought to have been submitted to the judgment of God They affirmed that a man might be appointed Khalifah, no matter of what tribe or nation, provided he were a just and pious person, and that if the Kh hifal turned away from the truth, he might be put to death or deposed. They might be put to death or deposed also held that there was no absolute necessity for a Khalifah at all In A H 38, targe numbers of this sect were killed, but a few escaped, and propagated their schism in different parts of the world. [RHALIFAH.]

KHAZRAJ (حزرة) An Arabic tribe who, at an early period of Muhammad's mission, submitted to his authority They are supposed to have settled in al-Madinah sarly in the fourth century

KHIBRAH (5)—A proof, an experiment Practical knowledge Ahlu 'l-Alubiuh, persons practically acquainted with any subject of Khalifah [RHALIFAH.]

KHIL'AH or KHIL'AT (Late). A dress of honour presented by a ruler to an inferior, as a mark of distinction. A complete Lhil'ah may include arms, or a horse, or an elophant KHILWAH (اعلوة) "Privacy, retirement." A term used by the Sufis for returement from the world for the purposes of worship and meditation.

KHIRQAH (خوتة). The robe of the faqir or ascetic A religious habit made of shreds and patches, worn by darveshes

KHITBAH (4.4.). "Betrothal" Called in Hindustani mangni No religious ceremony is enjoined by Muhammadan law, but it is usual for the Maulawi or Qazi to be invited to be present to offer up a prayer for a blessing on the proceeding

The oeremony is usually accompanied with great rejoicings The following is Mrs Meer Hassan Ah's account of a betrothal in the neighbourhood of Lucknow .

"A very intimate friend of mine was seeking for a suitable match for her son, and, being much in her confidence, I was initiated m all the mysteries and arrangements (according to Musalman rule) of the affair, pending the marriage of her son.

'The young lady to be sought (weed we have it), had been described as amiable and pretty -- advantages as much esteemed as her lank, fortune she had none worth mentioning, but it was what is termed in Indian society a good and equal match. The overture was, therefore, to be made from the youth's famuly in the following manner —

'On a silver tray covered with gold brocade, and fringed with silver, was laid the youth's pedigree, traced by a neat writer in the Persian character, on richly embossed paper, ornamented and emblazoned with gold figures. The youth being a Saiyid, his pedigree was traced up to Muhammad in both paternal and maternal lines, and many a hero and begun of their noble blood filled up the space from the Prophet down to the youthful Mir Muhammad, my friend's son.

"On the tray, with the pedigree, was laid a nazr, or offering of five good mohurs, and twenty-one (the lucky number) rupees, a brocaded cover, fringed with silver, was sproud over the whole, and this was conveyed by the male agent to the young begum's father The tray and its contents are lo-tained for ever, if the proposal is accepted, if rejected, the parties seturn the whole with out delay, which is second as a tacit proof that the suitor is rejected no further explanation is ever given or required

"In the present instance the tray was de tamed, and in a few days after a female from their family was sent to my friend's house, to make a general scrutiny of the zananah and its inmates This female was pressed to stay a day or two, and in that time minv important subjects underwent discussion youth was introduced, and, over ything accordmg with the views entertained by both parties, the fathers met, and the marriage, it was decided, should take place within a twelvemonth, when the young lady would have accomplished her thirteenth year

"Do you decide on having mangni performed?' is the question proposed by the father of the youth to the father of the young maiden In the present case it was chosen, and great were the preparations of my friend to do all possible honour to the future bride of her son.

" Mangni is the first contract, by which the parties are bound to fulfil their engagement at an appointed time

"The dress for a bride differs in one material point from the general style of Hindustam costume a sort of gown is worn, made of silver tissue, or some equally expensive article, about the walking length of an English dress, the skirt is open in front, and contains about twenty breadths of the material, a tight body, and long sleeves. The whole dress is trimmed very richly with embroidered trumming and silver riband, the deputtah (drapely) is made to correspond This style of dress is the original Hindoo fashion, and was worn at the Court of Delhi for many centuries, but of late years it has been used only on marriage festivals amongst the better sort of people in Hindustan, except kings or nawabs sending khillauts to females, when this diese called a phanmah, is invariably one of the articles

"The costly dresses for the present mangni my friend prepared at great expense, and with much good taste, to which were added a ruby 11ng of great value, large gold earrings, offerings of money the flower-garlands for the head, neck, wrists, and ancles, formed of the sweet-scented passamine, choice confectionery set out in trays with the pawns and fruits, the whole conveyed under an escort of soldiers and servants, with a band of music, from the residence of Mir Muhammad to that of his bride elect accompanied by many friends of the family These offerings from the youth bind the contract with the young lady, who wears his ring from that day to the end of her life 'The poorer sort of people perform mangni

by the youth simply sending a rupee in a silk band, to be tied on the girl s arm

"Being curious to know the whole business of a wedding ceremony amongst the Musal man people, I was allowed to perform the part of 'officiating friend' on this occasion of celobrating the mangni The parents of tho young lady having been consulted, my visit was a source of solicitude to the whole family, who made every possible preparation to receive me with becoming respect I went just in time to reach the gate at the moment the parade arrived I was handed to the door of the zananah by the girl's father, and was soon surrounded by the young members of the family, together with many ladyvisitors, slaves and women-servants of the establishment. They had never before seen an English woman, and the novelty, I fancy, surprised the whole group, they examined my dress, my complexion, hair, hands, &c., and looked the wonder they could not express m words The young begum was not amongst the gazing throng, some preliminary customs detained her behind the purdah, where it may be supposed she endured all the agony of suspense and curiosity by her con-plance

with the prescribed forms

"The lady of the mansion whited my approach to the great hall, with all due enquette, standing to receive and embrace mon my advancing towards her. This cenemony performed, I was invited to take a seat on the carpet with her on the ground, a chair had been provided for mo, but I chose to respect the lady's preference, and the sest on the floor suited me for the time without much inconvenience.

"After some time had been passed in conversation on such subjects as suited the tastes of the lady of the house, I was surprised at the servants entering with trays, which they placed immediately before me, containing a full-dress suit in the costunie of Hindustan The hostess told me she had prepared this dress for me, and I must condescend to wear it I would have declined the gaudy array, but one of her friends whis pered me, 'The custom is or long standing, when the face of a stranger is first seen, dress is always presented, I should displease Sumdun Begun by my refusal, bosides, it would be deemed an ill omen at the mangni of the young Bohur Begam if I did not put on the native dress before I saw the face of the bride elect ' These I found to be weighty arguments, and felt constrained to quiet ( iei approhensione of ill luck by compliance, I therefore forced the gold dress and the ghttering dispery over my other clothes, at the expense of some suffering from the heat, for it was at the very hottest season of the year, and the hall was crowded with visitors

"This important point conceded to them, I was led to a side hall, where the little girl was seated on her carpot of rich embroidery, her face resting on hor knees in apparent bashfulness I could not directly ascertain whether she was plain, or pretty, as the female agent had represented I was allowed the privilege of decorating the joung lady with the sweet jessamine guinahs, and placing the ring on the fore-finger of the right hand, after which, the osi-rings, the gold tissue dress, the deputtah, were all in their turn but on, the offering of money presented, and then I had the first embraco before her mother She looked very pretty, just tuined twelve If I could have prevailed on her to be cheerful. I should have been much gratified to have extended my visit in her apartment, but the poor child seemed ready to sink with timidity, and out of compassion to the doar gul, I hurned away from the hall to relieve her from the burden my presence seemed to inflict, the moment I had accomplished my last duty, which was to teed her with my own hands, giving her seven pieces of sugar candy , seven, on this occasion, is the lucky number, I presume, as I was particularly cautioned to feed her with exactly that number of pieces

* Returning to the assembly in the dsl hana, I would have giadly taken leave, but there was yet one other custom to be observed to secure a happy omen to the young people's nniou Once again seated on the musnud with Sumdun Begum, the female people's nniou slaves entered with sherbert in allver basins Each person taking sherbert is expected to deposit gold or silver coms in the tray, the sherbert-money at this house is collected for the bride, and when, during the three days performance of the marriage ceremony at the bridegroom's house, sherbert is presented to the gnests, the money collected there is reserved for him. The produce of the two houses is afterwards compared, and conclusions drawn as to the greatest portion of respect paid by the friends on either side. The poor poople find the sherbort-money a useful fund to help them to keep house, but with the rich it is a mere matter to boast of, that so much money was collected in con-sequence of the number of visitors who attended the nuptials" (Mrs Meer Hasan Ali's Indian Musalmans, vol 1 p 362)

KHIYANAH (dia) Breach of trust Amputation is not incurred by a breach of trust, as in the case of ordinary that, according to a saying of the Prophet recorded in the Hidayah (vol ii p 98)

term used to express a certain period after the conclusion of a bargain, during which either of the parties may cancel it. According to 'Abdu'l-Haqq, it is of five kinds (i) Khyaru'sh-Shart, optional condition, where one of the parties stipulates for a period of three days or less (2) Khyanu 'L-Aib, option from defect, the option of dissolving the contract on discovery of defect. (3) Khyaru r-Ruyah option of inspection the option of rejecting the thing purchased after sight (4) Khyaru t-Tu'ym, option of defermination, where a person, having purchased two or three things of the same kind, stipulates a period to make his selection. (5) Khyaru 'L-Mujko, 'he option of withdrawing from the contract as long as the meeting of the parties continues. The Hanafiyah doctors do not secth.

KHIZLAN (()) "Abandonment" The abandonment of a Mushm by God The word occurs once in the Qur'an, Surah in 154 "If then God help you, none shall overcome you, but if He abandon you, who is he that shall help you"

Used by a Christian, it would imply the state of a person fallen from grace

AL-KHIZR ("The green one" The Maniswi Muhammad Tähir savs the leamed are not agreed as to whether he is a prophet or not His real name is, according to al Baixāwi, Balva ibn Malkān Some say he lived in the time of Abraham, and that he is still alive in the dish, and most of the religious and Sūfi mystics are agreed upon this point, and some have declared that they have seen him, and they say he is still to be seen in sacred places, such as Makkah or Jerusalom. Some few traditionists deny his existence Others say he is of the family of Noah, and the son of a king (Mayma's 'l-Bihar, p 250)

His name does not occur in the Qur'an, but Husain, Jalalu d-din, al-Baizawi, and nearly all the commentators, believe that al-Khizr is the mysterious individual referred to in the following narrative in the Quran -

"Remember when Streh zvin 59-81 Moses said to his servant, 'I will not stop till I reach the confluence of the two seas (se the son of Greece and the son of Porsia), or for years will I journey on' But when they reached their confinence, they forgot their fish, and it took its way in the sea at will. And when they had passed on, said Moses to his servant, 'Bring us our morning meal, for now have we incurred wearmest from this journey. He said, 'What thinkest thon? When we repaired to the rock for rest I forgot the deh, and none but Satan made me forget it, so as not to mention it, and it hath taken its way in the sea in a wou-He sald, 'It is this we were in drous eart And they both went back request of tracing then footsteps Then found they one of our servants to whom we had vouchsafed our mercy, and whom we had instructed with our knowledge And Moses said to him, Shall I follow thee that thou teach me, for guidance, of that which thou too hast been taught?' He said, 'Verily, thou canst not have patience with me how canst thou be patient in matters whose meaning thou comprehendest not?' He said, 'Thou shalt find me patient if God please, nor will I disobey thy bidding. He said, 'Then, if thou follow me, ask me not of aught until I have given thee an account thereof' So they both went on till they embarked in a ship, and he (the unknown) staved it in 'What!' said Moses, hast thou staved it in that thou mayest drown its crew? a strange thing new hast thou done! He said, 'Did I not tell thee that then couldst not have patience with me?' He said, 'Chide me not that I forgat, nor lay on me a hard command' Then went they on till they met a youth, and he slew him Moses, 'Hast thou slain him who is free from guit of blood? Now hast thou wrought a grievous thing! He said, 'Did I not tell thee that then couldst not have patience with Moses said, 'If after this I ask thee aught, then let me be thy comrade no longer, but now hast thou my excuse' They went on till they came to the people of a city Of this people they asked food, but they refused them for guests And they found in it a wall that was about to full, and he set it upright Said Moses, 'If then hadet wished, for this thou mightest have obtained pay' He said, This is the parting point between me and thee But I will first tell thee the moaning of that which thou couldst not await with patience As to the vessel, it belonged to poor men who toiled upon the sea, and I was minded to damage it, for in their rear was a king who seleed every ship by force As to the you.h, his parents were behevers, and we feared lest he should trouble them by error and infidelity And we desired that their Lord might give them in his place a child, better than he m virtue, and neares to filial plety And as to the wall, it belonged to two orphan youths in the city, and beneath it was their treasure, and their father was a right eous man and thy Lord desired that they should reach the age of strength, and take forth their treasure through the mercy of thy Lord And not of mine own will have I done this This is the interpretation of that which thou couldst not bear with patience."

In some Muslim books he seems to be oonfounded with Elias, and in others with St George, the patron saint of England In the above quotation he is represented as the companion of Moses, and the commentator Husain says he was a general in the army of Zū 'l-Qarnaın (Alexander the Great) But as al-Khuzr is supposed to have discovered and drunk of the fountain of hie, he may be contemporary with any age!

KHUBAB or KHABBAB (عماب) The son of al-Arass, the blacksmith. slave converted in the early history of Islam, and one who suffered much persecution from the Quiaish on account of his religious opinions

When 'Umar was Khalifah, Khubab ibn al-Arasa showed him the scars of the stripes he had received from the unbelieving Makkans twenty or thirty years before, 'Umar sented him upon his masnad, saying that there was but one man who was more worthy of this favour than Khuhab, namely, Bilal, who had also been sorely persecuted by the unbelievers But Krinbab replied 'Why is he more worthy than I am? He had his friends among the idolators, whom the Lord raised up to fielp him But I had none to help me And I well remember one day they took me and kindled a fire for me, and threw me therein upon my back, and a man stamped with his foot upon my chest, my back being towards the ground And when they uncovered my back, lo! it was blistered and white" (Kātibu 'l- Wāgidi, quoted by Sir W Muir)

KHUBAIB (خبيب Son of 'Ada One of the early martyrs of Islam Being perfidiously sold to the Quraish, he was by them put to death in a most cruel manner, being mutilated and impaled When at the stake and in the midst of his tortures, he was usked whether he did not wish Muhammad was in his place, and he answered, "I would not wish to be with my family, my substance, and my children, on condition that Muhammad was only pricked with a thorn " When bound to the stake, his enemies said, "Now abjure Islam, and we will let you go " He replied, " Not for the whole world."

Sir Wilham Muir says "I see no reason to doubt the main facts of the story." (Life of Mahomet, new ed p 286)

KHUDAI (عداى), also KHUDĀ (las) From the Persian 34 khud, "self," and i at, "coming" The Supreme Being; the Self Existing God [GOD] Khudā-parast, "a God worshipper", Khudā-tars, "a God fearer", Khudā shinās, "a God knower", Khuda-jaroshan, "God sellers," : c hypocrites

sian word, signifying, "lord," prince," "master" A possessor a man of authority It is used as a title of the Deity, and by Christian missionariee in India it is generally employed as a translation of the Greek Kvotos, "Lord." In the Ghyanu 'l-Lughah, it is derived from Khudu, "God", and wand "bke", se one like unto God

An agreement entered into for the purpose of dissolving marriage The release from the marriage tie obtained by a wife upon payment of a compensation or consideration In the Hidayah it is said "Whenever enmity takes place between husband and wife and they both see reason to apprehend the onds of marriage are not likely to be answered by a continuance of their union, the woman need not acruple to release hersolf from the power of her hueband, by offering such a compen-sation as may induce him to liberate her" In the event of a woman desiring this form of divorce, she is not entitled to the lepay ment of her dower. This law is laid down in the Qur'an "If ye fear that they cannot observe the ordinances of God, then no blame shall attach to either of you for what the wrie shall herself give for her redemption (Surah u 229)

AL-KHULAFĀ'U 'R-RĀSHIDŪN (الحلفاء الراهدون) "The well-directed Khalifahe" A title given to the first four successors of Muhammad-Abū Bakr, 'Umar (Omar), 'Usman, and 'Ali It is generally held by the Sunnis that after these four leigns, lalam became corrupted, and the succession in the office of Khalifah uncortain [KHALIFAH]

KHULQ (ale) " Disposition, temper, naturo" Qur'an, Sürah Ixvin 4
'Vernly thou art of a noblo nature"

KHULŢĪN (علطيس) An infusion of dates and raisius, boiled together until they ferment and become spirituous, but of which a Muslim can drink without impro-priety or sin. This is grounded on a circumstance relative to Ibn Zivad, which is thus related by himself "Abdu Ilah, the son of 'Umar, having given me some sherbet to drink, I became intoxicated to such a degree that I knew not my own house I went to him next morning, and, having informed him of the circumstance, he acquainted me that he had given me nothing but a drink composed of dates and raisins. Now this was certainly khultin, which had undergone the operation of boiling, because it is elsewhere related by 'Umar that it is unlawful in its crude state" (Hiddyah, vol iv p 161)

" Eternity " KHOLOD (nik) [ETERNAL PUNISHMENT]

"A fifth" The KHUMS (عبس) fifth of property which is given to the Baitu 1-Mal, or public treasury

HERMAPHRO-(منثى) KHUNSĀ DITE

ECLIPSE OF KHUSÜF (عسوف) THE MOON

The sermon KHUTBAH ( L.L.) or oration delivered on Fridays at the time of zuhr, or meridian player. It is also recited on the two great festivals in the morning after sunrise ['IDU 'L-FITE, 'IDU 'L-AZHA] The Friday prayor and sermon are established by an injunction in the Qur'an, Sürah lxii 9 'O ye who believe! when the call to prayer is made upon the congregation day (youmu' / jum'ah), then hasten to the remembrance of God, and leave off traffic" By the words 'remembrance of God," most commentators understand the khutbah or ser-

From the Traditions, it appears that Mnhammad used frequently to deliver a khutbah, and that it was not the studied and formal oration which it has become in more recent times

Jübir says "When the Prophet delivered the khutbah, his eyes used to be red, and his voice high, and his anger raged so that you would say he was warning a tribe of the approach of a hostile army, and frightening them with apprehensions of ite arrival thus. It is at hand! In the evening or morning it will come down upon you and plunder you! And the Prophet would say, I have been sent, and the Resurrection is like these two fingers, and he used to join his fore-finger with the next to it, as an explanation of the semblance that the Resurrection was not farther off than the difference of length in the two fingers (Mishkat, book iv ch xlv1)

On Fridays, after the usual ablutions, the four Sunnah prayers are recited, and the preacher, or khatth, then seats himself on the pulpit, or mimbar, whilst the Mu'azzin pro-claims azan, after which he stands up on the second step and delivers the khutbah. It must be in Arabic, and must include prayers for Muhammad, the Companions, and the king, but its composition and general structure is left to the discretion of the preacher In some countries, Egypt for example (Lane's Egyptians, vol 1 p 107), the khatib holds a wooden sword in his hand, whilst he delivers the exhortation. The khutbah is divided into two sections, the khutbatu 'l-wa's, and the khutbatu 'n-na't, supplications being made between the two sections lowing is a translation of a khutbah, as delivered in India in the present day, from which the name and titles of the reigning monarch are omitted. It is the third of a series of sermons published at Lucknow in a volume ontitled Majma's Khutab.—

"In the name of God, the Compassionate, the Merciful.

"Praised be God Praised be that God who hath shows ue the way in this religion. If He had not guided us into the path we should not have found it

"I bear witness that there is no derty but God. He is one He has no associate. I bear witness that Muhammad 18, of a truth, His servant and His Apostle. May God have mercy upon him, and upon his descendants, and upon his companions, and give them peace

"Fear God O ye people, and fear that day, the Day of Judgment, when a father will not be able to answer for his son, nor the son for the father Of a truth God's promises are true Let not this present life make you proud Let not the deceiver (Satan) lead you

"O ye people who have helieved, turn ve God doth forgive all sin, verily He is the merciful, the forgiver of sins Verily He is the most munificent, and bountiful, the King the Holy One, the Clement the Most Mercifnl '

(The preacher then descends from the pulpit and atting on the floor of the mosque, offers up o silent prayer. He then again ascends the numbar, as before, and proceeds) "In the name of God, the Compassionate

the Merciful.

"Praised be God We praise Him We seek help from Him We ask forgiveness of sins We trust in Him We seek refuge in Him from evil desires and from former sinful actions He who has God for His guide ie never lost, and whomsoever He leadeth aside none can guide into the right path

"We bear witness that there is no deity but God He is one He hath no partner

"Verily we bear witness that Muhammad se the servant and apostle of God, and may God have mercy upon him who is more exalted than any being May God have mercy upon hie descendants, and upon his com-panions! May God give them peace! Repecially upon Amīru 'l-Mu'minīn Abū Bakr as-Siddiq (may God be pleased with him) And upon him who was the most temperate of the 'friends,' Amiru 'l-Mu'minin 'Umar Ibn al-Khattab (may God be pleased with him) And upon him whose modesty and faith were perfect, Amiru 'l-Mu'minin 'Uqman (may God be pleased with him) And upon the Laon of the powerful God, Amiru T-Mu'mmin 'Ali ibn Abi-Talib (may God be pleased with hum) And upon the two Imams, the hely ones, the two martyrs, Amīru 'l-Mu'mmīn Abū Muhammad al-Hasan and Abū 'Abdi Tläh al-Russin (may God be pleased with both of them). And upon the mother of these two persons, the chief of women, Fāṭimatu 'z-Zuhrā' (may God be pleased with her) And upon his (Muhammad's) two uncles, Hamzah and al-'Abbās (may God be pleased with them) And upon the rest of the 'companions,' and upon the 'followers' (may God be pleased with all of them) Of Thy mercy, O most merciful of all merciful ones, O God, torgive all Muslim men and Muslim women, all male believers and all female believors Of a truth Thou art He who wilt receive our prayers

"O God, help those who help the religion of Muhammad May we also exert ourselves to help those who help Islam Make those weak, who weaken the religion of Muhammad

"O God, bless the ruler of the age, and make him kind and favourable to the people.

"O servants of God, may God have mercy upon you Verily, God enjoineth justice and the doing of good, and gifts to kindred, and He forbiddeth wickedness, and wrong, and oppression. He warneth you that haply ye may be mindful (Surah cavi 92)
"O we people remember the great and exalted God He will also remember you. He will answer your prayers The remembrance of God is great, and good, and honourable, and noble, and meritorious, and worthy, and sublime "

A more eloquent and strikingly characteristic khutbah nas been translated by Mr Lane in his Modern Egyptians (vol 1 p 107) It is a New Year's Day sermon, delivered in the great mesque at Caire, on the first Friday in the year, on the occasion of Mr Lanes first visit and is as follows

"In the name of God, the Compassionate,

the Merciful

"Praise be to God, the Renewer of Years, and the Multiplier of favours, and the Creator of months and days, according to the most perfect wisdom and most admirable regulation, who hath dignihed the months of the Arabs above all other months, and hath pronounced that among the mors excellent of them is al-Muharram the Sacred, and hath commenced with it the year, as He hath closed it with Zu 'l-Hijjah How propitious is the beginning, and how good is the end! I extol His perfection, exempting Him from the association of any other deity with Him He hath well considered what He hath formed and established what He hath contrived, and He alone hath the power to create and to annihilate I praise Him, extolling His perfection, and exalting His name, for the knowledge and inspiration which He hath graciously vouchsafed, and I testify that there is no deity but God alone, He hath no companion, He is the Most Holy King, the God of Peace, and I testify that our lord and our Prophet and our friend Muhammad 18 His servant and His Apostle, and His elect, and His friend, the Guide of the Way, and the lamp of the dark O God, bless and save and beautify this noble Prophet, and chief and, excellent apostle, the merciful-hearted, our Lord Muhammad, and his family and his companions, and his wives, and his posterity, and the people of his house, the

&quot; Massa, is a word which occurs in the eighth verse of the Saratu t-Tahrim (lxvi.) in the Qurán; it is translated "true repentance" by Sale and Rodwell, but it is supposed to be a persen's name by several commentators noble persons, and grant them ample salva-

"O servants of God, your lives have been gradually curtailed, and year after year hath passed away, and we are sleeping on the hed of indelence, and on the pillow of iniquity Ye pass by the tombs of your predecessors, and fear not the assault of destiny and de struction, as if others departed from the world and ye must of necessity remain in it Ye rejeice at the arrival of new years, as if they brought an increase to the term of life, and swim in the seas of desires, and enlarge year hopes, and in every way exceed other people in presumption, and ve are sluggish in deing good O how great a culamity is this! God teacheth by an allogory Know ye not that in the curtailment of time by indolence and sleep there is vory great to oublo Know ye not that in the cutting short of lives by the termination of years is a very great warning? Know ye not that the night and day divide the liver of numerous souls? Know ye not that health and capacity are two bless age coveted by many men? But the truth hath become manifest to him who hath eyes Ye are now between two years one year hath passed away, and come to an and, with its ovils and ve have entered upon another year, in which if it please God, mankind shall be relieved. Is any of you determining upon daligence in doing good in the year to come? on repenting of his failings in the times that are pussed? The happy one is he who maketh amends for the time past m the time to come, and the miserable one is he whose days pass away and he is careless of his time I'his now year hath arrived and the sacred month of God bath come with blessings to you, the first of the months of the year and of the form sacred months, as listly been said and the most worthy of preference and honone and reverence Its fast is the most excellent of fasts after that which is obligatory, and the doing of good in it is among the most excel lent of the objects of desire. Whosever de aireth to reap advantage from it, let him fast the minth and tenth days, looking for sid Abstain not from the fast through indolence and esteeming it a hardship, but comply with it, in the best manner, and honour it with the best of honours, and improve your time by the worship of God morning and evening Turn unto God with repentance before the assault of death He is the God who accepteth repentance of His servants, and pardoneth sine The Apostle of God (God bless and save him) hath said. The most excel lent prayer, after the prescribed is the prayer that is easd in the last third of the might, and the most excellent fast, after Ramazan, 18 that of the month of God, al Muharram

(The khateb, having concluded his exhorta tion says to the congregation, "Suppheate God." He then sits down and prays privately, and each member of the congregation at the same time offers up some private petition, as after the ordinary prayers, holding his hands before him (boking at the palms), and then drawing them down his face. The khatib them risk ugain, and recites the following) -

"Praise he to God, abundant praise, as He hath commanded I testify that there is no derty but God alone He hath no companion affirming His supremacy, and condemning him who denieth and dishelieveth and I testify that our Lord and our Prophet Muhammad is His servant and His apostle, the lord of mankind the intercessor, the accepted intercessor, on the Day of Assembling God bless him and his family as long as tho eye setth and the ear heareth O people, reverence God by dong what He hath commanded, and abstain from that which He hath forbidden and prohibited. The happy one is lie who obeyeth, and the miserable one is he who opposeth and sinneth Know that the present world is a transitory abode. and that the world to come is a lasting abode Make provision, therefore, in your transitory state for your lasting state and propero for your reckoning and standing before your Lord for know that we shall tomorrow be placed before God, and reckoned with according to your deeds, and before the Lord of Might ye shall be present, and those who acted unjustly shall know with what an overthrowal they shall be overthrown' Know that God, whose perfection I extol, and whose name on exalted, hath said and ceaseth not to say wisely, and to command judiciously, watning you and touching, and honouring the dignity of your Prophet, extoling and mag nifying him Verily, God and His angels bless the Prophet 'O yo who behave, bless him and greet him with a salutation? O God bless Muhammad and the family of Muhammad, as Thou blessedst Ibrahim and the family of Ibrahim among all creatures, for Thou art praiseworthy and glorious () God, do Phou also be well pleased with the four Khalifahs, the orthodox loids, of high dignity and illustrious honour Abn Bals, as-Siddig, and Umas, and Usman, and 'All, and be Thou well plonsed, O (sed with the ux who remained or the ton noble and just persons who swore allegrance to Thy Prophot Muhammad (God bless him and save him) under the tree (for Thou art the Lord of piety and the Lord of partion), those persons of excellence and clemency, and recutude and prosperity, Tal-hah and Zubair, and Sa'd, and Sa id, and Abdu 1-Rahman ibn Auf, and Abii Ubaidah Amir ibn al Jarrah, and with all the Companions of the Apostle of God (God bless and Save him) and be Then well pleased, O God, with the two martyred descendants, the two bright moons, the two lords of the youths of the people of Paradise in Paradise,' the two sweet-smelling flowers of the Prophet of this nation, Abu Muhammad al-Hasan and Abu 'Abdi Ilah al-Husain and be Thon well pleased, O God, with their mother, the daughter of the Apostle of God (God bless and save him), Fatimatu 's-Zahrā', and with their grandmother Khadijah al-Kubra, and with 'Ayishah, the mother of the faithful, and with the rest of the pure wives, and with the generation which succeeded the Companions, and with the generation which succeeded that, with beneficence to the Day of Judgment O God, pardon the believing men and the believing women, and the Muslim men and the Muslim women, those who are living, and the dead, for Thou art a hearer near, an answere of prayers, O Lord, of the beings of the whole world O God, and Islam, and strengthen its pillars, and make infidelity to tremble, and destroy its might, by the preservation of Thy servant, and the son of Thy servant, the submissive to the Might of The Majesty and Glory whem God hath aided, by the care of the Adored King, our master the Sultan, son of the Sultan, the Sultan Mahmud Khān, may God assist him, and prolong [his reign] O God, assist him, and assist his armies, O Thou Lierd of the icligion, and the world present, and the world to come, O Lord of the beings of the whole world

"O God, assist the forces of the Muslims and the armles of the Unitarians () God, frustrate the infiels and polytheists, thine enemies, the enemies of the feligion O God, invert their banners, and ruin their habitations, and give them and their wealth as hooty to the Muslims O God, unloose the captivity of the captives, and annul the debts of the debtors, and make this town to be safe and secure, and blossed with wealth and pienty, and all the towns of the Muslims O Lord of the beings of the whole would And decree safety and health to us and to all travellers, and pilgrims and warriors, and wanderers, upon Thy earth, and upon Thy see, such as are Muslims, O Lord of the beings of the whole would

"'O Lord, we have acted unjustly towards our own souls, and if frou do not forgive us and be moraful unto us, we shall surely be of those who perish. I beg of God, the Great, that He may forgive me and vou, and all the people of Muhammad, the servants of God. 'Vailly God commandath justice and the doing of good, and giving what is due to kindred, and forbiddeth wickedness, and miguity, and oppression. He admenisheth you that ye may reflect. Remember God, He will remember you and thank Him, He will remember you and thank Him, He will increase to you your blessings. Praise be to God, the Lord of the beings of the whole world!"

The khutbah being ended, the khatib then descends from the pulpit, and, if he officiate as Imam, takes his position and leads the people in a two rak'ah prayer. The khatib, however, does not always officiate as Imam. The Prophet is related to have said that the length of a man's prayers and the shortness of his sermen, are signs of a man's common sense.

According to the best authorities, the using of the reigning Khalifah ought to be recited in the khutbah, and the fact that it is not so recited in independent Muhammadan kingdoms, but the name of the Sulfan or Amir is substituted for the Khalifah, has its significance, for it is a question whether the

Sultan of Turkey, has any real claim to the spiritual headship of Islam. [KHALIPAH] In India the mame of the king is omitted and the expression "Ruler of the Age" is used

In ladia, the recital of the khatbah serves to remind every Muhammadan priest, at least once a week, that he is in a Daiu'tharb, "a land of enmity" Still the fact that he can recite his khutbah at all in a country not under Muslim rule, must also assure him that he is in a Dāru'tham, or "land of protection"

KHUTBATU 'L-WAQFAH ( Link) 'The "sermon of standing" The sermon or oution rooted on Mount 'Arafat at the nucl day prayer on the ninth day of the pilgrimage (Burton's Pilgrimage, vol u p 219) [KHUTBAL]

KHUZA'AH (Act) Let "A remnant" A part of the Banu 1-Azd who were left behind when the tribe imgrated, and who settled down permanently near Makkah They were from the first friendiv to Muhammad and made a treaty with him soon after that of al Hudaibiyah Thoy were an important portion of the army which marched to Makkah with the Prophet

KHUZAIMAH (Lays) An Arabian tribe were expelled by the Yaman tribes and afterwards settled in the Hijaz, where they bore a prominent part in opposing the army of Muhammad

KHUZAIMAH IBN SABIT (ص فابت ) A Companion of some renown He was present at the battle of Badr H. was killed at the same time as the Khahfah 'Ah, A H 37

KHWAJAH (هام ) Persiau A rich or respectable man a gentleman An opulent merchant **RIBR ( ( ) "Pride, haughtiness With regard to mortal man it is considered a vice, but with regard to the Infinite floid it is held to be one of His attributes Al Kabir, 'the Great One"

" Alchemy " (الكيمياه) "Alchemy " The word is supposed to be derived from the Greek avues which signifies juice," and to be properly confined to the study of extracts and essences of plants It is now, however, applied more especially to a pretended science, which had for its object the transuntution of the baser materials into gold or silver, or the discovery of a panacea or universal remedy for diseases Although this so-called science has now fallen into de served contempt, it was held in high repute, and much cultivated from the 13th to the 17th century, especially amongst the Sara-The first Muslim of reputation who is said to have given his attention to the subject, was Khalid, a son of the Khalifah Yazid (A.D. 688), and the first who wrote on the subject was Jabir Ibn Abban as Sufi, who was a disciple of Khalid.

Haji Khalfah, the celebrated author of the Kashfu 2-Junun, says "the word Kunyah comes from the Hebrew, kim and san and means 'from God' There is some discussion regarding this science. Many people do not believe in its existence, amongst others the cslebrated philosopher Shaikh 'Alī ibn Sīnā', who wrote against it in his book, the Kitābu 'sh-Shafā' also Ya'qūb al-Kindi, and many others But, on the other hand, many learned men have believed in its existence, for example, Imam Fakhrn'd-din ar-Razi, and Shaikh Najmu'd-din al-Bagh-dadı." (Kashfu'z-Zunün, ın loco) Ahlu Kimiya', ıs a term used not only for an alohymist, but for a deceiver, and also a lover

Al-Kemeya'u 'l-Akbar, the philosopher's stone, or some celebrated tincture

Kimiyan 'l-Ma'ani, the chemistry of meanings, that is, the study of truth

II -Amongst the Sufi mystics, the term al-Kimıya'ıs used for being satisfied with the things in possession, and not yearning after things which we do not possess Kuniya'u'l-'Awam, the alohymistry of the ordinary people, is the exchange of spiritual things for the things which perish. Kimiya'u'l-'Khawass, the alchymistry of special people, is the emptying of the heart of everything except God Kimiya'u's-Sa'adah, the alchymistry of feheity, is the purification of one's heart from all things that are svil by the attain ment of special graces ('Abdu 'r-Razzaq's Dect of Suf's Terms)

KINANAH (& (1) The name of the ancestor and founder of the Arabian KINANAH (کالة) tribe, the Banû Kinanah, the father of an-Nazr, the grandfather of Fihr, who was sur-

named Quraish [QURAISH.]

(2) The name of the Jewish chief of Kharbar who defended the fortress of Qamus against Muhammad He was slain by order of the Prophet, who afterwards took Kinanah's bride, Safiyah, to his home and married her [BATITAH]

KINAYAH (444) "A metaphor" A word used in the science of exegesis, eg "Thou art separated," by which may be meant, "Thou art divorced," which is called Talaqu 'l-Kınayak, or a divorce in metaphor

(كسا KINDAH (كسا A tribe of al-Yaman, and the descendants of Himyar They are admitted to be one of the noblest of the Arab tribes One of the remarkable descendants of this tribe was al-Kindi the philosopher [MINDL]

AL-KINDI (كندى), the philosopher Abū Yūsuf Ya'qūb ibn Ishāq ibn aş-Şabbāḥ al-Kindi, who flourished at the court of the Khalifah Ma'mūm, A D 833, and who translated numerous classical and philoso-phical works for the Abbaside Government De Slane says his father Ishaq was Amir of al-Kufah, and his great grandfather was one of the Prophet's Companions It was at one time supposed he was a Jew or a convert to the Jewish religion, while others tried to identify him with the author of an Apology for Christianity, entitled Risalatu 'Abda' 'l-Masih ibn Jehāq al-Kindī, in which the writer explains to a Mushim friend his reasons for holding the Christian faith, in preference to Islam, whose acceptance the latter had pressed upon him. But it has been proved that al-Kindi, the philosopher, and al-Kindi, the author of the said treatise, are two distinct persons, although both living at the court of al-Ma'mun and belonging to the same tribe.

Dr J M Arnold, in his Islam and Christianity, p 872, says the Risalah, or treatise of al-Kindi, is quoted as a genuine produc-tion by the celebrated historian, Muhammad ibn Ahmad al-Bīrūnī (died A.R. 480), in one of his works in confirmation of his statement that there were human sacrifices offered up m Arabia prior to the time of Muhammad

The Apology of al-Kindi has been rendered into English by Sir William Muir, from an edition in Arabic published by the Turkish

Missions Aid Society

KINDRED INHERITANCE, MAR-RIAGE ]

KING The term used in the Qur'un for a king is generally malik (alla), Heb , eg when the Israelites "said to a prophet of theirs, 'Raise up for us a king'" (Surah 11 246)

(1) The word malik is now merely used in Arabia and in Central Asia for a petty chief

(2) Sultan occurs in the Qur'an for "authority," or "power," and not for a king Surah laix 29, "My authority has perished from me" But it is now the title assumed by the Emperor of Turkey

(8) Pādshāh and Shāh are Persian words, the ruler of Persia having assumed the title of Shah or King The word Padshah is derived from pad, "a throne," and shah, "a lord or possessor,' te "the lord of the throne" In Hindustanı it is Badshah.

(4) Wali, 18 a title assumed by Muhammadan rulers, the title being held by the Barakzai rulers of Afghāmstan in all legal documents The word simply means a possessor, or one in authority

(5) Amer has a similar meaning to Wall, and is a title which is assumed by Muslim rulers, as the Amirs of Bukharah and of Kabul. It is derived from 'amr, "to rule."

(6) Sayed, "a lord," is a title given to the descendants of Muhammad, and is a regal title assumed by the ruler of Zanzibar

(7) Imam, " a leader," is the legal title of the head of the Muslims, and it is that given to the successors of Muhammad, who are so called in the Traditions and in Muhammadan works of law [IMAM.]

(8) Khalifah, "a vicegerent." Khalifah, or Caliph, is used for the same regal personage as Imam [KHALIPAH RULERS]

KIRAMAH (La), ). The miracles of any saint other than a Prophet, as distinguished from mu'jizah, which is always used for the miracles of an apostle or prophet. [MIRAGLES.]

"The more sober among them, indeed, when they applied the word body to God, would be understood to mean that He is a self-subsisting being, which with them is the definition of body, but yet some of them affirmed him to be finite, and circumsoribed either on all sides, or on some only (as beneath, for example), according to different opinions, and others allowed that He might be felt by the hand, and seen by the eye Nay, one David al-Jawari went so far as to say that His deity was a body composed of flesh and blood, and that He had members, as hands, feet, a head, a tongue, eyes, and ears, but that he was a body, however, not like other bodies, neither was he like to any created being He is also said, further, to have affirmed that from the crown of the head to the breast he was hollow, and from the breast downward solid, and that He had black curled hair These most blasphemous and monetrous notions were the consequence of the literal acceptation of those passages in the Koran (Surahs xl 10, xx 4, n 109), which figuratively attribute corporeal actions to God, and of the words of Muhammad, when he said that God created man in His own image, and that he himself had felt the fingers of God, which He laid on his back, to be cold . besides which, this sect are charged with fathering on thoir Prophet a great number of spurious and forged traditions to support their opinion, the greater part whereof they borrowed from the lews, who are accused as naturally prone to assumilate God to men, so that they describe Him as weeping for Voah's flood till His eyes were sore" (Sale)

KIRAMUN KATIBUN (كروم) Let "Illustrious writers" The two recording angels who are said to be with every man, one on the right hand to record his good deeds, and one on his left to record the evil deeds They are mentioned in the Qur'an, Suratu 'l-Infitar (lxxxi) "Yet truly there are gual dans over you, illustrious recorders (kirāman kātībīn) cognizant of your actions"

It is related that the Prophet enjoined his people not to spit in front, or on the right, but on the left, as on that side stands the recording angel of evil (Meshkāt, book iv ch vin pt 1)

As these angels are supposed to be changed every day, they are called the mu'aqqıbāt, or those who succeed each other

KISRA (كسرى), pl Akāsırah The Chosroes, or Cyrus, a name given to almost every king of Persia of the Sassānian dynasty (like Casar among the Romans and Pharach among the Egyptians) The kings of Persia, prior to Islam, according to Arab historians, composed four dynasties, namely, the Peshdädians, the chronology of which is unknown, the Kayanians, which ended B.C 331, when Persia was conquered by Alexander the Great, the Ashkanians, which terminated A.D 202, and the Sassanians, the last of whom was overcome by the Arabs, A D 686

From the Qur'an, Surah xxx. 1, it appears that after the taking of Jerusalem by Chosroes, the sympathies of Muhammad were all enlisted on the side of the Casar, and he forestells his ultimate victory over the king of Persia.—

"The Greeks have been conquered in the neighbouring coast, but in a few years after their defeat they shall again be victorious"

In the sixth year of the Hijrah, Muhammad sent a despatch to Chosroes, inviting him to Islam Sir Wilham Muir says (Life of Mahomet, new od p d84)—

"The despatch for the King of Persia reached the Court probably some months after the accession of Siroes. It was delivered to the Monarch, who, on hearing the contents, tore it in pieces. When this was reported to Mahomet, he prayed and said Even thus, O Lord! rend Thou his kingdom from him? Connected with the court of Persia, but of date somewhat earlier than the despatch sent to it, is a remarkable incident, which was followed by results of considerable importance

A few months before his overthrow, the Chosroes, receiving strange reports of the prophetical claims of Mahomet, and of the depredations committed on the Syrian border by his marauding bands, sent order to Badzan, the Persian Governor of Yemen, to despatch two trusty men to Medina, and procure for him certain information regarding the Pre-tender Bådzån obeyed, and with the messengers sent a courteous despatch to Mahomet By the time they arrived at Medina tidings had reached the Prophet of the deposition and death of Chosroes When the despatch, therefore, was read before him, he smiled at its contents, and summoned the ambassadors to embrace Islâm He then apprised them of the murder of the Chosroes and the accession of his son. 'Go,' said he, ' mform your master of this, and require him to sender his submission to the Prophet of the Loid The glory of Persia had now departed She had long ago relaxed her grasp upon Arabia, and the Governor of Yemen was free to choose a protectorate more congenial to his people Badzan, therefore, gladly recognised the rising fortunes of Islam, and sigmifled his adhesion to the Prophet From the distance of this province, its allegiance was at the first little more than nominal, but the accession served as a point for further action, and meanwhile added new prestige to the Prophet's name."

KISWAH (اكسوة) Let. "A robe."
The covering of the Ka'abah, or cube-like building, at Makkan. [Ka'BAR.]

When Captain Burton visited Makkah in 1858, he found it to be a coarse tissue of mused silk and cotton, and of eight pieces, two for each face of the building, the seams being concealed by the broad gilt band called the assum. It is lined with white calico, and has cotton ropes to secure the covering to metal ringe at the basement. But on the occasion of Captain Burton's visit, the kiswah was tacked up by ropes from the roof. The whole is of a brilliant black, with the gold band running round it

The burga', or veil, is a curtain hung before the door of the Ka'bah, also of black brocade, embroidered with inscriptions, in letters of gold, of verses from the Qui'an, and lined with green silk.

According to Burton the macription on the gold band of the kiswah is the unretieth verso of the third Surah of the Qur'an "Verily, the first House founded for mankind was surely that at Bakkah, for a blessing and a guidance to the worlds" The whole of the kiswah is covered with seven Sürahs of the Qur'an, namely, xvinth, xixth, third, ixth, xxth, xxxxxth, and Lxvinth (i.e. al-habf, Maryam, Alu Imran, at-Taubah Tā Hū, Yā Sīn, and al Mulk). The character is the ancient Kufic, and legible from a considerable distance

Mr Lane says that the kiswell is made of a mixture of silk and cition, because the Prophet expressly forbade silk as an article of dress

The kiswah and burqa' are now manu factured at Cairo at a manufactory called the Khurunfish, and is made by a family who possess the hereditary right, and who are called the Baita's-Sa'd. Whou they are completed, they are taken to the mosque known as the Sultan Hasan, and there kept until they are sent off with a cararan of pigrams to Makkah. This usually takes place a few days after the 'Idu 'I Fift, generally about the 6th day of the month of Shawwal, and two or three weeks before the departure of the regal anopy or Mahmal [MAHMAL] The procession of the kiswah is similar to that of the Mahmal, and therefore requires no separate description

According to Muslim historians the Kabah was first dressed with a kiswah or robe by a Himyante chief, named Tubba'u 'l-Arqun From the time of Quant it was veiled by subscriptions collected from Pagan Arabs, until Abu Rabiyah ibn al-Mughirah ibn 'Abdı 'llah provided the covering whereby he obtained the title of al 'Adl "the Just" When Muhammad obtained possession, he ordered it to be covered with fine Yamani cloth, and ordered the expense to be defraved from the public treasury The Khalifah Umar chose Egyptian linen, and ordered the robe to be renewed every year Khahifah ·Usman, being a man of eminent piety ordered it to be clothed twice a year. For the winter it had a robe of brocade silk, and in the summer a suit of fine linen Mu awiyah, tho Umaiyah Khalifah, was the first to establish the present kiswah of silk and linen tissue but being reminded of the Prophet's wellknown dishke to silken robes he changed it again to the more orthodox covering of Ya-mani cloth The Khalifah Ma'mun (A.D. 813) ordered the dress to be changed three times a year, the fine Yamani cloth on the 1st of Rajab, white brocade on the 1st of Shuwwal, for the pilgrimage two months later, and rich red brocade on the 10th of Muharram The Khalifah al Mutawakkil (A D 847) sent a new tobe every two months During the Abbuside dynasty, the investing of the Kabah with the kiswah was regarded as a sign of sovereignty over the holy places later Khalifahs of Baghdad are said to have sent a kıswab of green and gold The Fatimide Khalifahs made the kiewah at Cairo of black brocade of mixed suk and cotton, and when Sultan Salim assumed the power of the Khalifate (AD 1612), the kiswah still con-tinued to be supplied from Carre, as is now the case under the Ottoman rule

(Burckbardt's Arabu, Lanes Egyptians, Ah Bey's Prigrimage, Burton's Mecca and Medina) [KA'BAH, MASJIDU'T-HARAM]

AL-KITAB (الحتاب) "The Book"

A term used for the Qurun, and extended to all inspired books of the Jews and Christians, who are called Ahlu I Kitab or behavers in the book

KITABI (کانی) A term used for one of the Ahlu I Kitāb, "the people of the Book," or those in possession of the inspired word of God, as Jews or Christians

KITABIYAH (Letts) Fem of hitabi A female of the Ahlu l-Kitab on those who possess an inspired book, Jews of Christians

KITĀBU 'L-A'MĀL (كتاب الأعمال) [عمال 'L-A'MĀL (كتاب الأعمال)

AL-KITABU 'L-HUKMI (الكندي)

A letter transmissible from one Qizi to another when the defendant in a suit resides at a distance. Such letter must be a transcript of real cyldence.

AL-KITABU 'L-MUBIN (المحين) Let "The Manifest or clear book The term is used in the Qur'an both for the Tablet of Decrees (Lauhu 'l-Mahyūz and for the Qur'an riself

Surah vi 59 "No leaf falleth but He knoweth it, neither is there a grain in the darkness of the earth, nor a green thing or sere, but it is noted in the clear book"

Sunah iv 18 "Now hath a light and a clear book come to you from God."

keeping secret" The injunction of the Qur'an is "Hide not the truth while ye know it', and yet the art of concealing profane religious beliefs has been a special characteristic of the Eastern mystics

KNEELING The attitude of kneeling amongst Muhammadans consists of placing the two knees on the ground and sitting on the feet behind Kneeling as practised by Christians in the present day, does not exist amongst Muslims as an attidude of worship

The word jagi, which occurs in the Qur†an, Sürah xiv 27 "And thou shalt see each nation kneeling (jänyatan), each nation summoned to the book," expresses an attitude of fear and not of worship

KNOWLEDGE ['ILM ]

KORAH Arabic Qūrūn (ODU)

Heb T. The son of Yashar
(Izhar), son of Qāhis (Kohath), son of Lāwī (Levi) The leader of the rebelion against Moses Num xvi 1, Jude 11 (where he is compled with Cain and Balaam) He is mentioned three times in the Qurān Surah x! 24, 25 "Moreover we had sent Moses of old, with our signs and with clear authority, to Pharach, and Haman, and Korah, and they said, 'Sorcerer, impostor'

Sürah xxix 38 "And Korah and Pharach and Haman With proofs of his mission did Moses come to them, and they behaved proudly on the earth, but us they could not outstrip, for every one of them did we saize in his sin Against some of them did we send a stone-charged wind, some of them did the terrible cry of Gabriel surprise, for some of them we cleaved the earth, and some of them we drowned"

Surah xxviii 76-82 "Now Korah was of the people of Moses but he behaved haughtily toward them, for we had given him such treasure that its keys would have burdened a company of men of strength When his people said to him, 'Exult not for God loveth not those who exult, but seek by means of what God hath given thee, to attain the future Mansion, and neglect not thy part in this world, but be bounteous to others as God hath been bounteous to thee and seek not to commit excesses on the earth for God loyeth not those who commit excesses ' he said, 'It hath been given me only on account of the knowledge that is in me' Did he not know that God had destroyed before him generations that were mightier than he in strength and had amassed more abundant wealth? But the wicked shall not be asked of their crimes And Korah went forth to his people in his pomp Those who were greedy for this present life said, 'Oh that we had the like of that which hath been bestowed on Korah! Truly he is possessed of great good fortune But they to whom knowledge had been given said, 'Woe to you! the reward of God is better for him who believeth and worketh righteousness, and none shall win it but these who have patiently endured ' And we clave the earth for him and for his palace, and he had no forces, in the place of God, to help him, nor was he among those who are succoured. And in the morning those who the day before had coveted his lot said, 'Aha! God enlargeth anpplies to whom He pleaseth of His servants, or is sparing Had not God been gracious to us. He had osused it to oleave for us. Aha! the ungrateful can never prosper."

ungrateful can never prosper"
Al-Bazawi says Korah brought a false accusation of immorality against Moses, and Moses complained to God, and God directed him to command the earth what he pleased, and it should obey him, whereupon he said, "O earth, swallow them up", and ummedistely the earth opened under Korsh and his confederates, and swallowed them up, with his palace and all his riches -There is a tradition that as Korah sank gradually into the ground, first to his knees, then to his waist, then to his neck, he cried out four several times, "O Moses, have mercy on mo'" but that Moses continued to say, "O earth swallow them up ' " till at last he wholly disappeared upon which God said to Moses "Thou hadst no mercy on Korah, though he asked pardon of thee four times, but I would have had compassion on him if he had asked paidon of Me but once "

He 14 represented by Jalalu 'd-din as the most beautiful of the largelites of his time. His opulence and avarice have become a proverb for those who amass wealth without giving away in alius and charity

In the Taimud it is said that "Joseph concealed three treasures in Egypt, one of which became known to Korah the keys of Korah's treasure chambers were a burden for 300 white mules." Midr Jalkut on Eccl to their huit,"—which may have furnished Muhammad with the nucleus of this story Compute also Fract Psuchim, fol 119a

AL-KÜFAH (الكونة) A city on the west bank of the river Euphrates, about four days march from Baghdad, but which bas now entiroly disappeared

The city of al-Kufah was founded soon after the Arabs conquered Persia, AD 686, and in the leign of the Khalifah 'Umar was built opposite the ancient town of Madain, on the other side of the river The first Abbaside Khalifah, Abu l-'Abbas, AD 750 made it his capital, and it was then a flourishing city, but when the Khalifah al-Mansur built Baghdad, al-Kufah decreased in importance, and gradually fell into decay It was much famed for its learned men, and especially for its grammarians. Two sects of rival grammarians were named respectively from al Basrah and al-Kufah, and the more ancient characters of Arabic writing are oalled Kufi or Kufic, after this seat of learning The Kufic-Arabic letters resemble the Syriac, being square and heavy ancient copies of the Qur'an are written in Kuffe

KUFR () Lit "That which covers the truth" Infidelity, blasphemy Disbelleving in the Qui fin of in any of the tenets of the Muslim religion [KASTR]

KULAH (SM). The Persian for a cap, or cowl, especially worn by Muhammadan faqirs or darweshes The faqirs generally

call rt their taj or crown, and it is one of the distinguishing marks of their order

RULARS (E (amphel)

KULSUM (كالثيرة) Kulsum ibn Hadam, the name of a hospitable but blind chief, with whom Muhammad stayed at Quba upon his arrival in that place after his dight from Makkah. It was whilst he was staying with Kulsum that Muhammad built his first mosque at Qubā. Kulsum died scon after wards

KURZIBN JABIR (کرزس جار) A Quraisn chieftani who committed a raid near il Madmah, and carried off some of the flocks and herds of the Muslims He was afterwards converted to Islam, and fell under Khalid at the taking of Makkah

KUSÜF (کسوف) [ECLIPSE OF THE

L

LAADRIVAH (الحرية) A sect of heretics who say it is impossible for niortal man to be certain of any fact, even of man's own identity

LABBAIKA (ليلك) [TALBIYAH]

TABID (Lac) The son of Rabi ah ibn Ja far al-Amiri, a celebrated poet in the time of Muhammad who embiaced Islam, and who is said to have died at al Kufah at the advanced age of 157 years. The Prophet is related to have said. The time it words ever uttered by a poet are those of lack deveroed by a poet are those of lack deveroed by a poet are those of lack development in the said of lack development.

LAHD (1) The bollow male in a grave on the Qiblah side in which the corpse is placed. It is made the same length as the grave, and is as high as would allow a person to sit up in it.

LAHUT ((25)) Let "Extinction or "absorption." (1) The last stage of the mystic purney (2) Divinity (3) Life penetrating all things [SUFFIRM.]

LAHYAN (Obs.) A branch of the Huzari tribe, which inhabited in the days of Muhammad, as they still do, the vicinity of Makkah Muhammad formed an expedition against them, A is G, on account of their treacherous attack on a small party of Muslims at Rajî البراطة (البراطة (البراطة) (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البرطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البراطة (البرطة (البرطة (البراطة (البرطة (البرطة (البرطة (البرطة (البرطة (البرطة (البرطة (البرطة (البرطة (البرطة (الللولة (البرطة (الللولة (الللولة (الللولة (الللولة (الللولة (الللولة (الللولة (الللولة (اللولة الولة (اللولة (اللولة (اللولة (الولة (الولة (الولة (اللولة (اللولة (الولة (الولة (ال

AL-JAILATU 'L-MUBĀRAKAH (الليلة المباركة) Lit "The Blessed Vight" [LAILATU 'L-QADR]

"The night of power" A mysterious night, in the month of Ramazan, the process date of which is said to have been known only to the Prophet and a few of the Companions The following is the allusion to it in the Qur'an Suratu l-Qadr (xcvn) —

' Verily we have caused it (the Qur'an) to descond on the Ladatu'l Qadr

"Who shall teach thee what the Ladatu'l Qadi is'

"The Lulatu "l-Qadr excelleth a thousand niceths

"Therein descend the angels, and the spirit by permission "Of their Lord in every matter,

"And all is peace until the breaking of the dawn"

This night must not be confounded, as it often is, with the Shab-i Bara'ah, which is generally called Shab i-Qadr or the night of power, but which occurs on the 15th of Shaban. [SHAB I BARA'AE.]

The excellences of the Lalatu 1-Qadr are said to be mannerable, and it is behaved that during its selema hours the whole animal and vegetable creation bow down in humble adoration to the Almighty

'R-RAGHA'IB LAILATU tory devotions" A festival observed on the first Friday in the month Rajab, by certain mystic leaders who affirm that it was established by the Prophet, but it is generally rejected by orthodox Sunnis (See Raddu'l-Muhtār, vol. i p 717)

An Arabic tribe de-(ليب عا 818 (ليب scended from Kınanah. Al-Baizawi says they thought it unlawful for a man to eat alone, and were the cause of the verse in the Quran, Surah xxiv 60 "There is no orume in you, whether ye eat together or separately"

LAMENTATION BUKA'

"Imprecation, LA'NAH (less) curse, anathema" A word used thirteen tumes in the Qur'an, e.g. Sürsh in 83 "Tho curse of God is on the infidels"

LAND Arabic arz (ارض), balad (all), mulk (alla)

The following are some of the principal rules of Muslim law relating to land -

(1) Tithes or Zakat on lunds - Upon every thing produced from the ground there is due ת tenth, or 'āshir, 'uehr (Heb קצעלר), whether the soil be watered by the annual overflow of great rivers, or by periodical rams, excepting upon articles of wood, bamboos, and grass, which are not subject to tithe Land watered by means of buckets or machinery, such as Persian wheels, or by watering camels, are subject to only half tithes (Hidayah, vol 1 p 44)
(2) Conquered lands become the property of the state Those of idolaters remain so Those belonging to Jews, Christians, or Fire worshippers, are secured to the owners on payment of tribute. Those who afterwards embrace Islam icrover their property, according to ash Shahir, but not according to the Hanifah school Upon the Muslim army evacuating an enemy's country, it becomes unlawful for the troops to feed their cattle on the land without due payment (Hidayah vol ii p 170)

(8) Appropriation for religious uses -Land may be so appropriated, but if a person appropriate land for such a purpose and it should afterwards be discovered that an indefinite portion of it was the property of another person, the appropriation is void with respect to the remainder also. The appropriation must also be of a perpetual and not of a temporary nature (Hidayah, vol u

p 340)
(4) The sale of land is lawful sales the trees upon the land are moluded in the sale, whether specified or not, but neither the grain growing on the ground, nor the fruit growing on the trees, are included, unless specified. But in the case of the fruit or corn being purchased with the land, it must be gathered or cleared away at once. In the sale of ground, the seed sown m the ground is not included. Land may be resold previous to seizin or possession, by the first purchaser, according to Abu Hanifah, but the Imam Muhammad saya it is unlawful. Wells and watercourses are not included in the sale of lands unless specified. (Hadayak, vol 11 pp 872, 481, 508)

(5) Claims against land must be made by the plaintiff, defining the four boundaries and specifying the names of each possessor, and the demand for the land must be made in exphert terms And if the land has been resold, a decree must be given either for or against the last possessor, according to some doctors (Hulayah, vol. m. p. 65) (b) Land can be lent, and the borrower can build upon it, but when the lender receives back his land he can compel the borrower to remove his houses and trees. Land lent for tillage cannot be resumed by the lender until the crops sown have been reaped] Abu Hamifah maintains that when land is lent to another, the contract should be in these words, "You have given me to eat of this land (Hidayah, vol m p 284, 288)

(7) A gift of land which is uncultivated cani of he retracted after houses have been built on it or trees planted. If the dones sell half of the granted land, the donor in that case may if he wishes, resume the other half If a person make a guit of land to his relative within the probibited degrees it is not lawful for him to resume it. (Hedayah, vol

m p. 802)

(8) The Igarah, or rental of land, us lawful, but the period must be specified, otherwise the cent may be demanded from day to day But a lease of land is not lawful unless mention is made of the article to be raised upon it and at the expiration of the lease the land must be restored in its original state birer of land is not responsible for accidents, for example if in burning off the stubble he i appen to burn other property, he is not responsible for loss incurred. (Hidayah, vol. in p 314 &c)
(9) The cultivation of waste and unclaimed lands is lawful, when it is done with the permission of the rules of the country, and the act of cultivation invests the cultivator with a right of property in them. But if the land be not cultivated for three years after n has been allotted, it may again be claimed by the state (Hidayak, vol iv p 128)

(10) If a person be claim on lands belonging to anyone, and situated near a village, and the proprietor of the land be not an inhabitant of the village, he is responsible for the murder, as the regulation and protection of those lands rest upon him (Hedayah, vol 1v p 447)

LAPIDATION STONING ]

LAPWING Arabic hudhud (acac) The name in the Qur'an, Surah xxvii 20, for the bird which carried the letter from King Sciemon to the Queen of Sheba [SOLOMON]
It is the Clary of the Old Testament,
Lev xi. 19, Deut xiv 18 Greek drow
The medern Hoopee

The, commentators al Jalalan and al-Baixawi say that Solomon, having finished the temple of Jerusalem, went in pilgrimage to Makkah, whence, having stayed as long as he pleased he proceeded towards al-Yaman; leaving Makkah in the morning, he arrived by noon at Ṣan'ā', and being extremely delighted with the country, rested there. But wanting water to make the ablu tion, he looked among the birds for the lap wing, whose business it was to find it, for it is pretended she was sagacious or sharp sighted to discover water underground, which the devils used to draw, after she had marked the place by digging with her bill They add that this bird was then taking a tour in the air, whence, seeing one of her companions alighting, she descended also, and having had a description given her by the other of the city of Saba', whonce she was just u rived, they both went together to take a view of the place, and returned soon after Solomon had made the inquiry given in the Qur'an "He reviewed the hirds and said. How is it I do not see al-Hudhud? Is he, then amongst the absent?"

LAQAB (—a) A surname Either a title of honour or a nickname, eg Al Hugan ibn Mas üd al-Fairā, 'the tannei', Abū ba īd Taju 'l-Mulūk, "the crown of kings", Ibn Muhammad at-Tayklabi, of the tribe of Taghlab" [NAMES]

LAQIT (Lat), in its plumitive sense, signifies anything lifted from the ground, but in the language of the law it signifies a child abandoned by those to whom it properly belongs. The person who finds the child is termed the multaqui of the taker up [FOUNDLING]

LARCENY Arabic sariquh (55,--) In the language of the law surequh signifies the taking away the property of another in a secret manner, at a time when such property is in custody Unstody is of two kinds lat, by place, for example, a house or a shop, and, and, by personal guard, which is by means of a personal watch over the property. If an adult of sound understanding steal out of undoubted custody ten dirhams, or property to the value of ten dirhams, the Muhammadan law awards the amputation of a hand, for it is said in the Qur'an, Surah v 42 "If a man or woman steal, cut off their hands"

With regard to the amount of the value which constitutes a theft, there is some difference of opinion. According to Abū Hanifsh, it is ten dirhams, according to ash-Shāfi'i, it is the fourth of a dinār, or twelve dirhams, whilst Mālik holde that the sum is three dirhams

The freeman and the slave are on equal footing with respect to punishment for theft, and the hand of the slave is to be struck off in the same manner as the hand of a free Muslim.

The theft must be established upon the testimony of two witnesses, but the magnetrate must examine the witnesses as to the manner, time, and place of the theft. The thief must also be held in confinement, or suspleion, until the witnesses be fully examined.

If a party commit a theft, and each of the party receive ten dirhams, the hand of each is to be cut off, but if they receive less than ten dirhams each, they are not hable to ampu-

tetion

Amputation is not incurred by the theft of snything of a trifling nature, such as wood, bamboos, grass, fish, fowls, and garden stuff

Amputation is not incurred by the theft of such things as quickly docsy and spoil, such as milk or fruit, nor for stealing fruit whilst upon the tree, or grain which has not been reaped, these not being considered as in custody

The hand of a thief is not struck off for stealing any formented liquor, because he may explain his intention in taking it, by saying, 'I took it with a view to spill it', and also because some fermented liquors are not lawful property

The hand is not to be cut off for stealing a guiter or tabor, these being of uso merely as idle amusements

Amputation is not incurred by stealing a Quran, although ash-Shān'ī maintains that it is

There is no amputation for stealing the door of a mosque. Nor is the hand struck off for stealing a crucifix or a chess board, as it is in the thief's power to excuse himself by saying, "I took them with a view to break and destroy them, as things prohibited." It is otherwise with a coin bearing the impression of an idel, by the theft of which amputation is incurred, because the money is not an object of worship

The hand is not to be struck off for stealing a free-born infant, although there be ornaments upon it, because a free person is not property, but amputation is incurred by stealing an infant slave, although the stealing of an adult slave does not incur amputation, as such an act does not come under the description of theft, being an usurpation or a fraud

Amputation is not incurred for stealing a book, because the object of the thief can only be its contente and not the property

The hand is not cut off for stealing a curdog, because such an animal is common property, nor for stealing utensils made of wood

There is no amputation for stealing from the public treasury, because everything there is the common property of all Muslims, and in which the thief, as a member of the community has a share. And if a person steal from property of which he is in part owner, amputation is not inflicted. Nor if a oreditor steal from his debt is the hand cut off

The right hand of the thief is to be cut off at the joint of the wrist and the stump afterwards ocuterised, and for the second theft the left foot, and for any theft beyond that he must suffer imprisonment

The name of an idel worshipped by the ancient Arabians, probably the Alilat of Herodotus. The idel Lat is mentioned in the Qur'an in conjunction with the two other idels, al-'Uzzā and Manāt See Śūrah lin 19 "What think yo, then, of al-Lāt and al-'Uzzā, and Manāt, the third idel besides?"

In connection with this verse there is an interesting discussion. (See Muir, newed p 86) Al-Waqidi and at-Tabari both re late that, on a certain day, the chief men of Makkah assembled in a group boside the Kabah, discussed, as was their wont, the affairs of the city, when the Prophet appeared, and scating himself by thom in a friendly manner, began to recite the 53rd chapter of the Quian, and when he had reached the verse "What think ye then of al-Lat, and al-'Uzzā, and Manat, the third idol besides!" the Devil suggested words of reconciliation and compromise with idolatry, namely, "These are exalted females, and veilly their intercession is to be hoped for These words, however, which were received by the idolaters with great delight, were afterwards disavowed by the Prophet, for Gabriel revealed to him the true reading, namely, "What think ye then of al-Lat, and al-'Uzzā, and Manāt, the third idol besides? Shall ye have male progeny and God female? This, then, were an unjust partition ' Verily, these are mere names which ve and your fathers have given them "

The narrative thus related by al-Wāqidi and at-Tabari is given as an explanation of Sūrah xxii 51 "Nor have we sent any apostle or prophet before thee into whose readings Satan hath not injected some wrong desire 7

AL-LATIF (Likely) "The Mysterious or the Subtle One" One of the ninety-nine attributes of God Sūrah vi 103 "For He is the Subtle (al-Latif), the All-informed (al-Khabir)

LATIFAH (Mah) A term used by Sufi mystics for any sign or influence in the soul, derived from God, which has such a mysterious effect on the heart that mertal man caunot express it in language, just as a delicious taste in the mouth cannot be exactly expressed by the tongue (Kitābu 't-Ta'rīfāt, in loco)

LAUGHING Arabic zahk, zihk

Immoderate laughing is generally condemned by Muhammadan teachers, for Ayishah relates that Muhammad 'never laughed a full laugh so that the inside of his mouth could be seen, he only smiled '(Mishkāt, book xxii ch vii)

AL-LAUHU 'L - MAHFUZ (المعفوط) " The preserved tablet "

In the Hadis and in theological works it is used to denote the tablet on which the decroes of God were recorded with reference to mankind. In the Qui an it only occurs once, when it refers to the Qui'an itself Sūrah laxas 21, 22 'It is a glorious Qui'an written on the preserved table." The plural alwah occurs in Sūrah vii 142, for the tables of the law given to Moses.

LAW, The The words used by Muslims to express 'the liw "nie ash-Shari'ah (هُوهُمُكُمُّا) and ash-Shar' (الشراع), the meaning of which is "the way 'The compiler of the (إلمانية المانية n the Traditions and the closed works, the word ash Shar' is generally used to express the law of Muhammad. The Hebrew occurs in the Qur'un as Taurāt, and is always used for the law of Moses

[TAURAT ]

According to Muslim doctors, ush-Shar, of "the Law" may be divided into five sections I tigadat, bolief 'Idah, "morehities", 'Ihadat 'devotions , Mu amalat, "transactions" and 'l'qübat, "punishments"

(1) I'tiqūdāt, embraces all that is contained in the six articles of the Muslim faith, namely, Belief in (a) God, (b) His angels, (c) His Books, (d) His Prophets, (e) The Dav of Judgment, (f) The Decrees of God This section of Muslim law is termed 'Ilmu'' 'Aqāid, or "The Scionce of the Articles of Belief,' and includes all branches of scholastic theology The books chiefly consulted on this subject in the present work are the Sharhu 'I-Munāqif, by Saivid Sharif-al-Jurjanī, and the Sharhu 'I-'Aqāid, by Mas'ūd Sa du'd-dīn at-Taftāzānī.

(2) Adāb embraces the consideration of all those moral excellences which are enjoined in the Qur'an and Traditions, as Ikhlas, "sincenty Tawwakkul, "confidence in God", Tawagu', "humility", Tafwīz, "resignation", Queru 'l-'Amal, "keeping down one's expectation", Zuhd fi 'd-dunyā, 'renmiciation of the world", Nasulah, "giving good counsol of the world", Nasihah, "giving good counsol and advice", Quadah, "contentment, Sakhawah, "libershity," Hubb, "love to God and man" Sahr, "patience" &c (See Majma'u'l Bihar, vol. 11 p 422)

(8) 'Ibadat, includes all acts of devotion ( God, such as are included in the five pillars of practices (a) Recital of the Creed, (b) Prayer, (c) Zalāt, or 'legal alms', (d) Scient, or "fasting", (e) The pilgrimage to Makkah It will also embrace such reli gious acts as Jihād, or warfare for the propagation of the religion of Islam

(4) Mu'amalat, includes such duties as aro required between man and man, and is divided into Mukhāşamāt, "altercations" Munakahat, "nuptials", Amanat, "secuis Under these three heads are embraced all the various sections of civil jurisprudence such as barter, sale, agency, larceny, marriage, divoice, dower, partnership, chams

(6) 'Unübāt, denotes the punishments instituted in the Qur'an and Traditions, namely, (a) Uisās, "retaliation", (b) Haddu 's-sariqah, punishment for theft by the loss of a hand, (c) Haddu 'z rnā', punishment for fornication and adultery, storing for a married porson and one hundred lashes for an unmarried person, (c) Haddu't-qazi, or pumshmont of eighty lashes to slander, Huddu 's-riddah, or punishment by death for apostas, Huddu 'sh-shurb, or punish ment with eighty lashes for wine-ditaking

The two common divisions of Muhammadan law are 'Ilmu'l-Kulam, or Aqa'id, embracing all matters of faith, and 'Ilmu'l-Figh, which includes all matters of practice as distinguished from articles of faith

Muslim law is also divided into two great distinctions of Mashru, " lawful," and Gharm !-mashru', unlawful," or, as it is expressed in Persian, Rawa and Narana

That which is lawful is graded into five (1) Farz, that which is proved beolasses youd all doubt to have been enjoused either in the Qur'an or m a tradition of undoubted authority, and the demal or disobedience of which is positive infidelity (2) Want, that which is obligatory, but of which there is some doubt whether or not it was enjoined in the Qur'an or in a tradition of undoubted authority (8) Sunnah, that which was practised by binhammad (4) which was practised by Muhammad (4)
Mustapabb, that which Muhammad and his Companions sometimes did and sometimes omitted, (5) Mubah, that which is desirable, but which may be omitted without fear of sin

Things which are unlawful are graded into three classes (1) Mujsid, that which is most vicious and corrupting, a mortal sin , (2) Haram, that which is distinctly forbidden, (3) Makruh, that which is generally bold to be unclean

These distinctions of lawful and unlawful, with their various subdivisions, apply to all branches of Muslim law, whether it relate to ordinary duties of life, or of devotion to God

It will be seen how important a place the example, practices, and sayings of Muhammad occupy in the moral law of Islam This branch of Muslim law is called as-Sunnah, or the custom of Muhammad, and is distinguished as—

(1) Sunnatu 'l-'fili, that which Muhammad himself did.

(2) Sunnatu 'l-qauli, that which Muhammad said should be prictised.

(3) Sunnatu't tuojiri, that which was done in the presence of Muhammad, and which he appears to have sanctioned

It is therefore a serious mistake to suppose that the Qurau contains all that is esteemed necessary for faith and practice in Islam, the example of Muhammad is as binding upon the Muslim as any injunction contained in the Qur'an itself, for neither that which is Farz not that which is Sunnah can be omitted without sin.

The true origin and fountain of all law is the Qur'an and the Traditions, and no Muslim school of theology has ever rejected the Traditions They are binding upon Sunni, and Shi'sh, and Wabhabi, the only difference between the Sunni and Shi ab being that they receive different collections of Traditions. The Wahhabis receive those of the Sunnis, and call themselves Muhaddigen or traditronista

In addition to the Qur'an and Hadis (or Traditions), both Sunni and Shi'ah Muslims acknowledge the concurrence of the learned, called Ima, the Shiahs believing that they still possess Mujtahids capable of giving an miallible interpretation of the law, the Sunnis, on the other hand, confessing that, since the days of the four great doctors (Abū Hanifah, Malik, ash-Shaff'i, and Ibn Hanbal), Ijma' has not been possible, whilst the Wahhabis accept only the Isma of those who conversed with the Prophet himself. The fourth foundation of orthodoxy in both Sunni and Shrah schools is the system of interpretation called Quas, or rationination

I The Summis all receive the same collections of traditions, especially those which are known as the "six correct books," the Sahihu 'l Bukhari, the Sahihu Mushm, the Sunanu 'l Tirmezi, Sunanu Abi Dawad, Sunanu an-Nasafi, and Sunamu Ibn Majah compilation by the Imam Malik, which is first in order of date, is also a collection of traditions of very great authority [TRADI-

TIONS.]

These different sects of Sunnis do not differ in usul or furdamentals of religious belief, but in miner rules of practice, and in certain legal interpretations, but being of dif ferent opinions and broaching in some respects separate doctrines, four schools of jurisprudence have been established, known as Hanafa, Shāfin Hanbali, and Māliki
The differences amongst these four Sunni schools are based either upon different traditions or upon different interpretations of the same traditions, also upon the various ways in which the hierty of quyas, or reproduction, has been exercised Consequently the number of works which have appeared on the subjects of scholastic science and jurisprudence, has been very great indeed

We are indebted to Mr Shama Churun: Sircar, the learned and able Tagore Professor of Law in Calcutta, for the following resume of the principal Sunni writings on ask-Shart

"The ohief works that treat generally of the doctrines of the four principal sects of the Sunnis, are mentioned by Haji Khalifah to be the Jámi-ul-Mazahib (Jāmi-u 'l-Mazāhtb), the Majmaa-ul-Khilajiyat, the Yandbiya-ul-Ahkan (Yanabi'u'l-Ahkan), the Uyun, and the Zubdat-ul-Ahkan The Kanz-ud-Dakaik (Kanzu 'd-Daqa'iq), by An-Nasaii, is a book of great reputation, principally derived from the Weft, and containing questions and de-cisions according to the doctrines of Abu-Hamfah, Abu-Yusuf, Imam Muhammad, Zufar, Shafii, Malik, and others Many commentaries have been written on the last mentioned work, the most famous of them is the Bahr-ur-Raik (al-Bahru'r-Raiq), which may, indeed, almost be said to have superseded its original, at loast in India The Bahr-ur-Raik is by Zainu-ul-Aabidin Bin Nujaim-ul Misri (Ibn Najim), AH 970 The Multaka-al-Abhar (Multaga 'l-Abhar), by Shaikh Ibi ahim Bin Muhammad al-Halabi, who died A.H 956, is a universal code of Muhammadan law gives the different opinions or doctrines of Abu Hanifah, Malik, Shafii and Hanbal, the chief Mujtahid Imams and the founders of the four great sects of Sunnis, and illustrates them by those of the principal jurisconsults of the school of Abu Hanifah It is more It is more frequently referred to as an authority through out Turkey, than any other treatise on juris prudence

"The digests inculcating exclusively the doctrines of each of the said four great sects are, indeed, numerous, though a very few of them which maintain the doctrines of the Maliki, or Shafif, or Hanbali sects are used in India. Digests written by Malik or any of his followers are scarcely found in India

"Of the digests maintaining the Maliki doctrines, two have lately appeared in France (by M Vincent, 1842, M Perron, 1843) The first work of Shafii, entitled the Usul (Usul), or fundamentals, which contains the principles of the Muhammadan civil and canon law, may be classed as a digest. The Mukhtasar, the Manner, the Rasail ul-Muatabirah (ar-Kasailu 'l Mu'tabarah), and the Kitābul-Wasaik, are amongst the other works written by Abu Ibrahim Bin Yahiyá-al-Muzan, a distinguished disciple of Shafii, and a native of Egypt (a H. 264), and are scoording to the doctrines of Shafii. The works by Ibru Hambal and his followers are few in number, and rare

"The followers of the Hanifi sect, which obtains most commonly amongst the Muhammadans of India, have, like others, divided their law into two general branches or parts.

respectively called the Fikah (law, religious and secular), and Farsiz (the succession to, and division of, inheritance)

"The works which are on Fikah (Figh), and which are considered as the chief authorities of the Hanifi sect, are the following —Abu Hanifah's own digest of law, entitled the Fikah-ul-Akbar (al Fighu'l-Akbar). This is the first in rank, and has been commented upon by various writers, many of whom are men-tioned by Haji Khalifah The doctrines of that great lawyer, however, are sometimes qualified or dissented from by his two famous pupils, Abu Yusuf and Imam. Muham-mad. The work entitled Adab-ul-Kázi, which treats of the duties of a magistrate, is known to have been written by Abu Yusuf Save and except this, no other work appears to have been composed by him He, however, is said to have supplied his notes to his pupil Imam Muhammad, who made use of them in the composition of his own works. works of Imam Muhammad are six in number, five of which are, in common, entitled ber, five of which are, in common, entitled the Záhir-ur-Rawdydt (Zāhiru 'r-Rawāyāt conspicuous traditions or reports) They are 1 The Jami-ul-Kabir (al-Jāmi-u 'l-Kabir), 2 Jami-ul-Saghir (al-Jāmi-u 's-Saghīr), 3 Mabsut fi Faru-ul-Hamfiyát, 4 Ziyudát fi Faru-ul-Hamfiyát, and 5 Siyar al-Kabir wa Saghir The Nawādīr, the sixth and leat of the hamfiyat of the fire and last of the known compositions of Imam Muhammad, though not so highly esteemed as the others, is still greatly respected as an authoraty

'The next authorities among the Hanafis, after the founder of their sect and his two disciples, are the Imam Zufar Bin al-Hazil who was chief judge at Basrab, where he died (A.H 158), and Hasan Bin Ziyad. These lawyers are said to have been contemporaries. friends, and scholars of Abu-Hanifah, and their works are quoted here as authorities for Abu Hamfah's doctrines, more especially when the two disciples are silent The most celebrated of the several treatises known by the name of Adab-ul Kazı was written by Abu Bakr Ahmad Bin Umar ul-Khassaf (A.H. 261) An abridgement of the Hanafi doctrines, called the Mukhtasar ut-Tahavi, was written by Abu Jasfar Ahmad Bin Muham mad at-Tahavi (A H BB1), who wrote also a communtary on the Jame us-Sagher of Imam

Mulismmad

"The Mukhtasar lil-Kuduri, by Abii ul-Husain Ahmad Bin Muhammad al-Kuduri (AH 228) is among the most esteemed of the works which follow the doctrines of Abii Hanifah There is a well-known commentary on the Mukhtasar lil-Kuduri, entitled Al-Jaukurat un-Nayyrah, which is sometimes called Al-Jauhurat ul-Munrah The digest, entitled the Mabsut (al-Mubsüt), was composed by Shams-ul-Ammah Abii Bakr Muhammad as-Sarakhsi whilst in prison at Uzjand This is a work of great extent and authority He was also the author of the most celebrated work entitled Al-Muhit (al-Muhit), which is derived in a great measure from the Mabsui, the Ziyádát; and the Nawddir of Imam Muhammad work entitled the Muhit, by Burhan-ud-din Mahmud Bin Ahmad, already spoken of, le not so greatly esteemed as the Muhit as-Sarakhsi (Muhitu 's-Sarakhsi) A compen dium of Al-Kuduri's Mukhtasar, which he entitled the Tuhfat-ul-Fukaha (Tuhfutu 'l-Fugahā'), was composed by Shaikh Alá ud-din Muhammad as-Samarkandı The work of Aláud-din was commented upon by his pupil Abu Bakr Bin Masuúd

"There are several Arabic works on philosophical and theological subjects which bear the name of Al Hidayah (the guide) The work entitled Al-Heddyah to al-Faru or the guide in particular points, is a digest of law according to the doctrines of Abu Hanifah and his disciples Abu Yusuf and Imam Mu hammad The author of this work is Shaikh Burhán-nd-din Ali (A H 593), whose reputa-tion as a lawyer was beyond that of all his contemporarios. This Hidayah is a commen tary on the Badaya-nl-Mubiada an introduc tion to the study of law, written by the samo author in a style exceedingly concise and close In praise of the Hidayoh Haji Khah fah says, 'It has been deelared, his the hunn, to have supersided all previous books on the law, that all persons should i muomber the rules prescribed in it and that it should be followed as a guide through life' Hiddyah has, besides the Kilayah, many other commentaries, as a work of so great celebrity and authority is expected to have The principal ones are the Inagah (Inagah) the Nihayah, and the Fath ul Kabu

"The name Inayah, however is given to two commentaries on the Hidayah Of these the one composed by Sharkh Kamil ad-din Muhammad Bin Mahmud who died att 786 is highly esteemed and useful Supplying by way of innuendoes what was omit dor left to implication, also expressing what wis un derstood in the Hidayah, and explaining the words and expounding the passages of the original by the insertion of explanators phrases, the author of the Inayah havrendered the work such as to be considered of itself one of his own principal works with citations of pussages from the Hudavale

"The Nihayah is composed by Husan ud din Husam Bin Ali, who is said to have been a pupil of Burhan-ud-din Ali This is said to be the first commentary composed on the Hidayah, and it is important for having added the law of inheritance to the Hidayah which treats only of the bakah The commentary, entitled the Asfayah, is by Imam-ud-din Amir Katib Bin Amir Umar, who had previously written another explanatory gloss of the same work, and entitled it the Chayut-ul-Bayan The Kifayah was finished AH 747 and, besides the author sown observations, it gives concisely the substance of other commenta-

"The kath ul-Kabir hi-Aajiz ul-Fakir, by Kamal-ud-dir Muhammad as Siwasi, com monly called Ibnu Hammam, who died An 861, is the most comprehensive of all the comments on the Hidayah, and includes a col lection of decisions which render it extremely The short commentary entitled the usefnl Fawaid, written by Hamid-ud-din Ali, Al-Bukhari, who died A.H 667, is said to be the first of all the commentaries on the Biddyah The Wafi, by Abu-ul-Barakat Abd ullah Bin Ahmad, commonly called Hafiz-ud-din an-Nasafi, and its commentary the Kafi, by the same author, are works of authority Au-Nasafi died AH 710

"The Vikáyah (al-Wiqāyah), which was written in the seventh century of the Hijrah by Burhan ash-Shariyat Mahmud, is an elementary work to enable the student to study and understand the Hiddyah The Vikayah is printed, and invariably studied, with its celebrated commentary, the Sharh ul-Vikayah written by Uhaidullah Biu Masuud, who died AB 745 The Sharh-ul-Vikayah contains the text of the Vikayah, with a gloss most perspicuously explanatory and illustrative so much so, that those chapters of it which treat of maininge, dower, and divorce, ne studied in the Madrassahs of India in preference to the Bedayah itself There are also other commentaries on the Vakayah, but not so useful as the above On the Sharh-ul-Vil ayah, igain, there is an excellent commontary entitled the Chalps, written by Akhi Yasuf Bur Junid who was one of the then eight professors at Constinuopho This work was commenced to be written about AH 891 and completed A H 901, and the whole of it was published in Calentta AH. 1245 and extracts therefrom have been printed

· The Nikagah (an Neqayah) another elementary law book, is the work of the enthor of the Sherh-ul Yrkayah It is sometimes called the Mukhtana ul-I ikayah, being, in fact, an ibridgment of that work commonts on the Nikayah are much esteemed they were written respectively by Ahu ul-Maknim Bin Abd ullah (A H 907) Abn An Bin Muhammad al-Birjindi (A H 985), and Shams ud din Muhammad d Khurusani Al-Kohistani (a H 941) The last commentary is entitled the Jame ne-Rumüz (Jāmita 't-Runnez), which is the fullest and the clearest of the lot is well as one if the most useful

law books

· The Ashbak wa an-Nuruir (al-Ashbah wa n Nazar, is also an elementary work of great reputation It was composed by Zainal-Aubidin, the author of the Bahr w-Raik already mentioned Haif Khalifah speaks of this work in high terms, and enumorates several appendices to it that have been composed at different times. The treatise on exegosis entitled the Nu ul-Anwar h Shurah ul Mana (Nūru l-Ann a j i Sharhi 'l-Manar), by Shaikh Jun Bin Abu Savaid Al-Makki (Shaikh Jiwanaba Thu Sina), was printed in Calentra (A n 1819), and is frequently reforred to as a book of authority A small trart on the sources of the Sharaa, entitled the Usul-ush-Sh sh, together with an explanatory commentary, was printed in lithograph, at Delhi, in the year A D 1847

"The Tanvir-ul-Abser (Tanwiru 'l-Abser), composed by Sharkh Shams-ud-dia Muhammad Bin Abd-ullah-al-Ghazzi (A.H 995), is one of the most celebrated and useful books according to the Hanifi doctrines. This work has many commentaries. One of them, en titled the Manh-ul-Ghaffar (Manhu 'l-Ghaf far), which is written by the author himself, is a work of considerable extent

"The Durr-ul Mukhtar, which is another commentary on the Tanvir-ul-Absar, is a work of great celebrity This work was written (Au. 1071) by Muhammad Alá ud-Pín Bin Shaikh Alí al-Hiskafi Though a commen-Though a commentary, it is virtually a digest, which of itself has several commentaries, the most celebrated of them is the Tahtévi, a work used in India. Another commentary on the Durr ul-Mukhter is the Radd-ul-Muhter This is a very copious work, comprising an immense number of cases and decisions Illustrative of the principles contained in the principal work The Durr-ul-Mukhtár treats not only of the Fikah but also of the Farsız It is used by the followers of the Hanfff doctrines whereever they are, but it is most highly esteemed in Arabia, where it is studied and referred to m preference to other books of law

"Many works have been written according to the doctrines of Abu Hamfab in the Turkish Empire, and are received there as suthorities The most celebrated of those is the Multaka-ul Abhar, by Shaikh Ibrahim Bin Muhammad al-Halabi, the Durr-ul-Hukkam, by Mullah Khusru Kanin-nama: Jaza, a tract on penal laws, &c

"The treatises on the laws of inheritance, according to the doctrines of Shafir, are the Faruiz-ul-Mutawalla, by Abu Sayıd Abd-ur-Rahmān Bin Mamun-ul-Mutawallı (who died AH 478), the Farair-ul-Mukuddan, by Abu-ul-Fazl Abd ul Malik Bin Ibrahim al-Hamadani Al Mukuddani, and Abu Munsur Abd ul-Kahir Al Baghdadi (who died respectively AH 489 and 429), Al-Faratz-ul-Fazari, by Burlian-ud-din Abu Ishaq Al-Fazari, commonly called Ibnu Firkah (who died in A H 729), and Al-Farátz ul Farikiyah, by Shame ud-oin Muhammad Bin Killayi (who died A.H. 777)

"Of the books on the law of inheritance according to the Hamifi doctrines, the most celebrated, and the one invariably consulted in India, is the Siranyyah (as-Siranyah), which is also called the Fardiz-us-Sandward, being, as it is, composed by Siráj-ud-Din Muhammad bin Abd-ur-Rasaid as-Sajawandi work has been commented upon by a vast number of writere, upwards of forby being enumerated in the Kashf-uz-Zunun by Haji Khalifah The most celebrated of these commentaries, and the most generally used to explain the text of the Strapyyah, is the Sharihyyah (ash-Sharef 19ah), by Sayyid Sharif Ali Bin Muhammad Al-Jurjani (who died & E. 814)

There is another kind of digest which treats of the Ilm-ul-Fatawa (the science of decisions) The works of this nature are also very numerous, and are, for the most part, called Fatawa (decisions), with the names of their authors, and, though called Fatawa, most of them contain also the rules of law as well as legal decisions. Of these again, some treat of the Fiksh alone, others of the Faraiz (inheritance) also; some of them, moreover, treat of the decisions of particular lawyers, or those found in particular books, others treat of those which tend to illustrate the doctrines of the several sects, whilst the rest of them are devoted to recording the opinions of learned juriets

"There are several collections of decisions, secording to the doctrines of Shaffi one most esteemed seems to be the Fateud 1bn us Salah by Abd Amru-Usman Bin Abd-ur Rahman ash Shahrazuri, commonly called Ibn us-Salah, who ched in AR. 642 Ibna Firkah, the author of the Raraiz-ul-Fasari (a treatise on inheritance), also made a col lection of decisions according to the same doctrines, which is called after his name the Fatawa-t-Ibnu Firkah

"Of the Fatawas of the Hanffi doctrines the following are generally known in India.
The Khuldsat ul-Fatdwa (Khalasatu 'l Fatdwa), by Imam Iftikhar ud-Din Tahir Bin Ahmad Al Bukhari, who died A.H 542, is a select collection of decisions of great authority The Zakhirat ul-Fatáwá (Zakhiratu 'l Fatáwá), sometimes called the Zakhiratul Burhaniyah by Burhan ud Din Bin Mazah al-Bukhárí the author of the Muhit-ul-Burháni. 14 also a celebrated, though not a large, collection of decisions, principally taken from the Muhit The Patiene : Kdef Khon, by Imám Fakhr-ud-Dín Hasan Bin Mansur al-U zjandi al-Fargháni, commonly called Kází Kuan who died A.E. 592, is a work held in very high authority. It is replete with cases of common occurence, and is therefore, of great practical utility more especially as many of the decisions are illustrated by proofs and resconing on which they are founded The two works entitled the Fusil ul-Isturushi and Fusul ul Imadiah were moor porated in a collection entitled the Jami-ul-Fusuloun, which is a work of some celebrity It was compiled by Badr-ud-Din Muhammad, known by the name of Inn-ul-Kézi Siméwa nah (Au 823) The Fatamá oz-Zahiriyah, which contains decisions collected partly from the Khizanni ul Wakiyat was written by Jahir-ud Din Abu Bakr Muhammad Bin Ahmad al-Bukhari (A B 619) The Kumyat-ul Muniyat is a collection of decisions of con siderable arthority by Mukhtar Bin Mahmid Bin Muhammad as-Zahidi Abu-ur-Rija al-Chazmini, surnamed Naun-ud-Din who died A H 658 An Navaví, the author of the biographical dictionary entitled the Tahab-al Asma (Tahzibu 'l-Asma'), who died A.H. 677 made a collection of decisions of some note, which is called the Fatawa an-Navavi also composed a smaller work of the same nature, entitled al-Mashil-ul-Muhimmat ( Uyun al-Masa'ılı 'l-Muhımmah), arranged in the manner of question and answer The Khizanat-ul-Muftiym, by Imam Husam Bin Mubammad as-Samaani, who completed his work in A.H 740, contains a large collection of decisions, and is a book of some authority in India, The Khizanat-ul-Fatawa, by Ahmad Bun Muhammad Abri Bakr al-Hanafi, 18 a colloction of decisions made towards the end of the eighth century of the Hijrah, and comprises questions of rare occurrence The Fatdwd Tátár-Khámyah was originally a large collection of Fatawas, in several volumes, by Imam Adlim Bin Ald al-Hanafi taken from the Muhit-ul-Burham, the Zakhirat, the Khdniyah, and the Zahiriyah Afterwards, however, a selection was made from theso decisions by Imam Ibrahim Bin Muhammad al-Halabí, who died A H 956, and an epitome was thus formed, which is in one volume, and still retains the title of Tatur-Khaniyah The Fatawd-1-Ahl-us-Samarkand, 18 a collection of the decisions of those learned men of the city of Samarkand who are omitted, or lightly passed over, in the Fatawa-Tatar Khaniyah and the Jame-ul-Fusulain, to both of which works it may be considered a supplement The Fatawa az Zamyah contains decisions by Zain ul Aabidin Ibrahim Bin Nujaim al-Misri, the author of the Bahr-ur Raik and the Ashbah wa-an-Nazair They wore collected by his son Ahmad (about AH 970) The Fatawa al Ankiravi, a collection of deci sions of al Ankiravi by Shaikh ul-Islam Muhammad Bin al Husain, who died AH 1098, 18 a work of authority The Fatawa Hammadyah, though it seems to be a modorn compilation, is a work of considerable autho

"Tipu Sultan ordered a collection of Fata was to be made in Persian by a society of the learned of Mysore it comprises three hundred and thirteen chapters and is cutified

the Fatawa-1-Muhammadi

"Mr Harrington, in his analysis (vol 1 2nd ed), mentions a few other books of Fatawa, viz the Fatawa Bazazuth, the Fatawa Nakshbandiyah, the Mukhtúr ul Fatawa, and the Fatawa Karákham. The list of these ho describes to be a Porsian compilation, the cases included in which were collected by Mullah Sadar-ud Din Bin Yakub, and arranged some years after his death by Kara Khan, in the reign of Sultan Ala-ud-Din

The following works of the present class, published at Constantinople, and containing decisions according to the doctrines of Abu Hanifah, may be noticed A collection of Fatwas in the Turkish and Alabic languages, entitled the Kitáb fi al-Fikuh al-Kadusi composed by Hafiz Muhammad Bin Ahmad al Kadusi a H 1226 The Fatawa i Abd-ur-Rahin Effendi, is a collection of jindgments pronounced at various times in Turkoy, and collected by the Mufti Abd ur-Rahim It was printed in the year 1827 Dabagzadeh Nuamán Effendi is the author of a collection of six hundred and seventy decisions, which is entitled the Tuhjat us Sukuk, and was published in the year 1832

"The Jame ul-Ijaratin (Jame u / 1jarati) is a collection of decisions relating to the law of farming and the tenure of land, by Muhammad Aarif It was printed in the year 1886

"A collection of Fatwas relating to leases was published at Constantinople by M D'Adelbourg, in the year 1838 Prefixed to this collection are the principles of the law of lease, according to the Multaka; and it is fol lowed by an analytical table, facilitating reference to the various decisions

"Of the Fatwas which treat both of the Fikah and Faraiz, two are most generally used in India These are the Futawa Sirunyyah and Fatau a Alamairi The Fatawa Stranyyah, with some principles, contains a collection of decisions on cases which do not generally occur in other books The Fatawa Alangers, with opinions and precepts of law, contains an immense number of law oases This work, from its comprehensive nature, is applicable to almost every case that arises involving points of the Hamin doctrines. Although opinions of modern compilers are not estoemed as of equal authority with those of the older writers on jurisprudence, vet being composed by a great number of the most learned lawyers of the age, and by order of the then greatest person of the realm, the Emperor Aurungzeb Alamgar (by whose name the book is designated), the Fatawa Alamgiri is esteemed as a very high authority in India, and containing, as it does, decisions on cases of any shape based upon unquestionable authorities, this book is here referred to more frequently than any other work of a similar nature, and has not up to this day been surpassed by any work, except perhaps, by the Radd-ul-Muhtar, already spoken of During the long rule of the Muhammadans in India, the Fatáwa Alumgira alone appears to have been translated into Porsian, by order of Zeb-un-nisa, daughter of the Emperor Arungzeb Alamgir Since the establishment of the British Government in India, the books of Jinayah and Hudud from the Futáwá Alamgiri were translated into Persian, under the direction of the Council of the College of Fort William in Caloutta, by the then Kazi ul-Kuzzat, Muhammad Najm ud-Din Khán, and were published in the year 1818, together with a Persian treatise on Tazirut, by the same author

"In the same year the book on Tárnāt from the Durr-ul-Mukhtur was translated, printed, and published, by Monlavi Muhammad Khahl-ud-Din, under the orders of Mi Harrington the then Chief Judge of the late

Sudder Dewany Adawlut

"The Hidayah was translated into Persian by four of the most learned Moulavis of that time and of this country (India) Unfortunately, however, the learned translators have, in the body of the book, inserted many things by way of explanatory remarks and illustrative expositions, instead of subjoining them in the form of notes Furthermore, they have, in a considerable degree, deviated from the original For all these reasons, we are warranted to say, that the Persian vorsion of the Hidayah does not represent a true proture of the original Law were translated into Urdu and hthographed, many years ago, in Dehli Another translation of the same work was made and published in Calcutta a few years ago.

"The work entitled the Bighyat-i-Bahis, by Al-Mutakannah, which is a tract treating of Zaid's system of Faraïz, was translated into English by Sir William Jones A trans-lation of the Sirányyah also was made by Sir William Jones, who at the same time made an abstract translation of its celebrated commentary (the Sharifiyyah), with the addition of illustrations and exemphilications from his own brain and pen. A translation of the selected portions from the two books of the Fathwa t-Alamgiri, which comprise the subject of sale, was published by Mr Neil Baillie

"The Persian version of the Hidayah, already noticed, was, by order of Warren Hastings, commenced to he translated into English by Mr James Anderson, but shortly after, he being engaged in an important foreign employment, the translation was finished, and revised by his colleague, Mr Charles Hamilton. It is a matter of regret that the translation in question was not executed from the original Hidayah itself, instead of from its Persian translation, which contains frequent explanatory remarks and illustrative expositions interpolated in the book itself, instead of being subjoined by way of notes Added to this, the Peisian trans laters have, in a considerable degree, deviated from the original.

"Of the digests of Muhammadan law in English, the first appears to be the chapter on criminal law of the Muhammadans as medified by regulations. This is incorporated in Harrington's Analysis of Rengal Regula-An abstract of Muhammadan law, which is from the pen of Lieutenant-Colonel Vans Kennedy, will be found in the Journal of the Royal Asiatic Society 'This work,' says Mr Morley, '18 well worthy the attention of the student' The work entitled the Principles and Precedents of Mudammadan Law, writen by Mr (afterwards Sir) William Hay Macnaghten, is the clearest or essest, if not the amplest or sufficient, work on that law hitherto written in English Mr Neil Baillies Muhammadan Law of Inherstance, according to Abu Hanifah and his followers, with appendix containing authorities from the original Arabic, is an excellent work of the kind The treatise on inheritance, gift, will, sale, and mortgage, compiled by Mr F E Elberhing, a Danish judge at Scrampore, in the year 1844, contains principles of Muhammadan law, with those of the other laws, as used in India "In the year 1865, Mr. Neil Baille, the author of the work already mentioned, completed and published a digest of Muhammadan law on all the subjects to which the Muhammadan law is usually applied by the British Courts of Justice in India It gives translations of almost all the principles and some of the cases contained in the Fatawa Alamgiri, the great digest of Muhammadan law in India, and quotes occasionally other available authorities Being generally close to the original, and fully dealing with the subjects it treats of, this work must be said to be anthentic, as well as the amplest of the digests of Muhammadan law hitherto written in English according to the doctrines of the Hamifi sect" (See the Tagore Law Lectures, 1873, by Shama Churan Sireir; Thacker, Spink & Co., Calcutta.)

II -The Shi ahs, although they are divided amongst themselves into numerous sects which differ from each other in various points of religious belief, are unanimous in rejecting the collections of Traditions of the Sunnis The Sunnis arrogate to themselves the title of Traditionists, but this does not imply that the Shī ahs do not recoive the Hadis, but merely that they reject the "six correct books" of their opponents

The works on Hadis compiled by the Shī'ahs are very numerous, and they mamtain that they have earlier and more authentic collections than those of the Sunnis They say that in the time of al-Hasan and al-Husain, a certain person who was grandfather to 'Abdu 'llah ibn 'Ali ibn Abī Shu'bah al-Halabi, collected traditions and gave them to This record his grandson for careful record was venified and corrected by Imam Ja'far as-Şadiq The Sunni doctor, Abu Hanifah, was a pupil of this distinguished personage in his earlier days, but afterwards separated from him and established a school of his own

There are four books of traditions, known as the Kutub-t-Arba ah, which seem to be held in the same estimation by the Shi'ahs, as the six Sahihs of the Sunnis They are entitled the Tahzīb, the Istibsār, the Kāfi, and Man la Yastahzerah al-Fagih [TRADITIONS]

Mr Shama Churun Sircar, Tagore Professor of Law, has also reviewed the Shi'ah, or Imamīyah, law books, and we are indebted to him for the following resume -

"One of the earliest works on civil and criminal laws was written by Abdullah Bin Ali al Halabi But it does not appear that any of his legal compositions are extant

"A number of law-treatises of the present class was composed by Yunas Bin Abd ur-Rahman (already spoken of as a writer on traditions) The most famous of these treatises is entitled the Jami-ul-Kabir

"Several works on law were written by Abu al-Hasan Alı Bın al-Hasan al-Kumi, commonly called Ibnu Babavash, one of which works is entitled the Kitabu ash-Sharayah. The Maknaa fi al-Fikah (Muqna' fi'l-Figh) is the best known of the law books of the present class composed by Abú Jaafar

'Abu Abdullah Muhammad an-Nuamani, surnamed the Shaikh Mufid, and Ibnu Muallim, a renowned Shiah lawyer, is stated to have written two hundred works, amongst which one called the Irshad is well known. When Shaikh Mufid is quoted in conjunction with Abu Jasfar at-Tusi, they also are spoken of as 'the two Shakha' (Shakhan)

"The chief works on law, written by Abu Jaziar Muhammad at-Tusi (Abu Jaifar Muhammad at Tüsi), are the Mabsut, the Khilaf, the Nihayah, and the Muhit These works are held in great estimation and he is considered one of the highest authorities in law The Risalat-i-Jaafariyah is likewise a legal treatibe by at-Tusf, which is frequently quoted.

"The Shortya ut-Islam, written by Shaikh Najm ud-din Abu ul-Kasım Jaatar Bin Muayyıd al-Hilli, commonly called Shakh Muayyid, is a work of the highest authority, at least in India, and is more universally referred to then any other Shiah law book, and is the chief authority for the law of the Shiahs in India. A copious and valuable commentary upon the Sharaya ul-Islam ontitled the Malik wi Asham, was written by Zaym-ud-din Alf sa-Sailf, commonly called the Shahid i-Sant, (second martyr) There are two other commentance on the Shardya ul Islam, respectively entitled the Mader ul-Ahken and Jawaher ut-Kalam, the latter of which was written by Shakh Muhammad Hasan an-Najafí

"Of the works on jurisprudence written by Yahiyalı Bin Ahmad al-Hillf, who was celebrated for his knowledge of traditions, and is well known amongst the Imamiyah sects for his works, the Jonn ash-Sharaya and the Mudkhal dar Usul's Fikah are beld in the greatest repute

"Of the numerous law books written by Shaikh Allsmah Jamal ad-din Hasan Bin Yusuf Bin al-Mutabhir al-Hills, who is oslled the chief of the lawyers of Hillish, and whose works are frequently referred to as authors ties of undisputed merit, the most famous are the Talkhes ul- Maram, the Ghant ul-Ahkam, and the Tuhrer ul Ahkan, which last is a justly colebrated work. The Mukhtulaf-ush-Shah is also a well-known composition of this great lawyor, and his Irshad ul Azhan is con stantly quoted as an authority under the name of the Irshad-1-Allamah

"The Jam-ul-Abbase is a concise and com prehensive treatuse on Shiah law, in twenty hooks or chapters It is generally considered as the work of Baha-ud-din Muhammad

Aamili, who died a H 1031

"The Mafath, by Muhammad Bin Murtere, surnamed Muhsan, and the commentary on the book by his nophew, who was of the same name, but surnamed Hadı, are modorn works deserving of notice

"The Rouzat ul-Ahkan, written in Persian hy the third Mujtshid of Oudh, consists of four chapters The first of these is on Inheritance which is treated of therein most fully and perspicuously This work was lithographed at Lucknow, first in AH 1257, and again in Au 1264

"A general digest of the Imamiyah law in temporal matters was compiled under the superintendents of Sir William Jones This book is composed of oxtracts from the work called the Kuf1, which is a commentary on the Majdish, as well as from the Sharaya ul Islam. The manuscript of this digest still remains in the possession of the High Court of Judicature at Calcutta

"The earliest treatiscs on the Faraiz, or Inheritance, of the Shiahs appear to have been written by Abdul Azíz Bin Ahmed al-Axids, and Abs Muhammad al-Kinds, the latter of whom is said to have lived in the reign of Hárún ur Rashid

"A work on the law of inheritance, entitled the sl-Ijáz ti al-Farázz has been left by Abú Jaafar Muhammad at-Túsí in addition to his general works on the Kuran, the Hadis and jurisprudence.

"The best known and most esteemed works on the law of inheritance are the Ihingin ush-Shigh, by Saad Bin Abd-ullah al-Ashari, the Kitdb ul Moudris by Abu al-Hassa Ali Béhavah, the Hamal ul-Farátz and the Farátz ush-Sharuyah, by Shaikh Mufid The Shardya ul-Islam which, as already stated, is one of the highest authorities on the Shish law, contains also a chapter on Inheritance.

Of all the above mentioned books on civil and criminal laws, those that are commonly referred to m India are the following The Shar aya ul-Islam, Rouzat-ul-Ahkam, Sharah-s-Lund, Mafatth, Tahrer, and Irshad ul-

Azhda

"Of the books on this branch of Muhammaden ir w, only that part of the Shardyah ul-Islam which troats of the forensic law has been translated though not fully, by Mr Nell Bailliu A considerable part of the digest compiled under the superintendence of Sir William Jones (as already noticed) was translated by Colonel Barille, out of which the chapter on Inheritance has been printed by Mr Neil Bailbe at the end of the second part of his digest of Muhainmadan law though the chapter above alluded to is copious, yet it must be remarked that it is not so clear and useful as the Sharaya-ul-Islam and Rouzat ul-Ahkam." (See Tagore Law Lectures, 1874, the Indmyah Code, by Shama Churun Sirear, Thacker, Spink and Co, Calcutta.)

LAZA (M) "Fire, flame" A division, or stage in hell, mentioned in the Qur'an, Sürah İxx. 16 Al Baghawi, the commentator, says it is that portion of hell which is reserved for the Christians who have not believed in Muhammad [HELI]

LAZARUS Arabic al-'Asar () Not mentioned by rame in the Qur'an, but Jalalu 'd-din, m remarking on Sürah in 48 "I will bring the dead to life by God's permission." says, amongst those whom Jesus raised from the dead was al-Azar, who was his special friend and companion The account given by the commentators al-Kamalan of the raising of Lazarus, is very similar to that given in the New Testament.

Arabic yarah (5)-1) LEASE [HIRT]

LEBANON Arabic Lubran (لبنان) Not mentioned in the Qur'an, but tradition has it that Ishmael collected the stones for the Kathah from five sacred mountains one ot which was Mount Labanus The followers of Isma'ılu 'd-Darazi, known as the Druses, a fanatical sect of Muslims, reside on the southorn range of the Lebanon chain [DRUMES ]

LEGACY. [WILLS.]

LEGITIMACY Waladu 'l-halāl (رلد الحلال), "a legitimate child", waladu 's-sinā' (ولد الرناء), "an illegiti-mate child."

The Muhammadan law, unlike the law of England, makes legitumacy depend, not merely upon the fact of the child being born in "lawful wedlock" but also conceived after lawful marriage

According to the Sumis and Shī'ahe, and according to the teaching of the Qur an itself, the chortest period of gestation recognised by law is six months, and consequently a child born any time after six months from the date of marriage has a claim to legitimacy. Amongst the Sumis, a simple danial of the paternity of the child so born would not take away its status of legitimacy. But the Shrahs held that if a man get a woman with child and then marry her, and she give birth to the child within aix months after marriage, legitumacy is not established

As to the longest period of pregnancy, there re some strange rulings in Muslim law The Shia'ha upon the basis of a decision pronounced by 'Ali, recognise ten lunar months as the longest period of gestation, and this is now regarded as the longest legal period by both Shr'ahs and Sunnis But Abil Hanifah and his two disciples, upon the authority of a tradition reported by Ayishah, regard two years as the longest period of gestation, and the lmam ash-Shafi'i extended it to four, and the Imam Mahk to five and even seven years! It is said these Sunni doctors based their opinions on the legendary birth of Zuhak Tāzi and others, who were born, so it is related, in the fourth vear of conception! But Muslim divines say that the old juriscensults of the Sunni school were actuated by a sentiment of humanity, and not by any indifference as to the laws of nature, thoir chief deere being to prevent an abuse of the provisions of the law regarding divorce and the disavowal of children The general concensus of Muslim doctors points to ten months as the longest period of pregnancy which can be recognised by any court of justice

[Under the old Roman law, it was ten months In the Code Napolecn, article 312, it is three hundred days. Under the Jewish law, the husband had the absolute right of disavowal. See Code Rabbinique, vol. 11.

p 68.]

The Muhammadan law, like the English law does not recognise the legitimation of autemptial children. Whereas, according to French and Scotch law, such children are legitimated by the subsequent marriage of the parents.

In Sunni law, an invalid marriage does not affect the legitimacy of children born from it. Nor does it in Shi'ah law, but the Shi'ah law demands proof that such a marriage was a hone fide one, whilst the Hansii code is not strict on this point

In the case of a divorce by h'an [LI'AN], the walads l-muläranak, or "obild of impre-cation," is out off from his right of inheritance from his father

(See Synd Ameer Ali's Personal Lew of Muhammadans, p. 160, Fatāvā-1-'Alamghiri, p. 210, Shara t'u 'l-Islām, p. 301) [PAREN TAGE]

LETTERS The letters of Muslime are distinguished by several peculiars ties, dictated by the rule of politeness "The paper is thick, white, and highly polished, sometimes it is ornamented with flowers of gold, and the edges are always cut straight with scissors. The upper half is generally left black, and the writing never occupies any portion of the second side. The name of the person to whom the letter is addressed, when the writer is an inferior or an equal, and even in some other cases, commonly occurs in the first sentence, preceded by several titles of honour, and is often written a little above the line to which it appertains, the space beneath it in that line being left blank, sometimes it is written in letters of gold, or red ink A king, writing to a subject, or a great man to a dependant, usually places his name and seal at the head of his letter The seal is the impression of a signet (generally a ring, worn on the little finger of the right hand), upon which is engraved the name of the person, commonly accompanied by the word 'His (i.e. God's) sorvent, or some other words expressive of trust in God, &c Its impression is considered more valid than the sign-manual, and is indispensable to give authority to the letter it is made by dabbing some ink on the surface of the signet, and pressing this upon the paper the place which is to be stamped being first moistened, by touching the tongue with a finger of the right hand, and then gently rubbing the part with that finger A person writing to a superior, or to an equal, or oven an inferior to whom he wishes to show respect, signs his name at the bottom of his letter, next the left side or corner, and places the seal immediately to the right of this, but if he particularly desire to testify his humility, he places it beneath his name, or even partly over the lower edge of the paper, which consequently does not receive the whole of the impression." (Lane's Arabian Nights, vol 1 p 23)

LIAN (OLD) Int "Mutual cursing" A form of divorce which takes place under the following circumstances. If a man accuses his wife of adultery, and does not prove it by four witnesses, he must swear before God that he is the teller of truth four times, and then add 'If I am a har, may God curse me' The wife then says four times, 'I swear before God that my husband hos, and then adds May God's anger be upon me if this man be a teller of truth After this a divorce takes place specfacto" (See Suratu n-Nur xxiv 6, Machait, book xiii ch xv).

In the case of Latan, as in the other forms of divorce, the woman can ciaim her dower

Lifan is not allowed in four cases, viz a Ohristian woman married to a Muslim, a Jewess married to a Muslim, a free woman married to a slave, and a slave girl married to a free man.

The children of a woman divorced by Li'an are illegitamate

لباس) LIBAS APPAREL

LIBERALITY Arabic sakhāwah (انعالی), "hospitality", infaq (انعالی), "general liberality in everything"

Liberality is specially commonded by Mu-hammad in the Traditions —

"The liberal man is near to God, near to Paradise, near to men, and distant from hell The miser is far from God, far from Paradise, far from man, and near the fire Truly an ignorant but liberal man is more beloved by God, than a miser who is a worshipper of God."

"Three people will not onter Paradise a deceiver, a miser, and one who reproaches others with obligation after giving

"Every morning God sends two angels, and one of them saye, 'O God, give to the liberal man something in lieu of that which he has given away!' and the other says, 'O (rod, ruin the property of the miser!'"

"The miser and the liberal man are like two men dressed in coats of mail, their arms glued to their breasts and collar bones on account of the tightness of the coats of mail The liberal man stands up when giving alms, and the coat of mail expands for him The miser stands up when intending alms, the cost of mail becomes tight, and every ring of it sticks fast to its place"

LIHYAH (Last) [BEARD]

LISANU 'L-HAQQ (السان الحق)

Int "The language of truth" The Insans Tho Insanu 'l-Kamil, or "perfect man," in which the secret influences of al Mutakallim, "the Speaker" (se God), are evident

LITERATURE, MUSLIM Arabic 'Ilmu 'l-Adab (علم الادب) The oldest specimens of Arabic literature now extent were composed in the century which preceded the buth of Muhammad They consist of short extemporaneous elegies, afterwards committed to writing, or narratives of combats of hostile tribes written in rhythmiesi prose, similar to that which we find in the Quran

Baron De Slane says the Hamasah, the Ketabu 'l-Aghani, and the Amali of Abu 'Ahyu 'l-Kālī, furnish a copious supply of examples, which prove that the art of composing in rhythmical prose not only existed before Muhammad's time, but was even then generally practised, and had been brought to a high degree of perfection The variety of its inflections, the regularity of its splitax, and the harmony of its procedy, furnish in thom selves a proof of the high degree of culture which the language of the pre-Islamic Ara-bians had attained. The annual meetings of the poets at the fair of 'Ukas encouraged literature, and tended to give regular formation and elegance of style to these poetre effusions

The appearance of the Qur'an br about a gradual, but romarkable char tone and spirit of Arabio literature traordinary admixture of falsehood and it was given to the world by its author prorested and Eternal Word, and as a sta muacle not only of sound doctrine, but o rary style and language This strange tion, of course, deterred nearly every at at imitation, although it is related that I Muqaffa', al Mutanabbi, and a few othe a sceptical turn of mind, essayed in so their writings to surpass the style o Qur'an But as the Muslims in all have drawn their principles of gramms rhetoric from the Qur'an itself, we nee be surprised that these and every attempt to surpass its excellences have considered failures

One circumstance in the carliest hists Islam was of itself metrumental in a rise to a most extensive literature of a s The Qur'an (unlike the Penta and Now Testament) was not a narrat the life of its author. And yet, at the time, Muhammad had left very special it tions as to the transmission of his pre-ind actions [TRADTTION] The stuthese traditional sayings, together with of the Qur'an, gave rise to all the branch

Arabio learning

The Ahadis or "the sayings of Mr. mail," were considered by his followe the result of divine inspiration, and they therefore treasured up in the memori his followers with the same care they had taken in learning by hear chapters of the Quran. They records only what the Prophet said and did, bu what he refrained from saying and dom very silence (sunnatu's-sukūt) on questi doctrine or rule of life being also reg as the result of divine guidance It the became of paramount importance, to who were sincere followers of Muhan that they should be in possession of hi cepts and practices, and even of the trifling circumstances of his daily life mass of traditions increased rapidly, as came so great that it was quite impo for any one single person to recollect the According to Jalain 'd-din as-Suyūt first who wrote down the traditional as of the Prophet was Ibn Shihab az-2 during the reign of the Khalifah 'Un ibn 'Abdi 'I-'Aziz (A H 99-101), but the Mālik (AH 95-179), the compiler o book known as al-Muwattā is generall to be the author of the earliest collect

Traditions (See Kashfu'z-Zunun, in le So rapidly did this branch of M learning increase, that when al-Bukharl 194-256) determined to make a careful tion of trustworthy traditions, he foun fewer than 800,000 extant, from white selected 7,275

The necessity of distinguishing the ge traditions from the false gave rise to new branches of literature. A just appreciation of the credit to which each traditionist was entitled, could only be formed from a knowledge of the details of his history, and of the moral character of his life Hence numerous biographical works, arranged in chronological order, containing short accounts of the prinorpal persons connected with the early history of Islam, were compiled. The necessity for tracing the places of their birth and the race from which they sprang, led Muslim oritics to the study of genealogy and geography

The sense of the Qur'an, with its casual references to contemporaneous as well as to past history, was felt to be difficult and obscure, in many places, and this led the learned Muslims to study not only the traditional sayings of Muhammad already alluded to, but any historical or geographical works which would help them in understanding the text of "the Book"

In the early days of Islam, general history was regarded with little favour as a subject for study, and many orthodox doctors of Muslim law were led by religious scruples to condemn the study of secular history, and the works of Grecian and Latin poets, philologists, grammamans, and historians, only isceived their approval in so far as they served to explain the text of the Qur'an and the traditional records of Muhammad's followers

The real attitude of the leaders of Islam was decidedly hostile towards all literature which was not in strict harmony with the teachings of their religion. If in succeeding ages the Saracana became, as they undoubtedly did, the liberal patrons of literature and science, there cannot be a doubt that in the earliest ages of Islam, in the days of the four "well-directed" Khalifaha, not merely the greatest indifference, but the most bigoted opposition was shown to all literary effort which had not emanated from the fountain of Islam itself And consequently the wild uncivilized conquerors of Isrusalem, Cassarea, Damascus, and Alexandria viewed the destruction of the literary love of ages which was stored up in those ancient cities with indifference, if not with ununtigated satisfaction Everything, science, history, and religion, must be brought down to the level and standard of the teaching of the Qur'an and the life of the Prophst of Arabia, and whatever differed therefrom was from the Davil himself, and described the mous condemnation of sverv true child of the to th

But the possession of now r and riches gave rise to new feelings and the pious aversion to intellectual pursuits gradually relaxed in proportion as their empire extended itself The pessension of those countries, which had for so long been the seats of ancient literature and art, naturally introduced among the Mustims a spirit of refinement, and the love of learning. But it was not the outcome of their religious belief, it was the result of the peculiar circumstances which surrounded. their unparalleled conquest of a civilized world Their stern fanaticism yielded to the mild influence of letters, and, "by a singular anomaly," says Andrew Oriohton, "in the history of nations, Europe became indebted to the implacable enemies of her religion and her liberties for her most valuable lessons in soience and arts." In this they present a marked contrast to the Goths and Huns, and what is most remarkable is, not that succesful conquerors should encourage literature, but that, within a single century, a race of religionists should pass from a period of the deepest barbarism to that of the universal diffusion of science In AD 641, the Khalifah 'Umar 18 said to have destroyed the Alszandrian library In A.D 750, the Khalifahs of Baghdad, the munificent patrons of literature, mounted the throne Eight centuries elapsed from the foundation of Rome to the age of Augustus, whilst one century alone marks the transition from the wild barbarism of the Khalifahs of Makkah to the intellectual refinement of the Khalifahs of al-Kūfah and Baghdād The Saracens, when they conquered the cities of the West, came into possession of the richest legacies of intellectual wealth, and they used these legacies in such a mannor as to earn for themselves the most prominent place in the page of history as patrons of learning But the truth is, the literature of the great Byzantine empire exercised a kind of patronags over baracenic kings If the baracens produced not many original works on science, philosophy, or art, they had the energy and good sense to translate those of Greece and Roms (See the list of Arabic works in the Kashfu 'z-Zunun )

Under the Umaiyah Khalifahs, the genius of Greece began to obtain an influence over the minds of the Muslims

'Abdu 'l-Malik, the fifth Khalifah of the Umaiyah dynasty (A.E. 65), was himself a poet, and assembled around him at his court the most distinguished poets of his time Riven the Christian poet, al-Akhtal took his place in the front rank of the literary favorites of the Court

But it was especially under al-Mansur, the Abbasside Khalifah (A.H. 136), that the golden age of Arabi in literature in the East commenced Accident brought him acquainted with a Greek physician named George, who was invited to court, and to whom the Saracens are indebted for the study of medicine.

The cslebrated Harunu 'r-Rashid, the hero of the Arabian Nights, was specially the patron of learning He was always surrounded by learned men, and whenever he wested a mosque he always established and endowed a school of learning in connection with it It is related that amongst the presents he sent to the Empsror Charlemagne was an hy draulic clock The head of his schools and the chief director of the education of his empire, was John ibn Massua, a Nestorian Christian of Damasi us

The reign of Ma'mun (AH 198) has been called the Augustan period of Arabian lite-The Khalifah Ma'mun himself was a scholar, and he selected for his companions

the most emment sobolars from the East and West Baghdad became the resort of poets, philosophers, historians, and mathematicians from every country and every creed. Amongst the scholars of his court was al Kindi, the Ohristian author of a remarkable treatise in defence of Christianity against Islam side by side with al-Kindi, the philosopher, who translated numerous classical and philosophical works for his munificent and gene rous patron, and wrote a letter to refute .'10 doetrine of the Trinity [KINDI] It is said that in the time of Ma'mun "literary relica of conquered provinces, which his generals amassed with infinite care were brought to the foot of the throne as the most precions tribute he could demand. Hundreds of camele might be seen entering the gates of Baghdad laden with no other freight than volumes of Greek Hebrew and Persian literature Masters, instructors, translators and commentators, formed the court of Baghdad which appeared rather to be a learned aca demy than the capital of a great nation of conquerors. When a treaty of peace was concluded with the Grecian Linperor Michael III, it was supulated that a large and valuable collection of books should be sent to Baghdad from the libraries of Constantinople, which were translated by the squans of his court into the Arabic tongue, and it is stated that the original manuscripts were destroyed, in order that the learning of the world might be retained in the "divine language of the Prophet!

The Khalifab el Wasiq (AH 227) whose residence had been tomoved by his predecessor, al-Mu'tasım, from Baghdad to Saumara, was also a patron of lotters He cepeoially patronised poetry and music Under al-Mu'tamid (A ii 256), Baghdad

agein became the seat of learning
Al-Mustausir (A ii 623), the last but one of the Abbaside Khelifahs, adorned Baghdad by erecting a mosque and coilego, which bore he name, and which historians tell us had no equal in the Muslim world Whilst the city of Baghdad, in the time of the Abhasida dynasty, was the great centre of learning, al-Basraq and al Küfah almost equalled the capital itself in reputation, and in the number of celebrated authors and treatmen which they produced Damascus, Aleppo, Balkh, Ispaban, and Samarcand, also became renowned as seats of learning. It is said that a certain doctor of science was once obliged to decline an invitation to settle in the city of Samarcand, because the transport of his books would have required 400 camels l

Under the Fatumide Khalifahs (AD 910 to 1160), Egypt became for the second time the asylum of literature Alexandria bad more than twenty schools of learning, and Cairo, which was founded by al-Mn'12z (AD 955), soon possessed a royal hbrary of 100,000 manuscripts. A Daru 1-Hikmah, or school of science, was founded by the Khali-fah al-Häkim (AD 996), in the city of Cairo, with an annual revenue of 2,570 dinars The institution combined all the advantages of a free school and a free bhrary

But it was in Spain (Arabic Andalus) that Arabian literature continued to flourish to a later period than in the schools of Cairo and Raghdad The cities of Cordova, Seville, and Granada, which were under Muslim rulo for several centuries (Cordova, from AD 755 to 1236, Granada, to AD 1484) rivalled each other in the magnificence of their academies, colleges, and libraries Muslim historians say that Cordovs alono has produced not fewer than 170 emment men, and its library, founded by al Hakam Il (AD 961), contained 400,000 volumes and the Khalifah himself was so eminent a echolar, that he had carefully examined each of these books himself, and with his own hand had written in each book the geneale gies, withe and deaths of their respective nuthors

Muhammad, the first Khalifah of Granada. was a patron of hterature and the cale brated academy of that city was long under the direction of Shamsu d-din of Murua, so famous among the Arabs for his skill in polito literature Kasiri has recorded the names of 120 authors whose talents conferred dignity and fame on the Muslim University of Graneda.

So universal was the patronage of literature in Spain, that in the cities of the Andalusian kingdom there were as many as seventy free hbranes open to the public, as well as seventeen distinguished colleges of learning

(For an interesting account of the state of literature in Spain under the Moors, the English roader can refer to Pascual de Gayango's translation of al-Makkarl's History of the Muhammadan Dynasties in Spain, London, 1840)

History, which was so neglected amongst the am sent Arabs, was oultivated with assiduity by the Muslim There is extant an immenso number of works in this department of literature The compiler of the Bibliographical Dictionary, the Kashfu 'a-Zunan, gives a list of the names and titles of 1,800 works of history, comprising annals, chro nicles, and memours As might be expected. the earliest Muslim histories were compiled with the special object of giving to the world the history of the Prophet of Arabia and his immediate successors The earliest historian of whom we have any extensive remains is Ibn Ishaq, who died AH 151, or fifteen years after the overthrow of the Umaiyah dynasty He was succeeded by Ibn Hisham, who died a st. 213, and who made the labours of I'm Ishaq the basis of his history Another relebrated Muslim historian ie Ibn Sa'd, who 1s generally known as Kātibu 1-Wāqidī, or al-Waqidis secretary, and is supposed to have even surpassed his master in historical SCUTTSOY

Abū Ja'far ibn Jarır at-Tabari flourished in the latter part of the third century of the Muslim era, and has been styled by Gibbon, the Livy of the Arabians. He flourished in the city of Baghdad, where he died A.K. 310 At-Tabari compiled not only annals of Muhammad's life, but he wrote a history of the progress of Islam under the earlier Khalifahs Abū 'l-Faraj, a Christian physician of Malatia in Armenia, Abū 'l-fidā, Prince of Hamah, and Ibn Kātib of Granda, are amongst the celebrated historians of later times. The writinge of Ibn Husain of Cordova are said to contain 160,000 pages!

Biographical works, and memoirs of men specially distinguished for their achievements, were innumerable. The most notable work of the kind is Ibn Khallikan's Bibliographical Dictionary, which has been translated into English by De Slane (Paris, 1843) The Dictionary of the Sciences by Muhammad Abū 'Abdi 'llah of Granada is an elaborate work. The Bibliographical Dictionary, entitled the Kashfu 'x-Zunūn' (often quoted in the precent work) is a laborious compilation, giving the names of ceveral thousands of well-known booke and authors in every department of literature 'Abdu 'l-Munxar of Valencia wrote a genealogical history of celebrated horees, and another celebrity wrote one of camels. The encyolopædians, gazetteers, and other similar compilations, are very numerous

Arabio lexicons have been compiled in regular succession from the first appearance of the work supposed to have been compiled by Khalii ibn Alimad, entitled Kitābu 'l-Ayn, which must have been written about A E 170, to the most recent publications which have issued from the presses of Lucknow, Bombay, and Cairo [ARABIO LEXICONS]

Poetry wae, of old, a favourite occupation of the Arab people, and was, after the introduction of learning by the Khalifahs of Baghdad, cultivated with enthusiasm. Al-Mutanabbi of al Küfah, Khalil ibn Ahmad, and others, are posts of note in the time of the Abbasside Khalifahs. So great was the number of Arabio poets, that an sbridgement, or distinguishing the lives of the most celebrated of them, compiled by Abū T-Abbās, eon of the Khalifah al-Mutasim, contains notices of 130 [POETRI]

With Nummenatics the Saracene of Spain were well acquainted, and Maqrīzi and Namarī wrote histories of Arabian money. The study of geography was not neglected. The library of Carro had two massive globes, and the Sharif Idrīsī of Cordova made a silver globe for Roger II, King of Sicily. Ibn Rashīd, a distinguished geographer, journeyed through Africa, Egypt, and Syria, in the interests of geographical science. But to reconcite some of the statements of Muhammadan tradition with geographical discoveries must have required a strong effort of the imagination. [QAF]

tion. [QAF]
To the study of medicine the Arabs paid particular attention. Many of our modern pharmaceutical terms, such as camphor, jalap, and syrup, are of Arabian origin. The Christian physician, George, introduced the study of medicine at the court of Khalifah al-Manatr [MEDICINE]

The superstitious feeling of the Muslim as to the polluted touch of the dead, debarred the orthodox from attempting the study of anatomy. The doctrine that even at death the soul does not depart from the body, and the popular belief that both soul and body must appear entire to undergo the examination by Munkar and Nakīr in the grave, were sufficient reasons why the dissection of the dead body should not be attempted

Operation for cataract in the eye was an Arabian practice, and the celebrated philosopher, Avicenna (Abū 'Alī ibn Sīnā') wrote in defence of depression instead of extraction, which he considered a dangerous experiment

Botany, as subsidiary to medicine, was studied by the Saracens, and it is said the Arabian botanists discovered several herbal remedies, which were not known to the Greeks Ibn al-Baitar, a native of Malaga, who died at Damascus AD. 1248, was the most distinguished Arabian botanist Al-Biruni, who died at D 941, recided in India for nearly forty years in order to study botany and obemistry

The first great Arabic chemist was Jabir, a native of Harran in Mesopotamia. He lived in the eighth century, and only some 150 years after the flight of Muhammad. He is credited with the discovery of sulphune acid, intro acid and aqua regia. D'Herbelot states that he wrote 500 works on chemistry. The nomenclature of science demonstrates how much if owes to the Arabs—alcohol, alembic, sikali, and other similar terms, being derived from the Saraceus.

The science of astronomy, insomuch as it was necessary for the etndy of the cocult science of astrology, was cultivated with great zeal The Khalifah Ma'mun was himself devoted to this study Under his patronage, the astronomere of Baghdad and al-Kufah accurately measured a degree of the great circle of the earth, and determined at 24,000 miles the entire circumference of the globe (See Abu 'l-Fido' and Ibn Khallikan.) The obliquity of the ecliptic was calculated at about twenty-three degrees and a half, " but," as Andrew Crichton remarks, "not a eingle step was made towards the discovery of the eolar system beyond the hypothesis of Pto-lemy" Modern astronomy is indebted to the Saraceus for the introduction of observatories The celebrated astronomer and mathematician Jabir (A.D. 1196), erected one at Seville, which may still be seen Bailly, in his Hast de l'Astronomie, affirms that Kepler drew the ideas that Jed to his discovery of the elliptical orbits of planets from the Saracen, Nüru 'd-din, whose treatise on the sphere is preserved in the Escurial library

Algebra, though not the invention of the Arabs, received valuable scoessions from their talents, and Ibn Mūsā and Jābir composed original works on spherical trigonometry Al-Kindī translated Autolycus' De Sphera Mota, and wrote a treatise of his own

De Sex Quantitatibus

Architecture was an art in which the Saracens excelled, but their buildings were created on the wrecks of cities, castles, and fortresses, which they had destroyed, and the Seraceme style is merely a copy of the Byzan-

ne. [ARCHITECTURE]
To the early Muslims, pictures and sculpture were considered impious and contrary to divine law, and it is to these strong religious leelings that we owe the introduction of that peculiar style of embellishment which is called the Arabesque, which rejects all representations of human and animal figures

In caligraphy or ornamental writing, the Muslims excel even to the present day, although it is to the Chinase that they are mdebted for the purity and elegance of their

Music is generally understood to have been forbidden in the Muhammadan religion, but both at Baghdad and Cordova were established schools for the custivation of this art

Much more might be written on the subject of Muslim or Saraceuic literature, but it would exceed the limits of our present work Enough has been said to show that, notwithstanding their barbarous origin, they in dne timo became the patrons of literature and soience They cannot, however, claim a high rank as inventors and discoverers, for many of their bost and most useful works were but translations from the Greek Too much has been made of the debt which the Western world owes, or is supposed to owe, to its Saracen conquerors for their patronage of literature. It would have been strange if a race of conquerors, who came suddenly and rapidly into possession of some of the most cultivated and refined regions of the earth, had not kindled new lighte at those ancient beacons of literature and science which smouldered beneath their feet

In the Kashfu 'z Zunun, it is related that when ha'd ibn Abn Waqqas conquered Persia, he wrote to the Khalifah Umar and asked him what he should do with the philosophical works which they had found in the libraries of the cities of Persia, whether he should keep them or sond them to Mak kah, then 'Umar replied, "Cast them into the rivers, for if in these books there is a guidance (of life), then we have a still botter guidance in the book of God (the Qur'an), and if, on the centrary, there is in them that which will lead us astray, then God protect us from them", so, according to those instructions, Sa'd cast some into the rivers and some into the fire So was lost to us the Philosophy of Persia! (Kashfu'z-Zunun, p 341)
Such was the spirit in which the early

Muslims regarded the literature of the coun tries they conquered, and which gave rise to the frequently repeated story that 'Umar ordered the destruction of the libraries of Alexandria, Casaroa, and Ispahan, while even the enlightened Ma'mun is said to have committed to the flames the Greek and Latin originals of the books he caused to be translated It therefore seems probable that the world of literature lost quite as much as it geined by the Saracen conquest of the West What the attitude of the Muslim world now

18 towards scionce and literature, the condition of the Muslim in North Africa, in Turkoy, in Afghanistan, and in India, will de-clare A condition of things arising from peculiarities of religious belief If we study carefully the peculiar structure of Islam as a religious system, and become acquainted with the actual state of things amongst Muhammadan nations now existing, we shall feel compelled to admit that the patronage of literature by the Muslim Khalifahs of Cordova, Cairo, and Baghdad, must have been the outcome of impulses derived from other sources than the example and precept of the Arabian legislator or the teachings of the Qur'an

(See Ibn Khallıkan's Biographical Dict, Crichton's Arabia, D'Herbelot's Bibl. Orient, Al-Makkari's Muhammadan Dynasties in Spain, Poocek, Muir's Mahomet, Abu 1-Fide' Toderin's Let des Turcs, Kashfu's-Zunün, Sir William Jones's Asiatic Res, Schnurrer's Bibl Arab, Ibn al-Jazwi's Talqīh, M de Sacey, Tabaqātu 'sh-Shā Gʻiyin.)

LITURGY PRAYER

FIMY, (17) A banner, a standard [STANDARDS]

LOCUSTS (Arabic jarād, احراد) are lawful food for Muslims without being killed by gabh [FOOD]

Arabic 'Ilmu 'l-mantiq LOGIC (علم البنطن), "the science of rational speech," from natag, "to speak", 'Ilmu 'I-mizān (اعلم الموران), "the science of weighing" (ovidence), from mīzān "scales"

The author of the Akhlāg-: Jatālī says

"the ancient sages, whose wisdom had bor rowed its lustre from the loop-hole of prophecy, always directed the socker after exphecy, siways directed the soeker after the cellsuce to cultivate first 'Ilmu'l akhlāq,' the science of morel culture,' then 'Ilmu'l-manfiq,' the science of logic,' then 'Ilmu'l-riyaziyai,' mathematics,' then 'Ilmu'l-bikmah 'physics,' and, lastly, 'Ilmu'l-Ilāhī, 'theology' But Hakim Abū 'Alī al-Masqawı (A D 10), would place mathematics before logic, which plain the preferable course. This will explain the inscription placed by Plato over the door of his house, 'He who knows not geometry, let him not enter here'" (See Thompson's ed. p 81)

The Arabs, being suddenly called from the desert of Arabia to all the duties and dignities of civilized life, were at first much pressed to reconcile the simplicity of the precepts of their Prophet with the surroundings of their new state of existence, and consequently the multitude of distinctions, both in morals and purisprudence, they were obliged to adopt, gave the study of dialectics an importance in the religion of Islâm which it never lost. The Imam Mälik said of the great teacher Abu Hanifah, that he was such a master of logic, that if he were to assert that a pillar of wood was made of gold, he would prove it to you by the rules of logic.

The first Muslim of hote who gave his attention to the study of logic was Khalid ibn Yazid (A H. 60), who is reported to have been a man of great learning, and who ordered sertam Greek works on logic to be trans-lated into Arabic The Khalifah Ma'mun lated into Arabic (A.H. 198) gave great attention to this and to every other branch of learning, and ordered the translation of several Greek books of logie, brought from the library of Constantinople, into the Arabic tongue Mulla Kātib Chain gives a long hat of those who have translated works on logic. Stephen, named Istifanu 'l-Qadim, translated a book for Khāhd ibn Yazīd Batrīq did one for the Kha-lifah al-Mansūr Ibn Yahya rendered a Persian book on logic into Arabic for the Khalifah al-Ma'mun, also Ibn Na'ımah 'Abdu 'l-Masih (a Christian), Husain bin Bahriq, Hilal ibn Abi Hilal of Hims, and many others translated becks on logic from the Persian. Musa and Yusuf, two sons of Khalid, and Hasan ibn Sahl are mentioned as having translated from the language of Hind (India) into Arabie Amongst the philosophers who rendered Greek books on logic into Arabic are mentioned Hansın, Abû 'l-Faraj, Abu 'l-Sulaıman as Sanjarı, Yahya an-Nahwi, Ya'qub ıbn lahāq al Kindī, Abū Zaid Ahmad ibn Sahl al-Balkhī, Ibn Sīnā' (Avicenna), and very many others

An Arabic treatise of logic has been translated into English by the Bengal Asiatic Society

LORD'S SUPPER [EUCHARIST]

LOT Arabic Lut (14) Heb 171.
Held by Muhammadans as "a righteous man," specially sent as a prophet to the city of Sodom.

The commentator, al Bazawi, says that Lot was the son of Hārān, the son of Āzar, or Tarah, and consequently Abraham's nephew, who brought him with him from Chaldes into Palestine, where, they say, he was sent by God, to reglaim the inhabitants of Sodom and the other neighbouring cities, which were overthrown with it, from the unnatural vice to which they were addicted. And this Mu-bammadan tradition seems to be countenanced by the words of the apostle, that this righteons man dwelling among them, in seeing and hearing, "vexed his righteous soul from day to day with their unlawful deeds," whence it is probable that he omitted no opportunity of endeavouring their reformation. His name requestly occurs in the Qur an, as will be seen from the following selections —

Sürah vii 72-82 "We also sent Lot, when he said to his people, Commit ye this filthy deed in which no creature hath gone before you? Come ye to men, instead of women, iustfully? Ye are indeed a people given up to excess But the only answer of his people was to say, 'Turn them out of your city, for they are men who vaunt them pure.' And we delivered him and his family, except his wife, she was of those who lingered and we rained a rain upon them and see what was the end of the wicked!"

Süreh xxl 74, 75 "And unto Lot we gave wisdom and knowledge, and we rescued him from the city which wrought filthiness, for they were a people, evil, perverse and we caused him to enter into our mercy, for he was of the righteons'

Surah xxix. 27-34 " We sent also Lot when he said to his people, 'Proceed ye to a filthiness in which no people in the world hath ever gone before you! Proceed ye even to men? sttack ve them on the highway? and proceed ye to the crime in your assem blies?' But the only answer of his people was to say, Bring Cod's chastisement upon us, if thou art a man of truth' He cried My Loid! help me against this pointed people. And when our messengers came to Abraham with the tidings of a son, they said, Of a truth we will destroy the in-dwellers in this city, for its in-dwellers are evil doors' He said, 'Lot is therein' They said, 'We know full well who therein ie Him and his family will we save, except his wife, she will be of those who linger' And when our mes sengers came to Lot, he was troubled for them, and his arm was too weak to protect them, and they said, Fear not, and distress not thyself, for thee and thy family will we save, except thy wife, she will be of those who linger We will surely bring down upon the dwellers in this city vengeance from heaven for the excesses they have committed.' And in what we have left of it is a clear sign to men of understanding Suish xxvi 160-175 " The people of Lot treated their apostles as hars, when their brother Lot said to them, Will ye not lear God. I am your Apostle worthy of all credit fear God, then, and obey me For this I ask you no reward my reward is of the Lord of the worlds alone What! with men, of all creatures, will ye have commerce? And leave ye your wives whom your Lord hath created for you? Ab 'ye are an erring people!' They said, 'O Lot, if thou desist not, one of the banished shalt thou surely be' He said, 'I utterly abbor your doings Μv Lord I deliver me and my family from what they do' So we delivered him and his whole family-save an aged one among those who tarried—then we destroyed the rest-and we rained a rain upon them, and fatal was the rain to those whom we had warned In this truly was a sign, but most of them did not believe But thy Lord! Ho is the Powerful the Merciful !"

Sūrab xxvii 55-59 "And Lot, when he said to his people, 'What I proceed ye to such filthmess with your eyes open? What! come ye with lust unto men rather than to women? Surely ye are an ignorant people.' And the answer of his people was but to say, 'Cast out the family of Lot from your city they, forsooth, are men of purity!' So we rescued him and his family but as for his wife, we decreed her to be of them that lingered and we rained a rain upon them, and fatal was the rain to those who had hed their warman." the rain to those who had had their warning"

LOTS, Drawing of. There are two words used to express drawing of lots-maser (مهسر) and (قرمة) qur'ah. The former is used for games of chance, which are condemned in the Qur'an (Sürahs h. 216, v 92), the latter the casting of lots in the division of land or property (Hidayah, vol iv p 17)

LOVE The words used in the Qur'an for love and its synonyms are wudd (ود), hubb (سعبة), mahahbah (ود), and mawaddah ( ) )
(1) Wudd burah xix %

Verily thosa who believe and act aright, to them the Morciful One will give love"

(2) Hubb Surah v 59 'God will bring a cople whom He will love, and who will love him "

Surah is 160 "They love them (idols) as they should love God, whilst those who believe love God more '

Surah Ixxxix 21 "Ye love wealth with a complete love "

Sürah xil 30 "He (Joseph) has infatuated her (Zulaikhah) with love"

(3) Mahabbah Sürah xx 89 "For on thee (Moses) have I (God) cast my love"

(4) Mawaddah Surah 1 75 . As though thers were no friendship botween you and him "

Surah v 85 "Thou will find the nearest in friendship to those who believe to be those who say We are Christians

Sürah xxix 24 "Verily, ye take idols beside God through mutual friendship in the affairs of this world "

Surah xxx 20 "He has caused between you affection and pity ' Surah xi 22 "Say I do not ask to it hire, only the affection of my kinsfolk' Surah lx 1 "O ye who believe! take not my enemy and your enemy for patrons en countering them with affection" Sürah Ix. 7 "Mayhap God will place affection between you."

From the above quotations, it will be seen that in the Quran, the word mawaddah is used for friendship and affection only but that the other terms are synonymous, and are used for both divine and human love

In the traditions, hubb is also used for both kinds of love (see Mishkat, book xxii ch xvi.), and a section of the Hadis is devoted to the consideration of " Brothsrly love for God a pleasure "

'Ayıshah relates that the Prophet said, "Souls were at the first collected together (in the spirit-world) like assembled armiss, and then they were dispersed and sent into bodies, and that consequently those who had been acquainted with each other in the spirit world, became so in this, and those who had been strangers there would be strangers here "

The author of the Akhlaq-1-Jalah distinguishes between animal love and spiritual love Ammal love, he says, taken its rise from excess of appetite But spiritual love, which arises from harmony of souls, is not to be reckoned a vice, but on the contrary, a species of virtus !--

"Let love be thy master, all masters above,

For the good and the great are all prentice to lovs "

The cause of love, he says, is excessive eagerness either for pleasure or for good, the first is animal love, and is culpable, the second is spiritual love, and is a praiseworthy virtue (See Thompson's ed., pp. 227-284.)

The term more generally used in Oriental writings for the passion of love is 'Ishq (and), a word which az Zamakhshari, in his work the Asas (quoted by Lane), says is derived from the word al-'ashagah, a species of ivv which twines upon trees and cleaves to them. But it seems not improbable that it is connected with the Hebrew "" woman," or is darived from "to desirs" (See Deut

711 7 "The Lord hath set his love upon thee ', and Ps xor. 14 " Because he hath set his love upon me") The philosopher Ibn Sina' (Avicenna), in a treatise on al-'Ishq (regarding it as the passion of the natural propensities), says it is a passion not merely peculiar to the human species, but that it pervades all existing things, both in heaven and earth, in the animal, the vegstable, and even in the mineral kingdom, and that its meaning is not perceived or known, and is rendered all the more obscure by the explanation thersof (Sec Taju'L'Arus, by Saiyid Murtada)

Mir Abu l-Baqa, in his work entitled the Kulliyat, thus defines the various degrees of leve, which are supposed to represent not only intensity of natural love between man and woman, but also the Suffistic or divine love, which is the subject of so many mystic works -First, hawa, the inclining of the soul or mind to the object of love, then, 'Ilaquh, love cleaving to the Leart, then, kalaf, violent and intense love, accompanied by perplants then 'usho, amorous desire, accompanied by molancholy, then, shaghaf, ardour of love, accompanied by pleasurs, then, jawa, inward love, accompanied by amorous desirs, or grisf and sorrow, then, tatayum, a state of enslavement, then, tabl, love sickness, then, wulah, distraction, accompanied with loss of reason, and, lastly, huyam, overpowering love, with a wandering about at random

In Professor Palmer's little work on Oriental mysticism, founded on a Persian MS by 'Azız ıbn Muhammad an-Nafsan', and entitled the Maksad : Aksā (Maqsad-1-Aqsū), or the "Remotest Aim," we read, "Man sots his face towards this world, and is entangled in the love of wealth and dignity, until the grace of God steps in and turns his heart towards God The tendency which procesds from God is called Attraction, that which proceeds from man is called Inclination, Desire, and Love As the inclination increases its name changes, and it causes the Traveller to renounce everything else but God (who becomes his Qibla), and thus set-ting his face God-wards, and forgetting everything but God, it is developed into Love.

This is by no means the last and ultimate stage of the journey, but most men are said to be content to pass their lives therein and to leave the world without making any further progress therein [surium] Such a person the Sufis call Mayzūb, or, Attracted And it is in this state that 'Ishq, or spiritual love, becomes the subject of religious contemplation just as it is in the Song of Solomon "Let him kies me with the kieses of his mouth, for thy love is better than wine" But whilst the lover in the Song of Solomon is supposed to represent the Almighty God, and the loved one the Church, in Eastern Sūfī poetry the 'āshiq, or lover, is man, and the mash'ūq, or the Beloved One, is God The Sūfī poet Jāmī, in his Salaman and

The Suffi poet Jami, in his Salaman and Absal, thus writes of the joy of Divine love, and his prologue to the Deity, as rendered into English, will illustrate the mystic conception of love

"Time it is To unfold Thy perfect beauty I would

Thy lover, and Thine only—I, mine eyes Sealed in the light of Thee, to all but Thee,

Yea, in the revelation of Thyself Self-lost, and conscience-quit of good and

Thou movest under all the forms of truth, Under the forms of all created things, Look whence I will, still nothing I discern But Thee in all the universe, in which Thyself Thou dost invest, and through the eyes

Of man, the subtle censor scrutinize To thy Harim Dividuality,

No entrance finds—no word of this and that,

Do Thou my separate and derived self Make one with Thy essential! Leave me room

On that devan (sofs) which leaves no room for two Lest, like the simple Kurd of whom they tell,

I grow perplext, O God, 'twixt 'I' and 'Thou.'

If 'I'—this dignity and wisdom whence?

If 'Thon'—then what is this abject impotence?"

The fable of the Kurd, which is also told in verse, is this A Kurd left the solutude of the desert for the bustle of a busy city Being tired of the commotion around him, he lay down to sleep. But fearing he might not know himself when he arose, in the midst of so much commotion, he tied a pumpkin round his foot. A knave, who heard him deliberating about the difficulty of knowing himself again, took the pumpkin off the Kurd's foot, and tied it round his own. When the Kurd awoke, he was bewildered, and exclaimed.

"Whether I be I or no,

If I—the pumpkin why on you?

If you—then where am I, and who? "]

For further information on the subject of myshe love, see surnsu

LUBB (-). The heart or soul of man. That faculty of the mind which is enlightened and purified by the Holy Laght, a e Nüru'l-Quds (the Laght of God). (Kıtābu 't-Ta rīfāt, m loco)

LUDD (a). A small town in Palestine, where it is said Jesus will find ad-Dajjāln 'l-Masiḥ, and will kill him (Maskkāt, book xxiii ch iv) The ancient Lydda, nine miles from Joppa (See Acts ix 32, 38) It is the modern Diospolis, which in Jereme's time was an episcopal see. The remains of the ancient church are still seen. It is said to be the native town of St. George.

LUNATIC The Arabic majorial (1954) includes all mad persons, whether born idiots, or persons who have become insane According to Muhammadan law, a lunatic is not liable to punishment for robbery, or to retaliation for murder Zakāt (legal alms) is not to be taken from him, nor a lunatic does not amount to a change of faith, as in all matters, both civil and religious, he is not to be held responsible to either God or man. An idiot or fool is generally regarded in the East by the common people, as an inspired being Mr Lans, in his Modein Egyptans, says, "Most of the reputed saints of Egypt are either lunatics, or idiots, or impostors" A remark which will equally apply to India and Central Asia

LUQMAN (cold) A person of eminence, known as Luqmanu 'l-Hakim, or Luqman the Philosopher, mentioned in the Qur'an as one upon whom God had bestewed wisdom

Surah xxxi 11-19 "Of old we bestowed wisdom upon Luqman, and tought him thus-Be thankful to God for whoever is thankful, is thankful to his own behoof, and if any shall God truly is self-sufficient, be thankless worthy of all praise! And bear in mind when Luqman said to his son by way of warming, 'O my son! join not other gods with God, for the joining gods with God is the great implety O my son! observe prayer, and enjoin the right and forbid the wrong, and be patient under whatever shall betide thee for this is a bounden duty And distort not thy face at men, nor wals thou loftily on the earth, for God loveth no arrogant vain-glorious one. But let thy pace be midding, and lower thy voice for the least pleasing of voices is surely the voice of asses' bee ye not how that God hath put under you all that is in the heavens and all that is on the earth, and hath been bounteons to you of his favours, both for soul and body But some are there who dispuse of God without knowledge, and have no guidance and no illuminating Book."

Commentators are not agreed as to whether Luquian is an inspired prophet or not. Husain says most of the learned think he was a philosopher, and not a prophet. Some say he was the son of Ba'ūr, and a nephew of Job, being his sister's son, others that he was a nephew of Abraham, others that he was born in the time of King David, and lived until the time of Jonah, being one thousand years of age. Others, that he was an African slave and a shepherd amongst the Israelites. Some say he was a tailor, others a carpenter. He is admitted by all Arabian historians to have been a fabulist and a writer of proverbs, and consequently European authors have concluded that he must be the same person vhom the Greeks, not knowing his real name, have called Alsop, ce Athrops

Mr Sale says "The commentators men tion several quick repartees of Luqman, which (together with the circumstances above men tioned) agrees so well with what Maximus Planndes has written or Æsop, that from thence, and from the fables attributed to Luqman by the Orientals, the latter has been generally thought to be no other than the Esop of the Greeks However that be (for I think the matter will bear a dispute) I am of opinion that Planudes borrowed a great part of his life of Æsop from the traditions he met with in the East concerning Luquan, concluding thom to have been the same per con, because they were both slaves, and supposed to be the writers of those fables which go under their respective names, and hear a great resemblance to one another, for it has long since been observed by learned men, that the greater part of that monk's performance is an absurd romance, and suported by no evidence of the ancient writers'

Dr Spenger thinks Luqman is identical with the Elvai of the Ebionites (Das Leben und die Lehre des Mohammad, vol 1 p 34)

Luquian is the title of the xxist Surah of the Qur'an.

LUCTAH (and) "Troves" Property which a person finds and takes away to preserve it in trust In English law, trover (from the French trouver) is an action which a man has against another who has found or obtained possession of his goods, and refuses to deliver them on demand (Se Blackstone.) According to Minhammadai, law, the finder of lost property is obliged to advertise it for the space of a year before he can claim it as his own If the finder be a wealthy person, he should give it to the poor (Hidayah, vol ii p 277) [Troves]

LÜT (54). [LOT.]

LUXURY Arabic tana"um (pass). In the training of children, the author of the Akhlāq : Jalāh condemns luxury He says, "Sleeping in the day and eleeping overmuch at night should be prohibited Soft clothing and all uses of luxury, such as cool retreats in the hot weather, and fires and furs in the cold, they should be taught to abstain from They should be inured to exercise, foot-walking, horse-riding, and all other appropriate accomplishments" (Akhlāq t-Jalālī, p 280)

LYING Arabic kizzāb ( ) A pretty general infirmity of nature in the East, which still remains uncorrected by the modern influences of Islâm But Muhammad is related to have said "When a servant of God tells a lie, his guardian angele move away from him to the distance of a mile, because of the badness of its smell" (Mishkāt, book xxii ch. ii.)

M.

MA'AQIL (Jike) The fines for murder, manalaughter, &c (Hidayah, vol 1v p 448) [DIYAH.]

AL-MA'ARIJ (Elast) Int "The Ascents" The title of the Latth chapter of the Qur'an, in the second verse of which occurs the sentence, "God, the possessor of the Ascents (or Steps) by which the angels ascend unto Hun, and the Spirit (i c Gabriel), in a day whose space is fifty thousand years "

Sale, translating from al-Baizāwi and Zamakhsharī, says." This is supposed to be the space which would be required for their ascent from the lowest part of the creation to the throne of God, if it were to be measured, or the time which it would take a man to perform a journey, and thie is not contraductory to what is said elsewhere (if it be to be interpreted of the ascent of the angels), that the length of the day whereon they ascend is 1,000 years, because that is meant only of their ascent from earth to the lower heaven, including also the time of their descent

"But the commentators, generally taking the day spoken of in both these passages to be the Day of Judgment, have recourse to several expedients to recencile them, and as both passages seem to contradict what Muhamman doctors teach, that God will judge all creatures in the space of half-a-day, they suppose those large numbers of years are designed to express the time of the previous attendance of those who are to be judged, or else to the space wherein God will judge the unbelieving nations, of which, they say, there will be fifty, the trial of each nation taking up 1,000 years, though that of the true believers will be ever in the short space above mentioned"

MABNA 'T-TASAWWUF (التمون) Let "The Foundation of Sufiism" A term used by the Sufis to embrace the three principles of their system (1) The choice of the assetic life, (2) The intention to bestow freely upon others, (8) The giving up of one's own will and desires, and desiring only the will of God. (See 'Abdu 'r-Razzāq's Dict of Ṣūfī Terms)

AL-MADINAH (المدينة) Lat. "The city" The city colebrated as the burnal place of Muhammad. It was called Yaarib (see Qur'an, Sürah xxxii 18), but was distinguished as al-Madinah, "the city," and Madinatu 'n-Nabi, " the city of the Prophet," after it had become famous by giving shelter to Muhammad. It is esteemed only second to Makkah in point of sanctity Muhammad is related to have eard, "There are angels guarding the roads to al-Madinah, on account of which neither plague, or the Dajjal (Anti-christ) can enter it" "I was ordered," he said, "to flee to a city which shall cat up (conquer) all other cities, and its name is now al Madinah (the city), verily she puts away evil from man, like as the forge purifies iron "God has made the name of al-Madinah both tabah and tasyrbah," te both good and odomferous.

Al-Madinah is built on the elevated plain of Arabia, not far from the eastern base of the ridge of mountains which divide the table-land from the lower country between it and the Red Sea. The town stands on the lowest part, on the plain where the watercourses unite, which produce in the rainy season numerous pools of stagmant water and render the climate unhealthy Gaidens and date-plantations, interspersed with fields, inclose the town on three sides, on the side towards Makkah the rocky nature of the soil ronders cultivation impossible. The city forms an oval about 2,800 paces in circuit, ending in a point. The castle is built at the point on a small rocky elevation The whole is inclosed by a thick wall of stone, between 35 and 40 feet high, flanked by about 30 towers and surrounded by a ditch Three well-built gates lead into the town. houses are well built of stone, and generally two stories high As this stone is of a dark colour, the streets have a gloomy aspect, and are for the most part very narrow, often only two or three paces across, a few of the principal streets are paved with stone There are only two large streets which contain shops The principal buildings within the city are the great mosque containing the tomb of Muhammad, two fine colleges, and the eastle, standing at the western extremity of the city, which is autrounded by strong walls and several high and solid towers, and contains a deep well of good water

The town is well supplied with sweet water by a subterraneous canal which runs from the village of Quba, about three-quarters of a mile distant in a southern direction. In several parts of the town steps are made down to the canal, where the inhabitants supply themselves with water which, however, contains nitre, and produces indigestion in persons not accustomed to it. There are also many wells scattered over the town, every garden has one by which it is urigated, and when the ground is borod to the depth of twenty-five or thirty feet, water is found in plenty During the rainy season, many torrents descend from the higher grounds to the lower depression in which al-Madinah is built, and part of the city is inundated. This plentiful supply of water made this site a considerable settlement of Arabs long before it became sacred among the Muhammadans, by the flight, residence, and death of the Prophet, to which it owes its name of Madinatn 'n-Nabi, or the City of the Prophet. (See Burckhardt's Travels in Árabia.)

An account of the Prophet's mosque is given under MASJIDU 'N NAMI, and of the burnal chamber of Muhammad under HUJRAR.

(مدرسة) MADRASAH A school [EDUCATION]

MADYAN (مدين) Midian. The descandants of Midian, the son of Abraham and Keturah, and a city and district bearing his name, cituated on the Red Sea, southeast of Mount Sinal.

Mentioned in the Qur'an, Sûrah vii 83 "We sent to Madyan their brother Shu'aib"

[SHUALB ]

MAFQUD (معفود) A legal term for a person who is lost, and of whom no in-formation can be obtained. He is not considered legally dead until the period expures when he would be ninety years old

MAGIANS MAJUS

Arabic sihr (, ....). MAGIC belief in the magical art is ontertained by almost all Muhammadans, and there is a large number of persons who study it

Although magic (as-sihr) is condemned in the Quran (Sursh in 96) and in the Tradi tions (Mishkat, book xxi ch til pt 1), there are still many superstitious practices resembling this occult science, which are clearly permitted according to the sayings of Mu-

Anas says, " The Prophet permitted a spell (runyah) being used to counteract the ill effects of the evil eye, and on those bitten by enakes or scorpions." (Sahihu Muslim, p 233)

Umm Salmah relates "that the Prophet allowed a spell to be used for the removal of yellowness in the eye, which, he said, proceeded from the malignant eye." (Sahibu

'l-Bukhari, p 854)
'Auf ibn Malik says "the Prophet said there is nothing wrong in using spells, provided the use of them does not associate any-thing with God" (Mishkai, book xx. ch. i) The terms used to express the magnetical arts are, dawah, ist. "an invitation of the apirits," exorcism, 'azīmah, an incantation, kihānah, divination, or fortune-telling, rugyah, a spell, and sidr, magic

The term da'wah is held to imply a lawful meantation, in which only the assistance of God is invited by the use of either the Ismu 'I-A'zam, or great and unknown name of God.

or the recital of the ninety-nme names or attributes of the Ahmghty As Siår, or the magical use of evil spirits and kuhānah, fortune-telling, are held to be strictly unlawful. Incantation and exoroism as practised by Muhammadans is treated of in the article on DA'WAH.

Mr Lane, in his annotated edition of the Arabian Nights, says

There are two descriptions of magio, one is spiritual, regarded by all but freethinkers as true, the other, natural, and denounced by the more religious and enlightened as deceptive

I Spiritnal magic, which is termed "or Roohanee" (ar-rahani), chiefly depends upon the virtues of certain names of God, and passages from the Kurán, and the agoncy of angels, and jum, or geni It is of two kinds, Divine and Satanic ("Rahmanee," i s relating to "the Compassionate" [who is God], and "Sheytanee," relating to the Devil)

1 Divine magic is regarded as a sublime science, and se studied only by good men, and practised only for good purposes Perfection in this branch of magic consists in the knowledge of the most great name of God [ISMU 'L-AZAM], but this knowledge is imparted to none but the peculiar favourities of heaven. By virtue of this name, which was engraved on his seal ring, Solomon subjected to his domimon the junn and the birds and the winds By pronouncing it, his minister Asaf (Asaf), also, transported in an instant, to the presence of his sovereign, in Jerusalem, the throne of the Queen of Sheha But this was a small miracle to effect by such means, fer, by nttering this name, a man may even raise the dead Other names of the Deity, commonly known, are believed to have particular efficacies when uttered or written, as also are the names of the Prophet, and angels and good jinn are said to be rendered enbeervient to the purposes of divine magic by means of certain invocations Of such names and invocations, together with words unintelligible to the uninitiated in this science, passages from the Kurán, mysterious combinations of numbers, and peculiar diagrams and figures, are chiefly composed written charms employed for good purposes Enchantment, when used for benevolent purposes, is regarded by the vulgar as a branch of lawful or divine magic, but not so by the learned, and the same remark applies to the science of divination.

2. Satanic magio, ae its name implies, is a ecience depending on the agency of the Devil and the inferior evil junn, whose services are obtained by means similar to those which propinate, or render subservient, the good lim. It is condemned by the Prophet and all good Muslime, and only practised for bad purposes Es sehr (as-Sihr), or enchantment, is almost universally acknowledged to be a branch of Satanio magic, but some few persons assert (agreeably with several tales in the Arabian Nights), that it may be, and by some has been, studied with good intentions. and practiced by the aid of good pun, consequently, that there is such a coience as good enchantment, which is to be regarded as a branch of divine or lawful magic The metamorphosee are eard to be generally effected by means of spells, or invocations to junn, accompanied by the sprinkling of water or dust, &o, on the object to be transformed Persons are said to be enchanted in various ways, some paralyzed, or even deprived of life, others, affected with irresistible passion for certain objects, others, again, rendered demonacs, and some, transformed into brutes, birds, &c The evil eye is believed to enbirds, &c The evil eye is believed to en-chant in a very powerful and distressing manner This was acknowledged even by the Prophet. Diseases and death are often attributed to its influence Amulete are worn by many Muslims with the view of counteracting or proserving from enchantment, and for the same purpose many ridiculous ceremonies are practised. Divination, which is termed El-Kihaneh (el-Kihaneh), is pronounced on the highest authority to be a branch of Satanic magic, 1 ough not be-lieved to be so by all Mushims According to an assertion of the Prophet, what a fortuneteller says may sometimes be true, because one of the jinn steals away the truth, and carries it to the magneian's ear, for the angele come down to the region next the earth (the lowest heaven), and mention the works that have been pre-ordained in heaven, and the devils (or evil jum) haten to what the angels may, and hear the orders predestined in heaven, and carry them to the fortune-tellere. It is on such occasions that shooting stars are hurled at the devils It is said that, " the diviner obtains the services of the Sheytan (Shartan) by magic arts, and by names invoked, and by the burning of perfumes, and he informs him of secret things, for the devils, before the mission of the Apostle of God, it is added, used to ascend to heaven, and hear words by stealth That the evil jum are believed still to ascend sufficiently near to the lowest heaven to hear the conversation of the angels, and so to assist magicians, appears from the former quotation, and is asserted by all Muslime The discovery of hidden treasures is one of the objects for which divination is most studied mode of divination called "Darb-el-Mendel" (Zarbu 'l-Mandal), is by some supposed to be effected by the aid of evil jinn, but the more enlightened of the Muslims regard it as a branch of natural magne. Some curious performances of this kind, by means of a fluid mirror of ink, have been described in the Account of the Manners and Customs of the Modern Egyptians, and in No 117 of the Quarterly Review

There are certain modes of divination which cannot properly be classed under the head of spiritual magic, but require a place between the account of this science and that of natural magic. The most important of these branches of Kihaneh is Astrology, which is called limes Nujoom ('Ilmu 'n-Nujum) This is studied by many Muslims in the present day, and its professors are often employed by the Arabs to determine a fortunate period for laying the foundation of a building, commensing a journey, &c., but mere frequently by the Per-sians and Turks The Prophet prenounced Astrology to be a branch of magie. Another branch of Kihaneh is Geomanay, called "Darb or Ramai" (Zarou Rami) a mode of divination from certain marks made on sand (whence its appellation), or on paper and said to be chiefly founded on astrology. The saul to be chiefly founded on astrology science called "ez Zijr" or "el Evalch" (al-'Iyajah), is a third branch of Kihaneh, being divination or auguration chiefly from the motions and positions, or postures, of birds, or of gazelles and other beasts of the chase Thus what was termed a "Saneh" (Sansh), that is, such an animal standing or passing with its right side towards the spectator, was esteemed among the Arabs as of good oven, and a "Bareh" (Bārik) or an anumal of this kind with its left side towards the speciator, was held as manspiolous "El Kiyafeh" (af Quya(ah), under which term are included Chiromanuy and its kindred sciences, is a fourth branch of Kibanen, "El Tefaul" (ar Tajawwul), or the taking an omen, particu larly a good one from a name or words acci dentally heard or seen or chosen from a book belonging to the same science The taking a or omen, from the Kuran, is generally held to be lawful Various trifling avents are considered as orninous For instance, a Sul tan quitting his palace with his troops, a standard happened to strike a 'thureiya" (suruyya, a cluster of lamps so called from resembling the Pleiades), and broke hom he draw from this an evil omen, and would have relinquished the expedition, but one of his chief officers said to him, "O our Lord, thy standard has reached the Pleiades" and being reheved by this remark, he proceded, and returned victorious

(See The Thousand and One Nights a new translation, with copious notes, by Edward W Lane newed by E S Poole vol 1 p 60)

MAGISTRATES [QAZI]

MAGPIE Arabic 'aq'aq (ata) According to Abū Hanifah, the flesh of the magpie is mubah, or indifferent, but the Imam Yusuf held it to be makrūh, or reprobated because it frequently feeds on dead bodies (Hidavak, vol iv p "4)

(المهدى) AL-MAHDI Lat "The Directeu One," honce, "who is ilt to direct others (fuide, Leader' A rulei who shall m the last days appear upon the earth According to the Shrahs, he has already appeared in the person of Muhammad Abu ! Quaim the twelfth linari, who is behaved to he concealed in some secret place until the day of his manifestation before the end of the world. But the Sanms say he cas not yet appeared In the history of Muhammadanism, there are numerous instances of impostore baving assumed the character of this mysterions personage, amongst others, Saigid Abmad, he fought ag ... not the Sikhe on the North West frontier of the Panjah A D 1826 and still more recently, the Mchammadan

'who has claimed to be al-Mahde in the Sudan in Egypt

The savings of the Prophet on the subject, according to al-Bukhari and other traditioniste, are as follows —

"The world will not come to an end until a man of my tribe and of my name shall be master of Arabia"

"When you see black ensigns coming from the direction of Khorosan, then join them, for the Imam of God will be with the standards, whose name is al Mahdi"

"The Mand: will be descended from me, he will be a man with an open countenance and with a nigh nos. He will fill the earth with equity and justice even as it has been filled with two anny and oppression, and he will reign over the earth seven wears"

Quarrelling and disputation shall exist amongst men, and that a shall a man of the people of al-Madinah come forth, and shall go from al-Madinah to Makkah, and the people of Makkah shall make him Imam Then shall the fuller of Syria send an army against the Mahdi, but the Syrian army shall perish by an earthquake near Bada', between al Madinah and Makkah And when the people shall see this, the Abdal [Abdal] will come from Syria and also a multitude from al Traq. After this an enemy to the Mahdi chall mise from he Quraish tribe, whose uncles shall be of the tribe of Kalb, and this man shall send an army squanst the Mahdi. The Mahdi shall rule according to the example of your Prophet and shall give strength and stability to Islam. He shall eigh for seven years and then die.

"There shall be much rain in the days of the Mahd, and the inhabitants both of heaven and taith shall be pleased with him Mens lives shall pass so pleasantly, that they will wish even the dead were alive again." (Mishkātu 'l Masābih, book xxin ch 3)

According to Shi'ah traditione, Munammad is related to have said "O ye people! I am the Prophet and Ali is my heir, and from us will descer d al Mahdi, the seal (se the last) of the Imams was will conquer all religions and take vengeance on the wicked He will take fortresses and will destroy them and slay every tribe or idolaters and he will avenge the deatns of the martyre of God He will be the champion of the Faith, and a drawer of water at the fountain of divine knowledge He will reward merit and requite every fool according to his folly He will be the approved and chosen of God, and the heir of-all knowledge. He will be the valuant in doing right and one to whom the Most High has entrusted Islam people, I have explained to you, and 'Ali also will make you understand it" (Hiyatu l-Quilub Merrick's ed p 342)
It is probable that it is from these tradi

It is probable that it is from these traditions that the opinion became current amongst the Christians that the Muhammadans expected their Prophet would rise again

MAHJUR () A slave inhibited by the cuter from exercising any office or agency (Hidayah, vol. iii 5) MAHMAL, MAHMIL () emblem of royalty at the time of the pilgrimage It is said that Sultan Az-Zāhur Beybars,

King of Egypt, was the first who sent a mah-mal with the caravan of prigrims to Makkah in A.D 1272, but that it had its origin a few years before his accession to the throns, under the following our cumstances. Shaghru 'd-Durr, a beautiful Turkish female slave, who became the favourite wife of Sultan as Salib Wajmu d-din, and who on hajj in a magnificent litter borne by a camel And for successive years her empty litter was sent yearly to Makkah as an emblem of state After her death, a similar litter was sent each was with the carrier of collecting of Sultan as-baild realmy death, and who on the death of his son (with whom terminated the dynasty of Alyūb) caused herself to be acknowledged Queen of Egypt, performed the from Cairo and Damasous, and is called mahmal or mahmal, a word signifying that by which anything is supported_

THE MARMAL. (From an Original Picture)

Mr Lane, in his Modern Egyptiens, vol. 11.

p 162, thus describes the mahmal -

"It is a square skeleton frame of wood with a pyramidal top, and has a covering of black brocade richly worked with inscriptions and ornamental embroidery in gold, in some parts upon a ground of green or red silk, and bordered with a fringe of eilk, with tassels, surmounted by silver balls. Its covering is not always made after the same pattern with regard to the decorations, but in every cover hat I have seen, I have remarked on the upper part of the front a view of the Temple of Makkah, worked in gold, and over it the Sultan's cipher. It contains nothing, but has two copies of the Kurán, one on a small scroll and the other in the usual form of a book, also small, each inclosed in a case of gilt silver, attached externally at the top The five balls with crescents, which orns ment the mahmal, are of gilt silver. The mahmal is borne by a fine tall camel, which is generally indulged with exemption from every kind of labour during the remainder of its life.

THE MARMAI (Intro.)

Eastern travellers often confuse the mahmal with the kiswah, or covering for the Ka'bah, which is a totally distinct thing, although it is made in Cairo and sent at the same time as the mahmal. [KISWAH]

The Wahhabis prohibited the mahmal as an object of vain pomp, and on one cocasion intercepted the caravan which escorted it Captain Burton saw both the Egyptian and the Damasous mahmals on the plain below 'Arsiah at the time of the pilgrimage.

MAHMŪDĪŸAH (محمودية) Shi'ah sect founded by Mir Sharif who in the reign of Akbar held a military appointment in Bengal. He was a disciple of Mahmud of Busakhwan, the founder of the Nuqtawiyah sect Mahmud lived in the reign of Timur, and professed to be al-Mahdi. He also called himself the Shakhs-i-Wahid-the Individual one He used to quote the verse
"It may be that thy Lord will raise thee up to a glorious (mahmud) station" (Sürah xvu 81) From this he argued that the body of man had been advancing in purity since the creation, and that on its reaching to a certain degree, one Mahmud (glorious) would arise, and that then the dispensation of Muhammad would come to an end. He claimed to be the Mahmud He also taught the dootrine of transmigration, and that the beginning of everything was the earth atom (nuqtah). It is on this account that they are called in Persian the Nuqtawiyah sect They are also known by the names Mahmūdīyah and Wahīdīyah Shah 'Abbās, Kmg of Per sia, expelled them from his dominions, but Akbar received the fugitives kindly, and promoted some amongst them to high offices of State

MAHR (مهر) Heb (مهر). The dower or settlement of money or property on the wife, without which a mairiage is not logal, for an explanation of which see the article on DOWER.

The Hebrow word occurs three times in the old Testament, viz Gen xxxiv 12, kx. xxii 17, 1 Sam xviii 25 [DOWER and MARRIAGE]

MAHRAM (محمر) Lit "Unlawful" A near relative with whom it is unlawful to marry Muhammad enjoined that every woman performing pilgrimage should have a mahram with her night and day, to prevent scandal (Mishkūt, book xi ch 1)

AL-MA'IDAH (Suffall) Let "The table." The title of the vth Sürah of the Qur'an, in the 114th verse of which the word occurs "O Jesus, sen of Mary! is thy Lord able to send down to us a table?"

"This miracle is thus related by the commentators Jesus having at the request of his followers asked it of God, a red table immediately descended, in their sight, between two clouds, and war set before them, whereupon he rose up, and, having made the ablution, prayed, and then took off the cloth which covered the table, saying, 'In the name of God, the best provider of food!' What the provisions were with which this table was furnished, ie a matter wherein the expositors are not agreed. One will have them to be nine cakes of bread and nine fishes, another, bread and fiesh, another, all sorts of food except flesh, another, all sorts of food except bread and flosn, another, all except cread and fish; another, one fish which had the taste of all manner of food, and another, trusts of paradise but the most received tradition is that when the table was uncovered there appeared a fish ready dressed, without scales or prockly fine, dropping with ful, having salt placed at its head and vinegar at its tail, and round it all sorts of berbs except leeks and tine loaves of bread in ine of which there were chives, on the second honey, on the third butter, on the fourth cheese, and on the fifth dried flesh They add that Jesus at he reount of the Apostles, showed them another miracle by restoring the dan to life and causing its seales and fine to eturn to it, at which the standers by being affrighted he caused it o become as it was before that one thousand three hundred men and women, al afflicted with hodily infirmities or poverty, ate of these provisions and were satisfied tne fish remaining whole as it was at first tha ther he table flew up to neaven in the sight of all and every one who had partaken of this food were delivered from their infiimilies and misfortunes, and that is continued to descend for forty days together, at dinnertime, and stood in the ground till the sun declined and was then taken up into the clouds. Some of the Muhammadan writers are of opinion that this table did not really descend, but that it was only a parable, but most think the words of the Quran are plain to the contrary A furthe tradition is that several men were changed into swine for diabelieving this miracie and attributing it to magic art, or, as others pretend, for steal ing some of the victuels from off it Several other tabulous circumstances are also told, which are scarce worth transcribing bome say the table descended on a Sunday which was the reason of the Christians observing that day a sacred Others protend that this day is still kept among them as a very great festival and it seems as if the store had it rise from ar imperfect notion of Christ's last supper and the institution of the Eucharist" (Sale's Qur an.)

MAIMUNAH (diseas) The last of Muhammad's wives A sisted to Ummu I-Fazl, the wife of al-'Abbas, and consequently related to the Prophet She was a widow 51 years of age when Muhammad married her She survived him, and died at the age of 81, being buried on the very spot on which she had celebrated her marriage (Mair's Life of Muhomet, new ad p 408)

MAINTENANCE Arabic no faqah (Law), which, in the language of the law, signifies all those things which are necessary to the support of his, such as food clothes, and lodging, although many confine it solely to food (Durru 'l-Mukhtār, p. 288.)

There are three causes of maintenance established by law (1) Marriage, (2) Relationship, (8) Property (se in case of a lave)

A husband is bound to give proper maintenance it his wife or wives, provided she or they have not become refractory or rebel lious, but have surrendered herself or them selves to the custody of their husband

Maintonance may be decreed out of the property of an absent husband whether it be held in trust or deposit, or muzārabah for him

If the husband become poor to such r degree as to be unable to provide his wife her maintenance, still they are not to be separated on this account, but the Qāzī shall direct the woman to procure necessaries for herself upon her husband's credit, the amount remaining a debt upon him.

A divorced wife is entitled to feod, clothing and lodging during the period of her 'iddah and until her delivery, if she be pregnant. No maintenance is however, due to a woman, whether pregnant or not, for the 'iddah observed upon the death of her husband. No maintenance is due to a woman upon separation caused by her own fault.

A father is bound to support his infant children, and no one shares the obligation with him

A mother, who is a married wife, cannot be compelled to suckle her infant except where a nurse cannot be procured, or the child refuses to take the milk of any other than of the mother, who in that case is bound to suckle it, unless incap-cottated for want of health or other sufficient cause

If neither the father not the child has any property the mother may be compelled to suckle it

The maintenance of an infant child is in cambent upon the father, although he be of a different religion, and in the same manner, the maintenance of a wife is incumbent upon her husband notwithstanding this circumstance

Maintenance of children becomes, however incumbent upon the father only where they possous no independent property

When the father is poor and the child's paternal grandfather is rich, and the child's own property is unavailable, the grandfather may be directed to maintain him, and the amount will be a debt due to him from the father, for which the grandfather may have recourse against him, after which the father may reimburse himself by having recourse against the child's property, if there is any

When the father is infirm and the child has no property of his own, the paternal grandfather may be ordered to maintain him, without right of recourse against anyone, and, make manner, if the child's mether be righ, or the grandmother rich, while its father is poor she may be ordered to maintain the child and the maintenance will be a debt against the child if he be-not infirm, but if he be so.

he is not hablo

If the father is poor and the mother is rich, and the young child has also a rich grandfather, the mother should be ordered to maintain the child out of her ewn property, with a right of recourse against the father and the grandfather is not to be called upon to do so. When the father is poor, and has a rich brether, he may be ordered to massian the child, with right of recourse against the father.

When male children have strength enough to work for their livelihood, though not actually adult, the father may set them to work for their own maintenance, or hire them out and maintain them out of their wages, but he has no power to hire females out for work or service.

A father must maintain his female children absolutely until they are married, when they have no property of their own. But he is not obliged to maintain his adult male children unless they are disabled by infirmity or disease.

It is also incumbent on a father to maintain his son's wife, when the son is young, poor, or infirm

The maintenance to an adult daughter or to an adult son who is disabled, rests upon the parents in three equal parts two-thirds being furnished by the father, and one-third by the mother

A child in easy circumstances may be compelled to maintain his poor parents, whether they be Muslim or not, or whether by their own industry they oe able to earn anything for subsistence or not

Where there are male and female children, or children univ of the male sex, or only of the female sex, the maintenance of both parents is alike incumbent upon them

Where there is a mixture of male and female children, the maintenance of both parents is incumbent on them alike

When a mother is poor, her sor is bound to maintain her, though he be in straitened circumstances himself, and she not infirm When a son is able to maintain only one of his parents, the mother has the better right, and if he have both parents and a minor son, and is able to maintain only one of them, the When he has son has the preferable right both parents, and cannot afford maintenance to either of them, he should take them to live with him, that they may participate in what food he has for himself When the son, though poor, is easing something, and his father is infirm, the son should allow the father to share his food with him

As of a father and mother, so the maintenance of grandfathers and grandmothers, if they be indigent, is incumbent upon their grandchildren, though the former be of different religion.

It is a man'e duty to provide maintenance for all his infant male relations within prohibited degrees who are in poverty, and also to all female relations within the same degrees, whether infants or adults, where they are in necessity, and also to all adult male relations within the same degrees whe are poor, disabled, or blind, but the obligation does not extend beyond those relations

No adult male, if in health, is entitled to maintenance, though he is poor, but a person is obliged to maintain his adult female relatives, though in health of body, if they require it. The maintenance of a mere relative is not incumbent on any poor person, con trary to the maintenance of a wife and child, for whom poor and rich are equally liable.

When a poet person has a father and a son's son, both in easy circumstances, the father is liable for his maintenance, and when there is a daughter and a son s son, the daughter only is liable though they both divide the inheritance between them also, when there is a daughter's daughter, or daughter's son and a full brother, the child of the daughter, whether male or female, is hable, though the brother is entitled to the inheritance. When a person has a parent Inhelitanco and a child, both in easy circumstances, the latter is liable, though both are equally near to him But if he have a grandfather and a son's son, they are liable for his maintenance in proportion to their shares in the inherit ance, that is, the grandfather for a sixth, and the son's son for the remainder, If a poer porson has a Christian son and a Muslim brother, both in easy circumstances, the son is liable for the maintenance, though the brother would take the inheritance If he has a mother and grandfather, they are both liable in proportion to their shares as heris, that is, the mother in one-third and the grandfather in two thirds So, also, whon with the mother there is a full brother, or tho son of a full brother, or a full paternal uncle, or any other of the 'asabah or residuaries the maintenance is on them, by thirds according to the rules of inheritance. When there is a maternal uncle, and the son of a full paternal uncle the liability for maintena ice is on the former though the latter would have the inheritance, because the condition of liability is wanting on the latter who is not within the forbidden degrees

If a man have a paternal uncle and aunt, and a maternal annt, his maintenance is on the nucle, and if the uncle be in straitened currentances, it is on both the others principle in this case is, that when a person who takes the whole of the inheritance is in straitened cucumstances, his mability is the same as death and being as it were dead, the maintenance is cast on the remaining relatives in the same proportions as they would be en titled to in the inheritance of the person to be maintained, if the other were not in existence and that when one who takes only a part of the inheritance is in straitened circumstances, he is to be treated as if he were dead, and the maintenance is cast on the others, according to the shares of the inhe ritance to which they would be entitled if they should succeed together with him (See Durru'l-Mukhtar, Babu n Nufayah)

AL-MAISIK (June 1) A game of chance forbidden in the Quran Surabs in 216, v 92, 98 It signifies a game performed with arrows, and much in use with pagen Arabs But the term al museu is now understood to include all games of chance or hazard

MAJBUB (سجبوب). A complete ennuch, as distinguished from khasi or one who is simply castrated (Hedayah, vol. 1 p. 856)

"The Glorious One" One of the ninety-nine names or attributes of God It occurs in the Qur'an "The Glo-Surah x1. 76 "Verily He is to be praised and glorified"

MAJORITY [PUBERTY] MAJŪJ (saple) [YAJUI]

AL-MAJŪS (المجوس), pl of Magūsi The Magnans Mentioned in the Qur'an only once, Surah xxii 17 "As to those who believe, and the Jaws, and the Sabertes, and the Christians, and the Magnans, and those who join other gods with God, of a truth God shall decide between them on the Day of for God is witness of all Resurrection things

Most Muhammadan writers (capacially amongst the Shraha) believe them to have formerly possessed a rovelation from God which they have since lost

The Migians were a sect of ancient philosophers which aloso in the East at a very early period, devoting much of theu time to the study of the heavenly bodies. Those were the learned men of their time, and we find Daniel the Prophet [prenioted to the head of this sect in Chalden (Dan v 11) They are supposed to have worshipped the Deity under the emblem of fire, whilst the babians, to whom they were opposed, worshipped the heavenly bodies. They held in shipped the heavenly bodies the greatest abhorrence the woi ship of images, and considered fire the purest symbol of the This religious sect was re-Divme Being formed by Zoroaster in the sixth century before Christ, and it was the national rengion of Persia until it was supplented by Muham madanism. The Magians are now known in Persia as Gabrs, and in India as Parsis. Their sacred book is the Zand Avestu, an English trunslation of which has been published by Mr A H. Bleeck (Hertford, 1864), from Pro-fessor Spiegel's German translation There is an able refutation of the Pärsi religion by the late Rev John Wilson, DD (Bombay 1843)

MAJZÜB (محدوب) Lit "Attracted." A term used by the Suns for a person whom God has chosen for Himself, for a manifestation of His love and who is thus enabled to attain to all the stages of Suffism without any effort of trouble (See ('Abdu 'r-Razzaq's Diet of Sufi Terms)

The capital of MAKKAH (مككة) Arabia and the most sacred city of the Muslims. It is celebrated as the buth-place of Mnhammad, and as the site of the Kathah, or Sacred Cube, building Muhammau is related to have said of Makkah, "What a splended only thou art! If I had not been driven out of thee by my tribe, I would dwell in no other place but in thee "It is not man but God who has made Makkah sacred" "My people will be always safe in this world and the next as long as they respect Makkah

(Muhkat, hook xl ch xv)

Makkah (the aucient name of which was Bakkah) is situated in about 21° % N lat., 40 20' h long, and 70 miles from the Red' Sea, in a sandy valley running north and south, and from 100 to 70 paces broad The chief part of the city is placed where the valley is widest. In the narrower part there are single rows of houses only, or detached The town itself Lovers a space of about 1,500 paces in length but the whole extent of ground comprehended under the denomination of Makkah, amounts to 8 500 paces in length The surrounding rocky hills are from 200 to 500 feet in height, barren, and destricte of trees Most of the town is situated in the valley itself, but there are some parts built or the sides of the hills The streets are in general broader than those of Ex tim cities, in the purpose of accommodating the vast number of pilgrims who re not to it. The houses are lefty and of stone and the numerous windows that face the streets give to these quite a European aspect Many of the houses are three stories high

The only public place in the body of the town is the large square of the great mosque, which is enlivened during the Hajj (Pilgrimsge) by a great number of well-stored shops The streets are all unpaved, and in summer the sand and dust are as great a nuisance as the mud is in the rainy season, during which they are scarcely passable after a storm

Makkah is badly provided with water There are a few disterns for receiving rain, and the well-water is brackish The famous well of Zamzam, in the great mosque, is indeed copious enough to supply the whole town, but the water is not well tasted. The best water is brought by an squeduct from the vicinity of Arafah, 91 or seven miles distant. There are two places in the interior of the city, where the aqueduct runs above ground, and in these parts it is let off into small channels or fountains, at which some slaves of the Sharif (the ruler of the city) are stationed to exact a toll from persons who fill their water-skins

All the houses in Makkah except those of the principal and richest inhabitants, are constructed for the accommodation of lodgers, and divided into numerous separate apartments, each consisting of a sitting-room and a small kitchen Except four or five houses belonging to the Sharif, two colleges, and the sacred mosque, Makkeh has no public edifices of any importance

The inhabitants of Makkah, with few exceptions, are Arabiane They have two kinds of employment, trade and the service of the temple During the Haji Makkah becomes one of the largest fairs in the Hast, and certainly the most interesting, from the variety of nations which frequent it. The merchants of the place make large profits during this time by their merchandise. They have also a considerable trade with the Beduna and with other parts of Arabia. The greatest profit, however, is derived from supplying food for 60,000 pilgrims and 20,000 camels. The only articles of manufacture are some pottery and beads, there are a few dyeing-houses in the city.

Makkah is governed by a Sharif, who is chosen from the Saiylds (or descendants of the Prophet) settled in the Hijaz, who were once numerous, but are now reduced to a few families in Makkah A though he obtains his office by the choice of his people, or by force, he holds his authority from the Turkish Sultan

Makkah was the seat of govern ent during the reigns of the first five Khalifahs (For an account of the sacred temple, see the article on MASSIDU L-HARAM)

MAKKAB. (From Stanley Lane-Poole's edition of Lane & " Selections")

MAKRUH (5). Let "That which is hateful and unbecoming" A term used in the religious, civil, and ceremonial law of Islam, for an act the unlawfulness of which is not absolutely certain, but which is considered improper and unbecoming

The author of the Hidayah smarks that the doctors of the Hanan sect have disagreed as to the extent to which the term can be perisosa

The Imam Muhammad is of opinion that mukrith is unlawful, but as he could not draw any convincing argument in favour of his opinion from either the Qur'an or Fraditions, he renounced the general application of "unlawfulness" with respect to such things or acts, and classed them under those which are merely improper

The Imams Abu Hanifah and Abu Yusuf hold that the term applies to that which in its qualities nearly approaches to unlawful, without it being actually so (Hidayah, vol iv p 86.)

In the Kitābu 't-Ta'rifāt, that which is makrāk is divided into makrāk takrīmī, " that which is nearly unlawful", and makrāk tanzihi, " that which approaches the lawful" In all works on Muhammadan law, a sec-

In all works on Muhammadan law, a section is devoted to the consideration of things which are held to be majerah

**AL-MALA'IKAH (**Shall) Let.

"The Angels." The title of the xxxvth Chapter of the Qur'an in the first verse of which the word occurs—"Who employeth the ungels as envoys." It is also called Signatu 'l-Fatur, the "Chapter of the Originator."

MALAK (alla) [ANGEL.]

MALAKU 'II-MAUT ("The Angel of Death" See Qur'xxxxx 11 "The angel of death why

with you shall cause you to die then ye shall be returned to your Lord " He is also called 'lere'il.

MALANG (Line) An order of Munammadan fagirs or darveshes, who are the descendants and followers of James Juts, a follower of Zindu Shah Madar They usually wear the hair of the head very full and matted and formed into a knot behind The order is a very common one in India (Herklot's Musatmans, p. 290)

AL-MÄLIK (wild) "The Possessor, lord, ruler" One of the unnety-nine names or attributes of God It frequently occurs in the Qur'an, e.g. in the first Surah, "Ruler of the Day of Judgment"

MALIK (200) Let "One in authority, a peasessor" The angel who is said to preside over hell, and superintend the terments of the damned. He is mentioned in the Qui an Sürah xhii 77 "And they shall cry out O Mahk' let the Lord make an end of us he shallsay, Verily truly here." Perhaps the same as "Molech, the fire god and tutelar, deity of the children of Ammon

MALIK (مالك) The tounder of a sect of Sunni Muslims

The Im im Abu Abdı 'llah Malik ibn Anss the founder of one of the four orthodox sects of Sunnie was norm at al-Madinal, AH 94 (AD 716) He hved in the same place and received his onliest impressions of Islam from Sahl ibn 'a'd, the almost sole survivor of the Companions of the Prophet He was considered to be the most learned man of his time and his solf denial and abstinence were such that he usually fasted four days in the week. He enjoyed the advantages of a personal acquaintance and familiar intercourse with the Imam Abu Henrish, although differmy from him on many important questions regarding the authority of the Traditions His pride, however, was at least equal to his literary endowments To proof of this, it is related of him that when the great Khalitah Harunu r Raskid came to al-Madinah to visit the tumb of the Prophet, Yalik having gone forth to meet him, the Khalifah addressed hum. O Malik ' I entreat as a favour that von will come every day to me and my two sons, Amin and Mamun and instruct us in traditional knowledge. To which the tage haughtily replied, "O Khaiifah, seience is of a dignified nature and instead of going to may person requires that all should come to it? The story further says that the sovereign, with much himility asked his parden, ac knowledged the truth of his remark, and sent both his sons to Mahk, who reated them among his other scholars without any distinc-Mon

With retail to the Traditions, his authority is generally quoted as decisive, in fact he considered them as altogether supersedure the judgment of a man, and on his death-bed severely condemned himself for the many decisions he had presumed to give on the mere suggestion of his own reason. Qur'an and the Sunnah excepted, the only atudy to which he applied himself in his latter days, was the contemplation of the Deity, and his mind was at length so much absorbed in the immensity of the Divine attributes and perfections, as to lose sight of all more maignificant objects! Hence he gradually withdrew himself from the world, became indifferent to its concerns and after some years of complete retirement, died at al-Medinah, A.H. 179 (A D 795) His authority is at present chiefly received in Barbary and the other northern states of Africa Of his works, the only one upon record is one of tradition, known as the Munatto' His principal pupil was ash-Shaff'i, who afterwards himself gave the name to a seet

MALIKU 'L-MULK (with him)' The Lord of the Kingdom' One of the unies once in the Qur'an, Sürah in 25 "Say, O God Lord of the Kingdom, Thou givest the kingdom to whomsoever Thou pleasest, and stuppest the kingdom from whomsoever Thou pleasest."

MÂL ZĀMINĪ (مال ماميي) Bail for property A legal term (Hidāyah, vol. u p 568) Bail for the person is hāzir zāmini

MAMAT (معادت) 'Death'', e g Sunah : 168 "My pravers, my saornice, my life and my death belong to God"

MAMLUK (d)), pl mamāhk "Asiave" A term used in Musim law for a bond slave the word abd signifying both "a slave 'and 'a servant of God' It occurs only once in the Qur'an, Sürah xvi 77 "God propounds a comparison between a slave (mam-luk) and the property of his master"

This word has become historic in the Maralukes, or that inlitary body of slaves who for a long time ruled Egypt These military slaves were first organised by Mälik as-Sälih, who purchased many thousands of slaves in the markets of Asia and brought them to Egypt in the 13th century They were by him embodied into a corps of 12,000 men, but in AD 1254, they revolted, and killed Turan Shah the last prince of the Alyub dynasty They then raised to the throne of Egypt al-Mu<sup>1</sup>22, who was himself a Turkoman slave. The Mamilikes continued the ruling power in Egypt till AD 1517, when Salim I defected them and put to death Tumaun Bey, the last of the Mamilikes dynasty. They were, however, maintained mysalin Egypt as a military aristoracy and were a powerful body at the time of the Fench invasion. Muhammad 'Ali Pasha of Egypt destroyed their power and influence by murdering many of them in AD 1811.

MA'MUDIYAH (August) A word used by the commentator al-Baizawi for Christian Baptism in remarking on Surah

if 182, 'the baptism of God" (Subplatu llak), he says "The Nazarones used to dip then children in yellow water, and they called it Ma'mudiyah , and they said, whoever was dipped in Ma'mudiyah was purified, and that it was a sign of his besoming a Nazarene" (See Tafsuu 'l-Barzawi, in loco)

MANARAH (8) Anglice miset From manār "a place were a fire ia behthouse, pillar, The lefty turret of a lit, lighthouse, pillar, The lofty turret of a mosque from which the Mu'azzin, or caller to prayer," invites the people to prayer the early days of Islam there were no minarets to the mosques, those at Quba' and al-Madinah being erected by 'Umar ibn 'Abdi 'I-'Aziz, AH 86 [MUSQUE.]

MANASIK (calula) From man-sik, "a place of sacrifice" Tar sacred rites and colemonies attending the pilgrimage

MANĀT (سانعه) An idol mentioned in the Quran, Surah his 19, 20 . What think ye then, of al-Lat and al-'U.za, and Manat, the third idol tosides "

According to Husain, it was an idol of the tribes of Huzail and Khaza'ah For a dis cussion of the subject, see the article on

AL-MANI' (الحانج) "The With-holder" One of the mnety-nue names or attributes of God It does not occur in the Qur'an, but is given in the Hadia

A legal MANIHAH (منيحة) term for a camel lent, with permission to use its milk, its hair, and its young but on condi-tion of returning the camel itself. Such an animal cannot be sacrificed (Mishkat, book w ch 50)

MANLA (منلا) A learned man A Muhammadan priest The Egyptian form of Munlavi or Mulla

MAN-LĀ-YASTAHZIRAHU 'L-A book (من لا بستحفرة الفقية) A book of Shi'ah traditions commiled by Saivid Razi, AH 406

MANNA Arabic nunn ( ), Hob. mān, Greek µáwa 'The giving of manna to the children of Israel is mentioned three times in the Qui'an.

Surah ii 54 "And we overshadowed them with die cloud, and sent down manna and the Sursh xx 82 'We caused the manna and the qualls to descend upon you.'

Surah vii 160 We caused clouds to overshadow them, and sent down upon them the manna and the quails"

Abdu 'I-'Aziz, in his commentary, save it was like white sugar

MANSLAUGHTER. [MURDER] MANCHISSION. 'Ita Arabic (ALLYERY.]

مسقسام) MAQAM MAHMUD "A glorious station," or (معهود place in heaven, said to he reserved for Mahammad It is mentioned in the xviith chapter of the Qur'un, verse 81, "It may be that thy Lord will raise thee to a glorious station.

Rebgious Mashma always pray that God will grant the Maqam Muhmud to their Prophet, when they hear the \zan recited [AZAN]

MAQAMUIBRAHIM (مقام أبرهيم)
The place or station of Abraham " Mentioned twice in the Qur'an.

Sürah in 91 "In t (Makkah) are evident signs, even the place of Abraham."
Sürah ii. 115 "Take ve the station of Abraham for a place of prayer"

It is a place at Makkah within the Masjid boundary, supposed to have the impression of the foot-marks of Abraham Burckhardt save this is a small building, supported by six pulars about eight feet high, four of which are surrounded from the top to bottom by a fine iron railing, while they leave the space behind the two hind pillars open Within the ruling is a frame about five feet square, terminating in a pyramidal top, and said to contain the sacred stone upon which Abraham stood when he built the Kathah

MAQSURAH (مقمورة). A closet or A place set apart in place of retirement mosques, enclosed with curtains, where de vout men recite their supererogatory prayors, and perform gikr [KIKR]

MARIYATU 'L-QIBTIYAH (᠘, ↓ MARY THE COPT والقطية

MARRIAGE The celebration of the marriage contract is called mkah (213) The festive rejoicings 'urs (عرض) Persian hadi) Marriage is enjoined upon overy Muslim, and celibacy is frequently condemned by Muhammad It is related in the Traditions that Muhammad said "When the servedt of God marries he perfects half or his religion " and that "on one occasion Muhammad asked a man if he was married, and being answered in the negative, he said, 'Art thon sound and healthy!' Upon the man teply ing that he was, Muhammad said, 'Then thou art one of the brothers of the devil'" (Mishlat, book you ch. 1) Consequently in Islam, even the ascetic orders are rather married than single

It is related that one of the Companions. named 'Usman ibn Maz'Jn, wished to lead a life of celibacy, but Muhammad forbac

The following are some of the sayings of Muhammad on the subject of marriage (see Mishkatu 'l-Musabih, book xiii ) --

"The best wedding is that upon which the least trouble and expense is bestowed"

"The worst of feasts are marriage leasts to which the mich are invited and the poor left out and he who abandons the accept tion of an invitation, then verily disobeys God and His Prophet."

" Matrimonial alliances (between two families or tribes) increase friendship more than anything else."

"Marry women who will love their husbends and be very prolific, for I wish you to be more numerous than any other people"

"When anyone demands your daughter in marriage, and you are pleased with his dis-position and his faith, then give her to him, for if you do not so, then there will be strue and contention in the world"

"A woman may be married either for her money, her reputation, her beauty, or her religion, then look out for a religious woman for if you do marry other than a religious woman, may your hands be rubbed with dirt."

"All young men who have arrived at the age of puberty should marry, for marriag He who cannot marry should prevents sins fast."

"When a Muslim marries he perfects half his religion, and he should practise absti-nence for the remaining salf"

"Beware! make not large settlements upon women, because, if great settlements were a cause of greatness in the world and of righteousness before Ged, surely it would be most proper for the Prophet of God to make them

"When any of you wishes to demand a woman in marriage, if he can arrange it, lot him see her first

"A woman ripe in years shall have her consent asked in marriage, and if the remain silent her silence is her consent, and if she refuse she shall not be married by force

"A widow shall not be married until she be consulted, nor shall a virgin be married The Compauntil her consent be asked mons said, " In what manner is the permission of a virgin? He replied "Her consent is by her allence"

"If a woman marries without the consent of her guardian her marriage is null and void, is null and void, is mull and void, then, if her marriage bath been consummated, the woman shall take her dower, if her guardians dispute about her marriage, then the king is ber guardian."

The subject of Muslim marriages will now be treated in the present article under the headings—I The Validity of Marriage II The Legal Disablities to Marriage, III. The Religious Ceremony IV The Marriage Festivities

I -The Validity of Marriage

Mushms are permitted to marry four free women, and to have as many slaves for concubines as they may have acquired. See Quran, Sürah iv 8 "Of women who seem good in your eyes, marry two, or three, or four, and if ye still fear that ye shall not act equitably, then one only, or the slaves whom ye have acquired " [wivns]

Usufructory or temporary marriages were sanctioned by the Prophet, but this law is said by the Sunnis to have been abregated. although it is allowed by the Shi'ahs, and is practised in Persua in the present day [MUTAE] These temporary marriages are undoubtedly the greatest blot in Muhammad's moral legislation, and admit of no satisfactory apology

Marriage, according to Muhammadan law, is simply a civil contract, and its validity does not depend upon any religious coremony Though the civil contract is not positively prescribed to be reduced to writing, its validity depends upon the consent of the parties, which is called jub and qubul, "declaration" and acceptance", the presence of two male witnesses (or one male and two female witnesses), and a dower of not less than ten dirhams, to be settled upon the woman The omission of the settlement does not, however, invalidate the contract, for under any circumstances, the woman becomes entitled to her dower of ten dirhams or more (A dower suitable to the position of the woman is called Muhru 'l-migl')

Liberty is allowed a woman who has reached the age of puberty, to marry or refuse to marry a particular man, independent of her guardian, who has no power to dispose of her in marriage without her consont or against her will, while the objection is reduring her infancy, to ratify or dissolve the contract immediately ou reaching her majo-When a woman, adult and same, elects to be married through an agent (wakil), she empowers him, in the presence of competent witnesses, to convey her consent to the bridegroom The agent, if a stranger, need not see her, and it is sufficient that the witnesses, who see her, satisfy him that she, expressly or supleedly, consents to the propos.tion of which he is the hearer The law respects the modesty of the sex, and allows the expression of consent on the part of the lady by indirect ways, even without words With a virgin silonce is taken as consent. and so is a smile or laugh

Mr Syed Ameer Ali says

"The validity of a marriage under the Muhammadan law depends on two conditions first, on the capacity of the parties to marry each other, secondly, on the celebration of the marriage according to the forms prescribed in the place where the marriage is celeb: ted, or whien are recognised as legal by the customary law of the Mussalmans It is a recognised principle that the capacity of each of the parties to a marriage is to be judged of by their respective lex domicids. "If they are each, whether belonging to the same country or to different countries, capable according to their lex domicilis of marriage with the other, they have the capacity required by the rule under consideration In short, as in other contracts, so in that of marriage, personal capacity must depend on the law of domicil.

"The capacity of a Mussalman domiciled in England will be regulated by the English law, but the capacity of one who is domiciled in the Beläd-ul-Islam (s.e a Muhammadan country), by the provisions of the Mussalman law is, inerefore, important to consider what the requisite conditions are to vest in an individual the capacity to enter into a valid contract of marriage As a general rule, it may he remarked, that under the Islamic law, the apacity to contract a valid marriage rests on the same basis as the capacity to enter into any other contract 'Among the conditions which are requisite for the validity of a contract of marriage (says the Fathwa-1-Alamgeri, p. 877), are understanding, puberty, and freedom, in the contracting parties, with this difference, that whilst the first requisite ie essentially necessary for the validity of the marriage, as a marriage cannot be contracted by a majmun (non compos mentes), or a boy without understanding, the other two condi-tions are required only to give operation to the contract, as the marriage contracted by a (minor) boy (possessed) of understanding is dependent for its operation on the consent of his guardian.' Puberty and discretion constitute, accordingly, the essential conditions of the capacity to enter into a valid contract of marriage A person who is an infant in the eye of the law is disqualified from entering into any legal transactions (tussarufāt-s shariyek-tasarrufat-t-shariak), and is consuquently incompetent to contract a marriage Like the English common law, however, the Muhammadan law makes a distinction ne tween a contract made by a minor posse sed of discretion or understanding and one made by a child who does not possess understanding A marriage contracted by a minor who has not arrived at the ago of discretion, or who does not possess understanding, or who cannot comprehend the consequences of the act, is a mere nullity.

"The Mohammadan law fixes no particular "The Mohammadan law hield be presumed Under the English law, however, the age of seven marks the difference between want of understanding in children and capacity to comprehend the legal effects of particular acts. The Indian Pensi Code also has fixed the age of seven as the period when the Isbility for offences should commence. It may be assumed, perhaps not without some reason, that the same principle ought to govern cases under the Muhammadan law, that is when a contract of marriage is entered into by a child under the age of seven, it will be regarded as a nullity. It is otherwise, bowever, in the case of a marriage contracted by a person of understanding. It is valid, says the Fistewa, 'though dependent for its operation on the consent of the gourdien.

"A contract entered into by a person who is insane is unit and void, unless it is made during a maid interval. A slave cannot enter into a contract of marriage without the consent of his master. The Mussaiman lawyers, therefore, add freedom (hurriget) as one of the conditions to the capacity for marriage.

"Majorsty is presumed, among the Hanalis and the Shiaha, on the completion of the fil-teenth year, in the case of both males and females, unless there is any evidence to show that puberty was attained earlier.

"Besides puberty and discretion, the capacity to marry requires that there should be no legal disability or bar to the union of the parties, that in fact they should not be within the prohibited degrees, or so related to or connected with each other as to make their union unlawful." (See Syed Ameer Ali's Personal Law of the Muhammadans, p. 216)

With regard to the consent of the woman,

Mr Syed Ameer Ali remarks —

"No contract can be said to be complete unless the contracting parties understand its nature and mutually consent to it. A contract of marriage also implies mutual consent, and when the parties see one another, and of their own accord agree to bind themselves, both having the capacity to do so, there is no doubt as to the validity of the marriage. Owing, however, to the privacy in which Eastern women generally live, and the difficulties under which they labour in the exercise of their own choice in matrimonial matters the Mohainmadan law, with somewhat wearying particularity, lays down the principle by which they may not only protect theirselves from the cupidity of their nature guardians, but may also have a certis scope in the selection of their husbands

"For example when a marriage is contracted on behalf of an adult person of either sex, it is an essential condition to its validity that such person should consent thereto, or nother words, marriage contracted without his or her authority or consent is null, by whomseever it may have been entered into

" Among the Hanafle and the Shahe, the capacity of a woman, who is adult and sane, to contract horself in marriage is absolute. The Shigh law is most explicit on this point. It expressly declares that, in the marriage of a discreet female (rashidah) who is adult, no guardian is required. The Hiddya holds the same opinion A woman (it says) who is adult and of sound mind, may be married by virtue of her own consent, although the contract may not have been made or acceded to by her guardians, and this whether she be a virgin or satbbak. Among the Shafais and the Malikis, although the consent of the adult virgin is an essential to the validity of a contract of marriage entered into on her behalf, as among the Hanafis and the Shiahe, she cannot contract herself in marriage without the intervention of a walf. (Hamilton's Hidiyah, vol 1 p. 95.)

"Among the Shafais, a woman cannot personally consent to the marriage. The presence of the walf, or guardian, is essentially necessary to give validity to the contract. The walf's intervention is required by the Shafais and the Malikis to supplement the presumed incapacity of the woman to understan the nature of the contract, to settle the terms and other matters of a similar import, and to guard the girl from being victimized by an unsurapulous adventurer, or from marrying a person morally or socially unfitted for her. It is owing to the importance and multifarrousness of the duties with which a walf is charged, that the bunni law is particular in ascertaining the order in which the right of guardianship is possessed by the different individuals who may be entitled to The schools are not in accord with reference to the order The Hanafis entrust the office first to the agnates in the order of suc cession, then to the mother, the sister, the relatives on the mother's side, and lastly to the Kazi The Shafais adopt the following order The fatner, the father's fatner, the son (by a previous marriege), the full bro ther, the consangumous brother, the nephew, the uncle, the consin, the tutor, and lastly the Kazı, thus entirely excluding the female The Walikis relations from the uslayet agree with the Shafais in confiding the office of guardian only to men, but they adopt an They assign the order slightly different first rank to the sons of the coman (by a former marriage), the second to the fachor, and then successively to the full mather, nephew, paternal grandfather, paternal uncle, consin, manumittor, and lastly to the Kazi Among the Malikis and the Shafais, where the presence of the guardian at a mairiage is always necessary, the question has given birth to two different systems The first of these considers the guardian to derive his powers entirely from the law It conse quently meists not only on his presence at the marriage, but on his actual participation in giving the consent According to this view. not only is a marriage contracted through a more distant guardian invalid, whilst one more nearly connected is present, but the latter cannot validate a marriage contracted at the tune without his consent, by according his consent subsequently This baseh doc trine, however does not appear to be forced in any community following the Maliki or chafai tonets. The second system is dis The second system is dis metrically opposed to the first, and scems to have been enunciated by Shaikr Zind as the destrine taught by Malik According to this system the right of the guardian, though no doubt a creation of the law, is exercised only m virtue of the power or special authorisation granted by the woman for the woman once emancipated from the patric potestas is mis-tress of he own actions. She is not only entitled to consult her own interests in matrimony, but can appoint whomsoever she chooses to represent her and protect her legrunate interests. If she think the nearer guardian immically inclined towards her, she may appoint one more remote to act for her during her curriage. Under this view of the law the guardien ects as an ectorney behalf of the woman derving all his powers from his and acting solely for her lones for adopting the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of the lones of known, when he is a prisoner or has been reduced to slavery, or is absent more than ton days' journey from the place where the woman is residing, or is meane or an infant, then the welayet passes to the person next in order to him The Hanasis hold that the woman is always entitled to give her con sent without the intervention of a guardian. When a guardian is employed and found acting on her behalf, he is presumed to derive his power solely from her, so that he cannot act in any circumstances in contravention of his authority or instructions When the woman has anthorseed her guardian to marry her to a particular individual, or has con-sented to a marriage proposed to her by a specific person, the guardian has no power to marry her to another Under the Shiah law, a woman who is 'adult and discreet, herself competent to enter into a contract of marriage She requires no representative or intermediary, through whom to give her con-'If her guardians, says the Sharaya, remuse to marry her to an equal when desued by her to do so, there is no doubt that she is entitled to contract herself, even against their wish' The Shiahs agree with the Hanasis in giving to females the power of representing others in matrimonial contracts In a contract of marriage, full regard in to be paid to the words of a female who is adult and same, that is, possessed of sound understanding, she is, accordingly, not only qualified to contract herself, but also to act as the agent of another in giving ex pression either to the declaration or to the consent The Mafatsh and the Jama-ush-Shattat, also declare 'that it is not requisite that the parties through whom a contract is entered into should both be males, since with us (the Shishs) a contract made through (the agency or intermediation of) a female is valid. To recapitulate Under the Maliki To recapitulate Under the Maliki and Shafar law, the marriage of an adult girl 18 not valid unless her consent is obtained to it, but such consent must be given through a legally authorised walf, who would act as her representative Under the Hanafi and Shigh law, the woman can consent to her own marriage, either with or without a guardian or agent" (Personal Law of the Muhammadans, p 288)

/ II —The Legal Distibilities to Marriage
There are nine prohibitions to marriage, namely —

1 Censanguinity, which includes mother, grandmother, sister, niece, aunt, &c

2 Athury, which includes noother-in-law, step grandmother, daughter-in-law, step-granddaughter, &c.

3. Fosterage A man cannot marry his loster mother, nor loster aster, unless the foster brother and sister were nursed by the same mother at interests widely separated But a man may marry the mother of his loster sater, or the loster mother of his sister.

4. man may not marry his wife's aster divorced his wife's lifetame, unless she he

5 A man married to a free woman cannot marry a slave

f It is not lawful for a man to marry the write or mu"taddah of another, whether the "tddah be on account of repudiation or death. That is, he cannot marry until the expiration of the woman's "tddah, or period of probation

7 A Mushm cannot marry a polytheist, or Majūsiyah. But he may marry a Jewess, or a Christian, or a Sabean.

8 A woman is prohibited by reason of property For example, it is not lawful for a man to marry his own slave, or a woman her bondsman

9 A woman is prohibited by repudition of divorce. If a man pronounces three divorces upon a wife who is free, or two upon a slave, she is not lawful to him until she shall have been regularly esponsed by another man, who hisving duly consummated the marriage, afterwards divorces her, or dies, and her uddah from him be accomplished

Mr Syed Ameer Ah says -

"The prohibitions may be divided into four heads, viz relative or absolute, prohibitize or directory They arise in the first place from legitimate and illegitimate relationship of blood (consanguinty), secondly, from alliance or affinity (al-musaharat), thirdly, from fosterage (ar-1276), and, fourthly, from com-pletion of number (1 e four) The ancient pletion of number (i.e four) Arabs permitted the umon of step-mothers and mothers-in-law on one side, and stop-sons The Kuian and sons-in-law on the other expressly forbide this custom 'Marry not women whom your fathers nave had to wife (except what is already past), for this is an uncleanliness and abetinization, and an evil (Surah 1v 26) Then come the more definite prohibitions in the next verse 'Ye are forbidden to marry your mothers, your daughters, your sisters, and your aunts, both on the father's and on the mother saide, your brothers' daughters and your sister's daughters, your mothers who have given you suck and your foster-sisters, your wives' mothers, your daughters-in-law, born of your wives with whom yo have cohabited. Ye are also prohibited to take to wife two eisters (except what is already past), nor to marry women who are already married '(Surahıv 27)
"The prohibitions founded on consanguinty

"The prohibitions founded on consanguinty (talvimu n-nasab) are the same among the Sunus as among the Shiahs. No marriage can be contracted with the ascendants, with the descendants, with relations of the second rank, such as brothers and sisters or their descendants, with paternal and maternal uncles and aunts. Nor can a marriage be contracted with a natural offspring or his or her descendants. Among the Shiahs, marriage is forbidden for foaterage in the same order as in the case of sasab. The Sannis, however, permit marriage in spite of foaterage in the following cases. The marriage of the father of the child with the mother of his child's foater-mother, or with her daughter, the marriage of the foeter-mother with the brother of the child whom she has fostered; the marmage with the foster-mother of an uncle or aunt The relationship by fosterage arres among the Shiahs when the child has been really nourished at the breast of the fostermother Among the Sunms, it is required that the child should have been suckled at least fifteen times, or at least a day and night Among the Hanada, it is enough if it have been suckled only once. Among the Shafais it is necessary that it should have been suckled four times There is no dif ference among the Sunnis and the Shiahs regarding the prohibitions arising from alliance Under the Shinh law, a woman against whom a proceeding by laun (li'an) has taken place on the ground of her adultery, and who is thereby divorced from her hesband, cannot under any circumstance re-maily him. The Shafais and Malikis agree in this opinion with the Shiahs The Hunafis, however, allow a remarriage with a woman divorced by laan The Shighs as well as the Shafais, Malikia, and Hanbalis hold that a marriage with a weman who is already pregnant (by another) is absolutely illegal According to the Hidâya, however, it would uppear that Abu Hamfah and his disciple Muhammad were of opinion that such a marriage was allowable. The practice among the Indian Hamfie is vumble But generally speaking, such marringes are regarded with extreme disapprobation. Among the Shatais, Malikis and Hanbalis, marriages are prohibited during the state of thram (pilgrimage to Makkah), so that when a marriage is contracted by two persons, either of whom is a follower of the doctrines of the above-mentioned schools whilst on the pilgrimage, it is illegal Hanafis regard such marriages to be legal With the Shiahs, though a marriage in a state of thrâm is, in any case, illegal, the woman is not prohibited to the man always, unless he was aware of the illegality of the union All the schools probabit contemporaneous marmages with two women so related to each other that, supposing either of them to be a male a marriage between them would be illegal Blicit intercourse between a man and a woman, according to the Hanafis and Shiahs prohibits the man from marrying the woman's mother as well as her daughter The observant student of the law of the two principal sects which divide the world of Islam, cannot fail to notice the districtive peculiarity existing between them in respect to their attitude to outside people nations who adopted the Shiah doctrines never seem to have come into contact with the Christian races of the West to any marked extent, whilst their iclations with the Maro-Zorosstrians of the East were both intimate and lasting The Sunnis, on the other hand, seem always to have been more or less influonced by the Western nations In consequence of the different positions which the followers of the sects occupied towards non-Muslims, a wide divergence exists between the Shiah and Sunni schools of law regarding intermarriages between Muslims and non-Muslims. It has already been pointed out ŧ that the Kuran, for political reasons, forbade all unions between Mussalmans and idolaters It said in explicit terms, Marry not a woman of the Polytheists (Mushrikin) until she embraces Islam' But it also declared that 'such women as are muhsinas (of chaste reputation) belonging to the somptural sacts,' or believing in a revealed or moral religion.

'are lawful to Mushma'

"From these and eimilar directions, two somewhat divergent conclusions have been drawn by the lawyers of the two schools The Sunnis recognise as legal and valid a marriage contracted between a Muslim on one side, and a Hebrew or a Christian woman on They hold, however, that a marthe other riage between a Mussalman and a Magian or The Akhbari a Hindu woman is invalid Shiahs and the Mutazalas agree with the Sunni doctors The Usuli Shiahs do not recognise as legal a permanent contract of marriage between Muslims and the followers of any other croed They allow, however tem porary contracts extending over a term of years, or a certain specified period, with a Christian, Jew. of a Magnan female. Abu Hanifah permits a Mussalman to many a Sabeau woman, but Abu Yusuf and Muham mad and the other Summ Imams bold such unions illegal, "A female Muslim cannot under any circumstances marry a non-Muslim Both schools prohibit a Muhammadan from marrying an idolatrons female, or one who worships the stars or any kind of fetish whatsoever

'These prohibitions are relative in their nature and in their effect. They do not imply the absolute nullity of the marriage For example, when a Muhammadan marries a Hindu woman in a place where the laws of Islam are in torce, the marriage only is invalid, and does not affect the status of legiimacy of the offspring" (Sec Personal Law of the Muhammadans, p 220,

[II - The Religious Ceremony

The Muhammadan law appoints no specific religious ceremony, not are any religious rites necessary for the contraction of a valid marriage. Legally, a marriage contracted between two persons possessing the capacity to enter into the contract, is valid and hinding, if entered into by mutual consent in the presence And the Shi'ah law even disof witnesses penses with wrinesses

In India there is little difference between the rites that are practised at the marriage ceremonies of the Shi'ahs and Suinis

In all casee the religious ceremony is loft entirely to the discretion of the Qazī or person who performs the ceremony and consequently there is no uniformity of ritual Some Quzis merely recite the Fatthah (the first chapter of the Qur'an), and the durad, or blessing The following is the more comm in order of performing the service. The Qazi, the bridegroom, and the bride's attorney, with the witnesses, having assembled in some convenient place (but not in a mosque), arrangements are made as to the amount of dower or mahr The bridegroom then repeats after

1 The Istsghfar from God."

2 The four Quis The four chapters of the Qui'an commencing with the word " Qul" (cix, cxii, cxiii, cxiv) These chapters have nothing in them connected with the subject of marriage, and appear to be selected on account of their brevity S The Kalımah, or Creed "There is no Deity but God, and Muhammad is the Prophst of God."

4 The Sifwatu 'l-Iman. A profession of belief in God, the Angels, the Scriptures, the Prophets, the Resurrection, and the Absolute

Decree of good and evil

The Qazı then requests the bride's attorney to take the hand of the bridegroom, and to say 'buch an one's daughter, by the agoncy of her attorney and by the testimony of two witnesses, has, in your marriage with her, had such a dower settled upon her, do you consent to it?' To which the bridegroum replies, "With my whole heart and soul, to my marriage with this women, as well as to the dower already settled upon her, I consent, I consent, I consent

After this the wazi raises his hands and offers the following prayer "O great God! grant that mutual love may reign between this couple as it existed between Adam and Eve, Abiaham and barah, Joseph and Zalikha, Moses and Zipporah, his highness Muhammad and Avishah, and his highness 'All al-

Murtasa and Fatunatu 'z-Zahra."

The conemony being over, the bridegroom embraces his friends and receives their cengratulations

Locording to the Darra'l-Mukhtar, p 196, and all schools of Muslim law, the bridegroom is entitled to see his wife before the marriage, but Eastern customs very rarely allow the exercise of this right and the husband, generally speaking, sees his wife for the first time when leading her to the nuptial chamber

IV -The Marriage Festivities

Nikah is preceded and followed by festive rejoiongs which have been variously described by Oriental travellers, but they are not parts of either the civil or religious cere monies

The following account of a shadi or wedding in Hrudustan is abridged (with some correction) from Mrs. Meer Hasan All's

Musalmans of India

The marriage ceremony usually occupies three days and three nights. The day being fixed, the mether of the bride actively employs the intervening time in finishing her preparations for the young lady's departure from the paternal roof with suitable articles, which might prove the bride was not sent forth to her new family without proper provision A silver-gilt bedstead with the necessary furniture, a silver pawn-dân, shaped very like an Esglish spice-box, a chillumchi or wash-hand basin, a lots or water-jug, resembling an old-fashloned coffee-pot, a solver luggun, or spittoon, a sural, or water-bottle, solver hasins for water several dosens of copper pots, plates, and spoons for cooking, dishes: plates and platters in endless variety; and numerous other articles needful for housekeeping, including a looking-glass for the bride's toolette, masnads, enshions, and sagnets.

oarpets, On the first day the ladies' apartments of both houses are completely filled with visi-tors of all grades, from the wives and mothers of noblemen, down to the humblest acquamtance of the family, and to do honour to the hostess, the guests appear in their best attire and most valuable urnaments. The poor bride is kept in strict confinement in a dark closet or room during the whole three days' merriment, whilst the happy bridegroom is the most prominent person in the assembly of the males, where amusements are contrived to please and divert him, the whole arty vying in personal attentions to him, The ladies are occupied in conversations and merriment, and amused with native songs, and music of the domnis, smoking the huggs, eating pawn, dinner, &o Company is their delight and time passes pleasantly with them in such an assembly

The second day is one of bustle and preparation in the bride's home, it is spent in arranging the various articles that are to accompany the bride's mayuda or hinna" (the Lawsonia incruis), which is forwarded in the evening to the bridegrouin's house with great The herb maynds or kinna is in Darade general request amongst the natives of India, for the purpose of dveing the hands and fost, and is considered by them an indispensable article to their comtort, keeping those members cool, and a great ornament to the person. Long established custom obliges the bride to send mayndi on the second night of the nuntials to the bridegroom, and to make the eveni more conspicuous, presente proportioned to the means of the party accompany the trays of prepared maynd:

The female friends of the bride's family attend the procession in covered conveyances, and the male guests on horses, elephants, and in palkies, trains of servants and bands of inusic swell the procession (amongst persons of distinction) to a magnitude inconcervable to those who have not visited the large native cities of India.

Amongst the bride's presents with mayndimay be noticed everything requisite for a full-dress suit for the bridegroom, and the etoetras of his toilette, confectionary, dried fruits, preserves, the prepared pawns, and a multitude of trifles too tedious to enumerate but which are nevertheless esteemed luxuries with the native young people, and are considered essential to the occasion. One thing I must not omit, the sugar candy, which forms the source of sinusement when the bridegroom is under the dominion of the females in his mother', zanānah. The fileworks sent with the presents are concealed in flowers formed of the transparent uberuck, these flowers are set out in frames, and represent beds of flowers in their varied forms and colours; these is their number and gay appearance have a pretty effect in the procession, interspersed with the trays containing the drasses, dec. All the trays are first covered with basketwork raised in domes, and over these are thrown draperies of broadoloth, gold cloth, and brocade, neatly fringed in bright colours,

The mayadi procession having reached the bridegroom's house, bustle and excitement pervade through every department of the mansion. The gentlemen are introduced to the father's hall, the ladies to the youth's mother, who in all possible state is prepared to receive the bride's friends.

The ladies crowd into the centre hall to witness, through the blinds of bamboo, the important process, of dressing the brider com in his bride's presents The centre purdah is let down, in which are openings to admit the hands and feet and close to this purdak a low stool is placed. When all these preliminary preparations are made, and the ladies securely under cover, notice is sent to the maje assembly that "the bridegroom is wanted"; and he then enters the zanānah courtyard, anidet the deafening sounds of trumpets and drums from without, and a serenade from the female singers within He seats hunself on the stool placed for him store to the purcha, and obeys the several commands he receives from the hidden females, with childlike docility. The moist mayndi is then tied on with bandages by hands he cannot see and, if time admits one hoze is require to the the dye bright and permanent on the hands and feet this delay, the hour is passed in lively dia logues with the several purdahed dames, who have-all the advantages of seeing though themselves unseen, the singers occasionally lauding his praise in extempore strains after describing the lovelihess of his bride (whom they know nothing about) and foretelling the happiness which awaits him in his marriage, out which, in the lottery, may perhaps prove a blank The sugar-candy, broken into small lumps, is presented by the ladies whilst his hands and feet are fast bound in the bandages of maymin, but as he cannot help himself, and it is an omen of good to eat the bride's sweets at this ceromony, they are sure he will try to catch the morsels which they present to his mouth and then draw back, teasing the vouth with their benterings, until at last he may successfully enap at the candy, and seize the fingers also with the dainty, to the general amusement of the whole party and the y uth's enture satisfaction

The magnetis supposed to have done its duty the bandages are removed, the old nurse of his infency (always retained for life), assists him with water to wash off the leaves; dries his feet and hands, rubs him with perfumes and robes him in his bride's presents. Thus attired, he takes leave of his tormentors, sends respectful messages to his bride's family, and bows his way from their guardianship to the male apartment, where he is greeted by a flourish of trumpets and the congratulations of the guests, many of whom make him presents and embrace him cordially

The dinner is introduced at twelve, amongst the bridegroom's guests, and the night passed in good-humonred convivality, although the strongest beverage at the feast convists of sugar and water sherbet. The dancingwomen's performances, the displays of fireworks, the dinner, pawn, and huqqah, form the chief amusements of the night, and they break up only when the dawn of morning approaches approaches

The bride's female friends take sherbet and pawn after the bridegroom's departure from thozanānnh, after which they hasten away to the bride's assembly, to detail the whole business of their mission

REINGING HOME THE BRIDE IN AFGHANISTAN (A F Hole)

The third day, the eventful bacat, arrives to awaken in the heart of a tender mother all the good feelings of fond affection, sho is, perhaps, about to part with the great schee of her life under many domestic trials at any late, she transfers her beloved child to another protection. All marriages are not equally happy in their termination, it is a lottery, a fate, in the good mother's calculation. Her da ling child may be the favoured of Braven, for which she prays, she may be however the miserable first wife of a licenticus plurakst nothing is certain, but she will strive to trust in God's mercy, that the event prove a happy one to her dearly-loved gul

The young bride is in close confinement during the days of celebrating her nuptials, on the third, she is tormented with the preparations for her departure. The saugad must be applied to her hands and feet, the formidable operations of bathing, drying her hair, osling and dressing her head, dyeing her lips, gams, and teeth with antimony, fixing on her the wedding ornaments, the nose-ring pre-sented by her husband's family, the many rings to be placed on her fingers and toes, the rings fixed in her ears, are all so many new trials to her, which though a complication of meouvemence she cannot venture to murmur at, and therefore submits to with the passive weakness of a lamb

Towards the close of the evening, all these preparations being fulfilled, the marriage portion is set in order to accompany the bride The gueste make their own ainusements for the day the mother is too much occupied with her daughter's affairs to give much of her time or attention to them, nor do they expect it, for they all know by experience the nature of a mother's duties at such an interesting period

The bridegrooms house is mostly in the same state of bustle as the bride's, though of a very different description, as the preparing for the reception of a bride is an event of vast importance in the opinion of a Missiman The gentlemen assemble in the evening, and are regaled with sherbet and the huggah, and entertained with the nauch-singing and fireworks until the appointed hour for setting out in the procession to fetch the bride to her new home

The procession is on a grand scale every friend or acquaintance together with their elephants, are pressed into the service of the bridegroom on this aight of Barat The young men himself is mounted on a handsome charger the legs, tail, and mane of which are dyed with mayndi, whilst the ornamental formiture of the horse is splended with span-gles and embroidery. The dress of the bride-groom is of gold cloth, richly trimmed, with a turben to correspond to the top of which is fastened an immense bunch of silver trim ming, that falls over his face to his waist, and answers the purpose of a veil (this is in strict keeping with the Hindu custom at their marriage processions) A select few of the females from the bridegrooms house attend in his train to bring home the bride, accompanied by innumerable torches, with bands of music, soldiers, and servants, to give effect to the procession On their arrival at the gate of the bride's residence, the gentlemen are introduced to the father's apartments, where fire-works, music, and singing, occupy them time and attention until the hour for departure arrives.

The marriage ceremony is performed in the presence of witnesses, although the bride is not seen by any of the males at the time, not even by her husband, until they have been I wfully umted according to the common form.

The Maulawi commences by calling on the young maiden by name, to answer to his demand, 'Is it by your own consent this marriage takes place with ___?" naming the person who is the bridegroom, the bride answers, "It is by my consent." The Maulawi then explains the law of Muhammad, and reads a certain chapter from that portion of the Qur'an which binds the parties in hely wedlook. He then turns to the young man, and asks him to name the sum he proposes as his wife's dowry The bridegroom thus called upon, names ten, twenty, or, perhaps, a hundred lacs of rupees, the Maulawi repeats to all present the amount proposed, and then prays that the young couple thus united may be blessed in this world and in eternity All the gentlemen then retire except the bridegroom, who is delayed entering the hall until the harde's guests have retreated into the side rooms as soon as this is accomplished he is introduced into the presence of his motherin law and her daughter by the women servants He studionsly avoids looking up as he enters the hall, because, according to the custom of this people, he must first see his wife's face in a looking-glass, which is placed before the young couple, when he is seated on the masned by his bride Happy for him if he then beholds a face that bespeaks the gentle being he hopes Fate has destined to make him happy if otherwise, he must submake hun happy mit there is no untying the sacred contract

Many absurd customs follow-this first introduction of the bride and bridegroom When the procession is all formed, the goods and cauttels of the bride are loaded on the heads of the carriers, the hindegroom conveys his young wife in his arms to the covered palankeen, which is in readiness within the court, and the procession moves off in grand style, with a perpetual din of noisy minsic, until they arrive at the bride-

groom's managen

The poor mother has, porhaps, had many struggles with her own heart to save her daughter's feebugs during the preparation for departure, but when the separation takes place, the scene is affecting beyond descrip tion I never witnessed anything equal to it in other societies, indeed, so powerfully are the feelings of the mother excited, that she arely acquires her usual composure until her daughter is allowed to revisit her, which is generally within a week after hor marriage (See Mrs Meer Hasan Ali's Indian Musalmans, vol 1 p 46)

The above description of a wedding in India has been selected as representative of such coremonies; but there is no uniform custom of celebrating Muslim nuprials, the nuprial ceremonies in Afghanistan being much more simple in their character, as will be seen by the illustration given on the preceding page Mr Lane, in his Modern Egyptians, gives the following interesting account of a wedding in Egypt'-"Marriages in Carro are generally conducted, in the case of a virgin, in the following manner but in that of a widow or a divorced woman, with little ceremony Most commonly, the mother or some other near female relation, of the youth or man who is desirons of obtaining a wife, describes to him the personal and other qualifications of the young women with whom she is acquainted, and directs his choice, or he employs a 'khat'beh,' or 'khatibeh' (khātibah), a woman whose regular business it is to assist men in such eases. Sometimes two or more namen of this profession are employed. A suitable gives her report confidentially, describing one girl as being like a gazelle, pretty and elegant and young, and another as not pretty, but rich and so forth If the man have a mother and other near female relations, two or three of these wanally go with a khat'beh to pay visits to several harcoms, to which she has access in her professional character of a match maker, for she is employed as much by the women as the men She sometimes also, exercises the trade of a 'dellaleh' for broker' for the sale of ornamients, cloting, &c, which procures her admission into almost every harsen. The women woh accompany her in search of a wife for their relation, a e intro duced to the different harsems marely 68 ordinary visitors, and as such, if disappoints t they som take their bave, though the object of their visit is, of course well understood by the order party, but if they find among the females of a family and they are sure to see all who are muritageable a girl or young woman having the necessary personal qualifications, they state the motives of their visit, and ask, if the proposed match be not at once disapproved of what property, ornaments, &c, the objects of their wishes may possess If the "father of the intended bride be dead, she may p whap possous oneor more houses shops, &c and, in almost every case a marriageable girl of the middle or higher make has a set of ornaments of gold and jewels The women visitors having and ed these and other questions, bring their report to the expectant youth or man If satisfied with their report, he gives a present to the khat'beli and sonds her again to the family of his intended wife, to make known to them his wishes She generally gives an exaggerated description of his personal attractions, wealth, &c instance, she will say of a very ordinary young man, of scarcely any property, and of whose disposition she knows nothing 'My daughter, the youth who wishes to marry you is young, graceful, elegant, board-less, has plenty of money, dresses hand-somely, is fond of delioacies, but oannot enjoy his luxuries alone, he wants you as his companion, he will give you everything that money can procure, he is a stayor at home, and will spend his whele time with you, oaressing and fondling you."

"The parents may betroth their daughter

"The parents may betroth their daughter to whom they please, and marry her to him without her consent, if she be not arrived at the age of puberty, but after she has attained that age, she may shoose a husband for herself, and appoint any man to arrange end effect her marriage. In the follower case how ever, the khat'beh and the relations of a girl sought in marriage usually endeavour to obtain her consent to the proposed union. Very often a father objects to giving a daughter in marriage to a man who is not of the same profession or trade as humself, and to marrying a younger daughter before an elder? The bridegroom can scarcely ever obtain even a surrepititious glance at the features of his bride, until he finds her in his absolute possession, unless she belong to the lower classes of society, in which case it a easy enough for him to see her face.

"When a female is about to marry, she should have a "wekeel" (wakil, or deputy) to settle the compact and conclude the contract, for her, with her proposed husband. If she be under the ago of puberty, this is absolutely necessary, and in this case, her father if living, or (if he be dead) her, nearest adult male relation, or a guardian appointed by will, or by the Kadee, performs the office of wekeel, but if she be of age, she appoints her own wekeel or may even make the contract herself, though this is selden done

"After a youth or mun has made choice of a female to demand in marriage, on the report of his female relations, or that of the khat' be and, by proxy, made the preliminary nerangements before described with her and her relations in the harcom, he repairs with two or three of his friends to her wekeel. Having obtained the wekeel's consent to the union, if the intended bride be under age, he asks what is the amount of the required mahr (or dowry)

"The giving of a dowry is indispensable. The usual amount of the dowry, if the parties be in possession of a mederately good income is about a thousand rivals for twenty-two pounds ten shillings), or, sometimes, nor more than half that sum. The wealthy calculate the downy in purses, of five hundred plasters (about five pounds sterling) each, and fix its amount at ten purses or more.

"It must be borne in mild that we are con sidering the case of a virgin bride, the dowry of a widow or divorced woman is much less In settling the amount of the dowry, as in other pecumary transactions, a little haggling frequently takes place, if a thousand rivals be demanded through the wekeel, the party of the intended bridegroom will probably make an offer of six hundred, the former party then gradually lowering the demand, and the other increasing the offer, they at length agree to fix it at eight hundred. It is generally cupulated that two-thirds of the dowry shall be paid immediately before the marriage-contract is made, and 'he remaining third held in reserve, to be paid to the wife in case of divorcing her against her own consent, or in case of the hueband's death.

"This affair being settled, and confirmed by all persons present reciting the opening chapter of the Kuran (the Fat'hah), an early day (perhaps the day next following) is appointed for paying the money, and performing the ceremony of the marriage-contract, which is properly called 'akd en-nikah' ('aqdu' 'a-nikāh). The making this contract is commonly called ketb el-kitáb '(katbu' l-kitāb, or the writing of the writ), but it is very seldom the case that any document is written to confirm the marriage, unless the bridegroum is about to travel to another place, and fears that he may have occasion to prove his marriage where witnesses of the contract cannot be procured. Sometimes the marriage-contract is concluded immediately after the arrangement respecting the dewry, but more generally a day or two after

"On the day appointed for this ceremony, the bridegroom, again accompanied by two or three of his friends, goes to the house of his bride, usually about noon, taking with him that portion of the dowry which he has promised to pay on this occasion. He and his companions are received by the bride's wekeel, and two or more friends of the latter are usually present. It is necessary that there be two witnesses (and those must be Muslims) to the marriage-contract, unless in a situation where witnesses cannot be pro-cured. All persons present recite the Fat'-hah, and the bridegroom then pays the money After this, the marriage-contract is performed. It is very simple. The bride-groom and the bride's wekeel sit upon the ground, face to face, with one knee upon the ground, and grasp each other's right hand, raising the thumbs, and pressing them against each other A 'fekeeh' (faqih) is generally employed to metruct them what they are to say Raving placed a handkershief over their joined hands, he usually prefaces the words of the contract with a khutbeh (khutbah), consisting of a few words of exhortation and prayer, with quotations from the Kuran and Traditions, on the excellence and advantages of marriage He then desires the bride's wekeel to say, 'I betroth (or marry) to thee my daughter (or the female who has appointed me her wekeel), such a one (naming the bride), the virgin [or the adult], for a dowry of such an amount." (The words 'for a dowry, &c, are sometimes omitted) The bride's wekeel having eard this, the bridegroom says, 'I accept from thee her betrothal [or marriage] to myself, and take her under my care, and myself to afford her my protection, and ye who are present bear witness of this. The wekeel addresses the bridegroom in the same manner a second and a third time, and each time, the latter replies as before Both then gensrally add, 'And blessing be on the Apostles and praise be to God, the Lord of the beings of the whole world Amen.' After which all present again repeat the Fat'hah It is not always the came form of khutbeh that is recited on these occasions, any form may be used, and it may be repeated by any person, it is not even necessary, and is often altogether

"The contract concluded, the bridegroom sometimes (but seldom, unless he be a person of the lower orders) kisses the hands of his friende and others there present, and they are presented with sharbat, and generally remain to dinner Each of them receives an embroidered handkerehief, provided by the family of the bride, except the fekeeh, who receives a similar handkerchief, with a small gold coin tied up in it, from the bridegroom. Before the persons assembled on this occasion disperse, they settle when the 'leylet ed-dakhieh' is to be This is the night when the bride is brought to the house of the bridegroom, and the latter, for the first time, visits her

"The bridegroom should receive his bride on the eve of Friday, or that of Monday, but the former is generally esteemed the more fortunate period. Let us say, for instance, that the bride is to be conducted to him on the eve of Friday

"During two or three or more preceding nights, the street or quarter in which the bridegroom lives is illuminated with chandellers and lanterns, or with lanterns and small lamps, some suspended from cords drawn across from the bridegroom's and several other houses on each side to the houses opposite, and several small silk flags, each of two colours, generally red and green, are attached to these or other cords

"An entertainment is also given on each of these nights, particularly on the last night before that on which the wedding is concluded, at the bridegroom's house. On these cocasions, it is customary for the persons invited, and for all infimate friends, to send prosents to his house, a day or two before the feast which they purpose or expect to attend. They generally send sugar, coffee, rice, was candles, or a lamb. The former articles are causely placed upon a tray of copper or wood, and covered with a silk or embroidered kerchief. The guests are entertained on these occasions by musicians and male or female singers, by dancing girls, or by the performance of a 'khatmeh' (khatmah), or a 'zikr' (zitr')

"The oustoms which I am now about to describe are observed by those classes that compose the main bulk of the population of

Carro

"On the preceding Wednesday (or on the Saturday if the wedding be to conclude on the eve of Monday), at about the hour of noon, or a little later, the bride goes in state to the bath. The procession to the bath is called 'Zeffet el-Hammam'. It is headed by a party of musicians, with a hautboy er two, and drums of different kinds. Sometimes at the head of the bride's party, are two men, who carry the utensils and linen used in the bath, upon two round trays, each of which is covered with an embroidered or a plam silk karchief; also a sakka (sagga) who gives water to any of the passengers, if asked, and two other persons, one of whom bears a 'kamkam,' or bottle, of plain or gilt silver, or of china, containing rose-water, or orange-flower water, which he cocasionally aprinkles on the passengers, and the other, a 'mibkharsh' (or perfuming vessel) of silver, with aloes-wood, or some other adoriferous substance, burning in it, but it is seldom that the procession is thus attended. In general, the first persons emong the bride's party are several of her married female relations and friends, walking in pairs, and next, a number of young virgins. The former are dressed in the usual manner, covered with the black silk habarah, the latter have white slik habarahs, or shawis Then follows the bride, waiking under a canopy of silk, of some gay colour, as pink, rose-colour, or yellow, or of two colours, composing wide stripes, often rose-colour and yellow. It is carried by four men, by means of a pole at each corner and is open only in front, and at the top of each of the four poles is attached an embroidered handkerchief

A BRIDAL PROCESSION IN CALEO (From Lane's " Egyptians")

"The dress of the bride, during this pro

red kushmere shawl or with a white or velicw shawl, though rarely Upon her head 18 placed a small pasteboard cap, or crown other ornaments), generally of diamonds and emeralds, attached to that part of the shawl which covers her forehead.

"She is accompanied by two or three of her female relations within the canopy, and often, when in hot weather, a woman, walking backwards before her, is constantly employed in faming her, with a large fan of black estrich-feathers, the lower part of the front of which is usually enamented with a piece of looking-glass. Sometimes cae zeffeh, with a single canopy, serves for two brides, who walk side by side. The procession moves very slowly, and generally pursues a circuitous route, for the sake of greater display. On leaving the house, it turns to the right. It is closed by a second party of musicians similar to the first, or by two or three drummers.

"In the brids processions of the lower orders, which are often conducted in the same manner as that above described, the women of the party frequently utter, at intervals, those shrill cries of joy called 'anghareet' and females of the poorer classes when merely spectators of a zeffeh, often de the same. The whole bath is sometimes hired for the bride and her party exclusively

"They pass several hours, or seldom less than two, occupied in washing, sporting, and feasting, and frequently 's'mehs,' or female singers, are hired to amuse them in the bath, they then return in the same order in which they came

"The expense of the zeffeh falls on the relations of the bride, but the feast that follows

it is supplied by the bridegroom

"Having returned from the bath to the house of her family, the bride and her com panions sup together. If 'almehe have contributed to the festivity in the bath they, alse, return with the bride, to renew their concert Cheir songs are always on the sub jest of love, and of the joyous event which occasions their presence. After the company occasions their presence have been thus entertained a large quant of henna having been prepared, mused 12to a paste, the bride takes a lump of it in her hand and receives contributions (called un keot ) from her guests, each of them sticks a coin (usually of gold) in the heuna which she holds upon her hand, and when the lump is closely stock with these onus, she scrapes it of her hand upon the edge of a basin of water Having collected in this manner from all her guests, some more henna is applied to her hands and feet, which are then bound with pieces of linen, and in this state they remain until the next morning, when they are found to be sufficiently dyed with its deep orange red tint. Her guests make use of the remainder of the dye for their own hands This night is called 'Leylet el-Henns,' or, the Night of the Henna.

"It is on this night, and sometimes also during the latter half of the preceding day, that the bridegroom gives his chief entertain ment

" Mohabbanean' (or lew farce-players) often perform on this occasion before the house, or, if it be large enough, in the court. The other and more common performances by which the guests are amused, have been before mentioned.

"On the following day, the bride goes in procession to the house of the bridegroom. The procession before described is called 'the seffeh of the bath,' to distinguish it from this, which is the more important, and which is therefore particularly called 'Zeffet al-'Arcosch,' or 'the Zeffeh of the Bride' In some cases, to diminish the expenses of the marriage ceremonies, the bride is conducted privately to the bath, and only honoured with a zeffeh to the bridegraom's house. Thus procession is exactly similar to the former. The bride and her party, after breakfasting together, generally set out a little after midday.

"They preceed in the same order and at the same slow pace, as in the zeffen of the bath, and if the house of the bridegroom is near they follow a circuitous route, through several principal streets, for the sake of display. The ceremony usually occupies three or more hours

"Sometimes, before bridal processions of this kind, two swordsmen, olad in nothing but then drawers, engage each other in a mook combat, or two peasants oudgel each other with nebboots or long staves. In the procession of a bride of a wealthy family, any person who has the art of performing some extraordinary feat to amuse the spectators is almost sure of being a welcome assistant, and of receiving a handsome present. When the Seyyid Omar, the Nakeel el-Ashraf (or chief of the descendants of the Prophet) who was the main instrument of advancing Mohammad Ales to the dignity of Basha of Egypt marties a daugnter about forty-tive years smce there walked before the procession a young man who had made an incision in his abdo men, and drawr out a large portion of his intestines, which he carrido before him on a silver tray After the procession he restored them to their proper place, and remained in bed many days before he recovered from the effects of this foolish and disgusting act Another man, on the same occasion, ran a swere fhrough his arm, before the crewding spectators, and then bound over the wound. without withdrawing the sword, several handkerchiefs, which were soaked with the blood. These facts were described to me by an eyewitness A spectacle of a more singular and more disgusting nature used to be not uncommon on similar occasions, but is now very seldon witnessed. Sometimes, also, 'hawees' (or conjurors and sleight-of hand performers) exhibit a variety of tricks on these occasions But the most common of all the performances here mentioned are the mock fights Similar exhibitions are also sometimes witnessed on the occasion of a circumcision Grand zeffehs are sometimes accompanied by a numbers of cars, each hearing a group of persons of some manufacture or trade, performing the usual work of their oraft, even such as builders, whitewashers, &c., moluding members of all, or aimost all, the arts and manufactures practised in the metropolis In one car there are generally some men making coffee, which they occasionally present to spectators, in another, instrumental musicians, and in another, 'al'mehs (or female

"The bride, in zeffebs of this kind, is sometimes conveyed in a close European carriage, but more frequently, she and her female rela tions and friends are mounted on high-saddled asses, and, with musicians and female singers, before and helind them, close the proces-

"The bride and ner party, having arrived at the bridegroom's house, sit down to a repast. Her friends shortly after take their departure, leaving with her only her mother and sister, or other near female relations, and one or two other wemen, usually the bollaneh The ensuing night is called 'Leylet ed-Dakhleh,' or 'the Night of the Entrance'

"The bridegroom sits below Before sunset he goes to the bath, and there changes his clothes, or he merely does the latter at home, and, after having supped with a party of his friends, waits till a little before the night prayer, or until the third or fourth hour of the night, when, according to general custom, he should repair to some celebrated mosque, and there say his prayers If young, he is generally honoured with a zeffeh on this occasion In this case he goes to the mosque preceded by musicians with drums and a hauthoy or two, and accompanied by a numher of friends, and by several men bearing mashals' (mashals). The mashals are a kind of cresset, that is, a staff with a cylindrical frame of iron at the top, filled with fiaming wood, or having two, three, four, or five of these reseptacles for fire The party usually proceeds to the mosque with a quick pace, and without much order A second group of musicians, with the same instruments, or with drums only, closes the procession

"The bridegroom is generally dressed in a kuftan with red stripes, and a red gibbeh, with a kashmere shaw, of the same colour for his turban, and walks between two friends similarly dressed The prayers are commonly performed merely as a matter of ceremony, and it is frequently the case that the bridegroom does not pray at all, or prays without having previously performed the wudoo, like memlooks, who say their prayers only because The procession rethey fear their master turns from the mosque with more order and display, and very slowly, perhaps because it would be considered unbecoming in the bridegroom to hasten home to take possession of his bride It is headed, as before, by musi-ciave, and two or more bearers of mashals These are generally followed by two men. bearing, by means of a pole resting horizontally upon their shoulders, a hanging frame. to which are attached about sixty or more small lamps, in four oircles one above another, the uppermost of which circles is made to revolve, being turned round occasionally by one of the two bearers. These numerous lamps, and several mashals besides those before mentioned, brilliantly illumine the streets through which the procession passes, and produce a remarkably picturesque effect. The bridgeroom and his friends and other attendants follow, advancing in the form of an oblong ring, all facing the interior of the ring, and each bearing in his hand one or more wax candles, and sometimes a spring of henns or some other flower, except the bridegroom and the friend on either side of him These three form the latter part of the ring, which generally consists of twenty or more persone

" At frequent intervals, the party stops for a few minntes, and during each of the pauses, a boy or a man, one of the persons who compose the ring, sings a few words of an epitha-The sounds of the drums, and the lamium shrill notes of the hantboy (which the bride hears half an hour or more before the procession arrives at the house), cease during these The train is closed, as in the former case (when on the way to the mosque) by a second group of musicians

"In the manner above described, the hridegroom's zefich is most commonly conducted, but there is another mode that is more respeciable, called 'zeffeh sadatee,' which signifies the 'gentlemen's zeffeh' In this, the bridegroom is accompanied by his friends in the manner described above, and attended and preceded by mon bearing machals, but not by musicians, in the place of these are about six or eight men, who, from their being employed as singers on occasions of this kind. are called 'wilnd el-layalee,' or 'sons of the Thus attended, he goes to the nights' mosque, and while he returns slowly thence to his house, the singers above mentioned chant, or rather sing, 'maweshshahs' (lyric odes) in praise of the Prophet Having returned to the house, these same persons chant portions of the Kuran, one after another, for the amusement of the guests, then, all togother, recite the opening chapter (the Fathah), after which, one of them sings a 'kaseedch' (or short poem), in prace of the Prophet lastly, all of them again sing muweekshahs After having thus performed, they receive 'nukoot' (or centributions of money) from the bridegi com and his friends

"Soon after his return from the mosque, the bridegroom leaves his friends in a lower apartment, enjoying their pipes and coffee and sharbat The bride's mother and eister, or whatever other female relations were left with her, are above, and the bride herself and the belianch, in a separate apartment the bridegroom is a youth or young man, it is considered proper that he as well as the bride should exhibit some degree of hashful-ness, one of his friends, therefore, carries him a part of the way up to the hareem Sometimes, when the parties are persons of wealth, the bride is displayed before the bridegroom in different dresses, to the number of seven, but generally he finds her with the belianeh alone and on entering the apartment he gives a present to thus attendant, and she at once retires

"The bride has a shawl thrown over her head, and the bridegroom must give her a mesent of money, which is called 'the price of the uncovering' of the face, before he attempts to remove this, which she does not allow him to do without some apparent reluctance, if not violent resistance, in order to show her maiden modesty. On removing the covering, he says, 'In the name of God, the Compassionate, the Merciful,' and then greets her with this compliment. 'The night be blessed,' or '____ is blessed,' to which she replies, if timidity do not choke her utterance, 'God bless thee.' The bride groom now, in most cases, sees the face of his bride for the first time, and generally finds her nearly what he has been led to expect. Often, but not always, a curious ceremony is then performed

"The bridegroom takes off every article of the bride's clothing except her shirt, seats her upon a mattress or hed, the head of which is turned towards the direction of Makkah, placing her so that her back is also turned in that direction, and draws forward and spreads upon the bed, the lower part of the front of her chirt, having done this, he stands at the distance of rather less than three feet before her, and performs the prayers of two rak'ahs, laying his head and hands in prostration upon the part of hor chirt that is extended before her lap. He remains with her but a few minutes longer Having satisfied his curlosity respecting her personal charms, he calls to the women (who generally collect at the door, where they wait in anxious suspense) to raise their cries of joy, or zaghareet, and the shrill sounds make known to the persons below and in the neighbourhood and often, responded to by other women, spread still further the news that he has acknowledged himself satisfied with his bride He soon after descends to rejoin hie friends and remains with them an hour, before he returns to his wife. It very soldom happens that the husband, if disappointed in his bride, immediately disgraces and divorces her, in general, he retains her in this case a week or more

"Marriages, among the Egyptians, are sometimes conducted without any pomp or ceremonv, even in the case of virgins, by mutuel consent of the bridegroom and the bride's family, or the brido herself, and widows and divorced women are never honoured with a zeffeh on marrying again The mere centence, 'I give myself up to thoe,' uttered by a female to a man who proposes to become her hasband (even without the presence of witnesses, if none can easily be procured), renders her his legal wife, if arrived at puberty and marriages with widows and divorced women, among the Muslime of Egypt, and other Arabs, are sometimes concluded in this simple manner The cowry of widows and divorced women is generally one quarter or third or half the amount of that of a virgin

"In Carro among persons not of the lowest order though in very humble life, the marrage coremonies are conducted in the same manner as among the middle orders. But when the expenses of such settlehs as I have described cannot by any means be paid, the bride is paraded in a very simple manner, covered with a shawl (generally red), and surrounded by a group of her female relations and friends, dressed in their best, or in borrowed clothes, and enlivened by no other sounds of joy than their zagharest, which they repeat at frequent intervals." (Laze's Modern Egyptians)

(For the law of marriage in Hanafi law, see Fatāwā-1-'langri, p 377, Fatāwā-1-Qāzı Khān, p 380, Hamilton'e Hıddyah, vol 1 p 89, Durru 'l-Mukhtār, p 196 In Shī'ah law, Jāms'u 'sh-Shattāt', Sharāt'u 'l Islām, p 260 For marriage oaremenes, Lane's Egyptians, Herklott's Musalmans Mrs Meer Linsan Ali's Musalmans, M. O de

Perceval, Hist des Arabes)

MARSIYAH (اركون) A funeral elegy Especially applied to those sung during the Muharram in commemoration of al-Hasan and al-Husain

MARTYR The Arabic word for "martyr" in the Qur'an, and in Muslim theo logy, is shahid (Δολο), pl shuhud, or shahid (Δολο), pl shuhud, or shahid (Δολο), pl shuhud, the literal meaning of which is "present as a witness". It implies all that is understood by the Greek μάρτυς, and the English martyr, but it is also a much more comprehensive term, for, according to Muhammadan law, not on'y those who die in witness of, or in defence of the faith, are martyrs, but all those who die such deaths as are calculated to excite the compassion and pity of their fellow men

The word coours in the Qur'an, Surak iv 71 "Whoso obeys God and the Apoetle, these are with those with whom God has been well pleased—with prophets (nabiyin), and confessors (siddigin), and martyrs (shuhadā'), and the nighteous (sālihīn) a fair company are they

A perfect marty, or ash-shahudu 'l-kānal, is one who has either been slain in a religious war, or who has been killed unjustly. But the schools of divinity are not agreed as to whether it is necessary, or not, that such per sons should be in a state of ceremonial purity at the time of their death, to entitle them to such a high rank

A special blessing is promised to those who die in a jihād, or religious war, see Qur'an, Sūrah in 163 "Count not those who are killed in the way of God as dead, but living with their Lord" And according to Muslim law, all persons who have died in defence of the faith, or have been slain unjustly, are entitled to Muslim burial without the usual ablution or any change of clothes, such as are necessary in the case of ordinary persons, the rank of martyrdom being such as to render the corpse legally pure

But in addition to these two classes of persons, namely those who are slain in religious war, and those who have been killed unjustly, the rank of shahid is given, in a figurative sense, to any who die in such a manner as to excite the sympathy and pity of mankind, such as by sudden death, or from some malignant disease, or in childburth, or in the acquirement of knowledge, or a stranger in a foreign country, or dving on Thursday night. These persons are entitled to the rank of martyr, but not to the honour of being buried without legal washing and purification.

(See Raddy 'l-Muhtar, vol. 1 y 952, Kash-shaf Ispilahatu V-Funan, vol. 1 p 147, Ghryanu 'l-Lughah in loco)

MARUT (ماروت) [HARUT.]

MARWAH (8,70) A hill near Makkah connected with the riter of the pilgrimage According to Burton, it means "hard white flints, full of the" [HAJS]

MARYAM (سريم) MARE

MARY THE VIRGIN Arabic Her Dili. Тре Maryam (سريم) According to Muhammamother of Jesus den tradition, and the Qur'an, she was the daughter of 'Imran and his wife Hannah, and the mater of Agron.

The account of her birth as given in the Qur un 16 10 Sürah au. 81 -

"Remember whou the wife of Imran said, Omy Lord! I vow to Thee what is in my womb, for the special service Accept it from me, for Thou Heatest, Knowest! when she had given birth to it she said, O my Lord! Verily I have brought forth a female, -God knew what she had brought forth a male is not as a female - and I have named her Mary, and I take refrge with Thee for her and for her offspring, from Satan the stoned. So with goodly acceptance did her Lord scrept her, and with goodly growth did he make her grow Zacharias reared hor So oft as Zacharias went in to Mary at the senctuary, he found her supplied with food Oh Mary" and he 'whence nest thou this?' She sud, It is from God, for God suppliests whom He will, without reckoning!

In Surah xix 28, is the story of her giving birth to Jesus [JESUS CHRIST] And when she brought the child to the people, they ex-claimed, "O sister of Asron! Thy father was not a bad man, nor was the mother a harlot

Ohristian critics have assumed and not without much reason, that Muhammad has confused the Mary of the New Testament with the Miriam of the Old, by representing her as the daughter of 'Imren and the sister of Aaron. It is certainly a cause of some perplexity to the commentators Al-Baizāwi says she was called " sister of Aaron" because she was of the Levitical race, but Husain says that the Aaron mentioned in the verse is not the same person as the brother of Moses Muhammad is related to have said that " no child is born but the devil Lach touched it, except Mary and her son Jesus"

MARY THE COPT Arabic Marıyatu 'l-Qıbtiyah (ماريه القبطية) concubine of Muhammad's, and the mother of his son Ibrahim, who died in infancy. She was a Christian slave girl presented to Muhammad by the Roman governor of Egypt. [MUHAMMAD]

MASAH (----) The act of touching the boots or the surban for purification, by drawing the three central fingers over the boot or turban at once, whereby they become ceremonially clean (Mishkai, book li ch. vn , book m ch x.)

AL-MASANI (المثانى). From Magna, " two-and-two " A title given to the Qur'an on account of its numerous repetitions

AL-MASIH (المسيح) An evident corruption of the Heb Typ, which answers to the Xpioro's of the New Testament, and our English Christ. It occurs seven times in the Qur'an as the surname of Jesus Al-Busawi the commentator says, " It is origiually a Hebrew word, signifying the blessed one although some have (erroneotaly as he tlimks) held it to come from Masah, to anount either because Jesus healed people with his touch or because he had been anointed by Gahriel as a prophet. JESUS.

المسيح) AL-MASİHU 'D-DAJJÄL الدحال) "The lying Christ" The Antichirst which Muliauimad said would appear before the Day of Resurrection Hate generally called ad Dajjal but la the Traditious he is called al Musiku d Danjal and very many have been the speculations as to why he is called al-Manh The compiler of the Quanus says there have been at least bitv reasons assigned for his being called al March Some say it is because he will have his eyes touched (musah) and be rendered blind, others, that the word was originally masikh, a "monster" (See Hujaju 'l-Kahnah, p 401) Sale in the preface to his translation of the Quran. says Muslim writers store that the Jows will give him the name of al Mank. because ther will mistake him for the true Messiah, who has come to restore the kingdom of Iwael to them.

Regarding this personage Abu Hurairah relates that Muhammed said -

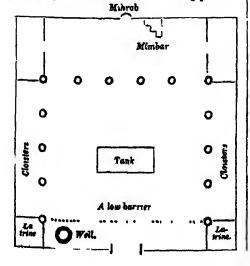

"The Resurrection will not be until the Greoians shall attack 'Amay and Dabiq Then an army will come out from al-Madinah against them, the best of men on that day and when the lines of battle shall be drawn up, the drecians will say, Vacate a place betweer us and those who made captives a tribe of ours' (and their design will be to separate the Musalmans) And the Musalmans will say, By God I we will not olear a place between you and our brother Musal-mans' And the Musainans will fight the Gressens and a third of the Musaimans will be defeated and Goo will not accept their regertance And a third of the Muselmens will be slaw and they will be the best of murtyrs before God And a third of them will conquer the countries of Greece; after which they will be thrown into commotions, and Constantinople will be taken And whilst the Musalmans shall be dividing the plunder, having hung up theirswords upon the clive tree, all on a sudden the Devil will call out, " Verily, Dajjal has attacked your wives and children in your absence.' Then on hearing this, the Musalmans will come out of the city, and this information of devils will be false, but when hov enter Syra, Dajjāl will come out, and whilst the Mussimens shall be preparing their implements of war, and dressing their ranks, all on a sudden prayers will begin, and Jesus Son of Mary will come down, and act ss Imam to them. And when Dalial this enemy of God, shall see Jesus, he will fear to be near, dissolving away like salt in water And if Jesus lets him alone, verily he will mel- and perish, and God will kill him oy the hand of Jesus, who! will show to the people the blood of Dajjal upon his lanca." (Mishkat, book xxm ch n)

In other traditions Muhammadis related to have said that ad-Dajjäl will be a young man with long han and blind in the one eye, and on his forehead will be the three letters K F R, signifying kaftr or infidel. He will first appear midway between Syria and Traq, and will do many wonders and perform many miracles, and will eventually be slain by Jesus

MASJID (Lit. The place of prostration. The mosque, or place MASJID Mosques are generally of public prayer hult of stone or brick, in the form of a square, in the centre of which is ar open court yard, surrounded with clousters for students the centre of the wall facing Makkan is the mihrab or niche, which marks the direction of the Kabah at Makkah and to the right of this niche is the member or pulpit, from which the khutbah or Friday oration, is recited. In the contre of the open court-yard there is usually a large tank, in which the worshippers perform their ablations (wazu'), and adjoining the mosque are lairines, in which the legal washinge (ghust) can be performed Along the front within the doorway is a low barrier a few inches high, which denotes the sacred part of the mosque

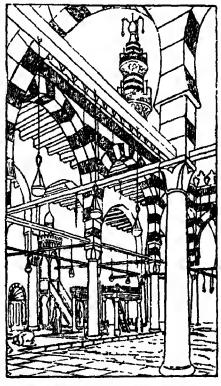

The mosques in India and Central Asia are generally constructed on the following plan -

The mosquee in Turkey, Syria, and Egypt are often covered buildings, not unlike Christian churches.

The first mosque erected by Muhammad was at Qubi near al Madinah It was without cupols niche, or minaret, these being added by al Walid about eighty years afterwards nor were there arches supported by pillars, nor cleisters. An ordinary mosque in an Afghan village is still of this description.

The Muslim as he enters the mosque stops at the barrier and takes off his shoes, carries them in his left band, sole to sole, and puts his right feet first as he passes into the square devoted to prayer. If he have not previously performed the ablution, he repairs

INTERIOR OF A MOSQUE IN CAIRO (Lane)

at once to the tank or well to perform the necessary duty, and before he commences his prayers he places his shoes and his sword and pistol, if he be thus armed, a little before the spot where his head will touch the ground as he prostrates, his shoes must be put one upon the other, sole to sole

The chief efficer of a mosque is the Imam, or leader of prayers, but there are generally Maulawis, or learned men, attached to mosques for the instruction of the students Sometimes the Imam and Maulawi are combined in one, and sometimes a learned Maulawi will possess the mosque, but pay an Imam as his curate to say the stated prayers. There is also a Ma'azzin, or "caller to prayer." whose duty it is to give the Azan The trustee or superintendent of a mosque is called mutawalls

Although mosques are esteemed sacred buildings, they are also places of general resort, and persone may be seen in them lounging and chattering together on secular topics, and eating and sleeping, although such things were forbidded by Muhammad. They are, in all parts of Islam, used as rest hou is for strangers and travellers.

The Imam, or priest, of the mosque, is supported by endowments, or offerings the Maulawis, or professors of divinity by fees, or offerings, and the students of a mosque are supported either by endowments, or the benefactions of the cuple. In towns and vil lages there is a varies allotted to each mosque, and the people within the section of the parish claim the services of the linite at their marriages and timerils, and they pay to him the usual offerings made on the two

In a large mosque known as the Manide 'LJāmi', where the khutbah, or Friday ora tion is delivered, a person known as the khatib (also khatib), or preacher, is appointed, whose duty it is to lead the Friday prayer and to preach the sermon

Munaminan did not forbid women to attend public prayers in a mosque, but it is pronounced better for them to pray in private.

The following injunctions are given in the Quran regations mosques — Surah vii. 29 "O children of Adam! wear your goodly apparel when ye repair to any mosque"

Sunah ix 18 "He only should visit the Masjus of God who believeth in God and the last day, and observeth prayer, and payeth the 'egal aims, and dreadeth none but fred

THE JAMA' HASJID AT DELHI (A F Hole)

Muhammad's injunctions regarding mosques, as handed down in the Traditions, are as follows —

"When you enter a Maspid, you must say, 'O Creator! open on us the doors of Thy compassion', and when you leave the Maspid, say, 'O Lord! we supplicate thy munificence.'"

"It is a sin to spit in a Masjid, and the removal of the sin is to cover it over"

"Whoever shall enter a Masjid, let him enter it for a good object, namely, to learn something himself or to teach others. For he ranks as an equal with him who fights in the cause of God, who thus enters a Masjid, but he who enters a Masjid on any other account, is like unto a man who covets the property of another. Verily, a time will come when men will attend to worldly matters in a Masjid But sit ye not with such "

"Do not prevent your women from coming to the Masjids, but their homes are better for them"

"Do not read poetry in a Masjid, and do not buy and sell there, not set in a circle talking before prayers on a Friday"

"The prayers of a man in his own house are equal to the reward of one prayer, but prayers in a Masjid near his home are equal to twenty-five prayers, and in a Jāmi' (or central mosque), they are equal to five hundred prayers, and in Jerusalem to fifty thousand, and in my Masjid (at al-Madinah) fifty thousand, and at the Kabah, one hundred thousand."

The Muslim law regarding the erection and endowment (wagf) of Margids, as contained in Sunni and Shi'ah works, is as follows According to the Sunnis --

When a person has erected a Masjid, his right therein does not cease until he has apparated both the area occupied by the Masjid and also the road and entrance thereunto from his own private property

If a person build a Masjid, his right of property in it does not cease so long as he does not separate it from his private property, and give general permission to the people to come and worship in it. But as soon as he separates it from his property and allows even a single person to say his prayers in it, his right to the property devoted to God as a mosque ceases.

When a trustee or superintendent (mutawalli) has been appointed for a Masjid, and delivery of the property has been made to him, the Masjid ceases to be private property So, also, when delivery of it is made to the Qaxī, or his deputy

If a person appropriate ground for the purpose of erecting a Masjid, he cannot afterwards resume or sell it, neither can it be claimed by his heirs and inherited, because this ground is altogether alienated from the right of the individual, and appertains solely to God.

When a man has an unoccupied space of ground fit for building upon and has directed a nody of persons to assemble on it for prayers, the space becomes a Masjid, if the permission were given expressly to pray on it for ever or, in absolute terms, intending that it should be for ever and the property does not go to his heirs at his death. But if the permission were given for a day, or a month, or a ear the space would not become a Masjid and on his death it would be the property of us heirs.

A MOSQUE IN APPHANISTAN (A F. Hole)

If a man during his sickness has made his own house a Masjid, and died, and it neither falls within a third of his proporty nor is allowed by his heirs, the whole of it is heritage, and the act of making it a Masjid is void, because, the heirs having a right in it, there has been no separation from the rights of mankind and an undefined portion has been made a Masjid, which is void. In the same way as if he should make his land a Masjid, and another person should establish an undefined right, in which case the remainder would revert to the property of the appropriator, contrary to the case of a person making a bequest that a third of his residence shall be made a Masjid, which would be valid, for in such a case there is a separation, as the house may be divided and a third of it converted into a Masjid (A third of a man's property being the extent to which he can bequeath to other than his heirs)

When a man has made his land a Masjid, and stipulated for something out of it for himself it is not valid, according to all the jurists

It is also generally agreed that if a man make a Masjid or condition that he shall have an option, the waqf is lawful and the condition is void.

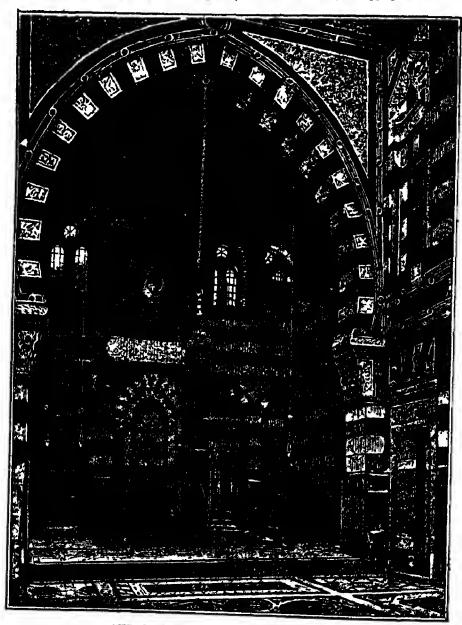

When a man has built a Masjid and called persons to witness that he shall have the power to cancel and sell it, the condition is void, and the Masjid is as if he had erected a Masjid for the people of the street, saying.

"It is for this street especially," when it would, notwithstanding, be for others as well as for them to worship in

When a Masjid has fallen into decay and is no longer used for prayers, nor required by the people, it does not revert to the appropriator or his heirs, and cannot be sold according to the most correct opinions

When of two Masjids one is old and gone to decay the people cannot use its materials to repair the more recent one, according to either the Imam Muhammad or Imam Abu Yūsni Because though the former thought that the materials may be so applied, he held that it is the original appropriator or his heirs, it whom the property reverts, that can so apply them, and because Abū Yūsuf was of opinion their the property in a Mazjid never reverts to the original appropriator, though it should tall to ruin and be no longer used by the people

INTERIOR OF A MOSQUE AT CAIRO (Dr Ebers.)

If a man appropriate his land for the benefit of a Masjid, and to provide for its repairs and necessaries, such as oil &c, and when nothing more is required for the Masjid, to apply what remains to poor Muslims the appropriation is lawful

If a man has appropriated his land for the nenefit of a Masjid, without any ultimate destination for the poor, the appropriation is lawful, according to all opinions

If a man gives money for the repairs of a Masjid, also for its maintenance and for its benefit, it is valid for if it cannot operate as a waqf, it operates as a transfer by way of gift to the Masjid, and the establishing of property in this manner to a Masjid is valid, being completed by taking possession

If a person should say, "I have bequeathed a third of my property to the Masjid," it would not be lawful, unless he say "to expend on the Maspid." So if he were to say, "I have bequeathed a third of my property to the lamps of the Masjid," it would not be lawful unless he say, "to give light with it in the Masjid" If he say, "I have given my house for a Masjid," it is valid as a transfer, requiring delivery (Fatawa-1-' llamgiri, vol ii p 545, Hidayah, vol ii p 356 Bullis's Digest, pp 504-605)

The Shi'sh law regarding the endowment of Masjids, or land for the benefit of Mas lids, does not differ in any important particular from that of the bunnis. But there is a provision in the Shi'sh law regarding the sale of an endowment which is important

If dissensions arise among the persons in whose favour the waqf is made, and there in apprehension of the property being destroyed, while on the other hand the sale thereof is productive of bouefit, then, in that case its sale is lawful.

If a house belonging to a waqf should fall into runs, the space would not cease to be waqf, nor would its sale be lawful If, however, dissensions should arise among the persons for whom it was appropriated insomuch as to give room for apprehengion that if will be destroyed, its sale would be lawful

And even if there should be no such difference, nor any room for such apprehensions, but the sale would be more for the advantage of the parties interested, some are of opinion that the sale would be lawful, but the ap proved doctrine is to forbid it (Mofatsh, Sharā'ı'u 'l Islam, p 239)

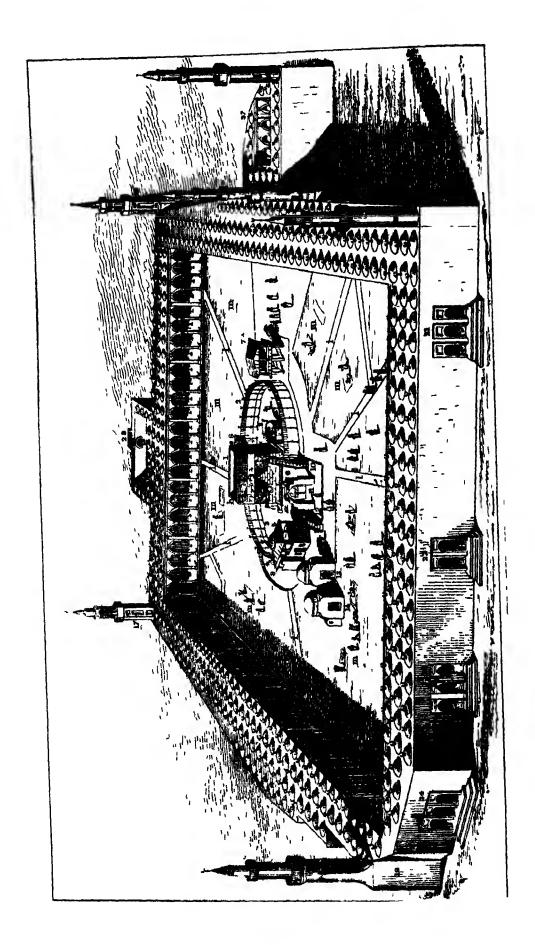

AL-MASJIDU 'L-ĀQŅĀ المسجد) Mosque" The temple at Jerusalem erected by Solomon, called also at Bartu'l-Muqaddas, or "the Holy House" Known also in Muhammadan literature as as Sakhrah, ' the Rock,' from which it is believed Muhammad ascended to herven on the occasion of his

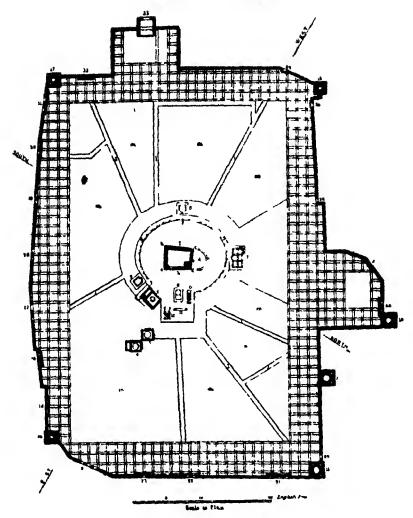

celestial journey (See Qur an, Sarah xvii)
Jalalii d din as-Suvaty has devoted a whole volume to the consideration of the superabundant merits existing in the Masjidu 'l-Aqsa, which work has been translated into English by the Rev James Revnolds (Oriental Translation Fund, 1836) He says it is called al-Aqsa, because it is the most distant mosque to which pilgramage is directed. [JERUSALEM, AS-SAKHRAH.]

MASJIDU 'L-HARÂM (James The Sacred Mosque." Ka'bah, or Cube-house, in which is placed the Hujaru 'l Asmad, or "Black Stone," The term Baitu 'llāh, or "House of God," is applied to the whole or "I have of God," is applied to the whole enclosure, although it more specially denotes the Karbah itself

The following graphic account of this calebrated building is given by the traveller Burckhaidt who visited it in a D 1814 Cap tain R Barton who visited the temple thirtyeight years later, testifies to the great accuracy of Burokhardt's description, and quotes his description in extenso The account by Burckhardt is given in the present article, with some slight corrections

The Kathah stands in an ohlong square, two hundred and fifty paces long, and two hundred broad, none of the aides of which rons quite in a straight line, though at first sight the whole appears to be of a regular shape This open square is enclosed on the eastern side by a colonnade the pillars stand in a quadruple row, they are three deep on the other sides, and united by pointed arches, every four of which support a small dome, plastered and whitened on the outside. These domes, according to Onthu 'd-din, are one hundred and fifty two in number. Along the whole colonnade, on the four sides, lamps are suspended from the arches Some are lighted every night, and all during the nights of Ramazan. The piliers are above twenty feet in bright and generally from one foot and a balf to one foot and three quarters in diameter, but hitle regularity has been observed in regard to them. Some are of white murble, granite or porphyry but the greater number are of common stone of the Makkah mountains. Fasy states the whole at five hundred and eighty-nine, and says they are all of marble excepting one hundred and twenty six, which are of common stone, and three of composition. Until d-din reckons five hundred and hity five, of which, accordug to him, three hundred and eleven are of marble, and the rest of stone taken from the neighbouring memutains but neither of these anthors I ved to see the latest repairs of the mesque, sites the destruction occasioned by a torrent, in A.D 1626 Between everythree or four columns stands an octagonal one, about four feet in thickness On the east side are two shafts or reddish gray granite, in one piecs, and one tine gray porphyry column with slabs of white feldspith. On the north side is one red granite column and one of fine grained red porphyly these are probably the columns which Quibu 'd din states to have been brought from Egypt, and principally from Akhmim (Panopolis), when the ohief Mahdi enlarged the mosque, m A H 168 Among the four hundred and fifty or five hundred columns, which form the enclosure, I found not any two capitals or bases exactly alike The capitals are of coarse Saracenic workmanship, some of them, which had served for former buildings, by the ignorance

THE MASSIDT L-HARVE

REFERENCES TO THE PLAN AND VIEW

| 1 The Ka'bah a I he Black Stone b Rukmu I Yamanı c Rukmu 'eh-Shāmī d Tombs of Isma'il and his mother e The Mi'sab f The Well of Haftm g Rukmu 'l Irak h Spot called Me'jan | the golden band  2 Pillare suspending lamps 3 & 4 Outer and Inner steps 5 Building over the Well Zamzum 6 Praying station, or Magdrat '1 I Panel causeways, &c Ibrahim of the Shāp'is 7 Magdmu 'l Hanufi 8 Magāmu 'l Malaki 9 Magamu 'l Hunbalī  12 4d Daraj or Staircase for the Ka'bah 13 Yubbath 's-Sa'h 14 Quibath 'Abbas 14 Panel causeways, &c 15 Minarel of Babu s Salum 16 , Babu Ali 17 , Bubu I Wadd' 18 Magamu 'l Hunbalī 18 , Babu l 'Unrah                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |
|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| i Door                                                                                                                                                                     | 10 Mimbar or Pulpu 19 , Babu z-Ziyddah11 Adhu s-Salam or Shuibar 20 , Madrasah Kail Beg                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    |
| , Starrogge to Roof                                                                                                                                                        | 11 Bibu s-Salam or Shuibar 20 ., , Madrasah Kail Beg                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |
| 21 Babu 's Saldne                                                                                                                                                          | 28 Babu 'r Rahmah 85 Babu 'l Atth                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              |
| 22 " 'n Nobi23 " 'l-'Abbas.24 " 'Ali or Bent Hashem25 " 1-Zast or Babu 'l-'Asher.26 " 'l-Baghlah                                                           | 29 , 'L-Jiyad 36 , 'L-Jilah or Babu 'l-Bas30 , L-Ujilah o: Babu 'sh-Sharly' tiyah31 , l-Umm Han 37 , Kutubi32 , 'L-Wada' 38 , 2-2-yadah or Babu 'l-33 , Ibrahim or the Favlors Nadwah                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          |
| 27 , 'e-Bafa.                                                                                                                                                              | The second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second secon |

of the workmen have been placed upside down upon the shafts I observed about half-adozen marble bases of good Grecian workman A few of the marble columns bear Arable or Onfic inscriptions in which I read the dates AH 868 and AH 762. A column on the east side exhibits a very ancient Cuffe inscription, somewhat defaced, which I could neither read nor copy Those shafts, formed of the Makken stone, cut principally from the side of the mountain near the Shubaikah quarter, are mostly in three pieces, but the marble shafts are in one piece

Some of the columns are strengthened with broad iron rings or hands, as in many other Saracen buildings of the East, they were first employed here by Ibn Dhaher Berkouk, King of Egypt, in rebuilding the mosque, which had been destroyed by fire in A.11 802

This temple has been so often ruined and repaired, that no traces of remet- antiquity are to be found about it On the inside of the great wall which encloses the colonnades a single Alabic inscription is seen, in large characters, but containing merely the names of Muhammad and his immediate successors, Abu Bakr 'Umar, 'Ugman, and 'Ali The name of Allah, in large characters, occurs also in several places On the outside, over the gates, are long macriptions in the Suluşi character, commemorating the names of those by whom the gates were built, long and minute details of which are given by the his torians of Makkah

The inscription on the south side, over Babu Ibrahim, is most conspicuous all that ade was rebuilt by the Egyptian Sultan al-Ghauri, AH 906 Over the Babu Ali and Babu 1-Abbas is a long inscription, also in the Sulusi character placed there by Sultan Murad the Suluman, an 984, after he had repaired the whole building Quthu d-din has given this inscription at length, it occupies several pages in his history, and is a monument of the Sultan's variety. This side of the mosque having oscaped destruction in AD 1626, the inscription remains unin-

Some parts of the walls and arches are gaudily painted, in stripes of yellow, red, and blue as are also the minarets. Paintings of flowers, in the usual Muslim style, are nowhere seen, the floors of the colonnades are paved with large stones badly cemented to Seven paved causeways lead from the colonnades towards the Kabah, or holy house, in the centre. They are of sufficient breadth to admit four or five persons to walk abreast and they are elevated about hime mohes above the ground Between these causeways, which are covered with fine gravel or sand, grass appears growing in several places, produced by the zamzam water cozing out of the jars, which are placed in the ground in long rows during the day whole area of the mosque is upon a lower level than any of the streets surround ing it There is a descent of eight or ten steps from the gates on the north side into the platform of the colonnade, and of three or four steps from the gates, on the south side Towards the middle of this area stands the Kabah, it is one hundred and fifteen paces from the north colounade, and eighty-eight from the south

For this want of symmetry we may readily account, the Ka'bah having existed prior to the mosque, which was built around it, and enlarged at different periods.

The Ka'bah is in oblong massive structure, eighteen paces in length, fourteen in breadth, and from thirty-five to forty feet in height took the bearing of one of ite longest sides, and i und it to be NNW W W It is constructed of the grey Malakan stone, in large blocks of different sizes, joined togother in a very rough manner and with had cement It was entirely rebuilt as it now stands in A D 1627 the torrent, in the preceding year, had the own down three of its sides, and prepa ratory to its re-erection, the fourth side was, actording to Assumi, pulled down, after the 'Ulama, or learned divines had been consulted on the question whether mortals might be permitted to destroy any part of the holy edince without incurring the charge of sacrilege and infidelity

The Ka'hah stands upon a base two lest in height which presents a sharp inclined plane, its roof being flat, it has at a distance the appearance of a perfect cube. The only door which affords entrance, and which is opened but two or three tunes in the year, is on the north side, and about seven feet above the ground In entering it, therefore, wooden steps are used, of them I shall speak hereafter In the nist periods of Islam, however, when it was rebuilt in A H 64, by Ibn Zubair, Chief of Makkah, the nepbew of 'Ayishib, it had two doors even with the ground floor of the mosque The present door (which, according to Azraqi was blought hither from Constantinople in A D 1633) is wholly costed with silver, and has several gilt ornaments Upon its threshold are placed every night various small lighted wax candles, and perfuming pans, filled with musk, sloe-wood &c

At the north east corner of the Karbah, near the door, is the famous "Black Stone" it forms a part of the sharp angle of the building, at four or five feet above the ground It is an irregular oval, about seven inches in diameter, with an undulated surface, composed of about a dozen smaller stones of dif ferent sizes and shapes, well joined together with a small quantity of cement, and per fectly smoothed it looks as if the whole had been broken into many pieces by a violent blow and then united sgain. It is very dif ficult to determine accurately the quality of this stone, which has been worn to its present surface by the millions of touches and kisses it liss received It appeared to me like a lava, containing several small extra neous particles, of a whitish and of a yellow ish substance Its colour is now a deep red dish brown, approaching to black, it is surrounded on all sides by a border, composed of a substance which I took to be a close cement of pitch and gravel, of a similar, but not quite the same brownish colear. This border serves to support its detached pieces, it is two or three inches in breadth, and rises a little above the surface of the stone. Both the border and the stone itself are enourcled by a silver band, broader below than above and on the two sides, with a considerable swelling below, as if a part of the etone were hidden under it. The lower part of the border is studded with silver nails

In the south-east corner of the Ka'bah or, as the Arabs call it, Ruknu 'l-Yamanı, there is snother stone, about five feet from the ground, it is one foot and a half in length, and two inches in breadth, placed upright and of the common Makkah stone. This the people walking round the Ka'bah touch only with the right hand, they do not kiss it with the right hand, they do not kiss it On the north side of the Ka bah just by its door, and close to the wall, is a slight hollow in the ground, lined with marble, and sufficiently large to admit of three persons sitting Here it is thought mount of the spot is called Mirjan, and sup Here it is thought meritorious to posed to be that where Abraham and his son Ishmael kneaded the chalk and mud which they used in huilding the Karbah, and near this Mitjan the former is said to have placed the large stone upon which he stood while working at the masonry On the bass of 'ne Ka bah, just over the Mrjan is an ancient Cutle inscription, but this I was unable to decipher, and had no opportunity of copying I do not find it mentioned by any of the historians

cin the west side of the Ka' ish, about two feet bolow its summit, is the famous M. zab, or water-spout, through which the rain-water collected on the roof of the building is dis-charged so as to fall upon the ground. It is about four feet in length, and six inches in breadth, as well as I could judge from below with borders equal in height so its breach At the mouth hangs what is called the beard of the Mi'zab, a gilt board, over which the water falls This spout was sent hither from Constantinople in AH 981 and is reput ted to be of pure gold. The pavement round the Ka'bah, below the Mi'zab, was laid down in AR 820, and consists of various coloured stones, forming a very handsome specimen of mosaic. There are two large slabs of fine verde-antico in the centre, which, according to Makrizi, were sent thither as presents from Cairo in A H. 241 This is the spot where, according to Muhammadan tradition, Ishmael, the eon of Abraham, and his mother Hagar, are buried, and here it is mentorious for the pilgrim to recite a prayer of two rak ahs

On this west side is a semi-circular wall, the two extremities of which are in a line with the sides of the Ka'bah, and distant from it three or four feet, leaving an opening which leads to the burying-place of Ishmael. The wall bears the name of Hatīm, and the area which it encloses is called Hijr, or Hijru Isma'il, on account of its being "separated" from the Ka'bah the wall itself also, as sometimes so called, and the name Hatim is given by the historian to the space of ground between the Ka'bah and the wall on one side, and the Bi'ru'z Zamzam and Macamu Ibrī him on the other. The present Makkans, however, apply the name Hatim to the wall only

Fraction says that the Kabah once extended as far as the Hatim, and that this side having fallon down just at the time of the Haji, the expenses of repairing it were demanded from the pilgrims under a pretence that the revenues of government were not acquired in a manner sufficiently pure to admit of their application towards a pur-pose so sacred whilst the money of the pilgrim- would possess the requisite sanctity The sum, however, obtained from them, proved ver madequate all that could be done, therefore was to raise a wall, which marked the space formerly occupied by the K 1'bah This racition although current among the Wikkans, is at variance with history which declar s that the Hijr was built by the Bur Quraish who contracted the dimensions of the Kurbah, that it was united to the building by Hajjāj and again separated from it by Ibn Zubair
It is asserted by Fasy, that a part of the

It is asserted by Fasy, that a part of the Hipt, as it now stands, was never comprehended within the Kalal. The law regards it as a portion of the Kalal, masmach as it is esteemed equally mentonious to pray in the Hipt as in the Kalah thiself and the pilgrims who have not an opportunity of entering the latter, are permitted to affirm upon oath that they have prayed in the Kalah, although the, may have only prostrated themsel estimated in the enclosure of the Hatim. The wall is built of sold stone about inverses in height, and four in thickness, cased all overwith what marble, and inscribed with prayers and invocations neatly scriptured upon the claims are the work of al Ghauri, the Egyptian Sultin in a H 917, as we learn from Outbut d din casing are the work of al Chauri, the Egyptian Sull'in in AH 917, as we learn from Qubu d din

The walk round the Ka'bah is performed on the outside of the wall—the nearer to it the better. The fow sides of the Ka'bah are covered with a black silk stuff, hanging down, and leaving the roof bare. This curtain, or veil, is celled kiewah, and renewed i mually at the time of the Hajj, being brought from Cairo where it is manufactured at the sultan's expense. On it sie vurious prayers, internovon in the same colour as the stuff, and it is, therefore extremely difficult to read them. A little above the middle and running round the whole building, is a line of similar inscriptions, worked in gold thread. That part of the six wall which covers the door is richly embroidered with silver. Openings are left for the black stone, and the other in the south-east corner which thus remain

The knewsh is always of the ean's form and pattern, that which I saw on my first visit to the mosque was in a decayed state, uncovered

and full of holes On the 25th of the month Zu 1-Qadah, the old one is taken away, and the Kabah continues without a cover for fifteen days It is then said that 'The Ka'bah has assumed the ihram," which lasts until the tenth of Zu 'l-Hijjah, the day of the return of the pilgims from 'Arafah te Wadi Mina, when the new kiswah is put on. During the first days, the new covering is tucked up by cords fastened on the roof, so as to lowe the lower part of the building exposed, having remained thus for many days, it is let down, and covers the whole structure being then tied to strong brass wings in the basis of the Kathah The removal of the old kis wah was performed in a very indecorous manner, and a contest onsued among the pilgrims and the people of Makkah both young and old, about i few tags of it pilgrims even collect the dust which sticks to the walls of the Ka'bah, under the kiswah, and sell it, on their return as a sacred relic [KIEWAH]

At the moment the building is uncovered and completely base ('myān), a crowd of women assemble round it, rejoicing with cries called walu alah

The black colour of the kiswah, covering a large cube in the midst of a wast square, gives to the Katha, at first sight, it very singular and imposing appearance, as it is not fastened down tightly the slightest breeze causes it to move in slow undulations which are hailed with prayers by the congregation assembled round the building, as a sign of the presence of its guardian angels, whose wings by their motion, are supposed to be the cause of the waving of the covering Seventy thousand angels have the Kathah in their holy care, and are ordered to transport it to Paradise, when the trumpet of the Last

Judgment shall be sounded

The clothing of the habah was an ancient custom of the Pagan Arabs The tirst Lis wah, says Azraqı, wav put on by Asad Tubba', one of the Himyarite kings of Yaman, before Islam it had two coverings, one for winter and the other for summer In tho early ages of Islam, it was sometimes white and sometimes red, and consisted of the richest brocade In subsequent times it was furnished by the different Sultans of Baghdad, Egypt, or Yaman, according to their respecinfluence over Makkah prevailed, for the clothing of the Kathah appears to have always been considered as a proof of sovereignty over the Hijaz Kalaun, Sultan of Egypt, assumed to himself and successors the exclusive right, and from them the Sultans at Constantinople have inherited it Kalaun appropriated the revenue of the two large villages Bisaus and Sandabair, in Lower Egypt, to the expense of the kiswah, and Sultan Sulaman ibn Sairm subsequently added several others, but the Karbah has long been deprived of this resource.

Round the Ka'hah is a good pavement of marble, about eight inches below the level of the great square, it was laid in A.E. 981, by order of the Sultan, and describes an irregular oval, it is surrounded by thirty-two stender gilt pillars, or rather poles, between every two of which are suspended seven glass lamps, always lighted after sunset. Beyond the poles is a second pavement, about eight paces broad, somewhat elevated above the first but of coarser work, then another, six inches higher, and eighteen paces broad, upon which stand several small buildings, beyond this is the gravelled ground, so that two broad steps may be said to lead from the square down to the Ka'bah. The small buildings just mentioned, which surround the Ka'bah, are the five Maqams, with the well of Zamzam, the arch called Babu 's-Salam (the Gate of Peace), and the mumbar (pulpit)

Opposite the rour sides of the Ka'bah stand four other small buildings, where the Imams of the four orthodox Muhammadar sects, the Hanafi, Shafi i, Hanbah and Malaki take their station, and guide the congregation in their prayers. The Magamu 'l-Malaki, on the south, and that of Hanbah, opposite the Blick Stone, are small pavilions, open or all sides and supported by four slender pillars with a light sloping roof, terminating in a point, exactly in the style of Indian pagedas

The Maqamu I Hanafi, which is the largest, being fifteen paces by eight, is open on all sides, and supported by twelve small pillars it has an upper storey, also open, where the Muazzu, who calls to praver-takes his stand. This was first built in a H 923, by Sultan Salim I., it was afterwards rebuilt by Khushgildi, Governor of Jiddah, in a H 947, but all the four Maqams, as they now stand, were built in a H 1074. The Maqamu sh Shafi' is over the well Zamzzin, to which it serves as an upper chamber

Near their respective Magams, the adherents of the four different sects seat 'hemselves for prayers During my stay at Mak kah, the Ranafis always began their prayer first but, according to Mushm custom the Shah'is should pray first in the mosque, then the Hanafis, Malakis, and Hanbalis evening prayer is an exception, which they are all enjoined to utter together. The Maqamu I Hanbali is the place where the officers of government and other great people are seated during prayers, here the Pasha and the Sharif are placed, and, in their absence the enurchs of the temple These fill the space under this Magam in front, and behind it the female pilgrims who visit the temple have their places assigned, to which they repair principally for the two evening prayers, few of them being seen in the mosque at the three other daily pravers. They also perform the tawaf, or walk round the Ka'bah, but generally at night, though it is not un common to see them walking in the daytime among the men

The present building which encloses Zamzam, stand close by the Maqamn I-Hanbali, and was elected in A in 1072 it is of a square shape, and of massive construction, with an entrance to the north, opening into the room which contains the well. This room is besutifully ornamented with marbles of various colours, and adjoining to it, but having a separate door, is a small room with a stone reservoir, which is always full of Zamzam water, this the pilgrims get to drink by passing their hand with a cap through an iron grated opening, which serves as a window, into the reservoir, without entering the room

The mouth of the well is surrounded by a wall five feet in height, and about ten feet in diameter Upon this the people stand who draw up the water, in leathern buckets, an iron railing being so placed as to prevent their falling in. In Fasy's time, there were eight marble basins in this room for the purpose of ablution

From before dawn to near midnight, the well-room is constantly crowded with visitors Everyone is at liberty to draw up the water for lumself, but the labour is generally performed by persons placed there on purpose, and paid by the mosque, they expect also a trifle from those who come to drink, though they dare not demand it I have been more than once in he room a quarter of an hour before I could wet a draught of water, so great was the Devout pilgrims sometimes mount crowd the wall and draw the bucket for several hours. n the hope of thus expeating their evil deeds

Before the Wahhabi invasion, the well Zam ram belonged to the Sharif, and the water becoming thus a monopoly, was only to be purchased at a high price, but one of Sa'ūd's tirst orders, on his arrival at Makkah, was to abolish this traffic, and the holy water is now dispensed gratis. The Turks consider it a miracle that the water of this well never diminishes, notwithstanding the continual draught from it There is certainly no diminution in its depth, for, by an accurate inspec tion of the rope by which the buckets are drawn up, I found that the same length was required both at morning and evening, to reach the surface of the water Upon in quiry, I learned from one of the persons who had descended in the time of the Wahhabis to repair the masonry, that the water was flowing at the bottom, and that the well is therefore supplied by a subterraneous rivulet water is heavy to tho taste, and sometimes in its colour resembles milk, but it is perfectly sweet, and differs very much from that of the brackish wells dispersed over the town When first drawn up, it is slightly topid, resembling, in this respect, many other foun-tains of the Hijaz

Zamsam supplies the whole town, and there is scarcely one family that does not daily fill a jar with the water This only serves, however, for drinking or for ablution, as it is thought implous to employ water so sacred for eulmary purposes or on common occato the mosque for evening prayer, has a jar of the water placed before him by those who earn their livelihood by performing this

SOLATOR

The water is distributed in the mosque to all who are thirsty for a trifling fee, by watercarriers, with large jars upon their backs, these men are also paid by charitable pilgrims for supplying the poorer ones with this holy beverage immediately before or after prayers

The water is regarded as an infailible cure for all diseases, and the devotees believe that the more they drink of it, the better their health will be, and their prayers the more acceptable to the Deity I have seen some of them at the well swallowing such a quantity of it, as I should hardly have thought pessible. A man who lived in the same house with me, and was ill of an intermittent fever, repaired every evening to Zamzam, and drank of the water till he was almost fainting, after which he lay for several hours extended upon his back, on the pavement near the Karbah, and then returned to renew his draught When by this practice he was brought to the verge of death, he declared himself fully convinced that the increase of his illness proceeded wholly from his being unable to swallow a sufficient quantity of the water Many pil grams, not content with drinking it merely, strip themselves in the room, and have buckets of it thrown over them by which they believe that the heart is purified as well as the outer body

Few pilgrims quit Makkah without carrying away some of this water in coppor or tin bottles, either for the purpose of making pre sents or for their own use in case of illness, when they drink it, or for ablution after death I carried away four small bottles, with the intention of offering them as pro sents to the Muhammadan kings in the black countries I have seen it sold at Suez by pilgrims returning from Makkah, at the rate of one plastie for the quantity that filled a coffee-cup

The chief of Zamzain is one of the principal 'Ulama' of Makkah I need not remind the reader that Zamzam is supposed to be the spring found in the wilderness by Hagar, at the moment when her infant son Ishmael was dying of thirst It seems pro bablo that the town of Makkah owes its origin to this well For many miles round, no sweet water is found, nor is there found in any part of the adjacent country so copious a supply

On the north-east side of Zamzam stand two small buildings, one behind the other, called al Qubbatam, they are covered by domes painted in the same manner as the mosque, and in them are kept water-jars, lamps, carpets, mats, brooms, and other articles used in the very mosque These two ugly buildings are injurious to the interior appearance of the building, their heavy forms and structure being very disadvantageously contrasted with the light and airy shape of the Maqams I heard some pilgrims from Greece, men of better taste than the Arabs, express their regret that the Qubbatain should be allowed to disfigure the mosque Their contents might be deposited in some of the buildings adjoining the mosque, of which they form no essential part, no religious importance being attached to them. They were built by Khushgildi, Governor of Jiddsh, A.E. 947; one is called Qubbaru 'l-'Abhus, from having been placed on the site of a simil trak, said to have been formed by al-Abbas, the uncle of Muhammad.

A few paces west of Zamram and directly opposite to the door of the Kabab stands a ladder or staircase, which is moved up to the wall of the Kabah, on the days when that building is opened and by which the visitors ascend to the door, it is if would with some carved ornaments, moves on low wheels and is sufficiently broad to admit of four persons ascending abreast The first ladder was sent hither from Cairo in A ii 819, by Mu'vad Abū 'n-Nasir, King of Egypt 101 in the Hi,az it seems, there has always been so great a want of articans, that whenever the mosque ie quired any work it was necessar; to have mechanics brought from Cairo, and evon sometimes from Constantinople

In the same line with the ladder, and close by it stands a lightly built, insulated and circular arch about fifteen feet wide and eighteen feet high, called Babu a-Salam. which must not be confounded with the great gate of the mosque bearing the same name Those who enter the Battu 'llah for the first time, are enjoined to do to by the outer and inner Babu 's-Salam', in passing under the latter they are to exclaim, "O God may it be a happy entrance' I do not know by whom this arch was built but it appears to be modern

Nearly in front of the Babu s-halam and nearer to the Kabah than any of the other surrounding buildings stands the Magamu This is a small building supported Ibrāhim by six pillars about eight neet night four of which are surrounded from top to bottom by a fine iron railing which thus leaves the space beyond the two hind pillars open, within the railing is a frame about five feet square terminating in a pyramidal top, and said to contain the sacred stone upon which Abraham stood whon he built the Ka bah, and which, with the holp of his son Ishinael. he had removed from hence to the place called Mi'jan, already mentioned The stone is said to have yielded under the weight of the Patriarch, and to preserve the impression of his foot still visible upon it, but no pilgrim has ever seen it, as the frame is always entirely covered with a brocade of red silk 11chly embroidered Persons are constantly seen before the railing, invoking the good offices of Abraham, and a short prayer must be utlered by the side of the Magum, after the walk round the Kabah is completed It is said that many of the Companions, or first adhorents of Muhammad, were interred in the open space between this Magam and Zamzam, from which circumstance it is one of the most favourite places of prayer in the mesque In this part of the area, the Khalifah Sulaiman ibn 'Abdi i Malik, brother of al-Walid, built a fine reservoir in a it 97, which was filled from a spring asst of 'Arafat, but the Makkans destroyed it efter his death on the pretence that the water of Zamzam was preferable

On the side of Maqamu Ibrahim, facing the middle part of the front of the Ka'bah, stands the Mimbar, or pulpit, of the mosque, it is elegantly formed of fine white marble, with many sculptured ornaments, and was sent as a present to the mosque in AH 969, by Sultan Sulaiman ibn Salim A straight narrow staircase leads up to the post of the khatib, or preacher, which is surmounted by a gilt polygonal pointed steeple, resembling an obe-Here a sermon is preached on Fridays, and on certain festivals, these, like the Friday sermons of all mosques in the Muhammadan countries, are usually of the same tenour, with some slight afterations upon Before the Wahextraordinaly occasions habīs ınvaded Makkah, prayers were added for the Sultun and the bharif, but these were forbiddon by Sa'ud Since the Turkish conquest, however the ancient custom has been restored Tho right of proaching in the Mimbai is vested in several of the first 'Ulama' in Makkab they are always elderly persons, and officiate in lotation. In ancient times Muhammad hinself, his successors, and the Khalifahs, whenever they came to Makkah, mounted the pulpit, and preached to the people

The ghalib, or preacher, appears in the Mimbai wrapped in a white cloak, which covers his head and body, and with a stick in nand, a practice observed also in Egypt and Syna, in memory of the first age of Islam, when the preachers found it necessary to be armed, from fear of being surprised As in other mosques, two green flags are placed on each side of him

About the Mimbar, the visitors of the Ka bah deposit their shoes, as it is neither permitted to walk round the Kaibah with covered feet, nor thought decent to carry the shoes in the hand, as is done in other mosques Several persons keep watch over the shoes, for which they expect a small present but the vicinity of the hely temple does not intiundate the dishonest, for I lost successively from thus spot three new pairs of shoes, and the same thing happens to many pilgrims.
I have now described all the buildings within the enclosure of the temple

The gravel-ground, and part of the adjoining outer pavement of the Karbah is covered at the time of evening prayers, with carpets of from sixty to eighty feet in length, and four feet in breadth of Egyptian manufacture, which are rolled up after prayers. The greater part of the pilgrims bring their own carpets with them. The more distant parts of the area, and the floor under the colonnade, are spread with mats brought from Souakin, the latter situation being the usual place for the performance of the mid-day and afternoon prayers Many of these mais are presented to the mosque by the pilgrims, for which they have in return the satisfaction of seeing their names inscribed on them in large characters

At sunset, great numbers assemble for the first evening proper they form themselves into several wide circles, sometimes as many as twenty, around the Ka'bah, as a common centre before which every person makes his prostration, and thus, as the Muhammadan doctors observe, Makkah is the only spot throughout the world in which the true behever can, with propriety turn during his prayers towards any point of the compass. The Imam takes his post near the gate of the Karhah, and his genuflexions are imitated by the whole assembled multitude. The effect of the joint prostrations of six or eight thousand persons, added to the recollection of the distance and various quarters from whence they come, or for what purpose, cannot fail to impress the most cool-minded spectator with some degree of awe. At night, when the ismps are lighted, and numbers of devotees are performing the Tawaf round the Kabah, the sight of the busy crowds, the voices of the Mutawwifs, intent upon making themselves heard by those to whom they recite their prayers, the loud conversation of many idle persons, the running, playing, and laughing of boys, give to the whole a very different appearance, and one more resembling that of a place of public amusement The crowd, however, leaves the mosque about nine o'clock, when it again necomes the place of silent meditation and prayer to the few visitors who are led to the sput by sincere piety, and not worldly motives or fashion.

There is an opinion prevalent at Makkah, founded on holy tradition that the mosque will contain any number of the faithful, and that if even the whole Muhammadan com munity were to enter at once, they would all find room in it to pray The guardian angels, it is said would invisibly extend the dimensions of the building, and diminish the size of each individual. The fact is, that during the most numerous pilgrimages, the mosque, which can contain, I believe, about thirty-hve thousand persons in the act of prayer, is never half-filled Even on Fridays, the greater part of the Makkans, contrary to the injunctions of the law, pray at home, if ut all, and many pilgrims follow their example I could never count more than ten thousand individuals in the mosque at one time, even after the return from 'Arafat, when the whole hody of pilgrims was collected for a few days in and about the city

At every hour of the day persons may be seen under the colonnade, occupied in reading the Qar'an and other religious books, and here many poor Indians, or negroes, spread their mats, and pass the hole period of their residence at Makkah. Here they both eat and sleep, but cooking is not allowed. During the heurs of noon, many persons come to repose beneath the cool shade of the vaulted roof of the colonnade, a custom which not only accounts for the mode of construction observed in the old Muhammadan temples of Egypt and Arabia, but for that also of the ancient Egyptian temples, the immense porticoes of which were probably left pen to the idelatrous natives, whose mid-built houses could afford them but an unperfect refuge against the mid-day heats

It is only during the hours of prayer that the great mosques of these countries partake of the sanctity of prayer, or in any degree seem to be regarded as consecrated places In al-Azhar, the first mosque at Cairo, I have seen boys crying pancakes for sale barbers shaving their oustomers, and many of the lower orders eating their dinners, where, during prayers, not the slightest motion, nor even whisper, diverts the attention of the congregation. Not a sound out the voice of the Imam, is heard during prayers in the great mosque at Makkah, which at other times is the place of meeting for men of business to converse on their affairs, and is sometimes so full of poor pilgrims, or of diseased persons lying about under the colonnade in midst of their miserable baggage, as to have the appearance of a hospital rather than a temple Boys play in the great square, and servants carry laggage across it, to pass by the nearest route from one part of the town to the other In these respects, the temple of Makkah resembles the other great mosques of the East. But the holy Kathah is rendered the scene of such indecencies and criminal acts, as cannot with propriety be more particularly noticed. They are not only practised here with impunity but, it may be said, almost publicly, and my indignation has often been excited, on witnessing abomi nations which called forth from other passing spectators nothing more than a laugh or a alight reprimand

In several parts of the colonnade public schools are held, where young children are taught to spell and read, they are most noisy groups, and the schoolmaster's stick is in constant action. Some learned men of Makkah deliver lectures on religious subjects every afternoon under the colonnade but the auditors are seldom numerous. On Fridays, after prayer, some Turkish 'Ulama' axplain to their countrymen assembled around their a few chapters of the Quran, after which each of the audience kisses the hand of the expositor, and drops money into his cap I particularly admired the fluency of speech of one of these 'Ulama', although I did not un destand him, the lecture being delivered in the Turkish language His gesticulations. and the inflexions of his voice, were most expressive, but, like an actor on the stuge, he would laugh and cry in the same minute; and adapt his features to his purpose in the most skilful manner. He was a native of Brusa, and amassed a considerable sum-of

Near the gate of the mosque called Babu 's-Salam, a few Arab shakhs daily take their seat, with their inkatand and paper, ready to write, for any applicant letters, accounts, contracts, or any similar document

They also deal in written charms, like those current in the Black countries, such as smu lets, love-receipts, &c They are principally employed by Bedouins, and demand an exorbitant remuneration.

Winding sheets (kafan) and other linen washed in the waters of Zamzam, are constantly seen hauging to dry between the columns. Many pilgrims purchase at Makkah the shroud in which they wish to be buried, and wash it themselves at the well of Zamzam, supposing that, if the corpse be wrapped in linen which has been wetted with this holy water the peace of the soul after death will be more effectually secured some pilgrims make this linen an article of traffic

Makkah generally, but the mosque in particular, abounds in flocks of wild pigeous which are considered to be the inviolable property of the temple, and are called the pigeons of the Baitu 'llah Nobody datos to kill any of them, even when they enter the private houses. In the square of the mosque, several small stone basins are regularly fided with water for their use here, also, Arab women expuse for sale, upon small straw mats, dorn and durrah which the pilgrims purchase, and throw to the pigeous. I have seen some of the public women take this mode of exhibiting thomselves, and of hargaining with the pilgrims, under pretence of selling them coin for the sacred pigeous.

The gates of the mosque are maeteen in number, and are distributed about it, without any order or symmetry. The principal of these gates are on the north side, Babu s Salain, by which every pilgrim enters the mosque Babu I Abbas, Babu n Nabi, by which Muhammad is said to have always entered the mosque, Babu Ali On the east side Babu Zu, or Babu l'Ashrab, through which the ten first adherents of Mu hammad used to enter, Babu 's Safa, two gates called Bibanu 'sh Sharif opposite the palaces of the Shaif On the south side Babu Ibrahim, where the colonnade projects beyond the straight line of the columns, and forms a small square, Babu I Umrah, through which it is necessary to pass, on visiting the Unirah On the west side Babu z-Ziyadah, forming a projecting square sımılar to that at Bübu İbrāhim, but larger

Most of these gates have high-pointed arches, but a few round arches are seen among them which, like all the arches of this kind in the Hijāz, are nearly semiculular. They are without any orniment, except the inscription on the exterior, which commemo rates the name of the builder, and they are all posterior in dato to the fourteenth century. As each gate consists of two or three arches, or divisions, separated by narrow walls, these divisions are counted in the enumeration of the gates leading into the Ka'bah, and thus make up the number thirty-nine.

There being no doors to the gates, the mosque is consequently open at all times. I have crossed at every hour of the night, and always found people there, either at prayers or walking about

The outside walls of the mosque are those of the houses which surround it on all sides. These houses belonged originally to the mosque, the greater part are now the property of individuals, who have purchased them. They are let out to the richest pil-grims, at very high prices, as much as five hundred plastres being given during the pil grimage, for a good apartment, with windows opening into the mosque Windows have, in consequence, been opened in many parts of the walls, on a level with the street, and above that of the floor of the colonnades Pilgrims living in these apartments are allowed to perform the Friday's prayers at home, because, having the Kabah in view from the windows they me supposed to be in the mosquo itself, and to join in prayer those assembled within the temple Upon a level with the ground floor of the colonnades, and opening into them, are small apartments formed in the walls, having the appearance of dungeons, these have remained the property of the mosque, while the houses above them belong to private individuals. They are let out to watermen who deposit in them the Zamann jars, or to less opulant pilgrims who Some of the wish to live in the mosque surrounding houses still belong to the mosque, and wore originally intended for public schools, is their name of Madiasali implies, they are now all let out to pilgrims. In one of the largest of them, Muhammad 'Ali Pasha hved , in another Hasan Pasha

Close to Babu Ibrāhīm is a largo madra sab, now the proporty of Saiyid Ageyl, one of the principal morchants of the town, whoso walebouse opens into the mosque. This person, who is aged, has the reputation of great saictity, and it is said that the hand of the Sharif Gliālib, when once in the act of collaring him for refusing to advance some money, was momentarily struck with palsy He has evening assembles in his house, where theological books are read, and religious topics discussed

Among other buildings forming the enclosure of the mosque, is the Mihkam, or house of justice, close by the Bābu 'z-Ziyādah, it is a tine, firmly-built structure, with lofty arches in the interior, and has a low of high windows looking into the mosque. It is inhabited by the Qāzī Adjoining to it stands a large Madrasah enclosing a square, known by the name of Madrasah bulaimān, built by Sultān Sulaiman and his son Salīm II, in AH 973. It is always well filled with Furkish pilgrims, the friends of the Qūzī, who disposes of the lodgings.

The exterior of the mosque is adorned with seven minareta, irregularly distributed 1 Minaret of Bābu '1-'Umrah, 2 of Bābu 's-Salām, 3 of Bābu '1-'Umrah, 2 of Bābu 's-Salām, 3 of Bābu '1-'Wadā', 5 of Madrasah Kail Beg, 6 of Bābu '2-Ziyādalı, 7 of Madrasah Sultān Sulaiman They are quadrangular or round steeples, in no way differing from other minarets The entrance to them is from the different buildings round the mosque, which they adjoin. A beautiful view of the busy crowd below is obtained by ascending the most northern one (Taken, with slight alterations, chiefly in the spelling of Arabic words and names, from Burckhardt's Travels in Arabia vol 1 p 248)

Mr Sale says "The temple of Mecca was a place of worship, and in singular veneration with the Arabs from great antiquity, and many centuries before Muhammad Though it was most probably dedicated at first to an idolatrous use, yet the Mnhamma dans are generally persuaded that the Kabah is almost coeval with the world, for they say that Adam, after his expulsion from Paradise, begged of God that he might erect a build ing like that he had seen there, called Baitu'l Ma'mur, or the frequented house, and al Durah towards which he might direct his prayers, and which he might compass, as the angels do the celestial one Whereupon God let down a representation of that house in curtains of light, and set it in Mecca, perpendicularly under its original, ordering the patriarch to turn towards it when he prayed, said to compass it by way of devotion Adam's death, his son Seth built a bouse in the same form, of stone and clay, which being destroyed by the Deluge, was rebuilt by Abraham and Ishmael at Gods command in the place where the tormer had stood, and after the same model, they being directed therein by revelation.

"After this edifice had undergone several reparations, it was, a few years after the birth of Muhammad, rebuilt by the Quraish on the old foundation, and afterwards re-paired by Abdullah Ibr Zubair, the Khalif of Mecca, and at length again rebuilt by Ynsuf, surnamed at Hijaj Ibn Yusuf in the seventy-fourth year of the Hijrah with some alterations, in the form wherein it now remains Some years after, however the Khalif Harun al Rashid (or, as others write, his father al Mahdi, or his grandfather al Mansur) intended again to change what had been altered by al Hijaj, and to reduce the Kabah to the old form in which it was sett by Abdullah but was dissuaded from med dling with it, lest so holy a place should become the sport of princes, and being newmodelled after everyone's fanoy, should lose that reverence which was justly paid it But notwithstanding the antiquity and holiness of this building, they have a prophecy by tradition from Muhammad, that in the last times the athiepians shall come and utterly demolish it, after which it will not be rebuilt again for ever" (Prel Dis, p 83)

The following are the references to the Sacred Mosque in the Qur'an — Sürah in 144, 145 "From whatever place thou comest forth, then turn your face towards the Sacred Mosque, for this is a duty enjoined by thy Lord, and God is not mattentive to your doings And from whatever place thou comest forth, then turn thy face toward the Secred Mosque and wherever ye be, to that part turn your faces that men have no cause of dispute against you the rates of God, nor the excred month, ner the offering, nor its ornaments, nor those who press on to the Sacred Mosque, seeking favour from their Lord and His good pleasure in them " Sûrah viii. 33-35" But God chose not to Sürah v 2 "O Believers! violate neither chastise them while thou wast with them, nor would God chastise them when they sued for pardon But because they debarred the faithful from the Sacred Mosque, albeit they are not its guardiens, nothing is there on their part nhy God should not chastise them God-fearing only are its guardians, but most of them know it not And their prayer at the house is no other than whistling through the fingers and clapping of the hands-'Tasto then the torment, for that ye have been unbelievers."

Surab 12 7 "How shall they who add gods to God be in league with God and with His Apostle, save those with whom ye made a league at the Sacred Mosque? So long as that are true to you, be ye true to them, for God lovelh those who fear Him

Surab in 28 "O Behevers! only they who join gods with God are unclean! Let them not therefore, after this their year, come near the Sacred Mosque And if ye fear want, God, if He please, will enrich you of His abundance for God is Knowing, Wise"

Surah xvii 1 "Glory be to Him who car-ried his servant by night from the Sacred Mosque to the temple that is more remote (1 e Jornsalem), whose precinct we have blessed, that we might show him of our signs ! for He is the Hearer the Seer "

Sūrab xxii 25 "From the Sacred Mosque which we have appointed to all men, alike for those who abide therein and for the stranger'

Surah xhun 25 "These are they who behered not, and kept you away from the Samed Mosque, as well as the offering which was prevented from reaching the place of BRCTILICA

Surab xlvm 27 " Now hath God in truth made good to His Apostle the dream in which he said, 'Ye shall surely enter the Sacred Mosque, if God will, in full security, having your heads shaved and your hair cut ye shall not fear, for He knoweth what ye know not, and He hath orduned you, beside this, a speedy victory

المسجد) "AL-MASJIDU 'I -JĀMI (المسجد A title given to the chief mosque of any city in which people assemble for the Friday prayer and khutbah [KHUTBAH]

MASJIDU 'L-KHAIF A mosque at Mina, three (الحيف miles from Makkah Here, according to the Arabs. Adam is buried "his head being at one end of a long wall and his foet at another, whilst the dome covers his omphalic region (Burton's Prlyrimage vol 11 p 203)

MASJIDU 'N-NABĪ (مسجد السي)
"The Prophet's Mosque" at al Madinah. It is held to be the second mosque in Islam in point of semority, and the same, or, according to others the first, in dignity, ranking with the Sacred Mosque at Makkah

The following is Captain R P Burton's

account of its history -

"Muhammad ordered to erect a place of worship there sent for the youths to whom it belonged and certain Ansar, or auxiliaries, their guardians, the ground was offered to him in free gift, but he instead upon purchasing it, paying more than its value. Having caused the soil to be levelled and the trees to be felled, he laid the foundation of the first mosque

"In those times of primitive simplicity its walls were made of rough stone and unbaked bricks, and trunks of date-trees supported a palm-stock roof, concerning which the Archangel Gabriel delivered an order that it should not be higher than seven cubits the elevation of Solomon's temple. All ornament was strictly furbidden. The Ansar, or men of Medinah, and the Muhājirīn, or fugitives from Mecca, carried the building materials in their arms from the cemetery Baki', near the well of Alvüb, north of the spot where Ibrahim's mosque now stands, and the Prophet was to be seen aiding them in their labours, and reci ng for their encouragement

O Allah! there is no good but the good of futurity,

Then have meroy upon my Ansar and Muhājuin."

"The length of this mosque was fifty-four cubits from north to south, and sixty-three in breadth, and it was hemmed in by houses on all sides save the western. Till the seventeenth month of the new ors, the congregation faced towards the northern wall. After that time a fresh 'revelution' turned them in the direction of Makkah—southwards; on which occasion the Archangel Gabriel descended and miraculously opened through the hills and wilds a view of the Ka'bah, that there might be no difficulty in ascertaining | its true position |

MASJIDU 'N NARL AT AL-MADINAH (Captain R Burton)

"After the capture of Khaibar in A H 7, the Prophet and his first three successors restored the mosque, but Muslim historians do not consider this a second foundation Muhammad laid the first brick, and Abu Huravrah declares that he saw him carry heaps of building material piled up to his breast. The Khallitahs, each in the turn of his succession, placed a brick close to that laid by the Prophet, and uided him in raising the walls. Tabrani ielates that one of the Ansar had a house adjacent, which Muhammad wished to make part of the place of prayer the proprictor was offered in exchange for it a home in Paradise, which he gently rejected, pleading poverty. His ax cuse was admitted, and 'Usmen after pur chasing the place for 10,000 dirhams, gays t to the Prophet on the long credit originally offered. The mosque was a square of 100 cubits Lake the former building, it had three one on the south side, where the Mihrābu 'n-Nabawi or the 'Prophet's niche,' now 18, another in the place of the present Babu , Rahmah and the third at the Babu 'Usman, now called the " Gate of Gabriet." Instead of a mihrah or prayer niche, a large block of stone, directed the congregation At first it was placed against the northern wall of the mosque and it was removed to the southern when Makkah became the Qiblan In the beginning the Prophet, whilst presening the khutbah or Friday sermon, leaned, when fatigued, against a post The mimber, or pulpit, was the invention of a Madinah man of the Banu Najjar It was a wooden frame, two cubits long by one broad, with three steps, each one span high, on the topof these the Prophet sat when he rel rest The pulpit assumed its present about AM. 90, during the artistic reign .Hd

this mosque Muhammad apent the er part of the day with his companions, instructing, and comforting the Hard by were the abodes of his wives, amily, and his principal friends. Here ayed, hearkening to the Azan or devocali, from the roof. Here he received lly envoys and embassies, and the heamessages conveyed by the Archangel is and within a few yards of the hall spot, he died, and found, it is supposed, he theatre of events so important to i, could not be allowed—especially as no decree forbade the change -to remain pristine lowbness The first Khalifah uted himself with merely restoring some palm pillars, which had fallen to the 'Urner, the second successor, sured the Hujrah, or 'Ayishah's chamber, ich the Prophet was buried, with a mud and in A.H 17, he enlarged the mosque ) cubits by 120, taking in ground on all except the eastern, where stood the s of the 'Mothers of the Moslema' ru 'l-Mu'minin) Outside the northern he erected a suffah, called Batha-a bench of wood, earth, or stone, upon the people might recreate themselves conversation and quoting poetry, for the se was now becoming a place of peculiar ence to men.

he second Masjid was erected AH 29 e third Khalifah, Usman, who, regard f the clamours of the people, overthrew d one, and extended the building greatly ds the north, and a little towards the but he did not remove the eastern limit count of the private houses He made of of Indian teak, and erected walls of and carved stone. These unovations I some excitement, which he allayed by ig a tradition of the Prophet, with one ich he appears perpetually to have been red The saying in question was, acto Safa, it verily would still be my ie', according to others, 'Were the et a mosque extended to Zu 'l-Hulafa', it still be his' But 'Usman's skill in the mon of tradition did not prevent the unlding being in part a cause of his It was finished on the 1st Muharram,

, length, Islam, grown splended and ful, determined to surpass other nations magnificence of its public buildings 88, al-Walid the First, twelfth Khalifah Bani Umayah race, after building the Jami-Masjid of the Ommiades at Das, determined to display his liberalty Madinah. The governor of the place, ibn'Abdu'l-Asīz, was directed to buy for dinars all the hovels of raw brick that i in the eastern side of the old mosquawers inhabited by descendants of the Prophet and of the early Khalifaha, and in more than one case, the ejection of the holy tenantry was effected with considerable difficulty. Some of the women (ever the most obstinate on such occasions) refused to take money, and 'Umar was forced to the objectionable measure of turning them out of doors with exposed faces in full day. The Greek Emporer, applied to by the magnificent Khalifah, sent immense presents, silver lamp chains, valuable curiosities, forty loads of small cut stones for pietra-dura, and a sum of 80,000 dinars, or, as others say, 40,000 mishkals of gold. He also despatched forty Coptic and forty Greek artists to carve the marble pillars and the casings of the walls, and to euperintend the giding and the mosaic work.

"One of these Christians was beheaded for sculpturing a hog on the Qiblah wall, and another, in an attempt to defile the roof, fell to the ground, and his brains were dashed out 'Inc remainder apostatized, but this did not prevent the older Arabs murmuring that then mosque had been turned into a kanisah (or Church) The Hujrah, or chamber, where, by Muhammad s permission, 'Irra'il, the Angel of Death, separated his soul from his body, whilst his head was lying in the lap of Ayishah, his favourite wife, was now for the first time taken into the mosque The raw brook enceinte which surrounded the taree graves was exchanged for one of carred stone, enclosed by an outer precinct with a narrow pissage between Those double walls were either without a door, or had only a small blockedup wicket on the northern side, and from that day (A 11 90), no one has been able to approach the sepulchre A minaret was erected at each corner of the mosque The building was enlarged to 200 cubits by 167 and was finished in AH 91 When Walid, the Khalifah, visited it in state, he inquired of his heutenant why greater magnificence had not been displayed in the erection, upon which 'Umar informed him, to his astonishment, that the walls alone had cost 45,000 dinars

"The fourth mesque was erected m A.H. 191, by al-Mahdi, third prince of the Banu 'Abbas or Baghdad khalifahs—celebrated m history only for spending enormous sams upon a pilgrimage. He enlarged the building by adding ten handsome pillars of carved marble, with gilt capitals, on the northern side. In A.H. 202, al-Ma'mun made further additions to this it was from al-Mahdi's Maspid that Hakim in Amri llah, the third Fatimite Khalifah of Egypt, and the deity of the Druse sect, determined to stoal the bodies of the Prophet and his two companions. Abdut A. 412, he sent emissaries to al-Madinah, the attempt, however, failed, and the would be violators of the tomb lost their lives. It is generally supposed that Hakim's object was to transfer the visitation to his own capital, but in one so manifestly means it is difficult to discover the spring of action. Two Christians habited like Maghrabi pilgrims, in A.H. 550, dug a mine from a neighbouring house into the temple They were discovered, beheaded, and burned to ashes In relating these events, the Muslim historians mix up many foolish preternaturalisms with credible matter At last, to prevent a recurrence of such sacrilegious ettempts Mäliku'l 'Adil Nüru d-din, of the Baharite Mamluk Sultans or, according to others, Sultan Nuru'd-din Shahid Mahmud bin Zengi, who, warned he a vision of the Prophet, had started for il-Madinah only in tune to discover the two Christians, surrounded the holy place with a deep trouch, filled with molten lead By this means Abu Bakr and 'Umar, who had run onesderable rsks of their own, have even since been enabled to occupy their last home undisturbed

"In A H 654, the fifth mosque was erected in consequence of a fire, which some authors attribute to a volcano that broke out close to the town in terrible eruption, others, with more fanaticism and less probability, to the schismatic Banu Husain, then the guardians of the tomb On this occasion the Hujiah was saved, together with the old and vener able copies of the Qur'an there deposited, especially the Cufic MSS written by Teman, the third Khalifah like puty of tince some reigns, Musta's un (last Khalit ih if Baghd id) Musathr Shems-ud din Yusuf chuf f Yaman, and Zühir Beybars, Bih iiite Sultan of Egypt, completed the work in Att 688 This building was cultiged and constitued by the princes of Egypt, and lasted upwerds of

200 years
"The sixth mosquo was ouilt alme vas it now stands, by Kaid Bey nineteenth Sultan of the Circasi in Mamluk kings of Egypt in An 888 Murt it me mosque had been struck by lightning during a storm, thirteen men were killed at prayer, and the destroying element spared nothing but the interior of the Hujrah Theruline are dome were restored mehes and a pulpit were sent from Cairo, and the gatee and minarets vere distributed as they are now Not content with this, Kaid Bey established 'waqi' (hoquests) and pour sions, and introduced order among the attendants on the tomb. In the tenth century, Sultan Sulaiman the Magnificont paved with fine white marble the Rauzah or garden, which Kuld Bey, not daring to alter, had left of earth and orecte the fine minaret that bears his name During the domin on of the later Sultans and of Mohammad Ali a few trifing presents of lamps, carpets, wax candles, and chandeliers, and a few immaterial alterations have been made" (See Personal Narrative of a Principle of the Education of the Company of the Medical Company of the Personal Narrative of the Principle of the Principle of the Principle of the Principle of the Principle of the Principle of the Principle of the Principle of the Principle of the Principle of the Principle of the Principle of the Principle of the Principle of the Principle of the Principle of the Principle of the Principle of the Principle of the Principle of the Principle of the Principle of the Principle of the Principle of the Principle of the Principle of the Principle of the Principle of the Principle of the Principle of the Principle of the Principle of the Principle of the Principle of the Principle of the Principle of the Principle of the Principle of the Principle of the Principle of the Principle of the Principle of the Principle of the Principle of the Principle of the Principle of the Principle of the Principle of the Principle of the Principle of the Principle of the Principle of the Principle of the Principle of the Principle of the Principle of the Principle of the Principle of the Principle of the Principle of the Principle of the Principle of the Principle of the Principle of the Principle of the Principle of the Principle of the Principle of the Principle of the Principle of the Principle of the Principle of the Principle of the Principle of the Principle of the Principle of the Principle of the Principle of the Principle of the Principle of the Principle of the Principle of the Principle of the Principle of the Principle of the Principle of the Principle of the Principle of the Principle of the Principle of the Principle of the Principle of the Principle of the Principle of the Principle of the Principle of the Principle of the Principle of the Principle of the Principle of the Principle of the Principle of the Principle of the Principle of the Principle of the Principle of th nah and Meccah by Ruhard F Burton, 2nd edition vel 1 p 345)

MASJIDU 'T-TAQWA ( Lit "The Mosque of Piety" (التقوي The mosque at Quba', a place about three miles south east of al Madinah It was here that it is said that the Prophete camel, al-Qaswa rested on its way from Makkah to al-Madinah, on the occasion of the Flight And when Muhammad decired the Compamons to meunt the camel, Abu Bakr and Umar did so, but she still remained on the ground, but when Alī obeyed the order, she arese Here the Prophet decided to erect a place for It was the first mosque erected in prajo. It was the first mosque erected in Islam Muhammad laid the first brick, and with an iron javelin marked out the direction for prayer The Prophet, during his resi-dence at al-Madinah, used to vieit it once a week on foot, and he always made a point of praying there the morning player on the 17th of Ramazan A prayer in the mosque of Quba' is said to be equal in merit to a Lesser Pilgrimage to Makkah and the place itself bears rank after the mosques of Makkah and al-Madinah and before that of Jerusalem It was originally a square building of very small size, but the Khalifah Usman enlarged it Sultan 'Abdu 'l-Hamid rebuilt the place, but it has no pretensions to grandeur (See Burton's Pilgrimage, vol 1 p 390)

MASNUN (مسنوى) That which is founded upon the precept or practice of Muhammad [SUNNAH]

"The Strong" (المتين) The Strong (as a fortification is strong) One of the unity-nine names or attributes of God It occurs in the Qur'an, Sunah li 58 "God is the provider, and wed with power the Strong"

(متن) MATN The text of a book The notes, or commentary upon the text are called the shark \ word frequently used by Muhammadans in the ologic il books

MA'UDAH (مودودة) From wa' to burs alive " A damsel buried alive From wa'ad. ustom which existed before the time of hammad in ancient Arabia, but which forbidden by him Surah xvii 83 'Kill not your children from lear or want' See also Surahs xvi 61, lxxxi 8

MAULĀ (حولى), pl mawālī A term used m Muslim law for a slave, but m the Quram for "s protector or helper," te God Almighty

Sürah viii 41 "Know ye that God is your protector"

Surah 11 386 "Thou (God) art our pro-

Surah xlv11 12 "God is the protector of those who believe "

The plural form occurs in the Qur'an, Surab IV 37, where it a translated by Palmer thus "Tol everyone have we appointed kınsfolk" (mawali) MAULAWI (مولوي) From maula, lord or master " A term generally used A term generally used for a learned man.

MAULID (a, or a number or saint The birth. especially of a prophet or saint The birth-day of Muhammad, which is known as Maulidu 'n-Nabi, is celebrated on the 12th of Rabī'u 'l-Awwal It is a day observed in Turkev and Egypt and in some parts of Hindustan, but not in Central Asia, by the recital of numerous gikrs, and by distribution of alms

Mr Liane, in his Modern Egypticas, vol. in p. 171, gives the following specimen of a zikr recited in the Maulidu 'n-Nabi "O God bless our lord Muhammad among the latter generations, and bless our lord Muhammad in every time and period, and bless our lord Muhammad among the most exalted princes, unto the Day of Judgment, and bless all the prophets and apostles among the inhabitants of the heavens, and of the earth, and may God (whose name be blessed and exalted) be well pleased with our lords and our masters, those persons of illustrious estimation, Abū Bakr, and 'Umar, and 'Usman, and 'Ali, and with all the other favourites of God God is our sufficiency, excellent is the Gnardian And there is no strength nor power but in God, the High, the Great. O God, O our Lord, O Thou liberal of pardon, O Thou most bountiful of the most bountiful, O God

MĀ'U 'L-QUDS (ماء القدس) Lif Sufis for such holy influences on the soul of man as enable him to overcome the lusts of Razzāq's Dict of Suf i Terms)

AL-MA'UN (upelal) Lit "Necessaries" The title of the CVIIth bursh of the Qur'an, in the last verse of which the word OCCUTS

MAUT (wyw) "Death" Heb.

The word is always used in מות. the Qur'an in its literal sense, meaning the departure of the spirit from the body eq. Sürah ii 182 "Every foul must taste of death" But amongst the Süfis it is employed in a figurative sense, e.g. al mautu 'l-abyaz' or the white death," is held to mean abstinence from food, or that feeling of hunger which purifies the soul A person who frequently abstains from food is said to have entered this state of death Al-mautu 'l-akhzaı " the green death," the wearing of old clothes in a When a person state of voluntary poverty has given up wearing purple and fine linen, and has chosen the garments of povorty, he is said to have entored this state of death Al-mustv 'l-aswad 'the black death,' the reluntary taking up of trouble, and anbmit-ing to be evil spoken of for the truth's sake When a Muslim has learnt to submit to such troubles and persecutions, he is said to have entered into this state of doath (See 'Abdu h-Razzāq's Dict of Sūfi Terms) [MAHAT]

MA'ZUN (صالوں) A licensed or A slave who has received privileged slave a remission of all the inhibitions attending his state of bondage

MEAT, FOOD.

MECCA MYKRYH"

Arable Jawa' (193) MEDICINE The only medicine recommended in the Qu'ran is honey See Surah xvi 71 'From its (the bee's) bell, ometh with a fluid of vary ing hues, which vieldern medicine to man?

MEDINA [AL-MADINAR] MEDITATION MURAQABAH ]

MENSTRUATION Arabic mahis سيض) The catamenia, or menses, 18 termed hay: The woman in this condition is called ha'ız or ha ızah All books of Muham madan the clogy contain a chapter devoted to the treatment of women in this condition. During the period of menstruction, women are not permitted to say their prayers, or to touch or read the Qur'an, or enter a mosque, and are forbidden to their husbands. But it is related in the traditions that Muhammad abrogated the law of Moses which set a menstruous woman entirely apart for soven days. (Leviticus xv 19) And Anas says that when the sews heard this they said, "This man opposes our customs in everything"

(See Quran, Sürah .1 222, Michkatu'l Masabih, Hamilton's ed vol. i. p. 121 Arabic ed Babu'l Hazz)

When the period of menses ceases, bathing must be performed and prayer said

MERCY Arabic Rahmah ( ) Heb בחם. The attribute of mercy is specially monitioned in the Qur'an as one which characterizes the Divine Being, each chapter of that book ( with the exception of the 1xth) beginning with the superscription, Besmellahe '-Rahmane 'r-Rahm," In the name of God the Merciful, the Compassionato" In the Tulen 1-Rauli it is said that ar-Rahman 19 July uprlicable to God whilst ar-Rahim may be applied to the creature as well as to God but the Jalalan say the two terms are synonymous, and on this account they are used together Al Barrawi remarks that the attribute of merel expresses "softness of heart' (eqquite l yalb), and "a turning with kindness and favour towards a person," and in this way it expresses God's sympathy with mankind, although the terms are not strictly applicable to an unchangeable Being In the Quran Job is described as speaking of God as "the most merciful of merciful ones" Surah xx: 83) And the argels who bear the throne, and those around it who celebrate Cod's praisos cry out 'Our Lord! thou dust embrace all things in morey and knowledge!" (Sund xl 7) The "freasuries of the mer-cies of the Lord," are often referred to in the Pur an (e y Surahs xvn. 102, xvm 81) The word Ruhmah, "a mercy" is a term used for a divine book, it is irequently applied to the Qurun, which is called 'a mercy and a guid ance '/Surahs x 58, xvii 84), and also to the books of Moses (Surahs xi 20, xii 111) le one place it is used for Paradise, "They are in God's meier," when in 10d) The bounty or God mercy is the constant theme both of the Qur an and the Traditions, eg Sürah vii 155 "My morey embraceth every hing" To despair of (tod's mercy is a cardinal sin buigh xxxiv 54 "Be not in despuis of the merry of God venil, God forgives ains, all of them Surah xv 56 On'v those who err despin of the carry of their Lord.

In the Traditions, Muhammad is related to have said "When God created the world He wrote a book, which is with Him on the exaited throne, and therein is written, 'Verily my mercy overcomes my anger'" And, again, "Verily, God has one hundred mercies, one mercy hath he sent down to men and genii, but He hath reserved ninety nine mercies, by which He will be gracious to His people" (Mishkat, book x ch 4)

The Lyth Surah of the Qur'an is entitled

The Lvth Surah of the Quran is entitled the Suratu's Rahman, or the "Chapter of the Merciful," in which are set forth the 'bonnties of the Lord" It is a chapter which is sadly marred by its concluding description of the sensual enjoyments of Muhammad's para

qrae

The Christians are spoken of in the Qur'an, Sürsh lyu. 27, as those in whose hearts God "placed mercy (rahmah) and compassion (ra fah)"

MICHAEL In Muhammadan works generally, the Archangel Michael is called Mikā'il (Jalan), Heb his name once occurs, he is called Mikāl (Jalan) Al Baizāwi savs that a Jew named 'Abdu llah ibn Sūrīya', objected to Muhammad's assention that the Archangel Gabriel revealed the Qur'ān to him, because he was an avenging angel, and said that if it had been sent by Michael, their own guardian angel (Dainel zu 1), they might have believed This assortion called forth the following verses from Muhammad in Sūrah ii 92—

"Whose is the enemy of Gabriel—For he it is who by God's leave hath caused the Quranto to descend on try heart, the confirmation of previous revelations, and guidance, and good tidings to the faithful—Whose is an enemy to God or his angels, or to Gabriel, or to Michael, shall have God as his enemy for verily God is an enemy to the initides Moreover, clear signs have we sent down to thee, and none will disbelieve them but the pervorse "

MIDIAN [MADYAN]

MIFTAHU 'L-JANNAH (الهناه) "The Key of Paradiso" A term used by Muhammad for prayer (Mishkat, book in ch 1)

MIHJAN () A hook-headed stick about four rest long, which, it is said, the Prophet always carried, now carried by men of religious pretensions

MIHRAB (—). A niche in the centre of a wall of a mosque, which marks the direction of Makkah, and before which the Imam takes his position when he leads the congregation in prayer. In the Masjidu in Nabi, or Prophet's mosque, at al-Madinali, a large black atone, placed against the northern wall, facing Jerusalem, directed the congregation, but it was removed to the southern side when the Qiblah was changed to Makkab

The Mihrab, as it now exists, dates from the days of al-Walid (A.E. 90), and it seems probable that the Khalifah borrowed the idea

A MIIIRAB

A MIBRAB (W S Chadwick)

from the Hindus, such a niche being a peculiarly Hindu feature in sacred buildings

The word occurs four times in the Qur'an, where it is used for a chamber (Sürahs iii. 82, 83, xix 12, xxxviii 20%, and its plural, mahārib, once (Sürah xxxiv 12)

MIKA'IL (ميكاليل) [MICHAEL.]

MILLAH (ab) A word which occurs in the Qur'an fifteen times Eight times for the religion of Abraham (Sūrahs ii 124, 129, iii 89, iv 124, vi 162, xii. 38, xvi. 124, xxii 77), twice for the religion of former prophets (Sūrahs xiv 16, xxvviii 6), once for the religion of the seven children of the cave (Surah xviii 19), three times for idelatrous religions (Sūrahs xii. 37, vii 86, 87) and once for the religion of Jews and Christians (Sūrah ii 114) The word is need in the Traditions for the religion of Abraham (Mishkāt, book x ch. v.)

(Mishkāt, book x ch. v).

According to the Kitābu 't-Ta'rīfāt, it is expressive of religion as it stands in relation to the prophets, as distinguished from Din ((Mi)), which signifies religion as it stands in relation to God, or from Magkab ((Mi)), which signifies religion with reference to the learned doctors. [RELIGION] Sprenger and Deutsoh have invested the origin and mean ing of this word with a certain amount of mystery, which is interesting

Dr Sprenger says (Das Leben und die Lehre des Mohammad, vol in p 276 n) —" When Mohammad speaks of the religion of Abraham, he generally uses the word Mella (Millah) and not Dis. Arabian philologists have tried to trace the meaning of the word from their mether tongue thus, Malla (Mallah) signifies fire or hot askes in Arabic and Zaggag says (Thalaby, vol n. p 114), that religion is called Mills because of the impression which it makes, and which may be compared to that which fire makes upon the oread baked in ashes Since the Arabs ate unable to give a better explanation, we must presume that milla is a foreign word, imported by the teachers of the 'Milla of Abraham" in the Hijaz Philo considered Abraham the chief promoter of the doctrine of the Unity of God, and doubtless, even before Philo, Jewish thought, in tracing the doctrine of the true religion, not only as far back as Moses, but even to the father of theu nation, emancipated the indispensability of the form of the law, and so prepared the road to Essaism and Christianity

Mr Emanuel Deutsch, in his article on Islam (Laterary Remains, p. 130), says word used in the Quran for the religion of Abraham is generally Milla Sprenger, after ridiculing the indeed absurd attempts in ide to derive it from an Arabic root, concludes that it must be a foreign word introduced by the teachers of the 'Mills of Abrah int into the Hijaz He is perfectly right Milla = Meinra -Logos, are identical, being the Hebrew, Chaldee (Targum, Peshito in slightly varied spelling), and Greek terms respectively for the 'Word,' that surrogate for the Divine name used by the Targum, by Philo by St This Mills or Word, which Ahraham proclaimed, he, who was not an astrologer but a prophet, teaches a cording to the Hag gadah, first of all, the existence of one God, the Croator of the Universe, who rules this universe with mercy and lovingkindness

MILK Arabie laban (الر) The sale of milk in the udder is unlawful (Hido yah, vol' ii p 433) In the Qui an it is men tioned as one of God's special gits "Verify ye have in cattle a lesson we give you to diink from that which is in their belies be twixt of yine and blood—pure milk—easy to swallow for those who drii " (Suri h xei 68)

MINA (حنى) Let "A wish" A sacred valley near Makkah, in which part of the Pilgrimage ceremonies take place According to 'Abdu T Haqq, it was so called because Adam wished for paradise in this valley

MINARET. [MANABAH]

MINDAH. Generally pronounced mimbar (منبر) The pulpit in a mosque from which the khutbah (er sermon) is recited. It consists of three steps, and is sometimes a moveable wooden structure, and sometimes a fixture of blick or stone built against the wall. Muhammad, in addressing the congregation, stood on the uppermost

A MIMBAR IN AN INDIAN MOSQUE (W & Chadwick)

step, Abu Bakr on the second, and Umar on the third or lowest 'Uman fixed upon the middle step, and since then it has been the custom to preach from that step. The Shraha have four steps to their mimbars

The minitars in the mesques of Cairo are

(IV S Chadwick)

elevated structures, but in Asia they are of a more primitive character

Burton says "In the beginning the Prophet leaned, when fatigued, against a post, whilst preschang the khutbah or Friday sermon. The mimbar, or pulpit, was an invention of a M. dinah man of the Banu Najjār. It was a wooden frame, two cubits long by one broad, with three steps, each high, on the topmost of these the Prophet eat when he required rest The pulpit assumed its present form about AH 90, during the artistic reign of El Walid."

A MIMBAR IN MOSQUES AT PESHAWAR

MINES Arabic ma'din (معدن), pl ma'ādis In Zakāt, mines are subject to a payment of one fifth. (Hidāyah, vol 1 39)

MINHAH (منحة) A legal term for a portion of camel's or sheep's milk which another is allowed to draw, but afterwards to restore the animal to its original owner

MINORITY [PUBERTY]

MĪQĀT ("") Lit "A stated time, or place" The stations at which Makkan pilgrims assume the ihrām or "pilgrim's garment" Five of these stations were established by Mu'nammad (Mishkāt, book xi ch i pt 1), and tho sixth has been added since to suit the convenionce of travellers from the East They are as follows (1) Zu'l-Hulafā', for the pilgrims from al Madīnah, (2) Juhfuh, for Syria, (3) Garnu l-Manāzil, for Najd, (4) Yaulamlam, for Yaman, (5) Zāt i-liq, for 'liāq (6) Ibrahim Muisia, for those who arrive hy soa from India and the east

The putting on of the ilitam at Jerusalem is highly mentiorious, according to stradition which says, "The Prophet said, Whoever wears the ibram for haji or unital, from the Mashidu I Aqsa (te the Temple at Jerusalem) to the Mashidu I-Haram, shall be forgiven for all his past and future sins (Mishkat, book u ch i pt 2)

MIR ()—) A title of respect used for the descendants of celebrated Muhammadan saints More generally used for Saivids or descendants of Fatimah, the Prophet's daughter

miracles Supernatural powers given to men are spoken of by Muslim lexico graphers as khariqu "l'adat (solul 3,14), or things contrary to custom" in Muslim theology they are expressed by eight forms (1) Iyah (15), pl ayat, a sign", the only word used in the Qur an for n r track (se Sur ibs xiii 27 xxix 49, ii 2) (2) Murrah (beach), pl murizat, making weak or feeble," or that which renders the adversaries to the truth weak and feeble, a term used only for miracles prformed by prophets (3) Irhās (رهاص), pl. irhāsāt ht. "laying a foundation", used for any miracle performed by a prophet before his assumption of the prophetical office (4) Aleman (6.12), pl 'alāmāt, " a sign," the same as äyah, and used for the signs of the coming Resurrection. (5) Karāmah (2015), pl. karāmāt, lit "beneficence", wonders wrought by saints for the good of the people as well as in proof of their own saintship (6) Ma'unah (dise), pl ma'unañ, lit "help or assistance," used also for the wonders wrought by saints (استدراع) (استدراع), ht "promoting by degrees", a term employed to express the miracles wrought by the assistance of the Devil with the permission of God (8) Ihahah (& lat) pl. ihanai, lit "contempt", miracles wrought by the assistance of the Devil, but when they turn out to the disdain and contempt of the worker

It does not appear from the Qur'an that Muhammad ever claimed the power of working miracles, but, on the contrary, he asserted that it was not his mission to work signs and wonders in proof of his apostleship. This seems to be evident from the following verses.

m the Qur'an -

Surah xxix 49 "They say, Why are not signs (ayat) sent down to him from his Lord? Say Signs are in the power of God alone, and I am only an open warner"

Surah xiii 27-30 "And they who believe not say Why is not a sign (ayah) sent down to him from his Lord? Say God truly misleadeth whom He will, and guideth to Himself him who turneth to Him If there were a Qur'an by which the mountains would be set in motion, or the earth cleft by it, of the dead be addressed by it, they would not believe"

Sürah xvn 92-97 "And they say, By no means will we believe on thee till thou causo a fountain to gush forth for us from the earth, or till thou have a garden of palm trees and grapes, and thou cause gushing rivers to gush forth in its midst, or till thou make heaven to fall upon us, as thou hast given out in pieces, or thou bring God and the angols to wouch for thee, or thou have a house of God, or thou mount up into heavon, nor will we believe in thy mounting up until thou send us down a book which we may read Say Praise be to my Lord? Am I more than a mau, and an apostle? And what hindereth men from believing, when the guidance hath come to them, but that they say, Hath God sout a more man as an apostle? Say Did angels walk the earth as its familiars, we had surely sent them an angel-apostle out of beaven'

But notwithstanding these positive assertions on the part of thoir Prophet against his ability to work miracles, there are at loast four places in the Qur'an where the Muhammadans believe that miracles are referred to 1 The clefting of the moon (Sürah liv 1, 2)

The hour hath approached, and the moon hath been cleft But if the unbelievers see a sign (ayah), they turn aside and say, Magie l hat shall pass away i"

Al-Baizawi says, in his commentary on this verse, "Some say that the unbelievers demanded this sign of the Prophet, and the noon was cleft in two but others say it rofers to a sign of the coming Resurrection, the words 'will be cleft' being expressed in he prophetic preterite"

Rodwoll renders it "hath been cleft," as he thinks Muhammad may possibly allude to some meteor or comet which he fancied to be part of the moun

2 The assistance given to the Muslims at he battle of Badr Sürah in 120, 121 When thou didst say to the saithful 'Is it not enough for you that your Lord aideth you with three thousand angels sent down 'rom on high?' Nay, but if we be steadfast and tear God, and the foe come upon you in 100 haste, your Lord will help you with five bousand angels with their distinguishing orke "

These 'distinguishing marks' gay the commentators, were when the angels rode on black and white norses and had on their beads white and yellow turbans the ends of which hung down between their shoulders

3 The celebrated light journey Surah kwi 1 "We declate the glory of Him who transports his servant by night from the Masjidu 'l-Haram to the Masjidu 'l-Aqsa (1 e rom Makkah to Jerusalem)

4 The Qur'an itself which the Muhamma dans say is the great muscle of Islam, the ike of which has not been created, nor ever will be, by the power of man In proof of the they quote Sûrah xxix 48 "It is a slear sign (avah) in the nearts of whom the knowledge nath reached"

Although these very doubtful assertions in the Qur'an fail to cetablish the miraoulous powers of the Propher, the Traditions repord numerous occasions when he worked miracles in the presence of his people

The following are recorded in the traditions of al-Bukhāri and Mushm

(1) On the flight from Makkah, Suraqah being cursed by the Prophet, his horse sank up to its belly in the hard ground

(2) The Prophet marked out at Badr the exact spot on which each of the idolaters should be elsin, and Anas says not one of them passed alive beyond the spot marked by the Prophet

(3) He oured the broken leg of 'Abdu lish bn Ata by a touch

(4) He converted hard ground into a heap of sand by one stroke of an axe.

(5) He fed a thousand people apon one kid and a ga of barley

(6) He gave a miraculous supply of water at the battle of al-Hudaibiyah

(7) Two trees miraculously moved to form shade for the Prophet

(8) He made Jaber a good horseman by his prayers

(9) A wooden pillar wept to such an extent that it nearly rent in two parts because the Prophet-desisted from leaning against it

(10) A sluggish horse became swift from being ridden by the Prophet (11) Seventy or eighty people mirsoulously fed on a few barley loaves and a little butter (12) Three hundred men fed from a single cake

The following are recorded by various writers

(1) The Prophet was saluted by the hills and trees near Makkah, with the salutation, "Poace be to thee, O Messenger of God!"

(2) A tree moved from its place to the shade when the Prophet slent under it

(3) The Prophet cured a maniacal boy by saying "Come out of him" (4) A woll was made to speak by the Prophet (For surther information, see Kitabu 4-Mu'jızāt Sahihu l-Bukhārı, Mishkātu 'l-Masābah' Sahihu Muslim)

MI'RAJ (معراع) Lat "An ascent" Muhammad's supposed journey to heaven, called also Isra (اسرى), "the nocturnal journey" It is said to have taken place in the twelfth year of the Prophet s mission in the month of Rabien 'l Awwai

According to 'Abdu I-Haqu, there are some divines who have regarded this miraculous ovent as a more vision, but, he adds, the majority hold it to be a literal journey

The only mention of the vision in the Qur'an is contained in Surah xvu 1 "Praise he to Him who carried His servant by night from the Masjidu 'I-Haram (se the Makkan temple) to the Masjidu 'l-Aqsa (1 e the Temple of Jerusalem)

The following is the description of the supposed journey givon in the Mishkatu '-Macabih Muhammad is related to have said -

"Whilst I was alceping upon my sido, no (Gabriel) came to me, and cut me open from my breast to below my navel and took out in heart, and washed the cavity with Zam zam water, and then filled my heart with Faith and Science After this a white animal was brought fo ue to ride upon Its size was between that of a mule and an ass and it stretched as far as the eye could see The name of the animal was Buraq Then 1 mounted the animal, and ascended until we arrived at the lowest heaven, and Gabriel demanded that the door should be opened it was asked, 'Who is it?' and he said, 'I am Gabriel' And they then said, 'Who is with you?' and he answered, It is Munammad' They said, 'Has Muhammad been called to the office of a prophet? He said, They said, 'Welcome Muhammad He said, Yes ' coming is well' Then the door was opened, and when I arrived in the first heaven, behold, I saw Adam. And Gabriel said to me, This is your father Adam, salute him Then I saluted Adam, and he answered it. and said, 'You are welcome, O good son, and good Prophet! After the Gabriel took me above, and we reached the second heaven, and he saked the door to be opened, and it was said, 'Who is it? He said, 'I am Gabriel' It was said, 'Who is with yon? He said, 'Muhammad It was said, 'Was he called?' Ho said, 'Yes' It was said, 'Welcome Muhammad his coming is well' Then the door was opened, and when I arrived in the second region, behold, I saw John and Jesus (sisters' sons) And Gabriel said, 'This is John and this is Jesus, salute both of them' Then I saluted them, and they returned it After that they said, 'Welcome good brother and Prophet' After that we went up to the third hoaven, and asked the door to be opened, and it was said, 'Who is said, 'Who is with you?' He said, 'Muhain-mad' They said, 'Was he called?' Gabiiol said, 'Yea' They said, 'Wolcome Muham mad, his coming is well' Then the door was opened, and when I entered the third heaven. behold, I saw Joseph And Gabuel said, 'This is Joseph salute him' Thou I did so and he answered it, and said, 'Welcome, good brother and good Prophet' After that Ga briel took me to the fourth heaven, and asked the door to be opened, it was said, 'Who is that?' He said, 'I am Gabriel' It was said, 'Who is with you?' He said 'Muhammad' It was said, 'Was he called' He said 'Yes' They said 'Welcome Muhammad, his coming his well' And the door was opened, and when I entered the fourth heaven, behold, I saw Enoch And Gahriel said, 'This is Enoch salute him' And I did so, and he answered it, and said, 'Welcome, good brother and Pro phet' After that Gabriel took me to the fifth heaven, and asked the door to be opened. and it was said, 'Who is there?' He said, 'I am Gabrie!' It was said, 'Who is with you?' Ho said, 'Muhammad' They said, 'Was he called?' He said, '1es' They said, Welcome Muhammad, his coming is well. Then the door was opened and when I arrived in the fifth region, behold I saw Asion And Cabriel said, 'This is Asron, salute him' And I did so, and he re-turned it, and said, 'Welcome good brother and Prophet' After that Gabriel took me to the sixth heaven and asked the door to be said 'I am Gabriel' They said, 'And who is with vou?' He said, 'Muhammad' They said, 'Is be called!' Ho said, 'Yos' They said, Welcome Muhammad his coming is well' Then the door was opened, and when I entered the sixth heaven, behold, I saw Moses And Gabiiel said, This is Moses, salute him.' And I did so, and he returned it, and said . Melcome, good brother and Prophet' And when I passed him, he wopt And I caid to him, 'What makes you weep?' He said, 'Because one is sent after me, of whose people more will enter Paradisc than of mine After that Gabriel took me up to the seventh heaven, and asked the door to be opened, and it was said, 'Who is it?' He eaid, 'I am Gabriel' And it was said, 'Who is with am Gabriel And II was said, 'Wilo is with you?' He said, 'Muhammad.' They said, 'Was he called!' He said, 'Yea.' They said, 'Welcome Muhammad, his coming is well.' Then I entered the seventh heaven, and behold, I saw Abraham. And Gabriel said, 'Thie is Abraham, your father, sainte him', which I did, and he returned it, and said, 'Welcome good son and good Prophet' After that I was taken up to the tree called Sidratu 'l Muntaha, and behold its fruits were like water pots, and its leaves like elephant's ears And Gabriel said, 'This is Sidratu 'I-Muntaha' And I saw four nivers there, two of them hidden, and two manifest I said to Gabriel, 'What are these?' He said, 'These two concealed rivers are in Paradise, and the two manifest are the Nile and the Euphrates After that, I was shown the Bartu 7-Mamur After that a vessel full of wine, another full of milk, and another of honey, were brought to me, and I took the milk and drank it And Gabriel said, 'Milk is religion you and your people will be of it"

After that the divine orders for prayers were fifty every day Then I returned, and passed by Moses, and he said, 'What have you been ordered?' I said 'Fifty prayers every day' Then Moses said, 'Verily, your people will not be able to perform fifty prayers every day, and verily, I swear by God, I tried men before you, I spplied a remedy to the sons of Israel, but it had not the desired effect. Thon return to your Lord, and ask your people to be released from that And I returned, and ten prayers were taken off Then I went to Moses, and he said as before, and I returned to God's court, and ten prayers more were curtailed Then I retuned to Moses, and he said as before, then I e-turned to God's court, and ten more were taken off And I went to Moses, and he said as before, then I returned to God, and ten inoic were lessened. Then I went to Moces and he said as before, then I went to God's court, and was ordered five prayers every day Then I went to Moses, and he said 'How many have you been ordered?' I said 'Five prayers overy day' He said, 'Verily your people will not be able to perform five prayers every day, for, verily, I trust men before you, and applied the severest remedy to the sons of Island Then return to your Lord, and ask them to be lightened' I said, · I have asked Him till I am quite ashamed, I cannot return to Him again But I am satisfied, and resign the work of my people to God' Then, when I passed from that place, a crier called out, I have established My divine commandments, and have made them easy to My servants"

Suratu 'l-Mi'ra; is a title of the xviith chapter of the Qur'an, in the first verse of which there is a reference to the night journey of Muhammad It is called also the Suratu Bani Isia'il, or the Chapter of the Children of Israel

MIRAS (موراث [INHERITANCE]

MIRZA (ميرزا) A title of respect given to persons of good family

MIRZABAH, MIRZABBAH (4) "A clod-arusher." The iron hammer with which the dead are beaten who cannot reply satisfactorily to the questions put to them by Munkar and Nakir, Called also Mitragah (Al) [PUNISHMENTS OF THE CRAYE]

MIŞĀQ (سينان). "A covenant" A word used in the Qur'an for God's covenant with his people [COVENANT]

مشكوة) MISHKĀTU 'L MASABIḤ المعابيع) A well-known book of Sunni tradition, much used by Sunni Muslims in India, and frequently quoted in the present work. It was originally compiled by the Imam Husam al-Baghawi, the celebrated commentator, who died AH 510 or 516, and called the Masabshu's-Sunnah, or the "Lamps of the Traditions" In the year AH 737 Shaikh Waliyu 'd din revised the work of al-Baghawi, adding an additional chapter to ach section, and called it the Mishkatu 'l-Masabih, or the "Niche for lamps" In the time of the Emperor Akbar, Shaikh 'Abdu 'I Haqq translated the work into Persian, and added a commentary (See Kashju'z-Zunun, en loco ) MISKIN (مسکیر) "A poor per-Heb. Eccles ix 15, 200. According to Muslim law, a person who has no property whatever, as distinguished from a faqir ( , or a person who possesses a little property, but is poor (Hidayah, vol i p 54)

MISQAL (منقال) Aα Arabic weight, which frequently occurs in Muham-madan law books Richardson gives it at a dram and three-sevenths It is also used for a gold coin of that weight [MONEY]

[LGYPT] (مصر) MISR

MISWAK (مسواك) (1) 4 toutholeaner made of woo mbout a same and It is preferred when made of a word which has a bitter da voor The Salvado-a Indica is the tree, the wood of which is used in India

(2) The act of cleaning the tee h, which is a religious ceremony founded upon the example of Muhammad, and forms the first part of the wazu, or 'ablution before prayer"

The Prophet was , particularly careful in the observance of miswāk (see Mishkāt, book mi. ch 4) It is amongst those things which are called fitrah (q :

The iron MITRAQAH ( ستولم) hammer or mace with which the infidels will bs smitten in their graves by the angels Munkar and Nakir Persian gurz [PUNISH-MENTS OF THE GRAVE.

(مسان) MIYAN A Persian word, used as a title of respect for the descendants of celebrated Muhammadan saints

MIZĀN (مسيسوال ), pl mawazin Lit "A balance" Heb pl ロリれか. (1) The law contained in the Qur'an, Sürah zin 16 "Ged in He who hath sent down the Book with trnth and the balance." (2) The senies in which the actions of all men shall be neighed Sürah xm 47 "Just balances will be set up for the Day of the Resurrection, neither shall any soul be wronged in aught, though, were a work but the weight of a grain of mustard seed, we would bring it forth to be weighed and our reckoning will suffice."

Muhammad is related by 'Abdu 'lish ibn Ami to have said "Verily, God will bring Muslim into the presence of all men on the Day of Judgment, and will show him ninetymine large books and each book as long as Then God will say to the eye can reach him, 'Do you dent anything in these books? Have my writers injured you?' And the Mushn. will say, 'O my Lord, I deny nothing that is in them' Then God will say, 'Have you any excuse ' And he will sav, 'No' Then God will say, I have good news for yon, for there is no oppression in this day' Then God will bring forth a piece of paper, on which is written 'I bear witness that there is no derty but God, and I bear witness that Muhammad is His servant and apostle And God will say, 'Go and weigh your actions.' And the Muslim will say, 'What is this bit of paper compared with those large books? And God will say, 'This bit of paper is neavy, we ghit' Then the books will be put in the sca'e, and the bit of paper m the other, and the books containing the actions will be light, and the bit of paper, whereon is written the creed of the Muslim, will be heavy" (See Collection of Hadis by at-Tirmizi)

The commentators say that the scales will be held by the angel Gabriel, and that they art of so vast a size, one hangs over Paradise, and the other over Hell, and they are capacious enough to contain both heaven and Though some are willing to undercarth stand what is said in the Traditions concerning this balance sliegorically, and only as a figurative representation of God's equity, yet the more ancient and orthodox opinion is that it is to be taken literally, and since words and actions, being mere accidents, are not capable of being themselves weighed, they say that the books wherein they are written will be thrown into the scales, and according as those wherein the good or the evil actions are recorded shall preponderate, sentence will be given, those whose balances laden with their good works shall be heavy, will be saved, but those whose balances are light, will be condemned. Nor will anyone have onuse to complain that God suffers any good actions to pass unrewarded, because the wicked obtain rewards for the good they do in-the present life, and therefore can expect no favour in the next.

The old Jewish writers make mention of the books to be produced at the Last Day, wherein men's actions are registered, as of the balance wherein hey shall be weighed, and the Bible riself seems to have given the first notion of both. But what the Persian Magi believe of the balance comes nearest to the Muhammadan opinion. They hold that on the Day of Judgment, two angels, named Mihr and

tý

Sornah will stand on the bridge between heaven and hell, and examine every person as he passes , that the former, who represents the divine mercy, will hold a balance in his hand, to weigh the actions of men, that, acsording to the report he shall make thereof to God, sentence will be pronounced, and those whose good works are found more ponderous, if they turn the ecale but by the weight of a hair, will be permitted to pass forward to Paradise, but those whose good works shall be found light, will be, by the other angel, who represents God's justice, precipitated from the bridge into hell

MODERATION Arabic agtisad (التمالا) According to Muhammad's teaching, moderation in all religious matters is better than excessive plety, and a chapter in the Traditions is devoted to the subject He is related to have said -

"The best act in God's sight is that which is constantly attended to, although in a small degree "

"Do what you are able conveniently, because God will not be tired of rewarding as long as you are not tired of doing"

"You must dontinue at your prayers as long as it is agreeable to you and when you are tired sit down "

"Versiy, religion to easy, therefore hold it firm." (See Mishkat, Babu 'l-Iqtisad)

MODESTY (Arabic haya' ala) is frequently commended in the traditional sayings of Muhammad, who m related to have said .

" Modesty is a branch of faith "

"Verily, modesty and faith are joined to-gether" (Mishkat, book axis ch arx)

MUNASTICISM (Arabic rahbāmiyah رهبانيا) was forbidden by Muhammad. It is related in the Traditions that 'Usman ibn Maz'un came to the Prophet with the request that he might retire from society and become a monk (rahib) Prophet replied, "The retirement which becomes my people is to sit in the corner of a mosque and west for the time of prayer"

(Michkat, book w ch. 8)
In the Quran, the Christians are charged with inventing the monestic life Surah lvil. 27, "We gave them the Gospel, and we put into the hearts of those who follow him, kindness and compassion, but as to the monastic hee, they envented it themselves"

According to the Hedayah (vol u. p 215), capitation tax is not to be imposed upon Rahibe, whether Christian or Pagan, but this is a matter of dispute

MONEY There are three coms mentioned in the Qur'an, (1) Quntar (, bus) (2) Dinar (ديمار), (8) Dirham (ديمار), pl Darāhım.

(1) Qenter Sürah iii. 68 "Among the people of the Book are those to one of whom, if you entrust a quater, he will restore it."
In the Quiwis, it is said that a quater was a gold noin of the value of 200 dmars, but

Muhammad Tahir, the author of the Mayma l-Bihâr (p. 178), says it implies a very co siderable sum of money, as much gold as w go into the hide of a cow It is general translated talent.

Surah in 68 "There a (2) Dînar those to whom, if thou entrust a dinar, the will not restore it to thee " It was the den

rius, or a small gold com

(8) Dreham Surah xil 20 "And the sold him for a mean price, dirhams count out" A silver drachma [QINTAR, DINA

DIRHAM, WEIGHTS ]
Mr Prinsep says "The silver (supya, silver piece), now current in Musli countries, was introduced, according to Abt fazel, by Sher Shah, who usurped the thro of Delhi from Humayoon in the year 154 Previous to his time, the Arabic dirhim (silv drachma), the gold dinar (denarius auri), at the copper fulcos (folks), formed the currency of the Moghul dominions Sher Shak rupee had on one side the Muhammad creed, on the other the emperor's name at the date in Persian, both entircled in an a nular Hindee inscription Since the sar com was revived and made more pure, Akber's reign, we may assume the origin weight of the rupes, from Abulfazel's stat ment, to have been 111 mashas Akbe square rupes, called from its inscription tillaly, was of the same weight and value. This coin was also called the chahar-yare from the four friends of the Prophet, Ab bekr, Omar, Osman, Alı, whose names a macribed on the margue. This rupes is su posed by the vulgar to have talismanic power

MONOGAMY Although pol gamy is sanctioned in the Qur'an, the work "and if ye fear that ye cannot be equitab then only one" (Surah iv 8), would soem imply a leaning to monogamy, as the safe and most discreet form of matrimony suthor of the Akhlaq-1-Jalah says "Excel ing, indeed, in the case of kings, who mar to multiply offspring, and towards whom t wife has no alternative but obedience, pl rality of wives is not defensible their case it were better to be cautious, i husband and wife are like heart and bor and like as one heart cannot supply life two bodies, one man can hardly provide f the management of two homes" (Thompsoi English Translation, p 266)

MONOPOLY Arabic (احتكار) A monopoly of the nece saries of life (as, for example, the hoardi up of grain with the object of raising price) is forbidden in Muhammadan law the Prophet has said:

"Whoever monopolizeth is a sinner" "Whosoever keepeth back gram for days, in order to increase its price, is both forsaker of God, and is forsaken of God (Meskkat, book zu ch z . Hedayak, vol. p. 114)

MONTH Arabic shahr (,44), I shuher The months of the Muhammadan ye are lunar, and the first of the month is reckoned from the sunset immediately succeeding the oppearance of the new moon (held) The names of the new moon (held) The names of the months are (1) Muharram منه (2) Safar غير (3) Rabī'u 'l Akhır المنه الأمر الأمر الأمر (4) إليح الأمر (5) Jumāda 'l-Ulā جمالي الأمر (6) Jumādā 'l-Ukhrā مالي الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراكية الأمراك معبان (7) Rajab ، وحب , (8) Sha'bān ألاعوى (9) Ramaṣan وحمان , (10) Shawwāl (11) كن العمدة (12) كن العمدة (12) كن العمدة (12) كن العمدة (12) كن العمدة (12) كن العمدة (13) Four of these months are held to be sacred, namely, Muharram, Rajab, Zū'i-Qa'dah, Zū 'l-Hijah, and according to the teaching of the Qur'an (Surah ız 36), it is not lawful for Muslims to fight during these months, except when they attack those " who join other gods with God, even as they attack von one and all "

The names of the months seem to have been given at a time when the intercalary year was in force, although Muslim writers assume that the names were merely given to the months as they then stood at the time when they were so named For a discussion of the formation of the Muhammadan year, the reader is referred to that article [YEAR]

(1) Muharram is the first month in the Muhammadan calendar, and is so called because, both in the pagan ago and in the time of Muhammad, it was held unlawful (harain) to go to war in this month It is considered a most suspicious month, and Muhammad is related to have said, "Whosoever shall fast on Thursday, Friday, and Saturday m this month, shall be removed from hell fire a distance of seven hundred years journey, and that he who shall keep awake the first night of this month, shall be forgiven all the sins of the past year, and he who shall fast the whole of the first day, shall be kept from sin for the next two years" (Hanisu 'l- Watzin, p 154) The first ten days of this month are observed in commemoration of the martyrdom of al-Hussin, and the tenth day in the 'Ashūrā' fast

(2) Safar, the second month, is supposed to derive its name from safir, "empty," either because in it the Arabians went forth to war and left their homes empty, or, according to Rubeh, because they left whom they attacked empty According to some writers, it was so named from sufar, "yellowness," because when it was first so called, it was autumn, when the leaves bore a yellowish tint. (Vide Lane's Arabic Dict, Chyagu'l-Luchah.) It is held to be the most unlucky and inauspicrous month in the whole year, for in it, it is said, Adam was turned out of Eden. (See Hansu'l-Waszin.) It was during this month that the Prophet was taken ill, but his partial recovery took place on the last Wednesday

(8) Rabiu 'l-Awwal, and (4) Rabiu 'l-Ather, the first and second spring months, are said to have been so named when the calendar was first formed, and when these months occurred in the spring Muhammad died on the 12th day of the Rabi'u 7-Awwal (5) Jumacā '1-Mā and (6) Jumādā 'l-Ukārā, are the fifth and sixth months, about which there is some discussion as to the origin of the name Mr Lane, in his Dictionary, says the two months to which the name Jamādā (freezing) is applied, are said to be so called because, when they were so named, they fell in the season of freezing water, but this derivation seems to have been invented when the two months thus named had fallen back into, or beyond, the winter, for when they received this appellation, the former of them evidently commenced in March and the latter ended in May Therefore, I hold the opinion of M Caussin de Perceval, that they were thus called because falling in a period when the earth had become dry and hard, by reason of paneity of rain, jamad being an epithet applied to land upon which ram has not fallen, which opinion is confirmed by the obvious derivation of the names of other months (See Lane's Arabic Dict in loco )

(7) Rayab, the "honoured" month, so called because of the honour in which the month was held in the Times of Ignorance, masmuch as war was not permitted during this month. The Prophet is related to have said that the month Rajab was like a snowy white fountain flowing from heaven itself, and that he who fasts on this month will drink of the waters of life It is called Rapab-i-Musar, because the Muzar tribe held it in high esteem It is usual for religious Muslims to spend the first Friday night (se our Thursday night) of this month in prayer

(8) Sha'ban, the month of separation
(called also the Shahru n-Nubi, the Prophot's month"), is so called because the anciont Arabians used to separate, or disperse themselves, in this month in search of water (for when the months were regulated by the solar year, this month corresponded partly to June and partly to July), or, as some say, for predatory expeditions. On the fifteenth day of this month as the Shab-a-Barat, or "Night of Record," upon which it is said that God registers annually all the actions of mankind which they are to perform during the year, and upon which Muhammad enjoined his followers to keep awake the whole night and to repeat one hundred rak'ah prayers [SHAB I-BARAT]

(9) Ramazan, the ninth month of the Muhammadan year, is that which is observed as a strict fast. The word is derived from ramz, "to burn," because it is said that, when the month was first named, it occurred in the hot season, or because the month's fast is supposed to burn away the sum of men. (See Ghryasu 'l-Lughah) The excellence of this month is much extelled by Muhammad, who said that during this month the gates of Paradise are opened, and the gates of Hell shut. (Mishkat, book vii chap. i sec 1) [RAMASÁN]

(10) Shumwal, ht "a tail," is the tenth month of the lunar year, and, according to Arabio lexicone (see Chyanu 'l-Lughah, Qāmus, &c), it is so called because, when first named, it coincided with the season when the she-camels, being aven or eight months gone with young, raised their sils, or, because it was the month for hunting The Arabs used to say that it was an unlucky mouth in which to make marriage comracts, but the Prophet ignored their thus auguring, and marised Ayishah in this rionth the 'Idu' -Fier, or "the Feast of Breaking the Fast," occurs on the first of this month (11) Zü'l-Qu'dah, or the month of truce, is the eleventh month, and so called by the ancient Arabs, because it was a month in which warfare was not conducted and in which the people were ongaged in peaceful occupations.

(12) Zu 'l-Hijjak, the month of he Pil grimage, is the last month of the Muham madan calendar. It is the month in which the pilgrimage to Makkah must bu made a visit to the sacred city at another time having in no way the merits of a pilgrimage. The Hap, or "Pilgrimage," is performed, pon the seventh, eighth, minth, and tenth of turn the seventh of turn the seventh of turn the seventh of turn the seventh of turn the seventh of turn the seventh of turn the seventh of turn the seventh of turn the seventh of turn the seventh of turn the seventh of turn the seventh of turn the seventh of turn the seventh of turn the seventh of turn the seventh of turn the seventh of turn the seventh of turn the seventh of turn the seventh of turn the seventh of turn the seventh of turn the seventh of turn the seventh of turn the seventh of turn the seventh of turn the seventh of turn the seventh of turn the seventh of turn the seventh of turn the seventh of turn the seventh of turn the seventh of turn the seventh of turn the seventh of turn the seventh of turn the seventh of turn the seventh of turn the seventh of turn the seventh of turn the seventh of turn the seventh of turn the seventh of turn the seventh of turn the seventh of turn the seventh of turn the seventh of turn the seventh of turn the seventh of turn the seventh of turn the seventh of turn the seventh of turn the seventh of turn the seventh of turn the seventh of turn the seventh of turn the seventh of turn the seventh of turn the seventh of turn the seventh of turn the seventh of turn the seventh of turn the seventh of turn the seventh of turn the seventh of turn the seventh of turn the seventh of turn the seventh of turn the seventh of turn the seventh of turn the seventh of turn the seventh of turn the seventh of turn the seventh of turn the seventh of turn the seventh of turn the seventh of turn the seventh of turn the seventh of turn the seventh of turn the seventh of turn the seventh of turn the seventh of turn the seventh of turn the seventh of turn the seventh of turn the seventh of turn the seventh of turn the seventh of turn the seventh of turn the seventh of turn the seventh of turn the seventh of turn the seventh of turn the seventh of turn the seventh of tur month The Idu l-Azhā, or Fenst of Sacrifice, Tis held on the tenth [HAJJ]

MORTGAGE [IJARAH]

MOON Arabic gamar (منه) The moon is frequently mentioned in the Qui'an Muhammad on three occasions awears by it (Surahs inniv 85, innaiv 18, xer 2), and it is easid to have been set in the heavens for a light (Surahe z 5, lxxi 15), to run to its appointed goal (Surahs xxxv 14, xxxix 7), and that it will be eclipsed at the Day of Judgment (Surah lxxv 8) The Livth Surah of the Quran, which is entitled the Suratu'l-Comar, begins with a reforence to the splitting of the moon which is a matter of controversy It reads "The hour draws nigh and the moon is eplit asunder But if they see a sign, they turn saids and say magic Al-Baizāwī refere it to a miracle, and says the unbelievers having asked Muhammad for a sign, the moon appeared to be cloven in twain. But the most natural explanation of the passage is, that the expression refers to one of the signs of the Resurrection.

At an eclipse of the moon, a devout Muslim is expected to recite a two rak'sh

prayer

MOORS The name given to the Muhammadan conquerors of Spain, en account of their having come from the ancient Mauri, or Mauretania, now known as the Empire of Morocco. The word Maurs is supposed to have been derived from the Alexandrian word μαυροί, "blacks" (See Smith's Dict of Greek and Roman Geography Mouretanea)

MOSES. Arabic Mūsā (روسيه). Heb According to Muhammadanism, he is one of the six great prophets who founded dispensations, and to whom the Taurat was revealed. Hie special title, or kalimah, is Kalemu 'llah, " One who conversed with God" A lengthy account is given of his intercourse with Pharach and his dealings with the Chil dren of Israel in the Qur'an, which we take from Mr Lane's Selections, together with the remarks of the Jalalan, al-Bazzawi, and other commentators, in italics (Stanley Lane-l'vole's new ed. of Lane's Selections, p 97)

"We will rehearse unto thee of the history of Moses and Pharach with truth, for the sake of people who believe Verily Pharach exalted himself in the land of Egypt, and divided its inhabitants into parties to serve him He rendered weak one class of them, namely the children of Israel, slaughtering their male children, and preserving alive their females, because one of the distners said unto him, A child will be born among the children of Israel, who will be the means of the loss of thy kingdom,—for he was one of the corrupt doers And We desired to he gracious unto those who had been deemed weak in the land, and to make them models of religion, and to make them the heirs of the possessions of Pharauk, and to establish them in the land of Egy, it, and in Syria, and to show Pharaou and Haman and their forces what they feared And We said, by revelation, from, them unto the mother of Moses, the child abovementioned, of whose birth none knew save his suster, Suckle him and when thou fearest for him cast him in the river Nile, and fear not his verng drowned, nor mourn for his separation, for We will restore him unto thee, and will make him one of the apostles So she suchled him three months, during which he uept not, and then she feared for him, u here fore she put him into an ark pitched within and furnished with a bed for lum, and she closed it and east it in the river Nile by might And the family of Pharach lighted upon him in the ark on the mor row of that night, so they put it before him, and it was opened, and Moses was taken forth from it, sucking walk from his thumb, that he might be unto them eventually an enemy and an afflic-tion, for Pharach and Haman (his Wesser) and their forces were sunners, wherefore they were punished by his hand And the wife of Phuraoh said, when he and his servants had proposed to kill him, He is delight of the eye unto me and unto thee do not ye kill him per-adventure he may be serviceable unto us, or we may adopt him as a son. And they complied with her desire, and they knew not the Consequence.

"And the heart of the mother of Moses, when she knew of his having been lighted upon, became disquieted, and she had almost made him known to be her son, had We not fortified her heart with patience, that she might be one of the believers in Our promise. she said unto his sister Maryam (Mary), Trace him, that thou mayest know his case. And she watched him from a distance, while they knew not that she was his sister and that she was watching him. And We forbade him the breasts, preventing him from taking the breast of any nurse except his mother, before his restoration to her, so his sister eard, Shall I direct you unto the people of a house who will nurse him for you, and who will be faithful unto him? And her offer was arrepted, therefore she brought his mother, and he took her breast so she returned with him to her house, as God hath said, -And We restored him to his mother, that her eye might be cheerinl and that she might not grieve, and that she might know that the promise of God to restore him unto her was true but the greater number of them (that is, of mankind) know not this. And it appeared not that this was his sister and this his mother, and he remained with her until she had weaned him, and her hire was paid her, for every day a deenar, which she took secure it was the wealth of a hostile person She then brought him unto Pharach, and he was brought up in his abode, as God hath related of him in the Chapter of the Poets (Surab xxv1 17), where Pharaoh said unto Moses, Have we not brought thee up among us a child, and hust thou not dwelt among us thirty years of thy life?

"And when he had attained his age of strength (thirty years or thirty and three), and had become of full age (forty years), We bestowed on him wisdom and knowledge in religion, before he was sent as a prophet, and thus do We reward the well-doors. And he entered tne city of Pharach, which was Munf [Memphis], after he had been absent from him a while, at a time whon its inhabitants were inadvertent, at the hour of the noon-sleep, and he found therein two men fighting, this being of his party (namely an Israelste), and this of his enemies, an Egyptian, who was compelling the Israelite to carry firewood to the kitchen of Pharach without pay and he who was of his party begged him to aid him against him who was of his enemies So Moses said unto the latter. Let him go And it is said that he replied to Moses, I have a mind to put the burden on thee And Moses struck him with his flet, and killed him But he intended not to kell him, and he buried him in the sand He said, This is of the work of the devil, who hath excited my unger, for he is an enemy unto the son of Adam, a manifest misleader of He said, in repentance, O my Lord, verily I have acted injuriously unto mine own soul, by killing him, therefore forgive me So He forgave him for He is the Very Forgiving, the Merciful -He said, O my Lord, ny the favours with which Thou hast favoured me, defend me, and I will by no means he an assistant to the sinners after this-And the next morning he was afraid in the city, watching for what might happen unto him on account of the slain man, and lo, he who had bogged his assistance the day before was crying out to him for aid against another Egyptian Moses said unto him, Verily thou art a person manufestly in error, because of that which thou hast done yesterday and to day But when he was about to lay violent hands upon him who was an enemy unto them both (namely unto Moses and him who begged his aid), the latter said imagining that he would lay violent hands upon him, because of that which he had sand unto him O Moses, dost thou desire to kill me, as thou killedst a soul yesterday? Thou desirest not aught but to be an oppressor in the land, and thou desirest not to be [one] of the reconcilers —And the Egyptran heard that so he knew that the killer was

Moses, wherefore he departed unto Pharach and acquainted him therewith, and Pharaok commanded the executioners to slay Moses, and they betook themselves to seek him. But a man who was a believer, of the family of Pharach, came from the furthest part of the city, running by a way that was nearer than the way by which they had come. he said, O Moses, verily the chiefs of the people of Pharaoh are consulting respecting thee, to slay thee; therefore go forth from the city verily I am unto thee one of the admonishers. So he went forth from it in fear, watching in few of pursuer, or for the aid of God. He said, O my Lord, deliver me from the uniust people of Pharach!

"And when he was journeying towards Modyen, which was the city of Shoeyb (Shu'aib), eight days journey from Misr (named after Medyen [Madyan] the son of Abraham), and he knew not the way unto it, he said, Per adventure my Lord will direct me unto the right way, or the midile way. And God a nt unto him an angel, having in him hand a short spear, and he went with him thither. And when he came unto the water (or well) of Medyen, he found at it a company of men watering their animals, and he found besides them two women keeping away their sheep from the water He said unto them (namely the two women), What is the matter with you that ye water not? They answered, We shall not water until the pastors shall have driven away their animals, and our father is a very old man, who cannot water the sheep. And he watered for them from another well near anto them, from which he lifted a stone that hone could lift but ten persons. Then he retired to the shade of an Egyptian thorn-tree on account of the violence of the heat of the sun and he was hungry, and he said, O my Lord, verily I am in need of the good provision which Thou shalt and down unto me And the two women returned unto their father in less time than they were accustomed to do- so he asked them the reason thereof, and they informed him of the person who had watered for them, whereupon he said unto one of them, Call him unto me "And one of them came unto hun, walking bashfully, with the sleeve of her shift over her face, by reason of her abaskment at him she said, My father calleth thee, that he may re compense thee with the reward of thy having watered for us And he assented to her call, disliking in his mind the receiving of the reward but it seemeth that she intended the compensation if he were of such as desired it And she walked before him, and the wind blew her yarment, and her legs were discovered he said unto he , Walk behind me and direct me in the way And she did so, until she cd he unto her father who was Sho'eyb, on whom be peace and with him was prepared a supper He said unto him, Sit and sup But he re plied, I fear less it be a compensation for my having watered for them, and we are a family who seek not a compensation for doing good He said, Nay, it is my custom and hath been the custom of my fathers to entertain the guest and to give food. So he are, and acquainted

And when he had come him with his case unto him, and had related to him the story of his having killed the Egyptian and their enten-tion to kill him and his fear of Phiraoh, he replied, Fear not thou hast escaped from the unjust people. (For Pharaoh had no dominion over Medyen) One of them [namely of the women] said (and she was the one who had been sent), O my father, hire that to tend our sheep in our stead, for the b st whom bou canst hire is the strong, the trustworthy So he asked her respection him, and she acquainted him with what hath been above telated, his lifting up the stone of the well and his saying unto her, Walk behind m - and moreover, that when she had come unto him and he knew of her presence, he hung down his head and raised it not Ho therefore eard, Verily I desire to marry thee unto one of these my two daughters, on the condition that then shalt be a hired servant to me, to tend my sheep, eight years, and if thou fulfil ten years, it shall be of thine own will and I desire not to lar a difficulty upon thee by imposing as a condition the ten years thou shalt find me, if God, please, one of the just, who are faithful to their covenants. He replied, This be the covenant between me and thee, whichever of the two terms I fulfil, there shall be no injustice against me by demanding an addit tion thereto, and God is witness of what we And the marriage contract was concluded according to this, and Sho'cyb ordered his daughter to give unto Moses a rod wherewith to drive away the wild beasts from his sheep and the rods of the prophets were in his posses sion and the rod of Adam, of the myrtle of paradise, fell into her hand, and Moses took it, with the knowledge of Sho and (Surah xxviii 21-28)

"Hath the history of Moses been related to thee? when he saw fire during hes journey from Medyen on his way to Faypt and said unto his family, or his wife Terry ye here, for I have seen fire perhaps I may bring you a brand from it, or find at the tro a guide to direct me in the way. For he had For he had missed the way in consequence of the darkness of the night. And when he came unto it (and it was a bramble bush), he was called to by a voice saying, O Moses, verily I am thy Lord, therefore pull off thy shoes, for thou art in the holy valley of Tuwa And I have chosen thee from among thy people; wherefore hearkon attentively unto that which is reverled unto thee by Me Verily I am God there is no Derty except Me therefore worship Me, and perform prayer in remembrance of Me Verily the hour is coming I will mainfest it unto mankind, and its nearness shall appear unto them by its signs, that every soul may be recompensed therein for its good and evil work therefore let not him who believeth not in it, and followeth his last, hinder thee from believing in it, lest theu perist. And what is that in thy right hand O Mosex?—He an swered it is my rod, whereon I lean and wherewith I best down leaves for my sheep that they may eat them, and I have other uses for it, as the carrying of provision and the water-skan, and the driving away of reptiles. He said, Cast it down, O Moses. So he cast it down and lo, it was a serpent running along God said, Take it, and fear if not we will restore it to its former state And he put his hand into its mouth, whereupon it be came again a rod. And God said, And put thy right hand to the left arm-pit, and take st forth it shall come forth while without evil, (that is without leprosy, shining like the rays of the sun, dazzling the sight,) as another eign, that We may show thee the greatest of our signs of thine apostleship (And when he descred to restore his hand to its first state, he put it as before described, and dreu it forth) Go as an apostle unto Pharaoh and those who are with him for he hath acted with exceed ing implety hy arrogating to himself divinity-Moses said, O my Lord dilate my bosom that it may bear the message, and make my affair easy unto me, and loose the knot of my tongue (this had arreen from his having been burned in his mouth by a live roal when he was a child), that they may understand my speech when I deliver the message And appoint unto me a Wezeer of my family, namely Aaron [Haroon] my brother Strengthen my back by him, and make him a colleague in my affair, that we may glorify Thee much, and remember Thee much, for Thou knowest

"God replied, Thou hast obtained thy petition, O Moses, and We have been gracious unto thee another time forasmuch as We revealed unto thy mother what was revealed, when she gave birth to ther and feared that Pharach would kill thee among the others that were born saying, Cast him into the ark, and then cast him, in the ark, into the river Nile, and the river shall throw him on the shore, then an enemy unto Mo and an enemy unto him (namely Pharaoh) shall take him And I bestowed on thee, after he had taken thee, love from Me, that thou mightest be loved by nien, so that Pharuoh and all that saw thee loved thee, and that thou mightest be bred up in Mine eye Also forasmuch as thy sister Maryam went that she might learn what became of thee, after they had brought nurses and thou hadst refused to take the breast of any one of them, and she said, Shall I direct you unto one who will nurse him? (uhereupon her proposal was accepted, and she brought his mother). so We restored thee to thy mother that her eye might become cheerful and that she might not grieve And thou slewest a soul, namely the Copt in Egypt, and wast sorry for his slaughter, on account of Pharaoh, and We delivered thee from sorrow, and We tried thee with other trial, and delivered thee from it. And thou stayedst len years among the people of Medyen, after thou hadst come thether from Egypt, at the abode of Sko eyb the prophet, and he married thee to his daughter. Then thou camest according to My decree, as to the time of thy mission, when thou hadst attained the age of forty years, O Moses, and I have chosen thee for Myself. Go thou and thy brother unto the manual with the married with the married with the married with the married with the married with the married with the married with the married with the married with the married with the married with the married with the married with the married with the married with the married with the married with the married with the married with the married with the married with the married with the married with the married with the married with the married with the married with the married with the married with the married with the married with the married with the married with the married with the married with the married with the married with the married with the married with the married with the married with the married with the married with the married with the married with the married with the married with the married with the married with the married with the married with the married with the married with the married with the married with the married with the married with the married with the married with the married with the married with the married with the married with the married with the married with the married with the married with the married with the married with the married with the married with the married with the married with the married with the married with the married with the married with the married with the married with the married with the married with the married with the married with the married with the married with the married with the married with the married with the married with the married with the married with the married with the married with the married with the married with the married with the married with the married with the married with the married with the married with the married with the married with the brother unto the people, with My nine signs, and cease ye not to remember Me Go ye unto Pharach, for he hath acted with exceeding implety, by arrogating to himself divinity, and speak unto him with gentle speech, exhorting him to relinquish that conduct peradventure he will consider, or will fear God, and repent (The [mere] hope with respect to the two [result is expressed] because of God's knowledge that he would not repent )-They replied, O our Lord, verily we fear that he may be precipitately vielent against us, hustening to punish us, or that he may act with exceeding musture towards us. He said, Fesr ye not, for I am with you I will hear and will see. Therefore go ye unto him and say. Verily we are the apostles of thy Lord therefore send with us the children of Israel unto Syria, and de not affliot them, but cease to employ them in thy difficult works, such as digging and building, and carrying the heavy burden We have come unto thee with a sign from thy Lord, attesting our veracity in asserting ourselves apostles and peace be on him who followeth the right direction—that is, he shall be secure from punishment Versly it hath been revealed unto us that punishment [shall be inflicted] upon him who chargeth with falsehood that wherewith we have come, and turneth away from it (Surah xx. 8-50)

"Then We sent after them, namely the apostles before mentioned [who were Sho'eyb and his predecessors], Moses, with Our signs unto Pharaoh and his nobles, and they acted unjustly with respect to them, dishelieving in the signs but see what was the end of the corrupt doers And Moses said, O Pharach, varily I am an apostle irom the Lord of the world unto thee But he charged him with false-hood so he said, I am right not to say of God aught but the truth I have come unto you with a proof from your Lord therefore send with me to Syria the children of Israel.— Pharach said unto him, If thou hast come with a sign confirmatory of thy pretension, produce it, if thou be of those who speak truth. So he cast down his rod, and lo, it was a manifest serpent. And he drew forth his hand from his bosom; and lo, it was white and radiant unto the beholders. The nobles and radiant unto the beholders. The nobles of the people of Pharach said, Verily this is a knowing enchanter he desireth to expel you from your land. What then do ye com-mand?—They answered, Put off for a time him and his brother, and send unto the cities collectors [of the inhabitants], that they may bring unto thee every knowing enchanter And the enchanters came unto Pharson. They said, Shall we surely have a reward if we be the party who overcome? He answered. Yea, and verily ye shall be of those who are admitted near unto my person. They said, O Moses, either do thou cast down thy rod, or we will cast down what we have with us He replied, Cast ye. And when they cast down their cords and their rods, they enchanted the eyes of the men diverting them from the true perception of them, and they terrified them, for they imagined them to be zerpents running, and they performed a great en-chantment. And We spake by revelation unto Moses, [saying,] Cast down thy rod. And to, it swallowed up what they had So the trath caused to appear changed was confirmed, and that which they had wrought became vain, and they were over come there, and were rendered contemptible And the enchanters cast themselves down prostrate they said, We believe in the Lord of the worlds, the Lord of Moses and Aaron Pharaoh said, Have ye believed in Him before I have given you permia-sion? Verily this is a plot that ye have contrived m the city, that ye may cause its inhabitants to go forth from it But ye shall know what shall happen unto you at my hand I will assuredly out off your hands and your feet on the opposite sides—the right hand of each and his left foot—then I will crucify you all.—They replied, Verily unto our Lord shall we return, after our death, of whatever kind it be, and thou dost not take vengeance on us but because we believed in the eigns of our Lord when they came unto us Qour Lord, pour upon us patience, and cause us to die Mushmet (Sürah vii 101-128)

"And Pharach said, Let me alone that I may kill Moses, (for they had-diverted him from killing him,) and let him call upon his Lord to defend him from me Verily I toar Lord to defend him from me. Verily I tear lest he change your religion, and prevent your worshipping me, or that he may cause corruption to appear in the earth (that is, slaughter, and other offences) - And Moses and unto his people, having heard this, Verily, I have recourse for defence unto my Lord and your Lord from every proud person who believoth not in the day of account And a man who was a believer, of the family of Pharaoh (it is said that he was the son of his paternal uncle,) who concealed his faith Will ye kill a man because he saith, My Lord 18 God,—when he bath come unto you with evident proofs from your Lord? And if he be a har, on him [will be] the evil consequence of his he, but if he be a speaker of truth, somewhat of that punishment with which he threateneth you will befall you speedily. Verily God directeth not him who is a transgressor, or polytheist, [and] a liar O my people, ye have the dominion to-day, being overcomers in the land of Egypt, but who will defend us from the punishment of God if we kill his favourite servants, if it come unto us?-Pharach said, I will not advice you to do [aught] save what I see to be advisable, which it, to kell Moses, and I will not direct you save into the right way. And he who had believed said, O my people, verily I fear for you the like of the day of the confederates, the like of the condition of the people of Noah and 'A'd and Thamood and those who have lived after them and God willeth not injustice unto His servants And, O my people, verily I fear for you the day of calling (that is, the day of resurrection, when the people of Para-dise and those of Hell shall often call one to another) On the day when ye shall forn back from the place of reckoning unto hell vg. shall have no protector against God And he whom God shall cause to err shall have no director Moreover, Joseph (w no was Joseph the son of Jareb according to one openion, and who lived unto the time of Moses, and Joseph the son of Abruham the son of Joseph the son of Jacob, according to another openion) came unto yon before Moses, with to be in doubt respecting that wherewith he yame unto you, until, when he died, ye said southout proof God will by no means send an apostle after him. Thus God causeth to err him who as a transgressor, or polytheist, [and] a sceptic. They who dispuse respecting the signs of God, without any copyinging proof having come unto them their disputing is very hateful with God and with those who have believed. Thus God ealeth every react (or the whole heart) of a privid contumacious person.

"And Pharnoh said O Haman, build for me a tower, that I may reach the avenues, the avenues of the heavens, and ascend unto the God of Moses, our verily I think him, namely Moses, a lias in his assertion that he hath any god his myself. And thus the wicked noss of his deed was made to seem comely unto Phasach, and he was turned away from the path of restrinde and the artisles of Phuraeh [ended] nov avan loss And he who had belleved and O my people, foliow me. I will direct you into the right way. O my people, this present lite is only a tem potary enjoyment, but the world i como is the mansion of firm continuance Whoseever doelle evil the shall not be recompensed save with the like of it, and whoseever death good whether male or female and is a be hever these shall enter Paradise, they shall he provided for therein without reckoming And O my people, how is it that I invite you unto salvation, and ye invite me un o the Fire? Ye mvite me to deny God, and to associate with Him that of which I have no knowledge, but I myste you me the Mighty, the Very Forgiving [There is] no doubt but that the false gods to the worsh p of which ye invite me are not to be invoked in this world, nor in the world to come, and list our return [shall be] unto God, and that the transgressors shall be the companies of the Fue And ye shall remember when ye see the pumahment, what I say unto jon, and I commit my case unto God, for God serth His servants - Play he said when they three tened him. for opposing their religion Thereford God preserved him from the evils which they had ertraily dovised (namely saughter), and a most evil punishment encompassed the people of Phanach, with Phanack hinself (namely the drowning) then they shall be exposed to the Fire morning and evening, and on the day when the hour [of judgment] shall come, it shall be said unto the angels, Introduce the people of Pharaoh into the most severo pumshment (Surah zi 27-49)

"And the nobles of the people of Pharden said unto him. Will thou let Moses and his pospie go that they may act corruptly in the earth, by inviting to disobey thee, and leave thee and thy gods? (For he had made for them lettle idols for them to vorship, and he said,

I am your Lord and their Lord, -and therefore he said, I am your Lord the Most High) He answered, We will slaughter their male children and will unffer their females to live and verily we shall prevail over them And thus they did unto them, wherefore the children of Israil complianed, and Moses said unto his people, Seek aid of God, and be patient, for the earth velongeth unto God He causeth whomsoes er He will of His servants to inherit it, and the presperous end is for those who fear God They replied, We have been sifficted before thou camest unto us and since thou hast come unto us He said, Perhaps your Lord will destroy your enemy and cause you to auceed [him] in the earth, and He will see how yo will act therem. -And We had punished the family of Pharaoli with dearth and with scarcity of fruits, that they might be admonished and might believe when good bethood them they said, This is curs -that is, we deserve it, -and they were and gratefut for at, and if evil befell them, they iscribed itto the ill luck of Moses and those believers who were with him. Nov, their til luck was only with God, He brought at upon them but the greater namber of them know not this And they said unto Moses, Whatsoever sign thou bring unto us, to enchint us therewith, we will not believe in thee So he uttered on imprecation upo them, and Wo sen' upon them the flood, which en terred ther houses and reached to the throats of the pc sons setting, seven days, and the locusts w'ich ate ther corn and their fruits, and the kummi, or grubs, or a kind of tick which sought ufter what the locusts had left, and the trogs, which filled their houses and their food. and the blood in their waters, distinct signs but they were proud, refusing to believe in them and were a wicked people And when the punishment fell upor them, bey said O Mosey, supplicate for us thy Lord, according to that which He I ath covenanted with thee, namely, that He will wildraw from us the punishment if we believe verily, if thou remove from us the punishment, we will assuredly believe thee, and we will assuredly send with thee the children of largel But when We removed from them the punishment until a period at which they should mine to, they brake their promise Wherefore we took vengeance on them, and drowned them in the sea, because they charged our signs with falsehood and were beedless of them And We caused the people who had been rendered weak, by being en-slused, to inherit the eastern parts of the earth and is western parts, which we blessed with water and trees, (namely Syria), and the gracious word of thy Lord was fulfilled on the budgen of Israel, because they had been Present, and We destroyed the structures which Pherson and his people had built and what they had elected " (Surah vi., 124-

"We brought the children of Israel across the sea, and Pharach and his troops pursued them with violence and hostility, until, when drowning overtook him, he said, I believe that there is no deity but He in whom the children of Israel believe, and I am one of the Muslims. But Gabriel thrust inta his mouth some of the mire of the sea, lest mercy should be granted him, and said, Now thou believest, and thou hast been rebellious hitherto, and wast [one] of the corrupters. But to-day we will raise thee with thy lifeless body from the sea, that thou mayest be a sign unto those who shall come after thee. (It is related, on the authority of Ibn-Abbás, that some of the children of Israel doubted his death, wherefore he was brought forth to them that they might see him.) But verily many men are heedless of Our signs. (Sürah x 90-92)

"And We brought the children of Israel scross the sea, and they came unto a people who gave themselves up to the worship of idols belonging to them, [whereupon] they said, O Moses make for us a god (un idol for us to wership), like as they have gods. He replied, Verily ye are a people who are ignorant, since ye have requited God's favour lowards you with that which ye have said, for that [religion] in which these are [occupied shall be] destroyed, and vain is that which they do He said Shall I seek for you anyother deity than God, when He hath preferred you above the peoples of your time (Surah vil 134-196 )

"And We caused the thin clouds to shade you from the heat of the sun in the desert, and caused the manna and the quals to descend upon you, and said, Eat of the good things which We have given you for food, and store not up—But they were ungrateful for the bone fit, and stored up, wherefore it was cut off from them, And they injured not Us thereby, but they did injure their own souls." (Sürah

n 54.)

"Remember O children of Israel, when ye said. O Mosos, we will not bear patiently the having one kind of tood, the manna and the quarts, therefore supplicate for us thy Lord. that He may produce for us somewhat of that which the earth bringeth forth, of its herbe and its oucumbers and its wheat and its lentile and its onions —he said unto them, Will ye take in exchange that which is worse for that which is better?-But they refused to secede, therefore he supplicated God, and He said, Get we down into a great city for ye shall have therein what ye have asked.—And the marks of abjection and poverty were stamped upon them so these characteristics necessarily belong to them, even if they are rich, as necessarily as the stamped coin belongoth to sts die, and they returned with indignation from God This was because they did dis-believe in the signs of God, and slay the prophets (as Zeoharrah and John) unjustly, this was because they rebelled and did transgress? (Surah ii 58)

And remember when Moses asked drink for his people, who had become thirsty in the desert, and We said, Strike with thy rod the stone. (It was the stone that fled away with his germent it was light, squere, like the head of a man, marble or keilhahan) Accordingly he struck it, and there gushed out from it twelve fountains, according to the number of the tribes, all men (each tribe of them) knowing their drinking place. And We said unto them, Eat ye and drink of the supply of God, and commit not evil in the earth, acting cor

ruptly (Sürah u 57)

"Remember also when We obtained you bond that ye would do according to that which is contained in the Law, and had lifted up over you the mountain, namely Mount Sinai, pulled it up by the roots and raised it over you when ye had refused to accept the Law, and We said, Receive that which We have given you. with resolution, and remember that which is contained in it, to do according thereto peradventure ye will fear the Fire, or acts of disobedience -Then ye turned back after that, and had it not been for the grace of God towards you and His mercy, ye had certainly been of those who permit. And ye know those of you who transgressed on the Sabbath, by catching fish, wher We had forbidden them to do so, and they were the people of Eyleh, and We said unto them, Be ye apes, driven away from the society of men — Thereupon they became such, and they perished after three days -And We made it (namely that punish ment) an example unto those who were con temporary with them and those who came after them and a warning to the pions (Sursh u 60-62)
And We appointed unto Moses thirty nights, at the experation of which We would speak to him, on the condition of his fasting during them, and they were [the nights of the month of] Dhu-l-Kaadeh, and he farfed during them but when they were ended, he dis liked the smell of his breath, so he used a tooth-stick, whereupon God commanded him to fast ten other nights that He might speak to Him with the odour of his breath, as He whose name be exalted hath said, and We completed them by adding ten nights of Dhu-l-Hijjeh so the stated time of his Lord was completed, forty nights. And Moses said unto hie bro ther Aaron, at his departure to the mountain for the private collocution Be thou my deputy among my people, and act rightly and fellow not the way of the corrupt doers by agreeing with them in arts of disobedience And when Moses came at Our appointed time, and his Lord spake unto him without an in termediary, he said O my Lord show me Thyself, that I may see Thee He replied, Thou shalt not see Me but look at the mountain, which is stronger than thou, and if it remain firm in its place, then shalt thou see Mo And when his Lord displayed Himself to the mountain (that is, when there appeared, of Hiz light, half of the tip of Hiz little finger, as related in a tradition which El Hakim hath verified) He reduced it to powder, levelling it even with the ground around it, and Moses fell down m a swoon And when he recovered, he said, Extelled be Thy perfection! I turn unto Thee repenting and I am the dirst of the believers in my time - God said unto him, O Moses. I have chosen thee above the people of thy time by honouring thee, by My commissions and by My speaking unto thee therefore receive what I have given thee, and be of those who are grateful. And We wrote for him upon the tables of the Lau (which were of the lete-tree of Paradise, or of chrysolite, or of emerald, in number seven, or ten) an admonition concerning every requisite matter of religion and a distinct explanation of everything, and said, Therefore receive it with resolution, and command thy people to act according to the most excellent [precepts] thereof (Sūrah vii 138 142)

"And the people of Mosos, after it (that is, after his departure for the private collocution), made of their ornaments (which they had borrowed of the people of Planach), a corporeal calf which his Saviree east for them, and which lowed for he had the faculty of doing so in consequence of their himpaput into its mouth some clust taken from beneath the hoof of the horse of Gobriel, and they took it as a god. Did they not see that it spike not to them, not directed them in the way? Plov took it as a god, and were offender. But when they repented and saw it it they had eried, which was after the return of Moses they said Vorily if our Leid do not have meacy upon us and forgive us, we shall assuredly he of those who perish (Sürah vii 146-148)

"And Moses returned unto his people enraged against them, exceedingly horrowful He said, O my people, did not your Lord promise you a good true promise, that He would give you the lan " But did the time of my absence scen tedious to you, or did ye desire that indignation from your Lord should nefall you, and therefore did ve break your promise to me, and abstain from coning after mer-They answered, We did not break our promise to thee of our own authority, but we were mude to carry loads of the ornaments of the people of Phorach (which the children of Israel had horround of them under pre tence of [requiring them for] a wedding, and which remained in their pushession) and we cast them, no the fire, by order of Es-Samiree And in like manner also Es Samiree cast their or agments which he had, and some of the dust which he had taken from the traces of the hoofs of the horse of Gabriel, and he produced unto them a corporoal call, of flesh and blood which lowed, by reason of the dust, the property of which is to give life to that into which it is put, and he had put it, after he had moulded the calf, most is mouth And they (namely La-Sammer and his followers) eard, This is your god, and tho god of Moses, but he hath forgotton his lord here, and gone to seek him God south But did they not see that it returned them not an answer, nor was able to cause them hurt or profit? Aaron had sawl unto them, before the return of Moses, O my people, we are only tried by it and verily your Lord is the Compas sionate, therefore follow me, by norshipping Him, and obey my command. They replied, We will by n means cease to be devoted to the worship of it until Moses return unto us Moses said after his return, O Aaron, what hindered thee, when thou sawest that they had one astray, from following me? Hast thou then been disobedient to my command by remaining among them who worshipped another than God?-He answered, O con of my mother, seize me not by my beard (for he had taken hold of his beard with his left hand), nor by [the hair of] my head (for he had taken hold of his hair with his right hand, in anger) Verily I feared lest if I followed thee (for a company of those who worshipped the calf would enevitably have followed me) thou shouldst say, Thou hast made a division among the children of Israel, and hast not waited for my sentence Moses said, And what was thy motive for doing as thou hest, O Samireo? He answered, I saw that which they saw not, the efers I took a handful of dust from the foot-marks of the horse of the apostle Galriel, and cast it into the molten calf, and thus my soul allured me to take a handful of the dust above-mentroned, and to cust it upon that which had no life, that it might have life, and I saw that thy people had demanded of thee that thou wouldn't make them a yod, so my soul suggested to me that the calf should be their god. Mores and unto him, Then get thoe gone from among us and [the pumshment] for thee during the period of thy life [shall be], that thou shalt say unto whomsoever thou shalt see, Touch me not -(so he used to wander about the desert, and when he touched anyone, or anyone touched him, they both became affected with a burning fever ) and verily for thee is a threat which thou shalt by no moans find to be false And look at thy god, to the worship of which thou hast continued devoted We will assuredly burn it then we will assuredly reduce it to powager and scatter it in the sea (And Moses, after he had slaughtered it, and this) Your denty in God only agent at derty is God only, except whom there is no He comprehended all things by His knowledge - Thus, O Moh monad, do We relate unto thee accounts of what hath hap pened heretofore, and We have given thee from Us, an admonition, namely the Kur-an (Surah xx 88-99)

'And they were made to drink down the oali into their hearts (that is, the love of it mingled with their hearts as drink mingleth,) because of their unbolief (Surah ii. 87)

"Remember, O children ef Israel, when Moses said unto his people who worshipped the calf, O my people, verily ye have injured your own soils by your taking to yourselves the calf as a god therefore turn with repentance unto your Croator from the worship of it, and slay one another (that is, let the innocent among you slay the criminal) this will be best for you in the estimation of your Creator And he aided you to do that, sending upon you a black cloud, lest one of you should see another and have compassion on him until there were slain of you about seventy thousand And thereupon He became propiticus towards you according your repentance, for He is the Very Propiticus, the Merciful (Sūrah ii 51)

"Remember, also, O children of Israel when we said, having gone forth with Moses to hee pardon of God for your worship of the call, and having heard his words, O Muses, we will not believe thee until we see God manifestly —whereupon the vehement sound assailed you, and ye died, while ye beheld what happened to you. Then We raised you to life after ye had been dead, that peradventure ye might give thanks (Sürah ii 52, 53)

" And Moses chose from his people seventy men, of those who had not wershipped the calf, by the command of God, at the time appointed by Us for their coming to ask pardon for their companions worship of the calf, and he went forth with them, and when the conjulsion the molent earthquake) took thom away (because, earth Ihn-Abbds, they did not separate themselves from their people when the latter worshipped the calf), Moses said, O my Lord, if Thou hadst pleased, Thou hadst destroyed them before my going forth with them, that the children of Israel might have beheld it and might not suspect me, and me [also] Wilt Thou destroy us for that which the foolish among us have done? It is naught but Thy trial Thou wilt cause to err thereby whom Thou pleasest, and Thou wilt rightly guide whom Thou pleasest. Thou art our guardian, and do Thou forgive us and have more upon us, for Thou art the best of those who forgive and appoint for us in this world what is good, and in the world to come, for unto Thee have we turned with repentance -God replied, I will afflict with My punish ment whom I please, and My mercy extended h over everything in the until and I will ap point it, in the world to come for those who fear and give the legal sims and those who believe on Our signs, who shall follow the apostle the illiterate prophet Mohammad, whom they shall find writter down with them in the Pentatouch and the Gospel by his name and his description He will command them that which is right, and forbid them that which is evil; and will allow them as lawful the good things among those forbidden in their law, and prohibit them the impure, as carrion and other things, and will take off from them their burden and the yokes that were upon them, as the slaying of a soul [for an atone-ment] in repentance, and the cutting off of the mark left by impurity And those who shall believe in him and honour him and assist him and follow the light which shall be sent down with him, ramely the Kur-án, these shall be the prospe ons (Sürah vii. 154-156) "And remember when Moses said unto his

"And rememoer when Moses said unto fils neople, O my people, remember the favour d towards you, since He hath appointed

d towards you. since He hath appointed prophets from among you, and made you princes (masters of servants and other attendants), and given you what He hath not given any [other] of the peoples (as the manna and the quasts and other things). O my people, enter the Holy Land which God hath decreed for you (namely Syria), and turn not back, lest ye turn losers—They replied, O Moses, verily there is in it a gigantic people, of the remains of the tribe of 'A'd, and we will not enter it until they go forth from it, but if they go forth from it, then we will enter—Thereupon two men, of those who feared to disobey God, namely Jeshua and Caleb, of the chiefs whom Moses sent to descover the circumstances of the grants, and upon whom God had conferred favour, and who had concealed what they had seen of the state of the grants, except ing from Moses, wherefore the other chiefs be came cowardly, said unto them, Enter ye upon them through the gate of the city, and fiar them not for they are bodies without hearts, and when ye enter it, ye overcome, and upon God place your dependence, if ye be believers -But they said, O Moses, we will never enter it while they remain therein. Therefore go thon and thy Lord, and fight for we remain here — Then Moses said, O my Lord, verily I am not master or any but myself and my therefore distinguish between us brother and the unrighteous prople - God replied, Verily it (namely the Holy Land) shall be forbidden them forty years, they shall wander in perplexity in the land and be not thou solicitous for the unrighteous people -The land through which they wandered was only mne leagues in extent They used to journey mne leagues in extent during the night with diligence, but in the morning they found themselves in the place whence they had see forth, and they journeyed during the day in like manner. Thus they did until all of them had become extinct, excepting those who had not attained the age of twenty years and it is said that they were six hundied thousand Amon and Mores thed in the desert, and mercy use their for but punishhis Lord, when he was about to die, that He would bring him as near as a stone's throw to the Holy Land wherefore He did so And Joshua was mude a prophet ofter the forty [years], and he gave orders to fight against the giants. So he went with those who were with him, and fought against them and it was Friday, and the sun stood still for him awhile, until he had made an end of fighting against them (Surah v, 23-29)

"Károon [or Korah] was of the people of Moses (he was the son of his paternal uncle, and the son of his maternal aunt, and he believed in him) but he behaved insolently towards them, for We had bestowed upon hun such treasures that their keys were heavy burdens for a company of men endowed with strength, in number, as some say, seventy, and some, forty, and some, ten, and some, onother number Remember when his people (the believers among the children of Israel) said unto him, Rejoice not exultingly in the abundance of thy wealth, for God leveth not those who so rejoice, but seek to attain, by means of the wealth which God hath given thee, the latter abode [of Paraduse], by expanding thy wealth in the service of God, and neglect not thy part in this world, to work therein for the world to some, but be beneficent unio mankind, by bestowing alms, as God hath been beneficent unto thee, and seek not to act corruptly in the earth, for God loveth not the corrupt doers Ho replied, I have only been given it on account of the knowledge that I possess For he was the most tearned of the children of Israel in the Law, after Moses and Aaron God sath, Did he not know that God had destroyed before him, of the generations, those that were mightler than he in strength, and who had amassed more abundance of wealth? And the wicked shall not be asked respecting their suit, because God knoweth them therefore they shall be sent into the Fire without a reckoning And Adroon went forth unto his people in his pomp, with his many dependants mounted, adorned with gurments of gold and silk, upon decked horses and mules Those who desired the present life said, O would that we had the like of that which hath been bestowed on Karoon in this world! Verily he is possessed of great good fortune !- But those unto whom knowledge of what God hath promised in the world to come had been given, said unto them, Woe to you! The reward of God in the world to come (which is Paradise) is better for him who believeth and worketh righteousness than that which hath been bestowed on Karoon in the present world, and none shall receive it but the patient in the service of God And We caused the earth to cleave asunder and swallow up him and his mansion, and he had ne ferces to defend hum, in the place of God, nor was he of the [number of the] saved And the next morning, those who had wished for his place the day before said, Aha! God enlargeth provision unto whom He pleaseth of His servants, and is sparing of it unto whom He pleaseth! Had not God been gracious unto us, He had caused [the earth] to leave asunder and swallow up us! Aha! the un grateful for His benefits do not prosper!

(Sursh xxviii 76-82)

Remember, when Moses said unto his people (when one of them had been slain, whose murderer was not known, and they asked him to beg God that He would discover him to them, wherefore he supplicated Him), Verily God commandeth you to sayrifice a cow They said. Dost thou make a jest of us? He said, I beg God to preserve me from being one of the foolish So when they knew that he deridedly intended what he had ordered, they said, supplicate for us thy Lord, that He may manifest to us what she is that is, what us her age Moses replied, He saith, She is a cow neither old nor young, but of a middle age between these two therefore do as ye are commanded. They said, Supplicate for us thy Lord, that He may manifest to us what is her colour No replied, He saith, She is a red cow her colour is very bright she rejoiseth the beholders They said, Supplicate for us thy Lord, that He may manifest to as what she is, whether she be a pasturing or a working cou , for Luna of the description mentioned are to us like one another and we, if God please, shall indeed be rightly directed to her (In a tradition it is said, Had they not said, 'If God please,'—she had not ever been manifested to them) He roplied, He saith, bhe in a cow not subdued by uork that plougheth the ground, nor deth she water the field [she is] free from defects and the marks of work there is no colour in her different from the rest of her colour They said, Now thou has brought the truth And they sought her, and found her in the possession of the young man who acted prously towards his mother, and they bought her for as much gold as her hide would contain. Then they sacrificed her, but they were near to leaving it undone, on account of the greatness of her price (And in a tradition it is said, Had they sacrificed any cow whatever, He had satusfied them but they acted hardly towards themselves, so God acted hardly towards them) And when ye slew a soul, and centended together respecting it, (and God brought forth [to light] that which ye did concess—this is the beginning of the story [and was the occa-sion of the order to sacrifice this particular cow,]) We said, Strike him (that is, the slain person) with part of her so he was struck with her tongue, or the root of her tail, or, as some say, with her right thigh, whereupon he came to life, and said, Such-a-one and such-aone slow me,—to the two sons of his uncle And he died. They two [the murderers] were therefore deprived of the inheritance, and were slam Thus God rauseth to life the dead, and showeth you His agne (the proof of His power), that peradventure ye may understand, and know that He who is able to raise to life one soul is able to raise to life many souls. Then your hearts became hard, O ye Jews, so as not to accept the truth after that, and they [were] as stones, or more hard for of stones there are indeed some from which rivers gush forth, and of thom there are indeed some that cleave asunder and water assueth from them, and of them there are indeed some that fall down through fear of Ged, whereas your hearts are not impressed, nor do they grow soft, nor do they become humble But God is not heedless of that which ye do He only reserveth you unto your time (Sürah in 63-

"Remember when Masses said to his young man Joshua the son of Nun, who served him and acquired knowledge from him, I will not cosses to go forward until I reach the place where the two seas (the Sea of Greece and the Sea of Persia) meet, or travel for a long space of time. And when they reached the place where they (the two seas) met they forgot their fish Joshua forgot to take it up, on their departure, and Mosses forgot to remind him, and it made its way in the sea by a hollow passenge, God untihholding the water from it. And when they had passed boyond that place, and proceeded until the time of the morning-meal on the following day, [Masses] said unto his young man, Bring ne our morning-meal we have experienced fatigue from this our journey. He replied, What thinkeet thou? When we repaired to the rock to reet at that place, I forgot the fish, and none made me forget to mention it but the Devil, and it made its way in the sea in a wonderful manner—Moses said, That (namely our loss of the fish) is what we were desiring for it its a non unto us of our finding him whom we seek. And they returned by the way that they had come, following the footsteps, and came to the rock. And they found one of Our servants (namely El-Khidr) unto whom We had granted mercy from Us (that is, the had granted mercy from Us (that is, one gift of prophecy in the opinion of some, and the rank of a saint according to another opinion, which most of the learned hold), and whom We had taught knowledge from Us respecting things unseen.—El-Bukhirse hath related a tradition that Moses performed the office of a preacher among the children of Israel, and was asked who was the most knowing of men, to which he answered, I —whereupon God blamed him for this, because he did not refer the knowledge thereof to Him. And God said unto him by revelation, Verily I have a servant at the place where the two seas meet, and he is more knowing than thou Moses said, O my Lord, and how shall I meet with him? He answered, Thou shalt take with thee a fish, and put it into a measuring vessel, and where thou shalt loss the fish, there is he So he took a fish, and put it into a vessel Then he departed, and Joshua the son of Nun departed with him, until they came to the rock, where they laid down their heads and slept. And the fish became agitated in the vessel, and escaped from it, and fell into the sea, and it made its way in the sea by a hollow passage, God withholding the water from the jish so that it became like a vault over st and when Moses' companson awoke, he for got to inform him of the fish

"Moses said unto him [namely Ll-Khidr], Shall I follow thee, that thou mayest teach me [part] of that which thou hast been taught, for a direction unto me? He answered, Verily thou canet not have patience with me For how canst thou be patient with respect to that whereof thou comprehendest not the knowledge?—He replied, Thou shalt find me, if God please, patient, and I will not disobey any command of thine. He said, Then if thou follow me, ask me not respecting anything, but be patient until I give thee an account thereof And Moses desented to his condition And they departed, walking along the shore of the sea, until, when they ombarked in the ship that pussed by them, he, El-Khidr, made a hole in it, by pulling out a plank or two planks from it on the outside by means of an axe when it reached the middle of the sea. Moses said unto him, Hast thou made a hole in it that thou mayest drown its people? Thou hast done a grievous thing -(But it is related that the water entered not the Acle.) He replied, Did I not say that thou couldst not have patience with me? [Moses] said, Chastise me not for my forgetfulness, nor impose on me a difficulty in my oase. And they departed, after they had gone forth from the vessel, walking on, until, when they found a boy who had not attained the age of knowing right and wrong, playing with other children, and he was the most beautiful of them in countenance, and he (El-Khidr) slew him, Moses said unto Aim, Hast thou slain an innocent soul, without his having slain a soul? Thou hast done an imquitous thing —He re plied. Did I not say that thou couldst not have patience with me? [Meses] said, If lask thee concerning anything after this time, suffer me not to accompany thee Now hast thou received from me an excuse for thy separating thyself from me.-And they departed [and proceeded] until, when they came to the people of a city (which was Antioch), they asked food of its people, but they refused to entertain them and they found therein a wall, the height whereof was a hundred cubits, which was about to fall down, whereupon he (El Khidr) set it upright with his hand. Moses said unto him, If thou wouldst, thou mightest have obtained pay for it, since they did not entertain us, notwithstanding our want of food. El Khidr said unto him, This shall be a separation between me and thee, but before my separation from thee, I will declars unto thee the interpretation of that which then couldst not bear with patience.

"As to the vessel, it belonged to ten poor men, who pursued their business on the sea, and I desired to render it unsound, for there was behind them a king, an unbeliever, who took every sound vessel by force. And as to the boy, his parents were believers, and we feared that he would transgress against them rebelliously and impiously for, according to a tradition related by Muslim, he was constituted by nature an unbeliever, and had he kved he had so acted, wherefore we desired that their Lord should create for them a better than he in virtue, and [one] more disposed than he to filial pisty And God created for them a daughter, who married a prophet, and gave berth to a prophet, by means of whom God directed a people to the right way And as to the wall, it belonged to two orphan youths in the city, and beneath it was a treasure bursed, of gold and silver, belonging to them. and their father was a righteous man, and thy Lord desired that they should attain their age of atrength and take forth their treasure through the mercy of thy Lord. And I did it not (namely what hath been mertioned) of mine own will, but by direction of God. This is the interpretation of that which thon couldet not bear with patience (Surah xvii 59-81 )

The following remarks are taken from Sals's notes of al-Baixāwī and other commentators -

"There is a tradition that Moses was a very swarthy man, and that when he pat his hand into his bosom, and drew it out again, it became extremely white and splendid, surpassing the brightness of the sun.

"Moses had an impediment in his speech, which was coossioned by the following accident. Pharach one day carrying him in his arms when a child, he suddenly laid hold of his beard and plucked it in a very rough manner, which put Pharaoh into such a passion, that he ordered him to be put to death but A'siyeh, his wife, representing to him that he was but a child, who could not distinguish between a burning coal and a ruby, he ordered the experiment to be made, and a live coal and a ruby being set before Moses, he took the coal and put it into his mouth, and burnt his tongue, and thereupon he was pardoned.

This is a Jawish story a little altered

'It is related that the midwife appointed to attend the Hebrew women, terrified by a lightiwhich appeared between the eyes of Moses als his birth, and touched with extraordinary affection for the child, did not discover him to the officere, so that her mother kept him in her house, and nursed him three months, after which it was impossible for her co conceal him any longer, the king then giving orders to make the searches more strictly

"The commentators say that the mother of Moses made an ark of the papyrus, and priched it, and put in some citton and having laid the child therem, committed it to the river, a branch of which went into Pharach's garden that the stream carried the ark thither into a fishpond, at the head of which Pharaoh was then sitting with his wife A siveh, the daughter of Muzzhem and that th king, having commanded it to be taken up and opened, and finding m it a beautiful child, took a fancy to it, and ordered it to be brought up Some writers mention a mira raculous preservation of Moses before he was put into the ark, and tell us, that his mother having hid him from Pharach's officers in an oven, his sister, in her mothers absence, kindled a large fire in the oven to heat it, not knowing the child was there, but that he was afterwards take 1 out unburt "

MOSQUE The Muhammadan place of worship, which is called in Arabic maintain. The term 'mosque is found in all European languages, and must have been derived from the Arabic fells of the word eg Spanish, mesqueta, Italian, moschen, German, Moschee, French, mosquee, English mosque or musk

For an account of these fauldings, see

MOTHER (1) Kindness towards a mother is enjoined in the Qur'an Surah zivi 14 "We have proscribed for man kindness towards hie parents. His mother bore him with trouble and brought him forth with trouble"

(2) Mothers cannot be compelled to nurse the sur children.

(3) They are not, without their husband's parmission, allowed to move them to a strange place (Hidayah, vol. 1 pp 386, 390)

MOURNING The period mourning for the dead s restricted to three days, during which time the friends and relatives are expected to risit the beseaved family, and offer up prayers for the departed (fathah), and speak words of cansulation (ta'ziyah) But a widow must observe the oustom of mourning for a period of four months and ten days, which period is called the the days, which period is called the days, which period is called the day of mourning, it is the duty of all concerned to abstain from the use of perfumes and ornaments and to wear soiled garments Lamentation, buka' (Heb bokkoh), for the dead is strictly forbidden by the Prophet (Mishkat, book . ch vu), but it is nevertheless a common custom in the East, amongst all sects of Muhammadans (See Arabium Nights Lanes Moderr Egyp leans Shaw a Travels in Barbary )

MU'AHID (معاهد) One who enters rule covenant ('ahd') with another An infidel who is permitted by a Muslim Government to enter it towns and carry on traffle, i.e a name [ZIMML]

AL-MU'AKHKHIR ("The Deferrer" One of the minety-mine names or attributes of God. It does not occur in the Qur'an, but is given in the Hadis

MU'ALLIM (Less) A teacher in a school or mosque Al-Mu'allimu 'L-Awwal, "The first teacher," is a term used by philosophers for Aristotle Amongst the Safis it is used for Adam, who is said to be the first prophet Mu'allimu 'I Malā'ikah, "The teacher of angels," is also used by the Sūfis for Adam, because it is said in the Qur'an, Sūrah in 31 "O Adam, declare unto them (the angels) their names."

MU'ANAQAH (ābla) Emblading, or throwing oneself on the neck of ere's friend A custom especially enjoined by Muhammad (Mishkāt, book xxii ch ni. pt 2)

MU'AWIYAH ( ) The sixth Ehalifah, and the feunder of the Umaiyah dvnasty (the Ominiades) Ho was the son of Abū Sufyān one of the leading Companions of Muhammed and became Khalifah on the death of al-Hasan, and is regarded with great hatted by the Shi'ahs He died AH. 60 He was the first Khalifah will made the Khalifah e hereditary

At-MU'AWWIZAT (lose) Let The seekers of roluge" The two last chapters of the Qur'en

Suratu 'l-Falaq (cxiii), beginning with, "Say I flee for reinge to the Lord of the Diybreak"

Suratu 'n Nas (cxiv) beginning, "Say I flee for lefuge to the Lord of mon"

These chapters were ordered by Munammad to be recreed after each stated prayer (Mishkat, book iv ch. xix pt 2)

MU'AZ IBN JABAL (Companions' One of the most famous of the "Companions' Me was of the Banti Khazraj, and was only twenty years of age at the battle of Badr Being well skilled in the Qur'an, he was left at Makkah to instruct the people in the principles of Islam He was also sent as the head of a band of collectors of taxes to south Arabia, and became Qazi of al-Yaman. After Muhammad's death, he became a leading person in the counsels of Abu Bakr and 'Umar, and was placed in charge of Syria by the latter Khalifah He died at Ta'un 'Amawas.

MU'AZZIN (6) The caller of the azan, or "summons to prayer." In small mosques, the szan is given by the Imam but in the larger ones an official is specially ap pointed for the purpose. When the mosque has a minaret, he calls from the top of it, but in smaller places of worship, from the side of the mosque. The first mu'azan was Blill, the son of an Abysainian slave-girl, and Mu hammad is related to have said, "The callers to prayer may expect Paradise, and whoever serves in the office for seven years shall be saved from hell fire" (Mishkāt, book iv ch vi) [AZAN]

MUBAH ( Lut. "Allowed" A term used in the religious and eeremonial law of Islam for an action which a person may do or let alone, being attended with neither praise nor blame

MUBARAT (N) "Mutual discharge" A term used in the law of divorce when a man says to his wifs, "I am discharged from the marriage between you and me," and she consents thereto. It is the same as khuk

Az-MUBDI' (الحبدى) "The Producer or Beginner" One of the ninety-nine names or attributes of God It does not occur in the Qur'an, but the idea is expressed in Sūrah lxxxv 13 "He produces and restores."

MUBTADI' (مبتدع) Let "An inventor" A heretic, or a broacher of new opinions

MUDABBAR (مدير) A slave who has received his freedom in consequence of the master's death, in accordance with a previous promise

MUDDA'I (مدعى) A plaintiff in a law suit

MUDDA'J-'ALAIH (مدهى عليه) A defendant in a law-emt

AL-MUDDASSIR ( ) Lat
"The Enwrapped." The title of the LEXIVth Sürah of the Qur'an, in the first verse of which the word occurs "O Thou, enwrapped in thy mantle, arise and preach." This is considered by some to be the earliest Sürah in the Qur'an, but others think it was the ECVIT [MUHAMMAD]

MUFARRIHU 'L-AHZAN (حراب) Let "The making cheerful under affliction" A term used by pious Muslims for a spirit of resignation in affliction, which, they say, is to be produced by possessing faith with a firm belief in the decrees of fate ('Abdu 'r-Razzāq's Dict of Sūf'i Terms)

"MUFSID (Ama) "A pernicious person" It occurs in the Unran frequently, e.g Sürah in 219 "God knoweth the foul dealer (mufsid) from the fair dealer (muslih)."

MUFTI (مفتى) The officer who expounds the law He assists the Quzi, or judge, and supplies him with fatwes, or deciaions He must be learned in the Qur'an and Hadis, and in the Muslim works of law

AL-MUCHNI ("The Enricher" One of the nunety-nine names or attributes of God It is referred to in the Qur'an, Surah iv 129, "God can make both independent (ht 'enrich') out of His abundance"

MUHĀDAŞĀH (Line) Lat. "Discoursing together" A term used by the Sūfis for the calling of a person by God through some outward means, as when, according to the Qur'an, Sūrah xxvni 30, God apoke to Moses ont of a tree. ('Abdn 'r-Razzāq's Dict of Sūfi Terms)

MUHADDIS (1) The narrator of a Hadis or acts and words of Muhammad (2) One learned in the Traditions

AL-MUHAIMIN ("The Protector" One of the ninety-nine names or attributes of God. It occurs in the Qur'an, Sūrah lix 23, "He is the Protector"

MUHAJIR (a-lea) From hyrah, "flight" One who performs hyrah either by (1) leaving Makkah in company with the Prophet, or (2) leaving a country ruled by an infidel power, or (3) by floring from what God has forbidden

MUHĀJIRUN (وما جروب) The pl of Muhājir The exilos or refugees. A term used for all those converts to Islām who fied with their Prophet from Makkah. Under the title are also included all who from time to time joined. Muhammad at al Madīnah, either from Makkah or from any other quarter, up to the taking of Makkah in ah 8. They rank first in order amongst the Companions of the Prophet.

MUHALLIL (Jiao) Let "One who makes lawful" The man who marries a divorced wife in order to make her lawful for her former husband if he wish to marry her [DIVORCE]

MUHAMMAD ( Lat 'The Praised One' Sometimes spelt Mohammed, Mohomed, or Mahomet

Muhammad, the founder of the religion generally known as Muhammadanism, but called by its own adherents Islam [ISLAM], was the posthumous son of 'Abdu 'lläh, by his wife Aminah 'Abdu 'lläh belonged to the family of Häshim, which was the noblest tribe of the Quraish section of the Arabian race and said to be directly descended from Ishmael. The father of 'Abdu 'lläh and the grandfather of Muhammad, was 'Abdu 'lläh and the grandfather of Muhammad, was 'Abdu 'lläh and the grandfather of Muhammad, was 'Abdu 'lläh and the grandfather of Muhammad, was 'Abdu 'lläh and the grandfather of Muhammad, as 'Abdu 'lläh and the Elephants with destruction of the Abyssinian invader, and formed an epoch in the history of Arabia, known as the Ers of the Elephant, on account of the vast array of elephants the invaders brought with them, witnessed the birth of Muhammad Muhammad is said to have been born about fifty five days after the attack of Abrahah, or on the 12th day of the menth Rabin 'l-Awwal of the first year of the Era of the Elephant, which M Caussin de Perceval believes to have been the fortieth year of the reign of Chosroes the Great (Rasra Anushirwan), and calculates the date to have been August 20th, A D 570 (see vol.; pp 282,283) According to Sprenger, it was April 20th A D 571 (Das Leben und die Lehrs des Mohammad vol.; p 138)

Muhammad was born at Makkah And immediately apon his birth his mother, Ammah sent a special messenger to inform 'Abdu '! Muttalih of the news. The messenger reached the chief as he sat within the sacrod enclosure of the Ka'hah in the midst of his sons and principal men and he arose with joy and went to the kouse of Aminah. He then took the child in his arms, and went to the Ka bah, and gave thanks to God. The Quraish tribe begged the grand father to name the child after some member of the family, but 'Abdu '! Muttalib said, "I desire that the God who has created the child on earth may be glorified in heaven and he called him Muhammad, "the praised one"

Al-Hailz, on the authority of Makhzum (quoted by Abu 1-bida, p 59), says that on the night that Muhammal was born the palace of Chosroes was shaken, and four teen of its turrets fell, the fires on the Persians were extinguished which had not been outing mished before for a thousand years and the lake Sawah sank

It was not the custom of the better class of women amongst the Arabians to nurse their children, and consequently the infant, soon after his hirth was made over to Su waibah a slave-gul of his uncle Abu Lahab Suwaihah had a son, whose name was Mas rub, whom she nursed at the same time and she had also nursed Hamzah, Muhammad s uncle and Abu Salimah, so that these three man were his foster brothers Suwaibab only suckled Muhammad for a few days when the child was made over to Halimah, a woman of the tribe of the Banu Sa'd Halimah was the daughter of 'Abdu 'llab Abu Zuarb, the son of al Haris, and she took Muhammad to her desert home, amongst the Banu Sa'd, whore he remained for a period of two years. The foster-brother suckled by Halimah was 'Abdu "lish, and his foster sisters Amoah and Haramah

The following story connected with Muhammad's stay with Halimah is related by Abū 'l-Fidā' (p 64) When some timo passed, Muhammad and his foster-brother went out to a distance from the house when Halimah as aon came to his mother and said, "Two men clothed in white raimenta have taken hold of the Quraish boy, and have thrown him down and have ripped open his belly 'So Halimah and her husband went to the place where no oblid was, but found him standing on his feet. And they said, "What has happened to thee child?" And he answered and said, "Two men came to me and threw me down and rapped up my belly" Then Halimah's husband said to her, "I greatly fear that this boy has got the opilepsy" So they took him to his mother Aminah. And Halimah said to Aminah, 'I am afraid he is possessed of a devil" But Aminah said, "What in the world can Satan haye to do with my son that he should be his enemy?"

This circumstance has been regarded as the miracle when Gabriel came and took out the heart of the child and washed it from the stains of original sin. And some commentators say the first vorse of the xcivth Surah of the Qur'an illudes to it. "Have we not opened thy breast?"

Muhammad ever rotained a most grateful recollection of the kindness he had received from the Banu Sa'd, and, in after years, he used to say, 'Verily I am the most perfect Arah umongst you. My descent is from the Quraish, and my speech is the tongue of the Banu Sa'd"

In his sixth year, Muhammad was taken by his mother to al Madinah, but on the return journey she fell sick, and died at a place called al-Abwa', where her body was buried. In subsequent years, Muhammad visited his mother's tomb at al Abwa', and wept over it, saying, "This is the graye of my mother, the Lord hath permitted me to visit it, and I sough! leave to pray for her salvation, but it was not granted. So I called my mother to remembrance, and the tonder memory of her overcame me, and I wept."

The little orphan was then carried on to Makkah by Umm Arman, who although young in years became his faithful nurse and com-panion The charge of Muhammad was now undertaken by 'Abdu 'l Muttalih, but the old ohief died two years afterwards, and the ohild was committed to the care of he paternal uncle, Abu Talib When Muhammad was twelve years old, he was taken by his uncle on a mercantile journey to Syria, and proceeded as far as Buera. The expedition listed for some months According to the Muslim Instorian, Abū 'l Fida', it was at Busra that Muhammad met the Christian monk Bnhaira', who is related to have said to Abu Talib, "Return with this youth, and guard him from the hatred of the Jews, for great dignity awaits this your brother's son." It was on this journey that Muhammad was brought in contact with the profession of Christianity in Syria, and had an opportunity of obtaining some information as to the national and social customs of Christians. He must have also passed through many Jewish settlements It is, therefore, highly probable that it was on the occasion of this journey that Muhammad's mind became first impressed with the absolute necessity of reforming, not only the gross idolatry of Makkah, but the degrading eocial habits of the Arablan people

After this journey, the youth of Muhammad seems to have been passed uneventfully, but all authorities agree in asoribing to him a correctness of manner, and a purity of morals, which were at that time rare amongst the peeple of Makkah. The fair character and announable hearing of the unobtrusive youth won the approbation of the citizens of Makkah, and by common consent he received the title of al-Amin, "The Fathful."

Between the years AD 580-590, the sacrilegious war broke out between the Quraish and the Bann Hawazin, which lasted for nearly ten years in two of the contests, Muhammad though only a lad, accompanied his uncles in their look wars. They were called "sacrilegious" because they were carried on during the sacred months, when fighting was forbidden

ing was forbidden

The youth of Muhammad passed away without any other incidents of interest. At this poriod he was employed, like other lads, in tending the sheep and goats of Makkah upon the neighbouring hills and valleys. He used afterward to allude to his shepherd life, and say it comported with his prophetic office, even as it did with that of Moses and David. " erily there hath been no prophet who hath not performed the work of a shep-

bord

When Muhammad had resened his twenty-Alta year, on the recommendation of his phole, Abū Tālib, he entered the service of Khedijah a rich widow of Makkah She was of the Quraish tribe, the daughter of Khuwailid ibn Asad With Maisarah, her servant, Muhammad was placed in charge of the widow's merchandise, and he again travelled the same route which he had traversed thirteen years before with his uncle journey again extended as far as Busra, a city about sixty miles to the east of the river Jordan He visited Aleppo and Damascus, and was doubtless brought in frequent contact with both Jows and Christians, and had another epportunity of obtaining has superficial acquaintance with the Jewish and Christian faiths, which enabled him in after years to smhody so much of the teaching of the Bible in the verses of the Qur'an "The mutual aumosity of Jew towards Christian," says Mr Stobart, "though they professed to worship the true God, though they appealed to the old Testument, and both equally revered the name of Abraham, and professed to abhor that idolatry in which he had been bred, may have It I Muhammad to think that possibly more divine truth lay hid in both these systems of belief, though covered and concealed by human inventions, and may have suggested to him the possibility of forming out of these conflicting clements one single sumple catholic creed, and of thus unting mankind in the worship and love of the great Father of all," (Stobart's Islam, p. 56.)

Mahammad having proved himself faithful in the commercial interests of his mistress, was soon rewarded with her hand in marriage. When Muhammad married her she was a widow of forty years of age, and had been to her formed hundrands, two sons and a daughter. The house of Muhammad and Khadijah was a bright and happy one, and their marriage fortunate and fruitful. Two sons and four daughters were its issue Their eldest son was al-Qāsim, who died at the age of two years, whence Muhammad was sometimes called Abs V-Qāsim, or the father of al-Qāsim The other son, 'Abdu 'liëh, surnamed at-Tahir and at Taiyib, died in infancy The four daughters were Zamab, Rogayah, Umm Quisüm, and Fāṭimah.

[FATIMAK.]

During hor lifetime, Khadijah was Muhammad's only wife, and he always looked back to this period of his life with fond remainbrance. When the world called him as imposter and a cheat, Khadijah was the first to acknowledge him to be the "Apoetle of God." Indeed, so much did he dwell upon the mutual lave of Khadijah and himself, that the envious 'Ayishah declared herself more jealous of this rival, who was dead, than of all the living rivals who contested with her the affection of the Prophet

As yet Muhammad was almost a stranger to the outside world, but he now obtained some reputation among his fellow men, by taking a prominent part in the resuscitation of an old league, called the Federation of the Fugil [HILFE 'L-PUZUL], formed in anoient times for the repression of acts of lawlessness within the walls of Makkah. A new compact was formed between four or five of the chief families of Makkah for the protection of the work and oppressed, and Muhammad was one of the most prominent movers in this inderation, the terival of which resulted mainly from his offerts

In his thirty-fifth year, he settled by his decision a grave difficulty, which had sprung up during the reconstruction of the Kabah, regarding the placing of the sacred stone, and which almost threatened to plunge the whole of Arabia into another of their oft-recurring walk

The Kaibah was too low in the building, and the Quraish wished to raise it higher, and so they demolished it. When it was rebuilt es les as the position of the Black Stone, the question arose, who should be the honoured instrument of raising the sacred relic into te place, for each tribe claimed the honour Then the oldest cruzen arose and said, "My advice is that the man who first entereth by the gate of the Banu Shaibah, shall be selected umpire in this difficult question, or shall himself place the stone." The proposal was agreed upon, and the first man who entered the gate was he who was known as dia.
Amin, "The Faithful," Muhammad, the son of 'Abdu 'lial: Muhammad decided upon an expedient, which served to eatisfy the contending parties. The stone was placed on a cloth, and each tribe shared in the homour of raising it by taking hold of the cloth The stone being thus deposited in its proper place, the Quraish built on without interruption, and the great idol Hubal was placed in the centre of the sacred edifice, and around were ranged the various other uiols of the Arabian people.
"The circumstance," says Sir William Muir, "strikingly illustrates the absence of any paramount authority at Mecca at this time

A curious story is related of an attempt made about this period to gam the rule of Mecre The aspirant was Othman tirst cousin of Khadija's father . He was disectisfied, as the legend gues, with the idolatrons system of Mecca, and travelled to the court of the Roman Emperor where he was henomable entertained, and admitted to Christian Pap tism He returned to Merca, and on the strength of an imperial great cit of pre-tended, laid claim to the government of the cuty But his claim was rejected, and he fled to Syna, where he found a nefuge with the Ghassande prince But emissaries from Meeca, by the aid of gifts, counteracted his authority with the prince, and at tast pro-cured his death "-Mun's Lafe of Mulwinet, new ed p 31)

Shortly after the rebuilding of the Kn bah, Muh minad adopted Ali, the son of his friend and former guardian Alii Polib Ali was at this time only six jumes old. About this period be admitted to his 12 Si intimacy another person unconnected with him by family ties, but of more equal age. This was Zaid a slave-boy belonging to hisalijar who, to gratify her husband, made I un a present of the slave Zaid was the son of Harron, of the Banu Uzian, a tule which accumed the region of South Syru, and had beer taken captive and sold to Khadijau s grandf the es a slave When Harresh heard that Muliam mad possessed Zaid he camo to Mikk in and offered a large payment for his release. You hammad summered Laid, and gave him the option to go or stay Zaid el c ed to saiv and Muhammad delighted with his fathful ness, gave him his liberty, and adopted him as his son. The freed man was henceforth known as Zard ibn Muhammad

" Muhammad was now approach ng his for tieth year, and increased contemplation and reflection engaged his maind. The idolutiv and moral debasement of his people pressed heavily upon him, and the dim and imperfect shadows of Judsiam and Christianity excited doubts without satisfying them and his mind was perplexed with unvertainty as to what was the true religion ' (Muir s Info of Mahomet, new ed p 35)

It is probable that it was at this time Muhammad composed those burshs of the Qur'an which express the ai vious yearning of an inquirer rather than the more positive teach ing of an Apostle and we would assign to this period the following verses of the Quran, which, according to Muhammadan commentatous, are admitted to be of a very early date (See Jainla A din's Atyan )

Susain I- Asr (cm) --

'I swear by the declining day!

" Verily mans lot is cast amid destruction, ' Save those who believe and do the things which be right and enjoin truth and enjoin each other to be putient

Suratu 'l- Adivat (c) · By the morting chargers!

" And those that dash off sparks of fire! " And those that scour to the attack at τοςσιι,

" And sur therein the dust aloft,

· And cleave therein their midway through a bost

"Trrly, man is to his Lord ungrateful

"And of this he is himself a witness, "And truly he is velement in the love of this world's good "Ahl knoweth he not, that when that which is in the graves shall be luid bare,

And that which is in mens breasts shall be brought forth.

"Verily their Lord shall on that day be in formed concerning them?

Suratu I-Fatiliali (1.) -

Preise be to God, Lord of all the worlds The comparaments the merciful!

. King of the day of reckoning l

. Thre only do we worship and o Thee do we cry for help

" (saide I hou us on the straight potis,

"The path of those to whom Thou hast been gruious, with whom then art not angry, and who go not astray'
The latter Suruh is the Fathbah, or initial mayer, de often recited in public worship, and it appears to contain, if not the very words at all events the gist of the lany prayer of an anxious and inquiring soul

The ac Surana were most probably followed by others of a simular character, being poets cal chusions rather than express enunciations of any definite teaching, For example Surahs

XCV, CIV, XC1, XC1, CV1

Manammad seems to have employed him as in such meditations as find expression in these burahs, some yours before he assumed the other of a divine toacher, for it was but slowly and by degrees that be was hel on to believe that he was really called of God to preschareformation both to be own people and to all mankind

Bewiklered by his own speculations amidst uncertain fis kerings of spiritual light Min hammad spont some time in retirement, and in the agomes of distress ropestedly meditated suicide Perplexed with the mysto rious destiny of mun and the failure of iepested revelations, he would fall into costatic reverses, and it was during one of these sea sons of retirement, in the cave of Ilina', that he behaved an angel appeared to him in a dream and that the first revelation same According to the traditions collected by al Bukhari and Muslim (see Arabic edition, as Matthew's translation in the Mishkat is defective in several very important particulars), the first communication was made to Muhammad ın a dream

Ayishah relates "The first revelations which the Prophet of God received were in true dreams He never dreamed but it came to pass as regularly as the dawn of day After this the Prophet went into retirement, and he used to seclude himself in a cave in Mount Hirs, and worship there day and night He would, whenever he wished return to his family at Makkah, and then go back again, taking with him the necessaries of life Thus he continued to return to Khadijah from time to time, until one day the revelation came down to him, and the angel (Malak) came to him and said, 'Read' (tqra'), but the Prophet said, 'I am not a reader' And the Prophet related that the angel took hold of him, and squeezed him as much as he could hear, and then east again, 'Read' and the Then the Prophet said, 'I am not a reader angel took, hold of him a second time and squeezed him as much as he could bear, and then let him go, and said, 'Read', then the Prophet said, 'I am not a reader' Then the angel again seized the Prophet, and equeezed him, and said .-

Read thou, in the name of thy Lord who orested .

Ureated man out of clots of blood -Read thou! For thy Lordris the most Beneficent,

Who hath taught the use of the pen ,-Hath taught man that which he knoweth not'

> .(See Qur an, Süratu 'l-'Alaq (xcv1), the hrat five verses )

Then the Prophet repeated the words with a trembling heart. And he returned (ie from Hirs' to Makkah) to Khadijah, and said, Wrap me up wrap me up, And they wrapped him up in a garment until his fear was dispelled, and he told hhadish what had occurred, and he said to Khadish, 'I was afraid I should die.' Then Khadish said, 'No, it will not be so, I swear by God, He will, never make thee melancholy or sad For you are kind to your relatives speak the truth, you are faithful in trust, you bear the afflictions of the people you spend in good works what you gain in trade, you are hospitable, and you assist your fellow mon. After this Khadijah took the Prophet to Waraqah, who was the son of her unclo, and said to him, 'O son of my uncle, hear what your brother's son save to you.' Then Warhqah said to the Prophet 'O son of my uncle, what do you see?' Then the Prophet told Waraqah what he had seen, and Waraqah said 'This is the Namus [NAMUS] which God sant to Moses. O would to God I were young in this time! and would to God I were hving at the time of your people turning you out!' The Prophet said, Will my people turn me out? And Waraqah said, 'Yes. No man has ever come as you have come, and not been held in cumity but if I chould live to that day, I will give you great help' Waraqah soon died, and after that the reveistion ceased (i e for a time)."

The first vision was followed by a considerable period, during which no further revelation was given, and during which Muhamman suffered much mental depression.

[FITBAIL]

"During this period," al-Bukhārī says, " the Prophet was very serrowful, so much so that he wished to throw himself from the top of a hill to destroy lumself"

But after a lapse of time, as he was wrapped up in his garments and lay stretched upon his carpet, the angel is said to have agein ad dressed him, in the chapter which begins (Strah laxy) "O thou enwrapped in thy mantie, Arms and preach "

Muhammad then believed himself, to be a commissioned Apostle, the messenger and the prophet of God, sent to reclaim a fallen people to the knowledge and service of their God. His revelations were God's Book, and his a yings the atterances of inspiration.

The first convert to Islam was his faithful wife Khadijah, the two next, 'Ali and Zaid, his adopted children and afterwards his old trusted friend, Abu Bakr, "the True." Then followed 'Usman, who was a grandson of 'Abdu 'l-Muttalib Talhah, the renowned warrior of after days, and 'Abdu '1 Rahman, a merchant of some consequence The new converts soon numbered some fifty souls, either members of the Prophets family or his dearest irrends

An important change now occurred in the relations of Muhammad with the citizens of Makkah fueir hostility was aroused, and the Muslims were subjected to some persecation and indignity It was not, however, until some three years of his ministration had elapsed that any general opposition was orgamzed Hostility once excited soon showed staulf in act- of violence basid, a youthful convert was attacked whilst leading a party of Muslims in prayer He defended himself. and struck one of his opponents with a camel goad. It was, says Su William Muir, "the first blood spilt in the cruse of Islam

In the fourth year of his mission, Muham mad took possession of the house of Argani (a recent convert), and there held meetings for those who wished to know the teaching of the Prophet more perfectly

The house of Argam was in front of the Ka'bah, and was therefore in a convenient position So famous did it become as the birth place of believers, that it was afterwards styled the " House of Islam '

As the number of believers increased, so did the sumity of the persecutor and in order to escape the danger of porversion, Muham-mad recommended such of his followers who were without protection to seek an asylum in a foleign land Eleven men, accompanied by their families, set out for the port of Shneibn where finding two vessels about to sail they subarked in haste, and were son veyed to Abyanma

Here they met with a kind reception from the Negus or king and their period of exile was passed in peace and comfort. This is termed the first hyrah, or "flight," to Abyssinia, as distinguished from the later and more extensive emigration to the same land. In three month the refugees returned to Makkah.

About this time a strange episode occurred, in which Muhammad sought a compromise with his people, by admitting their gods into his avatem as intercessors with the Supreme Being While the Quraish sat beneath the Karbah, he recited the following Surab as an mspired message (list) "And see ye not Lat and 'Usea, and Manut the thud besides? These are exalted females, And verify their intercession is to be hoped for "

The idolaters were reconciled, and bowed before the God of Muhammad But his heart smote him, and not long after the obnexious lines (those in italies) were said to be recalled by Gabriel, as suggested by the Evil One, and there was substituted the uncompromising demandistion of idolatry, from which he never after swerved—

"What! shall there he male progeny unto you, and females unto him?

"That indeed were an unjust partition.

"They are naught but names which ye and your fathers have mvented,"

In the sixth year of his mission, the cause of Muhammad was strengthened by the accession of two powerful citizens, Hamzah and Umar Hamzah was the uncle and also the loster-brother of the Prophet, a man of distinguished bravery, whose heroian carned for him the title of the 'Lion of Gud' Umar was a bold impulsive spirit, the very man needed to give strength to a cause one who in a remarkable manner left the impress of his character upon the religious system he embraced He succeeded Abu Baki in the Khalifate, and loft the stamp of his fiered warlike spirit upon Islam [UMAR]

Alarmed at the bold part which Muhammad and his followers were now able to assume the Quraish formed a hostile confederacy, by which all intercourse with the Muslims and their supporters was suspended. The says rity of the ban at last overreached its object, for the sympathies of the people were enlisted by their privation in favour of Muhammad and his followers. The interdict was can called and the Häshimites restored to freedom

In the beginning of the touth year of his mission, and in the fiftieth of his life, Muhammad lest his faithful and devoted write Khadijah. For twenty-five years she had been his counsellor and support and mis gracat her death at first was inconsolable. She was sixty-five years old when she died. Ahu Tähb, the Prophet's nucle and guardian, died a few weeks afterwards. His conversion to Islam is a matter of uncortainty. Within two months of the death of Khadijah (who was his only wife during her lifetime), the Prophot married Saudah, the widow of one of the Abysaman emigrants, and also betrothed himself to 'Ayishah, the daughter of his friend Abū Baki, then but a girl of seven years

Abu Tālib had hardly been buried a fortinght when Muhammad, iollowed only by his faithful attendants, set out on an adventurous mission to at-Tā'if, a place sixty miles to the east of Makkah, and the nearest city of importance. He went first to the three principal men of the city, and explained the object of his mission, and invited them to the honour of supporting him in sustaining the new faith. But he failed in producing consensuants and the model of the city and the failed in producing consensuants. Muhammad remained at as-Tā'if ten days, but with no success. The mob, stirred up to neaten the departure of the unwelcome visitor, hooted at him in the streets, and pelted him with stones, and at last compelled him to flee out of the city. They chand him fully two miles across the sandy plant, until wearied and mortified, he took refuge for the night in a neighbouring garden where he spent some time in earnest prayer (Muir, 2nd ed., p. 114)

Reinvigorated by the rest, he set ferth on the return journey to Makkah.

Repulsed from at-Ta'ıf, and utterly hopeless at home, the fortunes of Muhammad seemed dark, but hope dawned at last from an unexpected quarter At the yearly pilgrimage, a little group of worshippers from al-Madmah was attracted and won over at Mina by the preaching of Islam, joined his mission, and the following year they met Mu hammad and took the oath of allegiance which is known as the first Pledge of Aqabah This little party consisted of twelve men ten were of the Khazraj and two of the Aus tribe They plighted their faith to Muhammad as follows — We will not worship any but one God, we will not steal, neither will we commit adultery, nor will we kill our childien, we will not slander in anywise, and we will aboy the Prophet in everything that is Just "

At al-Madinah the claims of the new Prophet found a ready response A teacher was dejuted from Makkah to al-Madinah, and the how fuith apread with marvellous rapidity

The hopes of Muhammad were now fixed on al Madinah, visions of his journey north wards doubtless fitted before his imagination and the musing of the day, reappeared in his midnight slumbers

He dramed that he was swiftly carried by Gabriel on a winged steed past al Madinah to the Temple of Jernsalem, where he was welcomed by the former Prophets all as sembled in sol-min conclave. From Jernsalem he seemed to mount inpwards, and to ascend from one heaven to another, until he found himself in the awful presence of his Maker, who dismissed him with the order that he should command his followers to pray five times a day [MIRAJ, BURAQ]

When the time of pilgrimage again arrived. Muhammad found himself surrounded by an enthusiastic band of seventy disciples from al-Madinah, who in a secret defile at Mină plighted their faith, the second Pledge of Aqabah, whereby they promised to receive and defend the Faith at the risk of their own lives. After this Muhammad determined to quit Makkah, and the command was given, "Depart unto al-Madinah, for the Lord hath verily given you brethren in that city, and a house in which ye may find refuge." And so, abandoning house and home, the Muslims set out secretly in little parties for al-Madinah, where the numbers soon reached to about one hundred and fifty, counting women and children Muhammad, with Abū Bakr and 'All, with their families, were left almost alone in Makkah. The Quraish held a council, and determined to alay Muhammad, but being warned of their designs, he escaped to Mount Seur, near Makkah, where he hid himself three days in a caye and after three more days he reached at Madinah

The day of his flight, or higrah, marks the Muhammadan era, or Hegira. The date of the flight was the 4th of Rabiu 'l-Awwal, and by the exiculations of M. Causain de Perceval, the 20th of June. A.D. 622 [HIJRAH.]

The flight to al-Madinah changes the scene, and with it the character of the portions of the Quran revealed there. He who at Makkah is the admonisher and persuader, at al-Madinah is the legislator and the warrior, and the verses of the Qur'an assume a more didactic tone Poetry makes way for prose, and he openly assumes the office of a public warner and prophet.

The idolaters of Makkah disappear and then place is taken by the hypocrites [MU-NAFIQUN] of al-Madinah. Here at al-Madinah there was no opposition to Muhammad and his doctrines, but, nevertheless, an under-current of disaffection prevailed. The head of the party was 'Abdu 'lish ibn Obsiy, who. but for the new turn in the fortunes of the city was on the point of being its chief These disaffected citizens, the munafique, or "hypoerites," as they are called, continued to be the objects of bitter denunciation in the Qur'an till near the close of the Prophet's CATOOT But before the success of Islam they too vamsh from the scene

The first year of Muhammad's residence at al-Madinah was chiefly occupied in building the great mosque [MASJIDU 'N-NABI], and in providing houses for himself and his followers. In a short time he became the recognised chief of the city The mosque and the houses were finished within seven months of Muhammad's arrival. About the middle of the winter he left the house of Abu Aivub, with whom he had been staying, and installed Saudah in her new residence Shortly afterwards he celebrated his nuptials with 'Avishah, who, though she had been three years affianced, was but a girl of ten years

Thus, at the age of fifty-three, a new phase commenced in the life of Muhammad Hitherto limiting himself to a single wife, he had shunned the indulgence, but he now surrounds himself with the cares and discord, of polygamv The unity of his family was now broken, never again to he restored Thenceforward his love was to be claimed, his attentions shared by a plurality of wives, and his days spent between their houses, for Muhammad had no separate apartments of his own

Those Muslims who had left Makkah with the Prophet and settled in al-Madinah, were now known as the Refugees [NUBAJIRIN] whilst those who embraced the faith at al-Madinah, were designated the Assistants or Allies [ANSAR] Beth these names became titles of distinguished honour. Beth these names in time

In the second year of the Hijrah, Muhammad commenced hostilities against the Quraish, and the first pitched battle took place at Badı. With an army of 805 followers, of whom two-thirds were citizens of al-Madinsb, Muhammad routed a force three times the number The following graphic description of the battle of Badr is given by Sir William

Mnir (New ed p 280)
"The valley of Badr consists of a plain, with steep hills to the north and east, on the south is a low rocky range, and on the west rise a succession of sandy hillocks A rivulet, rising in the inland mountains, runs through the valley, producing along its course nume rous springs, which here and there were dug into oisterns for the accommodation of tra veilers At the nearest of these springs, the army of Mahomet halted Habal, a citizen of Medina, advised him to proceed onwards 'Let us go,' he said, 'to the farthest spring, on the side of the enemy I know a neverfailing fountain of sweet water there, let us make that our reservoir and destroy the other wells' The advice was good. It was at once adopted, and the command of the water thus secured

"The night was drawing on. So they hastily constructed near the well a hut of palm branches, in which Mahomet and Abu Bakr slept Såd ibn Mnådz (Sa'd ibn Mu'ag) kept watch hy the entrance with his drawn sword It rained during the night, but more heavily towards the camp of the Coreish. The Moslim army, wearied with its long march, enjoyed sound and refreshing eleep. The dreams of Mahomet turned upon his enemies, and they were pictured to his ima-gination as a weak and contemptible force "In the morning he drew up his little army, and, pointing with an arrow which he held in his hand, arranged the ranks The previous day he had placed the ohief banner, that of the Reingees, in the hands of Musal, who nobly proved his right to the distinction. The Khazrajite ensign was committed to Hobab; that of the Bani Aus, to Sad ibn Muadz.

"Meanwhile, dissension again broke out m the camp of the Coreish, on the policy of fighting against their kinsmen. Shaiba and Otba ('Utbah), two objects of rank, influenced, it is said, by their slave Addas (the same who comforted the Prophet on his flight from Tayıf), strongly urged that the attack should be abandoned Just then, Omeir, a diviner by arrows, having ridden hastily round the valley, returned to report the result of his reconnsisance 'Ye Corossh,' he said, after telling them his estimate of the enemy's number calamities approach you, fraught Inevitable death rideth with destruction upon the camels of Yathreb (Yasrib) It is a people that bath norther defence nor refuge but in their swords. They are dumb as the grave, their tongues they put forth with the serpent's deadly sim Not a man of them shall we kill, but in his stead one of ourselves also will be slaid, and when there shall have been slaughtered amongst us a number equal unto them, of what avail will life be to us after that?' These words began to produce a pacific effect, when Abu Jahl, as before, loudly opposed the proposals for peace Turn-mg to Amir the Hadhramite he bade him call to mind the blood of his brother slain at Nakbja The flame was fekindled Amir threw off his clothes, cast dust upon his body, and began frantically to cry aloud his brothers name. The deceased had been a comfederate of the family of Sharbs and Otha Then pride and holour were ('Utbah) They saw that thoughts of peace affected must now be scattered to the winds and they resolved signally to vindicate themesives from the imputation of cowardice cost on them by Ahu Jahl. The army was drawn up n line. The three standards for the centre and wings were borne, according to sneten pri vilege by members of the house of Abd al the intervening sand nills which the ran had made heavy and fatiguing. The same cause acting with less intensity, had rendered the ground in front of Mahomat lighter and mon-firm to walk upon The Coreish Liboured under another disadvantage they had the maing our before them, while the army of Medina faced the west

"Mahomet had barely arrayed his line of battle, when the advanced column of the enemy was discerned over the maing sands n Then groutly superior numbers were concented by the fall of the ground behind and this imparted confidence to the Moslenis But Mahomet was rully aliye to the critical position. The fate of Islam houg upon the issue of the approaching battle. Followed by Abu Bakr, he hastened for a moment into the little hut, and raising his hands poured forth these earnest petitions, "O Lord, I be secch Thee forget not Thy promise of assistance and of victor; () Lord! if this little band to vanquished idolatry will prevail and the pure worship of thee count from oft the earth 'The Lord, said Abu Bakr, comforting him, will sarely come to thine aid, and will lighten thy countenance with the joy of victory

"The time for action had arrived Maho met again came frith. The crems was aircady close, but the army of Medina remained etill. Mahomet had no cavalry to cover an advince, and before superior num bere he must keep close he ranks. Accordingly the Prophet had strictly incliden his followers to stir till Le should give 'he order for advance only they were to theck any flank movement of the Coreish by the dis charge of arrows The quetern was guarded as their palladram. Certain desperate was more of the Coreach swore that they would drink water from it destroy it or perien in the attempt. Scarcely one returned from the rach enterprise, With signal gallantry, Aswad advenced close to the brink, when a blow from Hames's sword fell upon his leg and nearly severed it from his body. Still opfording himself he crawled inwards and made good his von for he dis k of the water and with his row uning leg demolished art of the cuttern before the sword of Hamas put an end to his life.

· Already, after the tashion of Arabian warfare, single combats had been fought-at various points, when the two brothers Simiba and Othe, and Walld the son of Othe still amarting from the words of Abu Jahl, ad vauced into the space between the ermies, and defied three champions from the army of Mahomet to meet them singly Three cita-zens of Medina stepped forward; but Maho-mot, unwilling auther that the glory or the hurden of the opening conflict should rest with his allies, called them back, and, turning to his kinsmen said 'Ye sons of Hashim' arise and fight according to your right. Then Oberda (Ubaidah), Hamza, and All, the uncle sud courses of the Prophet, went forth Hamza wore an os rich feather in his breast and a white plume distinguished the helmet of Ali But their features were bid by then armour Otha, therefore, not knowing who his opponents might be, cried aloud, Speak that we may recognise you! If ye be equals, we shall fight with you' Hamza answered, 'I am the on of Abd al Muttalib -Hanza the Lion of God, and the Lion of His Prophet' 'A worthy for exclaimed, Otha 'but who are these others with thee' Hanza repeated then names Otha replied, 'Meet foes, every one!

"Then Otha called to his son Walid, Arese and light? So Walld stopped forth and All came out against him. They were the youngest of the six. The combat was short Walid fell mostally wounded by the sword of Ah Eager to avonge his son's death, Otha hastened forward, and Hamza advanced to meet him The awards gleamed quick, and again the Coreishite warrior was slain by the Moslim bon Shaiba alone remained of the three champions of Mecca, and Obeida, the return of the Mosleme, threescore year and five now hew near to fight with him Both being well advanced in years, the conflict was less decisive than before At last, Shaiba deilt a sword-cut on the leg of Oheida with anch force as to sever the tendon, and bring him to the ground Seeing this, Hamza and the both rushed on Shaiba and despatched him Oberds survived but for a few days, and was lurred on the much back at Safra ' luo fate of their champions was ominous for the C teigh, and their sprits sank. The ranks began to close, with the battle-ery on the Moslem ade of 'Ye conquerors, strike!' are the lighting became general. But there were still man, of those scenes of individual brussy which claracteries the irregular warlare of Asiatic armes, and often impart to them a Han erro interest Productes of valong were exhibited on both sides but the arm) of the Faithful was boine forward-by an enthusiasm which the half-hearted Coreish were unable to withstand

What part Mahomet himself took in the battle is not clear Some traditions represent him moving glong the ranks with a drawn aword it is more likely (amording to others) that he contented hupself with inciting his followers by the promise of divine assistance, and by holding out the prospect of Paradise to those who fell the spirit of Omeir, a lad of but sixteen years, was kindled within him as he listened to the Prophet's words Tradition delights to tell of the ardour with which the stripling threw away a handful of dates which he was eating 'Is it these,' he excisimed, that hold me back from Partdise? Verrly I will taste no more of them until I meet my Lord! With such words, he drew his sword, and, casting himself apon the enemy, seen obtained the fate he ooveted

"It was a stormy wintry lay A piercing blast swept across the valley 'That,' so a Mahomet, is Gabriel with a thousand angels flying as a whirlwind at our foe' Another, and yet another blast -it was Michael, and after him, Scraphil, each with a like angelie troop The battle raged. The Prophet stoped and lifting a handful of gravel, east it towards the Coreah, and cried, 'Confusion seize their faces!' The line of the Coroisu began to waver Their movements were impeded by the heavy saids on which they stood, and, when the ranks gave way, their numbers added but confusion The Moslems followed eagerly on them retreating steps slaying or taking captive all that fell within their reach Retreat soon turned into The Coreish, n their ignominions flight haste to escape, cast away then armour and abandoned then beasts of burden with the camp and aquipage Forty-nine were killed, and about the same number taken prisoners Mahomet lost only fourteen, of whom eight were citizens of Medina, and aix Rofugoes

Many of the principal men of the Coreasi and some of Mahomot's bitterest opponents were slain Chief amongst these was Abu Jahl Muadz brought him to the ground by a blow which cut his leg in two Muadz in his turn, was attacked by Ikrima ('Ikrimah), the son of Abu Jahl, and his arm nearly severed from his shoulder As the mutilated limb hinging by the skin impeded his action, Mundz put his fact upon it, pulled it off, and went on his way fighting Such we'e the heroes of Bedr Abu Jahl was vet breathing when Abdallah Mahomet's servent, ian up, and cutting off his head, carried it to his master 'The head of the enemy of God!'
exclaimed Mahomet. 'God! There is none other God but He!' 'There is no other!
responded Abdallah as he cast the bloody head at the Prophet's feet 'It is more acceptable to me, cried Mahomet, 'than the choicest camel m all Arabia

But there were others whose death caused no gratification to Mahomet Abdul Bokh tan had shown him special kindness at the time when he was shut up in the quarter of Abu Talib , Mahomet, mindful of this favour, had commanded that he should not be hermed Abdul Bokhtarı had a companion seated on his camel behind him A warrior. riding up, told him of the quarter given by Mahomet, but added, 'I cannot spine the man behind thee' 'The women of Mecra-Abdul Bokhtarı exclaimed, 'shall never say that I abandoned my comrade through love of life Do thy work upon us' So they were killed, both he and his companion. of life

"After the buttle wan over, some of the pursoners were orugily put to death The fol lowing incident illustrates the savage spirit already characteristic of the faith. Omeya thu Khelf and his son were unable to escape with the fugitive Corcish, and, seeing Abdal Rahman pass, imploied that he would make them his prisoners Abdal Rahman mudful of an ancient friendship, cast away the plunder he was carrying, and, making both his prisoners, was proceeding with them to the Moslim camp party passed, Bilal espied his old enemy-for Omeys had used to persecute hun-and he screamed aloud Skev hum. This man is the head of the unbelievers. I am lost, I am lost, if he haves 'From all sides the infuriated coldiers, hearing Bull's appeal, poured in upon the wretched captions, and Abdal Rah man, finding resistance impossible, bade their save their lives as best they could Defence was vam, and the two pusoners were name distely cut in pieces

"When the enemy had disappeared, the army of Medina was for some time engaged in gathering the spoil Livery man was allowed to retain the plunder of savone whom he himself had slain. The rest was thrown inte a common stock The booty con sisted of one hundred and fifteen camels, fourteen hor es carpets and other articles of fing leather, vestments, and much equipage and armoni A diversity of opinion niose about the distribution. These who had hetly pursued the enemy and exposed their lives in securing the spoil claimed the whole, or at the least a sup mer portion while such as had remained climb upon the held of bettle for the safety of the Prophet and of the camp niged that they had equally with the others fulfilled the part congred to them, and teat, having been restrained by duty from the pursuit, they were entitled to a full share of the prev The contention was so sharp, that Mahomet interposed with a mes age from heaven, and a quined possession of the whole monty. It was God who had given the victory and to God the spoil belonged 'They will ask thee concerning Sav, the prev is God's and his the prev Prophet's Wher fore fear God, and dispose of the matter lightly among youselves, and be electiont unto God and His Prophet, if ye he true Believers -and so on in the same Shortly afterwards the following stram ordinance, which the Mussulman law of prize 1000gmaps to the present day, was given forth 'And know that whatwoever thing re plunder, verily one lifth thereof is for God and for the Prophet, and for him that is of kin (unto the Prophet), and for the orphans, and the poor and the wayfarer-if ye be they that believe in God, and in that which We sent down to our Bervant on the Day of Discumination, the day on which the two armies met, and God is over all things powerful. (See Qur'an, barah vin) "In accordance with the divine command. the booty was gathered together on the field, and placed under a special officer, a citizen of Medina. The next day it was divided near Safra, in equal allotments among the whole army, after the Prophot's tifth had been set apart All shared alike, excepting that the horsemen received each two extra portions for their horses To the lot of every man fell a camel, with its year, or two camels unaccontred, or a leathern couch, or some such equivalent Mahomet obtained the famous camel of Abu Jahl, and a sword known by the name of Daul Frear (Zu "-The sword was selected by him beyond his share, according to a custom which allowed him, in virtue of the prophetic dignity, to choose from the booty before division, whatever thing might please him most

"The sun was now dechning, so they hastily dug a pit on the battle field, and cust the enemy a dead into it Mahomet looked on, as the bodies were brought up and cast in Ahn Bakr, too, stood by, and, examining their fentures, called aloud their names Othal Shuba! Omeyya! Abu Jahl! exclaimed Mahomet, as one by one the corpses were without ceremony, thrown into the common grave 'Have ye now found that which your Lord promised you true? What my Lord promised me that verily have I found to be true Wee unto this people! Ye have rejected me, your Prophet! Ye cast me forth and others gave me refuge, ye fought against me, and others came to my help! O Prophet!' said the hystanders 'dost thou spoak unto the dead?' 'You verily, replied Mahomet, 'for they well know 'hat fully come to pass'

